Avon Park Nine Drops Game In Semi-finals

The Avon Park Ball team held its high average winning every game until Wednesday night when they were beaten by the Winter Haven team. Brilliant hurling by Ralph Hill and Virgil Martin, and Billy Rutledge's hitting helped the Avon Park team win their victory over Key West.

As we go to press the deciding game cannot be mentioned, but there will be a very large crowd of spectators at the game, perhaps the largest crowd of the tournament.

The Blue Devils of Winter Haven advanced to the finals with a hard earned 2 to 0 victory over the Avon Park nine, and play the Sebring team on Thursday night, after the Sebring team won over the Bartow Yellow Jackets 14 to 4.

Denton scored the first run for Winter Haven during the second inning when he was safe on a fielder's choice, stole second and scored when Martin's throw got past Rutledge and went into centerfield.

The final run was scored in the sixth on Brinnger's walk, a stolen base, a sacrifice by Chapman and a passed ball.

The Blue Devils collected only one hit off Virgil Martin, the pride of the Avon team, a triple by Gene Pittman in the second inning. The Avon team showed a fine display of ball playing this season and it was hoped by all that they could have made the finals, but as Coach Carter stated, if they won this series they would have to keep on playing ball till they lost out. The winning team will go on to play the winners of other tournaments and this goes on till two teams out of five southern states meet.

JUST LOOKIN' 'ROUND ……

The 1950 Fishing Licenses are now on sale, and those famous fishermen of Highlands county had better get on the beam and purchase their licenses before the game warden gets on their trail. The old ones run out on June 30 and it is important to every fisherman to take heed and equipt themselves with new ones.

Everyone including the Avon Park Sun slipped up on the welcoming of the visiting baseball teams that have played here this past week. Most towns would have had streamres out and one of the local civic organizations could have arranged for a tour of the city, or swimming parties to be held at one of the beaches around our beautiful lakes. Merchants could have had signs in their windows and everyone could have made some outward show that they appreciated the visitors. Now I am not saying that the boys were not welcome. If you have been out to any of the games this week you can readily see that around one quarter of the entire population are attending the games. That is a very good percentage of the townsfolks to be interested in one sport. We are proud to see that the Avon team can compete with the best of them.

SPY RINGS

It is axiomatic that a thing often enough repeated is certain to make justified impression. So we treat again the question of Spy Ring with the walls of this garden of individual liberty. The existence of this organized espionage must be brought home to our people. The terms in which the impression must exist are profound. The impression must be indellible.

With an audacity which affronts common sense and outrages international relationships, Russia, consutales begin to appear as spy nests. The rigidity with which secret police apply the dictums of Stalin, defy every tenet of our free philosophy.

Soil long sanctified by the flood of our forefathers and of our neighbors, is suddenly polluted by the presence of active forces preaching overthrow of our government. Hard faced men with petrified souls, build their own prisons within our very shores. They impress upon the lives of human beings such manacles as make a mockery of Liberty.

Here, in the land of the free, humans cringe in terror, seek escape in death, lie in terrified silence, their eyes burned with the things they have seen their personal dignity drowned in the devastation of dictatorship.

Right here in our United States. Right here, where victims may raise beseeching eyes to Heaven, and see there the Star Spangled Banner caressed by the winds.

Is it credible? Does it seem like a fantasy of fiction? A figment of tortured imagination? Yet it occurs literally on the very doorsteps of free, American homes.

Men and women, none knows in what number, literally imprisoned by a foreign authority! Behind closed doors, under the ministration of strong tongues, for the achievement of inimical purposes, American Freedom is trod under the iron heel.

Womanhood lies shattered in court yards. Constituted authorities are called "liars". Square chinned goons, in the guise of diplomats, "demand" custody of a broken human body that the secrets, the methods and the unrevealed purposes of those Soviet police may remain hidden. Ah, America! Ah, Freedom! Whence has fled your splendor; whance gone your valor?

The President of the United States, bewildered and bemused by the flow of his political ambitions, calls this spy scandal a "red herring." Nero and his fiddle never did more than that:

If it be dragging a red herring to drive womanhood through windows in search of a beneficient death; if it be dragging red herrings to expose spies in government office; if it be dragging red herrings to find a representative of this nation, once nominated to aid in perfecting the United Nations, now a jackal hideous in loyalty to Communism ,then we know not the meaning of "red herring" as the President brings it into use.

As for us, we cry Shame. We make bold to speak as simple, patriotic Americans must speak. We will tolerate no "diplomacy" which aids, abets and houses deadly enemies in our midst. We will not abide secret police, be they of our own government, or be they spawned in the rapine of Moscow.

We shall raise our eyes in Faith, as Faith inspired our founders. We shall raise our arms, as arms were raised at Valley Forge. Not in a Nazi or Soviet salute. We shall insist that those solemnly sworn to protect and defend our Constitution, do just that. There is none who can do for human freedom more than to preserve our Constitution. There is none who can do more for human bondage than to undermine our Constitution.

This is not mere politics. Mere politicians are momentarily in ascendancy over human liberty, but these termites are the tragic result of a flood of studied mediocrity, arranged to accommodate the insatiable ambition of megalomaniacs. These shall pass from power. These must pass from power.

The will of our people must prevail in the councils of Peace, as well as in the councils of war.

~~The will of our people must prevail in the councils of Peace, as well as in the councils of war.~~

This barefaced invasion of our homeland, which we see now as a Spy Ring but which, unchecked, will lead to invasion by goose-stepping automatons clad in iron heels and armed with lustful ignorance, is a deliberate defiance of our Rights. It is more than diplomatic machination. It is the certain forerunner of deadly war.

Ignorance and Flesh is aligning against Enlightenment and Soul, for world dominance. Are we to be manacled by the insipidities of those seeing only red herrings? Are we, in preparation for this Armageddon, to be led by the dregs of corrupt political machines?

Ours it must be to choose between political parasites and patriotic leaders. Choose well. Choose without fear, God is in His High Heaven. The souls of men shall speak, This Republic shall not perish at the enfeebled hand of inadequate leadership, nor shall it be destroyed by the mailed fist of Communism.

You and you and you; of the kitchen, the office, the farm, the shop, shall speak for America, for you are America. Speak your mandate that these spacious invaders with their spurious ideologies, be swept from our homeland, that Freedom may ring for us, and for all mankind.

Speak as our forefathers spoke. Speak in the name and in the strength, of God. Speak.

Florida's Tax Income and Expenditures Explained To Rotarians

P. E. Murray

The Rotary International of Avon Park were honored to have as guest speaker at their Wednesday luncheon, Mr. Perry Murray, speaker of the House. The Rotary meeting opened with Vaughan Driggers welcoming the many guests and reading letters received from the Fort Meade School in answer to their letter thanking the Rotary for the fine treatment the Fort Meade Ball team received while visiting Avon Park. Mr. Charlie Lanier then introduced Speaker Murray with a flourish that it well befitting such an able man. Mr. Muray thanked the club for the kind words and then went on to congratulate the people of Highlands County for selecting Miss Edna Pierce as a House representative. He spoke of the fine qualities that Miss Pierce showed while attending this session of the legislature, and said that she always had the interest of her people at heart. Mr. Murray then spoke giving a brief resume of the tax problems in Florida. We must look at this problem from every angle, he stated and after boiling it down there is only one question to ask the public. We must have additional taxes in order to carry on the work necessary for the good of the peoples, so in what way did the members think best to place the tax. Several suggestions were made with a vote of hands showing the approval or disapproval of the different methods. Mr. Murray, in doing this at each meeting he attends, will get the general attitude of the people whom he represents and he can then try his best to carry out the direct wishes of the people when he returns to Tallahassee.

Mr. Murray told of some of the ways and means that work was accomplished in the legislature and said the speakers of the House were there to do the will of the people and that is the reason that no tax laws was enacted.

First, the speakers wanted to come home and discuss this with various civic groups and then with their decisions in mind, resume their duties in a manner most suitable to their public.

Winter Guests Club News

By David Arthur Brodie

Last week your pinch-hitting correspondent promised something different from the general run of Club news. Here it is for what it is worth to those who may read this story:

Quite recently, I began collecting my scattered notes covering my travels across the Continent just after my retirement. In doing this, points of interest, all but forgotten, are brought to mind, some of only passing interest, some amusing, and some pathetic—even tragic. One that has just gripped my attention, and I am passing it on to you, carries a lesson that should be of value to those of our friends and relatives who are still engaged in doing the world's work.

At one time in my life, my work centered around northern Louisiana, and east Texas. It was during the early days of the boll weevil invasion which threatened the chief industry of the South—cotton. A young man from Tennessee, lately discharged from the Spanish-American war, came to east Texas with his bride. They rented a farm near town, bought a small herd of cows and began furnishing milk to the townspeople. They bought all their feed except what pasture the farm afforded. It was part of my duty to help the farmers plan a more diversified cropping system, so that they would not have to depend on one crop alone for a living. So, when I became acquainted with this intelligent, ambitious, and enterprising young couple, together, we planned a cropping system that would, in part at least, save them from having to pay out hard cash for all their feed. My work continued to bring me in contact with them from time to time, so I was able to watch their progress for a number of years. They succeeded from the very beginning, at the same time they worked as I have seldom seen people work. During the day, they did all the regular work on the farm, including milking, then from two o'clock in the morning until daylight, the young man was distributing his milk from door to door over town.

In a few years, they bought a farm of their own, still nearer town, and in a few years more, it was stocked with purebred Jerseys. In time, they became known among the best Jersey breeders in the state, and regularly took prizes at the state and county fairs.

Another few years elapsed and the city grew until it extended beyond the farm, and the land became too valuable for dairying. The result was that they sold their fine dairy, with its blooded stock, at fancy prices, and divided the farm into building lots. They found themselves rich beyond all their youthful dreams.

This was how I found them when I looked them up on a recent visit to my old stamping ground. I had been out of touch with them for probably thirty five years. Had I met them on the street, or away from home, I would not have known them, but they recognized me as soon as I spoke, in spite of my seventy years and a white VanDyke. They had been talking about me as they ate breakfast that very morning, so they said. We had a splendid visit talking over old times when we were all young, ambitious, and struggling to get ahead.

As we exchanged experiences, and they told me of their rise to a wealth that they never dreamed of reaching, I was seeing something else while they talked and showed me around; something that was not the pleasing picture one expects to visualize while listening to a recital of a successful career. Something dark and threatening was growing more and more sinister before my eyes as I listened. Here were these two old-time friends, grown, old, and in poor health. Money, without effort was rolling in from the sale of lots, to add to their already accumulated savings. Yet, here they were living in the same old farm house that had stood in the middle of the farm, still without any of the comforts and conveniences that were part and parcel of each and every modern home that had been built around them. There was no kitchen sink, no toilet or bathroom, no water connections, no gas, no electric appliances, except the electric lights. Outside, the barns were all gone, but the old woodshed, and the outside toilet of pioneer days, stood side by side in the far corner of the back yard, with a well-worn path leading to them from the back door of the house.

This couple had worked, and slaved, and sacrificed to acquire a competence, and now in their old age, sick, childless, and with few, if any, social contacts, they did not know how to use their wealth. They did not know what comforts and conveniences were. With all their money, they still lived in the same primitive way in which they started some forty years before. They had kept their noses so close to the grindstone that they had allowed the world to pass them. They were exactly where they began except that hope and ambition were gone.

So, as I bid them goodbye, almost sure that I would never see them again, I drove away with a heavy heart. And as I drove along my thoughts reverted to the Winter Guest Club that I had just left a few weeks before, and pictured the happy folks I had met there, who were enjoying the fruits of their hard-earned savings, and the thought came to me most forcibly, which when put into words means, "Infinitely blest are those who in their declining years can still enjoy the fruits of their early sacrifices and efforts in peaceful and tranquil retirement. Many of them also pinched, and saved, and worried through heart-rending difficulties, and hardships, yet who never lost sight of the comforts and conveniences afforded by the advancing trend of the times. Throughout life, they not only kept in mind, and provided for, the inevitable "rainy day," but they also looked forward with laudable anticipation to the enjoyment of the sunny days ahead.

MY FATHER AND I

A Sunday School teacher sought to describe God to her class. She said that He was "kind, good, strong, thoughtful, loving; a being who could conquer the world and meet obstacles with courage; who could take care of them in their distress; who was not afraid of the dark; who supplied them with all things they needed." Then she asked the question: "Does that description of God make you think of anybody you know?" Whereupon a boy put up his hand and declared: "That's my Pop!"

Evidently there was a good father and son relationship in that boy's home. We saw something like it recently, when a father carefully pointed out the operation of a machine to his son. The boy listened intently and then questioned his father. The father paid strict attention to his son and answered him as if he were talking to a foreman in a factory. Lucky boy! To have a father like that! That son was learning something of far greater value than a knowledge of machinery; he was learning important lessons in the art of living. A good character at work in the atmosphere of love is always contagious. The son soon catches on.

Fortunate is the child who witnesses in his father such virtues as steadfastness of spirit, a willingness to labor on in spite of rebuff and failure, the acceptance of struggle in the face of indifference, and a praying heart in the presence of trial or defeat. For thus one learns to stand up and live.

Blessed is that father who has learned to suffer without bitterness, to endure without a desire for revenge.

When we read the story of Jesus, we discover that these elemental lessons are revealed in crystal clarity. He labored on with steadfast devotion though his challenge to the nation seemed to fail. His enthusiasm was not blunted even by the lowering clouds of vindictive opposition. He continued his mission even though his family expressed many a doubt, and on one occasion judged him to be beside himself. He did not quit, when his following dwindled, nor when his disciples lost faith and fled. "My Father worketh hitherto," Jesus said, "and I work."

Through companionship with the living Christ the Apostle Paul was able to turn defeat into victory, stonings into blessings, imprisonments into freedom, and death into life eternal. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me," says Paul. Where is the son or daughter who would not be blessed if their father had such a wonderful companionship with Christ? And what father is willing to give his children anything short of the best? If ever in the world a father needed to look into the face of Christ before he looks into the faces of his son and daughter, that time is now. The light in a father's eyes can lead to a conviction of the reality of God in a child's heart, that He is near, that He is on the side of that which is good, that which is true, and that which is beautiful. That is what makes Father's Day so very important.

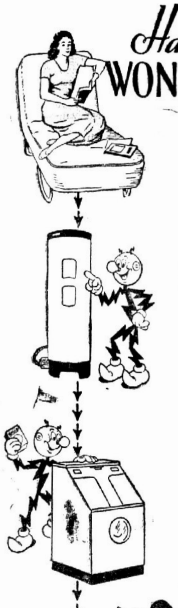
Having a WONDERFUL WASHDAY!



. . . and I'm not kidding! . . . there's just no such thing as "Blue Monday" in our household since I let Reddy Kilowatt take over the washday chores.

Reddy handles all the laundry operations almost single-handed! He starts off by providing plenty of good hot water. I don't even need to think about that part . . . our electric water heater is so very dependable.

Then Reddy's ready to do the actual washing. All he asks of me is to put the clothes and soap into the automatic machine and flip the switch. He goes on from there with the scrubbing, rinsing and damp-drying . . . and he does a good job, too!

After that, I just move the clean clothes into the automatic electric drier and flip another switch. Reddy again takes over and completes the drying job . . . I don't even have to worry about washday weather any more!

Finally, Reddy's ready for the ironing. He asks a little more help on my part for this operation . . . I have to guide the clothes through the ironer. But, after all, I haven't done anything up to that point that could possibly tire me . . . and besides, he insists that I sit down to do even my small part of the job!

Yes, washday is a wonderful day since I let my electrical servant, Reddy Kilowatt, run the laundry!

Mrs. Hindman Speaker At Garden Club Meeting

The Avon Park Garden Club, "Founders Circle" held their June Meeting at the home of Mrs. W. C. Touchton, June 9, with Mrs. H. B. Donaldson as Co-hostess, and Mrs. C. Parke Anderson, president, presiding.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Charles F. Hindman, who was introduced to the club by Mrs. A. R. Martin, program chairman. Mrs. Hindman is a native of Missouri, and gave a most interesting talk on Daylilies. She is a member of the Hermorcalles Society of America and assisted in editing their Year Book. Mrs. Hindman stressed that most varieties of Daylilies grew well in Florida. Established plants do not require much care, but if fertilizer and water are given the grower is liberally rewarded with large blossoms and better foliage.

The speaker spent some time with Ralph Wheeler of Winter Park and Mrs. Bright Taylor of Ocala recently where thousands of varieties of lilies were growing.

In Ohio a convention of Hermorcales growers was held and a poll was taken to determine the most popular varieties which resulted in: Queen Ester (bright red), first; Patricia (yellow) second; Copper color, third; Helen Field Fisher, fourth; Midwest Star (yellow) fifth; the latter having flowers nine inches across.

The talk was illustrated with colored slides and pictures of a number of beautiful specimens were also shown. This talk was instructive as well as entertaining and everyone felt they would find a spot somewhere in her garden for some varieties of these lovely flowers.

After Mrs. Hindman had finished her informative talk, an interesting question and answer period was held.

The plants for the usual drawing were furnished by Mrs. W. S. Betts and Mrs. Marjorie Church. Mrs. Demos Mandis and Mrs. Charles Metcalfe chose the lucky numbers. Mrs. Paul Garber was welcomed as a new member.

After the meeting adjourned, refreshments of sherbert punch, cookies and cake were served in the dining room.

Mrs. C. W. Hood and Mrs. Herbert Todd were guests.

Prior to the meeting, there was a meeting of the Executive Board, and the "Plant Give Away Day" was definitely set for July 12. It was also planned to put out rooted cuttings in the Park.

Please begin to get your plants ready if you have not already done so.

Mae Porter Locke Married To Thomas Vernon Collins In Candellight Ceremony

In an impressive candlelight ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church in Sebring, Saturday evening, Miss Mae Porter Locke, daughter of Mrs. Charles O. Locke, and the late Mr. Locke, became the bride of Thomas Vernon Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Collins of Cobbtown, Georgia. The Rev. Ray Collins, Macon, Ga., brother of the groom, performed the double ring ceremony, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. He was assisted by the Rev. Frederick W. Widmer, pastor of the Sebring church.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ralph Eyman, organist and William Jones of Bartow, vocalist.

Potted palms and fern formed a background for pedestal baskets of white gladioli. Tall white tapers burning in branched candelabra created a soft illumination.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Charles O. Locke, 3rd. She wore a gown of white mousselind de sole, fashioned on period lines, with a pleated ruffle of self-material outlining the yoke of the high neckline. Similar ruffles encircled the waistline of the slim bodice. Her hooped skirt swept into a train, and her veil of illusion was attached to a halo bonnett. She carried a white prayer book surmounted with a white orchid.

Mrs. Charles O. Locke, 3rd, matran of honor, was gowned in a white pinafore style organdy dress, designed over a taffeta fountain of apple green. A wide crushed girdle of the taffeta accented the waistline of the bodice, and a band of embroidery was inserted above the hem of the voluminous skirt. She wore a green horsehair bonnet and carried a basket of pink carnations.

The two bridesmaids, Mrs. Jennings Bryan Cromartie and Miss Mary June Norwood of Valdosta, Ga., wore white taffeta gowns over a foundation of yellow, made identical with the honor attendant's gown. They wore yellow horsehair bonnets and carried baskets of yellow asters.

Truman Grayson of Orlando was best man and groomsmen were Sam Heidersbach, Miami, and Jennings Bryan Cromartie.

Mrs. Locke entertained at a reception at her home on Lotela Road, after the ceremony. The bride's table, overlaid with a cutwork cloth, was centered with the tiered wedding cake. Assisting were Mrs. A. R. Martin, who cut the cake and Mrs. J. L. Wells and Mrs. C. Parke Anderson, presiding at the punch bowl, Mrs. W. S. Betts, Mrs. J. A. Johnson, Mrs Frank Gerlock and Miss Arden Anderson. Miss Yvonne Head was in charge of the bride's book and Miss Anne Brodie was in charge of the gifts.

The couple left during the evening for a short wedding trip to the East Coast. For traveling, the bride chose a two-piece aqua suit and a wheat colored straw hat with tiny flowers on the rolled brim. Her two-toned shoes and bag were in shades of brown.

The couple will make their home in DeLand where Mr. Collins will continue his studies at Stetson Pniversity.

Kitchen Shower Given Popular Bride - Elect

Miss Mae Porter Locke, whose marriage of June 11 is of much interest, was guest of honor at a kitchen shower at the W. J. Head home on Lake Verona Thursday evening, given by Misses Yvonne Head and Anne Brodie.

The refreshment table was centered with a two tiered bride's cake topped with a miniture bride and groom. It was placed in a setting of miniture bridesmaids. Magnolia blossoms, in attractive arrangements were placed at vantage points in the party room.

The honoree cut the cake and it was served with ice cream to the small group of invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Maysack left this week for Camp Highlands, Sayner, Wisconsin, a camp for boys, where Mr. Maysack will act as Counselor and swimming instructor.

Popular Bride-Elect Feted At Luncheon

Mrs. J. A. Johnson entertained at a luncheon Thursday honoring Miss Mae Porter Locke, who became the bride of Thomas Vernon Vollins, Saturday evening.

The guests arrived at one o'clock and were invited into the dining room that was attractive with its floral arrangements and wedding bells, revealing the theme. The dining table was centered with silver wedding bells and sprays of gardenias. The place cards were gardenia corsages, found at the end of a streamer of white ribbon, leading out of the centerpiece. Silver candle sticks holding tall white tapers were placed on either side of an arrangement of sweetheart roses and tube roses in a low vase that created a wedding ring effect.

The hostess served a salad course to the honoree, Miss Mae Porter Locke, Mrs. Charles Locke, Miss Mary June Norwood, Miss Yvonne Head, Miss Ann Brodie, Miss Arden Anderson, Mrs. Bob Cromartie and Mrs. Charles O. Locke, III.

Winter Guests Club News

By David Arthur Brodie

Last week your pinch-hitting correspondent promised something different from the general run of Club news. Here it is for what it is worth to those who may read this story:

Quite recently, I began collecting my scattered notes covering my travels across the Continent just after my retirement. In doing this, points of interest, all but forgotten, are brought to mind, some of only passing interest, some amusing, and some pathetic—even tragic. One that has just gripped my attention, and I am passing it on to you, carries a lesson that should be of value to those of our friends and relatives who are still engaged in doing the world's work.

At one time in my life, my work centered around northern Louisiana, and east Texas. It was during the early days of the boll weevil invasion which threatened the chief industry of the South—cotton. A young man from Tennessee, lately discharged from the Spanish-American war, came to east Texas with his bride. They rented a farm near town, bought a small herd of cows and began furnishing milk to the townspeople. They bought all their feed except what pasture the farm afforded. It was part of my duty to help the farmers plan a more diversified cropping system, so that they would not have to depend on one crop alone for a living. So, when I became acquainted with this intelligent, ambitious, and enterprising young couple, together, we planned a cropping system that would, in part at least, save them from having to pay out hard cash for all their feed. My work continued to bring me in contact with them from time to time, so I was able to watch their progress for a number of years. They succeeded from the very beginning, at the same time they worked as I have seldom seen people work. During the day, they did all the regular work on the farm, including milking, then from two o'clock in the morning until daylight, the young man was distributing his milk from door to door over town.

In a few years, they bought a farm of their own, still nearer town, and in a few years more, it was stocked with purebred Jerseys. In time, they became known among the best Jersey breeders in the state, and regularly took prizes at the state and county fairs.

Another few years elapsed and the city grew until it extended beyond the farm, and the land became too valuable for dairying. The result was that they sold their fine dairy, with its blooded stock, at fancy prices, and divided the farm into building lots. They found themselves rich beyond all their youthful dreams.

This was how I found them when I looked them up on a recent visit to my old stamping ground. I had been out of touch with them for probably thirty five years. Had I met them on the street, or away from home, I would not have known them, but they recognized me as soon as I spoke, in spite of my seventy years and a white VanDyke. They had been talking about me as they ate breakfast that very morning, so they said. We had a splendid visit talking over old times when we were all young, ambitious, and struggling to get ahead.

As we exchanged experiences, and they told me of their rise to a wealth that they never dreamed of reaching, I was seeing something else while they talked and showed me around; something that was not the pleasing picture one expects to visualize while listening to a recital of a successful career. Something dark and threatening was growing more and more sinister before my eyes as I listened. Here were these two old-time friends, grown, old, and in poor health. Money, without effort was rolling in from the sale of lots, to add to their already accumulated savings. Yet, here they were living in the same old farm house that had stood in the middle of the farm, still without any of the comforts and conveniences that were part and parcel of each and every modern home that had been built around them. There was no kitchen sink, no toilet or bathroom, no water connections, no gas, no electric appliances, except the electric lights. Outside, the barns were all gone, but the old woodshed, and the outside toilet of pioneer days, stood side by side in the far corner of the back yard, with a well-worn path leading to them from the back door of the house.

This couple had worked, and slaved, and sacrificed to acquire a competence, and now in their old age, sick, childless, and with few, if any, social contacts, they did not know how to use their wealth. They did not know what comforts and conveniences were. With all their money, they still lived in the same primitive way in which they started some forty years before. They had kept their noses so close to the grindstone that they had allowed the world to pass them. They were exactly where they began except that hope and ambition were gone.

So, as I bid them goodbye, almost sure that I would never see them again, I drove away with a heavy heart. And as I drove along my thoughts reverted to the Winter Guest Club that I had just left a few weeks before, and pictured the happy folks I had met there, who were enjoying the fruits of their hard-earned savings, and the thought came to me most forcibly, which when put into words means, "Infinitely blest are those who in their declining years can still enjoy the fruits of their early sacrifices and efforts in peaceful and tranquil retirement. Many of them also pinched, and saved, and worried through heart-rending difficulties, and hardships, yet who never lost sight of the comforts and conveniences afforded by the advancing trend of the times. Throughout life, they not only kept in mind, and provided for, the inevitable "rainy day," but they also looked forward with laudable anticipation to the enjoyment of the sunny days ahead.

MY FATHER AND I

A Sunday School teacher sought to describe God to her class. She said that He was "kind, good, strong, thoughtful, loving; a being who could conquer the world and meet obstacles with courage; who could take care of them in their distress; who was not afraid of the dark; who supplied them with all things they needed." Then she asked the question: "Does that description of God make you think of anybody you know?" Whereupon a boy put up his hand and declared: "That's my Pop!"

Evidently there was a good father and son relationship in that boy's home. We saw something like it recently, when a father carefully pointed out the operation of a machine to his son. The boy listened intently and then questioned his father. The father paid strict attention to his son and answered him as if he were talking to a foreman in a factory. Lucky boy! To have a father like that! That son was learning something of far greater value than a knowledge of machinery; he was learning important lessons in the art of living. A good character at work in the atmosphere of love is always contagious. The son soon catches on.

Fortunate is the child who witnesses in his father such virtues as steadfastness of spirit, a willingness to labor on in spite of rebuff and failure, the acceptance of struggle in the face of indifference, and a praying heart in the presence of trial or defeat. For thus one learns to stand up and live.

Blessed is that father who has learned to suffer without bitterness, to endure without a desire for revenge.

When we read the story of Jesus, we discover that these elemental lessons are revealed in crystal clarity. He labored on with steadfast devotion though his challenge to the nation seemed to fail. His enthusiasm was not blunted even by the lowering clouds of vindictive opposition. He continued his mission even though his family expressed many a doubt, and on one occasion judged him to be beside himself. He did not quit, when his following dwindled, nor when his disciples lost faith and fled. "My Father worketh hitherto," Jesus said, "and I work."

Through companionship with the living Christ the Apostle Paul was able to turn defeat into victory, stonings into blessings, imprisonments into freedom, and death into life eternal. "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me," says Paul. Where is the son or daughter who would not be blessed if their father had such a wonderful companionship with Christ? And what father is willing to give his children anything short of the best? If ever in the world a father needed to look into the face of Christ before he looks into the faces of his son and daughter, that time is now. The light in a father's eyes can lead to a conviction of the reality of God in a child's heart, that He is near, that He is on the side of that which is good, that which is true, and that which is beautiful. That is what makes Father's Day so very important.

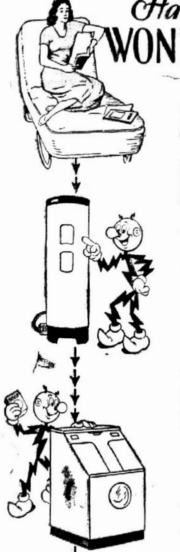
Having a WONDERFUL WASHDAY!



. . . and I'm not kidding! . . . there's just no such thing as "Blue Monday" in our household since I let Reddy Kilowatt take over the washday chores.

Reddy handles all the laundry operations almost single-handed! He starts off by providing plenty of good hot water. I don't even need to think about that part . . . our electric water heater is so very dependable.

Then Reddy's ready to do the actual washing. All he asks of me is to put the clothes and soap into the automatic machine and flip the switch. He goes on from there with the scrubbing, rinsing and damp-drying . . . and he does a good job, too!

After that, I just move the clean clothes into the automatic electric drier and flip another switch. Reddy again takes over and completes the drying job . . . I don't even have to worry about washday weather any more!

Finally, Reddy's ready for the ironing. He asks a little more help on my part for this operation . . . I have to guide the clothes through the ironer. But, after all, I haven't done anything up to that point that could possibly tire me . . . and besides, he insists that I sit down to do even my small part of the job!

Yes, washday is a wonderful day since I let my electrical servant, Reddy Kilowatt, run the laundry!

Mrs. Hindman Speaker At Garden Club Meeting

The Avon Park Garden Club, "Founders Circle" held their June Meeting at the home of Mrs. W. C. Touchton, June 9, with Mrs. H. B. Donaldson as Co-hostess, and Mrs. C. Parke Anderson, president, presiding.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Charles F. Hindman, who was introduced to the club by Mrs. A. R. Martin, program chairman. Mrs. Hindman is a native of Missouri, and gave a most interesting talk on Daylilies. She is a member of the Hermorcalles Society of America and assisted in editing their Year Book. Mrs. Hindman stressed that most varieties of Daylilies grew well in Florida. Established plants do not require much care, but if fertilizer and water are given the grower is liberally rewarded with large blossoms and better foliage.

The speaker spent some time with Ralph Wheeler of Winter Park and Mrs. Bright Taylor of Ocala recently where thousands of varieties of lilies were growing.

In Ohio a convention of Hermorcales growers was held and a poll was taken to determine the most popular varieties which resulted in: Queen Ester (bright red), first; Patricia (yellow) second; Copper color, third; Helen Field Fisher, fourth; Midwest Star (yellow) fifth; the latter having flowers nine inches across.

The talk was illustrated with colored slides and pictures of a number of beautiful specimens were also shown. This talk was instructive as well as entertaining and everyone felt they would find a spot somewhere in her garden for some varieties of these lovely flowers.

After Mrs. Hindman had finished her informative talk, an interesting question and answer period was held.

The plants for the usual drawing were furnished by Mrs. W. S. Betts and Mrs. Marjorie Church. Mrs. Demos Mandis and Mrs. Charles Metcalfe chose the lucky numbers. Mrs. Paul Garber was welcomed as a new member.

After the meeting adjourned, refreshments of sherbert punch, cookies and cake were served in the dining room.

Mrs. C. W. Hood and Mrs. Herbert Todd were guests.

Prior to the meeting, there was a meeting of the Executive Board, and the "Plant Give Away Day" was definitely set for July 12. It was also planned to put out rooted cuttings in the Park.

Please begin to get your plants ready if you have not already done so.

Mae Porter Locke Married To Thomas Vernon Collins In Candellight Ceremony

In an impressive candlelight ceremony at the First Presbyterian Church in Sebring, Saturday evening, Miss Mae Porter Locke, daughter of Mrs. Charles O. Locke, and the late Mr. Locke, became the bride of Thomas Vernon Collins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Collins of Cobbtown, Georgia. The Rev. Ray Collins, Macon, Ga., brother of the groom, performed the double ring ceremony, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. He was assisted by the Rev. Frederick W. Widmer, pastor of the Sebring church.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Ralph Eyman, organist and William Jones of Bartow, vocalist.

Potted palms and fern formed a background for pedestal baskets of white gladioli. Tall white tapers burning in branched candelabra created a soft illumination.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Charles O. Locke, 3rd. She wore a gown of white mousselind de sole, fashioned on period lines, with a pleated ruffle of self-material outlining the yoke of the high neckline. Similar ruffles encircled the waistline of the slim bodice. Her hooped skirt swept into a train, and her veil of illusion was attached to a halo bonnett. She carried a white prayer book surmounted with a white orchid.

Mrs. Charles O. Locke, 3rd, matran of honor, was gowned in a white pinafore style organdy dress, designed over a taffeta fountain of apple green. A wide crushed girdle of the taffeta accented the waistline of the bodice, and a band of embroidery was inserted above the hem of the voluminous skirt. She wore a green horsehair bonnet and carried a basket of pink carnations.

The two bridesmaids, Mrs. Jennings Bryan Cromartie and Miss Mary June Norwood of Valdosta, Ga., wore white taffeta gowns over a foundation of yellow, made identical with the honor attendant's gown. They wore yellow horsehair bonnets and carried baskets of yellow asters.

Truman Grayson of Orlando was best man and groomsmen were Sam Heidersbach, Miami, and Jennings Bryan Cromartie.

Mrs. Locke entertained at a reception at her home on Lotela Road, after the ceremony. The bride's table, overlaid with a cutwork cloth, was centered with the tiered wedding cake. Assisting were Mrs. A. R. Martin, who cut the cake and Mrs. J. L. Wells and Mrs. C. Parke Anderson, presiding at the punch bowl, Mrs. W. S. Betts, Mrs. J. A. Johnson, Mrs Frank Gerlock and Miss Arden Anderson. Miss Yvonne Head was in charge of the bride's book and Miss Anne Brodie was in charge of the gifts.

The couple left during the evening for a short wedding trip to the East Coast. For traveling, the bride chose a two-piece aqua suit and a wheat colored straw hat with tiny flowers on the rolled brim. Her two-toned shoes and bag were in shades of brown.

The couple will make their home in DeLand where Mr. Collins will continue his studies at Stetson Pniversity.

Kitchen Shower Given Popular Bride - Elect

Miss Mae Porter Locke, whose marriage of June 11 is of much interest, was guest of honor at a kitchen shower at the W. J. Head home on Lake Verona Thursday evening, given by Misses Yvonne Head and Anne Brodie.

The refreshment table was centered with a two tiered bride's cake topped with a miniture bride and groom. It was placed in a setting of miniture bridesmaids. Magnolia blossoms, in attractive arrangements were placed at vantage points in the party room.

The honoree cut the cake and it was served with ice cream to the small group of invited guests.

Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Maysack left this week for Camp Highlands, Sayner, Wisconsin, a camp for boys, where Mr. Maysack will act as Counselor and swimming instructor.

Former Avon Park Girl To Wed In Virginia

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Puryear, Danville, Virginia, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Alice, to Mr. John A. Tumblin, Jr., of Newport News, Virginia. Mr. Puryear served as pastor of the First Baptist Church of this city until December, 1948.

The semi-formal ceremony will take place at Lee Street Baptist Church, Danville, July 13, at 4:00 o'clock with Mr. Puryear and Mr. John A. Tumblin, Sr., father of the grom, officiating.

The bride will be attended by her sister, Miss Anne Puryear, and Miss Ann Tumblin, sister of the groom. Groomsmen will be Mr. John A. Bracey, Winter Garden, Florida, Mr. James B. Creech, Four Oaks, North Carolina, Mr. Joe A. Miller, Lexington, North Carolina, and Mr. Bill Puryear, Danville, Virginia.

Miss Puryear is a June graduate of Wake Forest College, North Carolina, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and Tassels. She also studies at Mars Hill College, North Carolina, immediately after her graduation from Avon Park High School in 1945.

Mr. Tumblin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Tumblin, Sr., missionaries to Brazil, who are in the United States for a year's furlough, after which they will return to Natal. He graduated from Wake Forest College in 1948 with membership in Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa. He also studied at Campbell Junior College and served three years in the Navy.

After a short wedding trip the couple will make their home in Durham, North Carolina, where the groom will continue his education at Duke University in graduate sociology.

Miss Sujette Dorminey returned Saturday from Fitzgerald, Georgia, where she had been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. W. D. Dorminey, Sr. Enroute home she visited Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Skipper in Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. Melborne Hart and Benny Fordham returned Sunday from Durham, North Carolina, where Mrs. Hart and Mr. Fordham have been under observation for a week in Duke University Hospital.

Popular Bride-Elect Feted At Luncheon

Mrs. J. A. Johnson entertained at a luncheon Thursday honoring Miss Mae Porter Locke, who became the bride of Thomas Vernon Vollins, Saturday evening.

The guests arrived at one o'clock and were invited into the dining room that was attractive with its floral arrangements and wedding bells, revealing the theme. The dining table was centered with silver wedding bells and sprays of gardenias. The place cards were gardenia corsages, found at the end of a streamer of white ribbon, leading out of the centerpiece. Silver candle sticks holding tall white tapers were placed on either side of an arrangement of sweetheart roses and tube roses in a low vase that created a wedding ring effect.

The hostess served a salad course to the honoree, Miss Mae Porter Locke, Mrs. Charles Locke, Miss Mary June Norwood, Miss Yvonne Head, Miss Ann Brodie, Miss Arden Anderson, Mrs. Bob Cromartie and Mrs. Charles O. Locke, III.

The guests enjoyed an informal hour after lunch, during which Miss Locke opened her lovely gifts.

County 4-H Club Girls Stage Annual Achievement Days

The ten 4-H clubs throughout the county held their local Annual Achievement Days during the month of May.

Parents and friends were invited to view the display of finished work of each club member. Refreshments of orange juice and cookies were served. The officers of each club acted as hostesses.

Prizes and ribbons were awarded to each girl who had an exhibit of her work. The Barnett Bank of Avon Park, and the Tropical Bank of Sebring gave the money for the cash prizes.

From the list of winners, four girls were chosen to attend the State 4-H Short Course held at Florida State University, Tallahassee, about 30—35 girls will be chosen to attend the State 4-H Camp McQuarrie in the Ocala National Forest. The 4-H Clubs are an important feature of the State's Educational System. Any boy or girl between the ages of 10 and 20 may join a 4-H club. The boys and girls carry to the homes and communities information on all home subjects, develop leadership, encourage recreation, conduct demonstrations and train boys and girls to be more intelligent, useful citizens.

The 4-H Club members participate in many activities of the community that may escape the casual observer.

Since many of the club members attend camp, or go away for the summer and many live in widely scattered areas, the clubs do not have regular meetings during the summer vacation from school. The clubs will be reorganized in September with the opening of the school term.

The 4-H Club work for girls in this county is under the direction of Miss Catherine Brabson, county home demonstration agent.
