Our State Birds

By The Bird Woman

We know that some people think of birds only as some things with wings and feathers that fly about among the trees and never stop to consider what their function is today, or what their relation to mankind is. But we find that these points have had serious consideration by some of the wisest heads of our nation, not just as a passing fancy of the day but as a permanent reality as old as our nation itself.

We find that each of our 48 states has chosen a bird to be known as its state bird, aside from the fact that we have a national bird since the days of George Washington (the bald eagle).

The wisdom and foresight of giving us the framework of a government for free people, but also by going into detail in smaller things, even to the naming of a national bird, can only be considered providential.

In the hazardous days of the inception of our country, a bird was chosen to represent us that was large, strong and powerful, and had the ability of protecting all under its care; this was very fitting.

But as the individual states began to select their birds we do not find a bird of prey, either nocturnal or diurnal, among them. We have no data on how the various states selected their birds, we do know that the school children of Florida selected our most popular bird, the mockingbird, as our state bird.

And looking over the list of the various birds, we presume that they were selected for their popularity or abundance; most of them are familiar to us and some are even native to our state.

Just by way of a little recapitulation, we see that the meadow lark is most popular, followed by seven states. The mockingbird and cardinal come next, having each been selected by five states. The robin, goldfinch and bluebird are not far behind, each having been chosen by four states, and the quail selected by three states.

Naturally the species vary in different sections of the country, but even when the species is identical, the post of the official bird is different, so that anyone familiar with their state's bird picture can readily distinguish it from pictures of the same bird used by other states.

For instance, the mockingbird of Florida is pictured on a branch with orange blossoms—which is our native flower—naturally it cannot be confused with the pictures of mockingbirds in any other pose.

So for your perusal, we shall list the birds of the various states and hope you will recognize a great many, if not all of them, and have more respect, interest and love for our feathered friends whose popularity reaches to the very extent of our country itself.

Alabama, yellowhammer; Arizona, cactus wren; Arkansas, mockingbird; California, valley quail; Colorado, lark; Connecticut, robin; Delaware, blue hen-chicken; Florida, mockingbird; Georgia, brown thrasher; Idaho, mountain bluebird; Illinois, cardinal; Indiana, cardinal; Iowa, eastern goldfinch; Kansas, western meadow lark; Kentucky, cardinal; Louisiana, brown pelican; Maine, chickadee; Maryland, Baltimore oriole; Massachusetts, chickadee; Michigan, robin; Minnesota, goldfinch; Missouri, bluebird; Mississippi, robin; Montana, western meadow lark; Nebraska, western meadow lark; Nevada, mountain bluebird; New Hampshire, New Hampshire hen; New Jersey, eastern goldfinch; New Mexico, road runner; New York, bluebird; North Carolina, cardinal; North Dakota, western lark; Ohio, cardinal; Oklahoma, bobwhite; Oregon, western meadow lark; Pennsylvania, ruffed grouse; Rhode Island, bobwhite; South Carolina, Carolina wren; South Dakota, ring-necked pheasant; Tennessee, mockingbird; Texas, mockingbird; Utah, California sea gull; Vermont, hermit thrush; Virginia, robin; West Virginia, tufted titmouse; Wisconsin, robin; Wyoming, western meadow lark; Washington, goldfinch.

Youth Center Talk

We had all the Bolts Saturday—Carolyn, Rudolf, and Bobby (Robert) I wanted to dance with him. Where does all the time go? Florence Warren is fast becoming a must for the Center—not to mention Frances Lee and competitive Mary Lou.

Beth Suggs and guest, Alice Smith from Miami, cute blonde, were the main attraction. I wish I could remember the name—we have mutual friends in Winter Haven.

Wayne Bell was back from North Carolina.

A certain person was disappointed that Norma Wood didn't break on him. Looked like Kenneth W. was taking his brother's place with her. There's some debate as to whether LaMar Ward or Berkett is best at pool. Gezz Whizz was the 6th check in.

Martha Renfro was in my favorite big city for the weekend. She likes it too. We go there the 18th for the wedding of Ben Hutchinson's godmother, Harriet Knight, to Ogen Ayres. Frankly, I expect to be matron of honor, so I get to serve at the reception. That's what she did at my wedding—we're even.

Edgar Faber is off to Texas after a promise. To think one gets paid to teach boys like Edgar to dance!

Wayne Knowles was anxious that Sandra Kelsey (pretty and sweet) start dancing. She did.

I hear some of the boys held a meeting to decide what to do about their mothers staying out too late and drinking coffee that keeps them up all hours. Ben Anderson's name was mentioned. Also, how to get a date for the races.

Two girls had an 11:00 o'clock deadline.

(We like Bobby Tomlinson, a good mixer, whose parents were direct to the Center.)

Last week when Jack was ill, Donald King and Freddie Meeks were so nice and friendly that they kept them up all hours. Ben Anderson's name was mentioned. Also, how to get a date for the races.

Judge Studies Move To Throw Out School Election

Circuit Judge D. O. Rogers, at the conclusion of an all-day hearing Monday, announced that he would rule in two weeks on the motion of Sam Durrance for the setting aside of the reelection in the May primary of County School Superintendent Fred Wild. Durrance contends that Wild, whom he unsuccessfully opposed for reelection to the school job in May, had violated the election laws and therefore forfeited the nomination.

Durrance's previous claim to nomination in the event of Wild's disqualification, was abandoned by his counsel, Attorney Tom Watson, of Tampa, at the outset of the hearing. The proceeding, he explained, were to test Wild's right to the nomination.

After abandoning the claim, Watson told the court that he would reply on two charges to prove his contention that Wild had forfeited the nomination.

The first charge was that Wild had received a political campaign contribution from Sebring teachers and failed to report it. The second, that Wild had failed to report within the time limit prescribed by law an expenditure of $10 by him for radio time for a broadcast by Sebring teachers in the superintendent's behalf.

Watson introduced several affidavits, chiefly from Durrance. Among them was one concerning meetings at which the teachers allegedly took up the contribution for Wild, another to show that Durrance was asked to witness the appointment as Sebring vocal music supervisor because of his candidacy against Wild, and a third, that Jack Ingle, one of the teachers, paid for the radio time.

Watson also introduced into evidence certified copies of the campaign expense report in which the expense of the teacher's broadcast of May 2 was not reported until May 21, instead of being listed on his May 5 report.

The Tampa attorney hammered away on the latter charge, proving that Wild had violated the election law and therefore was disqualified.

Edward E. Bryant, of Haskins and Bryant, Sebring, Wild's attorneys, countered with affidavits to prove that the school superintendent had refused to accept a contribution from the teachers, which contribution was returned to the donors.

Bryant also introduced statements that he would not be available for the 1952-53 term were the basis for not recommending him for reappointment.

Ingle's statement about the teacher's payment of the radio time, he said, was made by him, knowing that the teacher's money for the time had been refused by Wild, and that his (Ingle's) contribution was returned to him after the broadcast.

Wild did not willfully and knowingly violate the law, he said, failing to report the radio expense within the required time limit, Bryant told the court. Bryant said the failure was inadvertent, just an honest mistake.

Arguing that Durrance's affidavits, for the most part, were based on hearsay and not of his own personal knowledge, Bryant charged bad faith. He also asked the court to set aside the hearing of his two motions for attorney's fees from Durrance because of the alleged bad faith and for attendance at a hearing in which none of the witnesses, purportedly summoned in Durrance's behalf, appeared.

Watson disputed the bad faith charge and told the court that he had substantiated his charges that Wild's alleged acts should result in his forfeiture of the nomination.

Beautiful Villas and Travel Facilities

My husband and I are spending a few weeks in the delightful Connecticut Berkshire Mountains and environs where the weather has been cool and refreshing, while surrounding areas have been very warm.

No wonder so many folks come here. Not only do the residents claim to traditions of old colonial days and customs with all their beauty, but they do so much to attract the traveler.

One of the most appealing features is the wayside park for rest and eating stationed here and gone along the roads. Eating is placed under shady trees and back from the highway a bit out of the dust. Often can be seen groups of people enjoying a lunch under the shade of the beautiful trees.

Other states and Canada have adopted this convenient feature to attract the wayfarer.

We live in Avon Park and have often wondered why nothing of a similar type has been done along the Orange Blossom Trail. This is one of the finest features of attract tourists. It is fun to pack one's lunch and go rolling along through the beautiful citrus groves. Then what a disappointment to find no place to draw off the road under a nice shade tree to eat!

Churches of Christ, Scientist

A recognition and universal acceptance of the oneness of Mind, or God, opens the way to heaven, harmony, as all glorify God by having Mind which is in Christ.

This is the keynote of services to be read in all Christian Science churches next Sunday when the subject is "Mind."

Two verses from the 67th Psalm (3:4) provide the Golden Text: "Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee. O let the nations be glad and sing for joy: for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth."

The following from Proverbs (2:6) is among Bible selections: "For the Lord giveth wisdom: out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding."

Correlative passages from "Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "God is not separate from the wisdom He bestows. The talents He gives we must improve" (p. 6).

A chip on the shoulder always indicates that there is wood higher up.

Florida Produces More Sugar Cane Than Louisiana

Florida's sugar cane crop was valued at approximately $10 million last year.

Cane raised in Florida in 1951 for the production of sugar totaled 1,193,000 tons which were converted into 110,520 tons of raw sugar. Normally about 8 percent of the raw sugar produced in Florida is refined within the State. The value of the cane used for sugar, plus 34,000 tons saved for seed, reached $8,903,000 last year.

In addition to cane raised for sugar and seed, farmers throughout the State harvested six thousand acres of cane from which was made a total of 960,000 gallons of syrup which sold for $1,200,000, the Florida State Chamber of Commerce reported yesterday.

Florida's particular suitability for the production of sugar is brought out in this week's business review of the State Chamber's research and industrial division. In 1951 the per acre sugar cane yield in Florida stood at an average of 31.8 tons. The 1933-1947 average was 30.9 tons. Florida's high yield, due principally to a long growing season, stood well above the 18.8 tons per acre in Louisiana, the only other large cane producing State.

Further, Florida cane produced one ton of sugar to every ten tons of cane, compared with 12 tons of Louisiana cane required for one ton of sugar.

Black strap molasses, a by-product of the sugar industry, is a valuable livestock feed and production in Florida amounted to 7,317,000 gallons last year.

Bagasse, the spent fibre of sugar cane, can be used for fuel, livestock feed, fertilizer, wall board and paper. Florida produced a little more than 110,000 tons of bagasse, dry weight, last year.

You can help prevent woods fires by being careful.

There are three kinds of people — the fits, misfits and counterfits.

Men and Women In Service Have Social Security Protection

Men and women who are in the armed forces to protect our national security are now earning for themselves and their families the same social security protection that veterans of World War II have, according to W. E. Arnold, manager of the Lakeland social security office.

The 1952 amendments to the Social Security Act provide special security wage credits of $100 for each month of active service in the military or naval forces of the United States after July 24, 1947, and until January 1, 1954. The amendments have just been signed into law by the President.

This new provision will be especially important to the survivors of those who have died in service since the end of World War II. A number of widows, children, or aged parents will get monthly benefit payments as a result of this amendment to the social security law. Moreover, payments already being made to some survivors of service people will be increased when credit for military service since the end of World War II is added to the service person's social security record.

As in the case of World War II credits, this protection does not apply if another monthly benefit based on the same period of service is payable by any Federal agency other than the Veterans Administration.

Mr. Arnold pointed out that because of this new protection the men and women in this area who have temporarily given up civilian jobs for a period of military service will not lose or suffer serious diminishment of their old-age and survivors insurance rights. Moreover, he declared, young persons who had never been in work covered by the law before entering military service are now building old-age survivors insurance protection.

Mr. Arnold urged widows or other survivors of people who have been in military service since July 24, 1947, and who have died, to get in touch with the local social security office and check up on their survivors insurance benefit rights. The office is located at 807 Marble Arcade Building, Lakeland, Fla.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

From U.S.S.

Washington — Here is the inside story of the recent meeting between Senator Smathers' European tour, his column is written by the Administrative Assistant, John T. Carlson, longtime Florida newspaper and Washington correspondent.

Russell was resting at his home in Winder, Georgia, when Stevenson telephoned from Springfield. Since they had previously talked, Russell said he had no objection to flying to Springfield but figured nothing could be accomplished, except to have the pair's picture made together. Stevenson, a descendant of the same North Carolina family as Russell, made an urgent appeal. "I need your help," he said. "This is Cousin Adlai calling on his kinsfolk. Come on up."

Russell flew to Springfield and found there were some others also there. He had dinner with Stevenson and they sat up and talked until 1 a.m.

They had breakfast together the next morning, and talked some more. Afterwards, Russell talked glowingly to the press of the Democratic nominee's chances in November. He predicted one of the greatest victories in the recent history of presidential elections.

Back of this statement was the very warm personal assurance he had drawn from his long talks with the Illinois Governor. Senator Russell said his long-held admiration for Stevenson was reinforced.

"He is a very able administrator," he commented. "He has a very fine character, a high sense of honor and a deep-seated and humble sense of responsibility in public service."

"He is very sound in his thinking. His mind, his heart and his temperament are all right."

Stevenson convinced Russell of three important aims. He is offering the American people a complete change in administration, with a virtual 100 percent turnover in the top level advisers at the White House and in the Executive Departments.

He intends to work with Congress, and will not seek to dictate to House or Senate any changes in legislative rules. (A potential issue in Senate Rule 22 which insures unlimited debate upon vote of two-thirds or 64 members of the Senate. By applying this rule, Southern senators have been able to block civil rights legislation.)

Stevenson has fundamental convictions on states' rights and responsibilities, and favors less centralization of powers in the federal government.

It is no secret that the "liberal" elements of the Democratic Party, continuing the fight they waged last at Chicago, have been bringing great pressure on Stevenson. They argue hotly that in order for the Democratic ticket to win in some key northern states, Stevenson must make a "baiting" appeal to minority groups.

Russell is convinced that the Illinois governor will stand firm in his convictions in the face of this pressure.

It would be surprising, and greatly disappointed, Russell said, if he yields to that handful in the radical left wing of the party.

Should Stevenson change his mind, Russell may be expected to have something else to say about the election.

Truck Lines Granted Right to Increase Rates
Tallahassee, Aug. (FNS) — The Florida State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission has granted all Florida truck lines authority to increase their rates on intrastate business approximately 11 percent to bring them more in line with rail rates which were recently raised.

Commission Attorney Lewis Petteway said ordinary truck rates are higher than rail rates but the recent Interstate Commerce Commission action put rail rates above truck rates.

Hillsborough County has the first and so far the only county forest in Florida.

Switch to COOL COOKING

Ask your food, not yourself, this summer. Tests have shown that cooking electrically will actually save your kitchen $ to 10 dollars a year.

A modern electric range—insulated with layer upon layer of glass wool—keeps the heat in the oven where it belongs.

And it's economical, too! Most of you now have electric refrigerators in your homes. Why not go all-electric... add an electric range and take advantage of the lower rate plans of our residential rate schedule?

See your dealer and switch to electric cooking... the COOL, clean, automatic way!
