Wreck Kills Family Of Four at Frostproof

An apparently entire family was killed a mile north of Frostproof Wednesday afternoon when their automobile crashed head-on into a semi-trailer which was on the wrong side of the road.

Highway Patrolman H. D. Doyle said identification was incomplete, but that a driver's license in the wallet of the dead man indicated he was Ralph Theisen, 41, of Wausau, Wis. Also killed were a woman assumed to be his wife, and two children who were so badly burned even their approximate ages could not be determined.

The driver of the truck, William Gordon McArthur, 36, of Stoney Creek, Ontario, Canada, was uninjured. He was placed in the county jail at Bartow on charges of driving while intoxicated. Assistant County Solicitor William P. Tomasello said four charges of manslaughter will be filed against him .

The Theisen car was proceeding north on State Road 17 at the time of the collision, which occurred about 4 o'clock. Both vehicles caught fire almost instantly. McArthur escaped from the cab of his vehicle, and a witness, whom Doyle could not identify, pulled the bodies of Theisen and the woman from the car.

Flames kept the witness from knowing of the presence of the children in the back seat. Passengers in another car which came upon the scene recalled having seen the family earlier in the afternoon, but by the time the children's bodies could be removed, they were "burned to a crisp," Doyle said.

Doyle said a "drunkometer" test given to McArthur by Patrolman Hicks and Garis at Avon Park showed "positive" results. City police at Frostproof said they had received two calls from points north of Frostproof advising them to pick up McArthur when he reached there.

THE FLOWER SHOW

The more I see of Avon Park, and the events that are planned to make life interesting, the more I wonder at the civic spirit which motivates all these activities.

I have seen flower shows, and many of them in a city of about four million population, but never a show with such real honest-to-goodness ingenuity and talent —It is easy to arrange hot-house flowers where money is no object and the arrangements are made by professionals, and the effect is just that - professional! But here is a show arranged by the women of Avon Park, and the flowers are all grown here and most of them outdoors, and the result is far more real and genuine than any high-priced show I ever attended. The arrangements are new, and so original and attractive - Now did you ever think of sticking a Hibiscus in a cut orange? Well I saw just that —Saw several bowls of good old Florida sand, with a bit of flower here and a bit of shrub there, and the effect, is a masterpiece. Some of these displays should be photographed for other less fortunate flower growers who are not surrounded by so much beauty all the year round. Now someone told me you couldn't grow good roses in Florida - they are wrong, if one is to believe their eyes, and the fragrance coming from some of the biggest and fullest roses I have ever seen. The cut-flower arrangements were especially attractive. They call growing well, (possessing a green thumb), now what does one have, when they possess the talent for such attractive arrangements - of one thing I am sure, they love their work, and growing and arranging flowers that are attractive is work.

To me, coming from the North, the Spanish Moss is a nuisance and is readily dispensed with, but here one of the first things that greet the eye is the Spanish Moss background for most of the exhibit - and the effect is just what was intended - beauty.

KITTENS LOVE CHICKENS

Two half-grown kittens of the common short-haired breed have developed a feeling of kinship to some hens. They stay near the hens all day, follow them about, and watch them with what appears to be affection. Littered and reared near the hens, the kittens attached themselves to the fowl-flock affer their mother had weaned and deserted them.

The cats are nominally the property of little Marjory Hall, but they will not permit people to touch them. The hens are owned by Marjory's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gilliard.

Sawtimber in the 10 southernmost Florida counties has declined 45 per cent in the last 13 years.

This Week In Tallahassee

By J. Kenneth Ballinger
Florida Press Association

Tallahassee — The state beverage department has confirmed that Director Louis W. Schott is resigning to take work with a large New York construction company. The director, under whose eye the beverage department built up its effective enforcement arm, was appointed by Governor Warren, will leave after three years to be associated with Merritt, Chapman and Scott Construction Company of New York.

Tallahassee — Comptroller C. M. Gay announced that George Davis, general auditor of the great office which controls the money of Florida, has resigned to enter private business with the accounting firm of Abbess, Morgan, Altemus and Weinburg of Miami. He will be succeeded by Ray Higgins, who will continue to act as warrant officer.

Tallahassee — The state board of health has a new member, Dr. Albert Lee Ward of Port St. Joe. He succeeds Dr. Mark F. Boyd of Tallahassee, whose term has expired. Dr. Ward, who has practiced in Port St. Joe since 1936, is a native of DeFuniak Springs.

Tallahassee — Pat Whitaker, famous Tampa attorney and former state senator, has qualified as a candidate for Democratic National Committeeman. Louise Alford of Jacksonville is a candidate for national committeewoman. Jerry W. Carter, Tallahassee, is the present national committeeman, serving out a four-year term.

Tallahassee — Although the new election law says a saloon keeper may not contribute to a political candidate, that doesn't mean that the saloon keeper may not himself become a candidate. Attorney General Ervin told Ted Cabot, clerk of Broward county circuit court, that a citizen may finance his own campaign with his own funds even though he operates a bar and holds a state liquor license.

Tallahassee — Florida's merit system warned state employees of four departments against "overt political activity" during the current campaign. Protected by the system against politically change, the employees are prohibited by the Hatch act from taking the militant part in such campaigns that some other department members do. The industrial commission, crippled children's commission, state board of health, state welfare board and county health units thus are under the no-politics rule.

Tallahassee — The days of financing national conventions out of the state treasury appear to be ending. The Shriners lost their recent appeal to the cabinet for $90,000 to help pay for their convention in Miami next June. The American Legion already had been helped last year, but the cabinet decided it was time to call a halt. The matter died for lack of a motion.

Tallahassee — Nathan Mayo, cabinet dean and state commissioner of agriculture, did not disqualify himself by accepting help from an employee fund, says Secretary of State R. A. Gray. John M. Kennedy of Orlando, who is contesting with Mayo for the Democratic nomination, asked that Mayo be disqualified. Gray replied that the question was one for the courts. He added that his opinion is that Mayo did not disqualify himself.

VETERANS INFORMATION

Did you know that a veteran disabled by injury or disease incurred in, or aggravated by, active service during World War II or after June 27, 1950 may qualify for disability compensation? He must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable.

Monthly rates range from $15 to $150, depending on the degree of disability, plus statutory awards for amputations, blindness, etc., up to a maximum of $360 for compensation and statutory awards.

Veterans rated 50% or more disabled receive additional sums for dependents.

A veteran who develops pulmonary tuberculosis to a degree of 10 percent or more disability within two years after separation from service or July 25, 1947, whichever is the earlier, may be presumed to be service-connection for disability compensation.

If you desire to file a claim, contact your local Veteran's Service Officer or write the State Service Office, P.O. Box 1437, St. Petersburg.

THE CITRUS BOX

COMPILED BY THE FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE

Bald acreage in the citrus producing area of Florida is fast becoming a thing of the past. As if treated with some magic elixir, new growth is replacing the sandspur covered of the thousands of bare acres in Florida's citrus belt.

A sleeping giant is being tucked in with a green blanket which is capable of smothering the life out of the industry. The people guilt, in this instance, is the reported 3,416,205 young orange, grapefruit, and tangerine trees known to be under five years of age in Florida. These are planted on 32,557 acres of land that never before grew citrus.

Results of a survey conducted by an official of the Florida Citrus Exchange in which agricultural agents of 16 counties within the citrus producing area were questioned, 13 showed decided increases in new plantings, two indicated decreases, and one said it remained about the same. Sizeable upswings in planting were shown for the counties of Pasco, Hillsborough, Lake, Orange, Putnam, DeSoto, Hardee, Polk, Volusia, Pinellas, Indian River, Brevard, and Manatee. Two counties, St. Lucie and Lee, indicated plantings were on the wane. Sarasota alone remained about the same. Four counties, Highlands, Marion, Osceola ,and Seminole, failed to respond to the questionnaire.

Biggest planters of new trees were growers in Lake County with about 850,000 young trees under five years of age. Smallest in this respect was Sarasota with some 3,250 fledgling trees.

Fred Baetzman, Orange County agent, reports that approximately 400 acres in his county have been replanted from vegetables to citrus. Charles D. Kime, St. Lucie County agent, says acreage within the drainage districts in his area is being converted to citrus.

"Favorable acreage is remaining rather constant in Indian River County," states County Agent Marcel Boudet.

But on the lower West Coast area, farmers are pulling out nonproductive trees and diverting the land to pasture and vegetable farms, reports Lee County Agent Carl Heuck. With about 3,500 acres of groveland in the county, Heuck says the slowdown in new plantings has resulted in a decrease in overall acreage.

The biggest active producer, of course, is Polk County with 95,000 acres, according to County Agent Paul Hayman. Orange and Lake Counties are running neck and neck in the second spot with 53,246 and 53,000 acres respectively. However, indications are that Lake will inch nearer the top and outdistance Orange with heavy production expected from the new plantings. Lake then would be producing citrus from 67,000 acres while orange could only show about 61,553 with the addition of 8,307 non-producing acres.

Polk, on the other hand, should crack the 100,000 acre mark, adding the 5,000 acres of young grove which is now in the swaddling stage.

The survey disclosed that in the 16 responding counties, there are 25,203,409 bearing citrus trees on a total 387,746 acres of grove land. Add to this the young citrus sprouts which will soon be bearing and the total swells to 28,619,699 trees.

The State Plant Board reports that for the 1949-50 season alone, 1,614,168 citrus trees were moved from Florida nurseries and rooted in groves. This is an all-time record for a single season.

It all adds up to a big production potential, no matter how it's viewed. But the big question is still with us. Where will all the citrus buying dollars come from?

The industry is now searching for the answer to that one.

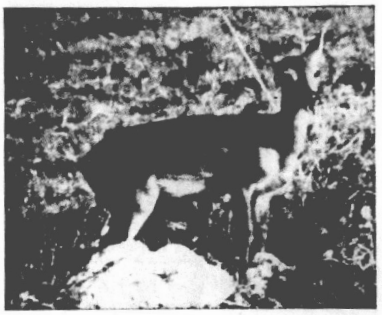
YOU MUST BE 21 TO REGISTER TO VOTE

Even though you may be old enough to vote, you cannot vote unless you are registered and, according to Attorney General Richard Ervin, you cannot register until you are 21 years of age even though your 21st birthday will come prior to election day.

In most Florida counties the registration books will close April 5. In this case, if your birthday is April 6 or any day after that, and you reach the age of 21 you still cannot vote on election day, May 6, because the Florida law, Ervin states, sets the age requirement "at the time of registration" and there is no getting around it.

Growing interest in the coming election has caused a number of persons who will reach the age of 21 prior to May 6 but not before April 5, to bring up this question.

If you fail to register before April 5, you will not be eligible to vote in the primaries on May 6.



FLORIDA KEY DEER — Conservationists throughout the nation are aroused over plight of the Florida Key deer, rapidly nearing extinction. A rare midget race of white-tailed deer, the tiny adult females average about 35 pounds in weight, with an overall body length of about 38 inches, and stand 26 inches high at the shoulder. Only from 25 to 50 head of Florida Key deer are alive today in their natural habitat in Lower Florida keys. (Photo by William C. Maytum. WINTER HAVEN MAN QUALIFIES FOR COMMITTEEMAN

Raymond (Ray) Mattox of Winter Haven, Florida, has qualified with the Secretary of State as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention to be held in Chicago, Ill., July 21, 1952. Mr. Mattox qualified as Delegate from the Seventh Congressional District which is composed of the following counties: Polk, DeSoto, Hardee, Highlands, Manatee, and Sarasota.

Mr. Mattox, when qualifying, did not declare himself for any particular candidate and expresses his views as follows:

In qualifying I have not declared myself for any particular candidate. However, at this time I stand behind Senator Richard Russell one-hundred percent. My reason for not declaring, on the record, who I would cast my vote for is because of the great amount of confusion and unrest which exists in our party today. If I declared myself at this time it is entirely possible that my candidate would, at the last minute if he could see that he was going down to defeat, cast his votes for some other candidate. In such a manner as that I could possibly be forced to vote for Truman or some other candidate advocating Trumanism, and that I have absolutely no intention of doing, voluntarily or otherwise."

Miss Elaine Worden is pictured holding Jingle Bell, her chihuahua. Both will be featured in the annual children's style show, sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club, which will present "Tomorrow's Toggery for Tots to 'Teens," with models beginning at the age of three. Miss Worden will model clothes for the teen-ager, while Jingle Bell will probably display the latest canine frippery. The style show will be at the Jacaranda Hotel garden, Wednesday afternoon, March 19, at 2:30. Should it rain at that time, the show will be given the following afternoon at the same hour.

Miss Brantley Weds A. Engelmann Jr.

The Dunellon Baptist church was the scene Thursday afternoon, March 6, at 3:00, of a wedding ceremony uniting Miss Barbara Ann Brantley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Brantley, and Alfred Engelmann Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Engelmann Sr., of Avon Park. The Rev. Ira Crawford performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of white gladioli, palms and ferns and white candles.

A musical program was presented by Mrs. C. M. Simmons prior to the ceremony and Mrs. J. C. Hall sang "Because". The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an ice green suit with white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Malcolm K. Crews of Avon Park served as best man. Ushers were Layton Lockamy of Dunnellon and Keith Raines of Sarasota.

Mrs. Brantley chose for her daughter's wedding a dusty rose crepe and lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Engelmann wore a dress of navy lace with brown accessories and a pink carnation corsage.

A reception followed in the church's assembly. Miss Merle Cochran greeting guests at the door and Mrs. Lee King presiding at the guest book. Serving the cake was Mrs. E. R. Hess, assisted by Miss Jo Ann Rooney, Miss Sheila Powell, Miss Mary Allen Young, and Miss Bobby Vaughan.

Following a wedding trip to the Smoky Mountains the young couple will reside in St. Mary's, Georgia, where Mr. Engelmann is pastor of the First Baptist Church.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. George Dyken, of Tavares; Mrs. A. B. Yelvington, Jacksonville, grandmother of the bride; Miss J. N. DISTRICT CONSERVATIONIST TALKS TO SEBRING LIONS

Jack Zilles, District Conservationist of the Soil Conservation Service from Arcadia was guest speaker at the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Sebring Lions Club at the Sebring Club of the Sebring Club Tuesday March 11th. Mr. Zilles gave a brief history of the origin of the Soil Conservation Service and Districts and the progress made since the first Soil Conservation District was organized in South Carolina in 1937. He also stated that the Highlands District was the first District organized South of Gainesville and number 13 in the State. Florida now has 35 counties in organized Soil Conservation Districts and a total of about 9400 districts in the U.S.

Zilles stated that the objective of the Soil Conservation Service was "The use of each acre of agricultural land within its capability and the treatment of each acre of agricultural land in accordance with its need for protection and improvement". He stated that the biggest problem throughout the U.S. was the case of erosion but that the soils of lower Florida was so porous that the problem was small compared to the United States as a whole, but having sandy soils presented an increased problem of fertility maintenance.
