SMALL BUSINESS

Readers often inquire "Is State Secretary Acheson attacked everywhere because he works against small business, or because of partisan politics?"

It's a fair question, but difficult to answer directly because Acheson is a master in evading direct questions.

Therefore, the only way the reader's question can be answered is to state facts, and let conclusions be drawn. Some Washington school scholars say:

The Roman Empire had its Brutus, Italy had its Machiavelli, the last Imperial Russian government had its Rasputin.

They then ask "will future historians say the American Republic had its Acheson?" Their meaning is that history is replete with men who while not the head of government, wielded mysterious powers that eventually destroyed the government.

A strong viewpoint, but no stronger than that voiced recently by Sen. Homer Ferguson of Michigan, who states the lack of copper for all business in this country is due directly to a worldwide trust set up by Acheson.

Sen. Ferguson states that American use of copper, is controlled by the international Materials Conference, a world organization set up by Acheson without Congressional authority.

He further stated that while any American copper user could be jailed for paying more than 24 1/2 cents per pound for copper, the U.S. government is given complete immunity of independent business.

General Patterson of Independent Business

ing foreign nations American tax money to buy copper for as much as 30 cents per pound.

The Senator also stated there is no politics of how this material is used: It is possible part of it goes behind the Iron Curtain. Therefore he states, "The International Materials Conference is in reality an International Raw Materials Trust operated by Dean Acheson with the connivance and support of foreign countries with their hands in the American taxpayer's pockets."

Last week this column told how Churchill worked out a deal in Washington, giving British monopoly control over U.S. tin supplies at increased prices.

Now the Mutual Security Agency, the Marshall Plan with a new name, announces that 700,000 dollars worth of tinplate is being sent to French North Africa, another quarter million dollars worth of South American tin ore is being sent to Germany.

So while the American taxpayer is being bled white and the O.P.S. is prosecuting small business while prices soar and shortages plague business, everything is glossed over with a slogan that all this is necessary for world security.

The reword is now "Secure for whom... free enterprise in the American tradition or for worldwide monopoly?"

It is possible for a man's intentions to be misunderstood.

But it seems more than mere coincidence that practically every move Acheson takes tends to build bigger and bigger trusts and monopolies, while American free enterprise suffers. Sen. Ferguson should now find out why he and other Congressmen permit their authority to be usurped.

Vet Information On Social Security

Survivors of some deceased World War II Veterans may be eligible for monthly benefits because of recent changes in the social security law, according to W. E. Arnold, Manager of the Lakeland Social Security office. The law now provides for giving social security credit for military service to anyone who served in the military forces of the United States between September 18, 1940, and July 25, 1947. Arnold said there are many cases in this area where the families of deceased veterans had applied for social security benefits and could not be paid because the deceased had not been employed under Social Security for a sufficient length of time. When the credit for military service is added to their record, it provides the additional time needed.

Payments can be made for children under 18 years of age and also to widows of veterans if they have the care and custody of the children and have not remarried. Remarriage of the widow, however, does not prevent the children from being eligible for benefits. Families of deceased veterans who have previously applied for benefits before September, 1950, and could not be paid are urged to again inquire at the Lakeland office to find out if they are now eligible. Families of deceased veterans who have never applied because they thought they were not eligible should also now ask about their rights under the new law. The Lakeland Social Security office is located at 807 Marble Arcade Building and the telephone number is 39-521. For further information, tune in to Radio Station WJCM at 1:05 p.m. on Wednesday, March 19, 1952, for "Your New Social Security."

William Edwards, vice president of the St. Joe Paper Co., says Florida has the second largest commercial forest area in the nation and urges intensified efforts in forest fire prevention work in the years ahead.

Boost Awards On 3 Levels In 1952 4-H Achiev. Program

Here's good news for every 4-H Club boy and girl in this State! Announcement has been made by the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work that county and sectional awards have been doubled, and eight college scholarships have been added on the national level in the 1952 4-H Achievement program, as follows: Gold-filled medals of honor to winners in participating counties have been increased from two to four, and sectional awards of educational trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago next November now number 16 instead of eight, as was the case last year. Also, $300 college scholarships will be presented to 12 national winners, instead of two $300 and two $150 college scholarships to the highest rating and second place winners, as heretofore. All awards are provided by the new donor, the Ford Motor Company.

Previous awards of a set of statues, symbolizing 4-H achievement, for the State-winning boy and girl, and a silverware trophy for the national-winning boy and girl — the latter presented in the name of the President of the United States — are being continued. Recognition in this program for top records of general achievement — either on county, state, sectional or national levels — is considered one of the highest honors a 4-H Club member can receive.

County Extension agents will furnish complete information regarding this program, which is conducted under the direction of the Cooperative Extension Service.

This Week In Tallahassee
By J. Marshall Ballinger
Florida Press Association
Tallahassee — Attorney General Ervin has reversed an earlier opinion and now holds that newspaper advertising may be bought by friends of a candidate without clearing the money to pay for it through the campaign treasurer. The purchaser needs only to get the approval of the treasurer, or clear with him, in the opinion of the attorney general. His reversal came soon after Judge Ben A. Hutchinson of Panama City had ruled parts of the new election code as unconstitutional because they abridge freedom of the press. The opinion provided by only a day ruling on a newspaper decision by Circuit Judge Henry C. Tillman of Tampa which held the election law unconstitutional, and did not interfere with free press or speech. Both decisions will be appealed this week. The response court of Florida in a joint endeavor by the attorney general and Kenneth Ballinger, attorney for the newspapers and radio stations, to get a decision before the May primaries.

Tallahassee — Efforts of the state Democratic committee to put "little cabinet" jobs on the primary ballot failed to get more than three takers. Park Trammell of Blountstown is unopposed as a candidate for membership on the state road department — providing the next governor wants to appoint him. Joe Hill Williams of State and Z. D. Giles of Leesburg seek appointments as assistant state attorneys. No one else paid any attention, financially speaking, to the opportunity offered by the state committee to get popular backing for appointment to such places as highway director, automobile license department head, member of numerous state boards, and assistant state attorney. The cost was the high and the risk too great.

Tallahassee — Florida doesn't have as many about politics and mobile tags after all. In a Democratic mini-up over state officers, the state finally was notified by the national party committee that 250 tons of steel enough for the 1952 year. The tower had been "on" to support for such allocation.

AVON PARK SERMONETTE

THE CHRISTIAN HOME

J. D. Benson, Pastor

Church of the Nazarene

Scripture: Proverbs 2:6 Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it.

If we want an insight into the homes of yesterday, then just look at the quality of the moral life as it is today. If we want to know what the future holds for us morally, then look at the average of our standards of today and see how far they have fallen. The lowering as to the spiritual life of the home.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, on speaking on the value of the Christian home said: "The American home is the most powerful influence on the development of a child. I am convinced that a home in which the principles of Christianity are taught and lived will give a youngster an extra advantage and strength in his efforts to adjust himself to the problems of growing up. In reviewing case histories of men and women who have made failures of their lives and who have been forced to pay a debt to society, I am more and more impressed by the fact that many of them can trace their failures back to their early home life. Almost two thousand years ago, the Man of Galilee showed us the way of life so true and so perfect that it has spread throughout the entire world.

In the teachings of Christianity we can find the answers, inspiration, and strength to solve the problems confronting us today."

The solving of our problems should have begun in the previous generations, but the future is in our hands. If we maintain Christian homes today as taught in the scriptures, then the future will not present as many problems. The secret is in the Christian homes of today and the secret of the Christian home is in the daily studying and living up to the teachings of Jesus, and the family altar.

Ten reasons for observing the family altar:

1. The family altar is the command of God.

2. The family altar will nourish your souls.

3. The family altar marks your home as distinctively Christian.

4. The family altar gives to all the assurance that God is accompanying you throughout the day.

5. The family altar grants strength to perform daily tasks.

6. The family altar raises the conversational level of the home above the din of this world.

7. The family altar brings the resources of God to bear upon the problems that may perplex the home.

8. The family altar binds the family together in a bond of Christian love.

9. The family altar will insure the blessings of God upon your home and family in this troubled times.

10. Familiarity that pray together stay together.

Our only hope as an individual, family, city, state, or world today is to get back to the teachings of the Scriptures and live a life that is pleasing to God, and the best and surest way to start with homes being true Christians with the family altar the most important daily part of our life, where the scriptures are read and the whole family participates in the prayer.

Will Rogers' Comments On Conferences

Excerpts from a speech made by Will Rogers December 1, 1924

"Well, we were all last week trying to sink our great battleship, the Washington. Here is a boat we had spent $35 millions on, and we go out and sink it. And the funny part is that it cost more to sink it than it did to build it. We shot all the ammunition we had left over from the war into it, and those big guns on the Texas as they were using them are good for only so many shots during their lifetime. So we spoiled the guns of our next best boat trying to sink the best one.

A great many people don't understand just how this sinking came about. You see, we had a conference over here a few years ago. It was called by America. We were building a lot of battleships and we had plenty of money to do it on, and it looked like in a few years we might have the largest navy in the world. Well, the League of Nations gathering in Paris had attracted a lot of publicity, some of which had been shared in this country by the Democrats. So, when the Republicans got in, they conceived the idea of a publicity stunt for the Republicans. Why not then have a conference? But what would they confer about? The League of Nations had conferred about six months, and in that time had taken up about every question on the calendar.

"So Secretary Hughes happened to sink them yourself it was the most original thought that had ever percolated the mind of a statesman. So, when we communicated the idea to England and Japan that we had an idea whereby we could sink some of our battleships, why they came so fast that even the butler wasn't dressed so receive them when they arrived.

"England was willing to tear blueprints on planned building into half; Japan was willing to give up her dreams of trading more ships on the seas than any other nation and stop building up to three-fifths of the size of England and America, and Secretary Hughes met that with, 'Now, gentlemen, I will show you what America is prepared to do. For every battleship you fellows don't build, America will sink one.'

"Now they are talking of having another Naval Disarmament Conference. We can only stand one more. If they ever have a second one we will have to borrow a boat to go to it.

"You see, we don't like to ever have the start on any nation in case of war. We figure, it looks better to start late and come from behind. If we had a big navy some nation would be picking on us all the time. Sinking your own boats is a military strategy that will always remain in the sole possession of America."

YOUTH ASSOCIATION MEETING CALLED

The Avon Park Youth Association will meet next Tuesday, Mar. 23, at 7:30 p.m., at the Youth Center. All members and those interested in joining are urged to attend.

Have you joined the Youth Association yet? If not, you are reminded that a year's membership is open to every resident of Avon Park, for the low cost of $1.00. Your membership will help forward the building of an interesting recreation program for our young people. Memberships may be obtained from association members. Membership cards are also available at the Sun office, through Mrs. Fisher.

The University of Florida has made tremendous gains in the past five years, boosting by nearly five times its enrollment and having a $16 million building program passed by the Board of Control.

WRITES UP VISIT TO OUR CITY

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers Sr. of Fribelburg, Maryland, while on a recent tour of Florida, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry K. Myers, winter visitors staying at the J. L. Collins home, 10 N. Summit Ave. Both families called on Mrs. Beulah Sappington at Walker Memorial Hospital, where she is a patient. These visits as well as descriptions of many beautiful and interesting places seen in Florida, including Highlands

Hammock and Cypress Gardens, are described by Mrs. Walter Myers in the Carroll Record, Taneytown, Maryland, for March 7, the writer of a regular column of her community news for that newspaper.

The state and federal governments bear the cost of initial installations in counties receiving forest fire protection while the counties share the operating costs with the state and federal government.

Florida's swelling citrus industry continues to seek new outlets for oranges and grapefruit, the local industry being an attempt to export the vitamin-filled juice into children via a network of dispensers in the schools of Hardee, De Soto, and Charlotte Counties. It appears to be a noteworthy project and one that bears watching.

The dispenser idea is not new; the Florida Citrus Commission having toyed with the notion for many months. After conducting some much-needed research, they recommended what was believed to be the most suitable machines both from the standpoint of facility and cleanliness in handling and operation. However, they were primarily concerned with getting oranges off the bushes, out of crop estimates, and into consumer channels. They saw great commercial potentials in bus terminals, soda fountains, railroad stations, and such.

Florida Citrus Mutual took up the crusade at this point and created a permanent dispenser branch within the framework of the big organization. R. M. Townsend, former promotional executive for the Mississippi Valley Association which serves as an overall chamber of commerce for the Midwest, has been named to head the new division. Again this is an important venture, but is keyed to volume movement rather than to a program of utilization because of the health-giving qualities of the juice.

Meanwhile, an announcement of a citrus shortage fairly rocked every parent in Florida. The shortage, it developed, was in the amount of citrus included in each school child's daily diet. Nutritionists found that between 40 and 50 per cent of the tots never saw citrus from one day to the next on their dinner tables. Glaring vitamin deficiencies showed up in many while others were actually ill. And the pitiful part of the whole thing was that many of the children lived in localities where oranges and grapefruit grew in abundance.

physician turned Floridian who is now public health officer of Hardee, De Soto, and Charlotte Counties, saw a chance to give the kids a citrus transfusion and grabbed it. Dispensers soon found convenient places in school buildings and already the vitamin-packed native juice are playing havoc with soft drink sales records.

The school juice program is likewise being eyed by Georgia officials. One group representing 29 counties in the Peach State, is enthusiastic they want to latch on to the scheme even before it has been thoroughly tested in Florida schools.

With the tremendous citrus-hungry school kid population in the United States as an ultimate potential, every orange and grapefruit from every Florida grove would have a permanent home. If the program catches fire, and it appears to be headed in that direction, any further search for new citrus outlets could be safely abandoned.

THE CANADA GOOSE

By The Bird Woman

The Canada goose, sometimes referred to as the "wild goose", is supposed to have nested at one time all over the country. But in late years it seems to have chosen Canada as its home base, although it may be found at times over the entire country, varying in size in different areas of the country.

The expression, "silly as a goose," does not apply to this species of goose, as it is extremely wise, in the ways of the bird world, and even the ways of man. It is both a migratory bird and a game bird; being both, it is protected by the federal government, but in the last ten years the number of these geese has dropped 30 percent.

It is very vulnerable, as it makes a honking or barking sound as it flies and is easily located by the man with a gun. Its field marks are very striking. It has a black stocking neck, light chest, and a white throat patch that runs from under the chin up to the side of the head.

It belongs to the same general family as the duck and swan. It has a longer neck than the duck, but not as long as the swan.

The Canada goose migrates to the south in November and returns late in February, and in many localities where this wedge-shaped flock of geese are sighted going north, it is considered a more definite harbinger of spring than the appearance of the robin or bluebird.

We never can mention "migration" without writing a few thoughts that occur to us. When we mention the wisdom that they possess in finding their route to certain designated points, we carelessly toss it off as "instinct," yet who can analyze "instinct" and explain to mere human beings what instinct really is and how different animals and birds come to possess it, and how it has been retained in that species through the ages.

Man with his ability to form "decoys" and "duck calls," and "blinds" in which to hide to kill the hungry unsuspecting geese, have made great inroads on so many of our water fowl, but we are glad that they are receiving some of the protection that should have been given many years ago.

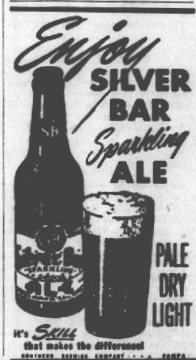

And again, we justify ourselves by calling this "unfair killing sport." Where does the word sportsmanship come in, when we pit the intelligence of God's "supreme creation"—"man"—against the defenseless fowls of the air? Do we really need food that badly, or do we just like to boast of our kill to our friends?

When the Canada goose is with us, it feeds on roots, stems and seeds of water grass and plants, preferring the salt water varieties, and will practically stand on its head to reach the tender grass that grows at the bottom of the water. Occasionally, when food is scarce, it has been known to enter the farmer's field and help himself to the grain. Some insects are also eaten, the grasshopper being the favorite.

The Canada goose is quite interesting at nesting time. It nests on the ground in a marsh or small island and the male stands guard while the female is incubating the eggs, and will attack any enemy that chances to come near. He holds his head high and makes a loud, hissing sound, similar to the domestic goose. This usually frightens away the intruder, but if the intruder thinks he is only bluffing and comes nearer, it finds itself being beaten with powerful wings and nipper, or a strong beak. Even a dog or fox will beat a hasty retreat.

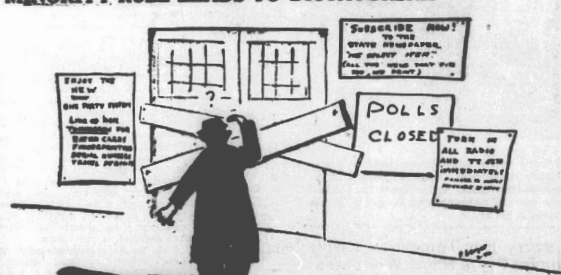

Naturally, man or boy with a gun has every advantage, and although some will make a gallant retreat and leave the homesteaders in peace, we all know that there exist persons who are out to bag game, disregarding sportsmanship. That is the chief reason that many of our birds are being thinned out to such an astonishing degree.

Florida holds the unenviable position of being second among the nation's states in number of woods fires and areas burned.

The new Southwest Florida Tuberculosis Hospital at Deer Field, near Tampa, will be dedicated Sunday, March 23, at 2 o'clock in a ceremony in which Governor Fuller Warren will accept the institution for the people of Florida. Open house will be held from 10 A.M. to 5 P.M. on March 22, to permit visitors to tour the $4,000,000 structure. The 500-bed hospital is one of the finest tubercular institutions in the nation.

MINORITY RULE LEADS TO DICTATORSHIP

Don't let this happen to America. Millions of people in the world today have no voice in government and are slaves of a brutal minority. Future to DEMOCRACY and VOTE makes minority rule possible. It is the duty of every American, liberty loving citizen to protect his life-blood at the polls. Failure to do so leads to dictatorship and Communism. REGISTER TODAY AND VOTE IN MAY. Laundry Appliances

Imagine having all your laundry done in a few hours on washday. It's easy to do when you have modern electrical appliances. Just toss your clothes into the automatic washer where they're washed, rinsed and spun without lifting a finger. Then, take the clothes from the washer and toss them into the dryer. Set the automatic timer so the clothes come out ready for ironing. Then, while more clothes are being washed and dried, you can be having the first batch quickly and easily with your ironer.

Yes, every washday will be "play-day" when you do your laundry the modern way . . . electrically, of course.

Soil Conservation News
By C. F. Howerton
The Highlands Soil Conservation District fertilized its Pangola grass nursery plot at Hendricks Field this week with 400 pounds of 6-6-6 fertilizer with one unit of copper added. The nursery plot was burned off this year by a wild woods fire and damaged considerably but we hope this application of fertilizer will bring it out in time to have some early planting stock available to co-operators of this district. The planting material from these nurseries is sold at a reasonable cost to cover fertilizers and maintenance costs of raising the grass.

The following people have recently requested assistance from the Highlands Soil Conservation District in preparing a complete soil and water conservation plan on their ranches: Cecil Collins, Wallace Holmlin, M. A. Berry and M. Kirkland on a total of about 3,000 acres.

There will be a tour of the Atlantic Land and Improvement Company forest project at Le-Belle on Wednesday March 19 and anyone interested is welcome to take part in the tour which is under the direction of Dave Conover, Soil Conservationist of Hendry County.

JUSTICE B. K. ROBERTS UP FOR RELECTION
Supreme Court Justice B. K. Roberts has announced his candidacy for reelection to the high judicial post to which he was nominated and elected without opposition two years ago.

In a brief statement, Justice Roberts declared: "I deeply appreciate the confidence the people showed in me by electing me without opposition to fill out the unexpired term of former Justice Paul D. Barnes. I have tried to show this appreciation by doing what I could to help maintain and strengthen the Florida Supreme Court's tradition for dispensing justice fairly, impartially and efficiently."

"I am now seeking a full term and if reelected, expect to continue to place all my energies and what professional ability I have, wholeheartedly in the service of the people of Florida. I believe our courts should be a bulwark of the people's freedom and a citadel against any kind of oppression or wrongdoing. My service on the court will continue to reflect this basic philosophy."

CATARACTS
Cataracts of the eye is usually formed as part of the aging process. This does not mean, however, that only older persons have them.

When a person has cataract, the lens of the eye has become clouded and light cannot pass through to the retina as it does when the lens is clear. This causes blurring of vision. He may find he has to hold things much closer to his eyes than he used to. Lights in particular may appear double. An object may look as though a piece of it were missing, or sometimes a black spot may appear which moves when the eye moves.

Cataracts can be removed only through surgery. The eye physician, known as ophthalmologist, usually performs the operation when the better eye is no longer able to serve the patient satisfactorily. If the only difficulty with the eye is the cloudy lens, the patient will see again with the aid of glasses.

The physician will take into consideration before the operation the general health and age of the patient, the presence of other changes in the eye and how well the better eye sees. In the past it was thought that a cataract had to become "ripe" before it could be removed. This no longer holds true.

All cataracts do not have to be removed. Those which are partial or limited may not affect vision and therefore will not require surgery. However, the eye physician should be consulted no matter how small the cataract for it may be possible for him to give medication, which may retard its development.

It is to be remembered that suspected cataract should be examined by the physician. Delay could mean blindness, and an early operation would mean preventing years of failing sight.

WATCH YOUR DISTANCE FROM PRECEDING CAR
Following too closely was described today by Safety Director H. N. Kirkman as a dangerous traffic violation that caused 8,174 accidents last year.

He said that it was second only to failure to grant right-of-way as the worst cause of accidents and warned motorists to stay a reasonable distance behind other motor vehicles while driving in traffic.

Altogether, there were 2,245 rural traffic accidents caused by drivers following too closely, but Kirkman pointed out that the only fatal accidents from this violation were in rural areas. Seventeen accidents causing death as the result of following too closely behind another vehicle were recorded in 1951.

The Safety Director called attention to the state traffic law which requires that drivers must follow at a reasonable and prudent distance behind other vehicles. Truck drivers, however, must stay at least 150 feet behind other trucks outside business and residential areas.

GOOD HEALTH

1. WHAT IS CLAUSTROPHOBIA?
Answer to Question No. 1: Claustrophobia is one of the commonest fears—fear of closed-in places, like subway, elevators, small rooms. There are many other phobias (fears) such as fear of crowds, high altitudes, public speaking. Fears are perfectly understandable but as a rule irrational and may be caused by some past unpleasant experience or an inner mental conflict. Phobias are not to be considered weaknesses and people who are suffering from them will find it beneficial to consult their family physician.

2. IS SANITATION IMPORTANT TO HEALTH?
Answer to Question No. 2: Yes, most important. U.S. Health is greatly aided by its bathtubs, toilets, proper sewage disposal, running water. Still seven million homes have no

Soil Conservation News

By Sam Polston,
Soil Conservationist

The Highlands Soil Conservation District purchased a new electric cyclone seeder that clamps to the back of a tractor. The seeder is driven by a small electric motor that can be connected to the vehicle battery. This seeder is definitely a labor and time saver over the hand-cranked cyclone seeder. This seeder is good for sowing any seed. This piece of equipment is available to the people of the Highlands Soil Conservation District. The district also has available other items of equipment located at Lake Placid as follows: Double section, Marden chopper, grove chopper, cultipacker, lime and fertilizer spreader, and a 1 1/2 ton truck and the seeder. This equipment is available at a nominal rental rate to take care of cost plus maintenance.

On March 19, the Soil Conservation Service and the State Forestry Service observed the land use program being carried out by the Atlantic Land and Improvement Co. in Hendry County. Their plan included pasture improvement, truck farming, and forestry. The forestry improvement program is remarkable in that they get excellent reforestation by fire control and selective cutting. A. L. and I manager, Jack Spratt and District Forester Eddie Howard from Lakeland pointed out the various forestry management practices carried out on this project and it was obvious by comparing the natural reforestation on the A.L.I. property to adjacent property that fire control is paying off. Mr. Spratt had figures to prove that the forestry management and limited grazing was more profitable than native range management of the same property without regard to good forestry management.

Mr. Howard and Mr. Spratt pointed out that there were good possibilities in surrounding counties including Highlands for better forestry management which would improve natural reforestation and specifically pointed toward Southwest Highlands for forest possibilities. They also pointed out that it does not have to be a large tract such as the Atlantic Land and Improvement Company has for fire control to pay off in reforestation on woodland. It was demonstrated that improved pasture and forestry both cannot be properly managed to be profitable on the same land but forest land and native grazing worked better than native grazing alone.

HIGHLANDS COUNTY GRANTS LOWER IN FEBRUARY

Assistance grants made by the State Department of Public Welfare to the needy aged, blind, and dependent children were lower in February than in any month since March, 1949.

In Highlands County, the grants amounted to $18,200.43. This provided some assistance for 291 needy aged; 17 needy blind; and 150 dependent children. The amounts, respectively, were $14,644.00, $533.63, and $2,922.80.

Word received from Sherwood Smith, State Welfare Director in Jacksonville, said that the number of grants was lower than in any month since April, 1949.

There are several reasons for the lower number of recipients and the lower total grants. One is the broadening of the Old Age and Survivors Insurance (Social Security) program which now covers more persons and has increased its payments in many instances. Another is increased payments in other pension programs. Revisions in the Federal and State welfare laws and regulations, coupled with limited funds, also have brought about some changes.

Florida's 14 million dollar bright leaf tobacco industry is being threatened by an early outbreak of fungus disease, blue mold, Dr. W. B. Tisdale of the University of Florida Agricultural Experiment Station recently revealed.

'TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY'

By Russell Kay

Next time you feel like giving about the tax on cigarettes, don't do it until you have visited the Southwest Florida Tuberculosis Hospital, dedicated this week at Drive Field, Tampa.

You will be amazed at what is being accomplished through the investment of those tax monies for the aid and comfort of tuberculous sufferers. After thoroughly inspecting the hospital, it will be a very well equipped 500-bed institution. You will come away with a feeling of genuine pride in the knowledge that you, as a voter and taxpayer of Florida, had a part in providing such a splendid institution.

You will also experience a keen sense of appreciation for the administrative responsibility for the achievement and for the State Tuberculosis Board that directly supervised construction.

It seems that just about everything that science and engineering had to offer has been incorporated in the building of this establishment. The five story reinforced concrete building is practically fireproof and fireproofed but is nevertheless provided with the most modern fire fighting equipment including sectional discharges that can be completely cut off from one another in an emergency.

This particular hospital will serve 14 counties and is a part of the splendid statewide program which provides facilities at Lakeland, Tallahassee, Marianna and Tampa. Although segregated, equal - and I do mean equal - facilities are provided for Negro and White patients. This goes for every service the sanatorium offers, including treatment, food, accommodations, recreation and the like.

The main building is 750 feet in length and of attractive architectural design; facilities include its own laundry and private radio communication system. Separate quarters are provided for doctors, nurses and other staff members within the spacious grounds which are being landscaped by the City of Tampa, while the County of Hillsborough is constructing the network of roads and parking space serving the area.

One thing that really intrigued me was the kitchen where the most modern equipment has been found anywhere has been installed. Here 2,000 meals a day can be served and every meal reaches the patient's plate hot and served in vacuum-sealed, non-breakable containers. Kitchen prepared meals of meats and vegetables are placed on Pyrex dishes, these while piping hot are sealed in heat retaining vacuum containers where the food will remain hot for from two to three hours, should the occasion arise. Meals can be served hours ahead and kept hot ready to serve at any time.

Another thing that impressed me about this hospital was the fact that traditional "hospital white" has been thrown in the ash can. Beautiful and delightful pastel colors are used in each room: greys, greens, orchids, roses, blues, yellows, and all have an atmosphere of brightness and cheer. There is no austere sameness found in most hospitals. Everything about the entire establishment seems to radiate friendliness, cheer and hope. It seemed more like a modern exclusive resort, resort or hotel than anything else. I had to stop and plan myself several times to realize that this was really an institution for sick people and not a modern hotel on Florida's famed Gulf Coast.

Several thousand people from all over South Florida attended the ceremonies and for a time guides were hard pressed to care for the hundreds and hundreds of people who lined up to take the specially conducted tours. It was gratifying to find so many laymen interested in inspecting an institution which have their tax dollars had made possible.

I sincerely hope that you and I will never have to become patients of this or any other hospital, but it is comforting to know that such facilities are available should the occasion arise. My hat is off to Fuller Warren, W. T. Edwards and all who had a part in this achievement.

Shower Given For Mrs. Christi

A surprise stork shower was given Friday night, March 21, for Mrs. Martha Christi at the home of Mrs. Ed Sharpe, with Mrs. B. J. Thigpen, Mrs. Reba McWilliams, and Mrs. Sharpe as hostesses.

As the honor guest arrived for a planned canasta game, the house was darkened, supposedly by a blown-out fuse. Mrs. Christi was standing in the doorway when the lights came on again, at which point the guests seated quietly in the living room, began singing "Rock-a-bye, Baby."

A special chair decorated with letters reading "Reserved for Christi's Mother," also had a corsage for the guest of honor pinned to it.

The room was decorated with roses and snapdragons placed in a baby-blue cradle holder, and with pink and blue petunias placed in holders on each side of the arched door.

Games were played, with Mrs. Emilee Sherertz winning the prize for placing the baby shoe on a large baby fastened to the wall. Mrs. Wini Delaney and Mrs. Bea Warrington won prizes for other games played.

After Mrs. Christi had opened the many lovely gifts, presented to her in pink and blue cradles, refreshments of Cokes, cookies, tuna sandwiches tinted pink and blue, and napkin rings holding colored ribbons, were served.

Those sharing the occasion with Mrs. Christi and the hostesses were: Mrs. Ed Albertson, Mrs. Claire Wells, Mrs. Ray Rutherford, Mrs. Randall Doubler, Mrs. Bea Warrington, Mrs. Bob Durkin, Mrs. R. P. Delaney Jr., Mrs. Arlin King, Mrs. Emilee Sherertz, Mrs. R. M. McCabe.

An ambulance was called, and Jordan received treatment in Avon Park. It is expected that he will be hospitalized for about 10 weeks.

Jack Ward Candidate For Annapolis

Jack Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ward, went to Lakeland Wednesday for a three day examination for entrance to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Arrangements were made by Senator Sponsard L. Holland, who has recognized Jack's outstanding ability and leadership with an appointment as an alternate to the Naval Academy for the term starting July 1. Only those principals and alternates who pass this thorough examination on all high school subjects will be considered.

Last July, Senator Holland arranged for Jack to take the required Civil Service examination as his primary basis for deciding whom he would select for an appointment. Over three hundred in Florida took the examination but just twenty-five passed satisfactorily.

Jack is one of a very few that have ever achieved a straight A average in the Avon Park High School, yet has lettered in both baseball and basketball. He is President of the Senior Class, Student Conductor and Trombone soloist of the A.P.H.S. Band, organizer of the High School Bible Club, and Director of the Youth Choir at the First Baptist Church. He received the American Legion Award at his Ninth Grade graduation and was the captain of the team at Tallahassee last summer, where he was elected to the Cabinet as Superintendent of Public Instruction for the State of Florida.

Mrs. Robbins Ralph, of St. Petersburg, will be the speaker. The women's chorus will sing "Ever, Only, All for Thee" by Woodbridge.

The service will be in charge of Mrs. John E. Piskens, president of the Covenant Circle and Mrs. Samuel O. Morris, president of the Ladies Aid. The public is cordially invited to attend.

At the 11 o'clock service on Sunday morning the Chancel Choir will sing "We Will Remember," by Leavitt and Mrs. John Paul Garber will sing a request number "Take Up Thy Cross." Rev. Herbert D. Grestz will preach the third in a trilogy of sermons on the Cross.

Instead of centering their selling strategy on competing with California, a few fresh fruit sales managers are selling Florida's big industry into a financial strait-jacket through outwitted competition with one another.

It doesn't take very many sales managers to give a short product a bad name. But it does take a lot of guts and know-how on the part of a person engaged in selling to maintain a price level when competitors are undercutting the market. It takes an even stronger backbone to raise the level when being pressured downward. These are, or should be, the attributes of every true Florida citrus salesman.

The big test came about two weeks ago when fresh prices for Florida's premium Valencia oranges skidded to $2.25 per box at the packing house. It was a tough blow to the genuine sales managers who turned away business to maintain a $2.50 price only to see their efforts wrecked by the managers calling themselves salesmen.

With January's citrus prices returning only 24 percent of parity to the Florida grower, it appears that much can be done by salesmen to bring citrus returns into line with other food commodities. Out of a list of 26 food effects, oranges and grapefruit held the bottom rung on the parity ladder. Beef, for instance, scaled 29 percent of parity while potatoes recorded a strong 120.

In addition, salesmen should realize there is every indication that a Valencia shortage will develop this season. As of March 15, only 32 million boxes of oranges remained including about 2 million midseasons. If the indicated 42 million gallon frozen concentrate pack is to be realized, 17 million boxes of oranges will go into this operation. Another 9 million boxes are slated for the market during the remainder of the shipping season ending June 1 if present volume continues.

To reach last season's canned pack of 20 million cases, another 4 million boxes will have to be gobbled up by the processors. Pasteurized concentrate or "hot pack" will require another million boxes as well blended canned juice and fresh home consumption in Florida. This all adds up to 38 million boxes — with only 32 million remaining.

Why, then, are some citrus salesmen literally "giving away" Florida's most valuable citrus crop when there is every indication it is worth at least $3 per box FOB right now?

In reality, price-cutting accomplishes nothing although many believe it to be the only sure-fire way for selling fruit. The truth of the matter is that a psychosis of distrust and suspicion on the part of the Northern produce trade is being fostered, hampering future sales in the interest of turning a quick dollar.

As to the Florida grower who still maintains the most important role in the overall drama, his cost of production has not remained static. He is digging deeper into his pocket with each succeeding year to pay increased costs of labor, fertilizers, sprays, taxes, etc. Yet the selling price of fruit has decreased.

Demand is exceptionally good and the fruit, excellent. Food chains and the industry itself are involved in numerous promotions to stimulate the movement of fresh citrus — to create an even stronger demand. And yet at the same time, certain citrus sales managers are shaving prices down instead of taking advantage of an economic situation whereby they have the demand advantage over supply in the present market and should be realizing a profit.

The question then becomes increasingly important: Why should prices be cut? Then answer can only be found in the spinelessness and ignorance of some who are sabotaging Florida's citrus price structure.

This Week In Tallahassee

By J. Kenneth Ballinger
Florida Press Association

Tallahassee — As Lewis Schott leaves the state beverage department which he has directed since 1949, Joe Bowen takes charge in his place. Bowen is the man who formed and directed the flying squadrons which have made liquor enforcement a sharp-toothed instrument in the past two and a half years. Schott in his final statement to Governor Warren reported his agency had collected $132,332.284 in liquor and cigarette taxes in three years.

Tallahassee — The Peninsular Telephone Company was denied the right to put temporary rate increases into effect, pending a final determination of its request for permanent increases. Chairman Richard A. Mack of the Florida Railroad and Public Utilities Commission said the commission's experts have not yet finished studying the case and may need more testimony, therefore a temporary rate increase would be premature. This is one of the largest telephone systems in the state, serving the Tampa-St. Petersburg and lower west coast area.

Tallahassee — The state supreme court has ruled that a person may be confined against his will in a state hospital. It refused to order the release of Donald Moore, now confined against his will at the southwest hospital in Tampa. The Florida law provides for forcible commitment where those with an active stage of the disease refuse to have it treated.

Tallahassee — Attorney General Richard W. Ervin has ruled that a motel is closer kin to a tourist court than it is to a hotel. Therefore, a motel is not eligible for a liquor license, as a hotel may be, except in very special cases. Such as, where a motel is in fact a hotel as to structure, nature and use.

Tallahassee — The bid of Senator Estes Kefauver for the delegates of Florida Democrats has again and for the fourth time been challenged by Governor Fulbright Warren. The governor said he will meet the senator any time, any place, to debate the fitness of Kefauver to be president of the United States. The senator has filed for the preferential primary May 6, and will campaign in Florida. Warren has suggested Jacksonville as the first debate location, but if that is not accepted, he said he would even meet him in the Orange Bowl in Miami.

Readings from the Bible include the following from I Corinthians (24): "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are foolishness unto him: neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned." Correlative selections from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include: "Spirit imparts the understanding which uplifts consciousness and leads into all truth. This understanding is not intellectual, is not the result of scholarly attainments; it is the reality of all things brought to light" (p. 505).

When Congress voted for the Defense Production Act, the legislators let a "joker" slip by that would permit Acheson to take such action. At least, that has been the interpretation of the law.

It is now learned that this cozy arrangement was arrived at over a year ago between the U.S. State Department, England and France.

Newsprint, lead, zinc, cotton, wool and manure are also included in the list of materials now being controlled for the benefit of world consumption.

Acheson had one major problem to solve, and that was getting control of lead and zinc.

But that problem was easily solved, because the Office of Price Stabilization, better known as O.P.S., or Office Plenty Scarcity, was just champing at the bit for something to do.

The Office Plenty Scarcity wrote another order setting the price that U. S. firms could pay for lead and zinc below the prevailing world price.

And of course, the order provided severe penalties for any U. S. firm that pays more for needed lead and zinc. Then to round up the picture, the MSA, or Marshall Plan under a new name, makes it possible for foreign nations to use American dollars to purchase the metals at any price.

It required weeks of investigation for these facts to be uncovered.

With elections staring them in the face, many Congressmen would have been happier if the facts had not been dug up because constituents are clamoring.

SPARROW HAWK

By The Bird Woman

When we speak of hawks, everyone naturally thinks of the few destructive hawks, as the "sharp-shinned" and Cooper's hawk. These two species are considered very harmful and where they can be definitely recognized, ornithologists say they should be shot on sight.

But unfortunately we have applied the name "hawk" to a great number of species that are not really hawks in the true sense of the word. The English apply the name buzzard, falcon or harrier to a great many of these birds, but somewhere along the line they have all been grouped together, over here, and called hawks, and although many of them are protected, some people still feel that it is always "open season" for any bird that even looks like a hawk.

If it were not for these beneficial birds with the misnomer "hawk", our lands would be overrun with the great variety of rodents, larger insects and snakes, which it would be impossible for man to control.

This was exemplified a few years ago when in a certain area of Florida war was declared on all hawks indiscriminately by well-meaning people with more zeal than knowledge, and most of the hawks were eradicated.

Soon rabbits, rats, field mice, ground squirrels, not to mention snakes, overran the area, and the people learned the hard way how necessary the so-called hawks are in the general scheme of nature. Martin houses can always be erected on a farm or near where poultry is raised, but the martins will not permit a hawk of any type in striking range of their homes. The martins are gregarious and like a number of apartments located together so they can gossip and visit as they work. A young business man that loves birds tells me that he has his martin apartment occupied by sixteen martin families, and besides being helpful themselves, the martins are very interesting to watch.

We would like to write about our very smallest hawk; in fact, the smallest hawk in North America, which is really a falcon, is generally called "the sparrow hawk", sometimes called "tilly hawk", and not much larger than a robin, and may be seen at most any season perched on a telephone pole or hovering with rapidly beating wings over an open field hunting rodents, insects or especially grasshoppers. It can hover in one spot, as if hanging in the air, in search of its prey, and when something is located, it lights feet first onto its prey, its claws being so arranged that they act as a grappling hook to grab the prey. What is so amazing about so many birds is the telescopic eyes they possess that can sight even the smallest insect movement from such a great height.

Eagles are presumed to be able to spot their prey from a mile high in the air.

Had it been necessary for us to sight our prey or food at such a great distance, our wonderful Creator would no doubt have adjusted our eyes so they could see around the corner or even several miles' distance.

So our eyes being adjusted the way they are, sort of gives us the hint that we should tend to our own business and not try to interfere with the business of the neighbor over the hill.

The sparrow hawk seems to have all the markings common to birds — spots on its breast, bars on its tail, stripes on its back, and a beautiful face of white with black vertical bars. Its tail is rufous red, and the back and head are rusty colored. The name "sparrow hawk" is also a misnomer, as this useful falcon preys on insects, rodents and grasshoppers to sparrows or small birds, and eats them only when driven to it by hunger. They nest in a tree cavity or woodpecker hole and remain with us throughout the year, although they are commonly found from Canada to Mexico and all through Florida, even in the Keys.

Let's learn about hawks and be able to recognize the helpful ones from the harmful ones, and we will be repaid a hundredfold for our knowledge.

MAD DOGS

Frthing at the mouth is not necessarily the symptom of a mad dog, and dog days do not mean a high incidence of biting. Mad, or rabid, dogs bite all times of the year.

When a dog suddenly becomes irritable, snaps without reason, recoils, shows indigestible objects, has excessive saliva with paralysis of the lower jaw, difficulty in swallowing, a change in bark or disturbance in vision, it is almost certain he is rabid. A veterinarian should be consulted at once. The dog should not be killed; just kept under observation.

Even though the dog may appear perfectly well at the time of the bite, he may be infectious. It is important to remember that the animal's saliva contains the rabies virus for about eight to twelve days before the onset of symptoms.

When the dog bites, the virus is passed into the broken skin. A large or deep wound will cause more fatalities of the disease sooner than a shallow or simple tooth wound. The virus travels along the nerve routes, a bite on the head, face or neck is particularly dangerous and may produce symptoms within ten days, while an arm or leg wound may not cause the disease for 30 to 60 days.

Symptoms of rabies in humans may include restlessness, apprehension with irritation and tingling at the site of the bite. As the disease develops, the voice becomes husky, the muscles of swallowing and breathing contract in spasms and the victim chokes to death. In case of a dog bite, do not rely on simple first aid or mild antiseptics. Consult a physician immediately so that the wound can be cauterized and preventive injections started. Haste is necessary because of the rapidity with which the virus travels to the brain and nervous system.

As a rabies preventive measure, pets should be injected annually with a vaccine that will help build resistance against the disease.

You can help get out the vote this year. Don't be content to just cast your own ballot. Urge neighbors and friends to register and vote. Registration books close April 5.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

From

Written Exclusively for Florida's Weekly Press

Washington — The mailman, even as close to the fighting war in Korea. Perhaps because of my own service as a mailman, I have been able to get a lot of news from the front lines. I have been able to get a lot of news from the front lines. I have been able to get a lot of news from the front lines.

A student, Captain William Need, Jr., on leave from the 3rd Infantry Regiment in Korea, wrote me: "I have just returned to my unit after a brief absence, with a group of men who have been through quite a bit of hell here in Korea during the past 6 months. Our mutual contact experiences have brought us close together. One of my prime problems is to keep these men from feeling that they are forgotten men, and from feeling that the people in the States do not appreciate their sacrifices."

Captain Need says the least Congress can do is to provide the pending small increase in service pay which would tend to relieve the anxiety of many of the men regarding the needs of their families back home. It would be hard to deny such an appeal.

This war is real, and close to the heart of all our people. I keep telling that to our Marines and doughboys over there. I wish I could tell them all how our Florida people spring promptly to their defense whenever they hear of some need which they feel is not being met.

A south Florida mother wrote me in anguish over the plight of a soldier given a long prison sentence for falling asleep on his sentry post. When I investigated, I found the whole story had not been told in the news reports: this sentry was discovered asleep by officers aroused by Communist enemy soldiers who were infiltrating past the sleeping man's position, ready to take the lives of the sentry's sleeping buddies.

A Florida Marine buddy of mine wrote me that the men in the rear areas, behind the front lines, were not being given enough food. General Lem Simpson, head, Marine Corps Commandant, investigated this matter for me; told of his personal visits to the messes in the rear areas, and convinced me that there is no shortage of "chow" except in unusual and isolated cases.

Korea's soldier experiences are close to Florida men, too. J. H. Cheely, of Williston wrote me about Bobby Williams, and his work with Korean orphans. Bobby had written his hometown and the folks had gathered for young Korean orphans several shipments of clothing which Bobby distributed. Bobby's gentleness with the children would not indicate his toughness as a "boozooka" team member. I like to think of him as typically American. Army Secretary Pacer made the same comment to me. Bobby's humane work, and that of his family and friends back home, now are well known.

People write me about the widely reported "inferiority" of our jet fighter planes to the Russian-made MIG-15. Senator Don Russell, Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, assures me this is not so except at altitudes above 30,000 feet (more than five miles high). Our fighters have outfought the MIG-15s consistently, his reports say. We have new planes on the way. But it takes 24 months to roll out new planes after production orders are placed!

We have been working on the privilege of voting for the soldiers. From information I have gathered from various sources, men in service who had previously registered have absentee voting privileges. Initial registration in Florida must be done in person.

FPC Held Annual Meeting Last Week

The Florida Power Corporation has plans to meet every demand for power for fast-growing Florida.

W. J. Clapp, president of the utility told 465 stockholders at the annual meeting held last week in St. Petersburg.

Clapp said the stockholders about the great strides being made in the industrial growth of Florida and gave assurance that the expansion program of Florida Power would keep up with this growth.

The company plans to spend 26 million dollars this year and 21 million dollars in 1953 for power plants and transmission lines.

"Our great state has grown tremendously since the war and we are proud to say that Florida Power has kept up with this growth in use of electricity in homes, farms, stores and industry," Clapp emphasized.

The stockholders elected K. E. Fenderson, vice president and general counsel as a director.

Fenderson is a graduate of Dartmouth College, attended Harvard University and received his law degree from New York University and has been with Florida Power for 27 years.

lowed the candidate as he kept the show going while traveling from Tampa to St. Petersburg. Telephone operators got writer's cramp writing down questions and recording donations. The live audience increased as more and more people drove down to see for themselves if one man could stand up under such a physical strain. The candidate, although weary, spoke in a firm voice and frequently announced of substantial donations that totaled into the thousands as the 8:00 p.m. closing hour approached.

Just before the scheduled close of the 24-hour program, one of the stations phoned to advise that they could clear another half hour if the candidate wished to use it. He did, and the show went on. Then another station offered another half hour and this was followed with another half hour. It was unbelievable. Braley Odham had broadcast without letup for a total of 25 and one-half hours. He had answered 5,100 questions, taken in over $4,000 in contributions and had reached more people effectively and impressively than had any other candidate in so short a time in the state's political history.

Political observers, who make a business of feeling the public pulse, estimated that Odham made 20,000 votes with his talkathon. How many he switched from the opposition is only a guess, but many who phoned in said they had been for someone else but liked the Odham courage and fighting spirit and were now in his corner. A listener sent in $24.01 for each hour of the talkathon, and suggested that others do likewise; as a result, over 50 such contributions came in for each additional hour of the program. A school teacher who said she didn't have that kind of money said she would contribute $1 for each additional hour Odham talked. She sent $3; others followed her lead. It was nothing short of an old time revival. Plans are being made to repeat the talkathon in Orlando and Jacksonville.

THE MEANING OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP

By Robert T. Limer

Is it really worthwhile to belong to a church? Why is it that as well as for one, after he trusts Christ, not to limit himself to any one denomination or to one particular church? These questions are frequently asked. They should be answered fairly.

Church membership is the natural thing for a converted person. His first desire is to please Jesus. "Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it, called natural for one to love Jesus and to be indifferent to the institution that Jesus loved so deeply and served so sacrificially. Because Jesus loved the church, everyone who loves Jesus will naturally love the church.

Church membership means more than we can possibly imagine. It is a divine obligation to seek to honor Christ in his relationship to the church which Jesus established. A believer will never find his place of greatest usefulness or fullest happiness outside the church. Jesus established the church.

(1) The Church a divine institution. — The Church is a divine institution with a holy mission and a sacred message. It is not just another organization begun by man. It is a divine organism instituted by Christ. Hear him saying, "Upon this rock I will build my church." (Matt. 16:18).

The growth of the churches from insignificant little bodies in New Testament days to tremendous instruments of power in our time indicates that Jesus is keeping His promise. The "gates of hell" cannot prevail over these divinely guided and guarded bodies.

There has been some disagreement about the exact time that Jesus began the church, and unredeemed men often contend that he did not begin it at all.

Let not the matter of controversy hide the fact that Jesus did establish the church, and that certainly it was before the day of Pentecost. It seems clear that the church was begun with the calling of his baptized disciples, together for the purpose of uniting their efforts in the promotion of His holy work. Certainly the church was in existence when Jesus said to his disciples, "Tell it unto the church" (Matt. 18:19). He would hardly recommend that a thing be referred to a nonexistent body.

(2) The Great Commission given to the church. — We know be-ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

WALKER MEMORIAL CHURCH
GIVES BOOKS TO LIBRARY

A sizeable gift of books was made to the Avon Park Library this week by members of the Walker Memorial Seventh-day Adventist church. One of the volumes, "Desire of Ages" (a treatise on the life of Christ), aside from the content of the book, has been acclaimed by literary critics as a masterpiece of English literature.

Sunday School teachers, ministers, and laymen should find this set of books interesting reading and a valuable aid in their study of the Bible.

This Week In Tallahassee

By J. Kenneth Ballinger
Florida Press Association

Tallahassee — The state general fund is more than $20,000,000 ahead of what it had been for this same period last year, indicating that state taxes are marching well ahead of predictions. Comptroller C. M. Gay pointed out that the increase would have been much greater, but automobile license tag money is delayed this year by a new law putting a later deadline on tag purchases.

Tallahassee — Attorney General Ervin is preparing to appeal to the supreme court of Florida the decision of Circuit Judge Hutchinson of Panama City holding Florida's campaign spending law unconstitutional because it violates constitutional freedoms. The suit was brought by Wallace B. Finley of Blountstown at the request of the Florida Press Association. The decision of the lower court was sweeping in its denunciation of the restrictions in the campaign spending law. A similar suit in Hillsborough county resulted in exactly the opposite decision. This also will be appealed, and the two may be joined in argument before the court.

Tallahassee — The new state beverage director is John E. Montgomery, navy veteran and recently chief of police in Tallahassee. He resigned his chief's place and was appointed state beverage head by Governor Warren to succeed Louis Scott. Director Montgomery is a former member of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a long-time member of the Jacksonville police force, and a lieutenant commander in the navy.

Tallahassee — The state improvement commission has been told by Leigh Portland Cement Company that its new plant at Bunnell, in Flagler County, will begin producing this summer. The plant is one of many brought to Florida through efforts of the commission and the state. It will produce 1,400,000 barrels of cement annually, out of shells and clay produced in Florida.

Tallahassee — Whether the embarrassing multitude of candidates pledged to Senator Russell for president can legally be thinned is a question which may be submitted to the Attorney General, R. A. Gray, secretary of state, said that since the qualifying deadline for such candidates is past, it may be unlawful for delegate candidates to change their pledges. Some pledged to Russell may withdraw, but others may want to change to unpledged. It will take legal research to see if this can be done.

Tallahassee — A million dollar cut in Florida Power Corporation electric rates, for Pinellas county ordered by the utilities board there has been affirmed by the state railroad and public utilities commission. Chairman Richard A. Mack of the state commission said the company would be ordered to begin refunds to its customers at once. The county utilities board said its findings before the state was given jurisdiction over such private companies last year. The company was ordered to withdraw appeal to the supreme court, and on condition it obeys, will be given the right to institute automatic billing, leasing changes, and rates on changes in fuel costs.

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER

(Written Exclusively for Florida's Weekly Press)

Mail coming into a Senator's office represents every conceivable viewpoint and opinion, and covering just about every imaginable subject.

We had one the other day, however, which tore them all. It's perhaps a "sign of the times." Apparently in all seriousness, a writer urged us to support prompt establishment of a "space station" in order that the United States might achieve "space superiority." Investigate this subject at once because the time for this is now and the support of every influential person is necessary.

A lady wrote in the other day and asked for a list of Senate "ghost writers." Like many other aspects of life in Washington, reports of the practice of people in public office of making speeches prepared by someone else are greatly exaggerated. Most Senators write their own speeches, with varying degrees of help. I find myself unable to adopt another's words and expressions and have to write my own speeches, finally, no matter how much help I have. At any rate there is no list of "ghost writers."

One of the nicest letters of recent date came from Mrs. J. A. Moore of Jacksonville. Through error, her husband, a disabled veteran, was recalled to active duty. Some time was required for the error to be corrected, but he finally went home on March 6. "We are happy to have daddy home," wrote Mrs. Moore. The letter was in an announcement of the birth February 25 of a nine pound son.

One of our good Florida ladies asked our help in an unusual inheritance case. An aunt had died in Germany leaving to her Florida niece a share in a Darmstadt estate. The U.S. Consul at Frankfurt is helping to clear up the matter. Transfer to this country of cash values for inheritances is permissible but subject to agreement in each case.

I had an unusual letter from Miami woman, Mrs. Elizabeth McGarry, asking me, "When are the communists in America going to be interned in camps and treated as the traitors and snakes that they are?"

I sent this ready answer: "We have no concentration camps in this country. However, prosecutions are being carried on in the courts against people who are proved to be communists, working to overthrow our government, and they are now in the way to prison. I might add that our prisons are too nice for them."

Rickenbacker Urges Registration To Vote

Commenting on the apathy of the average American voter, Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, speaking at Miami recently, said:

"One of the greatest privileges we have today is the freedom to vote as we see fit. Shall we abuse it, or shall we put forth every effort to see that our friends, families and fellow-workers understand and exercise their rights? I wonder what Benjamin Franklin and other founders of our country would say if they knew that less than half of the eligible citizens of these United States voted in the last presidential election in 1948."

"How can we hope to retain our freedoms and opportunities if we disregard our moral obligations and responsibilities to our country?"

"Let us stop fooling ourselves any longer. Let's sit down and quietly analyze ourselves. Only in this manner will we know how we have failed ourselves and our country."

Commenting on Rickenbacker's remarks, Harold Cole, Executive Vice President of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, points out that "We have an opportunity to redeem ourselves this year in the election of a President as well as congressional, state and local officials."

The State Chamber, like Captain Rickenbacker, is alarmed over the situation and is spearheading a statewide effort to "Get Out the Vote."

Be true to yourself and your country, register and vote this year.

BLACK-NECKED STILT

By The Bird Woman

Florida has an unusually large number of water birds, both native and migratory. Having so much sea coast, indented with such a great number of bays, inlets and sandy shores, and being washed with the warm waters of the ocean and Gulf, it is a standing invitation to water-loving birds to linger with us and join the numerous rookeries that have been established long before the white man came to our shores.

One of our native water birds that is especially attractive is the black-necked stilt. With its long red legs and long straight bill, it looks like it was put together with extra-long toothpicks, and for several centuries of black and white tend to make it look as if it was made with moulding clay.

The black-necked stilt belongs to the same family as the avocet, which, although migratory, is more commonly known and it is the largest bird of the family. It measures 15 inches from its tail tip to its tall tip.

It naturally takes its name from its long red legs and the peculiar pattern of black on its head, neck and back.

This black, contrasting with the white underneath, make it a very unusual looking bird. It frequents the shallow streams and inlets and wades in the water in search of food, and with its long neck and bill and swift way it can travel, the prey seldom eludes it.

It enjoys water snails, worms, insects, and small-fry fish.

It will wade among other water birds, such as ducks, and it can flap its wings and rise as gracefully as if it were rising from land.

The black-necked stilt nests in Florida. About the first of May, they congregate in small communities of four to six pair and proceed to make their nests. They choose a small knoll in a marsh, and gather together a small amount of grasses, and after the eggs are laid and the female starts to incubate the eggs, for some unknown reason they continue to add to the nest until it is quite a respectable place to raise their young. It may be that the fear of rising water may prompt them to make the nest more secure. This habit is followed by many water birds that nest on the ground, and from a home of just dry grass they have a reinforced nest of salt grass, sea weed, and various roots.

Three to four eggs are laid and the male stands guard near the nest during incubation. As soon as the young are hatched they follow their parents through the weeds and grasses on their long wobbly legs and all they feed as they go.

If an enemy approaches, the young are expert in hiding and fall flat to the ground with the head and neck flat on the ground.

The black-necked stilt was more or less common in the northeast of the United States, but as that region became thickly settled they disappeared, and now are found chiefly around the Gulf and southern ocean beaches and the Keys. The birds are quite common in the Bahama Islands also.

If you are not familiar with this bird, look at its picture in your bird book, and notice how defined the black and white lines are, the top of the head being black, then the back of the long neck, and the peculiar way the color extends over all the wings, the rest of the bird being pure white, with a white spot over the eyes. It is truly an exotic looking bird.

We saw the black-necked stilt when we went on the bird trip to Merritt's Island, although they are not as abundant there as they used to be before there was so much drainage in recent years in that region.
