AVON PARK, FLORIDA, FRIDAY, JANUARY 9, 1953

NUMBER 9

City Issues $236,850 in Building Permits For 1952

City Clerk Malcolm Crews reports that a total of $236,850 in building permits were issued by his office during 1952. Of this amount permits were issued for 22 new homes costing a total of $109,250.00. Commercial construction totaled $55,500.00 including a new $18,000 office building constructed by the Lake Byrd Citrus Packing Company. Permits were also issued in the amount of $30,000 for an addition to the First Baptist Church and $7,000 for an addition to the Church of the Redeemer. One of the last permits of the year to be issued was that for the new Post Office building in the amount of $13,000. Balance of permits issued covered additions and alterations to existing residential and commercial structures.

Persons planning to build or to alter existing buildings are reminded that City Ordinance requires a building permit secured prior to the start of work. It is necessary to have accurate figures on all building for monthly reports which must be made to the U.S. Department of Labor by the City. A penalty is provided for failure to secure the proper permit prior to building.

Frut Pickers Aid March of Dimes

One of the finest contributions to the March of Dimes campaign thus far comes from the local fruit pickers of the Adams Packing Company.

The crew, consisting entirely of Avon Park colored men, expressed the desire to pick a box of fruit a day during the month of January to boost the campaign; and this contribution will be a considerable boost.

Nathaniel Williams, spokesman for the gang, reports that 18 of the 22 pickers are participating in the plan. The three loaders of the crew have also expressed a desire to contribute through the payroll plan.

The men picking the box a day, as reported by Nathaniel Williams, are: M. J. Robertson Jr., James Thomas, Solomon Walker, Gordon Guyton, Lewis Paul, Clyde Johnson, John Sam Lyons, Edward Meyer, John Everett, Elmo Collins, Willie James, Daniel Hudson, Roosevelt Gray, Joe Collins, Robert Byrd, Horace Ash and Nathaniel Williams.

The three loaders contributing are: A. L. Watson, Willie Smith, and B. J. Hollinger.

One of the polo victims of 1952 was a five-year-old colored boy of Avon Park who died in a Tampa hospital.

A group from our high school band has been selected to play in the all-state band in the annual state Music Clinic held in Tampa this week. They are: Martha Jo Little, clarinet; Aylene Reed, horn; Dean Martin, drums; Bobby Tomlinson, bass horn; and Jim Wilhite, baritone.

The young people left Thursday, immediately after lunch, accompanied by Gene Gorman, band director, and Mrs. Gorman. They will remain in Tampa through Friday and Saturday.

Band students to participate in the state band are selected from lists submitted by the band directors of the various high schools.

Six Thousand Set As March Of Dimes Goal

$6000.00 was announced to be the Highlands County goal for the 1953 March of Dimes campaign by Colin DeShong at the annual meeting of Highlands County Chapter of National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis on Dec. 30. Mr. DeShong also told of plans for raising the goal then introduced Marion Jeffries, one of the Florida field representatives for the National Foundation.

During his speech, Mr. Jeffries stated that in 1952 Florida ranked 15th in the nation for per capita giving to the March of Dimes with an average of 29 cents and first in per capita giving among the southeastern states. Of the southern half of Florida which Mr. Jeffries serves, the Highlands County Chapter had the highest per capita record in 10 of the 13 fund raising methods used.

He continued by telling of the heart warming results of immunization experiments with gamma globulin and the probability of permanent immunization from polio within the near future. But he pointed out that polio is not locked yet stating that new cases amounting to 85 percent of those reported in 1951 were reported this year but that deaths from polio this year were 167 percent of the 1951 totals.

S. F. Longbottom, chairman of the Highlands County Chapter, said that the 6 new cases reported in the county this year amounted to more than previously reported in the preceding six years that the Chapter has been organized.

New officers for 1953 are Colin DeShong, chairman; S. F. Longbottom, vice-chairman; H. Phillips, secretary; Mrs. G. Beaumont, treasurer. The Chapter officers were elected from among the executive committee which consists of the following:

Lake Placid - Miss Margaret Kelley, Mrs. Aubrey Fitzgerald, Mrs. Betty True.
Sebring - Mrs. Robert Hunter, Venus - Mrs. R. J. Hargrove. Sebring - Rev. Carson Brittain, Mrs. S. J. Holifield, Mrs. G. L. Beaumont, Prof. S. Nixon, DeSoto City - Mrs. Nora W. Corbett.

Avon Park - Mrs. W. S. Still, C. R. Ginn, H. Phillips, J. C. Betti, Prof. Ernest Sims, F. F. Longbottom, Mrs. I. H. Ford, H. M. Baldwin.

Retired Civil Employees Organize Local Chapter

A local chapter of the National Association of Retired Civil Service Employees was organized at a meeting of the new group, which has been named the Avon Park Chapter, and officers were elected.

W. W. Hill is president; Frank E. Beckwith, vice president; B. J. Thigpen, secretary; and Edward Hammond, treasurer.

George E. Wagner, representing the National Association, attended the meeting for the purpose of assisting in the organization. Mr. Wagner is field vice president of Region No. 6, which includes the states of Alabama, Florida and Georgia.

The association is composed of retired Federal civil service employees. Its purpose is to further the interests of such persons, to influence legislation, etc. It is also a social organization. Active civil service employees may be associate members.

Nine of the known eligible persons in Avon Park were present at the organization meeting. Other eligibles are urged to join. Meetings will be held monthly at 1:00 p.m. on the first Tuesday of each month.

TERMINAL CONTROL SWEDEN HERE

Strangers who announce themselves as terminal-control experts who are working with an outbreak of poliomyelitis in Sweden, Avon Park. They say they have discovered that a home is riddled with termites, and try to frighten the householder into immediate action, payment to be on a long-term basis.

Do not accept their offer. They are swindlers. After their "work" is finished, they will demand a large cash payment. At least one householder has been duped into paying them a sizeable sum—and still doesn't know whether his house was ever infested with termites.

Pat With Cat

The young lady who passes so appealingly as is Pat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marle Landress; granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Landress and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Young. Her cat, however, seems to be more interested in a birdie off-side.

Good Fishing In Highlands County

The Woman's Club of Avon Park will sponsor a tag day sale for the polo March of Dimes campaign, Saturday, January 10. The event will be similar to Poppy Day sales, except imitation dimes will be sold instead of poppies. The club will have two or three tables set up on the streets to serve as headquarters for the good ladies who will be meeting the people up and down each street, selling the silver disks.

The artificial dimes will not have anything written on them, but if each person walking the streets will purchase one of the little dimes and pin it on his shirt or dress, there will be a tree of "Dimes" on the streets of our city.

The Woman's Club urges the citizens of Avon Park to assist them in making this project a big success by being liberal with donations when they purchase the imitation dimes.

County Officials Took Oath of Office Tuesday

Four newly elected county officers were sworn in office Tuesday. The new officers:

Harry Lee took over the judgeship from Judge Howard G. Livingston, who served two terms. He also appointed Attorney Robert P. Dunty Jr., of Lake Placid, as juvenile counselor. Junty takes over the position held by Luke Mosley under Lee's predecessor, Howard Livingston.

Austin Hancock, a former member of the commission, who succeeds R. L. (Bob) Stokes as District 3 commissioner.

Morris Adams, who takes over the District 5 commissionership from W. V. Higgins, who did not seek reelection.

Ted Cassin, a former member of the board, who becomes District 2 school board member, succeeding Henry H. Wobster, who did not seek another term.

In the event the justices of the peace and constables win their legal fight to keep their posts—they were voted out in referendum—another new face will be sworn in. R. P. Dunty Jr., as District 3 JP.

The old and new officers took office Tuesday, and no changes in the various staffs are expected. Miss Bonnie Albritton, clerk in the county judge's office since 1929, will remain in point of service she is the oldest court house employee.

Tax Assessor P. G. Gearing, the veteran of the court house officers begins his fifth four-year term. Circuit Court Clerk Harvey T. Petty and Supervisor of Registration Roland W. Drot start on their fourth term.

School Superintendent Fred Wild began his third term. Sheriff Broward Coker, who started as a deputy sheriff in 1929, and Tax Collector J. Colin DeShong embark on their second terms.

Small Claims Court Judge Ralph Clements begins his first complete term.

On the commission with Adams and Hancock will be Marion H. Grier (re-elected) and holdover commissioners A. J. Tubbs and A. C. McAulay.

School board members, besides Cassin are Sam Longbottom and Henry G. Bailey, both re-elected, and Mrs. Katherine Waggoner and E. Ray Wells, holdovers.

JPs and constables elected, and voted out of office at the same time.

JPs—W. A. Roberts, Avon Park; Mrs. Lottie C. Long, Sebring; and Dunty, Lake Placid.

Constables—Eddie Fowler, Avon Park; Lewis I. Butler, Sebring; Broward Coker, Lake Placid.

Miss Edna Pearce of Fort Basinger, continues to represent the county in the lower house of legislation. Doyle Carlton Jr., of Wauchula, will represent the county in the senate, succeeding James W. Moore, who resigned last year.

The county commissioners re-elected A. J. Tubbs chairman of the board. Ruth Collier was hired as county attorney and Otis Whitehurst was hired as prosecuting attorney, on a monthly basis.

FORMER FRANCES BURLINGHAM DIES OF INJURIES

Word was received recently of the death of Mrs. Frances Burlingham of Minneapolis, Minn. She was the daughter of J. C. Burlinghame, one of Avon Park's leading early settlers, and her girlhood home was the building now occupied by the Poinsett Hotel. The structure also housed a general store operated by her father, it being one of the two main stores in the town before the coming of the railroad in 1912.

Mrs. Burlingham lived in Minneapolis after her marriage, but had visited Avon Park. Some of her memories of early days here were read and heard with interest at the last meeting of the Old Settlers Club, on October 8, 1950.

Mrs. Burlingham died November 24, the result of injuries received in an automobile accident. November 4, she was riding with her son when their car was hit by a drunk driver.

PROPOSED DAV MEMORIAL TO UNKNOWN SAILOR

CINCINNATI — The Disabled American Veterans in cooperation with the Department of Defense, will construct the Grave of the Unknown Sailor at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, as a fitting tribute to the heroic Navy dead, comparable to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington. At its recent national convention in Boston the DAV voted to underwrite the estimated $75,000 cost among its membership. The memorial, designed by Paul R. Williams, who helped design the United Nations building in Paris, will have four circular pylons, 32 feet high, with a curved ramp running out into the water and ending a barge on which will be a dedicatory plaque. Three rooms in the land structure will be used as chapels. DAV officials hope to break ground for the memorial in the near future.

AVON PARK SERMONETTE

GIVE YE THEM TO EAT
Rev. M. L. E. McCallister
Retired Methodist Pastor
Our message has its setting in the feeding of five thousand. Found in Matthew, 14th chapter the 16th verse is the central point for our thought for now. The miracle itself is very important, preformed by the wonder-working Savior. But the great lesson for us is found in our Lord's command, "Give ye them to eat." This is a command for all time, as long as this age stands.
"Ye are my disciples if ye do whatsoever I command you."
What does it mean to us as parents or as teachers, or as the called ministers of God, who are to teach and preach the Word of God?
If I were to make the application of this command, it would include parents to whom God has given little ones, to be brought up in the nurture and admonition of God's Holy Word. To teach and train the children in the way they should go, and when they are old, they will not depart from the way of life.
But I especially want to apply our lesson to the teachers, who Sunday after Sunday, give out the great Bible lessons for the children, youth, and older ones to learn.

The lessons which children and youth learn when their minds are pliable, and hearts open to receive the truth, make a foundation on which to build noble characters, and a growth in spiritual graces. But we can include not only the parents and teachers, but also the army of preachers and evangelists, not that I should instruct them, but something for all to ponder over, and we can all ask ourselves, "Do we have spiritual food at hand, that we can give multitudes to eat?"
To me, this is a question I ask myself often, but more especially when I have been serving as a teacher and preacher of glad tidings.

What we need these days, more of all, is more Bible study, not only as children, but as adults, to really know God's Holy Word. As the masses grow older, they cease to attend Sunday school, thinking they have learned enough.

It is, how little most folks know of God's word, who is to blame? All of us. First of all, those who are so satisfied with what little they know, but more largely, we the dispensers of God's word, the bread of life, have failed to get extent.

To be the servants of the Lord, we must know more than an official gleaming of God's word. We need to search for the great nuggets of truth, to study, to show ourselves as workers that need not be ashamed, approved unto God, rightly delivering the word of "planning" has even aroused the wrath of General Eisenhower. Referring to their program, General Eisenhower said: "Very frankly, I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater and greater centralization of authority and greater dependence upon the Federal Treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can possibly be arrayed against us." (New York World Telegram, June 27, 1949).

And let it be noted at this point that the funds for a National Dividend For Every Voter would not constitute a raid on the Federal Treasury, but would be possible by the elimination of much of the waste in government and through an equitable share of the nation's corporate income which would be increased by greater production.

Most of us, even while we are in our teens, have taken enough bumps to realize that it is not possible to get something for nothing. But too many of us can't seem to get it in our heads that this fact applies to government. Too many of us have been sold on the idea that the Government possesses some magical power of going on terrific spending orgies without anyone having to foot the bill.

That is wrong of course. The Voters are footing the bill. For assuming this responsibility, year after year, they get less. Does this make sense? Isn't it high time for a new plan which will help the men and women foot the bill?

If you remember any of your Greek history, you will recall a smart young lad by the name of Pericles who found himself in a political race with some wealthy candidates in Athens. Pericles' rivals appealed to the Voters by contributing enormous sums of money to popular projects from their private fortunes. Pericles, unfortunately, had no private fortune. So Pericles came up with the ingenious idea of distributing the public money—not for production or for services to the country—but just plain distribution. From that time on he never lost an election. But the government and the people eventually found themselves in bad trouble.

GOVERNOR DAN MCCARTY

I am determined that ours will not be an administration of "sounding brass or tinkling cymbal"; nor one tainted with any kind of dishonesty. But rather ours must be an administration of sound accomplishment by men and women of high principle, inspired in their work by a firm faith in our future. Together, with God's help, we shall succeed.

Thus Dan McCarty made his pledge to the people of Florida Tuesday as trustee of the vast powers they bestowed upon him in his election as Governor.

A National Dividend For Every Voter

Chapter Five
We are fed reams of bureaucratic bluntness and packages of promises, and all the time we watch the purchasing power of the dollar descend and the cost of living rise. We wonder why we can't be told the truth. We wonder why they really don't do anything for the average American Voter.

Why don't they adopt a sound economical plan which will permit the Voter to get his fingers in the till he fills? Instead of letting the Bureaucrat siphon off a large portion of the nation's corporate wealth, why can't we get rid of this type of person and go back to running our own selves? The National Dividend Plan would enable us to take care of ourselves far better.

This "planning" has even aroused the wrath of General Eisenhower. Referring to their program, General Eisenhower said: "Very frankly, I firmly believe that the army of persons who urge greater and greater centralization of authority and greater dependence upon the Federal Treasury are really more dangerous to our form of government than any external threat that can possibly be arrayed against us." (New York World Telegram, June 27, 1949).

And let it be noted at this point that the funds for a National Dividend For Every Voter would not constitute a raid on the Federal Treasury, but would be possible by the elimination of much of the waste in government and through an equitable share of the nation's corporate income which would be increased by greater production.

Most of us, even while we are in our teens, have taken enough bumps to realize that it is not possible to get something for nothing. But too many of us can't seem to get it in our heads that this fact applies to government. Too many of us have been sold on the idea that the Government possesses some magical power of going on terrific spending orgies without anyone having to foot the bill.

That is wrong of course. The Voters are footing the bill. For assuming this responsibility, year after year, they get less. Does this make sense? Isn't it high time for a new plan which will help the men and women foot the bill?

If you remember any of your Greek history, you will recall a smart young lad by the name of Pericles who found himself in a political race with some wealthy candidates in Athens. Pericles' rivals appealed to the Voters by contributing enormous sums of money to popular projects from their private fortunes. Pericles, unfortunately, had no private fortune. So Pericles came up with the ingenious idea of distributing the public money—not for production or for services to the country—but just plain distribution. From that time on he never lost an election. But the government and the people eventually found themselves in bad trouble.

How could there be a spirit of initiative and enterprise in a kind of a "Welfare State" that is brewing in the mighty "theory" of our economic planners? The pot needs new ingredients—initiative, enterprise, production and national teamwork. Ingredients, too, that will eliminate governmental waste, increase purchasing power and prevent further slippage in the value of the dollar.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Moore

Tallahassee — Those who have predicted that Dan McCarty will be a stand-pat or status quo governor are in for a shock.

As a matter of fact, he plans more sharp policy changes in such important fields as road-building, crime-fighting, issuance of revenue certificates and conservation. His specific plans for reforms in Florida's government have firmed up to a remarkable degree since he won the Democratic nomination for governor last May 27.

During his campaign, McCarty declared himself on major issues in terms of general principles. But he could not go into much detail for two reasons:

1. A fully-detailed account of any governor's program for his four years in office would take several hours to present and nobody, but nobody, can hold today's campaign crowds that long even if he were foolish enough to try.

2. Because of the seven months lag between the second Democratic primary and inauguration day, it was impossible to forecast what conditions would prevail when he was inaugurated. Neither major candidate, for example, knew in May of 1948 that the State treasury would be virtually bankrupt by the end of that year.

But McCarty has been doing a great deal of careful thinking since he was nominated and especially since he was elected in November. Even during a post-primary "vacation" in North Carolina, he worked to translate his general statements of principle into concrete policy.

Now he can give you these summaries of his present thinking on a number of vital topics:

1. Road-building. McCarty expects to free the State Road Department to give more attention to building and maintaining primary and arterial highways. "This would be done by giving to the counties greater authority over and responsibility for their own road-building programs.

2. Issuance of revenue certificates. McCarty strongly disagrees with the present policy of the State Improvement Commission under which the Commission promotes and solicits opportunities to finance all sorts of projects with revenue certificates. Under McCarty's administration, the Commission's certificate-issuing authority will be put on the shelf and used only in emergencies.

3. The fight on illegal gambling and crime. For the first time, McCarty will coordinate the efforts of all State agencies with the responsibility for suppressing illegal gambling and the crime and corruption it invariably spawns. Instead of having the Hotel Commission, the Beverage Department and the Racing Commission working independently of one another in seeking to apprehend bookmakers, the three agencies would work together to pool information and avoid duplication of effort. In addition, the Attorney General's office and the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission, both of which have investigative and enforcement authority, would be invited to join this informal "Anti-Crime Council."

4. Conservation. McCarty says the more he studies this activity the more convinced he becomes that Florida needs a sort of Department of Interior to coordinate divisions of forestry, parks, game, fish and salt water fish, water, oil and other natural resources.

"Secondary or farm-to-market roads and our arterial highways are equally important to the welfare of our people," said McCarty. "But I am convinced that County Commissions can build their own secondary roads quicker, cheaper and better if given more authority and more responsibility. By attempting to supervise construction of county roads and arterial highways, the State Road Department tends to spread its administrative and technical personnel so thin that it can't do justice to either program.

"As an example of the economies that could be effected by greater county responsibility, I am told that it cost the State Road Department twice as much per mile to build an extension to a new road in St. Lucie counties than it had cost the County Commission to build the original road."

(This policy statement represents a sharp about-face, not only from the attitudes of previous administrations but from governmental trends generally. In effect, it amounts to McCarty's handing back to the counties the spending of millions of dollars of gasoline tax money instead of keeping this authority in the road department which he controls. It is axiomatic that once a central and governmental unit, be it in Washington or Tallahassee, is granted additional powers it almost never relinquishes such powers voluntarily. Yet, this is exactly what McCarty proposes to do.)

McCarty explained that when he voted as a legislator in 1941 to create the State Improvement Commission "I and a good many other people in the Legislature thought we were setting up an agency which could finance projects of vital necessity when there was no other possible means to do so."

"But now we find the Improvement Commission practically seeking excuses to finance projects which, while desirable, certainly do not fall in the emergency classification," he continued. "The thing easily could get out of hand and I think the time has come to call a halt, certainly until some of the projects which have been financed by this agency have paid off this indebtedness."

Of the need for coordinating all the forces engaged in fighting crime, McCarty noted that "various investigations have shown that members of the underworld work together to help one another escape apprehension."

"It seems ridiculous, therefore, for enforcement authorities to work independently of one another," McCarty emphasized. "For example, under present conditions, a hotel which has a bar and which is suspected of knowingly harboring bookmakers theoretically could be under simultaneous surveillance by agents of the Hotel Commission, the Beverage Commission, the Attorney General's office, the Racing Commission, and the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission. Yet none of these agencies would necessarily know of the activities of the others. And this same duplication of effort might make it impossible to carry out other needed investigations."

Again, in discussing the proposed Department of Interior, McCarty pointed out that conservation efforts overlap in many fields and result in absurd situations such as agents from separate State departments being required to police the fishing on two sides of the same bridge but with neither authorized to stop violations on the other agency's side. "Commonsense dictates that the preservation and restoration of natural resources should be regarded as a whole," he explained.

Florida Citrus Exposition To Open At Winter Haven

Winter Haven — A graphic story of the giant Florida citrus industry, covering all phases from the planting and budding of nursery stock to the retail sale of the fresh or processed fruit will be a feature of the 1953 Florida Citrus Exposition here Feb. 16-21.

Floridians and out-of-state visitors to the citrus show will see working models, animated displays and pictorial art, including huge murals, covering the many varied phases of the industry. John A. Lang, president of the Exposition said.

"The production, processing and marketing of citrus and its many by-products make a romantic story down through the years since the first orange trees were brought to this peninsula from Spain, and it's a story that can be told with glamour and excitement," Lang declared. He added the comment that many people engaged in citrus do not know the story.

Artists are creating many colorful animated displays to not only tell the story of the industry but to carry out the "Health and Fun" theme of the 1953 show.

The 1953 Exposition queen contest, with a trip to Europe and the coronation of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II in June as the top prize, is attracting attention all over the state with indications that the last entry list for the competition, to be held in two phases on Monday and Tuesday, February 16-17, will be the largest in the show's history, according to General Manager Phil E. Lucey. Sidney I. Smith, president of the Florida Club, and Jack M. Berry, secretary of the Exposition's board of directors, along with Bill Carter, assistant to Lucey, make up the committee in charge of the contest.

Growers and packers from almost every citrus section of the state have signified their intentions of entering fruit in the annual contest to select the best commercial packs in all the recognized varieties of fruit, Lucey said. This contest will have a prize and premium list worth several thousand dollars.

The Tom Moore "Ladies Fair" radio show, now being broadcast five days a week from the Florida Citrus Building here, will have special features for Exposition week, Lucey said. The show will continue to originate in Winter Haven through mid-April.
