CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

Tallahassee — Rep. Ted David of Hollywood, Speaker-designate of the 1953 House of Representatives, is one of those rare individuals who asserts leadership while saying very little.

This paradox of a legislative leader who eschews flowery oratory is just one more of the many paradoxes in David's career. In fact, he might be termed a paradoxical member of a paradoxical family.

David is the second eldest of six brothers. All six were star football players at South Broward high school, all wore the same jersey number — 32 — and five of the six served as captain of the team. They are a closely-knit group, yet each has insisted on retaining his individual personality. All six attended different colleges, joined different fraternities and eventually took up different occupations. Church memberships of the brothers include three different denominations. Of the three who were old enough to serve in World War II, one was in the Army, one in the Navy and one in the Marines.

Two of David's brothers, Claude and Sam, played football against each other in 1950 with Claude playing for the University of Florida and Sam for the University of Miami.

The next House Speaker was himself a varsity tackle at the University of Georgia. But, again an anomaly, he was an exceptionally good student at the same time. He completed the normal four years of work for a bachelor's degree in two and a half years, being named to the dean's list throughout his undergraduate collegiate career.

Enlisting in the Army, he obtained an infantry commission via OCS at Fort Benning — then spent three years afloat as an officer in the transportation corps. On his return from service and while attending University of Miami law school, a group of young veterans, impressed with David's clear thinking in Junior Chamber of Commerce debates, virtually drafted him to run for a vacant Broward seat in the House. He was nominated in 1948 while still a law student and defeated two Democrats and a Republican. He was reelected in 1950 and again in 1952, the last time without opposition.

David first got the idea of seeking the 1953 Speakership last summer after several members approached him and suggested that he do so. Not until December, however, did he begin an active campaign. Once in the race, he pursued victory with the same driving determination he had displayed on the gridiron and in the classroom. He put everything else aside, made one long swing after another around Florida until he had discussed his candidacy personally with more than 80 percent of the 85-member House. As a result, when this session convened, David had the votes he needed to force a quick showdown and gain victory.

In winning over popular Gus J. Dekle of Perry, David got a tremendous assist from his veteran Broward colleague, Rep. John S. Barwell, and from a number of other seasoned members.

Looking ahead to 1955, David hopes to maintain the atmosphere favorable to governmental reform that has been created this time by Speaker C. Farris Bryant of Ocala. To begin with, he will follow Bryant's example and name the Committee on Appropriations well in advance of the legislative session so its members can meet with the Senate Committee and the Cabinet Budget Commission to do much preliminary work on State finances prior to the session.

(Since Senator W. Turner Davis of Madison, 1949 President-designate, long has favored early appointment of the appropriations committee, it is a certainty that this year's plan will be followed again and that both houses will have an appropriations bill before them for consideration before the '55 session is half over. By handling financial questions early, the lawmakers have more time to consider government reorganization questions. The plan was originally forced into being by Senate President Charley E. Johns and has worked well so far.)

David's two principal interests in the Legislature are to assure adequate financial support for the public schools and to reorganize State government where such changes would produce greater efficiency and economy.

He credits two men with getting him genuinely interested in governmental reform through the example they set — Rep. Perry E. Murray of Frostproof and a former Rep. William C. Lantaff of Miami.

Murray always has been a leader in the move to revise the constitution and to streamline those segments of Florida's government which have become top-heavy over the years. Lantaff was co-chairman with Senator Wallace E. Sturgis of Ocala, of a highly effective 1949 Joint House-Senate Tax Survey Committee. The renown won by that committee helped send Lantaff to Congress.

Note: Handsome, dark-haired David stands six feet one and a half inches and weighs 210. Now 33, it is believed he will be the third youngest Speaker in the state's history after E. Clay Lewis (23) and Dan McCarthy (28). His full name is Thomas Edward and the nickname "Ted" by which he is best known represents a combination of all three initials.

There are those who see in his governmental successes already the making of a future governor. . . . More and more talk is being heard here that Lantaff could be an extremely formidable candidate for governor in 1956 if he decided to give up his Congressional seat to make the race.

Legislatures and others who are touting Lantaff's chances point to the tremendous pool of votes in his and immediately adjacent counties — a pool that continues to grow at a phenomenal rate. Moreover, the Lantaff advocates insist, the friends he gained as a student leader at the University of Florida would give him something few potential Miami candidates could boast — a nucleus of support in each of the state's 67 counties. Further, he was an extremely popular lawmaker and broadened his statewide acquaintance while serving in the Legislature.

Some who are opposed to the candidacy of Bruley Odham of Sanford believe Lantaff may be the answer they have been seeking, provided, of course, he could be persuaded to run. The manner in which Lantaff handled himself on a recent national television program convinced Odham that he had what it took to checkmate Odham's own convincing airwaves technique.

AVON PARK SERMONETTE

Rev. Kenneth L. Tucker, Pastor
Florida Avenue Baptist Church

"But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1:8)

"You are the only Bible some folks read." is an old expression that is just as true today as when it was first said. To every saved man and church member I would say, "The eyes of the world are upon you." Jesus said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me." That is literally true. Every Christian is witnessing everyday, either for or against Jesus.

The best and most effective preaching is not seen and heard from the pulpit, but in the everyday lives of consecrated Christians. People of the world would rather see a sermon in shoes than hear one spoken. Every saved person is not called of God to pastor a church, but he is called to be an evangelist. The great need for the world today is for all the evangelized to become evangelists. We must see the dead live, the blind see, the spir-

Driving Through Water is Not the Time to Make a "Big Splash"

Although today's automobile has progressed far beyond the point where a severe spring rain will stall the engine, it still is not an amphibious vehicle. Failure of the engine to bring you through normal flood waters, which might cover highways, can be attributed mostly to water on the ignition system caused by splashing. Today's engines are better equipped to combat excessive moisture and driving through water, by the use of such things as improved rubber housings on the spark plug terminals. These pictures show the splash effect when a car "plows" into a seven-inch depth on a flooded highway. At 20 m.p.h., the water shoots high, completely drenching the usually deaf hear, the drunkard made sober, thieves made honest, and liars told the truth. This can only happen, on a large-scale basis, when all the evangelized become evangelists, or true witnesses unto Jesus.

All the world is cold — but we can give them warmth of heart and soul. All the world is in darkness, but as we witness, we can point them to "The light of the world."

Christian friend, do not hide your candle under a bushel, but place it on the candlestick, and you can give light to all who are in the house!

The fruit of an apple tree is an apple—the fruit of a Christian is another Christian. Are you bearing fruit for the Master? Three thousand converts were added to the church on the day of Pentecost. I think this is true because one hundred and twenty souls winners prayed in the upper room for ten days and nights. The evangelized must become evangelists.

"If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them." (John 13:17)

'TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY'

By Russell Kay

A good many years ago when I was a barefoot boy with cheek, etc., I used to get a thrill out of watching the neighbors fertilize their lawns, and no matter how fast the grass grew it wasn't fast enough to suit me.

Like most youngsters of my day I had to depend upon my own efforts for such spending money as I acquired and mowing lawns was my major occupation. Being a saved-off individual, about the only thing I was ever able to push around with any degree of success was a lawn mower.

I used to knock down a dollar or so a week giving green grass a hair cut after school and on Saturdays and was the poorer possessor of one of the first ball-bearing lawn mowers ever produced, which I bought out of my earnings. My father was a frugal man and, while he had no objection to my going in business for myself, he figured it was up to me to provide my own working tools.

As I grew older and more sideways than up and down, the business of mowing lawns entirely lost its appeal. As a youngster, I used to wonder why anyone was dumb enough to pay someone to mow a lawn when he could do it himself and save from $10 to $15, but as the years passed me of that early vim, vigor and vitality and the value of the dollar steadily decreased, I learned the answer.

A few years ago some chap with a weak back or something came up with the power lawn mower. Then the country broke out in a rash of 'em until today it is as hard to find a guy without one as it is to find a family without a radio.

With modern day kids very indifferent to the business of lawnmowing, as a profession and with so-called yard men as hard to get along with as they are to pay, I invested in one of these beautiful little shiny green and white trinkets, and while the growth of grass is still annoying I find I can guide this mechanical mower around without too much discomfort.

But mowing a lawn is only half the problem. At best, the finest mechanical lawn mower can't do any more than "take a little off the top." In order to finish the job and make a lawn look half way respectable, you have to trim the edges and around the trees and flower beds. This has gripped me no end for I don't like squatting down with a pair of clippers or wrestling with an edger.

Evidently some chemist in the laboratories of the United States Rubber Company acquired the same aversion to edging lawns that I've had for so many years and decided to do something about it.

I never expected to see the day that we would have a chemical lawn edger at our disposal, but when these modern day scientists get to messing around with chemicals and a test tube anything can happen from the development of a new textile to the perfection of an H-bomb.

Believe it or not, but this new chemical concoction known as "No-Trim" or "M140" actually controls the growth of all kinds of grass causing it to stop growing taller but at the same time making it grow thicker and greener.

A package, which sells for $1.00, when mixed with water and sprayed along the edges of your lawn and around trees and shrubs where it is always difficult to keep grass neatly trimmed, will end your edging problem for the rest of the summer. You simply leave the chemical on the edges for five days, then trim it as you always have done and it will cease growing, remaining trimmed for the balance of the summer, although the edges will remain thick and green.

Each $1.00 package provides enough "No-Trim" to treat a strip 250 feet in length and six inches in width.

I don't know who the chemist was at the rubber company who discovered this amazing formula, but if you ask me he sure ought to get a medal or citation, or both, for he has certainly made a wonderful contribution to suffering humanity. He will probably go down in history as doing as much to bring relief to suffering males as Lydia Pinkham did for members of the opposite sex.

"No-Trim" will soon be available at your local garden supply store. The National Products Co. of Orlando is the distributor for Florida and is prepared to supply jobbers and dealers throughout the state.

Now with my mechanical mower and my chemical trimmer I can thumb my nose at the yard man and still keep my yard trim and pretty. Ain't science wonderful.

When Florida's forests burn, everybody loses.

Health TOPICS

Presented by your Doctor of Medicine as a Health Service of the Florida Medical Association and your Local Medical Society.

THE TALKING AGE

Speech comes naturally to the child provided no physical or emotional defects exist. On the whole a more mentally alert child talks early, however parents should keep in mind that many children do not follow an average growth pattern. They should not compare what one child does at a certain age with what another did at the same period.

A child's vocabulary grows almost daily for his natural curiosity is never satisfied. New experiences, new play things, different routes to new places, the same places all create added sources of information.

A parent should not repeat the child's baby talk. The proper pronunciation should be used instead. A child who is read to clearly with the words properly pronounced will soon imitate the correct expression.

Stuttering may also occur or there may be slowness in speech when a new skill is being learned, for example, conquering the use of a new utensil, such as a spoon or a fork, or learning to put on a shoe.

So concentrated is the effort that the words already learned are forgotten. This is all very natural in the process of adaptation and acquisition of new knowledge.

A child who stammers or stutters should not be fussed at or corrected harshly. This procedure only tends to make the youngster self-conscious and more retarded in attempts at speech. He should not be told to talk more slowly, nor should someone else be held up as an example. Again, these efforts call attention to what appears to be a deficiency.

CONCENTRATORS BUSY
Florida's remaining orange crop of 18,833,000 boxes is expected to be chewed up at the rate of between two and one-half to three million boxes each week as concentrators continue to take record-breaking bites for production of their "canned frozen gold."

With the longest interim period between Midseason and Valencia oranges finally over, the concentrators are moving at a terrific pace to make up the production lost while Valencias were reaching the proper sugar-acid ratio.

For the week ending April 25, concentrators utilized 1,623,700 boxes which established a new record. It surpassed the previous high mark of 1,616,000 boxes set during the week ending March 21 last year.

And—al indication points toward a higher utilization and new records during the next several weeks.

Although producing at a faster rate than ever before, the steel industry cannot meet the demand for tonnage, states Iron Age, national metalworking weekly.
