AVON PARK, FLORIDA, FRIDAY, MAY 22, 1953

NUMBER 28

Jet Pilot Killed At Bombing Range Base

A Pinecastle Air Force Base jet pilot crashed at the Avon Park bombing range Tuesday morning and was killed. He has been identified by Air Force officers as 2nd Lt. William Eugene Goodrich, 22, of Omaha, Nebraska. He was at the bombing range on a training mission.

Warrant Officer Don Moore, public information officer at Pinecastle AFB, near Orlando, said Goodrich apparently misjudged a target approach. He is said to have come in too low. The plane flown by Goodrich was an F-80 Shooting Star jet.

The lieutenant's next of kin was listed as his mother, Mrs. Virginia Burling Goodrich, Omaha.

Lieutenant Goodrich, one-time student at Omaha University and a former employee of Westinghouse in Omaha, received his wings in February.

District 6 of Citrus Mutual Meet At Sebring May 28

Members in five Florida Citrus Mutual districts will choose 15 of the 21 directors on May 28 who will guide the operations of the big cooperative during the coming year.

This year, the Mutual sessions will be streamlined and devoted almost entirely to the election of three directors from each district. Slides have been prepared, however, graphically showing Mutual's accomplishments during the current citrus season. These will be shown after the business part of the sessions has been completed.

Mutual directors are elected for one year and will be officially seated at the annual meeting, to be held at Winter Haven June 16. The newly-elected directors will meet following that session to choose a president, several vice-presidents and other officers.

District 6 will meet at Sebring, May 28, 3 p.m., County Commissioner's Room, Courthouse, composed of Sarasota, Hardee, Highlands, Okeechobee, Glades, DeSoto, Charlotte, Lee, Hendry, Collier and Monroe counties. Directors: W. S. Fletcher, Arcadia; Judge Clyde Maddox, Wauchula; Charles G. Metcalfe, Avon Park.

1391 Have Free Chest X-Rays

There were 1391 persons' chest x-rayed last week in Avon Park's survey.

347 were x-rayed in the colored section, 254 at the high school, 164 at the Prison Camp and 628 persons were x-rayed at the Florida Power Corporation lounge.

The number fell far short of the expectations of the Health agencies promoting this survey and led H. M. Baldwin, president of the Highlands County TB and Health Association, to express his opinion that there are hundreds of local residents who are still unaware of the great importance of community health welfare.

He stated that those who missed the opportunity in Avon Park can take advantage of the free x-rays available at the Sebring Tourist Center beginning Wednesday, May 20th and continuing through June 5th.

X-Ray Mobile Unit Here On Monday

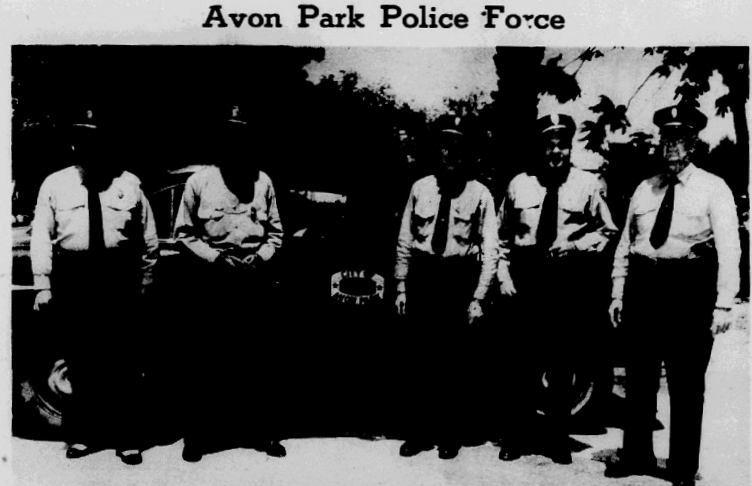

By popular and urgent request the Mobile Chest X-ray unit will return to Avon Park for one day only Monday, May 25th. The time will be 10:00 to 1 o'clock and 2:00 to 5:00. The definite location has not been decided but will probably be placed on the Mall. Get a free chest x-ray.

Avon Park Camp Youth Retreat

Avon Park Youth Retreat, held May 15 and 16, was the largest in the history of the camp. The Myers First Methodist church scored the highest in attendance, with 21 present.

Dr. E. F. Carwithen, of the Sebring Methodist church had charge of the program. Dr. S. H. Turberville of Winter Park was the evangelist. Two good movies, "In His Name", and a travelogue, "Along the Mediterranean Sea", were enjoyed.

All took part in an African "tape recording", portraying the participants as missionaries, sending home news about the different mission stations, or scenes of the country.

Swimming and games were also enjoyed.

Methodist church women of Avon Park and Sebring took charge of the dining room and kitchen.

Methodist Mass Rally at Sarasota

More than 1200 Methodists of the Sarasota district are expected to attend a mass rally at 3:30 p.m., Sunday, May 24, at Municipal Auditorium, Sarasota, Florida, to celebrate results of the denomination's recent united evangelistic mission.

Principal speaker at the "victory rally" will be Dr. Albert Trulock. He is Pastor of the First Methodist Church, Valdosta, Ga.

The program chairman is Dr. Albert Dale Hagler, District Sup't., Sarasota District, and directing a massed choir of 200 voices will be J. Kenneth Gress of Bradenton, Florida (Trinity Methodist Church).

The meeting will be one of 152 rallies in nine southeastern states climaxing the series of Methodist evangelistic campaigns which netted 80,167 commitments by profession of faith or membership transfer.

HIGHLANDS COUNTY WINS HONORS AT TB MEETING

Highlands County TB and Health Association won the second prize of the Florida TB Association held at Jacksonville last week.

The award was given to Highlands for placing second in percentage points which considered those Christmas Seal Sale, increase over the previous year, and per capita average. Highlands is ranked with 45 counties of the state having a population of 25,000 or less.

P.T.A. Short Course At Gainesville

Mrs. T. H. Maxwell, incoming president, and another representative from our P.T.A., are expected to be among the approximately 900 women and men who will attend the 17th annual short course in Parent-Teacher Leadership here at the University of Florida next month.

The course is scheduled June 9-12, according to B. C. Riley, dean of the General Extension Division of Florida, which is conducting the meet.

Riley said, "Annually the P.T.A. short course is one of the highlights of this Division's activities. We feel that here is where we can really do our part to bring the parent and the teacher closer. There is no question in my mind but that our greatest hope, today, for the preservation of our free world lies in the fact that the school and the home are working together to train, educate and inspire our children along lines of intelligent and enlightened citizenship."

In charge of the course will be Mrs. Edith McBride, Cameron Head of the Department of Auditory Instruction and Women's Activities of the Extension Division.

Members of the Advisory Committee of the Florida Congress of P.T.A.s are: Mrs. Arthur G. Ivey, Jacksonville, and Gainesville, chairman; Mrs. William G. Thigpen, St. Petersburg; Mrs. M. A. Russell, Miami; Dr. C. Lee Egger, Gainesville; and Mrs. C. D. Johnson, Quincy, Ex-officio.

Frances Bruce Stipan, Pasadena, California, author and lecturer, and Dr. Grace Sloan Overton, Adams, New York, are featured speakers.

Legion Post 69 Plans Memorial Day Services

Memorial Day Services conducted by the Avon Park American Legion Post will begin with placing of flags on the graves of all veterans Saturday morning, May 30. Gold Star mothers will be presented with corsages at their homes and given special invitations to sit with the American Legion Auxiliary.

The service, in the Mall, under the direction of Dr. Richard F. Hedrick, Post Chaplain, will be opened at 10:30 a.m. with our National Anthem played by the Avon Park High School Band followed by the Invocation.

A reading, a musical selection, and a recitation are scheduled to follow in order after which we will hear a brief but very special address by Lt. Col. Bolton S. Pierce from the Army Reserve Training Center, Ludwick Airport, Lakeland. Following the address a wreath will be placed at the Honor Roll in memory of all those who gave their lives in American Wars. The benediction was announced by Dr. C. H. Bolton, Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Avon Park followed by taps which will conclude the service.

All merchants are requested to close from 10:30 until the conclusion of the service.

Blazing Frying Pan Causes Fire Alarm Death and Accident

Grease burning in a frying pan was the indirect cause Tuesday afternoon of a death and a collision resulting in major damage to two cars. Willie B. Miller (60 years old), said to be around 60 years old, was the victim.

The Fire Department was summoned at 3:15 Tuesday afternoon to an apartment house at 833 S. Harper, owned by Wall Johnson. The occupant, Rosa Mae Jenkins, had begun cooking and then fell asleep. Grease in a frying pan on the stove caught fire, producing clouds of smoke that poured from the windows and alarmed the neighbors. Miller, a spectator, apparently become over-excited and died of a heart attack at 3:25 p.m.

The auto accident occurred when William Riley Johns Jr., 17, who wanted to see the fire and who was driving south on Carolina Ave., collided with a car driven by Mrs. Florence Carter, daughter of F. L. Slaughter. Carter was travelling east on Green and Carolina. Both cars were badly smashed but no one was injured.

Students Plan Church Careers

It was recently announced in this newspaper that Dean Martin, A.P.S. senior, planned to train for ministry in the Methodist church.

It has now been learned that three other seniors will enter schools to train for the ministry and another will pursue a Christian education course upon their graduation from high school next month.

The future clergymen and the schools they will attend are: Dean Martin, Asbury College, Wilmore, Ky.; Thomas Jenkins, Stetson University, Arnold, Fla.; and Robert Cook, Wake Forest University, Wake Forest, N.C.

Mrs. Barbara Moseley will study Christian education at Baylor University.

WIN PENDELTON

Fireworks Coming — The Senate finally approved two more Federal judgeships for South Florida. For eight or ten years, Florida has been trying to get another judicial seat set up — then two years ago began trying for two such seats. Federal judgeships are among the most jealously guarded patronage plums in the country. The appointments are made by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Since patronage for Florida is now in the hands of the Florida Republican Rite, the Academy of P. Myers, Spades of St. Augustine and Mrs. Lieb of Tampa — two Republicans are sure to be nominated. However, Holland and Smathers have enough influence on the Republican side of the Senate to block any nomination distasteful to them that the Committee might make. This nullifies the Republican Committee's patronage privilege. If they can't get together with the Democrats on their choices, a long drawn out deadlock could result. Incidentally, the last Republican Federal Judge in Florida to create much news was Halsted L. Ritter, who was impeached and removed from office in 1936.

Wide Reputation — Recent visitor to Senator Smathers was one who called himself Professor Ben Aboud of Morocco. He said he was visiting this country on an educational mission and had heard of the Senator's progressive outlook and wanted to talk to him about world affairs. He said the future of the world was on the shoulders of the younger men in government — and felt that Smathers shows promise as a future statesman.

FBI Trouble — Two government girls here were talking about a friend, "He doesn't show anymore," one of them said. "He had FBI trouble." "You mean the Federal Bureau of Investigation got him?" her friend asked. "No," the first girl said, "FBI — Fired By Ike."

Something New — Florida's Senators and Representatives are sporting new license plates, indicating that they are members of the U.S. Congress and giving their rank or district number. For example, Senator Holland's new plate reads "USS 1" and Governor Campbell, of the first Congressional district will use "MC 1". This is the first time Florida has honored her delegation with special plates, even though many of the other states have been doing it for years. The new plates attract attention and should be effective advertising for the state — also they should help the Florida members with a load of their local parking and traffic problems.

Senate Hero — Many Senators from both sides of the aisle have stopped by Holland's office to compliment and congratulate him on the masterful way he handled the tide-lands bill. The placidity, of course, are well deserved, because the tide-lands bill was the result of more than three years hard work on Holland's part, plus many 18-hour days during the three weeks of Committee hearings and five weeks of the opposition's filibustering on the Senate floor.

Support our Public Library — The U.S. Department of Agriculture issued a press release October 2, 1952, on the discovery of a new residual lindane insecticide. This release stated in part that "Research workers of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine have produced a substance that retains its power to kill susceptible insects at least twice as long as do normal lindane sprays."

Agricultural Specialists has now made this development available to the public and the name Supertox Residual Fly Spray. Supertox is recommended for the control of hard-to-kill household, mosquito, roaches, and many other insects. It is recommended for use by municipal health departments, control operators, and by farmers, ranchers, and individuals for the control of hard-to-kill insect pests.

Supertox is a concentrate which is diluted with water for use. One gallon of this concentrate makes 32 gallons of residual spray. This concentrated form greatly reduces the cost to the user. Supertox is available at...

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

Tallahassee — The longer you watch the Legislature in action, the more you realize that it is a machine which will act as an agent in all situations.

Sometimes, the Legislature seems inconsistent to outsiders. Sometimes it seems difficult to justify its actions by any rule of logic. That is because the Legislature is simply people, with all the frailties and virtues of other human beings. The Legislature is not infallible because people are not infallible.

Galleries are often puzzled when a popular Senator or Representative, steering a dubious bill to passage, while a less popular lawmaker is unable to get to fast base with a measure of obvious merit. But, again, this is no different from the likeable salesman who sells goods to the same people who won't buy their goods from a salesman they don't like.

Here are thumbnail sketches of some of the people who make up the legislative scene, as you see them in the Capitol corridors.

Youthful Senator Doyle E. Carl-ton Jr., of Wauchula, is being hailed by old-timers as one of the Senate's outstanding freshmen members. They have been particularly impressed by Carlton's pose in debate and by the manner in which he has kept the state's welfare in mind when resisting pressures from special interest groups. He does not have the polished oratorical style which has made his father, former Governor Carlton, one of the state's most sought-after speakers. Instead, he uses a homespun, Will Rogers approach which is equally effective in its own way.

The Alachua delegation of Senator W. A. Shands and Representative R. C. Tupper and J. E. Ruff, Jr. is being credited with the outstanding coup of this session — the institute enactment of the University of Florida medical school bill. A well-balanced team, the group used Shands' wealth of legislative savvy, plus energetic press-campaign efforts, by all three, to line up enough votes to steamroller opposition. The speedy passage, apparently realizing that the medical school would stand its best chance early in the session before any possible financial pinch began to develop, joined his colleagues in traveling in the state for weeks to obtain pledges of support. With sufficient votes pledged, he pushed the bill to speedy enactment. Had he, Tupper, and Cross waited until the session started to begin selling the medical school, the result easily might have been different.

Alvin MacWilliams of Vero Beach, a former member of the House and a spokesman for Gulfstream Park at this session, follows a rule which often enables him to anticipate the moves of the opposition: "I just put myself in their shoes and figure what I would do if I were in their shoes." Characterized by a rich Scotch brogue, MacWilliams often played a key role in speaker's races during his long service in the House. He is a master of novel voting caucus techniques.

Senator Woodrow Marvin of Milton controlled his colleagues the other day by describing a malady he called "Edmondsonitis," or "an appropriating fever." Marvin, who served three terms in the House before coming to the Senate this session, was Senator George Dayton's good right arm at the appropriations committee. He volunteered, with Dayton, committee chairman, to hold the line on state spending. The Milton lawmaker served on the 1947 House education committee which helped create the Minimum Foundation Program. He is one of a diminishing number of legislators who familiarized themselves with the Program at the beginning and has followed its evolution step by step. This is in line with his colleagues as they try to analyze its complex structure.

Senator LeRoy Collins of Tallahassee, one of the session's busiest lawmakers, has found it a legislation affecting Florida State University gives him what appears to be a full-time job. Senator Collins reports that University of Florida measures have tied him up in much the same way, but Collins' situation has been further complicated by the presence in Tallahassee of Florida A&M University and the Capitol Center. In addition, Collins has been expected to carry a large share of the burden of (a) legislation affecting the public schools and (b) enactment of the legislative program of Governor Dan McCarty's administration. Much university legislation is enacted largely as a result of legislative conference in Collins and Shands.

Precise, soft-voiced Donald R. Lane, spokesman for the Christian Science Church in legislative matters, is one of the most effective representatives any group has in Tallahassee this session. Lane is the antithesis of the public's ideal of a lobbyist — he follows out no free meals, is a stranger to smoke-filled rooms. But he presents the doctrine of his church with such quiet fervor and sincerity that legislators wind up by seeing things his way. During World War I, Lane served as a minister at a number of military installations.

Veteran Rep. J. Ben Fugus of Palmetto is furnishing the usual liaison, as he has for many years, between county officials on the one hand and lawmakers on the other. Fugus, county of manner, is typical of the Old South school. His thorough knowledge of county government has been especially useful at this session, concerned as it is with such matters as proposed changes in compensation for county officials and various plans to put teeth into the present requirement for uniform tax assessments.

Rep. John S. Pittman of Jay, a first-term, received an unusual honor just prior to the session when he was elected to fill a vacancy on the Legislative Council before he had been sworn in as a member of the House of Representatives. Since membership on the Council is limited to eight Senators and eight Representatives, plus the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate as ex officio members, places on the research group generally are reserved for veteran members. Pittman's main interests: education and agriculture.

His fellow Senators generally look to Senator Dewey Johnson of Quincy for his opinions when questions involving livestock are before the Senate. Johnson has a legislative record which is perhaps unique in recent history; he has represented two different areas in both the House and Senate. He was born in Gadsden county, moved to Brooksville when he was 25 years old. He represented Hernando county in the 1930 House and the Hernando-Citrus senatorial district in the 1941 and 1943 Senates. He represented Gadsden county, he represented it in the 1947 and 1949 Houses. He was elected to the Senate from Gadsden county in 1950.

These random portraits illustrate that no two legislative figures are exactly alike. None is perfect, each has his strong and weak points. The Legislature is people.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By Russell Kay

Sebastian isn't a very big town and the Indian River News is not a very big newspaper. Last week, national renown came to the community and the paper, thanks to the unusual ability of one man—Dale Wimbrow.

To Dale Wimbrow, editor and publisher of the Indian River News at Sebastian, Florida, went the coveted Editorial Award, a nationwide contest sponsored by the National Editorial Association. The award was made last week in New Orleans at the annual meeting of the NEA.

Commenting on their decision the judges said: "For his coverage of the subject, expression of thoughts, style of writing, which is not only persuasive but convincing, down-to-earth and representative of the 'man on the street,' the judges have selected this newspaper for first place."

In the summer of 1948 a new paper was born at Sebastian, the Indian River News, published by one Dale Wimbrow. Like children of the poor, newspapers are born almost every day in Florida and a good percentage of them die before they ever get out of their swaddling clothes.

There was no sane reason or excuse for a newspaper at Sebastian. No experienced newspaperman would have ever considered starting one there. The town was too small to support a paper. The field was already covered by one of the most outstanding newspapers in the state—the Vero Beach Press-Journal. The big dailies of Jacksonville, Palm Beach, Ft. Pierce and Miami were working the territory with a fine tooth comb.

But Dale Wimbrow wasn't a newspaper man. He knew nothing about the publishing business. Most of his life had been spent in the entertainment field where he was going strong and making a name for himself. He plunked a mean ukelele in the early days of radio, sang and played with big name orchestras, recorded for Columbia, Edison and Victor. He wrote the first singing commercial ever employed on a radio program and was probably the first radio entertainer to ever experience the wrath of a network bigwig.

Shortly after Bill Paley became head of the Columbia Broadcasting Company, Dale was scheduled to sing one of his own songs, "When Old Pete Daley Plays His Ukelele Down in Whaleyville." He felt a bit litten and substituted Bill Paley for Pete Daley.

His apartment telephone burst into flames the next morning. CBS's vice president, Bill Shinn, blessed him out in all the languages, including the obscene, demanding to know how Dale dared do such a thing.

Dale replied that in this country we kid anybody including the President of the United States, and asked how come the president of a broadcasting company was so sacred. "Yes, screamed Ensign, 'but they don't stand on the White House steps and do it.'"

How times have changed, comments Dale today, for not so long ago Fred Allen and Jack Benny were thrown off the air for kidding, and of all things, a "vice-president."

But getting back to the newspaper. A throat ailment robbed Wimbrow of his voice and that meant the end of his promising entertainment career. Broken in health he moved to Florida to die, and bought 16 acres on the Indian River near Sebastian.

Dale Wimbrow wasn't the retiring rocking-chair type. Mentally and physically he resented being shelved. He wanted some means of expressing himself. Friends suggested that he start a newspaper. Realizing that what Dale needed more than anything else was something to do, something to occupy his mind and time, Mrs. Wimbrow encouraged the idea.

As a result, the Indian River News came into existence. The paper is as unorthodox and as individual as a publication can get. It is a reflection of its editor. Not only Sebastian but the state of Florida has benefited by the editorial influence of the unusual weekly. Twice, the publication has won the editorial "Oscar" in Florida Press Association contests and now steps beyond the state's borders to win national honors. We congratulate Dale Wimbrow, the Indian River News, Sebastian and Indian River County.

FINE GARDEN SUBJECT OF FEATURE ARTICLE

A clematis vine bearing fragile, wax-like blossoms five to six inches in diameter was one of the plants described in a recent article describing the fine garden of Mrs. J. O. McClung of Valley Shores, Fla., a suburb of Birmingham. Mrs. McClung is the sister of Mrs. A. F. Rigens, of this city, who also had a very interesting garden during her years of residence in Birmingham.

The article, which appeared in the Valley Shores Sun for May 7, mentioned Mrs. McClung's "mammoth collection of flowers and plants," and states that "she is known Valley-wide for her beautiful flowers, and each year receives several citations for her beautiful horticultural specimens."

The article also comments that Mrs. McClung is well known for her willingness to share her wealth of bloom with others, since she feels this is the real joy in growing flowers.

The list of flowers now blooming in the garden—peonies, iris, Sweet William, and daisies—are enough to induce nostalgia in non-native Floridians.

Chevrolet trucks must be the best buy!

They are discovering things like the tremendous new power in advanced Load-master engines in heavy-duty models... the remarkable gasoline economy... the extra ruggedness and strength of heavier, more rigid frame construction. And, in addition to all these advantages, the Chevrolet line lists for less than any other trucks of comparable size and capacity. So, before you buy any truck, stop in and see us.

A National Dividend For Every Voter

By JOHN H. PERRY JR., Chapter Fifteen

By diverting tax money directly to the voters, the evils of overgrown government would disappear. For there would be less money with which to build a political machine and less opportunity for the government officials to waste it on graft, corruption and inefficiency. Since there would then be no more excuse to ask for welfare money, the people would be inclined to turn down all requests for further unnecessary taxes. Any other welfare needs could be taken care of at state level. For 137 years our government operated without any income taxes at all, but now that the politicians have put that one over on the people, it is beyond belief. The time has come to throw off the shackles of excessive taxation and convert the idea of the income tax on corporations to a constructive, full participating method of general welfare so that the tax money may link together the rich and the poor and have the profits of one can profit for all, and so that at the same time the dividends from venture capital may be tax-free—a feature so necessary for the dynamic expansion of a free economy and one which will in the long run produce more revenue for the Voter. This direct division of corporation tax money will bypass the politician's opportunity to get at this money for his own personal use and party machinery.

It is imperative that the business managers of our political economy be freed from the political requests of the various pressure groups—labor, old age, veterans, farmers, and so forth—and returning freedom to business will enable it to make profits directly for these groups. Let us not forget that profits must be made so that business can raise money with which to expand and be encouraged to make these profits. It is natural for the politician to call for controls because they enable him to increase his importance in the economy, but actually the controls distort the economy and add an inflationary pressure. It is a fact that the owners of private property can do more for the people than the politician can do if their property rights are guaranteed against violation. What remains to be done is to make this more obvious by letting the public also share in the profits. The cost of administering any controls far exceeds the money which goes into profits. The most expensive factor in the price of any product is that figure representing profit. For it is that figure which keeps low all the costs which go to make up the item. The lower these costs are kept, the more profit. If they are not kept low there is no profit. Where there is no profit incentive, therefore, there is no effort to keep costs down and they skyrocket way above the figure representing the costs of the product and the profit.

Another reason for the presence of corrupt political machines in office is because of the lack of general Voter interest. Recent exposures by congressional committees through television and newspapers have done more to curb this unwanted activity than anything heretofore. This is because of the enormous public interest created. If all eligible Voters were to vote, the problem would soon disappear. It is not difficult to find a solution to this problem. The mechanics for carrying out a
