TRAIN UP A CHILD

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Proverbs 22:6)

Children need to know that they are loved and appreciated. Without this knowledge they will lack security. It is said that Mozart, the great musician, when but a child used to go around to all who were present in a group and ask, "Do you love me?" And it is not enough to simply say from time to time that you love your children. They can be told better in the little acts that you show that you enjoy their company and appreciate them. Heywood Brown stated his conviction that golf is a trifling thing beside the privilege of taking a small son to the zoo and letting him see his first lion and other jungle lords. Then he added sagely, "Probably he will think that they are part of your handiwork turned out for his pleasure." Children need to have the companionship of their parents when they are young if the parents are to enjoy their children's confidence when they are older.

One day a young man stood at the bar of justice to be sentenced for forgery. The judge had known him since he was a child and had known the family intimately. The boy's father had been a famous legal light and had written some of the best material available on the subject of "trusts." In strict fashion the judge addressed the boy with the words, "Don't you remember your father, that faithful whom you now have disgraced?" "Yes, I remember him perfectly," answered the boy. "When I went to him for advice and companionship he often said to me, 'Run away, boy, I'm busy.' My father gave all of his time to his work and none to me. I think that is one of the reasons that I am here." Well, it undoubtedly was. The great lawyer had written a great deal about trusts but he had missed the greatest trust of all — his own son. And unfortunately that same mistake is being made by many others every day.

Children have a very keen sense of justice and injustice. Of course they should be punished when they need it. "He that spareth his rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him with the rod." (Prov. 13:24). But punishment should not be meted out unkindly or unjustly. It will do more harm than good, as it makes the child angry at his treatment. "And ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath, but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." (Eph. 6:4).

The "Old Oak" Mystery Tree At Highlands Hammock

By CAROL BECK
Botanist, The Florida Park Service

Mystery tree of Florida, the "Old Oak" at Highlands Hammock State Park, near Sebring, estimated to be more than 800 years old, continues to puzzle visitors on whether it is a laurel oak, or a hybrid oak.

It is thirty-six feet in circumference at the base and thirty-one feet in circumference, with a diameter of 7.9 feet, at four and one-half feet from the base. At ten feet above the base, its circumference is 16.6 feet with a diameter of 5.9. Today, it is about 100 feet high, but may have been taller in the days of its youthful glory several hundred years ago. It probably never was a spreading tree because the tall shape of the tree indicates it may be a laurel oak, but its leaves have the gloss, color and texture of a live oak. On the other hand, its bark is rougher than the bark of a laurel oak, smoother and lighter in color than the bark of a live oak, and darker and rougher than the bark of a water oak. And its days of producing acorns have almost ended.

Spanish moss or tree beard can be seen, lending additional marks of old age to this ancient monarch of the forest, which was an acorn long before Columbus discovered America and a youngster among trees more than 300 years before Ponce de Leon first saw Florida. Some folks deny the existence of hybrid oaks, while others believe in hybrids. Some botanists say it is a live oak, while others claim it could be a splendid example of both, but aged in time. Huge burls at its base and scars of bad weather all over it attest to great age. Everyone agrees that it is an ancient "Old Oak," from out the dim, dark past, with complete identification gone. Old age is due a few wrinkles even in a tree.

Orange Crops Estimated At 79,000,000 Boxes

Florida's new crop of oranges, estimated by the government at 79,000,000 boxes, "is not excessive" and growers should realize a "reasonable profit" from this variety, Florida Citrus Mutual is telling its members in an evaluation of the new season.

Mutual delayed any detailed analysis on grapefruit, however, until its efforts to expand existing outlets and develop new ones can be more accurately appraised. The big cooperative forecast that 32,500,000 boxes of oranges would be used by frozen concentrators to make 53,325,000 gallons of their product. This compares with 32,500,000 boxes used last season to make 46,500,000 gallons. Yield this season is estimated at slightly less than the almost one and a half gallons of concentrate from a box of oranges last season. Mutual also told its members that the "on-tree average return for early variety oranges will be considerably better than last season." The prospects over-all for oranges are called "slightly more favorable than last season," based on expected production, the existing low inventories of processed products including concentrate and national income.

In addition to the almost 40,000,000 boxes of oranges which will go for concentrate, here is how Mutual thinks the rest of the crop will be used:

Fresh fruit market, 25,000,000 boxes, same as last season; processed, other than frozen concentrate, 13,000,000 boxes, same as last season; home consumption and other non-commercial usage, 3,500,000 boxes, 200,000 boxes less than last season.

Mutual said frankly that "the outlook for grapefruit returns can not be forecast with safety at the present time."

The crop is larger than last season. Whether it will prove unwieldy depends principally on the success achieved in bringing several projects to completion for expanding existing outlets and creating new ones. The industry is strong enough and has sufficient know-how to realize the full potential possible in increasing the utilization of this grapefruit crop by taking advantage of the programs now being developed.

The new Florida grapefruit crop is forecast by the government at 37,500,000 boxes, 5,000,000 boxes more than utilized last season. Total U. S. supplies of grapefruit, Mutual said, will be 44,530,000 boxes, based on the U. S. forecast, compared with 38,230,000 boxes in the 1952-53 season. Texas' estimated production is up 700,000 boxes to 1,100,000 boxes. At its peak, Texas produced 24,000,000 boxes of grapefruit prior to two disastrous freezes. Arizona's grapefruit production is estimated up 500,000 boxes. No official forecast has yet been issued on California grapefruit.

She was stricken while assisting with a supper at her hometown church. She and her husband had made the Connel Apartments, 900 N. Lake Ave., their winter home for several years. They were regular attendants at the First Methodist Church here, and Mrs. Glanz will be missed by its members.

Among those attending the University of Florida Homecoming this weekend will be Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Ginn, Nancy and Elizabeth. The Ginn's will go to Gainesville Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Duke Christensen and children, of Allentown, Michigan, are again spending the winter in Avon Park. They returned about two weeks ago.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

TALLAHASSEE — Floridians are about to witness a unique political spectacle — a gubernatorial candidate who is willing to run four-square on the record of a previous administration.

John McCarty made that abundantly clear in his press conference here. He made it plain there will be a candidate next spring who will carry the McCarty standard and make no bones about it.

Candidates in the past have always shunned any connection with previous administrations. The common practice has been either to assail the administration — as Fuller Warren did with the Caldwell administration in 1948 — or remain discreetly mute on the subject.

Floridians have seen an unusual demonstration of the way in which the Cabinet system stabilizes State government in time of stress.

The capital had been shocked by the death of Governor McCarty, then plunged into uncertainty by the open argument over whether officials appointed by the Governor should offer their resignations to Acting Governor Charles E. Johns. Despite reassurances from all sides, career employees of departments under the Chief Executive were quite naturally worried about the future.

But when the six elected department heads met with the Governor in regular weekly session, the atmosphere was calm and serene, just as it almost always is. In the deliberative fashion that is traditional at Cabinet meetings, members took State problems and dealt with them one by one. An outsider would never have guessed that two of the men sitting at the table — Johns and Comptroller C. M. Gay — may face one another on the stump in next spring's race.

And hundreds of workers in the Cabinet departments went about their jobs in routine fashion, unworried over any turn of events may take.

Note: If political cross-currents were not visible in the Cabinet room, they were plainly evident in the corridors outside. Scores of visitors, brought here by recent developments, handled political gossip in such noisy fashion that an official had to go outside several times to request quiet.

It would be an ironic turn of events indeed if leaders of the McCarty group were to ask Senator LeRoy Collins of Tallahassee to step aside for some other candidate in the race for the unexpired term.

If such a request were made it would make the third time that Collins had been asked to change his own political plans in deference to friendships. Collins lost the 1939 Speakership of the House of Representatives by the narrowest of margins and was considered a virtual certainty to win the post without opposition for the 1951 session.

But Senator W. C. Hodges died between sessions. It was then that Tallahassee friends came to Collins and insisted that he run for the Senate vacancy. This Collins did and Dan McCarty was subsequently chosen as the Speakership candidate of the then dominant group in the House. He won the endorsement over George E. Holt of Miami, now a Circuit judge, at a caucus in the home of the late Rep. Loomis C. (Bill) Leedy of Orlando. That was McCarty's first big stride toward statewide prominence and the Governor's chair.

Again in 1952, Collins' supporters urged him to run for Governor. They insisted he had discharged any obligations their friendship involved by supporting McCarty in his unsuccessful 1948 race. But Collins declined to run, went all out to support McCarty.

Note: Persons close to Collins say he would stand aside again — if all concerned agreed on John McCarty as the logical candidate to complete his brother's unexpired term. He might not do so if some other candidate were selected to carry the McCarty standard.

Immediately after Governor McCarty's death, persons here and elsewhere in the state urged that Secretary of State R. A. Gray be drafted to run next spring.

These persons noted that Gray had served well in the difficult and delicate role of deputy Governor in Cabinet matters during Governor McCarty's illness, just as he had during part of the administration of Governor Fred P. Cone. (The Secretary of State presides in the Governor's absence, as chairman of boards through which Florida's government is largely administered.)

But Secretary of State Gray, often urged to run for Governor in the past, gave no consideration to the new proposal. It can be assumed that he will be a candidate for reelection to his present post in 1956.

Associates of Comptroller C. M. Gay say he has received some 400 telephone calls, letters and telegrams urging him to run for the unexpired McCarty term. They report the pressure on him is much heavier than it was in 1952, when a number of business and other groups tried to get him to make the race.

It is unlikely that Gay will make a decision within the next week or so. He plans a quick trip around the state before making up his mind. He would not need to resign as Comptroller to run for Governor.

BABY POWDER

In the care of baby's tender skin, dusting powder has become as common-place as mild soap and warm water. With reasonable caution, it is perfectly safe to use.

In composition, baby powders do not differ greatly from those intended for adults. One obvious difference is that they are usually only lightly scented or not scented at all. They should be highly absorbent, soft to touch and entirely free from gritty particles.

One ingredient found in some of these powders has been questioned. This is an anti-bacterial substance. The skin normally is inhabited by a number of bacteria but the normal healthy child has sufficient defense to prevent infection by these organisms.

No one as yet proved that anti-septic applied to the normal skin in baby powders effectively improves the general health and welfare of the child. These substances present the possibility of sensitization resulting in a skin condition. If a skin condition does show up, it is wise to consult the physician. Only under his supervision should any preparation be applied to the affected area.

Baby powders are intended to make the child feel more comfortable and to help prevent skin rashes that arise from or are aggravated by excess moisture. One aid in avoiding diaper rash is thorough washing and drying of the skin after each diaper change, followed by powdering to absorb any remaining moisture. This is undoubtedly one of the most common uses for this product. When skin is excessively dry, oil instead of powder should be used.

The careful mother will not allow her baby to play with the powder container. There is the possibility that it may be open and that the powder may get into the baby's face and thus be drawn into his lungs. Some cases of pneumonia have been reported as a result.

POTATO TROUBLE — The Federal Trade Commission has ordered S. S. Sawyer, Inc., Hastings, to stop practices which they say are in violation of the brokerage section of the Clayton Act in the sale of potatoes and other vegetables. The Commission has directed the company to discontinue paying brokerage fees or commissions, or any compensation, to direct buyers or to agents, representatives or other intermediaries to the control of such buyers.

HOSPITAL PROGRESS — Biggest job ahead of Congressman Billy Matthews at the moment is to make sure that the new 1000 bed veterans' neuro-psychiatric hospital will be located in Gainesville.

ville. To this end he has arranged for a special hearing on October 30 with the Veterans Administration and the Director of the Budget. At the hearing, much factual information and argument will be presented by the Congressman. Others from Gainesville are expected to attend.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE LEADERS — Florida has long been a stronghold for Chamber of Commerce activity. Recognition of leadership in this field came from the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, with headquarters in Washington, when they made the following committee appointments to outstanding Florida personalities: Earl O. Shreve, Ft. Lauderdale, National Chairman and Director of the Committee on Government Expenditures and the U. S. Section of the U. S. - Canada Committee; Horace C. Avery, Jacksonville, Domestic Distribution; Harold Cole, Jacksonville, State Chamber of Commerce Advisory; William S. Johnson, Jacksonville, National Defense; Arthur Milam, Jacksonville, Foreign Policy and State Chamber of Commerce Advisory; G. T. Baker, Miami, Transportation and Communication Department; Walter Hays, Orlando, Insurance Department; James Tan-ham, Sarasota, Labor Relations Department and Foreign Policy; Carl D. Brorein, Tampa, Transportation and Commerce Department; R. A. Leggett, Tampa, Foreign Commerce.

WEATHER EXPERT — Senator Sinthors is a member of the famous Senate "rain making committee" set up to study scientific developments in the field of weather modification. For months he has listened to scientists testify about the weather. Then he wound up in the middle of the big wind that hit Panama City — and last week found himself in the path of the storm that struck the lower west coast. Counting the scientists, the Senator certainly has had his share of wind and weather lately.

Soil Conservation News

By SAM POLSTON

U. S. Soil Conservation Service

Rains are still hampering improved pasture and water control work in most ranches. Pastures are water-logged and cattle losing weight prematurely. Several co-operators of the Highlands Soil Conservation District, however, are preparing to plant winter clover to help bridge the gap in grazing that is so commonly known to the rancher.

Among the ones preparing to plant clover this fall is Jim Hargrove, August Tobler, R. J. Rhyms, Martin Miller, Ivey Futch and Mackie Co., Durranche Ranch and E. W. Hartt along with the others who planted clover in previous years are now planning their fall fertilization as the re-seeded clover will be coming very shortly now. In most cases where water has stood only for short duration on fields where clover re-seeded itself last spring a good stand of clover can be expected this fall without replanting as clover has hard seed that flooding will not damage. The main fertilizer being used on old stands of clover is 0-12-12 or its equivalent, at the rate of 500 to 600 pounds per acre and on new plantings a 4-12-12 at the rate of 500-600 pounds per acre with minor elements added. The main variety of clover being planted is Louisiana White Dutch with some plantings having hubam in mixture with the white.

Planting Pensacola Bahia grass this week were Cecil Collins and Wes Davis. M. C. Dopler is preparing about 100 acres of land that will be planted to Pensacola Bahia later.

Seventh-day Adventist Church
"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Proverbs 22:6)

One of the worst mistakes that could be made is the giving to a child of everything that his heart desires. There will come a point some day when you will not be able to give him all that he has learned to expect and then you will have a perilous situation on your hands. There is no better time to learn the lesson that in this life one cannot have everything that one desires than in childhood. People that haven't learned that lesson early have no regard for the property or rights of others and ride rough-shod over all that comes in contact with them. Some of course turn to taking that which is not theirs rather than to be deprived of anything that they want.

Much could be said about the importance of setting the right example before our children. A conductor came through the train and took the ticket of a mother who was accompanied by her small son. The conductor politely asked, "Is your child under five, Madam?" "Yes, he is," was her reply. But after the conductor had gone on, the boy was heard to say, "But mother, I am past six." She reprimanded him sharply and even accompanied it with a slap. When children are taught to lie and to steal we must not be surprised at which path they choose when they grow up.

There are little eyes upon you, and they're watching night and day; There are little ears that quickly take in every word you say; There are little hands all eager To do everything you do, And a little boy who's dreaming Of the day he'll be like you. You're the little fellow's idol, You're the wisest of the wise; In his little mind about you No suspicions ever rise; He believes in you devoutly, Holds that all you say and do, He will say and do in your way. When he's grown up just like you.

There's a wide-eyed little fellow Who believes you're always right, And his ears are always open, And he watches day and night. You are setting an example Every day in all you do, For the little boy who's waiting To grow up to be like you.

"One great reason why there is so much evil in the world today is that parents occupy their minds with other things to the exclusion of the work that is all-important, — the task of patiently and kindly teaching their children the way of the Lord. . . . Before visitors, before every other consideration, your children should come first. . . . This is your day of trust, your day of responsibility and opportunity. Soon will come your day of reckoning. Take up your work with earnest prayer and faithful endeavor. . . . Let Christ find you his helping hand to carry out His purposes. By prayer you may gain an experience that will make your ministry for your children a perfect success."

May God help us to faithfully discharge the responsibility that He has given us. May we train up these children of ours rightly, calling upon Him day by day to give us the wisdom that we need for the task. And then may our faithful efforts be rewarded by sons and daughters that love God and give themselves to Him at an early age to be used where He sees fit in His vineyard. This is my prayer today in His name. (The End)

ACTING GOVERNOR JOHNS ON MUTUAL NOV. 2

WINTER HAVEN — Radio listeners from coast to coast and in Canada will be told of the winter vacation advantages, with a coincidental plug for Florida citrus fruits when Acting Governor Charley Johns speaks over the 555-station network of the Mutual Broadcasting System from Winter Haven on a program to be broadcast at 11 a. m. (EST) Nov. 2.

This program will be tape recorded next Monday (Oct. 26) to mark the opening of the six-months stay here of Tom Moore's "Ladies Fair" show, to be broadcast on the network the following Monday.

Winter Haven is preparing a gala welcome for the Tom Moore show and the acting governor who will be the guest of honor on the opening show. This will be Johns' first major radio appearance since taking over the office following the death of Governor Dan McCarthy, and his second important address in Winter Haven in three weeks. He was here last for the conference of the Florida association of County Commissioners early in the month.

In 1940 tobacco average harvested in Florida was estimated at 732,000; in 1952, 637,000. Return to growers was $484,000 in 1940 and $1,306,000 in 1952.

"Green Thumb" People Are Blest

Successful gardeners are said to have "green thumbs" and it probably has never occurred to many of them, nor to anybody else, why a thumb should be given credit for causing plants to grow, even when it is "green."

For the first time we have seen an explanation for the term, and have an idea that others will be interested in learning it. It seems that John T. Mains, vice president of the Union Fork and Hoe Co., an Ohio firm, became curious enough about the origin of "green thumb" to look it up.

The story, he found, dates back to the old friars of the Middle Ages, where the good brothers in a monastery divided their time between their prayers and the field, where they grew all their own food.

"As in most communal projects," Mr. Mains wrote, "one brother was more proficient than the others — his crops grew better, and produced more. After working among his plants all day, his hands became soiled and stained with the color of the green plants. The other friars soon referred to him as 'The brother with the green thumb.'"

Of course, a person who has "luck" making plants grow is a person who knows how to plant a seed and the patience and intelligence to give it the right care. And yet there still is something uncanny about how one person never fails to get anything he plants to grow and flourish, while another "brother" as certainly fails. People endowed, if that's the name for it, with "green thumbs" surely must have a special gift from the gods.

FARM BUREAU SUGGESTS

DAN MCCARTY HALL.

WINTER PARK. The new agricultural building at the University of Florida should be named "Dan McCarty Hall," officers of the Florida Farm Bureau voted here this week.

State Directors of the statewide farm group, meeting in quarterly session, unanimously decided to urge the State Board of Control honor the late governor by choosing his name for the building. The group pointed out that Dan McCarty is the only Governor to graduate from the state's Agricultural College.

WASHINGTON "SMALL BUSINESS"

B. C. WILSON HARDER

A step toward preservation of American free enterprise was presidential signature of the Small Business Act. This sets up the Small Business Administration empowered to make loans to independent business.

The measure, supported by independent business leaders, was passed through Congress by Senator Edward J. Thye, Minn., chairman of the Senate Small Business Committee, and Rep. Wm. S. Hill, chairman of the House Small Business Committee.

By October, the Small Business Administration should be operating, making loans to small business needing development funds not available elsewhere.

In this new agency, the small business loan functions of the existing RFC, and the Small Defense Plants Corporation function to help small plants get a fair share of the defense work contracts, have been combined.

SBA, although authorized by law to have a maximum of $275,000,000 outstanding in business loans at one time, is opening shop with $55,000,000.

While Congress realized need for assistance to small business, it is waiting to see success of SBA operation before allocating the entire legal limit of funds.

Therefore, the success of SBA will depend to a great extent on how actively small businessmen participate in the development of this new agency.

The need for a source of credit for small business was well expressed by National Federation of Independent Business.

Established during Congressional hearings and study.

Several facts were considered.

Among them was the fact that under tax laws, it is practically impossible for a business to lay aside enough reserves for expansion by the time honest method of setting aside a part of earnings. Usually, a small business gets to a point whereby it remains static, must sell out to a big company or perish.

While many private bankers would like to make more loans to independent business, they are handicapped by federal and local banking laws.

Administrator W. D. Mitchell announces he will work toward the eventual goal of small business loans being underwritten by private capital.

There is precedent.

Under FBA home financing, private capital is employed, with government insurance. The Federal Land Bank system, once heavily financed by the government, has become independent of government finance, and meets needs of farmers to an extent which laws do not permit conventional banks to go.

It is much too early to predict what direction the SBA will take. The important point is that government has recognized that first of all small business is vital to the nation; secondly that small business has finance problems requiring under present conditions, special attention beyond legal limitations of private banks.

Therefore, as with so many plans for progress set up in the frame work of a democracy, the success or failure of SBA will depend largely upon the extent to which individual businessmen work for its success.

Prior to this assignment Turner served as chaplain for the Division Artillery. For outstanding performance of duty ministering to the wounded and dying under heavy enemy fire, Chaplain Turner was awarded the Bronze Star.

Chaplain Turner has been written up in several periodicals because of a card he devised. Greeting soldiers long have been told to "see the Chaplain and get him to punch your card." So Turner listed 20 complaints common in the Army—like "no furlough," "KP duty," "overworked," and had these printed on pocket size cards with matching Bible references. Since then he has distributed more than 100,000 cards, and still gets requests for them.

He spent 33 months in service during World War II. He has now a doctorate in religious education, and is the author of a thesis now being used in several leading seminaries in specialized courses of study for prospective chaplains.

A lively discussion followed Chaplain Herman C. Ray's introduction to the topic of the evening, "The Pastor Visits the Sick." He emphasized how the pastor will recognize the spiritual, mental, and physical needs of his parishioners in times of sickness, and will make available to them all the resources at his command.

Each minister present presented some suggestions to the thought of how the pastor may be most helpful in this phase of his ministry.

Dr. C. H. Bolton, president of the Avon Park Ministerial Association, acting chairman of the meeting, suggested to the group the possibility of combined meetings of the three associations represented. The idea was well received by those present, and it is hoped that such a plan may be worked out.

Women Of The Moose Hold Successful Pre-Christmas Party

A very successful and entertaining party was held Saturday night at the Moose Club, by the Women of the Moose. This is an annual affair held by the ladies each year to raise funds for the children's Christmas party at Mooseheart, Illinois.

The hall was beautifully decorated by the ladies with the help of a few members of the lodge. Those attending brought presents to be placed on the lighted Christmas tree, and these in turn were sold to those present for 25 cents each. This money went to swell the fund along with the money raised from the chicken dinner served by the ladies. Close to $80.00 was raised.

The main feature of the entertainment was a "Bill Billy Wedding" put on by members of the organization. The wedding party was complete from the absent minded ring bearer to the grandpa with the shotgun. Even the beautifully gowned "wench" from the city was there to object to the marriage, but that did not stop the wedding of the giggling groom and the six-foot bride.

Mrs. Mary Pollock, properly groomed in plug hat, morning coat and striped trousers, acted as the "parson" and introduced all guests as they arrived for the wedding. It was a hilarious affair and greatly enjoyed by all present.

How Community Development Can Help Your City

C. E. WRIGHT
Public Works Magazine

During the past two years the town of Dunellon, Fla., (population about 1100) has served as a guinea pig in a community development program sponsored by the Florida Power Corp., St. Petersburg. Dunellon's problem was this: For more than a decade it had barely held its own in all-year population despite the fact that Florida as a whole has gained 46 percent and cities such as Miami, Fort Lauderdale, St. Petersburg and some others had almost doubled in size. Dunellon's location is not unfavorable; it is a short distance from the Gulf of Mexico; is surrounded by lakes and rivers; is six miles from Rainbow Springs, one of Florida's famous attractions, which is visited by hundreds of thousands every year; and is in the heart of a phosphate and lime rock mining area.

But, despite all these advantages, Dunellon was not growing; it was actually slipping. In 1951 the Dunellon folks decided to see what could be done about it. They called in the Florida Power Corp. which shortly before had instituted a community development department, headed by Robert H. Giedd, manager, and Mark Wheeler, assistant. The Florida Power Corp. is one of several power companies throughout the South that have been assisting local communities in solving their problems of town and city planning during recent years.

Although Dunellon was the first town selected by Florida Power Corp. in its community development program, others have followed in rapid succession. These include Trenton, Mayo, Mascotte, Groveland, Jasper, Clermont, Montverde, Minneola, Wildwood and Brooksville. All are small communities located in the western and northern sections of the state.

Here is how the plan works in a town such as Dunellon: The Florida Power Corp. holds a series of clinics, usually ten or a dozen, with various groups of the townspeople, who are told how to go about starting a program of community development. By the time these clinics are concluded at least 15 or 20 per cent of the townspeople have attended and have expressed their views by card poll as to what the town needs most. Responsibility for arranging these clinics and the resultant programs is placed in the hands of some civic organizations such as the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Lions Club or Kiwanis.

"Experience has proven," says the Florida Power Corp., "that the best results are obtained from these clinics through the formation of a local general improvement committee. This should be under the direction of an outstanding citizen whose ability to coordinate the leaders of business, civic and other groups is recognized by all classes of citizens. There are many people willing to work for a better community who will respond to good leadership, and as many of these as possible should be assigned to the various committees. The number of committees will be determined by the number of projects undertaken. People are willing to work for a better home town when asked to do so."

Subjects covered in the clinics include beautification, recreational facilities, hospital buildings, school improvements, industrial development, water supply improvement, street and sidewalk betterments, tourist attractions and accommodations, housing development, municipal service improvements, postal service, parking and traffic, planning and zoning, a farmers market, telephone facilities, a public library, fire fighting facilities and advertising the community.

The first part of the program is to arouse a community spirit. Next is to find out from the citizens themselves what the town needs most. In some towns the suggested improvements go beyond the amount of money available in the municipal treasury, but money has been raised by barbecues, bingo games and other such activities, many of which are sponsored by the women.

Dunellon, for example, during the past year has succeeded in getting these things done: A city-owned lot bordering on the Blue River was cleared. A seawall was built and the area filled with white sand to make a nice bathing area. For the colored residents another beach was built, a road put in and a summer recreational program inaugurated. An intensive "clean up and paint up" campaign was instituted. Street parkways and vacant lots are now kept clean. Beautification work is still going on throughout the town. A trailer park was built on city-owned property with capacity for 56 trailers and a fishing dock was built. New street lights were added; the City Hall was renovated; a new fire truck was purchased; roads and streets were improved; sidewalks laid; and welcome signs erected. A new chamber of commerce was organized, and its first act was to set aside $500 for advertising. With one program completed, Dunellon set out upon another one, the objectives of which are a new public library; a cafeteria for a new colored school; the straightening of US Highway 41 through the center of town; additional housing facilities; erection of street markers; and beautification of the approaches to the town.

FLORIDA FARMERS IMPROVING LAND AND BUILDINGS ON LOANS

Florida farmers borrowed a total of $30,398,000 last year on loans and buildings for general farm improvement and purchase of new lands.

These farm borrowings, as shown in recorded mortgage data, mark the continuing agricultural development of the state. The Florida State Chamber of Commerce pointed out yesterday. The 1952 Florida dollar total was 8 per cent over 1951, up 40 per cent from 1950 and virtually double the 1946 figure.

Various features of farm mortgages in Florida are brought out in this week's business review of the State Chamber's research and industrial division. There were 6,171 farm mortgages recorded in the state last year by all lenders. While this total is slightly below 1951, the average size of last year's mortgages, $4,925, is the highest on record. The national average was $5,631.

In Florida, individuals loaned the most money to farmers, 34 per cent of last year's total. Commercial banks loaned 17 per cent; federal land banks 10 per cent; insurance companies 8 per cent; and 31 per cent was secured from other types of lenders.

Mortgages of more than $100,000 and transactions entered into prior to 1952 are not included in these figures.

MOST U. S. FAMILIES DRINK ORANGE JUICE. SURVEY SHOWS

TAMPA, Fla. — Orange juice is the nation's favorite "at home" juice drink, with more than one-half of U. S. housewives now serving it to their families, a nationwide market survey by American Can Company indicated yesterday.

Fifty-seven of every 100 housewives interviewed in a survey of fruit and vegetable juices consumption in urban American homes reported they served orange juice to their families, C. J. Heintz, district sales manager of the can-making firm, reported. Eleven others said they served grapefruit and other citrus juices — the "other" being principally frozen lemon juice for lemonade, he added.

"Frozen orange juice continues to dominate the juices picture," Heintz continued. "A 1952 study showed it had replaced fresh orange juice for the first time and the recent survey reveals that it further increased its gains, largely at the expense of home-squeezed juice."

"Frozen orange concentrate represents 27 per cent of the total servings today with home-squeezed oranges next at 17, and canned standard orange juice third at 13 per cent. This compares with 23 per cent for fresh orange juice in 1950, 13 for frozen, and 14 for the standard juice."

With the exception of frozen lemon juice, most of the canned standard and frozen concentrate citrus juices served in U. S. homes are Florida-produced.

Social Security Agent Here Nov. 10

A social security representative makes regular visits to Avon Park every other Tuesday at 9:30 a. m., according to W. E. Arnold, Manager of the Lakeland social security office. This representative is at the City Hall beginning November 10, 1953.

He will assist anyone requiring a social security account number card, or wishing to file a claim for old-age and survivors insurance payments, or seeking general information concerning the program.

Arnold mentioned one of the recent amendments in the social security law — payments to beneficiaries age 75 or over. He explained that a beneficiary age 75 or over may receive payments regardless of the amount of his earnings, either as an employee or as a self-employed individual.

Arnold urged all persons age 75 or over, who are not now receiving old-age insurance benefits and who have worked as an employee on a job covered by social security for not less than a year and a half, or who have been self-employed under social security for not less than a year and a half beginning 1951, to get in touch with a representative of his office.

Arnold said that it is important that all persons meeting these requirements learn about their rights under social security — delay may mean loss of money.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

TALLAHASSEE — Brailey Odham of Sanford will run for Governor next spring because he believes a job can be done for better government in Florida even in the abbreviated two-year term that runs until January of 1957.

His entry makes virtually certain a race among at least three major contenders — always provided, of course, the Supreme court rules that Acting Governor Charles E. Johns is eligible to run for the unexpired term of the late Governor Dan McCarty.

John McCarty is regarded as the sure candidate of the McCarty forces to fill out the term of his late brother.

Odham can be expected to stress two issues in his campaign. One he calls "governmental realignment" and involves such reforms as clarification of the succession to the governorship and the transfer of auditing authority from the executive to the legislative branch of government.

The other will be a renewal of his long fight — started as a legislator and continued in his 1952 race for Governor — against illegal gambling and against the influence of dog tracks on government. It was Odham who first proposed, for example, that possession of a federal gambling stamp be considered prima facie evidence of state lottery law violation.

Odham unquestionably has found two themes that will strike popular chords. Nobody is happy about the present confused gubernatorial succession, not even Acting Governor Johns who presumably is the beneficiary of the situation. The confusion makes it difficult for Johns, and everybody else involved, to make any plans for the future. Placing the control of auditing under the Legislature instead of the Governor long has been a favorite project of governmental reformers. Under the present system, the Governor appoints the head of the auditing department and the department audits agencies directly under the Governor's control. Only in recent years have the audits of such agencies even been made public.

Odham talked to several former Governors to determine whether they believed a chief executive could put a constructive program into effect in two years. Since it has not been determined whether the winner of the two-year term can succeed himself, Odham was reluctant to Ann next spring if it might mean he would be compelled to leave a half-finished program behind him.

The ex-Governors to whom Odham talked were unanimous in saying the bulk of their most important achievements came during their first two years in office. There was some disagreement on why this should be true, however. Some former Governors said candidly that a chief executive's influence, and with it his ability to get things done, wanes rapidly after all patronage is given out early in an administration.

Odham himself believes, however, that a Governor is most effective in his first two years because the platform on which he was elected is fresh in the minds of the people. As an example, he cites the fact that both he and the late Governor McCarty campaigned in 1952 for an increased tax on dog tracks. Since Governor McCarty could say with convincing logic that the 1953 Legislature had a mandate from the people to impose such a levy, A longer elapsed time after the election might have diminished the validity of such a mandate, Odham believes.

In addition to analyzing what kind of program could be carried out in the short two-year term, Odham and his friends also weighed the political realities of the situation.

They reasoned that if Odham let the spring election go by default to await 1956, he would run the risk of having to face an entrenched incumbent Governor at that time in the event the Supreme court ruled next spring's primary winner eligible to succeed himself. But even if the court ruled the other way, the Odham strategists figured, the incumbent Governor in 1956 still would be in position to throw administration influence against Odham. (Odham found in 1952 that an administration's opposition can be a material factor).

The principal Odham advisers concede that John McCarty has the advantage of a name that is thoroughly familiar to the state's voters. But they insist that John's lack of a strong public record on his own account will hurt him badly over the long pull. There was some relief in the Odham camp when they learned that State Senator LeRoy Collins has withdrawn his name from consideration as the candidate of the McCarty group. These persons felt that while Collins' name is less familiar to the voters than is that of McCarty, he does have the strong public record which John does not.

The Odham campaign organization which finished fast after a slow start and brought Odham to the runner-up spot in 1952 is believed to be substantially intact. However, the personal circumstances of some key supporters have changed since that time and for this reason they may assume different roles in the coming effort.

In addition to the big vote he got in 1952, Odham is understood to have many pledges from people who told him they were committed to McCarty at that time but would support him in his next race.

Now that Senator Collins has definitely withdrawn, two other major potential candidates remain. They are State Comptroller C. M. Gay, still being strongly urged to run, and State Representative Robert L. Floyd of Miami.

Floyd is currently serving as chairman of a November 8 dinner given by the Greater or Miami Heart Association for the Dan McCarty Memorial Fund. He is known to feel that so long as he is serving in this capacity it would be improper for him to make a political announcement of any nature. However, it's considered likely that he will make up his mind before December 1.

What two trees have been responsible for bringing millions of dollars into Florida?

They are the pine, a native tree, and the orange, which was brought to the Sunshine State by the Spanish settlers. Both have contributed materially to the wealth of this state.

Without these two trees, the economy not only of Florida but of the entire country would be crippled: for this state furnishes lumber, turpentine, and pulpwood for paper-making, and it supplies too the oranges, juice, and frozen concentrate so essential to the health of the nation.

In fact, Florida would be a bare and meager state indeed without its trees, according to Erdman West and Lillian E. Arnold, authors of the book, "The Native Trees of Florida," which was released by the University of Florida Press.

Their book, now in its fifth printing, deals extensively with all the trees growing in this state: the lumber trees, the fruit and nut trees, the beautiful palms that give the state much of its tropical splendor, and the stately old oaks whose gnarled trunks have marked in a dignified manner the passage of decades.

For instance, the book thoroughly covers the oak of which there are many species in Florida. Some of them are the white bluff, Chapman, laurel, Spanish turkey, bluish, overcup, blackjack, chinquapin, myrtle, water, swamp, chestnut, holly, shumard, live, dwarf post, and sand live oaks.

In similar manner the book classifies, discusses, and provides drawings of all the trees growing in Florida. "The Native Trees of Florida" has its place on the bookshelves of school and municipal libraries and on the shelf too of the person who is interested in the flora of this state.

WHERE ARE THE DEAD?

Death is the universal enemy of mankind. Man was not created to die and perish. Thousands throughout the ages have asked, "Where are the dead?" "Did the Patriarch Job? If a man should he live again?" Christ answered that question for all time by His power manifested in His resurrection. However, there are many questions still raised in our minds, such as: Where does man go at death? Will there be a literal resurrection of the body? Where and how is he being judged now? Are there such places as purgatory and Purgantia? Are people conscious after death? If so, can they communicate with living friends and relatives? The world and the church are filled with tales touching on this question. In God's inspired book, the Bible, all these questions are clearly answered. This one lesson is one course of 24 free Bible lessons will be invaluable to you. The basis of grammar is being destroyed by those English teachers who are maintaining that intuition, rather than rules of grammar, should be the guiding principle in teaching the English language.

That contention is made in a book, "Who Killed Grammar?" by Dr. Harry R. Warfel, now in Europe on Fulbright leave from the English Department of the University of Florida. The book was published by the University of Florida Press.

This intuitive teaching method is largely that of certain members of the National Council of Teachers of English, according to Dr. Warfel. And slapping these so-called "moderns" squarely in the face, he contends that mere opinion, without any standard or guidance, never can improve grammar.

In his book, the author presents what he believes to be the fundamental principles of usage study, and too he provides suggestions for the formulation of a proper philosophy for the writing of a new grammar.

Dr. Warfel's book already has raised much comment - and some ire - among his fellow teachers of English. But he has given new direction and greater force to what many of the "old-fashioned" English teachers have been maintaining for years.

But in his work, which is controversial in a professional sense, Dr. Warfel brings an enthusiasm to the teaching of grammar - an enthusiasm that may offset in large degree the dry, tome-like pedagogy that probably is responsible in the first place for the intuitive school.

"Who Killed Grammar?" is a book for the high-school English teacher, the town and school library reader, the newspaperman, and the lover of the English language.

Some technical workers feel that increased use of nitrogen made possible by proper application of trace elements, has done more to increase productivity of Florida citrus soils than any other contribution.

Give Pedestrian A Brake

TALLAHASSEE - November is regarded as the month to save the pedestrian from mishap. It isn't the month in which the motorist is expected to have free range to see how many of them he can hit.

"Yes, the motorist has a responsibility to the pedestrian," says Comdr. H. S. Kirkman of the State Highway Patrol. While the walker is expected to exercise judgment in his activities, "the motorist is also supposed to use extreme caution in self-discipline to insure utmost safety for the pedestrian."

Kirkman said that there is hardly anyone who can expect a pedestrian to "stand a Chinaman's chance" against even the smallest auto, and reminded that the laws deal severely with those who fail to give the pedestrian his rights.

Kirkman emphasized several factors in relation to the driver-pedestrian cause:

"Drivers must observe safety rules for the benefit of the walkers, or they will be dealt with death for the pedestrian."

"Drivers who ignore cross walks on busy streets are a menace to society and almost sure death for the pedestrian."

"Don't blow your horn and scare the wits out of a slow poke who might take a little longer to get across the street at designated places."

"Don't be a traffic light jumper, one of those brainless babbles who insists on taking off in a cloud of unnecessary hurry as the traffic light starts to change."

"There is a lot of ways that we can save the lives of our pedestrians," declared Kirkman, "but one of them certainly isn't disregarding his rights."

Estimates for Florida citrus shipments are: Early oranges 63,000,000 Valencia oranges, 34,000,000 for a total of 77,000,000 boxes. Seedless Grapefruit 19,000,000, other grapefruit 18,500,000 for a total of 37,500,000 boxes. Temple oranges 2,000,000 boxes and tangerines 5,000,000 boxes, reports Citraviews, published by the American Fruit Growers.

U. S. farmers are raising 8 percent fewer turkeys this year than in 1952, according to the Florida Farm Bureau, which adds that about 45% of the total was sold before November 1, compared with 42% last year.

It comes as a surprise to many, even Christians, to learn that health and well being have any effect upon Christian living. An individual's usefulness depends largely upon his ability to have full use of his physical and mental capabilities. When one is deprived of these, his ability to assimilate and put to use the principles of Christ is impaired.

The apostle John recognized this relationship, when he wrote to his much-loved friend and fellow Christian, Gaius, as recorded in I John 2. He said, "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth." As far as lies within the power of man, he is admonished to take care of his physical health just as carefully as he does his spiritual health.

The term health must include every phase of life. Some have a perfectly balanced meal from the dietitian's standpoint, yet suffer because his emotional life greatly hinders the digestive functions.

The stomach is the sounding board of the emotions. It quickly reflects the heartaches and disappointments of life. With any area of human experience suffers, the stomach is quick to weep in sympathy. How wonderful the promise of Jesus, "Come unto Me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

The nerves are calm, the spirit is at rest, the dark path is lighted as we accept this promise of our own when difficulties weigh heavily upon us. When we are sick the temptations of life, with added force. Then especially we must come into close fellowship with Him who healed the sick and went about doing good. He is just as much interested in our physical health as He is in our spiritual health. The two are inseparable. The body, mind, and spirit are all expressions of life. To neglect any is to do violence to all. A symmetrical development of man's entire capacity is the only thing that will produce successful living.

If life is a unity, then the physician, the minister, and the educator must join hands in the great task of man's redemption. A narrow, compartmental emphasis on the part of any one of these professions stands in opposition to the nature of life and the Christian emphasis.

DISASTER AREA — Just what did it mean to Florida Farmers when the President last week named 31 counties in the state as a "disaster area"? Of course, this action is supposed to help the farmer — and it will. But, how much will it help the farmer and how does he go about getting his hands on some of this help? Help meaning money?

Getting the answers to those questions wasn't easy. We listened to several hours of explanation from a dozen different government officials. The full and complete answers are too complicated to be told in one short article. But, we do list here the principal ways that Florida farmers can be helped by this Presidential action.

FIRST, FEEDING ASSISTANCE — Under the "drought feed program" (also good for floods) the Agriculture Department can sell feed to farmers at greatly reduced prices. A Department official explained it this way, "Under this program, the Government makes available feed, grain and cotton seed meal, at below-market prices to those farmers who cannot afford to pay market prices for same and still expect to stay in business." Some times, he said, the feeds can be bought for as little as one-half the market price. He also said this help is not available to farmers who have plenty of money. In order to get in on this plan, the farmer must go to the local Production Marketing Administration office (the county agent will know where this is) and receive a certificate permitting him to buy a certain amount of this bargain-price feed. He pays the PMA for the feed and picks it up at a feed store which has a Government contract to pass it out. The feed dealer, according to the Department of Agriculture, doesn't make any profit on this deal, but he is paid a handling charge.

SECOND, ECONOMIC DISASTER LOANS — Special loans can be made to farmers under Public Law 875. These loans can be made by the Farmers Home Administration in counties designated by the Secretary of Agriculture. The secretary decides where these loans can be made on a basis of the local money situation. Counties will be named only where other money is not available to the farmers. Money borrowed under this program can be used to buy feed under the "drought feed program" if that program is operating within the farmer's county. The place to apply for this type loan is the local Farmers' Home Administration. (The county agent will know the address of your nearest office.)

THIRD, SPECIAL LIVESTOCK LOANS — Another emergency type loan available to Florida farmers is the Special Livestock Loan. Farmers who raise cattle, sheep or goats have been able to get this kind of loan since the last session of Congress. These loans have nothing to do with the disaster in Florida, but because of it, many farmers will need to borrow under this law. This money can be used for seed, feed, fencing, planting, repair of pasture and many other purposes — including stock feed sold under the "drought feed program." Again, the county agent can give you more information about this plan.

HOW IT IS DONE — The first appraisal of the need was made by Senator Smathers in a lengthy telegraphic report to the President. Later, Governor Johns filed a formal request with the President asking that Florida be declared a disaster area. He also asked each member of the Florida delegation to push for a quick decision.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

TALLAHASSEE — Reports that three South Florida men may enter the race for the 1957 House Speakership could result in formation of a North Florida coalition determined to elect a man from that section.

Until the Homecoming weekend at Gainesville, the only names that had been mentioned for the top House post in 1957 were those of such North Florida men as Representatives Doyle E. Conner of Starke, Ferrin C. Campbell of Crestview, W. Lacy Mahon of Jacksonville, J. Kenneth Ballinger of Tallahassee and E. B. McFarland of Havana.

(Not since former Representative Thomas D. Beasley of DeFuniak Springs presided over the 1947 House as a Speaker been elected from outside peninsular Florida. Since the 1953 Speaker-designate, Representative Thomas E. (Ted) David is from Hollywood, North Florida men argue that their section has not provided a Speaker in 10 years.)

The three South Florida men whose names were mentioned in Gainesville are Representatives Henry W. Land of Apopka, George S. Okell of Miami and A. Roy Surles of Lakeland.

Another major development in the 1957 Speakership race came when McFarland, previously regarded as one of the leading candidates in terms of written pledges of support, suddenly withdrew. McFarland's friends said they thought that as general manager of a big mercantile store in Havana, he was reluctant to spend the time traveling which now seems necessary to be elected Speaker.

Much of the campaigning for the '57 Speakership occurred at a Saturday night steak dinner which Representative J. Emory (Red) Cross and Mrs. Cross gave for some 40 legislative couples in their 70-year-old, six bedroom home in the picturesque little town of Melrose.

The Cross home, located among some of Florida's earliest citrus groves on the shores of vast Lake Santa Fe, proved a perfect setting for the series of informal political talks which naturally take place these days whenever two or more politicians are gathered together.

(Few of the legislators present had visited Melrose prior to the starter signaled the beginning of each race by swinging a bandanna.)

Cross enlisted the party by playing a joke on the candidates for Speaker. He announced that an informal poll would be taken during the evening to determine sentiment. Then he plotted with all the wives present to vote for Representative Prentice P. Pruitt of Monticello, not a candidate, and for all other members to vote for themselves. This of course left each of the Speaker aspirants present with only one vote — his own.

The Cross party proved so popular that it could become a traditional social feature of the Homecoming weekend, along with the buffet given annually on Saturday morning by Senator and Mrs. W. A. Shands and the dinner in the Country Club Saturday night. Jim Butler, Gainesville businessman and former mayor, is host for the Saturday night gatherings.

Gainesville's hospitality at Homecoming, typified by the Shands, Cross and Butler parties, has paid dividends in legislative good will over the years. This has helped the Alachua county delegation mightily, for example, in its fight to obtain such projects as a medical school for the University of Florida.

Acting Governor Charley E. Johns of Starke, who made relatively few public appearances during the week end, was one of a number of leading political figures who attended the Butler party, then moved on to the gathering at Melrose.

Senator B. C. Pearce of East Palatka served as toastmaster at the Country Club, calling on such veteran politicians as Senator S. D. Clarke of Monticello and former Representative Alex MacWilliam of Vero Beach.

MacWilliam, who retired to private life after 35 years of continuous public service, told the assemblage that he had learned there was nothing quite so dead as an "ex" public official.

"But public service offers two rewards that make it all worth while," MacWilliam continued. "One is that the friendships formed during the heat of battle at Tallahassee seem to be more enduring than any others. The other reward is the satisfaction of feeling that you have helped, even if only in a small way, to assist your community and your state to grow and prosper."

Political observers attending the John Marshall Bar Association's skit were surprised at the manner in which the statewide crowd of several hundred persons reacted to the lampooning of political leaders and others.

Much of the humor in the skits was quite broad and easy to follow. But even when the jokes became more subtle, the crowd continued to react and laugh heartily. This was interpreted as meaning that the Florida public is much better informed about the inside of political situations in Tallahassee and Washington than once would have been the case.

Both the state's U. S. senators, a Supreme court justice, and the president of the University received rather rough treatment, as did the various gubernatorial candidates. Conservation Supervisor Charlie W. Bevis and Motor Vehicle Commissioner E. V. Fisher.

Former Governor John W. Martin, who seldom leaves his home town of Jacksonville these days, was one of a number of ex-Governors on hand for Homecoming. Others included Fuller Warren, Millard F. Caldwell, Doyle E. Carlton and Spessard L. Holland (now U. S. Senator).

Governor Martin, whose administration (1925-29) was noted for a Herculean task of road building that was the start of getting Florida out of the sand and mud and onto paved highways, now is receiver for the Florida East Coast Railway. There was a swirl of activity about each of the former chief executives as friends of yesterday greeted them and reminisced. Governor Caldwell, accompanied by the always benign Mrs. Caldwell, seemed particularly to enjoy the outing, however. He appeared to shake more hands, exchange more pleasantries, than any of the potential candidates there.

23,732,072 ORANGE TREES IN STATE

Citrus is Florida's most important source of agricultural income, and oranges the chief contributor to that income. Most recent figures available to Florida Grover and Rancher show the estimated number of orange trees in the state as 23,732,072, of which 57 percent are in full production. The same tree census gives 7,724,576 grapefruit trees of which 87 percent are in full production; and there are some 1,545,230 tangerine trees with 90 percent yielding marketable fruit.

Most of the state's limes are raised in Dade County and the trees number 6,500. Expansion seems logical, Marvin H. Walker, general manager of Florida Citrus Canning Cooperative says; but he advises it be "comparatively slow" because the grower must keep in contact with research and all having to do with growing, processing and marketing. Frozen lime concentrate is looked upon as a source of increasing return.

Present value of the Florida State University physical plant at Tallahassee is $25,000,000.

School of BIBLE PROPHECY

THIS CRISIS YEAR AND GOD'S SOLUTION

Events in our world are rapidly moving on to a crisis. Men of wisdom and understanding are warning and repeating the crisis of the ages is just before us. Many discerning minds foresee the storm as it was brewing during the past decade. We quote:

"Over Europe and Asia now the night of freedom is falling. The lights of two thousand years are going out, and the darkness is loud with rumbling guns, the booming prayers of the pure of the tribes of darkness." Basil Fitzgerald, in "American," 1940.

Thousands of years ago the prophets of God wrote down in the Bible a clear statement of this crisis hour of history. Jeremiah wrote thus two thousand five hundred years ago: "O my heart, my heart! O how I tremble! My soul is mourning! I cannot hold my peace, for I hear the noise of trumpets and the battle cry. Cry upon wall—the whole country is down, our tents (houses) are laid low in a second, our curtains (walls) torn down in a moment. How long must I see war, sword and bow trumpet blast?" Jeremiah 4:19-21. Malachi's Translation:

How true are these words in modern bombing of cities, and in this atomic age.

What is God's Solution?

What will be the outcome of the present world upheaval? What plan has God made to meet this situation? The Bible prophecies contain these answers.

Do you wish to know what message they carry for this time? Do you wish to know how you can fit into God's great plan of the ages? The School of Bible Prophecy through its unique method of teaching Bible prophecy, has been bringing comfort and assurance to thousands of hearts and homes in all parts of America.

Thousands are saying, "The Bible has become a new book to me since studying these lessons."

"I cannot thank you enough for these wonderful lessons." "Since taking your course, a wonderful peace fills my heart. God bless the work you are doing."

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By Russell Kay

It won't be long now before a flock of eager nimrods will be galloping through the woods and "Glades" loaded gun in hand, for the hunting season is almost upon us.

Unless we exercise more caution and common sense than we have been in years past, a number of these sportsmen who join in the hunt so eagerly will wind up in a hospital or, worse still, in a morgue.

Realizing the danger that hunters and common sense presents, the Florida Fish and Game Commission has issued a special circular urging all hunters to be careful and listing safety precautions to be observed.

Unfortunately, the trigger happy hunter doesn't think such warnings apply to him. Such accidents, as they are usually termed, only happen to other fellows. Before you take to the woods this fall, I strongly urge you to secure a copy of the October issue of Reader's Digest and read the article beginning on page 31 by William Chapman. White, titled "I Thought It Was a Deer."

Last year only one state in the Union went through the hunting season without a fatal accident. Pennsylvania led the nation with 386, 24 of them fatal. It is getting so that it is almost as dangerous for a human being to be prowling around the woods during the hunting season as it is for a deer.

Careless hunters have killed their wives, their sons and daughters, their best friends. Such an experience isn't very pleasant and is a tragic and heartbreaking end to what began as a pleasure trip.

I notice that some sport writers are urging hunters to "take a boy with you when you go hunting this fall." That is all right if in doing so the hunter schools the lad over and over in the proper handling of firearms, cautions him repeatedly of the ever-present danger and makes sure before entering the woods that the boy is well aware of these dangers.

This is imperative, for the records show that a fourth of the accidents on hunting trips are caused by youngsters under 17 years of age. In the state of North Carolina all seven of the fatal accidents were caused by boys under 16 years of age. If their parents or elders had schooled these unfortunate children in safety measures, chances are these soul-searing accidents would never have occurred, so the blame rests as much on the elders as it does on the boys.

The National Rifle Association has been conducting a campaign for years to promote safety in the use and handling of firearms, and a number of states now require that applicants for hunting licenses who are under 21 years of age take an established course of instruction and obtain a NRA certificate before such license is issued.

Unless the situation improves we will have laws requiring all persons to carry financial responsibility insurance before they can obtain a hunting license, just as we now have financial responsibility laws for motorists. With it will come the revoking of licenses and refusal to issue a license the following year to individuals who have shown that they cannot be trusted in the handling of firearms.

There are records of hit-and-run hunters, just as there are of hit-and-run drivers, and a large number of the accidents that occur in the woods each year are recorded as being caused by an "unknown."

Go hunting if you will, but for your sake and the sake of your fellow sportsmen, BE CAREFUL. Remember, the same bullet that can kill a deer can also kill a human being.

Citizens Urged to Cooperate in Community Development Plan

Rare indeed are the opportunities that the people of Avon Park and its surrounding areas have to actually aid in the development of their community.

The Community Development Clinic, sponsored by the Junior and Senior Chamber of Commerce, will give every citizen a chance to tell what he feels his home town needs to make it a better place in which to live. The Clinic will last three days, from Nov. 30 through Dec. 2, with five meetings scheduled each day.

Every civic organization has heartily endorsed the Clinic, for they realize that the many people who are not members of a civic group are as vitally interested in developing their community as are the members. These meetings are bound to reveal many projects for improvements which have been wished for, but never accomplished, due to the lack of sufficient public opinion or desires.

At the conclusion of the Clinic, the suggestions for both short range, or immediate projects, and the long range projects will be assembled and analyzed. This analysis will then be returned to the sponsoring groups in sufficient quantities so that every civic group can study it and set up a program of improvements.

So what does Avon Park have, what does it need and how can it go about getting it? Attend one of the meetings and register your suggestions and criticisms. They are all needed to develop a plan of action for building a better Home Town.

Christmas Seal Sale Begins On Monday

Annual harbingers of the Christmas season, the Christmas Seals of the Highlands County Tuberculosis Association will be delivered the first of next week to thousands of homes. We welcome the bright-colored little Seals as decoration for our holiday cards and packages and, even more, because of the fine work Seal Sale funds have done in the past toward controlling tuberculosis.

But we ask ourselves: What do we buy when we buy Christmas Seals? We should ask this question. Everyone who contributes to any cause should first know what he is paying for.

In the United States, since the voluntary tuberculosis control movement was founded 49 years ago, deaths from TB have declined dramatically. Modern medical treatment, earlier diagnosis of cases, higher living standards—these and other factors are responsible for lowering the death rate. But prevention of TB has not moved as rapidly as cure. It is estimated that there are 115,000 new cases of the disease in this country every year. The tuberculosis bacillus is an insidious germ. It is far from defeated.

The tuberculosis association directs its campaign chiefly toward the prevention of tuberculosis. The funds it collects would be the most direct drop in the bucket if they were applied to treatment of people who have already contracted TB.

With prevention of TB as its chief aim, the tuberculosis association spends your Christmas Seal money for health education by circulating to the general public and through the schools thousands of pieces of literature each year. Under health education is publicity by way of the local press, radio station and movies. Selected speakers also address groups at school and the civic clubs.

Christmas Seals helped to pay for some 3000 chest X-rays during the recent county-wide survey. During the year dozens of large X-rays of suspected cases have been taken in the various local hospitals.

Some of the Christmas Seal money pays for bed jackets, pajamas, bedroon slippers, articles and stationery for indigent patients.

Transportation of patients and blood donors is another item of expense and there are numerous others.

Baseball School Opens Here Dec. 2

The Florida Baseball School, operated by the National Baseball Placement Bureau, will be located in Avon Park starting Dec. 2. It was announced today by General Manager Lou Haneles. The school had been in operation in Williston, since 1951, and Haneles decided to make the change when an opportunity presented itself in Avon Park. The school does not charge any tuition, hence every Avon Park budding big leaguer is welcome to take advantage of the baseball instruction which Haneles and his assistants will give to the students.

Baseball games will be played daily, and major and minor league scouts, managers, and business representatives of professional clubs will be invited to look over the participants for promising major league material. Young players will come to the new Avon Park baseball school from every corner of the United States, Canada, Venezuela, and other North American countries for an opportunity to obtain their initial professional contract as a stepping stone to the major league scene.

These players will stay any length of time they desire; the minimum being one week. The school will continue until April 6 provided there is no conflict with any of the minor league clubs contemplating having their spring training in Avon Park.

During the last seven years, the school, via its placement bureau, has obtained pro contracts for over 600 ball players. Among those who were recommended for contracts are all-time baseball made good are Danny O'Connell, star 3rd baseman of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Jack Daniels and Syd Semick, both formerly of the Boston Braves, Joe Montalvo, formerly of the Cleveland Indians, Danny Gandella, once with the NY Giants and St. Louis Cardinals, and Ramon Monzant, a young Venezuelan from the capital city of Caracas, who won his lost 7 including play-offs for the NY Giants farm club at Danville, Va. of the Carolina League and was named all-star pitcher in Organized Baseball from Class B to the major leagues with 231 strikeouts.

He recently was named Venezuelan Winter League (AAA) record with 13 strikeouts in a single game. Next season, he is slated to hurl for Minneapolis of the American Association, and possibly the NY Giants before the season is out.

Every boy attending the Florida Baseball School will be granted the same opportunity as those above had.

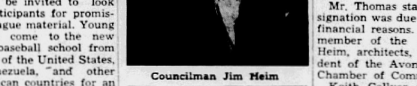

The prospective students will be housed and fed in the Administration Building in Woodruff Heights, and instruction and games will be held at Head Field. At the present time Haneles is here now with a young player who is assisting him in getting the Woodruff Heights dormitory in readiness for its initial session. Haneles has had a considerable and varied amount of experience in baseball, having played professional baseball for four years, managed college baseball (was also a college player for four years including the captaincy), was NY State Semi-Pro Baseball Commissioner for the National Baseball Congress besides having been business manager, general manager, and president of several minor league clubs including Leesburg in the Florida State League.

Just before heading for Avon Park, Haneles, American representative for the Magallanes Baseball Club of the Venezuelan Winter League in Caracas, Venezuela, effected a working agreement between the NY Giants and the Magallanes Club whereby the Giants' scout coach, Herman Franks, to the Magallanes club as manager during the winter time along with some of their players such as Ray Katt and Clint Hargrett.

All Avon Park residents are invited to come out to Head Field to watch the future professional players in action. City Clerk Malcolm Crews was instrumental in completing negotiations which eventually sold Haneles on Avon Park as a site for the Florida Baseball School.

Jane and Thomas Maxwell will go to Gainesville this weekend to attend the University of Fall Frolics. Jane will be the guest of Miss Eleanor Simmons, Thomas will be the guest of his aunt, Mrs. A. T. Fletcher, and family.

Red Devils Troupe Frostdrop 2-6

The Avon Park Red Devils were their third Ridge Conference game of the season last Friday night at Memorial Field by licking the Bullsups of Frostdrop 2-6.

This was the final home game of the season but cold, windy weather held the crowd down to about 1800 fans.

The two remaining games on the Red Devil schedule are out of town tonight the team plays Naples in Naples, and Wednesday night, November 25, the annual Turkey Day battle with Sebring will be played in Sebring.

In last Friday's game, the Devils' first score came after Kelson Hill had carried the ball from the 20-yard line down to the two, where Donald King plunged over, midway of the first quarter. The try for extra point failed.

Avon Park's second score came early in the second quarter. With excellent blocking by his teammates, and a fine key block by Ferland Cribb, King raced forty yards for a touchdown. Again the extra point failed.

Late in the second quarter, Kelson Hill scored from the ten-yard line. The point after touchdown again was not good.

Frostdrop scored its lone touchdown on a blocked Avon Park punt when Benny Baus covered the ball behind the goal line.

The Devils' final score came in the fourth period, with King carrying over from the eighty-yard line.

Avon Park's forward ball played one of its best games of the season, opening up holes for the backs many times and playing a fine defensive game.

Red Devils Prep For Naple Tilt

Hampered by rain, wind and cold, the Avon Park Red Devils turned in their last prep for the Naples encounter Friday night in Naples.

The Avon Park Red Devils scrimmaged a solid two hours Wednesday noon in honor of those who fought for our freedom. Mr. Dozier told of the work and progress that is being made at the school in rehabilitating wayward youths who have been sentenced to the school. They generally have around 600 youths at the school, who are given an opportunity to learn a trade and become useful citizens.

W. Cliff Thomas elected to the city council for his second term in September, pulled a surprise at the regular meeting of the Council Monday night, when he handed in his resignation to take effect immediately, and at the same time recommended that the council appoint James A. Heim to fill the vacancy.

The Council accepted Mr. Thomas' resignation with regret, and upon motion by Councilman Barben and seconded by Councilman Cleveland proceeded to appoint Mr. Heim to fill the position. Mr. Heim was present and was sworn in by City Attorney Rehner.

Mr. Thomas stated that his resignation was due to physical and financial reasons. Mr. Heim is a member of the firm Heim & Heim, architects, and also is president of the Avon Park Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Kelley Collier reported to the Council that the circuit judge had ruled in favor of the city in the lawsuit against the city of Long Beach, acting as the city of Long Beach has notified the city council that he will appeal the case to the Supreme Court.

Olin C. Harris appeared in regards to police uniforms. He quoted a price of $99.00 for a two-piece uniform with an extra pair of pants and two caps. After discussion the council voted to buy new uniforms for the police department, cost not to exceed $99.00. Mayor DeLaney gave a written report of Municipal Court activities for the month of October, showing that $395.00 was collected in fines and forfeitures.

A discussion of the need for an Airport Manager was held. The City Clerk had written three prospective operators but no resolution was reached. One of them, D. G. Perry stated that CAA regulations required that the airport be kept open since federal funds were used in its construction.

Motion by Councilman Barben, seconded by Councilman Kirkland that D. G. Perry be authorized to place a notice in the bulletin of the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, Washington, D. C. for an Airport Manager for the Municipal Airport. Motion carried unanimously. Council adjourned at 1:30 a.m.

High School Junior Wins Pie Contest

Betty Sue Woodham won first place in the cherry baking contest for young people sponsored by Florida Power and Light Company. Betty Scott and Nancy Matlyas tied for second place; Juddie Lookhoff placed third.

Judging took place Thursday afternoon, November 5, in the high school home economics room. Judge was Mrs. E. C. Wever, school lunchroom director. Mrs. Fred Redick, graduate of the University of Florida, and Mrs. Irene Branson, county home demonstration agent.

The pies, baked at home by the contestants, were numbered so that the judges did not know the names of the contestants until awards had been made. Points were given on the basis of general appearance, crust, and filling. Additional points were then awarded on the ability of the winning baker to maintain her poise when presenting her product before an audience. These last points were given by Mrs. Violet Moseley, high school home economics teacher.

Mrs. Woodham will compete in the district bake-off, held in Avon Park Nov. 14, with the winners from Frostdrop (the only entry), Lake Placid, and Hardee County. The winner of this bake-off will go to the division contest in Lake Wales on November 21. Mrs. Woodham is a member of the high school junior class and a band majorette.

Surgery is usually considered a part of that which is necessary in order to restore or maintain physical life. There is a spiritual surgery which is far more important. It is just as painful, and for many, entered into with even greater foreboding than when submitting to the surgeon's knife. The Great Physician himself has made the diagnosis, and has recommended surgery as the only possible cure. "And if thy right hand offend thee, (cause thee to offend, margin) cut it off, and cast it from thee." Matt. 5:30

To prevent a fatal disease from spreading to the body and destroying life, few would hesitate to part even with his right hand. That which imperils the life of the soul should be surrendered with prompt and decided determination, with never a thought of regret.

The redemption plan, conceived in the mind of God, carried out in the life of Jesus Christ, and made effective to us through the power of the Holy Spirit, is designed to restore man to the glorious destiny which God purposed for him from the beginning.

In the attempt God makes to restore His image in man, He inevitably comes into contact with man's diseased will. It is through the will, our own choice, that the malignancy of sin retains its hold upon us. The surrender of the will Christ represents as cutting off the hand. To us the surrender of our way to be guided and controlled by God, often looks like consenting to going through life maimed or crippled. But Jesus says it is better that self be crippled if thus we may enter into eternal life.

That which we consider a great disaster is but making the highest benefit available to us. Separated from God, man may have existence for a time, but he does not possess life. The apostle Paul says, "She that liveth in pleasure is dead while she liveth." 1 Tim. 5:6. The moment one surrenders his will to God, He removes the disease of sin and imparts life. Not just a few years of existence in a world of sickness, evil and disappointment, but the assurance of life measuring with that of the Eternal.

FALL ENROLLMENT

Gainesville, Nov. 7 — Women students have already forged ahead of their male counterparts at the University of Florida in one of the upper division colleges. Though coeds have been on the campus only six of the University's 100 years, they already lead enrollment in the college of Education 513 to 374. Total enrollment for the fall semester, recently released by the Office of the Registrar is 9,626 — 7,255 men and 2,371 women. Enrollment by colleges and schools is: Education, 887; Arts and Sciences, 853; Business Administration, 505; Engineering, 404; Agriculture, 371; Architecture and Allied Arts, 254; Law, 234; Pharmacy, 165; Journalism, 69; Physical Education, 66; and Forestry, 34.

OUR DAY IN PROPHECY

God warned the world, through Noah, of the coming flood. He gave simple warning to the cities of the plain, Sodom and Gomorrah, before their ultimate destruction. The nations of old, such as Babylon, Egypt, Medo-Persia and Rome, were fully warned of their coming doom. The coming of Christ the Lord of glory, was clearly foretold by all the prophets of the Old Testament.

In the light of these facts, why should we not believe that God would have spoken in His Word, about this our day, the greatest day of human history? Jesus said: "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." Matthew 24:37.

The explosion of the first atomic bomb changed the thinking of mankind. The H-bomb, if fully developed and used, could destroy the world in one night—the last hope of survival of the race. Will God permit this to happen? What have the Bible prophecies said about man's effort to destroy the world? Are we headed for world peace or a world in pieces?

These and many other questions will be fully and honestly answered in a booklet and Bible lessons we will shortly send you without cost without present or future obligation. Just write today to the:

EUROPEAN REPORT

— Congressman Bob Sikes has just returned from Europe. For six weeks he has toured U. S. installations abroad and his report to the House Appropriations Committee includes a lot of red hot comment. Among other things, he said: "In the North African areas one officer after another testified to the need for chain link fencing to protect vast quantities of supplies stored in those areas. They are unable to get requisitions honored. Yet the newspapers in the U. S. have been filled with stories of surplus of chain link fencing acquired by the services through faulty purchasing."

Also, "In Leghorn, requisitions were submitted for auto heaters. Through lack of information, article heaters costing $300.00 each were ordered." And, "There are altogether too many plush test hotels. Some Generals keep quarters in two or more establishments and commute by aircraft daily to their offices." Again he charged, "There are too many people who get rich illegally out of construction programs abroad and who are still out of jail."

He cited a particular case of this at the Kaiserlautern, Germany. This report should carry great weight with the committee when Congress opens in January, since Sikes is himself a full Colonel in the Army and knows a thing or two when he sees it.

JACKSONVILLE — The Children's Home Society of Florida reports that there are approximately 10 applications for every child the organization has to place for adoption.

Anyone interested may secure a copy by addressing The Children's Home Society of Florida, P. O. Box 2798, Jacksonville, Florida.

Thermometers will be tested for the growers of this district by the Federal State Frost Warning Service on Saturday, Nov. 14.

This is a free service and growers are urged to take advantage of it. This will be the only testing date this season.

Each thermometer should be tagged at the end opposite the bulb end, with the owner's name and address written in pencil.

All possible precautions will be taken during testing, but the Federal-State Frost Warning Service will assume no responsibility for breakage or loss of thermometers.

DEATHS

DOLLIE POWELL SKIPPER

Mrs. Dollie Powell Skipper, who died last week (November 12, 1953) at the age of 87, was born September 1, 1866. She was the wife of the late David H. Skipper, and the daughter of Joseph Powell and Caroline Smith Powell.

Mrs. Skipper was a pioneer resident of Hardee County. When she was four her parents brought her and their three other children from Columbia County to that South Florida section, then a part of Manatee County. Mrs. Skipper lived to see Manatee divided several times.

The Powell family traveled to their new home by horse and wagon, with all their earthly possessions packed into the wagon. Their household goods included a wash pot and a spinning wheel. During the journey, the father wished to abandon these by the trail, since the load seemed too heavy for the horse. But Mrs. Powell insisted that if they were left, she'd stay with them, for she knew their value to her in her way of life.

Mrs. Skipper recalled hearing wolves howling at night near her home, and related that she was often frightened because there was no way of closing the doors since the house had no shutters.

Mrs. Skipper always enjoyed hearing someone read aloud the D. B. McKay articles on Florida pioneer days, published in the Tampa Tribune, for many told of incidents and days that were dear to her heart.

Mrs. Skipper joined the Baptist church when she was 14, and at the time of her death was a member of the First Baptist Church of Avon Park.

She had lived in Avon Park for about 18 years.

She was the mother of six children: Mrs. Tressie S. Albritton and Mrs. Odell Skipper of Avon Park; Mrs. Florida Balder of Lake Geneva; David G. Skipper and Shafter Skipper, both deceased; and Mrs. Carrie McGiboney of Avon Park.

She had three step-children: Mrs. Mattie S. Carlton, J. W. Skipper of Wauchula, and Helen J. Hart, deceased. Her descendants include 20 grandchildren, 17 great grandchildren, and six great-great grandchildren.

Mrs. Skipper died at Walker Memorial Hospital after a brief illness. Funeral services were held at First Baptist Church, Wednesday afternoon, November 4, with Dr. C. H. Bolton officiating. Burial was in Hart Cemetery.

MRS. BERTIE WILLIAMS

Mrs. Bertie Williams, 58, of Ft. Meade, a former resident of Avon Park, died Tuesday night in a Wauchula hospital after an illness of five weeks.

She had made her home in Fort Meade for 13 years, moving there from this city. She was a member of the Peace River Primitive Baptist Church.

Survivors include her husband, Arthur Williams; two sons, Murray Williams and Harry Williams, of Fort Meade; four brothers, Horace L. Drawdy of West Palm Beach, Vernon Drawdy of Miami, Clayton Drawdy of Okeechobee, Theon Drawdy of Fort Meade; five sisters, Mrs. Esther Masters of Gainesville; Mrs. Lula Pierce and Mrs. Eunice Thomas of Okeechobee; Mrs. Clara Davis and Mrs. Neva McClanton of West Palm Beach; and one grandson.

MRS. LEO JOHN SAUNDERS

Smith-Saunders
Nuptial Vows Read
Saturday Night

In a candlelight ceremony Saturday night, November 7, at Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, Miss Patricia Ann Smith became the bride of Sgt. Leo John Saunders. The bride is the daughter of Frederick Martin Smith, and the late Mrs. Smith, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Sherman Saunders, of South Baitree, Mass.

The Rev. John W. Thomas officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of music was presented by Mrs. Vaughan Driggers, of Wauchula, organist, and Miss Lynn Longbottom, soloist. Catholic candles burned in branched candelabra on either side of an altar arrangement of large white chrysanthemums and white carnations.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of Chantilly lace over a double ring ceremony. The lace bodice, fashioned with long sleeves, was encrusted at the neck and waistline with tiny lace jeweled flowers. The voluminous skirt of lace, which swept in to a full court train, was enhanced by a front panel of acorn pleated imported French nylon net. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a Juliet cap of pleated nylon net. She carried a spray bouquet of white orchids.

Mrs. Charles I. Sutherland, Jr., of Falls Church, Va., attended her cousin as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. James R. Beardsley, of Lakeland, and Mrs. James Hetherington, of Keystone Heights. They wore identical tulle length gowns of silk taffeta and nylon net in iridescent emerald and lilac. The shirred taffeta bodices were strapless, and they wore lilac net stoles. The head-dresses were jeweled bandeaux of matching velvet and each carried a spray bouquet of orchids, pink asters and ivy.

Charles L. Sutherland, Jr., of Falls Church, attended as best man. Usher-groomsmen were James R. Beardsley, Lakeland, and Melville Bass, Jr., Juniors. Ushers were Tom Bass and Joe Smith, of Lake Wales.

A reception was held at Jacaranda Hotel. The bride's table, covered with a white satin cloth, was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake with burning tapers in silver candelabra, and other silver appointments completing the decorations.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Havana, the bride wore a dress of pink wool flannel, navy accessories, and a corsage of white orchids.

Upon their return, the couple will reside in Avon Park, where Sgt. Saunders is assigned to the Avon Park Bombing Range.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

TALLAHASSEE — Persons close to the new Judicial Council believe it can accomplish considerable good — provided it doesn't try to tackle simultaneously all the tasks that have been suggested for it.

All told, seven separate fields of judicial reform have been proposed for Council study. While this might be considered flattering to the Council, the fact is that any one of the suggested activities easily could occupy a spare-time group like the Council for a full year. This is particularly true because a continuous, step-by-step, public educational program will be necessary to obtain support for any recommendation the Council may make.

Unless public support is mobilized, the Council's work would accomplish nothing. This point is made abundantly clear in an editorial which appeared in the November edition of the Journal of the American Judiciary Society.

Our enthusiasm over the creation of the New York commission to consider the reorganization of the state's judicial system is tempered by what Harry Nims disclosed in an article in the Bar Bulletin of the New York State Bar Association. He points out that there has been scarcely a year since 1846 when some commission or committee was not engaged in a major investigation along those lines. Most of their reports, representing uncounted man-hours of labor found their final resting place in the shelves of law libraries within neighboring distance of the similar reports of their predecessors. . . . A selected list of about 100 commissions and committees issued reports which Mr. Nims found totaled over 30,000 pages.

The same editorial, however, pointed out that commissions as signed to judicial reform have been successful in California, Missouri, and New Jersey.

Each of the fields of judicial reform suggested so far to the Council has considerable merit and each should be thoroughly explored. The principal problem is one of establishing priorities. For example, no one doubts that gamblers and others have in some instances escaped punishment through resorting to technical loopholes in various laws. But the job of plugging those loopholes without disturbing traditional constitutional guarantees is a big task in itself.

Then there is the problem of big differentials in work loads in the state's 16 judicial circuits. Where a Circuit judge in a predominantly rural area may be called on to issue one or two legal papers a week, another judge in Miami or Jacksonville or some other population center might be handling 25 or 50 or even 100 in the same period.

(In theory, the Governor can assign judges from one circuit to another to help relieve over-crowded dockets. However, the Governor has no way of knowing from day to day where additional judicial help is needed. Some lawyers have held that the Governor's constitutional authority to assign Circuit judges should be transferred to the Chief Justice of the Supreme court and that the latter official should be made a sort of administrative officer for the whole court system.)

A primary concern of the Council, of course, will be to seek some permanent way of diminishing the tremendous work load on the Supreme court — a work load that has made it the busiest appellate tribunal in the nation. Various suggestions have been made, including one which envisions the creation of an intermediate court which would siphon off many types of cases so they would not reach the Supreme court at all.

There are some persons, too, who feel that the Council's first concern should be to study this state's polygot system of traffic courts with a view to recommending possible reforms. These critics point to wide variations in policies, in procedure and in penalties assessed for the same offenses.

Much disagreement exists also among both lawyers and laymen over whether the use of coroner's juries should be retained, modified and brought up to date, or abolished entirely. Some persons especially interested in this question appear to believe the Council should make it the first order of business.

What could be said of coroner's juries is also true of Peace Justices and Constables. Many believe these offices should be abolished entirely, while others claim there are some areas where Peace Justices and Constables still perform useful services.

Another proposal likely to come before the Council is a recommendation that Florida adopt the plan in effect in Missouri and a number of other states for taking the Supreme court a step farther away from politics. Under the Missouri plan, after a Justice is elected the first time he does not have to run again unless and until a majority of the state's voters say on their ballots that they are dissatisfied with his services. Such a verdict puts his office on the ballot and he must receive more votes than any opponent to remain on the bench.

Note: In his New York Bar Bulletin article, Nims suggested that the only kind of judicial reform group which could hope for success would be "a powerful, practical, hard-headed, courageous group made up predominantly of the state, wise politically, well-heeled financially, and ably led." The Florida Council meets one of these qualifications — it contains more laymen than lawyers. It falls short on another since it received no appropriation and its sponsors asked for none. Only time will tell about the others.

SMALL BUSINESS

The drive to increase postal rates on all mail, including newspapers, to reduce operating deficits, has been met with a strong reaction on the part of U. S. Postal Service.

The let of low career postal men is not the most happy one, and it is their credit that they maintain efficient service.

At various times, a criticism crops up that P. O. service is staffed with people lacking understanding of business principles, but Congressional committee hearing on subject indicate statements of this nature are largely due to ignorance of the handicaps under which the service operates.

In usual business procedure, securing possible costs is routine practice. But postal officials are hampered from this established business practice.

As an example Post Office has been compelled to pay air mail rates and subsidies fixed by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Due to recent disclosures CAB now pays subsidies out of its pocket, as of Oct. 1st.

Thus an estimated total air mail subsidy for this year of $80,555,000 will not be charged against postal service.

But the postal service, paying rates of 45 and 53 cents per ton mile as fixed by the CAB, will pay airlines $56,670,000 this year for supposed service charges.

There is a lot of discussion that there is an element of subsidy even in the service rate of 45 cents per ton mile. In a recent hearing, W. Lee Pearson, TWA head stated at least a part of the 45 cent rate should be considered as payment for services rendered, leaving a strong inference that part represents subsidy.

The Senate Small Business Committee announced independent airlines which CAB classifies as irregular, has made an offer to fly mail for 15 cents per ton mile.

And although this rate would knock off as much as $40 million more from Post Office costs, the postal service is powerless to even discuss this offer, without CAB consent.

No one knows what a 15 cent per ton mile rate might do toward lowering other mail transportation costs. Testimony in a previous hearing established that in past few years rail mail rates have increased 25%.

Robert S. Herr, of the Association of American Railroads estimates that rail rates for carrying mail are 12 cents per ton mile. In this rate, of course, is figured the transportation of the railway mail clerks.

However, competition has a strange way of working to lower costs. If the Post Office could fly mail for 15 cents per ton mile, in order to meet this competition, railroads might be able to refigure their mail rates.

It's interesting speculation, but will remain speculation unless Congress decides to give the P. O. authority to run the department on straight business principles.

But until such time that the Post Office is in a position to reject being loaded with unnecessary costs, and is able to bargain for services as a free agent on the open and competitive market, it appears that no increase in postal rates can be justified.

There is a lot of discussion that there is an element of subsidy even in the service rate of 45 cents per ton mile. In a recent

Jaycees Sponsoring Blood Typing Day

Do you know what type blood you have? And would you be willing to give a pint to a neighbor in need if you did know?

The Avon Park Jaycees are sponsoring a blood-typing project to add to the Firemen's Walking Blood Bank.

Saturday, November 28, a clinician and a registered Public Health nurse will set up a clinic for the purpose of typing any individual who is willing to give a pint of blood at least once a year, if needed. Their names and types of blood will be added to the Walking Blood Bank list and as needed, the individual will be called by the firemen to donate the blood.

REV. H. D. GRAETZ

The Walking Blood Bank has been in operation since 1949 and since that time approximately 250 transfusions have been given through this project. With the few now participating each individual is called on two or three times a year. The Jaycees hope to increase the number on the list so that any one individual will not be called too often.

In addition to finding out the blood type and Rh factor, a screening level hemoglobin will also be done on each person to determine if he will be a suitable donor without injury to himself. Persons with low hemoglobin will be so advised and requested to see their doctors.

The Avon Park Firemen will give to each person joining the Walking Blood Bank a billfold-size card with his name, address, and blood type on it. This is an important item to carry at all times should the individual himself ever need blood immediately.

60th Anniversary Services At Old Union Church

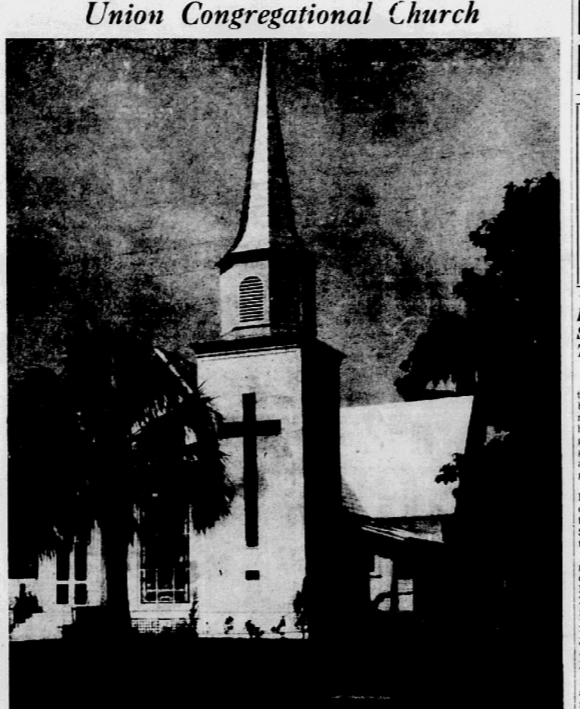

The Union Congregational Church, built by Avon Park's first settler in 1893, is celebrating its 60th anniversary with special services Sunday, Nov. 22, and a banquet Monday, Nov. 23.

The anniversary service of praise and thanksgiving will be held at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning.

The members of the Old Settlers Club of Avon Park have been invited to be honored guests at the 7:30 o'clock service on Sunday evening. The Rev. Ernest G. Wood of Deland will be the speaker. The Chancel Choir will give a special concert of sacred music. The Ladies Aid will entertain, after the service, with refreshments in the church house.

The anniversary banquet will be held at 6:30 Monday night at Lake Byrd Lodge. F. T. Haskins, prominent attorney of Sebring, and long-time resident of Highlands County, will be the principal speaker.

Thanksgiving Communion will be at 7:00 Wednesday evening, Nov. 25.

Church Built By First Settlers Celebrating 60th Anniversary

The Union Congregational Church, the first house of worship in Avon Park and one of the few remaining original structures of our city, is celebrating its 60th anniversary with special services this Sunday, November 22.

The church, also the oldest in continuous use in the lower Ridge Area, was erected in 1893 by the early settlers as a community church, for all citizens of the town, no matter the faith or creed in which they had been reared.

The basic structure — which is built of native stone and of "dimensions 36 x 48 feet, with a small neat tower attached" — has been remodeled into one of the most beautiful small churches to be found in Florida. It now contains two artist-designed stained glass windows — a rose nativity window in the modernized chancel and an Easter cross in the new steeple. This steeple was erected in 1951 as a memorial to two prominent citizens of our community and of the church — C. Parker Anderson and C. H. Shepherd.

The church was formally incorporated as the Union Evangelical Church in May, 1893, seven years after the founding of Avon Park in 1886; and the first pastor, Rev. Francis Dwight Root, assumed his duties Oct. 1 of that year. Building funds had been donated by the early settlers. The church was given by Oliver M. Crosby, Avon Park's founder, and his wife, Emma M. Crosby. The architect was F. H. Nettleton. The first pulpit, of knotty pine, hand wrought and carved by a former ship's carpenter, said to have been Sam Brown of Philadelphia, now holds the guest book.

The church received a new charter and became the Union Congregational Church in 1926.

Ten men, including the present pastor, the Rev. Herbert D. Graetz, who came here in 1916, to have been Sam Brown of the Old Union Church. There have also been some interim pastors.

The ministers regularly installed were: Francis Dwight Root, 1893-1898; Stephen J. Townsend, 1898-1906; Samuel V. Dille, 1906-1912; Charles Wesley Meyers, 1912-1913; Benjamin Stock, 1913-1925; Milo J. Sweet, 1925-1926; A. P. Vaughn, 1927-1928; Alfred C. Elliott, 1930-1940; and Emmanuel S. Hedgeboth, 1942-1947.

One of the most colorful pastors was Benjamin Stock. He was an Englishman and a bachelor, and was usually called "Brother Ben." One who knew him describes him as "the most complete Christian I ever met." He was always ready to help a distressed fellowman and did not with prayer alone, but with the labor of his own person. He would visit the sick and stay to be nurse, or even physician. For "Brother Ben" had received some medical training when preparing for a never-realized missionary career; and in those non-prosperous days, medical aid was not always available or to be afforded. Mr. Stock performed the necessary emergency amputation.

A portion of Avon Park history is contained in the old Union Church records, in which every service and other activities are described, and on which this account is based. Names well-known to long-time residents appear in their pages.

Following Christmas of 1893, there is this entry:

"Notwithstanding a very rainy afternoon and evening, a goodly number of people assembled at the church to enjoy the Children's Christmas Exercises, consisting of appropriate songs and recitations. To which were added several musical selections on Mr. Bristol's gramophone, and two songs by Mr. and Mrs. Weinicke, and Mr. and Mrs. Bab, from out of town. Then the scholars and all marched to the parlor, where a large Christmas tree was speedily decorated with a large variety of the fruit usually found on such trees to the infinite delight of the children."

The clerk who signed the above entry, and all entries during 1893 and until the end of 1909 was E. L. Richardson, Avon Park's first school principal. A Dartmouth graduate and a former high school principal in the north, he was immediately drafted to be the town's school master. He held his post, without an assistant, for nine years. He then became a member of the county Board of Public Instruction, and remained a member until his death in 1911. He was also Sunday School superintendent for the Union Church.

Mostly northern, and many were English. There were about 600 when the Union Church was built. The number divided after the "Big Freeze" of 1898. The old church records reflect these troubled days by stating that the Rev. Townsend was to receive two-thirds of the general church income for preaching two Sundays a month, while the deacon who conducted the other services received the remaining one-third.

Starting in the line for Avon Park will be Jimmy Waldron, 180-pound end; Bobby Collins or Royce Rouse, both 155-pound tackle; Jack Wingard, 200-pound center; Jimmy McCoy, 140-pound guard; Carl Thornton, 140-pound guard; Buddy Griffiths, 165-pound tackle; and Berland Cribbs, 185-pound tackle. Starting the quarterback slot will be Glen Harper, weighing 148 pounds, in the full-back position will find 185-pound Kelton Hill. At left halfback will be Donald King, weighing 160 pounds, and at right halfback will be Royce Rouse, also holding up 160 pounds.

A large crowd is expected to be on hand for the 8:30 kick-off.

Both Avon Park and Sebring high school bands will present special shows between halves.

Florida Christian College Chorus Here

The 40-voice chorus of Florida Christian College will sing in the Avon Park High School Auditorium Friday, November 20, at 10:15 a. m., at the invitation of A. B. Whitte. The program will consist of religious numbers, negro spirituals, and a group of secular numbers of a semi-classical nature. They will also present a variety of songs and one or two numbers in a boy-girl combination. The public is cordially invited to attend this program which is presented as a public service without charge of any kind.

The chorus, under the direction of James Walker, who is head of the music department of Florida Christian College, is on tour throughout central Florida and will give 11 programs while on this trip. They will visit Winter Haven, Auburndale, Arcadia, Wauchula, Cocoa, Orlando, and Kissimmee.

This group of young collegians has made numerous public appearances in 50 cities throughout 10 states and has been acclaimed by music critics. They have prepared original and varied types of programs, much of which is an actual part of their training in the music department of Florida Christian College. The chorus may soon be seen on television in the vicinity of Tampa.

Local CAP Cadets Receive State Recognition

Three Cadets of the Avon Park Flight of Civil Air Patrol received Certificates of Proficiency at a statewide meeting of Civil Air Patrol at Ft. Lauderdale Saturday afternoon, Nov. 14. These three Cadets from only fifteen within the state receiving the CAP's highest award were Glenn Welch, Franklin Welch and Louis Lagoni.

The Welch brothers were present to receive the acclaim of some 200 senior CAP members gathered for the occasion. Cadet Louis Lagoni received his award by mail at Georgia Tech. Cadet Franklin Welch was also singled out as one of the five outstanding Cadets attending the summer encampment last July.

The Certificate of Proficiency is issued only to Cadets who have completed a 2-year course of study and passed strict examinations thereon and who have satisfactorily completed an encampment. The award carries significant recognition by the Air Force which gives the Cadet priority in draft status and various other requirements on Air Force flight training. If a Cadet is drafted, he is automatically assigned to the Air Force and enters service as a Pfc. with the pay advantages attached thereto. If the Cadet desires to enter training as an Air Cadet, the requirement of 2-year college experience is waived.

Cub Scouts Need Den Mothers

The Cub Scouts are in great need of additional den mothers. The closing of the Federal Prison Camp caused several active Cub Scout workers to move, and these people must be replaced if the Cub packs are to continue.

If you are willing to be a den mother, get in touch with Mrs. L. A. Renfro, L. B. Wing, Ed Dunn, J. C. Still, Mrs. John Giddens Jr., Mrs. Esther Cairns, or Mrs. W. F. Lumbach.

The above-named Cub Scout planning committee met recently at the home of Mrs. Renfro. Plans were made for a pack meeting on December 3, and for a Christmas party Dec. 17, at Legion Hall. All parents are urged to attend both meetings; both will be held in the evening.

Junior Class To Present Play Dec. 11

The Junior class of Avon Park High School will present the annual junior class play Friday, December 11, at 8:00 p. m., in the high school auditorium. The play, "One Mad Night," is a mystery written by James Rench, author of several detective and thrilling mystery plays.

The 14 members of the cast are: Herbert Baughan, Jr., Nancy Matyas, Betty Scott, Mary Woltverton, Roberta Padgett, Jimmy Pierce, Jesse Murray, Judy Giddens, Frances Fisher, Clement McFarland, Albert Collier, Dick Reddick, Lamar Ward and Susan Brown.

Miss Phoebe Faulkner and Ellis Watson, the junior class sponsors, are directing the play.

BOX FOR CHILDREN'S HOME GIFTS AT BUS STATION

A box to receive clothing and other donations for the Florida Children's Home in Jacksonville has been placed at the bus station in Palm Restaurant by the senior Women's Club and will be there until Dec. 6. Gifts of clothing, canned food and money are solicited from the general public as well as club members.

This box for the children's home is a civic project undertaken every Christmas by the Women's Club.

Rotary News

Mrs. Alexander Blair of Lake Placid was the guest speaker at meeting of the Avon Park Rotary Club on Wednesday. Mrs. Blair is a state director of the Florida Tuberculosis Association. She spoke on the sale of Christmas Seals, and told her listeners where the receipts of the sale of seals go, and the necessity of raising as much money as possible.

Big Interest Shown In Development Clinics

Important Note To Our Readers

Because of the Thanksgiving holiday, next week's edition of the Sun will be printed on Wednesday. All news and advertising should reach us Monday and Tuesday. Last minute items cannot be taken after Wednesday morning. Please help us.

Also, we'd certainly appreciate news of holiday parties and trips.

Big interest is being shown in a series of clinics for the development of Avon Park that will be held here starting November 30th and running through December 2nd, and sparked by the Senior and Junior Chamber of Commerce and all civic organizations, under the guidance of the Community Development of the Florida Power Corp.

Purpose of the meetings is to develop an over-all long-range and immediate program aimed at making developments that are desired here.

Sam Longbottom, president of the Senior Chamber of Commerce says: "Your biggest investment — Avon Park. This Community Development is your opportunity to build a better community through cooperative community effort. Attend the clinics and hear how it can be done."

Jim Heim, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, says: "The survey which is one of the results of the clinics is very badly needed. This system of clinics on community development and the survey is not of full value unless everyone participates. We need to have at least 500 persons participate. Everyone is urged to attend a clinic. This community development project in my opinion, is one of the most important and most worthwhile projects we have ever undertaken."

Cards will be distributed at the meeting, and citizens can make suggestions for improvements in the civic, social, economic or industrial life of the city. These will be classified after all have been collected and a program calling for immediate steps formulated. This game gave a lot of the boys that have not been playing a chance to see quite a bit of action. The first eleven spent most of their time watching from the sidelines.

Coach Joe Franz has planned lengthy and hard practice for the few days left before the Sebring tilt. Both Avon Park and Sebring operate from the split T.

Red Devils Will Meet Sebring In Annual Turkey Day Bout

By Sports Writer

The Avon Park Red Devils will test their strength against the Sebring Blue Streaks Wednesday night, November 25, at 8:30 in Sebring in the annual Turkey Day game. This will be the main game of the year for both teams, and should be a very promising game.

So far this season coaches Franz and Garrett's boys have come through with four wins, one tie, and three losses. The Blue Streaks from Sebring have won two and dropped six.

The best kicking Avon Park has given its opposition this year came last Friday night when the Red Devils swamped the Naples Eagles by a score of 47 to 7. Sebring touchdowns for the Red Devils were Donald King, Glen Harper, Sam Elder, Fielding Todd, Gene Reynolds, and Lacey Moore. This game gave a lot of the boys that have not been playing a chance to see quite a bit of action. The first eleven spent most of their time watching from the sidelines.

Girl Scouts Need Furniture

The Girl Scouts have a new meeting place, but lack furniture for it. The city has given them the use of some folding chairs, but the girls need tables and other furnishings — even an old piano, if you happen to have one lying around.

The Girl Scouts have cleaned their meeting place, which is the south end of the former administration building at King's Court, and are planning to paint the interior — the paint will be furnished by the Junior Women's Club, their sponsoring organization. The girls also hope to plant a flower garden.

If you have articles of furniture to give to these scouts, call their leader, Mrs. Ray Willis, or the Junior Women's Club scout chairman, Mrs. A. C. Wester, Jr.

Mrs. Willis announces that future Girl Scout plans include the organization of a Brownie troop.

A troop committee has been formed for the Girl Scouts, composed of Mrs. A. B. Whitte, S. F. Loubet, Malcolm Crews, Mrs. Herman Gaster, Mrs. Betty Anderson, and Mrs. A. C. Wester Jr.

Special Invitation

The Board of Trustees of the Union Congregational Church invites the public, and especially invite the members of the Old Settlers Club, to attend the 60th anniversary recognition service in memory of the pioneers who settled Avon Park, and built the church, on Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock.

Sadie Hawkins Day Dance

The Sadie Hawkins Day Dance, sponsored by the junior class of the Avon Park High School, will be tonight (Friday) at 7:30 in the gymnasium. The dance, originally planned for last Saturday, was postponed because a band was not available for that date.

Community Service Thanksgiving Day

The community service of Thanksgiving will be held in the Union Congregational Church on Thanksgiving Day at 10 a. m.

The Rev. C. H. Bolton, pastor of the First Baptist Church, will preach the sermon. Ministers of our local churches will have part in the service. The Chancel Choir of the host church will sing.

This Thanksgiving service is sponsored each year by the Avon Park Ministerial Association. All are cordially invited to attend.

At Bat With Lou Haneles

I have prevailed upon my editor, Mr. Kinney, to let me write a column each week so that you folks can get better acquainted with our baseball school, the players, and myself.

As you may know, my young assistant, Johnny Zeigler, Stockton, Ala., and I are getting the Woodruff Heights Administration Building completely altered, renovated, and cleaned up so that it will be the new home of the Florida Baseball School. I have met quite a few people already in town, and it seems just about everybody is baseball-minded.

Your high school baseball coach, Guy Garrett, and I had a luncheon on Monday and we both are in unison on how to handle ball players. Guy will have several of his promising players out at our sessions in an attempt to have them learn as much baseball as possible. Guy himself will assist me whenever he has the opportunity. John Zeigler, the manager of the local entry in the Orange Belt Baseball League, has also been keeping me apprised of interesting baseball news in the Highlands County area.

The other night, I was invited to meet the City Council at one of its meetings, and I was impressed with the conscientious and sincere desire on the part of each councilman not to spend any of the city's money unless it was absolutely necessary, just as it was coming out of his own pocket. As a matter of fact, my agreement with the city to operate the baseball school specifies that our coming here will not cost the city a single cent. In other words, it is the baseball school's obligation to fix up the Woodruff Heights building to make it livable for 30-40 boys from all over the nation, and believe me, it needs plenty of fixing. But the work should be just about completed the end of this week. Mr. Sparks, who is in charge of the project out here for the city, has been most cooperative, thereby making it easier for young Deane and me to get the job just about done. City Clerk Malcolm Crews smoothed my path in getting everything lined up for our stay here in Avon Park. It was Malcolm who took me all over Avon Park at the time of the last baby hurricane (Oct. 10) in order to accomplish everything of necessity to complete the negotiations for bringing a baseball school here. As a closing gesture, let me say that I have been to quite a few cities in Florida in my capacity as a baseball man in order to either operate baseball clubs or schools, and I believe that you have about the most progressive City Council and Chamber of Commerce in the state of Florida for a city the size of Avon Park. Be seeing you next week.

AVON PARK SERMONETTE

Herman C. Ray, Chaplain
Walker Memorial Sanitarium
And Hospital

As Jesus realized the time left for Him to be with His disciples in person was drawing to a close, He so much desired to open their understanding concerning their needs for the future. He well knew from His own experience the fierce combat with the powers of evil that would be theirs.

It is a trait of the natural human heart to feel self sufficient. This had been amply demonstrated in the lives of the twelve. Should they lose sight of dependence upon God, their attempts to preach the gospel would utterly fail.

So, the Master instructed them more fully regarding the indispensable resources at their command through His name. He said, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whosoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he will give it you." (John 16:23)

Perhaps no promise of Christ is claimed with less real understanding of what is involved than this promise. To limit the meaning and requirement of asking in His name to a few formal phrases at the close of a prayer, is to miss its intent completely. There is depth to this promise that must be recognized. Only through the name of Jesus Christ can we approach God. "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12). It is imputed righteousness through His name that makes us of value in God's sight.

It means much to ask in Christ's name. There must be a complete turning away from sin in all its forms. "If I regard iniquity in my heart the Lord will not hear me" (Psalm 66:18). What is iniquity or sin? The transgression of God's law. I John 3:4; Romans 7:7. Then, we must accept the character of Christ as revealed in His law of love; love to God and love to our fellow men.

To claim the promise and pray acceptably in Christ's name, there must be a manifestation of the spirit of Christ in the life. He must be a member of the church, renovated, and cleaned up so that it will be the new home of the Florida Baseball School. I have met quite a few people already in town, and it seems just about everybody is baseball-minded.

To pray in Christ's name means that we are both willing and desirous of working His works. Our duties and responsibilities may be necessary and they should be to one end only—that the name of Christ Jesus might be exalted and the work he intrusted to His followers might be finished.

When the conditions are met, each may come with boldness to the throne of grace and expect to receive from the Father an answer to his petition presented in Christ's name.

LOCAL MAN STILL MISSING

The whereabouts of J. H. Mintz, nurseman, missing since October 9, are still a mystery. Mintz, operator of Lake Verona Nursery and of American Rubber Chemical Company, left early in October on a business trip to Miami and other cities. He disappeared in Miami, his truck later being found in a Miami Beach parking lot.

Highlands County Sheriff's office and the F. B. I. have found no trace of the missing man. Certain evidence indicates, however, that he may have disappeared at his own will.

See You IN CHURCH Sunday.

There is no tuition charge for these classes. The only cost to the students is the material that they use.

CHILDREN CASE POSTPONED BECAUSE OF NEW JURY LAW
The case of John Childers, charged with reckless driving and scheduled to be tried in County Court this week, has been again postponed because it was necessary to select a new jury in accordance with a law on procedure of drawing juries, passed by the State Legislature last June.

The Highlands County Court received no notification of the new law until this week. The validity of the jury being questioned, it was decided to postpone all cases until a newly-appointed jury in accordance with present law.

Keith Collyer, prosecuting attorney, states that he will try the Childers case and all other cases on the docket as soon as the new jury is drawn.

Childers was charged after the car he was driving struck and severely injured C. H. Pardee on Oct. 8. The case was postponed from October to November court session because a witness was unavailable.

SENATOR COLLINS MAY BE CANDIDATE

The Tampa Tribune, in a story by staff writer Herbert D. Cameron, states that it learned last week that State Senator LeRoy Collins of Tallahassee will definitely be a candidate for Governor to complete the term of the late Dan McCarthy. Collins, who has served in both houses of the Florida legislature and is recognized as a top flight law maker, was a very close friend of the late Governor and was instrumental in putting the McCarthy program through the last legislature.

The efforts of the ladies resulted in 130 pounds of clothing to be sent to that very worthy cause. In addition to the clothing, a recent collection resulted in $42.30 which also went to the World Relief fund.

The afternoon was then spent sewing articles for a future sale to help raise money for a new church. The enthusiasm was so keen it was decided to have a covered dish luncheon and sewing every second Thursday.

PRAYER CHANGES THINGS

God will answer every sincere prayer. The perplexing problems of this troubled hour could be solved quickly if men and women everywhere would come to God in true faith believing and would trust God's requirements for answered prayer.

Not many realize that a mighty force is within the reach of every one of us! Not many know how to pray, or with what fervor God is pleased. Many may know how to "read prayers" or "say prayers," but how few there are who "pray!" The Apostle Paul wrote of this matter thus: "I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also." (1 Corinthians 14:15) James said: "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts." (James 4:3)

The word of God is filled with instruction on prayer; how and when to pray, and under what conditions God will hear us. The School of Bible Prophecy maintains a Fellowship of Prayer Circle, and daily our large staff of Christian men and women meet and pray before God the many requests which have come in. Hundreds and thousands of requests come to us, and we are glad to announce that God is answering our humble prayers in a marvelous way, as many are testifying almost daily.

We have a little tract on prayer, containing much instruction, along with personal testimonies of the Lord's kindnesses in answering prayer.

National Cattlemen's Association Oppose Price Support

Every price support plan that has ever been advanced would bring to the beef cattle industry for greater evils than those now evident in other support programs for agriculture.

That was the statement today of Rufford Hall, assistant executive secretary of the American National Cattlemen's Association, Denver, Colo., in addressing the convention of the Florida State Cattlemen's Association at the Swanee Hotel, St. Petersburg.

"Price supports and controls have not worked in the best interests of the public on other farm commodities, so they could not be expected to work in beef production which is more complicated with more perishable product," Hall declared.

He said the only long-term solution for the cattlemen and for the nation was to bring production into better balance with consumption.

Hall said this could be done by continuing to show the public more and better ways of benefiting from the dietary and taste, appeal qualities of all grades and cuts of beef and by developing more efficiency in production, marketing and distribution.

Hall hailed as successful the emergency programs for drought and marketing relief which had been advocated by the Florida and national cattlemen's groups as an alternate to fixed price support.

He said that the government's accelerated campaign to buy beef for school lunches and foreign aid had helped to stabilize and strengthen most markets recently.

"A brighter future is ahead for continued production of beef at prices reasonable to the consumer, producer, processor and distributor alike," Hall concluded.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

B. C. WILSON HARDER

The hue and cry for Agricultural Secretary Ezra Benson's British controlled monopoly, who holds this post under present conditions is destined to be a hopeless task, unless supplied with billions of dollars to pay Santa Claus.

Secretary Benson's stand against heavy spending farm programs as a matter of principle. Benson's defenders state falling farm prices started before he took C. W. Harder office. Available Washington records appear to prove this.

Some in Washington hold there is no solution to the farm problem. Others claim that the only solution is free trade so that American farm products can be exported. However, they overlook the fact that much food is being imported today from nations whose people need it, whereas a tariff is found in the protective tariff laws.

But others have formed a different concept on farm problem. They say instead of looking to Agriculture Department nation's farmers should look toward Justice Department and Federal Trade Commission for active Anti-Trust Law enforcement.

Housewives are irked but records show independent retailer and wholesaler are not getting rich. And farmers producing food get only a small share of the dollar spent on most items.

For example, the grower is currently receiving less than 4 cents from the can of peaches retailing for 25 cents, or more. Processing costs account for a part of difference, but independent dent canners are not making excessive profits.

But into a can of peaches goes various materials. The sugar is bought at prices controlled by world wide agreement. States of cans is held by a few. In many other food products a parallel situation exists.

The supply of commercial fertilizer needed to produce most crops is controlled by a very few firms, some of them subsidiaries of major oil companies. This same situation prevails with insecticides and fungicides. The gasoline and oil that the farmer must buy is sold on a controlled monopoly basis.

And under the present lack of anti trust enforcement, there appears to be no remedy.

For example, just before the pickle packing season, packers were informed of a 30 per cent immediate increase in the salt price. It was a take or leave it demand, because independent competition is lacking in the salt industry.

Stemming back to the days when with rifle and plow, he carved out his security, the American farmer has always been a symbol of free enterprise.

But faced with a controlled market for his products, and with controlled prices for what he buys to produce, the American farmer is dropped from the status of a free entrepreneur to a captive in a rigged market.

More aid will be voted to farmers. Only a complete and thorough application of the anti trust laws on all levels of the food business, including the supply of materials needed to produce and process farm products will stop need for aid.

Now Synthesizing Florida Attractions

ST. PETERSBURG (FNS) — Douglas Doubleday, real estate editor of the St. Petersburg Times, thinks that times must be right in Florida considering the fact that we are now synthesizing Florida attractions.

In a recent column he says: "Ever since some unsung early American learned you could inject new vitamins into local currency by publicizing things like Niagara Falls, Grand Canyon, Natural Bridge, Mammoth Cave and other geological eye openers, humans who like to travel have been attracted conscious."

Alert Floridians took the hint and today no state offers more in the way of tourist attractions than does Florida. Leading the way, Silver Springs advertised itself as one of the "Big Three" — "Niagara Falls, Grand Canyon and Silver Springs." It was a clever bit of advertising promotion and it clicked.

Then came Dick Pope of Cypress Gardens fame who linked up with the "Big Three" to draw tourists to Winter Haven.

The outstanding success attained by these attractions has caused numerous other promoters to "get in on the act."

Now, as Doubleday points out, we have numerous synthetic attractions; plans are under way to set up a square mile reproduction of the "Holy Land." Carl Boyer and Associates are developing a Floating Island attraction at Leesburg. Two organizations are at work developing plans for giant observation towers in Lake County; Clermont took the lead in this and has plans for an elaborate layout where the tourists may daily and also dilly for many pleasant hours of entertainment.

It seems that no matter how many attractions Florida offers the visitor they are all supported and those that really give the tourist something to see for his money find themselves attracting more and more visitors each year.

PRENATAL CARE

A sound, healthy baby is the desire of all parents, but many overlook the basic and important need for good prenatal care.

As soon as pregnancy is suspected, a physician should be consulted. This is the first prerequisite of good prenatal care. In most cases the physician is able to make the diagnosis of pregnancy early, that is within the first four to eight weeks of the baby's development. Should the mother have certain laboratory facilities to aid him in this diagnosis even earlier.

During the first visit the physician usually explains to the prospective mother the changes taking place within her body and advises her on the necessary care she must give her body. He also tells the signs and symptoms of possible complications that may occur should the pregnancy be ignored.

The initial visit also helps to instill confidence in the physician who is to govern a good part of her life and habits for the usual total of 40 weeks.

Emotional upsets are often a part of the pattern of pregnancy and it is the physician who stands by to help the mother into an understanding of herself. Expectant mothers have fears, many handed down through the years. Of this type, the most common is the fear of the birth process. One of the most frequent fears is that of congenital deformities. Actually the incidence of major congenital deformities is so small that the fear is unwarranted. The mother should discuss these problems with her physician as they arise because only he will be able to provide her peace of mind.

The more occupied an expectant mother is, the happier she will be. Her activities may be regulated by her physician if necessary but under normal conditions she can be kept busy preparing for the future event by continuing daily routines, knitting or sewing, shopping, by walks, reading or other enjoyable activities.
