Bringing Forth a Mouse

As everyone who reads the newspapers knows, the demand for government economy has been unusually intense this year, both among members of the general public, who have been flooding Congress with letters, and among many leading government officials. "Yes," says the Wall Street Journal, "the result promises to be insignificant. The great economy effort is bringing forth a mouse."

Why should the outlook be so bleak now? The Journal provides a number of answers—the fact that the Administration budget was the largest in peacetime history; a feeling in some quarters that public demand for economy is abating; high-powered pressure by various groups for all manner of pet projects. But the really dominant reason is found in these words: "... Congress has failed to grasp the plainest of facts—that it is impossible to cut the cost of Government significantly unless one is prepared to reduce the size of Government. The lawmakers have been... content to nibble at Federal programs, when what was urgently required was a reduction or elimination of certain programs... Congress has chosen the easy way. And that, as is often the case, is the easiest way to failure."

In sum, what Congress has done, knowingly or otherwise, is to accept the premise that we must have ever-expanding super-government—and then to consider a few comparatively minor cuts here and there. That being Congress' attitude, it was inevitable that the results would be non-existent or nearly so. Not until the size of government is reduced and kept reduced, will we have a materially reduced budget and tax burden.

Dear Sir:

Occasionally we read a letter from a bird lover which we find in THE SUN. As we are also bird lovers we find much of interest in these letters. In the last one that we read the writer warned that one should get rid of stray cats in the neighborhood as they are very destructive to birds. How well we know it, but how are we to go about getting rid of the cats? During the past year there has come to this neighborhood two stray female cats which have both had litters of kittens which are now almost grown, and also several assorted tom cats which no one in the neighborhood claims. No one feeds these cats, and we all try to drive them away, with no success at all. The only result has been to make them so wild that it would be impossible to catch them. They don't go far, just out of reach, where they glare at you, with twitching tails and ears laid back. The instant you turn your back they are right back again.

My wife is also a great lover of flowers, and she takes a great deal of joy in growing many varieties that we could not grow in Asheville, N. C. Flower beds all around our dwelling, and all around the perimeter of our lot. The cats use these as cover from which to pounce on our birds, and also on each other. The innumerable cat fights wreak havoc to many of our choice plants. We buy a couple of loaves of bread each week just for our birds, and also buy scratch feed at the hatchery for them. We have quite a flock of several chickens, and they are as tame as chicks. It is frustrating to feel that we are only living in their death, and that we can't seem to do anything about it.

We have tried everything that has been suggested to us except poison. Death by poison is too agonizing for even these cats, and there would always be a real danger that something else would also get it. I could easily shoot them with a .22 rifle, but the danger of even a well aimed bullet ricocheting is too great in this thickly populated neighborhood. Someone told us that we could get rid of them by sprinkling pepper all around, so we bought boxes of pepper and put it all over the lot. The cats didn't mind a bit. Then someone said they didn't like the smell of tobacco, so we got it by the sackful in powder form, and covered everything with it. The cats loved it. It got rid of their fleas.

In Asheville, all we had to do was phone the SPCA when someone dropped female cats or dogs, but if there is such a service in Avon Park, we have not heard of it. If anyone has any more suggestions we would like to hear them. It is only a question of time until the situation will get even worse. We find wing and tail feathers all around in our flower beds and on the grass. If the flocks of cats continue to increase our birds will all be destroyed, and we will have so many insects we cannot have flowers.

Yours sincerely,

I wonder if you would be interested in printing the following comments by E. J. Meyer, local artist's pictures, in Bodley Gallery, May 13, 25, 1957.

Unmistakable Primitive's by Lily Weaver.

"As in nature, close likeness of detail or outline in art does not always or necessarily amount to that complete and creative resemblance which is a sign of an objective phenomenon. (Something in nature imitated by man) and the 'style' of its creation was a tradition based on an original, unstructured plastic sense. Children's art is classified with that of primitive peoples) is that particular type of picture or statue whose likeness to a possible model, in the modern 'photographic' sense, is immaterial; the work we have to be to be a sign of an objective phenomenon."

(Something in nature imitated by man) and the 'style' of its creation was a tradition based on an original, unstructured plastic sense. Children's art is classified with that of primitive peoples) is that particular type of picture or statue whose likeness to a possible model, in the modern 'photographic' sense, is immaterial; the work we have to be to be a sign of an objective phenomenon."

Just that, certainly happens with Lily Weaver, a Southern artist who does religious subjects as well as her native land in oil paint. She may not be as good as Leonardo's Last Supper, her Last Supper, in any case, is painted fantastically with an unrestricted hand in imitation of a model in her own mind. It is immediate and touching—even its still life details—and, as with the Magic Realists and Surrealists, her hand betrays a self-evident desire to follow the true lineaments of nature. This 'naïveté' of imitation, so sophisticated in the Surrealists and other schools, dialectically derived from Picasso's Negroism, remains a spontaneous quality, what is usually classified today as Self-Taught painting.

In Lily Weaver's beautifully printed collage scenes of the collective primordial instinct provides a 'classic' order, there is a place for everything, from turkey broods to church steeples, and everything in its place—Lily Weaver may not be conscious of how decorative a vision is the distant cemetery in her Sabbath or the tiny constellation over Jesus in The Last Supper, but her delineation of such specific imagery is often charming—especially her trees' nervous leafiness—and one feels the unique personality of her agonized, naïvely frontal Jesus as well as the deep, naive wisdom of the deeply frontal, 'equally unique' Angel hovering above him.

Dear Sir:
I noticed the article by Don Meikeljohn entitled "Meikro-wave," in your newspaper, Thursday, July 25, 1957. Said article was about the official Florida seven-man commission which is supposed to attempt to restore "state sovereignty." Political science, American political science, is almost a forgotten subject, although it is still taught in American colleges and universities. I feel that all these state sovereignty commissions will come to naught if they do not construct four fundamentals in recognizing the state government. These four fundamentals all hinge on the state legislature, which is the "unit" of sovereignty in America, due to their final powers in amending the Constitution of the United States, "the supreme law of the land." Sovereignty is defined in political sciences as the quantum or thing which can change or amend the basic law of the land.

Here are the four fundamental reforms which must be had:

1. Carry out the intention of the American Founding Fathers when they stated at Article IV, Section 4, U.S. Constitution, that "The United States shall guarantee to every state in this Union a republican form of government."
(Comment: Note that the states, including the legislatures are to be "republican," and note furthermore that no where in the U.S. Constitution is the federal government designated to be "republican." The American Founding Fathers could not so designate the federal government once they at the U.S. Constitutional Convention threw out the "Virginia Plan," which called for a national legislature or Congress based strictly upon population, in effect, "Republican" to the American Founding Fathers implied proportionate representation by population. The state legislatures of the United States are in primary elections, often 150 for the 18 nominations.)

Actually I see no hope that this official Florida sovereignty commission is waiting fundamental in favor of the above mentioned "reforms," which are actually time-tested American Founding Fathers' modes operating in politics. I think most of the angles mentioned by Meikeljohn in re this commission are in effect mere words, full of state and fury, signifying only another state bureaucratic set-up. The reason for this is well-known. The Florida state government is now a ruralized, North Florida oligarchy, with no relation to the facts or to American Constitutional History! Only Governor Collins' presence lends a modicum of chance at any intelligent moves by this oligarchy, but Collins is outmanned.

I predict that if stupid, ruralized political bigshots, which abound in this nation (Florida not being their only habitat), the federal government will wax only stronger and stronger. I suggest Southerners, Americans all, read the works of the smartest Southerner ever to live, namely, Alexander H. Stephens, Vice President of the Confederacy! He was a man with brains, and was willing to let the facts reign! I see only propaganda in this foolish oligarchy's commission. Foolishness and stupidity never get anywhere—except to make for a more unwieldy federal government! I am for states!

3. Publish the journals of the legislatures as closely as possible to the format, typography, and style of the Congressional Record, the world's foremost legislative journal and record.
(Comment: Another reason the federal government has grown in size is that it is much easier to follow what goes on in Congress than in most state legislatures. State legislatures have been very niggardly, again, in not maintaining adequate legislative journals. Only one state maintains a verbatim legislative journal—Pennsylvania—is — and one state maintains no day-by-day legislative journal at all during sessions—New York State! Incidentally, Florida's legislative journals, published separately for each house and not combined, are way above average compared to the legislative journals of most states—but even so, the Florida journals are still not verbatim, the chief point of the Congressional Record.)

4. Elect state legislators by single-member districts.
(Comment: This does not pertain to Florida, but it does in many states. At-large elected legislators, usually from the large cities, are usually boss-ridden legislators. Cuyahoga County (Cleveland, Ohio) elects more state legislators at-large than any other jurisdiction in the entire world—18 to the state house of representatives and six to the state senate. In primary elections, often 150 for the 18 nominations.)

FOREMOST GOLD NUGGET BUTTERMILK

Is rich in flavor—but not in calories!

COOL IDEA! Fill a mug with Foremost Gold Nugget Buttermilk, add a pinch of onion salt or curry powder—and tuck in a twist of crisp, cool cucumber!

If you're counting calories—this is for you! If you just plain love buttermilk—this is for you! And even if you're not a buttermilk fan—this is for you!

For Foremost Gold Nugget Buttermilk is a completely different kind of buttermilk—smoother, tangier, richer than any brand you've ever tried.

The reason? Buttermilk...bright, golden flecks of it all through the glass. And what buttermilk!

Unlike the kind in many brands, it's what dairymen call "92-score"—meaning just about top in quality.

Yet for all its extra richness,

Foremost Gold Nugget Buttermilk has only 120 calories per glass. (That's far less than regular milk!)

Try Foremost Gold Nugget—and soon. Until you do, you'll never know how good a buttermilk can be!

Rotary News

B. Frank Brown of Titusville, Director of Instruction, Board of Public Instruction of Broward County, was guest speaker at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Avon Park Rotary Club at the Jaccardan Hotel on Wednesday, July 24. He told of the special program that is being carried out in the public schools for the children who are further advanced than the average students. He told of the special classes and courses that are being given for these students, thus giving them an opportunity to apply methods and ideas that they have learned in these special classes.

Miss Marcia Bilbe has been appointed by the Music Committee as the new pianist for the coming year. Miss Clytie Coleman will serve as her assistant.

Visiting Rotarians last week included E. A. Houck of Sebring as special guest of the club; Rev. W. H. Pankhurst, Jacksonville, Ill.; Cliff Smith, Sebring; E. F. Armstrong, Hicksville, Ohio; and Jack Stephenson of Sebring.

rights, but I am for brains also, with a modicum of understanding of American Constitutional History. But thank God for Collins, a giant among political pygmies!

The state sovereignty commission is predicated upon the idea that you can by-pass America's large metropolitan areas in maintaining sovereignty! After all, let it be forever remembered that this is America, not Russia, and that under our U.S. Constitutional system, the only possible way we can preserve and make to flourish rural representative democracy is via the state government!

But the American Constitutional System is ingeniously intertwined! To secure basic state rights, such as "a republican form of government," and away from a ruralized oligarchy, we must exert federal domination first! Ruralized politics dominating this state sovereignty commission fail to realize or operate upon this fundamental American truth!

The Fourth National Scout Jamboree was held at Valley Forge, Penn., this year. Scouts from all over the United States and 35 foreign countries were in attendance. The jamboree opened on Sunday, July 1, by a special bus for Valley Forge.

Myself on a common net for from our trading post.

On the way up, we stopped at a Sealtel milk and ice-cream plant. After going through the plant, Sealtel treated us with ice-cream. It certainly was refreshing.

The trip was beginning to get dull, so the bus came through with some excitement. We had a flat tire. We finally got a spare on the flat tire, and on day of the trip! Everyone was sleeping peacefully, when we were awakened by a buzzing noise on the dash-board. We stopped to investigate and found a hose had broken on the motor. It took quite a while to get it fixed. Did you ever eat supper at 2:30 a.m.? Well, we did, at a town called Verona. We were now five hours behind schedule.

Some of the buses used in transporting the Scouts to the jamboree. We joined the us from Tampa, carrying "Yoop & After religious service, held by the Rev. Galen Ford of the First Methodist church of Ocala, we again resumed our journey.

In order to have the semi-truck unloaded when it reached Valley Forge, and have the tents put up, half of each troop (8 and 9) got on the "good" bus and the others stayed. I load-filled blimp flying over our troop headquarters. This could be seen for quite a distance. The Jamboree officially opened July 12. That day our troop, along with 5,000 other scouts and leaders, visited Philadelphia. There we saw many historical places of colonial times. Some of the boys had their first train ride then. We were guests on the television show, "Big Top."

That night everybody went down to the grand avenue for the official opening. The President of the Boy Scouts of America, Kenneth K. Bettle, and Chief Scout, Arthur A. Schuck gave speeches on Scouting. A letter from the President of the United States was read. Vice president Nixon was introduced. He gave a 45-minute speech. The program was climaxed by a $30,000 fireworks display.

During the encampment of the 35,000 scouts and several thousand leaders, events were held in almost every field of scouting and sports. Among the top best were fishing, archery and gunnery. The rifle range was under supervision of the United States Army.

During the six days of the Jamboree, as we toured Valley Forge and Philadelphia, I wondered what George Washington would have done if he had had an army this strong. Men from the Armed Forces were there to get ideas on camping and the other events we participated in and to see how smoothly our operation went along. Climbing to the top of Mount Joy, boys could see their campsite and all of Valley Forge from the Observatory.

Nine hundred feet of movie film were taken of the Jamboree and trip. This will be shown at a Court of Honor, the time to be announced later.

One quiet peaceful morning our sleep was broken by a loud noise. The United States Air Force demonstration team, The Thunderbirds, had flown over and were putting on an air show. This was a surprise to all of us, and to say the least, a marvelous show.

Four o'clock Friday morning, July 19, we arose and packed our gear and tents. We were ready to leave. One thing held us up. The semi-truck, which was to haul our equipment back, had not shown up. After waiting two hours, we flipped a coin to see which troop would stay and load the truck. We won the toss and were on our way.

On the way back, we drove through the battlefields of Gettysburg, and stopped at Natural Bridge, Va.

Our parents had received a card that we would arrive in Lakeland at 6:00 p.m. However, we got there a 4:30 p.m., and most of us had a long wait. This had been a stupendous operation. Transportation for the 35,000 boys called for fifty special trains, thousands of chartered buses, and many chartered planes. There were 300 tons of charcoal briquettes used to feed the 16,000 cooking fires burning at the same time. The camp used approximately 74,400 quarts of fresh milk daily. A meal of chicken took 25,000 birds. Top sirloin for the final dinner required 1,310 head of steers. There were 752 tons of nonperishable food used. The Jamboree used 1,500,000 gallons of water daily. There were 50 telephone trunk lines and six 300-line switchboards. Each of the camp's 38 sections had a health lodge staffed with three doctors and four doctors' aides. There was parking space for 10,000 cars.

One afternoon, the Lu La Temple Mounted Guard of Philadelphia, consisting of 35 red-fezzed Shriners put on a precision drill. The riders wore light green trousers, yellow shirts, red sashes and red caps with gold tassels. Every tex had a jewel in it. The Lu La Temple Mounted Guard is considered the daddy of Shriners drill groups, as they were organized 45 years ago.

We were warned not to go swimming in the Schuylkill River as it was polluted. They had snow fences put up to let us know "No Trespassing."

There were 11 Scouts from Columbus, Ohio who attended the Jamboree. All 11 were blind. This affliction, however, did not keep them from participating in many events and in helping with their daily chores.

For the closing ceremony each scout was given a candle. It was quite a sight to see 50,000 candles burning. While these candles were burning, the closing Scout Oath came to us from Antarctica. It was the voice of Eagle Scout Dick Chappel, who was at the South Pole.

The theme of this year's jamboree was "Onward for God and My Country." I hope that each scout left Valley Forge

Series of Schools Being Held To Ease Budget System Shift

The big job of guiding Florida's sheriffs in their transition from the antiquated fee system to the new budget system has been tackled by W. R. Englund, Avon Park, Florida, Sheriff's Assn. Auditor.

He completed the first round of a state-wide series of "budget get outers" for sheriffs and their staff members this month, and is planning follow-up sessions in August and October.

The first round of instruction concerned the intricacies of preparing budgets. Schools were held in various parts of the state, including Punta Gorda, Arcadia, Palmdale, and Ocala.

The second round in August will deal with the new record forms sheriffs will use under the new system, and the third round in October will be held to make certain that the forms are being properly filled out.

The forms will be developed by Mr. Englund in cooperation with representatives of the complete state and state auditors' departments.

The 1957 law which shifts all of Florida's sheriffs from the fee system to the budget system, requires that each sheriff submit a budget to his county commission by July 15.

It sets October 1 as the date the old sheriff's fee schedule will change over to the new system.

Seven counties are already under budget-salary systems by virtue of special acts passed in the past few years, including Duval, Alachua, and Volusia.

Mr. Englund's role as consultant, however, comes as no accident. He helped to draft the budget-salary law in 1953, and he has been helping Florida's sheriffs with their fiscal problems.

Traditionally, sheriffs have been "the man with the answers" when sheriffs needed someone to turn to for help.

He conducts an answer service at his home, responding to wire, phone calls and letters from sheriffs' departments all over the state.

He also helps the state to give individual attention to the sheriffs who submit to him their own questions.

In 1954, the Florida Sheriffs' Assn. received a grant from the state to help sheriffs with their fiscal problems.

and Indian Affairs Director Max Denton there are about as many factions as there are Indians.

The Seminoles, of course, are still warring with the U.S., a possessor of considerable sympathy in the South these days, and claim to own the better part of South Florida — a controversy that probably has as many lawyers tangled up in it as there are Indians.

At the same time, there are roughly two groups of Seminoles feuding with each other—the "reservation Indians" and the "trail Indians."

Within those groups there is still more bickering between sub groups and sub-sub groups. For practical purposes, there are about 500 lined up with the "reservation Indians" and about 500 lined up with the "trail Indians," give or take a Seminole or two.

Something in the nature of historic steps are in the mill to solidify the two groups. The "reservation Indians" are about to vote on a constitution Aug. 21.

Indians living at the three federal reservations — Dania, Big Cypress, and Brighton, — will do the voting on the constitution, which has been stipulated by the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs.

This is something of an accomplishment in itself, since the last time the Seminoles had any paper dealings with the U.S. Osceola, who thought the Seminoles had been cheated, put a knife through the treaty, and said, "The only treaty I will execute is with this."

As the flowers of the current legislative debates in Florida know, everyone should have a good up to date constitution, and trail Indians figure if a constitution is good enough for the reservation Indians, maybe they should have one too.

Instead of dealing through the federal government, however, there is a "status right" movement among the trail Indians and they are going to negotiate their constitution with the state.

The main spokesmen for the trail Indians, who are forming a group known as the "Everglades Miccosukee Council," are Buffalo Tiger, Howard Osceola, Bill McKinley Osceola, and John Osceola.

They will now work with the State Cabinet. Included in the negotiations is state recognition of their constitution. The deal also includes giving the Seminoles exclusive hunting and fishing rights in a 202,000 acre tract near 40-mile bend in western Dade and Broward Counties, and specifying that the Seminoles can use — subject to state regulations — another tract in the same area for hunting and fishing.

To seal the bargain, the "Everglades Miccosukee Council" representatives have to show the Cabinet that they represent a majority of the "trail Indians."

At the same time, the state has also expressed a desire to recognize the constitution of the "reservation Indians" if it is adopted in the August balloting.

Should both of these things come about, it will cut down the problems of the state which finds it impossible to get any sort of firm agreement with the Indians because of the different factions — to the extent that it hasn't been able to sue $40,000 set aside for the Indians because it can't get any agreement on whom the money should be used.

There also is a private group headed by Lester Norris, a retired oil man from Naples, Fla., that is interested in giving the Seminoles some help. He can't find anyone to deal with either. By narrowing the field to two groups, the chances of finding some agreement would be cut from 1,000 to 1 to 2 to 1.

Gov. Collins is hopeful that the two groups will be a move toward "unification of the Seminoles." He admits that the prospect of accomplishing it is rather dim, but at the same time brighter than ever before.

Veteran Cabinet Member Nathan Mayo, Commissioner of Agriculture, said the current situation is a lot further along than when he and Gov. David Sholtz found on a visit to Seminole land in 1933. According to Mayo, the visit resulted in a request from the Seminoles to "leave us alone!" and for free auto tags.

The state honored both requests, and still gives out auto tags marked, "Seminole Indian" for free.

A committee of senators and representatives, which has been dubbed the "Constitutional Compromise committee" also is scheduled to meet.

It's chief mission is to iron out a reappropriation formula. Might be best if they give a Senator to each of the Seminole factions and let it go.

The Cabinet and the Board of Control is befuddled about a name for the new university at Tampa.

Up to now, it's name has been "The Year Degree Granting Institution at Tampa," but that wouldn't go too well in a football yell.

The Board of Control has kicked the subject around at length, and after some side trips always come back to the University of South Florida, which is geographically a little out of kilter.

The Cabinet — or more specifically, the State Board of Education — thinks a better name might be found with a little more thought.

Gov. Collins says there's no dispute. "The press," he said, "is giving the impression there is a raging controversy. But we are approaching the problem with goodwill and a fine spirit of cooperation. There are no hard feelings anywhere."

Collins says there is plenty of time to name the university, and he thinks it should be given more thought.

The Cabinet turned over a list of some 40 names to a liaison committee between the Board of Control and State Board of Education. The group will ponder the suggestions and try to come up with an answer.

The best compromise seems to be Florida Southwestern University. The trouble is that's the same initials as Florida State University.

If you have any suggestions, you might send them along. The big hitch is that the folks want both "University" and "Florida" in the name, along with keeping it short.

That's sort of like naming a baby after one relative, and trying to keep the rest of the in-laws happy.

A poetic tavern owner in Miami has come up with an "Ode To a Beer" since he has started collecting the sales tax on the foamy beverage. It goes: "From Gov. Collins with due respect."

You buy my beer, and I collect Roy's Perry." He calls the new beer, "Beer Collins" and describes it as 16 ounce draft mixed with love and tax.

Some of America's best known writers have been long-time residents of Florida. They include Robert Frost, Schlem Asch and Philip Wylie.

Locals....

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Landress and son, Phil, visited their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Mason in Miami last weekend.

Mrs. W. P. Clark and her children, Carol Lee and Bill, Jr. of Atlanta, Ga. and Mrs. Ora Davis of Sarasota were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Monalvo, Sr. for several days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGahee and daughter, Peggy Ann, of Hialeah spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Atkins at their home on Lake Loela.

Guests to Avon Park will be interested to know that the Saturday night Shuffleboard Tournaments at the Tourist Clubhouse are continuing through the summer for the members.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel O. Norris have just returned from a long vacation. They visited Mr. Norris' family in Tarentum, Pa. for several weeks. On the way to Pennsylvania they stopped with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Herrold in Aiken, S. C. and Mr. and Mrs. Kelley Sweet in Blue Grass, Va. They visited relatives in Canton, Ohio, and stopped to see Avon Park winter residents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beall in West Virginia.

The Norris' enjoyed their trip and visits very much.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Martin and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Smith of Tampa, have returned from an eventful trip to North Carolina and the mountains. They stopped first in Perry, Ga. and visited relatives and then went on to Atlanta to visit Mrs. Martin's brother, J. C. Whitworth.

At Cartersville they visited friends and saw the huge Alltoona Dam. Mrs. Martin said this was as lovely as the mountains and the beautiful lake behind the dam was filled with fishermen. The group then went to Adairsville, Ga. and Calhoun and into the Smoky Mountains and the Blue Ridge Mountains which were lovely this time of year. The weather was so cold that the group had to wear sweaters all the time. They stopped in Clayton, Ga. and came home by the Suwannee River and visited relatives.

Chamber Board Approves Largest Budget In Its History

The Avon Park Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors approved one of the largest budgets in the chamber's history at their regular meeting this past Thursday night, with newly elected President, James Heim in the chair. Advertising, printing of the monthly publication, reserve for contingencies, promotion and staff salary were the items showing largest increase in the proposed budget.

The budget was presented by the Budget and Finance Committee, composed of Malcolm K.

Crews, E. Ray Wells and E. G. Touchton. The preparation of this budget was made at a meeting of the Finance Committee, plus President Heim and Executive Secretary, Anna Belle Worden, on Tuesday afternoon of last week. At this meeting careful study of the estimated income for the coming year was made, with current and preceding years as a guide. Consideration was also made of the growth of the chamber this past year. The Avon Park Chamber now boasts the largest number of members in the history of the organization.

The Finance Committee, also recommended that the individual membership dues be increased to $15.00 and minimum business dues to $25.00. This recommendation was approved by the Directors. The dues rate increase is the first in the 32 years of the chamber's existence. As one director stated, "It is impossible to carry out a 1957 program on a 1930 budget."

The activities of the chamber have increased tremendously this past year and the opportunities to be of greater service are within reach. The Board of Directors decided by increasing the dues and budget they would be able to extend the scope of the services and operation in proportion to the growth and development of Avon Park. The Chamber of Commerce should maintain standards as high as those of a well run business. In order for this to be accomplished, funds should be made available to carry out a well rounded program of work for the chamber year.

Historic 'Beaumont' Flat Rock Estate Sold To Floridian

Flat Rock, N. C. — Beaumont historic 200-acre Flat Rock estate on the road between Hendersonville and Kaniuga Lake in Henderson County, has been sold by Kentucky old man E. L. Newton to Oakley Murphy, a Florida land investor and owner of several Carolina farms.

Although the purchase price has not yet been recorded, the property was listed by the Keyes Co. in Miami, Fla., for $200,000.

The estate includes magnificently landscaped and developed grounds, a 3-story stone mansion with 14 rooms, an operating dairy, three guest houses, caretaker cottages and a 3-acre mountain lake.

All furnishings were included in the sale. Beaumont was built by Andrew Johnston in 1840. Mrs. Sadie Smathers Patton reports in her book, "The Story of Henderson County," Johnston moved to the Flat Rock Settlement near Georgetown, S. C., where he was a planter.

During the latter days of the Civil War, bushwhackers invaded his home and killed Johnston before the eyes of his only 11-year-old son, Ed.

Ed took a rifle from a stairway post and fired at the invaders, killing one and wounding two others. Among later owners of Beaumont, Mrs. Patton reports, were the daughter of a former Kentucky governor and Frank B. Hayne, once known as the Cotton King of New Orleans.

In later years the property was owned by Mrs. Carolyn P. Brown, organizer of the American Red Cross, who devoted many years and thousands of dollars perfecting the formal gardens. Many of the shrubs and bulbs have been imported from Italy, France and Holland creating acres of beautiful sweeping lawns. The main house is three full floors and basement built of granite blocks, facing south to overlook the sweeping view of the mountains.

The new owner, Oakley Murphy, recently disposed of extensive central Florida real estate holdings for over three million dollars.

Although no plans have been announced, it is anticipated he will make "Beaumont" his home.

From there he will supervise Beaumont Dairy, with its natural pastures, and his other Carolina farms.

Rummage Sale For Churches

A community service is being operated by Mrs. T. O. Martin at her home on South Verona Ave. Mrs. Martin operates a continuous rummage sale in her carport for the benefit of churches, clubs and other civic organizations. She will sell any thing brought to her and give the proceeds to the group bringing the merchandise.

Mrs. Martin has been selling rummage for three years in her carport and has been able to help many groups raise large sums as well as supplying good used articles at low prices to customers. There is a large demand for children's clothes at all times and for used baby furniture. Even cotton rags are in great demand.

The carport rummage store is open at all hours and someone is always nearby to wait upon customers.

This operation is for the benefit of Avon Park and any group interested in selling their rummage of any type may contact Mrs. T. O. Martin.

Dodge Schedules Ads In 3,700 Newspapers

Detroit — Dodge has scheduled advertising space in 3,700 of the nation's daily and weekly newspapers to back its "most aggressive Summer sales program," according to W. D. Moore, director of advertising and merchandising.

Moore said display ads running from three to seven columns in size would be used in the campaign, which runs for a 10-week period extending through September. The firm will spend more than $1,000,000 on the program, including radio and television to supplement the newspaper campaign.

Based on the theme "You're paying for a new car — make sure you get one!" the selling program is designed to take advantage of the growing market for cars in the Summer and Fall seasons; to maintain sales momentum built up through the first half of the 1957 model year; and to meet heavy "price" campaigns by competitors, Moore said.

52d Radar Detectives Solve Bugs At Sites

When a rifle bullet misfires you simply fire another. Artillerymen's "ears" however, are costly and complex. Built with precision parts in half-line adjustment these "ears" have to hear right the first time.

At present, to make sure that 52d Brigade's radars perform properly it takes hours, even days, of careful testing and modifying by a highly trained crew of radar specialists in the little known 358th Signal Detachment, located in the old Post's blacksmith shop area.

Commanded by CWO William A. Thompson, a veteran of 11 years' artillery service and graduate of Fort Bliss' electronics school, the 358th is one of five detachments in the New York Defense.

For Rehabilitating Alcoholics, A Therapeutic Campus Community

This state center for treatment and rehabilitation of alcoholics in Avon Park, Fla., is a new kind of building, very different from older facilities for what was known as "the cure."

Because alcoholism appears to be notably unresponsive to individual treatment and not amenable to various kinds of group treatment (such as Alcoholics Anonymous), this center is most carefully designed to foster community life. The generous number of gathering rooms, used both for therapy and casual sociability — are shrewdly placed for maximum convenience and use. Moreover, the arrangement of the separate building units, with their covered walkways forms a rather light knit, inward-facing village. But not too tight, because it is also vital for the patients, all of whom come voluntarily, not to feel they have been trapped or confined.

Like the group medical center, this establishment serves much more complex functions than its visual simplicity indicates. The ten-bed intensive treatment area with clinical facilities takes patients during the initial "drying out" period of two to seven days. The 40-patient ambulatory area (20 men, 12 women) serves a 30-day program of individual psychotherapy, group therapy, social service assistance, occupational, recreational and work therapy and exposure to "the total push" of the community network. After this, patients leave the center's living accommodations but attend the outpatient clinic in the main receiving and clinical unit.

The administrative area is headquarters not only for the center, but for direction of planning, education, research and regional outpatient activities of the state-wide Florida Alcoholics Rehabilitation Program.

Future expansion is planned for almost all present units, including doubling of ambulatory facilities, the maximum considered desirable. Other plans for the 100-acre site include a separate center for about 300 court-committed patients, staff and trainee housing.

Construction cost, including fees, was $340,190 or $13.75 per sq. ft. (steel framing, laminated wood beams, concrete block walls).
