W. A. MEYER, Publisher, The Avon Park Sun

Some 130 persons gathered at the Jacaranda Hotel last Wednesday and Thursday (April 24-25) for a state industrial development conference. When the dust settled, and speakers, participants and reporters were ready to start for home, there appeared to be general agreement that for Florida communities it is now or never as far as getting ready for industry is concerned.

The two-day program, which brought to Avon Park some of the nation's top industrialization specialists, was conducted by the General Extension Division of Florida in cooperation with the Avon Park Industrial Development Association, the Florida Development Commission, the Florida Planning and Zoning Association, and Florida Power Corporation.

Local Nurses Guest Speakers At Local School

Miss Henri Douglas, Registered Nurse, and Mrs. Frankie Philpott, Director of Nurses, both of the Walker Memorial Hospital were guest speakers at the local High School assembly program Friday. They spoke to the students on the nursing profession.

This was the second in a series of programs planned by the Guidance and Counseling Department of the school and the Avon Park Rotary Club to acquaint the older students with some of the vocations and callings which are available to them, to advise them of what the vocation has to offer and the demands it makes on those who follow it. It is intended to help the student in choosing a life work and afford him an insight into the many careers available.

He said that this factor will strongly influence industry to locate in Florida where the labor supply situation is and will be most favorable.

"Our state is not an old folks' home — it is a vibrant, vital, robust state, that is as attractive to the young-in-heart as it is to the young-in-fact," he said. "All ages are welcome because all bring something of value to our economy."

He also said it would be a mistake to underestimate the value of the rapidly increasing over-65 population.

"Their steady income from social security is a great asset."

cial security, private pension plans, and their own savings... the stability of Florida's future commercial economy," he said. "It should be based on our own resources in other states."

Clapp also advised Floridians to encourage the growth of local business, and to give away part of our industrial development potential when we ship out our raw goods to be processed in other states.

C. Wickham Skinner who was largely responsible for the choice of the Clearwater site of the new Minneapolis-Honeywell plant, told the group that while economic factors, such as labor supply, transportation facilities and nearness to market areas are important to the manufacturer, more and more emphasis is being given to the community which is being considered for plant location.

He said that new stress is being placed on such matters as local politics, community attitudes and planning for growth.

Following Skinner, James L. Shoemaker, Florida Power analyst, outlined the adoption of special industrial development programs by colleges and universities.

He urged community representatives to roll out the red carpet, to list to good prospects, to give out hard facts without generalizations, to concede weaknesses, to obtain community-wide cooperation, and to bait the hook with a constructive program of community improvement.

At the afternoon meeting, Gustav Larson said that the development of atomic power will pave the way for even more extensive industrialization in Florida.

He said that as the dependence on conventional power decreases, manufacturers will place more and more emphasis on such factors as climate and living conditions.

Howard Smith, field executive for the Florida Development Commission, urged that community leaders not wait for the Commission to deliver industry on a platter. He said that there is more demand for plants than there are prospects at present.

Other afternoon speakers included David O. Nihart, manager of the Dade County Chamber of Commerce, who reviewed the chamber's responsibilities for the state's economic development, and John A. Hart, leader of the Florida Realty Association, who analyzed the legal technicalities of providing land for industrial uses.

At an evening banquet meeting, Mr. McGowan conveyed to the group that his publishing firm had gathered a list of 6,163 industrial locations which, 67% in this country. He said this is evidence of a growing competition for industry among communities.

Conway said the way to hold your own against such a large number of competitors is to promote professional competence for community planning.

"The typical developer is required to be familiar with a wide range of subjects ranging from markets and labor relations to water pollution and mortgage financing," he said. "Altogether, he must be conversant with some 100 different factors which may have an important influence on the location of an industrial plant."

Conway urged the adoption of special industrial development programs by colleges and universities.

"Our profession is one of the largest and most important in the nation, and it is our duty to make it a more academic body," he said.

Thursday morning's meeting was concerned with a technical discussion by Milton D. Black, Florida Power development engineer, of industrial parks, buildings and sites, and an analysis by Robert Beasley, chief of the reports and analysis division, Florida Power, of the state's industrial manpower requirements.

Beasley said that the state is in a favorable position as a highly skilled "shortage occupation" is concerned, because it has a large number of manufacturers to provide a manufacturer to lure technicians to Florida. He also said the state's senior citizen population represents a large, untapped labor potential for new industries.

He urged communities to make use of the Florida State Employment Service's recruitment divisions.

The final afternoon session of the conference produced a consensus of opinion which was summarized by Mr. J. executive secretary of the Florida Planning and Zoning Association, as follows: Florida Development Commission is not providing "solid local assistance" in community planning, and of over-emphasizing advertising for industry.

He said the Commission's "solid local assistance" is in a position only to take a combination of 50 percent of your money and hire a consultant to the planning job for you. Thus the state provides bookkeeping and supervisory services toward making planning inflexible, and tends to perpetuate the error that an outsider can do the job for you.

He said the Commission has one man working in communities, and expressed disappointment that it "apparently proposes to operate largely as a magnified advertising commission, and to neglect provision of local services which are much needed."

Howard Smith, of the Development Commission, replied to the Commission budget calls for expenditures.

In the new story on "Who's Who" Page in last week's issue the date of the opening of the Ridge Fuel Co. was noted as July 1935, this date should have been in July 1933. Chevrolet Has

4-Wheel Drive
On 12 Models

Detroit — Chevrolet Motor Division now is in production of 12 models of 4-wheel drive trucks at its Willow Run Truck Plant, Herman P. Sattler, assistant general sales manager for commercial cars and trucks, announced today.

The new 4-wheel drive vehicles will meet the demands of specialized truck users, by supplying the additional power and traction demanded by many off-highway operations. They will be available in the Suburban Carryall; the half, three-quarter and one-ton pickup; one-ton panel; and three-quarter and one-ton stake truck models.

The versatile "4x4's" are designed to meet specific needs of off-road operators where steep grades, deep mud and sand, and other conditions of terrain make operation of normal 2-wheel drive vehicles difficult or impossible.

Among suggested uses for the all-wheel drive unit are as a line maintenance vehicle for utility companies; as an emergency truck and ambulance by the military and civil defense organization; as a motorized "back-horse" for prospectors, surveyors, woodmen and sportsmen; as an all-purpose delivery and odd-job unit for road builders, oil field operators, strip miners and contractors, and as a rugged hauler with many specialized uses for farmers.

Ease of operation is one of the outstanding features of the new vehicles. The power is supplied through a four-speed transmission, then "split" between the front and rear wheels through a two-speed transfer case. Front wheel drive may be engaged or disengaged at any time without using the clutch, provided the transfer case is shifted into direct drive.

For maximum power application, the transfer case is shifted into low range. The power is then applied to both the front and rear wheels through the transfer case.

2 (15-16 oz.) cans macaroni and cheese
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
4 hard cooked eggs
1 (1 lb.) can sockeye or pink salmon

Senator Carlton Legislative Report

Tallahassee — State Senator Doyle E. Carlton, Jr., of Waukegan, Ill., today the legislative committee on Agriculture will take up this week pass a $3,000,000 appropriations measure providing matching funds for the fight to eradicate screw worms in Florida.

That measure will hinge on the federal government's delivery of a matching $3,000,000, and no state money could be spent without federal funds.

Senator Carlton, who represents the 27th district, said most officials of the state and federal government "think an effective program can be achieved."

He said the state has undergone an intense infestation of screw worms both in livestock and in game animals.

Sportmen, ranchers and farmers have joined forces in the battle to set up an effective control net for Florida.

Senator Carlton is chairman of the senate livestock committee, which gave unanimous approval to the screw worm measure. He is a co-sponsor of the bill.

Soil Conservation District News

By Sam Polston
U. S. Soil Conservation Service
Mr. David Maxwell, President of the Florida Association of Soil Conservation Districts and his fellow supervisors from the Santa Fe Soil Conservation District were conducted on a tour of the Highlands Soil Conservation District last week. They visited several district cooperator's ranches.

Mr. Maxwell was impressed with the type of pasture that was being produced with proper water control and fertilization program.

Mrs. Katherine Wagmann, chairman of the Highlands Soil Conservation District and her husband, George, took them on a tour of their ranch where they saw clover pasture under sheep age irrigation. Wagmann stated that he had stocked the clover pasture at the rate of one steer per acre in February after planting in November and expected to increase it to possibly two per acre very shortly.

The Highlands Soil Conservation District assisted Mr. John DuPuis and Taylor and Dunly in developing a complete soil and water conservation plan. The Soil Conservation Service was requested by these district cooperator for assistance in developing water control plans.

Mr. DuPuis is interested in developing about 1,000 acres of improved pasture of which about 300 acres will be irrigated. His ranch is about two miles east of Venus.

The Taylor-Dunly ranch is in the Parker Island area and they plan to develop about 300 acres of organic land into improved pasture after the proper water control facilities have been installed.

DO YOU KNOW?

By James D. Judd
Evangelist, Church of Christ

Last week we were unable to get our article to the printer due to circumstances beyond our control. However, this gave us an extra week to receive an answer to our last question. We had asked the question: "Where does the Bible teach that any Christian ever kept Saturday as the Sabbath?" At this time NO ONE has sent in one scripture where this is taught. The reason is evident; it is not in the Bible. The Bible records the fact that Christians CAME TOGETHER on the FIRST DAY of the week to worship. In Acts 20:7 it states that, "Upon the first day of the week, when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them." The scripture states the exact day they came together and the exact purpose. The day was "the first day of the week" or Sunday and the purpose was "to break bread." This breaking bread WAS NOT a communion meal as some believe, because the Bible says, "The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" (I Corinthians 10:16) Thus their purpose of assembly was to have communion or the Lord's Supper and at the same time Paul preached unto them.

At the same time on the first day of the week they not only had the communion and preaching but they had the contribution for the Lord's work. The Bible says, "Upon the first day of the week let everyone of you by the week in store, as God has prospered him. . . . (I Corinthians 16:2) The Bible is plain on these points and any church that does not practice this is not following the New Testament pattern of worship.

Now to our question for this week. WHERE WERE PREACHERS IN THE BIBLE EVER CALLED BY THE RELIGIOUS TITLES OF REVEREND, DOCTOR, RABBI, OR FATHER?

The practice is quite general in religious circles today. But where can such titles be found in the Bible? Do you remember reading of Rev. Peter, Rev. Paul or the Right Reverend John? Do you recall the passage that speaks of Dr. James or Dr. Jude? We have no reference to the degree of Doctor of Medicine or to other Doctor's degrees that have been received as a result of educational attainments in the field of science or philosophy, but to the use of the term as a religious title. If you know where the passage is located in the Bible please send it and we will be glad to print it. If you do not know, ask your preacher, especially so if he uses one of these religious titles. —Ad-

MAJOR ADDRESS — Congressman Paul Rogers, West Palm Beach, hit the big time when he addressed the Harvard Advanced Management Assn. of New York City. He called his talk "Good Government is the Issue" and gave some of the background which led to the introduction of his government accounting reform bill which now is Public Law 863. Senate sponsor of the bill was John Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Rogers' reforms have saved the government so much money that he has introduced a bill that would broaden the scope of last year's successful measure. Principal feature of the new proposal, Rogers explained, is to set up the entire budget of the Government on an annual accounting expenditure basis, thus eliminating a huge backlog of money which is unused from year to year. "In fact," Rogers said, "today we have almost $10 billion in this backlog. The proposed system as you realize would do away with this backlog since the Congress would approve only the amount of money to be spent during the Fiscal Year."

Rogers' program follows the recommendation as set forth in the Second Hoover Commission report.

EARTHY ANSWER — Former President Harry Truman has written another letter. This time it was in reply to an invitation from Congressman Charlie Bennett to speak at the upcoming dedication of Fort Caroline just outside Jacksonville.

Mr. Truman said he couldn't be there because the dedication

Army Recruiter To Appear Here Every Thursday

The United States Army Recruiting Service has been given responsibility for a major recruiting program for the Army Reserve.

Designed to offer youths the opportunity of satisfying their military obligations through service in both the Ready and Standby Reserve, the new reserve plan now includes the age group 17 through 25 of non-prior service men.

1st Sgt. Thomas R. Crawford, United States Army Recruiter in Avon Park, said today that all age groups will find certain advantages for each individual in the group. He said that from the standpoint of building a strong, combat-ready Army Reserve, the new Reserve Programs align themselves in the following priorities:

First — Age group 18½ thru 25.

Second — Age group 17 to 18½ (under Section 262, RFA,
'55) who enter on active duty for training immediately.

Third — Age group 17 to 18½, who postpone their active duty training until they finish high school (one year or less).
No eligible prospect will be discouraged from enlisting in the program best suited for his particular case, but recruiting emphasis will be on the 18½ to 25 age group.

Enlistees age 18½ through 25
will serve in the Ready Reserve 5½ years following their six months active duty for training. This group will be "draft-delayed" while serving satisfactorily in the program. They have no Standby Reserve obligation.

The second group age 17 to 18½ serve six months on active duty for training, then three years in the Ready Reserve and throughout the 8th District. Purpose was to give background information on principal issues in the nation's Capital. Ended up as a question and answer session. Folks from half a dozen communities came to Lake City for the meeting at the invitation of the Columbia County Chamber of Commerce.

SURPRISE ANSWER — 75%
of the folks in Central Florida are in favor of statehood for Alaska and Hawaii — according to a poll taken during the past few weeks by Congressman Syd Herlong. The question of statehood for Alaska and Hawaii was one of ten that Herlong asked on various subjects in his annual questionnaire to his constituents.

PLANNED THIS WAY? —
Congressman Charlie Bennett is a member of the Armed Forces Committee. Question: has his association with things military begun to effect his home life? Armed Services Day has been set for May 18th this year — and that is the day that the Bennetts expect the new addition to their family. Odds are among the Florida Delegation are that he'll miss it — plus or minus three days.

4½ years in the Standby Reserve.

The third group, age 17 to 18½, delay their active duty for training up to one year while they complete High School.
Following this they serve six months on active duty for training, then three years in the Ready Reserve, followed by up to three and a half years (depending on the delay prior to active duty) in the Standby Reserve. Their total obligation is 5 years.

The man who enlists in the program between age 17 and 18½, but is delayed going on active duty for training until he passes age 18½, incurs a 6-year obligation, instead of 5, but he must spend 5½ years in the Ready Reserve.

Sergeant Crawford said that he has more detailed information concerning the Army's Reserve Program and also will be glad to counsel youths interested in any phase of Army careers. Sergeant Crawford may be contacted at the Avon Park Post Office between the hours of 1:30 and 3:30 every Thursday.

CRACKER POLITICS

BY ALLEN MORRIS

Tallahassee—There were 3,879 bills introduced at the last regular session of the Florida Legislature. These bills embraced 688 subjects.

It seems quite likely a great number will be introduced during the present legislative session.

A candidate for the '57 session pledged the voters that he would read each bill three times, word for word. If he has been elected, he would be reading round the clock these days.

But reading a bill means little. Leaving aside those involving specialized subjects, even bills dealing with fairly common matters require interpretation and background for comprehension.

In these figures and facts may be found the reason for lobbyists.

While more than 350 persons have registered with the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives under its lobbying requirements, it is difficult to generalize about them.

It might be said that lobbyists could be categorized by the nature of their representation: say in three broad classes (1) Professional and occupational groups, (2) Business and industrial associations, and (3) Public agencies.

Yet the retainers of a single lobbyist may cut across the whole field. For example, former Representative H. T. Cook of Dunell has signed up with the Chief Clerk on behalf of the Old Republic Life Insurance Co. of Chicago (category 2), the Florida Assn. of Insurance Agents (category 1), and the Flagler County School Board (category 3).

And those categories, broad as they are, do not seem to cover such lobbyists as those who represent causes like these: Christian Science, Rod and Gun Club, League of Women Voters, Skindiving Assn., Credit Union League, Circuit Judge George E. Holt, School Service Assn., Save-Life Council, American Legion.

Bedfellows in category 1, the Professional and Occupational Groups, include the Florida Medical Assn., the County Tax Collectors, the Bricklayers, Union, the Greyhound Owners (that's the dogs, not the buses whose spokesmen fall in category 2), The Florida Education Assn., the Sanitariums and the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen.

Incidentally, the House lobbyist register—which at the end of the third lawmaking week included 111 professional or occupational groups, 193 business concerns or industrial associations, and 82 public agencies, plus those defying categorization—seems to refute the perennial claim that everybody is represented except the taxpayers. Offhand, it would be hard to imagine a taxpayer whose interest is so exotic as not to be served by some lobbyist now here.

Even Gov. Collins is represented: by Donald K. Carroll of Jacksonville, immediate past president of The Florida Bar, and Richard Gardner of Quincy, and John F. Germany of Tampa. And the chiefs and employees of Mrs. Margaret Chapman of Sarasota, Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Florida, was honored at a banquet given by Leigh Chapter Thursday evening, April 25, at the First Methodist Church, prior to her official visit to the Chapter that night.

Eighty-four members of the Order of the Eastern Star attended the meeting at the Masonic Temple.

During Mrs. Chapman's address to the Chapter she recited Kipling's poem "If," which was enjoyed by all.

The table was overlaid with a beautiful imported hand cut-linen cloth and covered with a lovely three tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

WE RECEIVED an invitation to attend a dinner at which Hugh Gutkell, Leader of the British Labor Party, and Norman Thomas, Leader of the American Socialist Party, were to be the principal speakers. The program was headed "The Socialist Challenge to Communism." It is a slight misnomer and should have read "The Socialist Road to Communism." In Russia they call it the Communist Road to Socialism. It does not matter for the two terms are different approaches to the same objective - government ownership of the means of production. The technique differs but the end is the same. These two terms may be compared to two trails starting from different points but meeting at the top of the mountain.
