Grouping Of Students Theme For Avon Elementary PTA Jan. 9

The Avon Elementary P. T. A. will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday, January 9, at 8 o'clock in the Avon Elementary Cafeteria on West Withrop Street.

Mrs. J. Ann Crittenden and Mrs. Andrew Miracle will conduct a discussion on "Grouping of Students" which will be of vast interest to all parents. During the discussion they will present some of the different methods of grouping students and will explain the advantages and disadvantages of ability grouping. Following the discussion a question and answer period will be held with all parents encouraged to ask questions. This program will be an up to the minute discussion of some problems parents have been talking of and all who are interested are urged to attend. T-shirts with the Avon Elementary Sign will be available at the meeting for those wishing to buy or examine them. Refreshments will be served after the meeting by the third grade room mothers.

A double eagle was a twenty-dollar gold piece.

Pink And White Color Theme At Saturdays Tea

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hayes Maxwell was the scene of a Tea honoring Miss Jane Maxwell and Miss Carol Pike of Tennessee on Saturday afternoon, Dec. 28. Many friends called during the afternoon to wish the honorees well. A lovely table covered with a floor length cloth of net embroidered with silver and featuring satin bows on the ruffle was used to serve the guests. Tea, fruit cake and delicious cookies. A crystal compote of dainty pink carnations graced the table. A pink reindeer carried a sleigh of larger pink carnations above the fireplace to complete the pink and white color scheme. Assisting Mrs. Maxwell and her daughter, Claire, with the sonville. Leader of the drive is congressman Charlie Bennett. He says the Corps should include Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina. "With 3rd Army headquarters in Atlanta, Jacksonville is the logical place for the Corps headquarters," Bennett said.

To push his idea, he made an after-noon call one evening last week on Secretary of the Army William M. Brucker in his Pentagon office. No promise was forthcoming, but Brucker told Bennett that he was "sympathetic" to his approach. Final decision won't be made until after plans for the new 4th Corps organization have been completed.

As he was leaving Brucker's office, the Secretary asked Bennett to deliver two messages for him. "First," Brucker said, "is a word of good cheer to my old schoolmate who now lives in Jacksonville, Robert S. Seiner" (Chairman of the Jacksonville Chamber of Commerce Committee on Military Affairs). "We went to school together in Michigan when we were boys. The other message is to a sweet little lady that I met at a dinner when she was in Florida's 'Mother of the Year' (1957)."

Eleven inches deep. We never saw so much snow. It is almost impossible to get anywhere in Washington. In the first place, people here don't know how to drive—ever on bright sunny days. And when it snows, they seem to throw up their hands in despair. They spin their wheels and skid sideways. This stalls traffic. The flocks behind them sit in their cars with heat.

MISSILE FIZZLE JITTERS. The smoke had hardly settled at Cape Canaveral after the world renowned "misdemeanor" before Senator Holland pointed his finger at the three mistakes that the Department of Defense has made in our missile program. (1) He said it was unwise to divide the program between the three military services and let them fight and compete over who was going to do what. (2) He said that those in authority should not have allowed themselves to be pushed into this hasty and unwise experiment by gossip and criticism both here and overseas. (3) He thought we should have a "ridiculous departure" from our previous sound approach to the satellite launching program. "The sooner we get over our case of the jitters," he said, "and get back to a basis of mature thinking on the satellite and the guided missile programs, the sooner we will regain our lost self respect in these two fields." Holland said that the need for unification in our Armed Forces is so urgent, that if the Executive Department doesn't take some action to bring it about, he is sure the next Congress certainly will.

MORE ARMY TO JAX. The move is on to get the newly organized Army 4th Corps headquarters station in Jacksonville.
