Mr. Nicholson stated that the American Red Cross is at its lowest ebb financially since World War II due to the many devastating disasters and emergencies in the past few years. He sighted the Audrey Hurricane in Louisiana and the Hungarian Relief Program. 59 Red Cross Societies participated in this Hungarian Relief Program. Our American Red Cross provided a major part of the $9 million spent on this operation including personnel to man 6 of the 44 Refugee Camps set up in Austria for Hungarian Relief.

Women Work For Traffic Safety

Traffic accidents always make more news than the efforts to prevent them. But the efforts are being made, and in terms of the lives they will save in the future, they are more important than the most widely reported accident.

It is heartening to find an unusually constructive approach to the problem coming from industry—in this case from an oil company whose interest in the motorist reaches far beyond the sale of gasoline.

It's called the Carol Lane Awards for Traffic Safety. It is the only national recognition offered to women for their achievements toward the preservation of lives through traffic safety programs at the community or state level.

The awards, named for the women's travel director of Shell Oil Company, are made each year to three individual women and to three women's or parents' groups that have developed and directed effective traffic safety programs. They consist of $1,000, $500 and $250 in savings bonds for first, second and third, respectively, plus sculptures or bas-reliefs symbolizing women's protective instinct.

These awards have gone to women for promoting better vehicle inspection, programs leading to improvement of motor vehicle laws, pedestrian and bicycle safety, and driver training—especially among teenagers.

This approach appeals to women's natural desire to protect life, and it encourages women to use their opportunities—usually greater than men's—to work with young people in promoting traffic safety.

The awards are an example of a corporation accepting responsibility and encouraging public participation in a worthwhile cause.

How To Hail The Triumph Over Polio

A new kind of celebration is in full swing in this country. This month thousands of communities in every part of the land are observing the 20th anniversary of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. It was National Foundation leadership and National Foundation money, provided through the annual March of Dimes, that made possible the Salk vaccine and the hope that polio epidemics eventually will be eliminated forever in America.

Think what that means! No more mass imprisonment in iron lungs each summer; no more shriveled arms, legs, hands; no more dread in the hearts of millions of parents each time their children come home with "the symptoms".

The best way to celebrate a blessing like this is to show our gratitude. And the best way to be grateful for the Salk vaccine is to think about the blighted lives of those for whom it has come too late and to do what we can to wipe out or relieve their helplessness. There are, in America, some 100,000 boys and girls, young men and women, who have had polio and who need further rehabilitation.

These people can benefit, some of them tremendously, if modern techniques of rehabilitation are applied to their disability. It is the purpose of the March of Dimes to finance the care they need. The coat will run to many millions. And the March of Dimes looks to us—to every one of us—to give what we can toward this wonderful objective.

Let's not forget those who were not as lucky as we. Let's remember, as the March of Dimes puts it, that "Survival Is Not Enough". Let's give!

CAPITOL CAPSULE

By DON MEIKLEJOHN

GRAY FLANNEL SUIT—According to a study made by Miss Juanita Gibson at Florida State University's School of Public Administration on Florida's governorship timber, the "cracker" politican has lost out to the "gray flannel suit" boys.

Says Miss Gibson:

"Despite occasional aberrations, the Florida electorate has witnessed and supported what might be called a gradual evolution from the aristocratic gentleman through the 'cracker' politican to the smooth, urbane promoter in the 'gray flannel suit' stereotype."

She says that the Florida governorship needs strengthening, but it should not be done until the office is "subject to greater democratic responsibility than it is today."

By "greater democratic responsibility" she meant such things as allowing a governor to seek reelection so he could run on his record, and the evolution of a strong two-party system, which would insure party responsibility.

• • • •

MAKE ME PRETTY—Some of the artists interviewed to paint pictures of former House speakers are a little miffed at the artistic appreciation of the screening committee members.

The trouble is probably lack of political knowledge on the part of some of the artists.

A couple of them didn't seem to understand that all the House members wanted were pictures that looked like the men.

After all, can you imagine a politician that wants to be depicted with a square head, as seems to be the trend these days among artists?

• • • •

TV IN PRISON—Lawbreakers, who seem to be the chief topic on home TV screens these days, won't escape the camera's eye after going to prison.

A plan has been approved to use closed circuit television to keep things in order at the new prison building at Raiford.

• • • •

EYE ON THE BALL—Gov. LeRoy Collins kept his eye on the ball and not on the audience during a recent discussion of state institutions insuring themselves against accidents to employes.

Collins said the question boiled down to one of the public's interest against the insurance company's interest. He said he was for self insurance in the public interest.

In the audience on the side of the insurance companies were some of Collins' closest person friends and supporters—including a former administrative assistant.

• • • •

FEDERAL JUDGE SPLIT—Some old-time Republicans (of which there are mighty few) in Leon County are a little upset about the State GOP bosses backing a relative "Johnnie Come Lately" in party affairs—Harrold Carswell—for federal judge of the northern district.

This group favors Will Oven, Jr., Tallahassee, who they say is a better lawyer and has been a Republican longer.

• • • •

WAIVER OF IMMUNITY—The fuss over Duval County Sheriff Al Cahill, who was investigated by a grand jury, has posed an interesting question.

"Is it proper for a public official to refuse to sign a waiver of immunity against possible prosecution when appearing before a grand jury?"

The Florida Constitutional Advisory Commission recommended a provision that would have automatically booted out a public official that refused to sign such a waiver, but the proposal was eliminated in legislative committee and does not appear in the final draft of the proposed new charter.

Winter Guest Club News

Mrs. Ireland and Mrs. Pickell won the Ladies' doubles tournament on Wednesday while Jim Brown and Eldred Gruber won the men's doubles. The ladies' winners then challenged the men's winners to a match which the men won by a 2-1 score. Saturday's pot-luck tournament was taken by Mrs. Pickell and Mr. Eisemann; this was such a long-winded affair it had to be finished on Monday. Next Thursday, Feb. 6, there will be a tournament between Michigan and Ohio; this is a special match caused, we hear, by a little boasting here and there. On Friday, Feb. 7 Sebring will be here for the third in the cup series so come out, all you fans, and cheer our teams to victory; we need all the support we can get.

Last Thursday night we had rain, remember? This did not dampen the enthusiasm of a goodly number of photo fans who gathered to see the excellent pictures shown by Mrs. Ney Smith and Mr. Wheaton. After seeing the beauties of nature we felt well repaid for any inconvenience experienced in sloshing our way to the clubhouse.

Clara Rentscher had the high score in Tuesday's bridge games, with E. Ludington second. There were seven tables at play, presided over most capably by Mrs. Wallace Wyman. Door prizes went to Bert Tizzard and Ed Coan. An innovation this season which meets with unanimous approval is the practice of sounding a warming bell when time to progress is at hand; this eliminates the confusion caused by some players being quicker than others.

There were 77 present at the covered-dish supper on Saturday; Michigan again had the most members in attendance with 18. A short, informal social hour followed before the diners separated for visiting and cards; we will all be glad when the weather moderates so we can shuffle after supper.

On February 6 there will be an entertainment, "The Four Sons", under the direction of Ogden. These entertainers come very well recommended. Again, because of limited seating capacity, we must ask you to present your membership cards for admission. Also, as has been the policy for a number of years, no visitor permits can be issued for this night.

On Sunday, Mrs. Lila Mann, program chairman of the Sebring club was present, with a large delegation from that club. There were also several visitors from the Frostproof club; all told 199 lusty singers made the rafters ring. Mrs. C. F. Schroeder of Sebring and Mr. Jerome Shiltz led the singing. Special numbers included a bass solo by Martin Glass of Pennsylanvia and an instrumental duet by Mr. Paul Briedentine of Pennsylvania and Mr. Wilber Cooper of Maryland, accompanied by Mrs. C. F. Schroeder. Mr. Shiltz will not be present at the next two sings but urges a continued good attendance for them. The next sing on February 9 will be in charge of Mr. Ney Smith.

At the latest count 130 members and their guests attended the dance on Friday night and judging by laughter and friendly chatter, all had a very pleasant evening. About 30 remained after the dance to enjoy coffee and doughnuts.

Birthdays Celebrated With Joint Party

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Weber was the scene of a 'rainy day' birthday party on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 23, when their sons, Rion Starkey and Steve Weber celebrated their sixth and ninth birthdays.

Rion's guests each received numbers when they arrived and Rion drew corresponding numbers later and the lucky boys and girls received prizes. The group enjoyed stories and songs. Steve's friends enjoyed older games and both groups were served ice cream, birthday cake, and punch together. The birthday cakes were decorated with yellow and green icing.

Steve's guests were Bobby Russ, Johnny Mason, Bobby Barben, Jeffrey Stookey, Wayne, Gerald and Jerry Turner.

Helping Rion celebrate his birthday were Stephen Anderson, Jane Barben, Charlie Hood, Quentin Atkins, Diana Murphy, Nancy Todd, Anne Montsdeoca, Wesley Turner, Sarah Catherine Turnbull, Nancy Tyson, and Rickie Green.

Sans Souci Entertained By Miss Pearson

Members of the Sans Souci Bridge Club were entertained by Miss Millie Pearson in the Florida Power Lounge on Tuesday night, Jan. 21.

Three tables of bridge were in play during the evening with Mrs. Alice Sherman winning high score prize, Miss Sara Sellers, second, and Mrs. Ethel McKelvaine won the guest prize. Special guests prizes were given Mrs. Pauline Bragg, Miss Pearson's sister, of Bailey, N. C., and Miss Anne Felton.

Ice cream and cookies were served the guests by Miss Pearson.

Regular members and guests playing were Mrs. Sherman, Miss Milded Myers, Mrs. Paxton Hill, Mrs. C. R. Ginn, Mrs. Raymond Dilley, Mrs. Ben Stewart, Miss Sara Sellars, Mrs. Bragg, Mrs. McKelvaine, Miss Felton, Mrs. R. L. Brown, Mrs. Pat Lookhoff, and Mrs. Charles Wright.

Girl Scout News

The Girl Scout Troop had a field trip on Wednesday, Jan. 22, with their leaders Mrs. Bob Lee, Mrs. N. H. Booth, and Mrs. John Townsend.

The troop gathered at the school walked to the office of the Avon Park Sun where they were shown the operations of a newspaper by Bill Meyer, Publisher of the local paper.

The various machinery used in printing a paper, such as the linotype machines, the folding and cutting machines, and the book binding machines were explained to the Scouts by Mr. Meyer. A highlight of the visit which each Scout will remember was a linotype slug given them with their own name by Mr. Meyer. The leaders and Scouts wish to sincerely thank him for his patience and courtesy.

After the visit to the paper the twenty-three Scouts and their leaders enjoyed a discussion of their visit and refreshments at the drugstore.

At the regular meeting on Thursday afternoon the patrols divided and one group stayed in the Scout Hall and the other group went to the Florida Power Customer's Loung for instruction in cookie making with Miss Faye Gordon.

Miss Gordon showed the Scouts how to make four kinds of cookies from one dough and helped them bake two kinds of cookies there. She also give them some very valuable lessons in the measuring of ingredients. At the close of the cooking lesson Miss Gordon served the cookies they had made and hot chocolate with marshmellows to the Scouts. The girls all throughly enjoyed themselves and learned a good deal. They send their appreciation to Miss Gordon and the Florida Power Company.

The two patrols who remained at the Scout Hall started painting plaques. There were 37 Girl Scouts present at the meeting on Thursday.

On Saturday, Jan. 25, a large number of the Scouts sold orange juice from 9 until 5 to aid in the March of Dimes. The girls enjoyed the hard work and a large amount of the juice. They were aided by their leaders, Mrs. Bob Lee and Mrs. N. H. Booth, who worked all day with the project. The Scouts felt that they had really acomplished something at the end of the day when they had a large amount to add to the March fund.

BALANCE IN NATURE

By The Bird Woman

We are all prone to think that this planet on which we are living is the universe, and we do not stop to consider that there are many other planets as large as we are and traveling in there own orbits and with their own satellites and directed by the hand of the omnipotent Creator, and that just one little slip by any one of the satellites would bring havoc on us all.

We know that we have an all wise Creator and when this planet we call our world, was being made habitable for man, it was not just an accident that every thing fell into place like a jig-saw puzzle.

Even man with his limited intelligence, does not start to build a house whether large or small, until he draws his plans and makes his blueprints. What would be our opinion of a man who would select his building material, and his building site, and pile up the lumber, brick and mortar and then sit back and wait for those inanimate objects to gradually take on life and adjust themselves into a perfect building.

We know from reading Genesis just what was the order of adjusting and creating to make a perfect world for man's home. We read that this planet was "Without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep". But the master Creator was working, not without plan, and he divided the waters into their places and caused dry land to appear, he arranged for light by day and also by night, and he covered the earth with all our wonderful vegitation, and gave us the fowls of the air and the beasts of the fields, and all the living creatures that inhabit the waters.

Each tree we learn was to bring forth seed after it's kind, to perpetuate it's self, and each insect and living creature was given the power of reproduction so that it's kind would continue to exist.

All this was according to plan, and in perfect adjustment, so that when the highest creation, man, was placed on the earth every thing was perfect and in balance.

Every living creature was given an appetite to eat the food planned for it's body, all appetites were not alike, some enjoyed meats, others vegetables and some both, but the digestive parts were planned to take care of the food their appetites demanded, and the habitat of each was established where the food grew that it was intended to consume.

Some of the lower creatures of creation multiplied by the thousands for they were to become the food of numerous other fowls and insects and still be enough left to carry on the specie, there was enough insects to supply the food and enough fowls to keep the insects in check. The same thing existed in the higher creations, where the old and the weak of a specie fell prey to the larger species, which not only held the specie in check, but left the stranger members to carry on the specie.

This continued on up the ladder, where we find man the highest creation and the Creator said to man, "Have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowls of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the face of the earth".

But as time went on man seemed to missinterpret the meaning of the charge given by the Creator, and probably because the earth contained such an abundance, man seemed to go about seeking to see how destructive he could be.

Forests were cut down with no thought of replenishing the land, with out trees, erosion set in, and has washed away so much of our fertile topsoil, animals and birds have been decimated and a great many species have become extinct, with out thought of future generations, seeming to feel that their generation was the only one that will ever inhabit the earth.

The old saying "We never miss the water till the well goes dry", is beginning to have a real meaning to us, informed people have come to realize that conservation must be realized and practiced if we are to keep the balance of nature any ways near what it should be.

Sometimes man decides that certain creatures are unnecessary in the world, because they happen to cross his path in some certain course he has laid out for himself, and will proceed to try to rid the world of that certain creature regardless of it's value to others and the balance of nature.

In doing this he leaves a void that is instantly filled with other creatures possibly more harmful to him than the ones he has eradicated. In some places in the west some sought to eradicate the gray wolf, and found that the more prolific coyote took over, poison was then put out to kill the coyote and the gray and kit foxes were almost wiped out, this act removed two natural enemies of the jack-rabbit and many small rodents.

With the jack-rabbit free to multiply, they literaly ate up all the grass, and left the ground free for an abundant crop of weeds which, in turn favor the increase of crickets and grass hoppers, which further deplete the range, so it seems the problem of elimination when once started becomes an unending process.

Our earlier settlers decided to exterminate the two largest preditors, the wolf and the panther, and assettlements moved toward the west so did the preditors, until today it is more a question of preservation than control.

But this did not solve the problem, for with the large preditors out of the way the coyote, bob-cat, foxes, weasels and skunks moved in and the last condition was as big a problem as the first.

Highway Philosophy

Heard about the man who got 100 replies when he advertised for a wife? All of them offered him their's.

Easy way to slip backward is to spin your wheels when you want to get going on something in a hurry.

Don't drive like you owned the road. Drive like you owned the automobile, and owed the other driver some courtesy.

No. Gertrude, we'll never be able to really see where our money goes until they perfect trans-ocean television.

Soil Conservation News

By Sam Polston

The Soil Conservation Service has completed the field work on the construction survey for Fisheating Creek Watershed Project. Mr. H. C. Nelson, SCS Engineer says the plans will be finished in February. Mrs. Katherin Waggaman, Chairman of the Highlands District, board of supervisors, says that if normal progress is made that the contract will be let and construction started before rainy season this summer.

The District will advertise for bids on the Lake Placid East Chain of Lakes watershed project within a few days. If these projects have been developed under the Small Watershed Act (P.L. 566) and are the first two projects for Florida. The act provides for technical engineering assistance through the Soil Conservation Service with the cost of construction to be divided between the Government and local people, with all maintenance provided by the local people.

The Highlands District assisted R. L. Fitzgerald of Lake Placid in developing a water control plan for 20 acres of organic land that will be planted to commercial flowers. The system consists of a main diversion ditch to intercept seepage water from Lake Grassey with lateral ditches to remove the surface water and control structures to hold back the necessary water in dry weather.

Mr. I. G. Rowe of DeSoto City requested technical assistance from the District in developing a complete soil and water conservation plan. Mr. Rowe has 240 acres of which 120 is organic land and 120 acres of upland sand. He is going to put in a small dairy on the place. The organic land will be established to clovers for winter feed and the well drained land will be established to summer grasses for concentrating the cattle during rainy season.

The seepage irrigation systems in the Highlands Soil Conservation District have been working in reverse this month. Mr. C. M. Payne commented that his neighbor, Carl McIntyre's, irrigation system had been doing a mighty fine job keeping his clover from being flooded. That long with other good management practices, has helped Mr. McIntype grow an outstanding field of White Clover.

The Soil Conservation Service engineers developed a similar plan for Mr. Payne that he plans to install this year. The water control systems are designed to serve for both drainage and irrigation. It consists of a series of shallow ditches spaced at about 200 foot intervals on the contour. There are structures placed in the main ditch which holds irrigation water that is supplied at the high point in the field and when opened the flood waters drain off. Marvin Kahn, Roy Seims, E. W. Hartt, Jim Hargrove, Demos Mandis, Forest Pearce, Henry O'Neal and others have installed these systems last year.

Mr. Joe Kinsey, Jr., pointed to his water control system last week as the key to his improved pasture. Last year the Soil Conservation Service engineers designed a seepage cut-off ditch to divert water around a tract of organic soil and a control structure which he installed. By regulating the control he keeps the water table

THE STATE OF CITRUS

By JOHN SIKES
Florida Citrus Mutual

Lakeland.—A reader wants to know how old is a commercially producing citrus tree.

This could be almost as vexing a query as how long is a piece of string. But let's give it a whirl.

Herman Steele, Florida Citrus Mutual assistant General Manager, offers that young trees begin to come into commercial production at about six-seven years old. They're in their production prime in the 20-30-year period.

Steel says, however, that old seedling orange and grapefruit trees 100 years old and more aren't at all uncommon in Florida.

One operative reports a Lake County grapefruit tree that survived the Big Freeze of 1894-95 still yielded a whopping 75 boxes of fruit this season. He also reports numerous century-old trees in the Arcadia region.

A general observation is that if trees are healthy they'll keep right on producing almost indefinitely.

LOADED.—You know about grape-shot. But what about orange-shot?

DeLoss Funk of Shirley, Ill., who's also a member of Waverly Growers Cooperative, reports the following in a note to Bob Rutledge, Florida Citrus Mutual G.M., via James C. Morton, Waverly superintendent and also FCM VP. A friend gave him some California oranges for Christmas. Biting into one of the oranges, Funk's teeth ground into orange-colored BB shot.

Funk writes there was no blemish on the orange skin, so the shots "must have been fired from a BB gun when the orange was very small and the hole grew over."

Morton's reaction: "We have written Mr. Funk calling his attention to the moral lapse of a Florida Citrus Producer eating California oranges."

SMUDGING:—It's unclear why a Pennsylvanian should want to know about such a thing, but Russel W. Lichty, Fullerton, Pa., writes asking what types of units are used in "firing" groves against cold weather.

Quick answer: Piles of pine light'ood or old auto tires, about 25 piles to the acre, are burned in the groves. Also, some growers use fuel oil-burning smudge pots.

Anybody care to suggest other methods?

Meikrowave .....

—By Don Meikeljohn

There is a provision in the proposed constitution that will allow legislators to raise their pay to $3,600 a year up to November 1962, and give them authority to go to any amount they want after that time.

You don't have to talk to many people to see that there are two s hools of thought on the provision. Some folks see it as a step in the right direction, others label it "money grabbing."

At present, legislative salaries are $1,200 a year and to be changed it required a Constitutional amendment which has to be voted on by the people.

As November rolls around, and it's time to vote on the proposed constitution, this provision will probably get more airing than some of the other more important-but more technical changes-simply because it's something that people understand.

Although it has the appearances of being a blank check for legislators to raise salaries, it may become a booby trap and keep salaries low.

First, the constitutional provision does not automatically raise the salaries to $2,400 a year. This would have to be done by legislators if the constitution is passed.

If the new charter passes, the legislators will probably consider this a mandate to raise them to the $2,400 level, but even that may be hard to put over.

To raise them above that level after 1962 will be mighty hard for two reasons.

1. The House of Representatives has to run every two years, and members might be reluctant to face an opponent a year after raising their own pay.

2. The Senate leaders generally are men with good incomes from other sources, and aren't particularly concerned about pay raises for their legislative jobs.

The best bet is that if the constitution passes, legislative pay will probably go to $2,400, but it don't be raised beyond that until the jobs are put on a full-time basis-something the people would have to vote on as a constitutional amendment.

The possibility of any state primary road funds being siphoned off to pay for right-of-way appears to be mighty slim both from practical and political considerations.

Gov. LeRoy Collins cautiously mentioned the possibility at a recent press conference, and the idea has made most county commissioner's mouths water.

Just about every county has at least one project in which it is having trouble getting right-of-way, and most would be happy to have the state pay the cost.

Collins comments came in reference to road building problems in Dade County. He specifically mentioned the drawbacks such as cutting down construction money, but said it might in "needy areas."

Without getting involved in purchasing right-of-way for primary roads, the state already has about all it can chew under a new policy of putting up the 10 per cent of right-of-way costs on the federal interstate system.

This money comes from primary road funds.

Although 10 per cent isn't a large amount, the state is stuck with full cost until reimbursed by the federal government. Sometimes there is quite a lag.

In cases that go to courts-and most of them will-, the state has to put up double the amount of the appraisals before it can get an "order of taking" from the courts allowing it to proceed with work while the final judgement is being worked out.

Although the interstate program is just barely off the ground, the state has $1,478,994 in primary road funds tied up in court registeries on interstate right-of-way projects.

As time goes along, the amount will become much larger.

Without exception, the first projects on the interstate highway program in Florida are in large metropolitan areas where land costs are high. Because of the value of the land, there will probably be a great deal of litigation, and more and more money will be tied in court.

The State will have to put up all this money. The federal government will not pay the state its 90 per cent until the final order has been handed down, and vouchers have been audited.

Because of this lag in payments by the federal government of both right-of-way and on construction, the state has asked for an "advance" of eight-million dollars from the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads.

This money, if approved, would be put in a revolving fund to be used as a buffer until actual payments are made on projects.

A similar situation would develop in purchasing primary road right-of-ways in that the construction program would be cut down as much as $2 for every $1 of right-of-way involved-at least temporarily and a dollar for dollar permanently.

This would necessarily limit the projects, and that's where the political dynamite would come in. If it were done in one country, it would be tough to explain why a project in another county shouldn't get the same treatment.

Until it can be done on a statewide basis with adequate financing, as suggested by Gov. Collins to the 1957 legislature, it probably won't be done at all.

As the road problems of the urban areas increase, it's going to be necessary for legislators and state officials to recognize that the cure isn't in any form political "pork barrelism" in setting up road priorities-but doing the job strictly on the basis of needs.

Of course, this also places a burden of the local areas to make every effort to meet their problems before looking for too much help from the outside.

Citrus Grower Reports on DITHANE Z-78 for rust mite control (ZINEB)

J. H. BARNHART
Mount Dora, Florida

"DITHANE Z-78 has given me very good results..."

Last July, I included DITHANE Z-78 in with my regular summer scalecide for "greasy spot" and rust mite control, and it has given me very good results; in fact, I have not used any other material since applying this.

Use DITHANE Z-78 (zineb) in your dormant or post-bloom sprays for double-duty control of (1) rust mite and (2) "greasy spot." For high initial kill and long residual activity, thorough coverage at recommended dosages is essential. DITHANE Z-78 is available from your dealer. Ask him for more information on this double-duty zineb fungicide.

DITHANE is a trade-mark, Reg. U. S. Pat. Off. and in principal foreign countries.

DID YOU KNOW?

By DALE I. ROYAL, Evangelist
Avon Park Church of Christ

Did you know that divisions among professing Christians is sin? Paul in writing to the church at Corinth (1 Cor. 1:10) said, "let there be no divisions among you". Thus we see that division is contrary to the Holy Spirit as revealed in the hand of Paul.

The greatest enemy of Christianity today is the division of professing Christians. Or should we say, "pretending Christians"? Christianity is not, as some would have it, a mere system of doctrine to be believed nor is it merely a set of rites to be performed with studied regularity. Christianity is a way of life.

The pagan and the thiest can, perhaps, build his philosophy of life on his prejudiced view of life and nature. He can accept or reject his conclusions as circumstances warrant. His life code is a philosophy developed by himself for himself. The Christian does not have this liberty. When a man accepts Christianity, as revealed in the New Testament, and obeys the Gospel he is no longer free to develop his own "way of life". Of course, this conversion must be based upon a profound conviction that Jesus is the Christ the son of God! The Apostle Paul used these words, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." Gal. 2:20.

It is, therefore, the personal obligation and duty of everyone professing to be a disciple of Christ to overcome division. Overcome it, not according to the wisdom of man but, by a sincere desire to do the will of God.

Do You Have

How many times at the last minute have you had to put an extra plate on the dinner table. To add to a dinner that's almost good enough for company, nothing beats a hot bread rushed from the oven. Here is one that is mighty good and mighty filling, just right with baked beans, chicken or pork.

SPANISH CORN BREAD
1 (12 oz.) pkg. corn muffin mix
1 (12 oz.) can whole kernel corn with sweet peppers
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 small onion, finely chopped
1 egg, beaten
2/3 cup milk

Combine corn muffin mix, corn, mustard and onion. Add egg and milk; blend according to package directions.

Spread in an 8-inch square baking pan; bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, about 20 minutes or until corn bread tests done. Serve warm. Makes 9 or 10 servings.

Brownie Scout Troop News

Troop 3 of the Brownie Scouts held their regular weekly meeting on Thursday, afternoon, Jan. 23, in the Brownie Scout Building.

With the aid of their leaders, Mrs. E. B. Poff, and substitute leader, Mrs. Jim Runkle, the girls started sewing on a gift for their mothers.

Brownie Sally Beth King served refreshments.

At the next meeting the Brownies will learn some embroidery stitching.

A trip to the fire station thrilled the Brownies of Troop 4 on Saturday morning, Jan. 25, at their regular meeting time.

The girls were shown all the trucks, telephone system, and sliding pole by the kind fire chief, Wilbur Giddens. But a short ride on the truck was the highlight of the day for the Brownies. They also were shown the police station and surrounding buildings.

Mrs. J. M. Adams, Mrs. Bill Meyer, and Mrs. Floyd Wells furnished cars for the trip. Refreshments were served in the Brownies by Mrs. Bill Meyer.

An Open Letter to Avon Park

My Dear Mr. and Mrs. Avon Park:

Since time began and man found it necessary to imprison his fellowman, a silent cry has emanated from the prisons of the world cryin' for sympathy and understanding . . .

Approximately a year ago, you the citizenry of Avon Park were asked to make a very difficult decision . . .

A new type of prison was being planned and they wanted to put it in your back-yard - so to speak . . .

Would it endanger your loved ones?

Would it devaluate your property?

Would it interfere with business?

Or disturb the tranquility of your community?

In the past, prisons and prisoners had always been hidden in the wastelands of the State - and "You" - Mr. and Mrs. Avon Park, through your elected and appointed representatives were being asked to accept or reject a minimum security prison . . . The fact that you accepted us is deeply appreciated and we, the inmate personnel, hope and pray that none of us here now or they who will come in the future will ever give you cause to regret your decision . . .

Christmas Week we were entertained by the Avon Park High School Band and Glee Club, also the "Thomas' Three (Hillbilly Trio). How does a convict thank a town? What words could I write that would convey our warm personal appreciation to you:

The Parents for granting permission.

The Children for wanting to come.

Mr. Principal of the School for making it possible.

And those responsible for making it possible.

And those responsible for directing and M-Cing the program - I wish I knew the word that would express our appreciation . . . But . . . Y'ALL Come Back . . . Heah.

How does an inmate thank the wives of our own prison staff and free personnel - All of them busy housewives and mothers who took the time to decorate our Visiting Park Area - Led by Mrs. Wainwright they landed on the poor defenceless Visiting Park like "Gangbusters" and when the dust settled they had transformed the big barnlike building into a Christmas Fairyland - complete with fireplace and twenty-foot tree. Mrs. Wainwright - invented - I can't think of a more descriptive word - a few decorations, which for lack of a better or more apt name I shall call "Weirdies". Hung from the high ceiling of the building, they had a sobering effect on anyone who was brave enough to look up - very - very decorative - but I overheard one Inmate say that had he seen one in his youth he doubted very much if he would ever have taken that second drink seriously though we truly appreciate what they did for us.

It is these thoughtful gestures by you, the free people, who will in the "Big Picture" help refute the oft quoted quotation of Robert Burns; "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

Although in the final analysis the success or failure of the program inaugerated by Mr. R. O. Culver rests squarely on the shoulders of the inmate personnel. Mr. Culver's objective - the salvation and rehabilitation of the salvageable unfortunate, who goes to prison, can only be achieved by the active patronage and cooperation of you, Mr. and Mrs. Avon Park. It would have renewed your confidence in this program if you could have seen personally the enthusiasm with which the privilege of renovating Christmas toys for the underprivileged children was received by the inmate personnel. It was heart-warming to see a gib burly banana fingered bum, rebuilding a toy - long past its usefulness. I use the word "Bum" affectionately because I assure you that the child who receives the toy could not derive greater pleasure than the inmate who fixed it.

If you have some service that we can perform that would not conflict with your business or the rules and regulations that govern us, I am sure you would find an attentive and receptive ear on all levels of our supervision from our Director to our own Superintendent. We hope that some day we can be a self-sustaining unit and not a burden on you, Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer - what you have done for us will never be forgotten and we hope that Florida in its State's History will record the important part played by you in pioneering this new type of Penal System.

We approached the problem of our outside Christmas decor with tongue in cheek - and if we succeeded in giving you a chuckle - such was our intent - - We built a false chimney over the Superintendent's Office with Santa Claus descending holding a pardon in one hand and a parole in the other - with his reindeer and sleigh parked along the ridge of the roof - at nite with the help of some trick lighting it looks realistic and very "Christmasie."

Because of Florida's semi-tropical climate and the fact that we are located on an Air Base, we thought we would change Santa's mode of transportation - so we borrowed a Target Plane from the Air Force with whom we are on very amicable terms and perched it on the Visiting Park roof. We made a life-size St. Nick and placed him in the driver's seat and presto - a modern Florida-Style Santa made his first appearance at Avon Park Prison.

The weather here has been a little unseasonable, but . . . It will be "Pistols for two and Coffee for one at sunrise" for the next guy who tells me my poinsettas froze to death - and only a carpet-bagging "D--- Yankee" would sneak up on the Visiting Park roof and wrap a blanket over Santa's shoulders.

I wish that all of you could have attended the Candle-Light Services here on Christmas Eve - We all pitched in and the arrangements and settings were beautiful. The services were very impressive and it was a Christmas Eve that will be one of our most treasured memories.

Because Christmas belongs to the children - we went all-out for the Children's Party. We built a king-size fireplace with a fieldstone and face-brick decor (paint), a hammer'd silver mantel (tin foil), sprinkled it with stardust (glitter). We installed a retractable grate and with the acid of a few reflectors, perfect timing, and a pre-arranged distraction - Santa Claus made a spectacular entrance-fooled me - and I helped build it - it was a nite of magic and enchantment, and if you don't think Santa came out of the chimney - ask the "young-uns."

I have enjoyed writing this letter to you and hope you will allow me to write to you again, there is so much to write about that is new - of the terrific impact made by A.A. at Avon Park Prison, of our language classes, our skilled artists, our hobby shops - and of our hope that you will allow us to continue to play a small and unobtrusive part in your community.

Be nice to each other and may the Lord take a liking to you - "Rite Now."

Respectfully,
A. G. S.

Girls Win And Lose Last Week

The Avon Park High School "Sextette" lost to the Frostproof Girls last Tuesday night 55 - 41 and on Friday night racked up their fourth win of the season when they defeated a spirited Lake Placid Six by the close score 45 - 41.

In the road encounter at Frostproof Tuesday night the Devilettes played on even terms during the first half of the game. At the end of the first quarter Frostproof led 18 - 17 and it seemed to be a toss up as to who had the better team. The "Pupettes" still led by only one point at halftime when the score stood 26 - 25.

The damage was done in the third period when Lillian Cotton, Eudene Jenkins and Carlene Phillips teamed up for long shots. One stayed under the basket for rebounds and the other two proceeded to rack up a total of 19 points with their long high shots, to Avon Park's 10. At the end of the third period Frostproof led 45 - 35, gaining a ten point margin that Avon Park couldn't overcome. The Pupettes again led in the scoring during the fourth period making 10 points to the Devilettes meager 6.

Eudene Jenkins led the winners with 22, Phillips had 19 and Cotton made 14.

Rowland again led for the losers with 23 points, Betty Shepard had 7, Gaster 6 and Thorpe 5. Margie Reynolds and Clylee Coleman and Mary Lois Roberts played an outstanding game at guard.

In Friday nights encounter with Lake Placid on home court, the Devilettes stomped off to a 13 - 4 lead in the first quarter. The guards and forwards showed a lot of improvement in getting rebounds. During the second quarter the Dragonettes pulled out with 14 points to Avon Parks 12 but at halftime Avon Park still led 25 - 18. Lake Placid again outscored the Devilettes in the third period making 13 points to Avon Park 10. This narrowed the first quarter lead held by Avon Park, considerably and at the end of the period it was 35 to 31.

During the fourth quarter the two teams matched basket for baske and at one point during the final minutes was tied up 39 - 39. Both teams scored ten points each and Avon came out the winner by a four point margin maintained in the third period. Final score was 45 - 41.

Avon Park missed more floor shots than they made but on free throws they had nine for fourteen for a huge 64 per cent.

Rowland had 26 points, Thorpe 8, Shepard 6 and Gaster 5 for the winners.

Coleen Hoy had 26 for the losers and Peggy Durrance was second with 13.

This was the second time that Avon Park defeated the Dragonettes, the first time 40 to 30.

The win gave the Avon Park Girls a 4 - 2 season record.
