...Ever given in the Al-Anon Publication, Al-Anon, You And The Alcoholic, is: "Yes, because it will convince you that alcoholism is compulsive. There is no moderation for the alcoholic—total abstinence or drunkeness, continual or periodic. Also, going to A.A. meetings will aid your understanding of his drinking problems."

Another question: "Will Al-Anon help me control my temper when my husband is drinking?"

Answer: "As you learn, through the Al-Anon program, to get over your resentments of the past and your fears of the future, you will no longer be angered by the disturbing things your husband does and says."

The good which can come of membership in an Al-Anon Family Groups is well expressed by the wife of an alcoholic who states:

"I've attended A.A. meetings for seven years with my husband but it wasn't until I joined Al-Anon that I came to understand myself and my husband."

...Well, Al-Anon ...s an auxiliary of ...cohol Anonymous, although frequently the alcoholic in a family may not be a member of A. A.

An Al-Anon Family Group is a fellowship of wives, husbands, relatives and friends of problem drinkers, who are banded together to solve their common problems of fear, insecurity, lack of understanding of the alcoholic, and of the warped personal lives resulted from alcoholism.

It is a separate fellowship from A.A., although both are closely allied and they cooperate with each other in every way possible. Al-Anon, like A.A, stresses the anonymity of members of both fellowships.

A commonly asked question is: "Will Al-Anon help me to understand why my husband can't stop after one or two drinks?"

'Their faces thitherward'

A SMALL child called by his father will run toward him with eager eyes fixed on the face of his father. So, too, an adult desiring to reach the top of his profession will strive for the accomplishment of his purpose, his eyes fixed resolutely on the goal before him. Neither the child nor the adult is likely to reach his destination if he looks away from his goal.

So, too, when one is seeking to reach a spiritual goal, his eyes must be fixed on it. In Jeremiah (50:5) we read the prophecy concerning the children of Israel and Judah, "They shall ask the way to Zion with their faces thitherward, saying, Come, and let us join ourselves to the Lord in a perpetual covenant that shall not be forgotten." The prophet knew that though men might ask the way to Zion, they would never reach it unless their eyes, their desires, were turned toward it. It was not their asking the way there, but their wholehearted desire to reach it that guided their footsteps to their destination.

How often we "ask the way to Zion," to a more spiritual way of living, but with our eyes fixed on material attractions. It is no wonder that we do not reach the goal. But when at last we see how joyless is the pursuit of materiality and how precious is citizenship in Zion, then we are ready to turn to God with all our hearts. A definition of "Zion" given in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, reads in part as follows (p. 599): "Spiritual foundation and superstructure; inspiration; spiritual strength."

In his parable of the pearl of great price (see Matt. 13:45, 46), Christ Jesus taught that one seeking the pearl of spiritual truth must be ready to sell all that he possesses to obtain it. He must be ready to cast out such cherished beliefs as social prestige, pride of family possessions, laziness, and unkind witticism. In Science and Health, under the marginal heading "Our footsteps heavenward," Mrs. Eddy writes (p. 426): "The discoverer of Christian Science finds the path less difficult when she has the high goal always before her thoughts, than when she counts her footsteps in endeavoring to reach it. When the destination is desirable, expectation speeds our progress."

We must be assured in our hearts that the destination, the understanding of man's eternal unity with God, is desirable above all else, that worldly success is insignificant compared with the riches of spirituality. Thus assured, we ask the way to Zion with our faces thitherward, gladly laying aside all that would impede our journey to heaven. Each one as he turns humbly to God will be shown the beliefs in a false selfhood which must be overcome before he can make progress in his journey.

One who is discouraged with his own apparent lack of purpose, who is afraid that the attractions of materiality, of selfish ease, and of sensuality in one of its myriad forms will yet prove too strong for him and deflect him from the way, should look to Christian Science. This science, which receives its authority from the Bible, comes with a message of tender encouragement and hope. As one learns more of the truth of his real selfhood and understands that the man of God's creating can never be less than spiritual, he perceives that Zion is no distant city to which he is laboriously journeying, but is his present spiritual home. In reality he has never left its sheltering love, but is dwelling within its walls forever, enjoying the precious privileges of heavenly citizenship. — The Christian Science Monitor.

Wright - Williams Wedding Vows Exchanged Tuesday

MRS. FITZ HUGH WILLIAMS III

The Episcopal Church of the Redeemer was the setting for the marriage of Miss Sammie Wright and Fitz Hugh Williams, III, of Sebring, on Tuesday night, August 11.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Peter Watterson in the soft candlelight from wedding tapers in tall candelabra. Tall baskets of white gladioli and banks of palms flanked the altar and carnations covered the alter rail. Branched candelabra in each window of the church also held burning tapers. Mrs. Maxine Martin presented a program of wedding selections before the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional wedding gown of floor length Chantilly lace over satin. The fitted bodice had a high neckline and wrist length sleeves with a self bow at the waist. The very full skirt ended in a scalloped hemline with a chapel train. Her veil of illusion fell from a tiara of seed pearls and Miss Wright carried bride's bouquet of dainty white roses center with a white orchid on a Prayer Book. She wore a wedding ring belonging to the bridegroom's grandmother as her only adornment on a ribbon around her neck.

Miss Guelda Gaster was maid of honor. She chose a ballerina length blue gown of silk organdza over taffetta cut on very simple lines with an off-shoulder effect. In her hair she wore a dainty head band of matching color with a tulle veil and carried a bouquet of blue carnations.

Miss Mary Lois Roberts and Miss Carol Ann Williams, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. Their pink ballerina dresses were indentical to the maid of honor's and they carried bouquets of blue carnations.

Joseph Craig, Jr. of Sebring served the bridegroom as best man. Usher-groomsmen were Gene Tomlinson and Errol Lanier of Sebring and Leroy Starling of Avon Park.

The mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. Williams, chose for her son's wedding a royal blue embroidered sheat gown with a matching duster and had a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony Mr. an Mrs. John Wright entertained with a reception in their home at Pinecrest. Pink and white carnations, baskets of white gladioli, and the lovely wedding bouquets were used to decorate the home.

The bride's book was presided over by Miss Nancy Wright, sister of the bride, and held the bouquet of the maid of honor.

The bride's table was covered with a cut work cloth and centered with the lovely tiered wedding cap toppe with miniature bride and bridegroom. Silver candelbra at each end of the table held burning tapers and silver compotes held bride mints and nuts. The bride's bouquet was placed in front of the cake.

Two punch tables were on the terrace of the home. They were covered with cut work cloths and centered with crystal punch bowl encircled with fern and dainty flowers.

Mrs. D. G. Perry introduced the guests to the receiving line. Miss Penny Prescott and Miss Sally Kay Craig served the wedding cake Misses Jan Saylor, Clytee Coleman, Gay Redman, and Karen Kirkland were at the punch tables.

For a wedding trip Mrs. Williams wore a light blue suit with white necessories and her white orchid from the wedding bouquet.

In the days before chaplains were a part of the Navy, Art. 2 of the "Rules for the Regulation of the Navy," stated, "The Commanders of ships are to take care that divine service be performed twice a day on board, and a sermon preached on Sundays unless bad weather or other extraordinary accidents present it."

"TOO LATE TO C[illegible]IFY"

Neil Kay

Over 400 [illegible]ally and weekly Colorado [illegible]hroughout the na[illegible]n convention have fired questions at Vice President Richard Nixon during a two hour press conference.

Will anything be accomplished at the Geneva Conference? Will there be a summit conference? What is your opinion of the United Nations? What about foreign trade? These and many more were among the queries.

The Vice President handled himself admirably. His answers were straight forward and to the point. He feels the Geneva Conference will serve to impress Russia with the unity of the Western powers. There will be no summit conference unless Russia gives good indication that she is willing to be reasonable.

Foreign aid will continue as it is serving a worth while purpose. We can aid smaller nations to maintain defense forces at far less cost than to provide these needed Forces by sending our troops to these areas.

Asked if he would be a candidate for the presidency, Nixon smiled and said he was not prepared to answer this now, but added he was not a candidate at this time.

Questioned as to why we did not use our vast surpluses of wheat, butter and other products by giving them to other countries, he explained that to dump quantities of grain, meat or dairy products on the world market would hurt our allies such as Canada, New Zealand and Scandinavian countries as it would wreck world markets.

The Vice President said that Asked by a Mid-West editor while the United Nations had been a disappointment in some respects it still was worth while and we would continue to support it.

Why the federal government could not do more to help public schools, now in critical need of more classrooms, Nixon pointed out that this was a highly controversia subject. If the federal government provided more support for schools it would mean more federal control. Most educators and the states themselves do not want the federal government in the school picture, but funds were being provided for new construction where matched by the states and control of schools remained entirely with the states.

I was favorably impressed with the Vice President and liked the way he answered all questions straight from the shoulder with no hemming or hawing or beating about the bush.

Colorado played host to the National Editorial Assocation and I found a lot of interest in Florida among those attending. Most of the editors have visited our state and are keenly interested in our industrial growth and development.

There were six in our Florida delegation and we were concerned with local newspaper headlines telling of the destruction in Miami caused by the recent tornado. The story got quite a play with heavy damage reported. It was serious enough I am sure but I assured inquiring friends that Florida was still on the map and going strong, and it would take more than a twister or a hurricane for that matter to put us out of business.

Before returning home I plan to attend the Oregon Centennial Exposition in Portland and tour Oregon and California. Should be able to find some interesting material for future columns.

Tempo Picks Up—The tempo of the 1960 governorship campaign—still about five months from getting officially underway — has been picking up of late.

For lack of a better term, this stage can be best called the "Kiwanis Club Circuit."

In the same week, C. Farris Bryant, Ocala, spoke to the Pensacola Kiwanis Club; Sen. Fred O. (Bud) Dickinson, Jr., West Palm Beach, spoke to the Fort Myers Kiwanis Club, and Sen. Doyle E. Carlton, Jr., Wauchula, spoke at the Orlando Kiwanis Club.

All three men are being prominently mentioned as candidates.

North Florida — At the same time, there were indications that the political hopefuls figure that the North Florida section of the state could be important in 1960.

After Gov. LeRoy Collins swept to victory twice on the strength of a big majority rolled up in vote-heavy Dade County, many thought the North Florida area might be waning in political power.

But the defeat of former U. S. Sen. Claude Pepper, who carried populous Dade, by Sen. Spessard Holland indicated that North Florida still has a political punch.

Veto Power—The traditional checks and balances system of government is under review in the Florida courts.

Sen. John Rawls, as a citizen, is challenging the authority of Gov. LeRoy Collins to veto the salary restrictions on H. G. Cochran Jr., directors of the Division of Corrections, and Houx Coulter, state forester.

At stake, however, is a much deeper question of legislative and executive authority.

Can the governor veto an item, and then raise the pay of the person involved?

Can the legislature lump appropriations together to prevent an executive veto?

The result of the court test could be that the Legislature may act on the general appropriation bill earlier in the session in order to get a shot at overriding vetoes by the governor.

Blue Ribbon Delegation—Gov. LeRoy Colins says he is favorable to designating Sen. George Smathers as a "favorite son" candidate in the 1960 presidential preferintial primary in Florida.

Collins said he thinks that many of the delegates on such a ticket should come from "official groups" such as congressmen, the governor, and other top elected officials.

Lanse Padgett Receives Award At The Citadel

R. Lanse Padgett of Avon Park was amongst the twenty-two boys receiving the Mark Clark Champion Camper Award at the Citadel summer camp for boys.

The third annual summer session at this famous school closed Friday with the presentation of the coveted awards.

A feature of the closing ceremonies was an address by Shane McCarthy of Washington, executive director of the President's council on Youth Fitness.

Awards were made by General Mark Clark, president of the famous Military College. The award bears the name of this famous General, under whom some of the boys fathers served during World War Two.

He didn't know it could be done—so he did it.

Local Collegians' Better Dressed

THREE AND ONE-HALF million students will be attending colleges and universities this fall, over one hundred per cent more than in 1940, with predictions that enrollments will double again within ten years.

Local retailers report that as enrollment has increased, so has fashion interest among students.

Destined for success on the campus this fall is this new button-down sport shirt from Arrow's Cum Laude Collection. In wash and wear cotton, it cuts laundering costs for the student.

This shirt is available in favored deep tones of red, gray, or rust, patterned with black heraldic shield motiffs. It is available with a unique corduroy sleeve patch for rugged wear.

Back To School Time Calls For Driving Care

Consider as back-to-school time approaches, these five facts from the National Safety Council:

1. Accidents are the leading cause of death to school-age children.

2. More than 2,500 children 5-14 years of age are killed annually in accidents involving motor vehicles.

3. More than 1,100 of those children are pedestrians.

4. A total of 150,000 children in the 5-14 age group are injured each year in motor vehicle mishaps.

5. One out of 12 students injured in a "school-jurisdiction" accident is on his way to or from school.

That's the problem — and back-to-school time is when the problem reaches its peak, according to the National Safety Council.

Solution to the problem?

"Parents," the Council said, "should teach their children to stop, look and listen before crossing streets or railroad tracks. It's not old-fashioned to be safe.

"Parents also should set a proper example. Don't expect a child to obey a rule you violate."

Some Council suggestions to motorists as the nation's schools prepare to open their doors:

1. Keep your car in good condition. Pay special attention to tires and brakes. You can't blame the garage man if your car doesn't stop quickly enough in an emergency.

2. Drive slowly near schools. And slow down where children are walking or playing.

3. Expect the unexpected from children. Most of them get hurt running from behind parked cars or crossing in the middle of an intersection.

Nearly six million motorists are under 20 years of age, according to the National Safety Council. One in 14 drivers is a teenager.

First Baptist Kindergarten To Register Tuesday

Registration Day for the First Baptist Kindergarten will be held on Tuesday morning, August 18, from 9 until 12 o'clock in the office of the church.

Parents who wish to enroll their five years old children for the coming year's kindergarden activities are asked to bring them at this time. Mrs. B. F. Camp, Jr., teacher of the kindergarten will be present to talk to the parents and children.

This fall will mark the second year of the Baptist Kindergarten and Mrs. Camp was the teacher of the class for the last half of the year. Mrs. Ouida Gambrell started the year with the group but moved to Arcadia.

The purpose of the kindergarten is to give five year olds a chance to learn to play together, do simple handwork and in many ways prepare themselves for the first grade.

Mrs. Camp and the church committee feels that last year was very successful and are making plans for an even better year this year.

Wedding Couple Honored Sunday At Buffet Supper

A buffet supper at the Plantation Inn in Lake Wales on Sunday evening, August 9, honored Miss Sammy Wright and Fitz Hugh Williams III.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Perry were hosts for the occasion. Guests enjoying the delicious supper and delightful evening were the young couple, members of their wedding party, their families and a few close friends.

Miss Wright is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Wright of Avon Park and Hugh Williams is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fitz Hugh Williams, II, of Sebring and the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Perry.

Birthday Party For Frazier Watford Jr. Mon.

Frazier Watford, Jr. was surprised with a birthday party at his home on East Canfield Street on Monday afternoon, August 10.

It was Frazier's fourteenth birthday and a group of his friends gathered and gave him a real surprise celebration. A large birthday cake held fourteen candles and everyone sang "Happy birthday" to the surprised honor guest. Mrs. Watford served the cake, ice cream, mints, and nuts to the children.

During the afternoon the boys and girls played games and danced. Helping Frazier celebrate were Lewis Perez, B. R. Sellers of Alabama, Pam and Candy Flint, Gregg Smith, Arlene and Larry King, Donny Collyer, Sandra Biggs, Judy Wester, Jay DeShong, Wolfgang Hebig and Freddie Gold III of Miami. Misses Faye Watford, sister of Frazier, and Carolyn Biggs assisted Mrs. Watford with the party.

Alaskan Original

SHORT SHORTS of gold reindeer leather are worn with funnel-neck top of cashmere in the blue of forget-me-not, Alaska's official State Flower. Eskimo yo-yo in her hand is of seal fur, strictly for fun. This costume originated at Northern Commercial Company in Anchorage. Under shorts and pants, nothing trims and slims like a boneless latex Playtex controller, as Alaskan women also have found.

Admiral David Farragut, on August 5, 1864, won the Battle of Mobile Bay and opened the Mississippi to Union passage. When th eUSS Tecumseh hit a torpedo (mine), Farragut rallied the fleet with the cry, "Damn the torpedoes." Then, to the Captain of the Hartford, "Four bells, Captain Drayton, go ahead."

Traffic accidents, the National Safety Council says, injure 150,000 children 5-14 years of age each year.

Winter Guest Club News

There passed away from our midst last week a woman of sterling character, who for the past five years or more has been one of the most respected and loyal members of the Guest Club,-Mrs. Blanche Ratcliffe. The funeral was on Sunday at the Stephenson Home, the pallbearers being Welch Fisher, M. G. Whitcomb, Royal Coats, Harry Hutchinson, Clifford Seifert, and Horace Fenton.

Mrs. Ratcliffe, like all the rest of us, had her individual ways of seeing things and doing things, and some may have smiled occasionally at them. Nevertheless everybody both respected her and liked her for her even temper and innate kindness of heart. She will be greatly missed, especially round the shuffleboard courts where she was a frequent participant in daily games and weekly tournaments. There was no more ardent player among us than she. It was long her desire to win a tournament, and we are all pleased to know that she succeeded in doing just that this summer. Ah, yes, she will be missed. We shall remember her as one who never peddled gossip or told tales but had a friendly hand and pleasant word for all. In unison we can truly say: Requiescat, Blanche, in pace.

There are a couple of tournaments to record for the past week. In spite of the thinning numbers here there was good attendance at both, four or five courts in use. On Wednesday evening, the 5th, it was Mr. Johnston and Dot Collins who carried off first honors; the consolation prize going to Messrs. Arms and Walker. On Saturday evening, the 8th it was Arms and Fritz who headed the field at the close, the Mrs. Kull and Keiter close behind in the consolation event.

Final note: Mr. and Mrs. Marsh left for a trip north last week but expect to be back in September along with divers other old members. In September the tourist trek begins its southerly course, and it will not be long now before old friends and acquaintances will be stringing in one by one, or more likely two by two like the denizens in the Ark, So says The Streller.

enjoyed the first complete family reunion for a long time. The O'Steen's also enjoyed a visit with their niece, Mrs. J. D. Langford, the forme Mary Sally Sayers, former resident of Avon Park, who is now living in Tallassee and sends "hello's" to her friends in Avon Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Todd and their young son have moved into their new home on South Verona.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fount and their children, Cheryl and Gregg, of Highlands Lake are in Ohio for two weeks and are visiting relatives and friends.

Mrs. James M. Redd left Wednesday for a visit with her daughter and son-in-law, Lt. Condr. and Mrs. J. E. McCarthy in Durham, N. C. She will be away for several weeks.

IT'S A FACT

"YE" IN OLD ENGLISH DOES NOT MEAN "YOU" OR YOUR"

It means "the" and was so pronounced without any "y" sound. In Anglo-Saxon there was a symbol now written as "th" but which was represented by "y". In consequence, the correct pronunciation of "ye" is "the". I. Popular Fallacies — A. S. E. Ackermann.

Church News . . .

First Baptist

Everyone in the church having band instruments is asked to bring their respective instrument to the Scout Hall on Saturday night, August 15, at 7:30. Plans are underway for a church orchestra and it is necessary to contact all those who have instruments.

A School of Music will be conducted in the local church on August 31 through Sept. 3. Mr. Beryl Vicks, Jr., Minister of Music in the Palma Ceia Baptist Church of Tampa will be the outstanding teacher of the school. Classes for the Junior Choir will be held each afternoon from 2 til 4 o'clock and the Intermediate and Adult Choirs will have classes from 7:30 through 9:30 in the evening.

These classes are open to anyone in the church who is interested in the choirs and the music program. There will be a special music program on Thursday evening, Sept. 3, and all are asked to remember this date and keep it open.

First Assembly Of God

The Women's Missionary Council is meeting each morning from 8 through 12 o'clock in the church on Monday through Friday to pray for the revival. This week ends the third week that the WMC has been meeting and anyone who would like to join in the prayer is invited to join the group.

Twenty-one members of the church joined in a surprise housewarming at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Cobb on East Wolf Street on Friday evening, August 7.

The Cobb family were completely surprised when their friends dropped in with a lovely bedspread and wall plaque for their new home. The Women's Missionary Council and Christ's Ambassadors were the planners of the lovely evening. The Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Held joined in the fun and Mrs. Held later played her accordian for group singing.

Delicious refreshments of homemade ice cream and cake were served the guests. The evening ended with fellowship, song, and games with everyone enjoying the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Cobb.

Congregational

A last day picnic will end the Bible Schol on Friday, August 14. The boys and girls will enjoy a swim and lunch. That night the school will present a program in the social hall for parents and friends at 7 o'clock.

J. B. Rhodes Now Aboard USS Essex Aircraft Carrier

J. B. Rhodes, airman, USN, son of Johnnie Rhodes of Avon Park, Florida, was serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Essex in late July when the 90,000th aircraft landing was made on her decks while the ship was conducting operations off the East Coast.

The Essex, oldest combatant carrier in active service in the Navy, holds the record for carrier landings on ships still in commission. The record of 97,549 landings is held by the old USS Saratoga which was sunk at Bikini Atoll during the A-bomb tests in 1947.

The landings represent over 45 million miles of flying.

The Essex is scheduled to join the U.S. Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean late this summer.

KINGFISHERS

By Bird Woman

One of our well known birds that may be found near the water, is the Kingfisher, the specie with which we are most familiar, and which inhabits this area is the Belted Kingfisher.

There are about eighty known species, the world around, some may be found in the tropics while others may be found at different seasons as far north as Alaska and Labrador, our Belted Kingfisher is one of these migrants, but they seek the sunny south when winter draws nigh.

The family is usually divided into two groups; The common names being, the Wood Kingfisher and the True Kingfisher.

The Wood Kingfisher, inhabits the Australian and Malayia regions, they are not especialy fish eaters, but hunt their food mainly inland, and eat tree frogs, centipedes, small snakes and the larger invertebrates, they have a broad flat and often hooked bill, which serves them very nicely in procuring the kind of food upon which they subsist.

The True Kingfishers abound around lakes, streams of water or even the water that stands along the road side during the rainy season, for they relish frogs and snakes and fish, even the small fish that we see along the roadside when the water is standing, having backed up from a lake or stream.

Their most enjoyable way of catching fish is to dive into water and catch a fish, sometimes they will dive from a height of from fifty to seventy five feet and never seem to miss their target. They will then take their prize to a nearby tree limb and toss it into the air so that it comes down head first and then catch it and swallow it.

We wonder who taught this bird that the fish has sharp fins especially when rubbed the wrong way, and that if it were swallowed head first the fins would not scratch or interfere with its swallowing.

But that is just one of the many things about which we wonder when we study the way our wonderful Creator has fashioned the many birds that we see around us and also see pictures of many from foreign lands.

Our Grand daughter has moved to California, and naturally we were interested in the bird life out there, but she writes us that she hasn't seen a bird yet that she recognizes. Naturally being on the western side of the dividing line which ambles north and south, the birds out that way will differ from our birds on the eastern side. Even the same specie will differ in color and often in size. We have suggested that she send the field marks of some of them and we will try to identify them.

The Kingfishers have been called, "Harbingers of Halcyon days", for they were supposed to nest at sea or near the sea and could control the weather so that their nests would noe be swept away by storms.

But the fact is, that they nest in a cavity in the earth bank, which they dig out themselves, and, sometimes this tunnel will be as much as eight feet back in the bank and them turned down where the real nest is located.

So adept are they at constructing this tunnel that at the end there is a circular queque, so that apparently the arrival of a parent in the tunnel, will cast a shadow that causes the young to rotate in unison. So that when the parent arrives in the tunnel with food, a different chick is waiting and ready to receive its meal. Sometimes this nest would be located a half mile from water.

When a suitable place is not available, the bird moves on until it finds the proper location. When the tunnel and cavity are completed, from six to eight eggs are laid, incubation usually lasts from nineteen to twenty days.

When the young are hatched, sometimes the mother along cares for them but in some species both parents assume the responsibility. The young are equipped with long stiff, what we would call, pin feathers, and these feathers remain in that condition to protect the young in their rough underground home, until they are old enough to leave the tunnel.

We have written before how the parents teach the young to dive and catch their prey, its a sort of kindergarten process, the young are taken to a low limb that extends out over the water, where the water is shallow, and forms a sort of shallow pool, the parents in the meantime have caught small fish and stocked this pool, then they dive down and pick up a fish in the presence of their family, and as children usually try to imitate their parents, soon the young kingfisher is diving right along with the parents.

Gradually the young are introduced to deeper water and it is not long until depth means nothing to them. But by this time they have taken the looks and characteristics of their parents and it is difficult to distinguish between them.

Often while diving for fish they will swerve their course as they near the water indicating that the object of their dive has moved, probably seeing the shadow above them, and this leads us to say what wonderful eyes they have been given, it is claimed that an Eagle can spot a rabbit from a mile high and decend so rapidly that the rabbit has no chance to escape.

'The study of any bird's eyes is intriguing, but some are especially complex. While it takes but the fraction of a second to change the focus of the human eye, the bird's change is instantaneous, this is not the fact with mammals.

We find that the Kingfisher family differs in size from the size of a Sparrow to the size of a large Crow, and almost always, we find that there are twelve feathers in the tail, the feet are flat and the outer toe is welded to the middle toe much of the length, This possibly is the reason they hop when on the ground, instead of walking.

There are so many interesting species of this family and we would like to discuss them all. But we will just mention the wood kingfisher, as a class, because it differs from the true kingfisher in many ways. It is so named because it dwells mostly in the forests, often far from water and nests in holes in trees, usually drilling them themselves.

It is not unusual to see them drill their holes in ground termite shafts, the birds seem yet to be disturbed by the insects and the insects simply ignore the birds. We did not discribe the Belted Kingfisher, for we are sure we have all seen them around our local lakes, a pair were at home in front of our house on Lake Verona last year. We hope they return this year.

Modern Homes Should Eliminate Hard Water

Water from the tap in your home may contain invisible dissolved hardness minerals, whether you are supplied from municipal water supplies or your own well system. The degree of water hardness depends on the amount of invisible hardness minerals the water has accumulated before it is used in your home.

Invisible undesirable hardness cannot be seen in water, but the results from unseen hardness are evident in the many everday uses of water. The result of invisible hardness minerals can be noted by soap curdling, pipe scale formation, bathtub ring, spotted glasses and dishes, grayed clothing, as well as the excessive use of soaps and detergents.

Many manufacturers now offer a modern household water softener appliance unit. A water softener appliance has the necessary working valves and parts much like modern washing machine or other household appliance to eliminate hardness from your water supply. The central unit of the softener appliance contains a permanent quantity of resinous material good for the life of the appliance. This bed of resinous material plays an important part in removing the invisible hardness from water.

Tse softenger appliance operates on a simple recharging of salt at intervals designated by the Water Softener Manufacturer. Salt recharging is accomplished by varied time intervals depending on the type softener purchased, ranging from a manually operated individual salt charge unit to an automatic type unit whereby a quantity of salt is stored in the unit to furnish a number of automatic recharges. In either type the average cost for the proper salt is usually just a few cents per day.

A water softener home appliance can be purchased from a number of reputable water softener appliance dealers or a service can be bought from a Soft Water Service Company. If purchased outright, the householders usually purchase their own salt for the unit; if a service machine is used the salt recharging is usually done by the service operator.

The need for softening water is remove invisible hardness should not be confused with the need for removal of iron from a home water supply. If iron is present in sufficient quantity to bring about staining, or discolored clothing from washing machines, then it may be desirable to rent or purchase a separate iron removal unit. An iron removal filter does not operaee on salt, and it is not considered a water softener, but usually requires periodic flushing out with water. Various manual or automatic iron filters are available from regular softener resale or service dealers to take care of this special problem.

The 4,300 school and college fires in the United States in 1957 cost the nation more than 30 million dollars, the National Safety Council reports.

Washington, D. C. — Prompt and vigorous action by members of the Florida Congressional delegation has resulted in Government refusal to finance an American owned citrus canning plant in Morocco. Having been made aware of the pending action through a telegram received from an alert citizen of our district, I, along with some other members of the Florida delegation, filed an immediate protest with the Development Loan Corporation, the government agency responsible for the handling of such loans. During my frequent correspondence with this agency, I pointed out how the citrus industry of the entire United States would be tremendously affected by the granting of such a "loan" to this concern. I stated that such an action by a Federal agency would place the Federal Government in the position of financing one American owned industry to the positive detriment of other American owned industries of a similar nature.

As the facts concerning the history of the case began to come in, still more appaling aspects of our foreign aid program were brought to light.

Originally, the firm in question borrowed money through foreign aid funds to construct and operate a canning plant in Germany to can citrus concentrate. This company was buying the raw materials from Florida citrus firms. The company then made application, which in its opinion, would have constituted the right Federal grant to set up a French Morocco a plant to talk Morocco citrus and turn out concentrate to be used in the place of the American source. All of this would have been done with our tax money. Our American market in that field would have been greatly reduced. A decision by the government to grant money under the conditions stated would have established still another precident as to how more hands can be given access to the pocket of the American taxpayer through foreign aid funds.

I would like to call to your attention a series of articles being written by news correspondent Albert M. Colegrove of the Scripts-Howard Papers, entitled "Fiasco in Vietnam". Writing from Saigon, the capital of this small outpost of freedom in the Far East, Mr. Colegrove presents a picture of how foreign aid funds in that country are being used—and the picture is pretty grotesque. Senator Mansfield of Montana has already notified the State Department to prepare their case on this matter for presentation before a Senate Committee in the next few weeks. Articles such as these by writers who have observed, first hand, the incidents they report to the people, provide still more information for the volumes of documented evidence already compiled which point out the utter folly of continuing our foreign aid give away.

Most bike riders in accidents with motor vehicles are violating traffic laws, a National Safety Council study revealed. Most bike accidents, the study showed, occur during April-September.

A good reason for being safety-conscious at back-to-school time, the National Safety Council says: the 39 million grade and high -school students in the United States. Keeping students alive and safe, the Council says, is a job for all of us.

Accidents, according to the National Safety Council, are the leading cause of death to school-age children.

So You Want To Know?

Is it possible that a man's wife will "drive him to drink"?

Students of alcoholism have suspected it for a long time, and now many of them believe it can happen. By the same token, it frequently happens that a woman actually enjoys being married to an alcoholic.

Thelma Whalen of Family Service, Dallas, Texas, says it has been observed by social workers and family counselors that certain kinds of women are attracted to an alcoholic man and will marry him hoping to find in him an answer to deep unconscious needs of their own.

One such woman she calls Suffering Susan because, "it is clear that her need to punish herself was the dominating characteristic of her personality. That's why she chose a partner so troublesome that her need to be miserable would always be gratified.

"Her husband's alcoholism always insured hardships which she bore with evident composure. His earnings were low. He was abusive and irresponsible. She suspected him of infidelity.

"When drunk, her husband was hostile and when sober he was moody. He knew he could inflict severe pain on his family by simply staying away and letting his wife worry about his safety and the loss of wages.

"Susan however, is a model of department. She is a good housekeeper which she feels is her proper duty, but she does not realize that the home she keeps is a cheerless place for her husband and children.

"She is drab and colorless in appearance and manner, and has few contacts outside the home. Susan presents a picture of uncomplaining endurance in dealing with intolerable situations. With her children she insists that they do not show hostility toward their father."

Another example Miss Whalen tells about, in her report released by the Yale School of Alcohol Studies, is of Wavering Winnifred who is usually married to an alcoholic and who is the balance wheel of the family, holding it together when her husband is on a spree.

"Wavering Winnifred," said Miss Whalen, "knows how to manage money. She has worked outside the home at various times and her earnings have helped meet payments as they came due.

"Sometimes Winnifred loses patience with her husband and hauls him into court. If the judge takes her seriously he soon discovered she didn't mean it because she relents and asks the judge to dismiss the case.

"This type of wife appears to be quite capable as she is a good housekeeper and keeps the family well organized. Actually, out of her own need to be loved, appreciated and given to, Winnifred seeks out the weak and helpless.

"Alcoholism increases her husband's need of her, so she is tolerant of it for a long time. It sometimes appears that she even expects him to drink, although she may fuss and nag about it."

So, as case histories of alcoholic and their families are analyzed, as by Miss Whalen, it is evident that in some instances the wife does, "drive her husband to drink," while in others his drinking makes for conditions which are satisfying to the wife.
