In Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, June 25, by Rev. Fr. J. J. Sullivan, F.S.C., retired of the College of the Holy Cross, City of New York, now at Avon Park. In the following the Professor submitted textual references from last week's (Continued from last week) would that many of our laymen and executives are just men of secular or godless education, this being the precise system that Cardinal Newman saw creeping into English education a little over a hundred years ago.

Communism in the schools there, that is what many of the schools were doing ultimately to rob us of democracy. And is this not precisely what the Dies Committee reported in 1958, and hardly a single effective step was taken by the Roosevelt regime? And one might recall how Mrs. Roosevelt was so feverish about it all, so fearful lest we offend Russia. This, this matter of overcoming Positivism, which is materialism in one of its many phases, which, again, is godlessness, is as important for the salvation and the peace of the world as it is for the salvation of the Christian students whom parents elect to send to these secular schools and colleges, the citadels of exotic philosophies, regardless of Him Who so clearly stated: "Without Me you can do nothing"; i.e., nothing of vital value in the educational or moral order.

My experience with types of these students was long, intimate, and even intense. For a score of years I had to do with Newman Club students who were the largest in the country. I found that Catholic students, general, in such an environment, who had never attended a school where religion was systematically taught and practiced, often had a too slender background even to realize when their Faith, the Faith of their Fathers, was being systematically undermined. Why, one may well ask, do so many Christian students so habitually sink away from religious influences, who do they frequently seem to think that religion and their pastors or ministers are behind the times, old-fashioned, etc.? Why do they adopt pagan practices, in dress, for instance, setting at naught the modesty so characteristic of the religious mothers and girls of former generations? Why do so many have so little of the Spirit of Paul? Socials, dances, games - these are the attractions - far, very far, more than spiritual instruction, spiritual reading or study, and spiritual practice? And why do some of them come to the point of questioning certain doctrinal teachings of religion, notably in reference to divorce, etc. Can you imagine a Christian girl of the type, when asked to kneel for the blessing of a newly ordained priest, insisting: "No, I won't kneel." A girl behind jerked the rebel's dress, insisting, "Kneel down." "I'll be damned," she replied, "if I'm going to get 'runs' in my new nylon!" Keep in mind now what has been said, notably the allusion of Pope Leo XIII to those governments that were supporting secular education but had made no vital contributions to religious education. And then come to realize this point, viz., that to education anywhere can be actually indifferent to religion. Indeed, no one can be, and certainly no teacher can be. Our Blessed Lord Himself said so: "He that is not with Me is against Me." There can be no middle course. Religion, for instance, is of the very warp and woof of human history. Cardinal Newman, in his great work, "The Idea of a University," has amplified this matter clearly enough for anyone, i.e., "He that is not with Me is against Me." If you were to stop for even a brief reading of history of anywhere and of any time, the truth of the statement would force itself upon you. God, for sometimes, has been out of the picture in the secular educational world. But out of it in only one aspect, for those are your atheists, your agnostics, your sceptics, your positivists - all influencing, in one way or other, the young minds with which they are daily in intimate contact. Hence, the result; masses of students almost everywhere who have no academic relationship established for them between nature, in whatever form studied, and the God of nature. That is why one is likely to find it difficult to get certain types of so-called Christians to see the intimate and necessary relation between God and His world. This unhappy mentality is, of course, furthered by the secularism all about, and in no small measure springs from neglect in early education. Ten years ago it was seriously reported that of 22,000,000 children and youth in our American grade primary classes, 15,000,000 received no religious instruction or training of any kind - in family, school, or church. (The four grades of high school are included in the statistics.) We can not afford to forget that many parents today are products of this godless system. Now, it was Voltaire, no less, who stated that if there were no god it would be necessary to invent one as an essential restraint upon the natural moral weaknesses of men.

Litter Bugs Are Ask To Change Their Habits

Are you a Litter Bug? Grade yourself 10 points for each question:

1. When travelling in your car do you throw trash on the streets or highways, such as chewing gum wrappers, foil, empty cigarette packages, cigar stubs, tissue, beer cans, liquor bottles, Coke bottles or any other litter?
2. When in or around the post office do you put all trash in the trash can?
3. If you smoke, or you are careful to use an ash tray where ever you are?
4. When disposing of trash at home or on the streets do you deposit it in provided trash cans?
5. Do you throw cigar stubs or cigarette butts on your own yard or any public place?
6. Do you always cover your trash can after placing trash in it?
7. Do you ever think about or notice letter on the highways, streets and sidewalks, how messy it looks?

8. Do you provide a litter bag for your auto?

9. Do you know that litter bags for autos are available in some stores?

10. Did it ever occur to you that someone has to clean up in the home, on the streets, highways and public places, after messy litter bugs, and that it costs the state of Florida over $5,000,000 a year for the road department to clean litter from highways?

After grading yourself consider these questions and if you are a Litter Bug start now being civic minded enough to change. Help keep Florida clean.

School Is Out. Hurrah!

By Bird Woman

Yen school is out, and we all share the enthusiasm of the children who are free from a set routine for a few months vacation, we hope every one will have a happy summer, and for those who will remain at home, the city no doubt will furnish different kinds of recreation, in a safe and a sane manner.

We the taxpayers are perfectly willing to pay for this, as we have done in previous years, but we do insist that the parents see to it that the children stay within the bounds of the law, and not just let the children do as they like and disregard the others.

Who would be foolish enough to start their children out, and hang a card around their necks saying, "These are my children, and I want them to have a good year, even if they break a few laws, they are young, and we do not like certain laws anyway?" But that is the attitude some parents take and the way their feelings are construed by their children.

The law has never been passed yet, saying that each may select the law he likes and disregard any he does not like, and in the case of children, the parents are responsible for the acts of the child, and in most instances, the penalty is provided for the infringement.

We have laws on our statute books that birds cannot be killed, in Florida, excepting game birds at stated seasons, and as the city of Avon Park is a bird sanctuary, we have ordinances protecting all birds within the city limits. And we have officials standing ready to enforce these laws, if it is reported to them, so in the event you see children disobeying any laws, if you are a good citizen you will contact the Mayor or one of the Police, and they will take over from there.

We would like to see the state law, for the benefit of those who are new to our city, and those who for any reason are not familiar with it; CHAPTER 28946 (NO. 467) SENATE BILL NO. 900

FATHER'S DAY is a family affair

Stork Shower For Mrs. Alfred Edge Thursday Night

Mrs. Alfred Edge was surprised with a Stork Shower at the Clubhouse when she arrived and completely surprised when she found all the "fuss and feathers" were for her. Hostesses for the fun were Mrs. Richard Decker, Mrs. Devon Redick, Mrs. Pat Lookhoff, Mrs. John Turner and Mrs. P. O. Goff.

Cut flowers featuring pastel spring colors decorated the Clubhouse and a lovely large baby book, a gift of Mrs. Decker, was topped with an adorable plastic stork with a baby book. Mrs. Goff read her own original poem "An Edge Production" for the enjoyment of the honoree and the guests.

Refreshments were served from a table covered with white cloth holding food and a crystal punch bowl. Rainbow sherbet angel food cake, nuts and mints completed the delicious refreshments.

After the guests enjoyed lunch, Mrs. Edge opened her many lovely gifts and an evening of visiting completed the shower.

We wonder where they got such lovely ideas.

We intended for this article to be more about teaching the children to protect birds, instead of using them for money, but we still hope that the parents, knowing the laws we have and they should know the value of birds to our shrubs and gardens, that they will be a little more alert this summer than ever before and train their children to know that the wonderful Creator put these beautiful birds on earth to help us control insects and that we might enjoy their beauty and hear their beautiful singing.

After two hectic winters our birds have become more scarce, but this spring, by standing guard with a ball bat to keep stray cats, we have seen more young birds than usual, so please don't turn your young Nimrod loose to destroy what it has taken years to build up. We have more than 40 purple martins that were raised in our martin apartment, and are strengthening their wings getting ready to leave us, we shall miss their chatter.

Twelve Things To Remember—The Value of Time, The Virtue of Patience, The Pleasure of Working, The Dignity of Simplicity, The Worth of a Character; such are the list comes The Power of Kindness.

Kindness is the action inspired by kindness of nature, and the feeling of regard for the other person well-being. It is the essence of unselfishness, thinking before speaking, that the words will not hurt; passing before doing, that the deed will not harm.

Further than that, it is going out of one's way to help another, even sacrificing in small ways to benefit our fellow man.

The thought of power associated with small kindly acts is never present; yet to one can even imagine what the results can be, or how far-reaching. Consider this apparently unrelated sequence of events, for instance:

An old, partly crippled, poorly dressed man came into a radio shop just a week before Christmas. The shop-owner, a woman, had previously bought envelopes from him; he had asked no favors, only the right to sell his wares. But at this busy time, she said she just didn't have time to talk to him, and he did what he had never done before, he pleaded for at least a small sale. It seemed without a plan to sleep that very night, and had no one to call on for help.

So this woman told him to sit a minute; grabbed a newspaper, jotted an ad, put the old man in her car, took him to a house and let him stay for a week. The day after Christmas, there was a notice in the newspaper that he had died.

Months after that, a notice of forced bankruptcy was served on her. She was at this time when she had no one to turn to, a very capable attorney took complete charge and saw her through her very real emergency, and never rendered a bill.

Why was the help given with no thought of recompense was not returned?

"Living With Your Heart"
One of the great obstacles to the enlightened treatment of heart diseases through the centuries has been inaccessibility of this remarkable muscle, tucked away in the chest deep under the protection of the rib-cage.

It was only a little more than a generation ago when doctors began taking the drastic measure of managing the heart to restore a lost heart beat and life itself. Heart surgery, which has made phenomenal progress since the first successful operations were performed, is one of the newest medical skills.

Many times in the past it has been necessary to perform exploratory operations on the heart because there has been no other foolproof way to determine the nature of the heart's ailment, since surgery is by its very nature a major surgery, it has become increasingly desirable to devise ways to get vital information about blood pressure and flow available in the past through an operation only.

Research sponsored by the American Heart Association and its affiliates has now helped to make this possible.

A team at Boston City Hospital, headed by Dr. Walter Abelman, has demonstrated that some patients who were believed not to need heart surgery did in fact need it, and that others who had been believed to need it did not.

The technique improves the accuracy of pre-surgery diagnosis in the heart project specifically concerned—valvular lesions resulting from rheumatic heart disease.

Researchers working under grants made available by the American Heart Association are refining procedures for catheterization of the left side of the heart, first undertaken in Sweden in 1950. It involves entering the small upper chamber of the left side of the heart with a needle inserted through the patient's back.

Catheterization of the right side of the heart has been fairly common since the 1940's, but its usefulness is limited, since most heart lesions are on the left side where the mitral and aortic valves are situated.

Left heart catheterization is but one of the many benefits of the ongoing program of research into the ills of the heart and circulation.

Florida Cattle Story Is Told In New Book

A rip-roaring "Wild West" novel about the colorful history of the Florida cattle industry has just been published by Doubleday and Company, Major U. S. Publishing House.

Written by long-time Floridian Wyatt Blassingame, "Live From The Devil" is a rousing tale of the lusty men and women who battled hurricanes, cattle ticks and each other to parlay a few thousand scrappy cows into a top factor of Florida's economy.

And through the bloody feuding over range-fencing, cattle-dipping and womenfolk efforts to control man's polygamous nature there is drawn an absorbing picture of cow industry growth in the state during the past half-century.

From the days when half-wild "yellowhammers" were collected from the open range for shipments to Cuban revolutionaries for the time when the state fenced the herds off the highways, the story unfolds.

Brahmans, cowhands, and blunder boys are integral parts of this fictional but factual history, a dramatic backdrop from today's livestock market reports.

Blassingame, whose magazine short stories about Florida cattle wars have fascinated Americans for more than two decades, lives in Anna Maria, a Gulf Island just off the coast of his book's locale.

During the Revolutionary War the pay of a United States Marine was a little over seven dollars a month. Today a Marine Private's pay starts at $78 month.

Health Tonics

With the start of summer vacation, it seems appropriate to review again the needs of our children and our feelings about them. Sometimes we wonder why our children act as they do and why, as parents, everything we do and say seems to be wrong.

First is acceptance. The child must realize that he is a respected member of the family group and as such shares in the privileges of family life along with the other children and adults. He should be able to express his feelings without a loss of dignity. Too much fussing among other family members can make children fear that the home is breaking up and that even their parents might disappear.

Second is affection. Punishment and discipline cannot be entirely avoided in rearing children, but when it is necessary to wield a heavy hand, be sure that the child understands that you still love him. Any child can accept that he has done the "wrong thing" as long as he feels that he is still the "right boy."

Third is approval. Children gain confidence in themselves through the approval of adults. Do not ask more of a child than he is able to give; praise him for the things that he does well and in that way let him know that he has earned your respect.

Under Florida's first constitution, adopted in 1838, the size of the State Senate was limited to not less than one-fourth nor more than one-third of the size of the State House of Representatives.

Mrs. Ed Hodgdon
Surprised With Farewell Gift

Mrs. Ed Hodgdon was surprised with a farewell gift from some of her friends at a bridge party on Wednesday night, June 10, in the Florida Power Customer's Lounge.

Mrs. Hodgdon, her husband, Sgt. Hodgdon, and daughter, Luz Ann, left Friday for Salina, Kansas, where he is stationed. They had been living in Avon Park for a number of years and had been very active in community affairs and will be greatly missed by the many friends they have here.

Miss Pat Lagoni was hostess for the bridge party and served the members and guests shortbread punch and delicious cookies. After the bridge game her friends presented the surprised Mrs. Hodgdon with a gift and wished her "bon voyage" and a speedy return.

Friends enjoying the evening were Mrs. A. C. Webster, Sr., Mrs. Zelma Wells, Mrs. Colin DeShong, Mrs. Carol Tomlinson, Mrs. Sandra Greenway, Mrs. J. Long and Mrs. Mary Ann Villalita.

Family Reunion
Enjoyed Sunday

The visit of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Branton and their son, John, of Waller, N. C. was the occasion for a family reunion of the Boney family on Sunday, June 14, at the home of family members in Avon Park and Sebring.

Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Boney were hosts to his family on Sunday for a delightful luncheon at their home on Park Avenue. Summer flowers adorned the buffet tables and the guests were seated at round tables in the Florida room. After dinner an afternoon of visiting was enjoyed.

That evening the group went to Sebring for a supper picnic at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Childress on Dinner Lake. Old friends from Wauchula joined the family for the picnic and visiting that evening. The Brantons will be visiting the Childress family in Sebring and the Boney family in Avon Park this week. Family members enjoying the day together were the Brantons, Mrs. R. C. Boney and her children, Dick and Bernice of Oakland, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Boney of Lake Worth, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Boney and Mrs. R. F. Hayden of Avon Park, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Childress and their children, Donald and Judy Kay of Sebring.

Mrs. Vernon Lanier and her daughters, Claire, and Jan Sawyer left this weekend for Gainesville where Mrs. Lanier and Jan will attend the summer session at the University of Florida. Little Claire Lanier will attend practice school while there.

Mrs. Thevenor Delaney and her son, Pat, and Mrs. E. A. Delaney, Sr. spent Wednesday in Sarasota visiting Mrs. G. L. Peoples, their sister-in-law and daughter.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Stewart were greeted by more than sixty members of his new church at a reception in their home on Sunday night, June 14, after the evening service.

LIVINGSTONS REPORT

On Monday, June 1st, the Legislature went in its final week of the regular session with such important matters as constitutional revision, sufficient taxes and segregation in our schools awaiting final action, in spite of the many hours of time, thought and work that has gone into the final draft of these bills.

After much further consideration by a sub-committee of both Senate and House members, a compromise general appropriation bill of 702 million dollars has cleared the Legislature and is now before the Governor for signature.

The bill authorizing school boards to segregate pupils by sex to prevent interracial marriages has become law; also passed by the Legislature and now awaiting the Governor's signature is a bill authorizing sheriffs to close down public facilities to prevent racial conflicts.

The Governor has signed into law a bill to permit the Welfare Board to discontinue aid to dependent children, if evidence is found of mistreatment, or failure on the part of parents or guardians to maintain a suitable home for such child.

On the Governor's desk is the bill to permit trading stamps to be redeemed at a cash face value, or in merchandise. The trading stamp bill submitted to the 1957 session was bitterly opposed by the trading stamp industry. The bill presently passed, with some of the objectionable features removed, met with little opposition.

There are a number of proposed bills strengthening the state beverage laws, and it is believed most of them will be enacted into law this time around.

A bill designed to raise drivers' license fees from $1.25 to $1.50 was killed in a House committee. Both the House and Senate killed the administration bill to bring the Tuberculosis Board under the Governor and State Cabinet. This agency now operates as an independent board.

The House is now operating on a calendar, which means that just as soon as a local bill is introduced it is passed and immediately certified to the Senate. The Senate employs the invisible calendar on both local and general bills throughout the session, while the House adopts the law only during the last few days of the session, and on local bills only.

One of the first bills to have been considered on the invisible calendar was one removing the school board of our county to assist school employees and school teachers in obtaining group insurance.

This has been a difficult session requiring far more time than any in which I have served. There has been so much committee work requiring a tremendous amount of research in order to develop a bill agreeable to all parties.

I wish to express my thanks to the newspapers of the county, for they have been most generous in publishing the reports. I feel it has been a real service to the residents, and I am very appreciative of their courtesy.

There will be some slight inconveniences, but we were able to defeat measures that would have materially increased our tax burden.

From The Office Of Jim Haley

Washington, D. C.—One of the most thought provoking bills introduced in the current session of Congress is the one introduced by my distinguished colleague, Congressman J. S. (Syd) Herlong, Jr., representing Florida's 5th District, which would establish a Freedom Academy. It should cause every American citizen to stop and think about the meaning of freedom. Certainly in the present state of affairs, both on the domestic scene and with respect to international affairs, we must constantly be on the alert against Godless Communistic ideologies that have enslaved millions of people. It may very well be that a Freedom Academy could form the nucleus of a strong effective force to successfully combat the communist menace.

Under our system of laws and our western culture, we are accustomed to a certain pattern of thinking that is adverse to the logic employed by the Soviets. Therefore, a Freedom Academy makes sense. Such an academy could analyze the entire international scene under laboratory conditions and from such analysis obtain a clearer picture of Soviet ideologies, aims and purposes.
