Recently, the Classification Officer of Avon Park Prison, W. E. Booth, held a conference with several inmates who were soon to be freed via expiration of sentence. The purpose being to determine what they though would be the greatest problems facing them when they were again free men. What was planned for a half-hour discussion turned into a four hour free-for-all session. The problems that were brought out presented enough material for a couple of reasonably thick volumes. The text for the rest of this article and for several following articles will be devoted to a study of these problems.

Justifiably, the chief concern of the majority of the boys was this business of insufficient funds for the discharged inmate. The state furnishes a discharge fee of ten dollars to every man released, but the rub is, how to get along on that ten bucks. For those who have no other funds when they are discharged, the saw-buck must see them to their destination, feed them and house them until employment is secured. In most instances the largest portion of the ten dollars vanishes for transportation costs — hitch-hiking is against the law in the State of Florida. Common sense tells you the rest of the story; with anywhere from nothing to a few dollars left, how can you reasonably or even unreasonably expect a man to exist for what might be several days until he can find a job?

Let's look at a sample case that is typical of thousands that are released with absolutely no worldly possessions except the clothes on their backs and the ten dollar bill so benevolently bestowed by the State. Joe Blow (as we'll call him) has no one awaiting him in the free world; over a period of the four years he has served he has lost contact with any friends that he might have had and his family gave him the old heave-ho when he got into trouble for the second time. Joe is the average discharge; he is about forty years of age, has the approximate intelligence equivalent of a twelve year old child, the fifth grade marks his formal education, and Joe is a house painter by trade.

The last year of his four year sentence is served at Avon Park Prison or a similar honor institution. Through treatment and rehabilitative effort his selfrespect has been regained. Joe actually believes that he has every chance of making a place for himself in the free world and living a clean, honest life. He has been convinced that if he walks the straight and narrow that society will recognize the fact that he has paid his debt . . . the only trouble is, that nobody has bothered to inform society of that fact.

Joe hits town with a couple of dollars left of his original ten-spot. He's gotten just about as far as he can go without adding to his bank roll, and without any delay. He can't go to work as a painter, because he hasn't the money to pay the back dues coming to the Union. A quick look at the paper's classified section tells him that unskilled jobs are practically non-existant. An all day effort at talking to prospective employers has netted him a big fat ZERO. A meager meal relieves him of more than half of his two dollars. The big question is whether to find a bed for tonight or eat tomorrow. Would it be improbable to suppose that Joe's thoughts have reached a pretty bitter state by this time? He was told that he would be encouraged to live a nice clean life and that if he went straight, people would just about break their necks giving him a helping hand. If Joe wants to continue existing he must have money right away. Not being overly bright, he's not familiar with the social and religious agencies that will lend a helping hand. In desperation he turns to the employment he knows best next to painting . . . burglary.

Admittedly, the above was a hypothetical case, but that doesn't alter the fact that it is very typical of similar cases in penal system records. The thing that grives this writer most is all the effort that went into straightening out Joe's thinking . . . rehabilitating him, all for naught. Had there been a way to give him financial assistance, Joe's frantic desire for a clean, honest life may have well become a reality. The problems a man faces after release are just as poignant as those he must face while incarcerated. The finding of the solution to the financial phase of the problem is a step in the right direction, but certainly not a complete answer. A solution to the whole problem would entail the revision of public opinion on the whole theme of the "Ex-Convict."

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

The Hidden National Organization.

The local, and state civil defense officers, together with the regional and national headquarters of FCDA represent a visible national organization for civil defense. But there exists at least potentially, another national organization, or set of organizations, with responsibilities that many are beginning to realize, and services, generally of an educational or informational type, that some are beginning to develop. This "hidden" national network is the man in the street may never see, but the man who belongs to any form of national organization, such as a business organization, trade union or professional association, may see a part of it and may play a role in developing it.

Let us look at one of the difficulties we may run into in our community. Imagine it contains a single factory employing about 400 workers in a single building. This factory not only has its share in the community effort for civil defense but would be well-advised to develop a disaster plan within its own plant. The manager consults with the local civil defense director who knows the over-all plan but does not happen to have any specific knowledge or ideas as to what to do in the factory. Among the great number of factories of this size scattered throughout America there will be at least one which has worked out a satisfactory plan, discussed it with civil defense authorities, tested it and found it operable. But this doesn't happen to be in our town. Maybe an account of it or story of how it came into existence was reported to FCDA and is somewhere on file. Maybe it was merely noticed in the local press. Its creators may never have thought of reporting it to the National Association of Manufacturers or to that specialized group of manufacturers to whose national association the factory belongs. But if it were reported to a central office which maintains a magazine, newsletter or other means of communication among members. Our local firm could obtain help for its plan-within-a-plan, and from a source with which it is normally in regular communication. Moreover, the information would come in a publication that will be read, as the bulk of its deals with things of importance in business; a publication that we respect because it is our own and produced by people with our interests.

Let us name just a few national organizations that are in regular communication with their membership: The National Education Association, The AFL-CIO, The American Medical Association, The American Society of Training Directors, The General Federation of Women's Club, The National Association of Manufacturers, Rotary International, and other service clubs, The Adult Education Association of the U. S. A. and its affiliates.

You may add to this list indefinitely. The selection mentioned represents merely a few, but at least it indicates the diversity of interests, activity and skill that have served as a basis for setting up national organizations. Moreover each of the ones mentioned has a number of subsidiary organizations. The NAM has a highly diversified membership, many of whom are also members of specialized groups loosely connected to the general structure. The American Association of School Administrators is a typical special organization connected with the N. E. A. The Council of National Organizations, affiliate of the Adult Education Association, represents a highly diversified group of organizations with a common interest in the developing methods of adult education and community action. The trade unions are a complex of groups.

Into our local community with every mail come a great many specialized publications that someone has a real interest in reading. How better can we report good school civil defense programs than through the N. E. A. Journal? How better learn to solve the problem in out factory than through a publication of NAM? How better know the place of organized labor in civil defense than from the education office of AFL-CIO? If our trade or professional journal has not already paid some attention to reporting specialized information and stories of success in civil defense, any one of us can start the trend. We have something to report to, or some inquiry to make of, people in similar situations.

This activity is still in the sporadic and unorganized stage. But it is developing and has been considered by the Commission responsible for the production of this pamphlet and by officials of FCDA. It can only be fully activated by those who hold membership in such organizations. It is not a side issue or a fringe interest. Civil defense is the defense of the American way of life and therefore of every organization and group whose existence is integral in that way of life.

Corsica, an island 100 miles off the French coast, is famed as the birthplace of Napoleon.

My Tour To The Holy Land

By Mrs. M. E. Wild

Thursday, December 26, 1957. Jerusalem. The weather is sunny, fair and mild.

This is the fourth day of my tour of "The Holy Land" with my daughter and a Group of people from the Community Church of Beirut.

8:00 a.m. We had breakfast at the American Colony Hotel.

8:30 a.m. We met in the "Upper Room" for morning worship and a talk about the program for the day.

9:00 a.m. We went in cars to the "Mount of Olives" to view "The Holy City of Jerusalem."

We walked up to a high place on the "Mount of Olives" and as we stood there looking at the City of Jerusalem, the pastor and the guide pointed to the sacred and historical places in the city, and they pointed to the place that is called "No Man's Land", which divides the City of Jerusalem. We looked across "No Man's Land" and we saw Israel's part of the City of Jerusalem.

We stood in a church called "Dominus Flevit", which is built on the traditional spot where Jesus wept over Jerusalem, during his "Triumphal Entry" into the City of Jerusalem on Palm Sunday.

We went to the "Garden of Gethsemane", where we saw Olive trees that are two thousand years old, and we saw flowers blooming in the Garden, but we could not go in the Garden. There was a high iron fence around the Garden and the gates were locked.

We went in the "Church of all Nations", by the "Garden of Gethsemane", which marks the site of the Prayer and Agony of Jesus on the night of his betrayal and arrest. (Maundy Thursday)

We went in a church called "Pater Noster", which is built on the traditional site where Jesus taught His Disciples "The Lord's Prayer". The Prayer is painted on the walls in forty-two different languages. There is an artistic frame painted on the walls on the four sides of this Prayer, and the name of the language is painted above the Prayer.

We went in the "Church of the Ascension", which is built upon the summit of the "Mount of Olives", on the traditional site where Jesus ascended into Heaven.

We walked down from the "Mount of Olives", then we went in cars back to Jerusalem where we visited "Gordon's Calvary".

When we arrived at the place called "Gordon's Calvary", we saw "The Place of A Skull", which some people believe to be Golgotha, or Calvary, where Jesus was crucified.

We went in "The Garden Tomb", which is in a Garden not far from "The Place of a Skull", which is said to be similar to the Tomb that Jesus was buried in.

We visited the "Tomb of the Kings", then we went to the American Colony Hotel.

12:30 p.m. We had lunch at the American Colony Hotel.

After lunch we went to our rooms and packed our suitcases and got ready to leave Jerusalem.

2:30 p.m. We went in cars from the American Colony Hotel to the airport.

About 4:00 p.m. we left Jerusalem, Jordan, in the airplane to go to Beirut, Lebanon.

I went with my daughter and some of the people of the Tour Group in the airplane called "Middle East", and the other people of the Tour Group went in the airplane called "Air Liban".

We had a good flight and arrived in Beirut about 6:00 p.m.

Rehearsal Supper June 27 Honors Wedding Party

The wedding party of Miss Deloris Martin and James Pearce was entertained at a delightful buffet supper after the rehearsal on Friday, June 27, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Rice on Lake Jackson in Sebring.

Individual tables decorated with dainty rosebuds were set for the thirty-six guests, members of the wedding, relatives, and out-of-town guests.

The buffet table was covered with a white cutwork cloth and a cart of white flowers was used as the centerpiece. Mrs. James Andrews assisted the hostess, Mrs. Rice, who is Miss Martin's aunt.

Walker Memorial Church News

Members and guests of the Walker Memorial Church are anticipating an interesting time this coming Saturday morning, July 12, at 9:30 a. m., when the "Invest For Missions" project meets its half-way mark.

The children's departments, under the direction of Miss Tavoukdjian, leader of the "Investment" project, will present a short program and turn in the proceeds from their different projects along with the proceeds from some of the adult projects. Mrs. Clara Edwards is making and selling aprons, Mrs. C. J. Larson is selling wire baskets, Dr. L. L. Andrews is raising peanuts and tomatoes and other members are selling honey and some are saving all the quarters, nickels or dimes that come their way. Miss Tavoukdjian, who is also head dietitian at the Walker Memorial Hospital, is giving the proceeds from the sale of the book "Exiled" and autobiography of her early life, which gives an account of the thrilling and terrifying experiences she endured as a girl over in Armenia, and the tragic death march from which she escaped before coming to the United States.

The proceeds from these projects will swell the "Investment" fund and help to support the work Seventh-day Adventists are carrying on in 183 of the 205 countries of the world.

Man's daily requirement of iodine is about four millionths of an ounce. Common varieties of seafood, such as kingfish and red snapper, contain, per serving, 2 to 10 times these daily requirements.

149 Farms In Highlands County Take Part In ACP

Highlands County farmers used Agricultural Conservation Program cost-sharing assistance to establish conservation practices on 149 farms in 1957, according to Bertha M. Musselwhite, County Office Manager for the ASC Committee.

Total assistance received through the 1957 ACP by farmers in the county amounted to $68,761.00. Federal assistance amounted to less than 50 percent of the cost of performing the approved conservation practices. The farmers contributed the remainder of the cost and used their own labor and equipment in most cases, in carrying out the practices. The purpose of this cost-share type of program is to increase the extent and speed with which conservation needed in the public interest is done.

Mrs. Musselwhite stated that the farms in the county on which conservation practices were reported carried out under the 1957 ACP represented 29 percent of the farmland and 76 percent of the cropland in the County.

Some of the major conservation practices performed on Highlands County farms under the 1957 ACP were:

Initial establishment of permanent vegetative covers in orchards for control of erosion 986 acres.

Initial establishment of a permanent vegetative cover on farmland for soil protection or as a needed land-use adjustment 1,659 acres.

Vegetative covers improved for soil or watershed protection 1,455 acres.

Constructing and enlarging permanent open drainage systems to dispose of excess water 1,668 acres adequately drained.

Establishment of summer and winter crops to protect land from erosion 83 acres.

Initial liming of farmland to permit the use of legumes and grasses for soil improvement protection 3,296 acres.

Mrs. Musselwhite also said that the 1958 ACP is essentially the same as the 1957 program. Farmers who need help with new and additional conservation on their farms should contact the County ASC Office.

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

Mr. Dick Dressel of the large Miami dairy who is moving his herd out on the bombing range road flies back and forth in his private plane and lands in the pasture.

Recently it was necessary for him to use his cows as a wind indicator so he would know which way to land. Cows always stand with their tails in the wind.

Mr. Dressel says his herd will be so pampered in their new quarters they should give ice cream instead of just plain old milk.

Last year tourists literally ate smoked and drank quite a tidy little sum into Florida's treasury by taxes. In fact tourists paid about 18 per cent of all taxes collected, the major amount of which was received through sale of groceries, food and beverages. Other major items included lodging, gasoline, oil and automobile repairs, amusements and recreations.

And while the visitors were livin' it up the local residents were reapending the millions in wage payments created by visitors on such staples as savings, insurance, mortgage payments, taxes, cars etc. etc.

You all come. Love those Yankees!

An interesting and entertaining gentleman of our acquaintance recently found himself in a very frustrating situation.

His small daughter, having observed his success in making others laugh, invited him to spend a few minutes with her for the same purpose.

After a few false starts and a couple of feeble attempts at wit, he gave up and turned the whole project over to her mother.

Up in West Virginia there is a glass factory. This fact is not unusual but the articles produced there are . . . and they can be obtained right here in Avon Park at Exie Caffee's.

These beautifully shaped and colored Blenko glass objects are all hand blown by glass blowers whose art has been handed down through families for generations.

It's fascinating to watch a blob of melted glass take shape on the end of a long pipe. By the blower's agile manipulations the melted goop magically becomes a work of art. To obtain perfect results the artist must know to a fraction of an inch just how much and how hard to blow.

Beginners, no doubt, come up with fantastic shapes, to say nothing of scorched skin.

School Board Needs Estimated $188,089 Increase For 58-59 Term

A public hearing on the tentative budget for the Highlands County Schools will be held Friday morning, July 25, at 9 o'clock. The budget calls for an estimated $1,964,957 for the schools operation during the 1958-59 term which is an increase of $188,089 over last year's budget.

Over 600 Attended Formal Opening Of Screwworm Fly Factory Thursday

Open house at the $1,000,000 "screwworm fly factory" at the Sebring Air Terminal last Thursday was the last opportunity for the general public to view the interior of the plant. The plant closed Friday to visitors for the duration of the program.

Dr. Clarence L. Campbell, State Veterinarian, was master of ceremonies during the formal opening and Florida's Senator Spessard L. Holland addressed the visitors. The theme of his talk was "Research Pays Off".

Speaking briefly were Dr. R. J. Anderson, director of the animal disease eradication division, agricultural research service of the USDA; W. R. (Buster) Hancock, of Tampa and Groveland, president of the Florida Agricultural Council, and J. B. Starkey, St. Petersburg, chairman of the livestock board. Many state legislators and state and federal scientists were on hand.

Senator Holland, Campbell and Starkey praised J. Olin Pearce, Jr., of Okeechobee, president of the Florida Cattlemen's Association, and member of his committee which persuaded the USDA and the state legislature to provide funds for screwworm eradication.

Better than six hundred visitors, many of whom have lost thousands of dollars because of screwworm infestation in their cattle, gathered in a one time Air Force hangar to hear Holland's address. The Senator received a prolonged round of applause when he went to the rostrum. Thursday was also Holland's 66th birthday and the crowd gathered around him after the program to wish him Happy Birthday.

The "fly factory, where 50,000,000 sterlized screwworm flies will be produced each week, is not a little thing. It was necessary to install a steel-supported

Year Round Attraction Proposed For Mall; City Committee To Work With Chamber of Commerce

Appearing before the City Council Monday night with an idea that could well mean a unique year round attraction for Avon Park Jim Heim, President of the Chamber of Commerce, and Anna Belle Worden, Executive Secretary, presented a magnificent proposal. The plan calls for the installing of beautiful colored fountains in each park-way of the mile long Mall which runs through the heart of this Jacaranda City.

Mrs. Worden stated the plan had been under Chamber consideration for several months and engineers have been working on this proposal with the Chamber.

Each Councilman, Mayor E. A. DeLaney, Jim Turnbull, City Clerk and Hue Nunnallee, City Attorney, viewed the sketches of eight different breath-taking designed fountains for the Avon Park Mall. The fountains vary from a changing color water-flower operating at a heighth of approximately eight feet to a dome center drop pattern. Anticipated County Budget Up $104,040 With 1 Mill Increase Highlands County will require an estimated increase of $104,040 for operating during the next fiscal year according to the proposed figures complied at the County Commissioner's budget-making meeting Tuesday.

Total of the anticipated budget amounts to $687,740, last year's budget was $583,700.

This estimated increase in the budget will require the raising of the millage by only one mill. The millage last year was 16½ and the estimated budget for 58-59 calls for 17½ mills.

The millage for the General Fund will remain the same, 8 mills; Fine and Forfeiture Fund will be up from 1¾ to 2¼, an increase of 1 mill; Road and Bridge Fund, up from 4½ to 5 mills, a one-half mill increase; Bond Interest and Sinking Fund set at 1¾ last year drops to 1¼, a reduction of one-half mill; and the State Board of Health to remain the same at one mill.

In the proposed budget the estimated General Fund calls for $227,525 for the next fiscal year, a decrease of $19,275 from last year's $246,800.

The Fine and Forfeiture Fund calls for $150,275 and increase of $65,375 over last year's budget of $84,900. This increase is due to the limitation on millage for all Sheriff's expenditures are budgeted out of the F & F Fund instead of part being taken from the General Fund.

The estimated Road and Bridge Fund has been set at $319,940 an increase of $57,940 over last year's budget of $262,000.

The proposed millage increase of one mill is due to the rapid growth of Highlands County, as long as the county continues to grow it only stands to reason that the commissioners must meet this additional cost in some way.

The Commissioners had at first considered an estimated 2½ mill increase but after hearing the complaints from a rather large delegation from the Farm Bureau who attended the meeting they cut the anticipated budget 1½ mills."

The highlight of the meeting

Avon Citrus Bank Installs New Depository

The installation of the new 24-hour depository at the Avon Citrus Bank Monday morning caused rumors to fly around town. Everyone was wondering what had happened when they saw the blow torches cutting into the old fashioned night depository.

The new installation is another Sottile improvement to better serve the customers. It will enable the customers to deposit money in envelopes on notes at any time with out having to have a key. On rush days one can drop their payment in the letter like depository and then be on their way.

Besides being modern in design the new depository is the safest way possible to handle your affairs after regular banking hours. After making a deposit a green light at the top comes on indicating that the deposit has been received.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE $4.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE

One More Step Needed

A news photo shows a huge quanity of 4-cent stamps being carted into a post office. This is symbolic of the fact that next August 1 first-class mail postage goes up a cent. So do the rates for other post office services with one exception—fourth-class matter, or parcel post.

The higher rates were approved reluctantly by Congress. But the post office deficit had gotten out of hand, and was passing the $700 million a year mark. On top of that, post office workers have been given a general pay boost which almost everyone believes is well-deserved. It obviously was essential to increase post office revenues.

The parcel post exception is the black spot in the picture now. It has long been a creator of heavy direct and indirect deficits, and has thus been taxpayer-subsidized. That will continue to be the case so long as its structure of charges is left unchanged.

To make matters worse, parcel post is the only post office service which is a direct competitor of taxpaying private enterprise. Private carriers operate on a national, regional and local basis, providing service by rail, truck and plane. Subsidized parcel post service under these circumstances is manifestly unfair—as well as needlessly costly to the public at large which must make up the deficits.

So one more step needs to be taken in postal rate revision—to put parcel post on a self-sustaining basis of operation.

The Fool And His Money

People who are conservative to an extreme in their general buying habits are sometimes prime suckers when it comes to investing in stocks. They're meat for tipsters.

This fact provides the substance for one of Jimmy Hatlo's popular "They'll Do It Every Time" cartoons. Drawn in two panels, it shows a character hemming and hawing over a counter full of neckties, and finally deciding not to buy on the grounds none is conservative enough. In the second panel a down-at-the-heel bar buddy has just told him about a stock that is "a cinch to triple in 30 days", and the character can't get to the phone quickly enough to put in an order for 2,000 shares.

That's more than an amusing gag. It points a moral that's of enormous importance in this day and age when millions of people own stocks in American corporations and the number continues to swell. Intelligent stock investment involves a list of "don'ts" as well as "do's". Don't buy on tips and hunches. Don't listen to salesmen who promises huge profits. Don't deal with strangers unless you can and do check up on them. Don't patronize high-powered telephone solicitors. Get all the available information about a company before you buy its securities—reputable brokerage houses will help you in this as well as in other ways.

State and federal commissions, the leading stock exchanges and other organizations continually work to protect the investing public against fraud and misrepresentation and chicanery in general. But they can only do so much. As the old saying goes, "The fool and his money are soon parted". Don't let it apply to you.

No Political Water!

Around the town of Odessa and adjacent communities in West Texas, the idea of solving local problems with local money, brains and hard work has proved to be mighty good medicine—and not just for the other fellow. A recent editorial in the Odessa, American, tells the story and highlights the state of mind that can keep a free society.

In 1951, with the technical and promotional help of the Texas Electric Service Company, Odessa, Big Spring and Snyder organized the Colorado River Municipal Water District, to be financed from the sale of revenue bonds and water. Contracts totalling about $12 million were signed to cover the construction of a three mile long earthen-filled dam on the Colorado River, plus water wells in Martin County and pipelines connecting the wells to municipal water lines. The next year abundant water was flowing into homes previously on virtual rationing during summer months. By the end of 1952 the dam was nearly completed and water was being stored behind it. For the past 6 years it has supplied water to Snyder and Big Spring and sold hundreds of millions of gallons to oil companies.

The significant point is that at the outset the Federal government had offered to build a dam for the area which called for expenditures of something over $20 million. Commenting on this the Odessa, American said: "If it were built in the fashion and at the speed of most Federal projects it perhaps would have wound up being completed in about 6 years (or right now) and costing $30 million or more. And what is even more significant, the cost would have been handled by people in Wisconsin, Connecticut and Arizona —taxpayers all over the country who should not be charged for our water. History has shown time and time again that the people can best provide their basic needs themselves."

And that's something that everybody who values his freedom would do well to remember.

Grade School Economics

Supposing you manufactured wheelbarrows and paid $2.00 an hour for labor. Supposing a labor boss demanded $3.00 an hour without increasing the wheelbarrow output, and in addition demanded that you reduce the price of your wheelbarrow on the shop-worn theory that it would increase "purchasing power".

The purchasing power of whom? Not the wheelbarrow maker unless he increased his price more than the dollar an hour wage increase added to his cost. Then the consumer would be stuck as his dollar dropped in purchasing power. Not the workman if the labor boss forced the wheelbarrow manufacturer to price himself out of the market and go broke. Then the workman would be out of a job and lose his purchasing power, as would the manufacturer.

Labor dictators have long been able to force wage boosts without increased production to justify them. Their fine-spun argument that this could be done without increasing prices is one of the causes of the buying slow-up today. Their expensive chickens are now coming home to roost and they aren't laying any golden eggs.

Nothing truer was ever said than "one man's wage is another man's cost". That is as inescapable as the fact that when government spending and government debt go up the value of the dollar goes down.

According to government figures, the assessed value of all property in this country subject to a general property tax was $280 billion last year—which is approximately equal to the national debt. Real estate accounted for $210 billion of this sum.

More than one-third of the Russian population of working age was employed in agriculture in a recent year, compared with less than one-tenth of the comparable population in America, according to the National Industrial Conference Board. The USSR can find more workers for its industries and services only by withdrawing manpower from the farms and military service.

The jet-age for commercial aircraft will begin this coming winter. On a November day, a Pan American Boeing 707 will take off from the New York's Idlewild Airport bound for Europe.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By James E. Hess

July 9th, 1958 marked another red-letter day in the history of Florida's Penal System. An Inmate of Avon Park Prison was presented to the Avon Park Rotary Club as its principal speaker, the subject being "An Inmate's Viewpoint of the Rehabilitative Program as Conducted at the Avon Park Prison." The speaker, in addition to being grateful for the opportunity to publicize the program was extremely impressed by the sincere response of the Rotarians. The situation was unique as can well be imagined, but it is felt that the results have done more toward bringing to public light the advantages of a rehabilitative program, than has any medium to date.

One of the points emphasized in the address given to the Rotarians, was the futility of building up a man and preparing him for release if a post rehabilitative scheme of some kind weren't put into effect. The last article written under the above lead accentuated just one of the problems that the discharged inmate must face upon his release. Previous articles have stressed the fact that when a man is incarcerated he has a tough period of readjustment to go through if he expects to lead a bearable existence, but this business of readjustment holds just as true when a man finishes his sentence. The program here at APP partly prepares an individual for the transition from institution life back to the community, however, once the State issues the ten dollars, suit of clothes, and the discharge certificate, its responsibility ends. The next period of acclimation is done without assistance in the majority of cases and more often than not it is the lack of assistance that results in a return trip to the penitentiary.

The most serious problem that faces a man who has responded to rehabilitative treatment and is released with high hopes is "public antagonism." Who causes this thing called public antagonism? YOU!!!! Perhaps not maliciously or with any conscious intent, but the fact of the matter is that you, the readers of these words, along with several million other average citizens decide public opinion. If public opinion condemns a situation, that situation undergoes a change in accordance with public wishes . . . the desire for a certain style of clothes is gratified by the designers . . . if your opinion of a certain class or group demands exclusion, then ostracism is the order of the day. The average citizen is repelled by the idea of associating with the ex-convict because 99.44% of reading material concerned with crime is tainted to produce that effect. Daily newspapers, books and magazines all exploit the most horrible crimes and paint the perpetraters as black-guards of the first order, but these pieces of sensationalism certainly don't represent the story behind the average inmate in any sense of the word. How long can you expect a man's self-respect and determination to make good last when he is faced with belligerence and lack of understanding by those people he must live with when he is freed? An ex-con is familiar with this belligerence and for that reason will attempt to hide the fact that he has served time . . . a fact that he's not proud of to begin with. It is no secret that people are hesitant in giving a break to a man who has committed a felony.

It is amazing how an individual's ideas can make a complete reversal when the situation warrents. Two years ago this writer would have been heartily in agreement with anyone who professed that ex-convicts were all cut from the same cloth . . . no goods who were a definite mill stone around society's neck. The Judge's words "You are hereby sentenced to—years at the Florida State Prison" were the determining factor in changing my opinion. Surprisingly enough, it was learned through contact that the inmates of the State's penal institutions were every bit as human as yours truly. They are men who have families awaiting them; many are young men barely out of their teens who are confused and frightened by what faces them in the "Big House"; many are physically handicapped men who turned to crime as a means of independence. Although there is no excuse for any of these crimes, time is being served for their commission . . . to my knowledge, none of the boys are one-eyed, one-horned, purple people eaters. From talking and listening to a large number of these men it is this writer's firm conviction that more than ninety percent of them would be overjoyed at the opportunity of living within the limits of the law upon their release . . . if permitted to do so. More often than not it is society that drives an ex-con back along the crooked road . . . a road that turns a salvageable life into a subverted, twisting hell.

By extending a little sympathy toward these men, try putting yourselves in their place. How would you feel if you saw your wife and children doing without the bare necessities of life simply because your being an ex-convict prevented you from obtaining decent employment? All the best intentions in the word go down the drain when one sees his family suffering or in the case of a single man when his belly does nip-ups from want of a square meal. If after serving a prison term imposed by law, wouldn't you feel that it was your right to take up a constructive life once again? According to the law books, you have served your time and society's so called debt is paid.

All any of my fellows or myself can ask is that YOU, the people will become our neighbors and employers some day, will consider the slate wiped clean. Allow us to become part of the community . . . allow us to live clean respectable lives in peace.

New Postage Rates Go Into Effect August 1

Postmaster D. G. Perry of Avon Park, Fla. said today he expects plenty of stamps and postal cards to be on hand for sale August 1, to meet new postage rates which become effective then.

Mr. Perry explained the Post Office Department has been issuing new stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards to post offices for several weeks in anticipation of the new rate changes.

Large additional supplies of the regular 4c stamp, bearing the likeness of Abraham Lincoln, will be received here to meet the new first-class letter rate of 4c an ounce. In addition, issues of special stamps and commemorative stamps will be available at the local post office in 4c denominations.

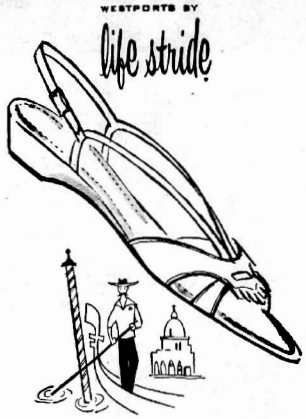
A new "Champion of Liberty" stamp, honoring Simon Bolivar, the late great South American liberator, will be on sale at the local post office on July 25, in 4c and 8c denominations. (The 8c stamp is used in international mail.)

Adequate supplies also are expected in other stamps, cards and envelopes, including new 7c air mail stamps, replacing the 6c air mail stamps; 3c postal cards replacing the 2c cards; 5c air mail postal cards replacing the 4c air mail postal cards; and 4c and 7c stamped envelopes to be used in place of 3c and 6c stamped envelopes.

"Picture" post cards will require 3c stamps for surface transportation and 5c stamps for air transportation. Ample supplies of 3c and 5c stamps are expected to meet anticipated demand for these stamps.

Old supplies of 3 and 6c stamps, 2 and 4c postal cards and 3 and 6c envelopes may be used after August 1, by adding an ordinary penny stamp to these.

In the United States The Salvation Army annually extends Thanksgiving or Christmas aid to more than 1,100,000 persons.



Excise Tax On Freight Becomes Effective Aug 1

Washington.—Florida growers and citrusmen learned today that the repeal of the 3 per cent excise tax on freight -- which goes into effect August 1 -- will also abolish the transportation tax on fruit hauled from groves or fields to the packing house.

Senator George Smathers of Florida -- who wrote the amendment eliminating the excise levy and guided its successful passage through the Senate and through a joint Senate-House conference -- announced the provision in response to queries from Floridians.

He pointed out that under the expiring law, a 3 per cent tax is paid on all common carrier shipments, whether carried by truck, rail, waterway transport or aircraft. All such taxes are eliminated by the Smathers Amendment, as well as some special taxes on pipelines and coal freight shipments.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

As we owe a duty to activate our professional, business and trade organizations to develop channels of special information among their members, so we owe a duty to activate our local official organization if it has not been activated or is failing to do its job. Despite the insecurity that has marked our world continuously since World War II, Civil Defense Directors have not been appointed in all communities. Not all appointments have been made with due regard for qualifications. But however conscientious and well-trained the director may be, no single person has all the skills necessary for community organization, nor can any person operate a program unassisted. So there are certain questions the answering of which is the responsibility of every adult American. "Who is civil defense director in this town anyway?" is only the first. When you know who he is, ask him some of the following:

Can you tell me what I should do? If not, can I help you find out?

Is there a plan? If not, can I help make one?

Do you need volunteers? If so, where do I fit in?

How much time will it take? I can honestly spare only so much.

Are you in contact with the chain of command?

Do you need public support in steering the "higher ups" to action?

Guiding Principles for the Community Blueprint.

It would be fine if a national office could send us a ready-made blueprint with all details for our community. Unfortunately, even communities of equal size differ in locality, function, and resources. We must make our own blueprint. But there are general principles to guide us. These principles we can now derive, always with our own community and real people we know in mind. They begin with that elementary school subject, geography.

There is little point in developing defense against forest fires if we live in the middle of a desert. Neither is there much point in preparing for a direct hit from an H-bomb if we live in a rural village. But rural areas are just as subject to fall-out or biological attack as cities, and therefore need trained radiological monitors and an organization to alert and advise residents.

Our community must also see itself in relation to its neighbors. One of the minor dangers of the democratic way of life is that the plans made in one community may actually result in hardship to another. There is no democracy in averting the flood from our village and drowning everybody in the village around the bend. There must be coordination of plans between adjacent communities, rural and urban.

Batter-Dipped Fried Chicken and Biscuits

Today's the day to enjoy flavorful Batter-Dipped Fried Chicken and Biscuits. Spread the hot, tender biscuits with butter and honey.

Brides as well as long-time homemakers can smile with pride when they serve tasty Batter-Dipped Fried Chicken and Light, Flaky Biscuits. With this sure-fire menu team, oven is guaranteed.

To make the batter for the chicken, combine self-rising flour, a beaten egg, chicken broth or poultry seasoning and pepper. Pre-cook the chicken pieces, cool and then dip in the batter. Deep fat frying gives the chicken a crusty, golden brown coating outside and makes it fork-tender inside.

Self-Rising flour is also wonderful for biscuits. Salt and baking powder are already distributed in the flour at the mill to save you time and give you light, flaky, tender biscuits every time.

For good summer eating, serve Batter-Dipped Fried Chicken and Biscuits with buttered corn-on-the-cob and a sliced tomato and cucumber salad. For dessert, enjoy fresh berry pie and iced tea.

BATTER-DIPPED FRIED CHICKEN

2½ to 3-pound frying chicken, cut up
1 cup water
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup sifted enriched self-rising flour
1 teaspoon poultry seasoning
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 egg, beaten
½ to ¾ cup chicken broth, cooled
Fat for deep frying

Place chicken, water and salt in 4-quart saucepan. Cover, bring to boil and simmer 30 minutes. Drain, reserving broth. Cool chicken. To make batter, sift together flour, poultry seasoning and pepper. Combine egg and broth. Add enough liquid to flour mixture to make a thin batter. Stir until smooth. Dip chicken pieces in batter and drain well. Lower chicken pieces, a few at a time, into deep fat fry (360°F.) and regulate heat so chicken fries at 350°F. to 375°F. Cook until tender and nicely browned, about 8 to 10 minutes. Drain on absorbent paper. Keep hot in heavy heated pan and serve with biscuits. Makes 4 servings.

BISCUITS

2 cups sifted enriched self-rising flour
¼ cup shortening
⅔ to ¾ cup milk

Measure flour into bowl. Cut or rub in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Add milk to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly-floured board or pastry cloth and knead gently 30 seconds. Roll out ½ inch thick. Cut with floured biscuit cutter or sharp knife. Bake on ungreased baking sheet or hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 12 minutes. Makes 12 2½ inch biscuits.

CRACKER POLITICS

By ALLEN MORRIS

Tallahassee.—Cap's Bob Gray has written "My Story: Fifty Years in the Shadow of the Near Great".

Being privately printed for relatives and friends, "My Story" doesn't have a single now-it-can-be-told revelation of R. A. Gray's service under 13 governors. He has been the State's No. 2 man its Secretary of State in the cabinet of nine.

The truly fascinating aspect of this gentle memoir is its incidental reflection of Florida's changing ways since the 1890's.

There is, for example, Governor William D. Bloxham bowing his way along Monroe street to the Capitol. He wears a double-breasted, long-tailed Prince Albert frock coat. His hands are swathed in gloves. And he carries a cane.

And there is the patriarch who questions Gray, then a teacher boarding in his home, as to whether he teaches that the world is round. After Gray recites the proofs, his questioner politely scoffs that he has no objection "to you teaching that to the kids, but don't try to make me believe it."

Robert Andrew Gray has had the good fortune to occupy places of official responsibility - in the offices of the Governor, U. S. Senator, Comptroller and Treasurer, and as a member of the Legislature, State Auditor and since 1930, Secretary of State - during a half century of almost unbelievable change.

The times presented a thousand-and-one challenges, and Bob Gray possessed the willingness to meet these, from the uniform textbook and harmless error laws to bullnegrol through the 1911 House of Representatives to the present plan for non-political selection of members of the parole commission.

As the No. 2 man, the Secretary of State comes nearest to being a Lieutenant Governor that Florida has in its Executive Department, inhibitting for the chief executive on official and ceremonial occasions.

He's a team player who comes through exceptionally well in emergencies. Gray relates one such occasion in his book: Governor Fred P. Cone became suddenly ill just minutes before he was to address a nationwide radio audience from the Florida exhibit at the New York World's Fair and Gray, without a moment of preparation, was shoved into his place before the microphone.

"My Story" is dedicated to Mrs. Gray, who died in 1955. The Grays had observed their golden wedding anniversary in 1953. Interestingly, the Secretary of State's parents and his maternal grandparents likewise celebrated such occasions.

Right up to the moment of the qualifying deadline there were those who expected former Governor Millard F. Caldwell to get into the race for the U. S. Senate. But the Tallahassee lawyer-banker stood fast against the draft, just as he did eight years ago. (George Smathers was finally persuaded then to enter against Senator Claude Pepper.)

Quite naturally, Caldwell derived gratification from the deluge of letters of solicitation although "I know the writers are not so much interested in me as they are concerned about the general situation."

When Caldwell came home to Florida in 1941 after serving in the national House, he rather firmly closed the door against ever going back "although I never say I won't do anything." And occasionally he is tempted by the idea of having the national forum provided by Congress to express some indignation.

Currently, he is speaking around the state on such subjects of intense personal interest as greater citizen participation in government and the encroachment of the federal government in state affairs.

Cracker Crumbs - Governor Collins is, willy-nilly, being made an issue of legislative races in at least three counties: for the Senate in Duval and Escambia and for the House in Jackson.

. . . Being debated by some politicos is bearing U. S. Senator John F. Kennedy's candidacy for the presidency may have on the Florida gubernatorial chances of Supreme Court Justice Stephen C. O'Connell. They are Catholics. Argument goes this way: While O'Connell's faith would be a negligible element in the state race otherwise, Catholicism could be a major Southern issue in Kennedy's preconvention campaign and this might engulf O'Connell in its repercussions . . . State Beverage Department gets about 25 letters a day, some anonymous, complaining in general about liquor law practices. These help keep Department and industry on their toes. . . . How does a governor become known outside his own state? Here's one way: Industrial Commission Chairman James T. Vocelle has called upon his opposite numbers in each of the other states during the past two years. As a member of the Collins little cabinet, Vocelle without saying so brings an awareness of Florida's state government wherever he goes officially.

Florida Fruit in 'Senate Salad of 1958'

Florida played a major role in the introduction of "Senate Salad of 1958" at a recent luncheon held in the United States Capitol. At this second annual Senate Salad luncheon Florida Senator Spessard L. Holland, left, waits while Senator Allen J. Ellender, Louisiana, receives a serving from Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, Treasurer of the United States, who served from the world's largest salad bowl. Senator Holland, one of six Senators and eight Congressmen who acted as hosts, provided frozen grapefruit. This salad, composed of 15 ingredients from 11 states, was created by General Foods Kitchens.

Members of Congress from 35 states joined Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, Commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration George P. Larrick and other Government notables in sampling this year's Senate Salad from the world's largest salad bowl, three feet wide, 14 inches deep, holding 320 main course servings.

The home economists in GF Kitchens have reduced the proportions of the world's largest salad from 80 pounds of shrimp, 48 packages of lemon flavored gelatin, 28 envelopes of garlic-type salad dressing mix, 51 heads of lettuce, 42 packages of frozen artichoke hearts, etc., into a home size version for four main course servings.

To make jellied shrimp squares, dissolve a package of lemon-flavored gelatin, 1 tablespoon of salt in 1½ cups hot water. Add ¼ teaspoon pepper and 1 tablespoon vinegar.

Chill in a loaf pan until slightly thickened, add cup of diced shrimp, space for cutting into one inch squares, chill and place on tossed salad which includes: a package of frozen artichoke hearts cooked as directed on package, frozen grapefruit sections, 1 cup diced tomatoes, 1 cup cheddar cheese cut in thin strips, ½ cup sliced ripe olives, ¼ cup chopped green onion and 2 quarts of mixed greens (iceberg and romaine lettuce, escarole, water cress). Toss ingredients in salad bowl with 1 cup of dressing made with old fashion garlic salad dressing mix as directed on envelope.

Pineapple Sundae Sauce

HERE'S A SUNDAE SAUCE that can be served to the family as a special treat or to guests any day in the week. Excellent as a topping for ice cream, it is equally delicious over cake or cottage pudding.

The sauce is simple to prepare because its base is a no-cook instant pudding. The silken-smooth texture comes from the use of rich evaporated milk in the blending.

In the time of roses, bridal showers, and June wedding parties, this sauce is excellent over store-bought ice cream for that "extra special" touch.

PINEAPPLE SUNDAE SAUCE

1 package Jell-O vanilla instant pudding	1/2 cup evaporated milk
2/3 cup light corn syrup	1/4 cup pineapple juice concentrate, thawed
	1/4 teaspoon salt

Combine the pudding mix and syrup in a bowl. Mix until smooth. Gradually add evaporated milk, pineapple juice and salt, and stir until blended. Allow to stand about 10 minutes to thicken sauce. Serve on ice cream, cake, or other desserts. Makes 1-3/4 cups of sauce.

Whats New With The National Guard

M/Sgt. Ollie P. Gentry

Battery C, 712th AAA Bn of Avon Park arrived at the Armory early Sunday afternoon upon completion of its Annual Summer Field Training at Fort Stewart, Georgia. Under the command of 1st Lt. James V. See, the men of Btry C were in high spirits at the close of the 2-week AD training period, feeling the satisfaction that comes with the realization of a job well done. The unit scored superior ratings on the range and in garrison with no accidents or injuries with the exception of a few skinned fingers, one case of poison ivy and our share of redbugs. Sgt. Brady Hopson of Avon Park and Frostproof was selected as the outstanding soldier of the encampment. This selection is made each year by all members of the unit. This year makes Sgt. Hopson a 2-time winner, receiving the same honor in 1957.

"Plan For The Civil Defense Of Florida" Approved By Gov. Collins

Jacksonville, July 14, 1958.—The State Director for Civil Defense, Colonel H. W. Tarkington, has announced that the "Plan for the Civil Defense of Florida" has been approved by Governor LeRoy Collins and is now being mailed to cabinet officials, all state department heads, County boards of commissioners and other state officials who would assume emergency positions in the event of enemy attack.

As Governor Collins states in a letter attached to the general plan, "It provides guidance for public officials upon whom it is incumbent to develop plans and programs for averting or mitigating the results of disasters or emergencies of unprecedented magnitude or destructiveness".

The Florida State Plan recognizes the fact that a national disaster would very probably divide the state into segments. Each area would face similar problems, the need for medical care, food, clothing, water. Disrupted services, such as communications and transportation, would have to be reestablished; families would be separted; the normal supply system used by industry would have to be converted to the immediate needs of the populace. A tremendous burden would be placed upon police and fire services far beyond their normal peacetime capacity. All these, and many other serious problems, would have to be faced after an enemy attack. The combined efforts of all municipal, county and state agencies would be required to implement Florida's operational plan for survival. Practically every echelon of government has an emergency responsibility. This recently completed plan imposes these emergency responsibilities on the existing state government.

It is believed that this document will greatly accelerate the state's progress in mobilization for its defense by civil forces. Florida presently rates high among all states in this field.

The "Operational Survival Planning Project", headed by Colonel G. J. Freeman, produced the plan under the supervision of the State Director, Colonel H. W. Tarkington.

Farm Safety Week July 20 - 26

July 20-26 is National Farm Safety Week. Since the inauguration of the "Safety on the Farm Program" by Commissioner Nathan Mayo in 1938 in Florida, farm safety has been a year round activity of the Florida Farmer.

The constant reduction in farm accidents in Florida, is reflected in the annual safety report released by the Florida Safety Council.

Cooperating with the Council in its annual "Safety on the Farm Program" are nearly farm agency in Florida: The FF and 4-H Clubs, Florida Extension Service, Department of Agriculture Inspectors, Vocational Teachers, and the Press and others.

The farmer who is his own doctor, engineer and mechanic, knows the value of having a first-aid kit always on hand.

Councluding, Ashbank, Director of the Safety Council, advises that the farmer and his helpers should be as careful off the farm and on the highway as they are on the farm.

UNDERCOVER KLANSMAN—In testimony that sounded like a mystery story on TV, Dick Judd, Winter Haven public relations man and candidate for the State House of Representatives said in legislative committee about his role as a "Klansman for the FBI."

Asbe named names and places of Klan inspired incidents and said that Klansmen in Jacksonville, Orlando, Lakeland, and Tallahassee have stores of firearms and ammunition ready to expose school integration.

The testimony ended a three-day hearing of the committee, which also resulted in the committee seeking contempt charges against Suwannee County Sheriff Hugh Lewis, who refused to say whether two men implicated in the 1955 flogging of a Live Oak Negro tobacco farmer had confessed the crime to him.

Sheriff Lewis refused to give full information because he said "someone might get killed" and on the grounds that is was confidential information and could incriminate him.

Gov. LeRoy Collins will probably check Lewis' testimony to see if there are grounds for suspension.

HOT SENATE RACE—Former U. S. Sen. Claude Peppe, has made it official. He will oppose Sen. Spessard Holland for the U. S. Senate seat in September.

In making the announcement, he used his usual flurry of words to label Holland a "Reip Van Winkle" and to say this was no time for "petty politics, pussyfooting or fence straddling," all his estimates of Holland's Washington record.

Although he said his basic philosophy hasn't changed, he did say he was not basing his campaign on the past but on the future. Before it's over, however, he will probably hear plenty about his past record—the same record Sen. George Smathers used to stage one of Florida's biggest political upsets.

FEW SURPRISES—So far there have been few surprises in the candidate qualifications for state office.

Among the more interesting, but not unexpected developments, are three state senate contests.

The contests will involve seats in Escambia, Duval, and Hillsborough counties—three of the more populous areas of the state.

In each case, younger men, who have formerly served in the House of Representatives, are challenging Senators, who are generally identified with the present majority bloc.

The outcome of the races could play a big part in control of the senate.

In Escambia, Rep. J. B. Hopkins is trying to unseat Sen. Philip Beall; in Duval Lacy Mahon is running against Sen. Fletcher Morgan, and in Hillsborough, Rep. Sam Gibbons is running against Sen. Paul Kicklighter.

PECAN WAR—Commissioner of Agriculture Nathan Mayo's annual war on low quality pecans is underway again.

He has set up regulations establishing standards for pecans in the shell when sold for food.

TOURISTS TAXES—Tourists are paying 18 per cent of all state taxes collected in Florida in 1957, according to the Development Commission.

SKYWAY REFINANCING—Although Gov. Collins backed down on a proposed plan to refinance the Sunshine Skyway, he didn't like it. He was as mad as most folks have ever seen him during talks—both public and private on the affair.

amount of work remaining to be done prior to adjournment. Even now, there have been some guesses made with regard to the date on which the Congress will adjourn. I will not attempt to be such a "crystal ball expert", but believe we should carefully consider all matters brought before the Congress without being pushed to meet an adjournment date.

As Chairman of the Senate-House Conferees on two important bills, it was my responsibility to present the conference reports on those bills to the floor of the House last week. One of the bills has been quite controversial. As you may know, whenever a bill is passed by the House and the Senate subsequently passes the bill, but with amendments, the bill is sent back to the House who may either approve or reject the bill as amended by the Senate. If the House rejects the bill as amended, the bill may be referred to a Senate-House Conferee Committee appointed to resolve the differences between the House and the Senate versions of the measure. Upon reaching a decision, the conferees submit a conference report to their respective Houses for further action. Many of the controversial measures are referred to a conferee committee. Thus you see another example of a statement I have previously made that controversial legislation which is enacted by the Congress is a matter of compromise.

The Veterans' Affairs Committee, of which I am a member, last week favorably reported to the House a bill increasing veterans' benefits. I will certainly continue to support legislation which is necessary to provide for our disabled veterans. In connection with veterans, I was happy to support legislation which passed the House last week that would grant eligibility to the Veterans of World War I of the United States of America.

Washington, D. C.—The announcement that the President had approved plans to add 350 beds to each of the VA hospitals at Coral Gables and Bay Pines was welcomed inasmuch as I have been trying to persuade the administration to provide additional facilities at these locations since I have been in Congress. Due to the increase in the veteran population in Florida, especially disabled veterans who go to Florida for their health, the hospitals at Bay Pines and Coral Gables have become woefully inadequate. In the first session of the 85th Congress, I introduced legislation which would provide an additional 1000 beds at the Bay Pines hospital, and legislation was introduced recently which would provide an additional 2000 beds for the VA hospitals in Florida. In a letter to President Eisenhower on April 29, 1958, I pointed out that the Executive Branch of the Government has authority to provide hospital care to veterans where needed, and I called particular attention to the urgent need for an additional 1000 beds at Bay Pines. In view of the fact that the administration has ample authority to construct additional facilities without further Congressional authorization, I asked the President whether construction of needed facilities at Bay Pines was being withheld with the knowledge and approval of the President. This announcement that the President had approved plans to add 350 beds at Bay Pines was therefore gratifying. I do not believe this will be enough, but at least it will relieve the situation.

The Veterans Administration also advised me last week that they plan to close the VA office in Lakeland on August 15, 1958, due to the decline in workload in certain benefit programs. They advised this was in keeping with their policy to close some offices in relative close proximity to other VA offices. I have strongly protested such action because of the valuable services rendered to the vetrans in the Lakeland area by the Lakeland VA office. In the event that office is closed, the veterans in the Lakeland area would have to obtain assistance through the Tampa office.

This is the first time since my election to Congress that I have not had any opposition in a campaign for re-election. The fact that I do not have any opposition is indeed a great honor to me, for it means that the people I serve have confidence in my ability to represent them and they endorse the record I have made in Congress. I will continue to serve to the best of my ability and in a manner that will merit continued confidence of the voters of the seventh district. Since it will not be necessary to conduct a campaign, I plan to devote my time to Congressional responsibilities.

Report From Congressman Jim Haley

Washington D. C.—A Congressional office sometimes is called upon to render service which is out of the ordinary. For example, last week the local Animal Rescue League (the Humane Society) called my office for assistance in locating the owner of a small Boston bull dog whose license tag was issued in one of the cities in the seventh district of Florida. The Rescue League stated that when the dog was found he was practically exhausted and required care for his badly bruised feet. I immediately sent a telegram to the newspaper in the city where the license was issued. Upon determining the name of the owner, the newspaper immediately contacted me, and the information was relayed to the Rescue League. As a result of such cooperation, I have been advised there has been a very happy reunion of a little bull dog and his master.

Soil Conservation News

The Lake Placid West Chain of Lakes landowners, under the leadership of Mr. James Bowen of Lake Placid, held a meeting last week at the Woman's Club building. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the possibility of developing a plan for water control under the Small Watershed Act, similar to the construction now being done on the East Chain of Lakes. The West Chain consists of Lakes Annie, Placid, June-in-Winter and Francis.

Mr. Bowen arranged with representatives of the Soil Conservation Service to explain the small watershed program under public law 566. This was done by Mr. D. H. Esry of the Watershed Planning Party in Gainesville and Mr. L. A. Jacobsen, Area Conservationist of Stuart. Mr. O. E. Smith, SCS Engineer was also present and pointed out that the Soil Conservation Service developed a water control plan for anti seed pods.

Garden Club Shows New Styles In Hats

Lili Dache had better look to her laurels, because we have in the local garden club some ingenious designers who have a knack for doing things with hats — particularly in the flower department.

At the annual picnic of the Founder's Circle, held this year at the home of Mrs. D. M. Ellis, the members had a chance to exploit their creative talents and came up with some real lovely, original and ridiculous numbers.

Mrs. E. A. Shepherd was prettiest in her wide-brimmed creation made of Hibiscus leaves over a frame of palm fronds with a band of variegated ligrus trum to which were fastened allimanda blooms. Ruth proved that her hat was not only pretty but practical too by wearing it as a sunshade through the tour of the beautiful Ellis garden.

Mrs. P. L. Rumpsa was most original with a seagrape bonnet trimmed with achrosia and dur-anti seed pods.

Anna's hat was soon dismantled because so many of the girls were interested in taking home the pods for planting.

Prize for the most ridiculous chapeau went to Mrs. Burt Ostling who had done startling things with hibiscus and beloperone. It must have been extremely hard for the judges . . . so much talent to choose from.

The Ellis peacock was strutting around the garden but the peahen and her little brood of three didn't make an appearance.

Col. Ellis says the little ones look just like quail. They seldom have a family of more than two or three.

Mrs. Jimmie Johnson (Julie) looked very chic in a dress created by her daughter, Leila who is studying dress design at Gainesville, and from the looks of her work will undoubtedly go far in the fashion world.

Garden clubers have fun, but always mix business with pleasure. Right now one of the projects for beautification has created an interest in the zoning laws of our county as well as the city . . . and when a group of the weaker sex get together and think alike on an issue, something usually happens.

Rotary News

He was one of the most interesting programs presented to the club in a long time.

George Marosy, Jacksonville was the guest of Vernon Lanier and John Townsend was the guest of L. L. Wainwright.

Nat Porter of Ft. Myers was the only visiting Rotarian.

Dr. Douglass Principal Speaker At Congregational Council In Hartford

Hartford, Conn.—"With mankind longing for some authentic form of solidarity, Protestantism is today one of the principal divisive and disruptive forces in many of our local churches," a top American Protestant leader told an international church gathering here.

Addressing the eighth assembly of the International Congregational Council in session in Hartford July 2-10, Rev. Dr. Truman B. Douglass, New York City, declared that "much of the general weakness and ineffectiveness of the Protestant churches in contemporary society is due to the responsibility felt by every denomination to demonstrate some kind of distinctiveness."

Speaking of his own denomination, Dr. Douglass, executive vice-president of the Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches in the United States, pointed out that, "As Congregationalists we are not invited to be distinctive; and the more we try, the more we are likely to be merely eccentric or whimsical."

Dr. Douglass cited leadership of Congregational churches throughout the world in church unions, pointing out they are "already participants in more unions of Protestant churches than any other Protestant denomination."

In recent years Congregationalists have entered into unions with other churches in Japan, the Philippines, South and North India, and in Canada. The most recent union occurred in the United States last year when the General Council of the Congregational Christian Churches united with the Evangelical and Reformed Church to create the United Church of Christ.

The 450 delegates to the meeting, representing churches of the Congregational (or free) order in 22 nations, as well as many United State visitors, heard reports on the state of the church in North and South America, Europe, the Near East, Asia, and Africa. Major addresses and discussion groups considered the theme "God Speaks to Our World."

A central item of business is the future of the Council itself, and members are working on plans for strengthening the role of the organization. In addition, they are exchanging ideas on specialized church problems in a series of seminars.

The delegates elected Rev. Dr. Russell H. Stafford, Columbia, Conn., retired president of the Hartford Theological Seminary, as moderator, succeeding Rev. Dr. S. Maurice Watts, of London, England.

Congregationalism began in England during the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries as a form of the Protestant reformation. The Congregational church in the United States traces its history to the Pilgrim who came seeking freedom from state control of the church.

Registered as delegates to the International Congregational Council meeting at Hartford, Connecticut, July 2 to 10, are; Rev. Robbins Ralph, Avon Park, Florida, Superintendent Florida C. C. Conference; Rev. Dr. David J. Davis, Miami, Florida, President, Board of Directors, Florida Conference of Congregational Churches; Gladys M. Green, Miami Beach, Florida, Florida Women's Fellowship Board; Mrs. Mary Ann Williams, N. Lake Worth, Florida, President Women's Fellowship of ICC, Assistant Moderator General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

New Skin Care For Babies Called Most Effective Yet

Mothers everywhere can prepare to rejoice over a remarkable, new product for baby skin care, now on the market after years of research.

The product is called Baby Sea & Ski and is said to be the most effective medicated cream ever developed for diaper rash, chafing, chapping and dry skin.

Baby Sea & Ski is an entirely new kind of lotion which goes to work amazingly fast to clear up diaper rash and prevent its recurrence. It is equally effective in soothing and healing chafing, chapping, dry skin — all the minor skin irritations which cause major discomfort to babies.

One of the many advantages of the new Baby Sea & Ski is the way this creamy lotion is absorbed into the skin without leaving any oily residue or greasy film.

In addition, the product is delicately scented with no hint of its medicated properties — and is as pleasant to use as a cosmetic. Mothers will find their hands turning to velvet in using Baby Sea & Ski to guard their youngsters' skin.

Baby Sea & Ski, as you might guess from the name, is produced by the same man, Charles Rolley, who developed Sea & Ski — the largest selling suntan lotion in the world. And the new Baby Sea & Ski also gives complete protection from sunburn. The protection is so thorough that skin will not even tan. This will be a real boon for baby's first outings and subsequent sun baths. Because of its complete sun protection, this product is expected to be grabbed up not only for baby skin care, but by everyone of any age with especially sensitive skin.

Mothers will be pleased with the practical packaging of the new Baby Sea & Ski, for it comes in a handy plastic squeeze tube. This travels safely in baby bags, makes for one-hand operation when changing baby—and prevents no danger of breakage or spillage.

Just as the parent product, Sea & Ski, has made painful sunburn a thing of the past — the new Baby Sea & Ski is dedicated to doing way with the miseries of diaper rash.

Nothing succeeds like quality. And just as Sea & Ski made a spectacular rise to first place in the suntan field, history is expected to repeat itself with the new Baby Sea & Ski in the field of baby skin care products.

Bridal Shower For Miss Pickett Thursday Night

Miss Patricia Pickett, bride-elect of John Starling, was guest of honor at a miscellaneous bridal shower on Thursday night, July 10, at the Orange Blossom Motel. The hostesses for the lovely event were Mrs. L. F. Elder, Mrs. Ruth Tomek, and Mrs. Legare Smoak of Sebring. They were assisted by Mrs. Claribell Pickett of Sebring, a grandmother of the bride-elect.

The gifts were on table covered with cloth and featuring a white umbrella decorated with yellow roses. Yellow and white colors were used throughout with gladioli and other flowers. The bride-elect received many lovely and useful gifts for her new home.

The thirty guests enjoyed delicious refreshments of cake and punch served from a lovely table covered with a lace cloth and carrying out the color scheme.

During the evening Mrs. Ralph Hill won the prize in a funny letter contest and Mrs. Ann Tootle won the prize in an 'adrive to the Bride' game which used Pat's name.

Pep Hutchinson Celebrates Twelth Birthday

Pep Hutchinson and some of his friends celebrated his twelfth birthday with a watermelon and swimming party at his home on Wednesday afternoon, July 9.

The boys and girls ate watermelon by the lake and then went swimming in Lake Lotela. An unusual feature of the party were the paper sack hats each boy and girl made at home and brought to the party.

The young artists had really used their imagination and with some outstanding results. All the hats were extremely clever and it was with quite a bit of difficulty that the group decided that Robert King's huge hat should have first prize for the boys and Bruce King's space hat should get the second prize. Beth Sullivan's lovely "medieval" hat won first for the girls with Nancy Wright's undescribable hat second. Pep wore a hat which had been iced and had candles on it and looked like a large birthday cake. All the hats were admired and everyone had a good time with them.

After the swim, games were played and the guests enjoyed large ice cream sundaes together. Those helping Pep celebrate were Leonard Sullivan, Robert King, Bruce King, Bill, Jim, David and Mike Ward, Jim Bob Maddox, Eddie DeLaney, Lanse Padgett, Kathy Kluberg, Beth Sullivan, Deborah and Dorinda Betts, Nancy Wright, Sherry Wells, Devorah Reddick, JoAnn Kelly, and Betty, Jackie and Carol Hutchinson. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hutchinson assisted their son with his party.

First Baptist Church News

The Junior Departments of the Sunday School will visit Thursday evening, July 17. Supper will be served at the church at 6:30 o'clock and after that the group will visit in behalf of their department.

The members of the Brotherhood and their families enjoyed a picnic at Lake Denton on Saturday, July 12. During the afternoon there was a watermelon cutting with delicious melon for the thirty present. Swimming and games were enjoyed by all in the afternoon. A delicious picnic supper was served the guests. Tom Moore, a missionary from Chile and a director at the Lake Denton Assembly, showed the group colored slides of his work in Chile in the evening. His very interesting talk was enjoyed by all.

Eighty men and boys of the Associational Brotherhood were present at the supper meeting at the Lake Buffum Church on Monday, July 7.

Mrs. E. Hay Wells and Mrs. Herbert Baughan and their Intermediate RA boys presented the program on the work of the Royal Ambassadors and how the Brotherhood could assist with this group. Taking part in the program were Sherman Drawdy, Paul McFarland, Hugh Haynesworth, Lawton Tootle, Jimmie Mills, Danny Thomas, and Jimmie Singletary.

The Church Kindergarten will begin in less than two months and reservations may be made to the church office.

Garden Club News

Founder's Circle met on Thursday morning, July 10, at the home of Mrs. D. M. Ellis for their Annual Picnic with Mrs. B. F. Camp serving as co-hostess.

After a short business meeting the members enjoyed a delicious covered dish luncheon. The program was the viewing and judging of the clever flower hats which each member had made for the picnic.

These hats were colorful, gay, and very amusing. Mrs. Ernest Shepherd won first prize for the most beautiful hat with a little number featuring hibiscus tree leaves, varagated lugustrum, and yellow allamander. The seagrape leaves, yellow berries, and red seed pod hat won the most original prize for Mrs. Paul Rumpas. The funniest hat prize went to Mrs. B. C. Ostling with hat made of red hibiscus and green leaves. The judges had a hard time making their decisions and everyone had an excellent time with their hats. Each winner received a prize of a pin point flower holder.

After lunch Mrs. Ellis showed the ladies her very interesting and lovely garden and told them of the rare plants she has there.

The members of Hibiscus Circle and their families held their Annual Picnic in Highlands Hammock on Thursday afternoon and evening, July 10.

Each family brought a picnic basket and delicious food was in abundance. After supper the members and guests enjoyed an evening of visiting.

Hibiscus Circle will not meet during the month of August and the next meeting will be on Thursday, Sept. 11.

Fla. Power Family Picnic To Be Saturday

All members are especially urged to attend as their will be an important short joint meeting of the two clubs at the picnic. Matters of great importance to all the families will be discussed at the meeting.

Bride-Elect Honored At Shower Tuesday

The fabled "Pot of Gold" at the end of a beautiful rainbow was the colorful theme for a lovely miscellaneous shower honoring bride-elect Patricia Pickett on Tuesday night, July 8, in the Social Hall of the Florida Avenue Baptist Church.

The beautiful wedding gifts were at the end of the lovely rainbow and the twenty-five guests enjoyed helping miss Pickett open them. Several clever games were played during the evening. A Tic-tac-toe board had time making their decisions and everyone had an excellent time with their hats. Each winner received a prize of a pin point flower holder.

Cokes and cookies were served the guests by the ladies of the Women's Missionary Society who gave the lovely shower.

Long-Maulden Wedding Plans Announced

The wedding plans of Miss Lorraine Long and Daniel Fox Maulden have been announced by the bride-elect.

The ceremony will take place in the First Baptist Church of Frostproof on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 2 o'clock. It will be a small wedding with all friends and relatives of the young couple invited to attend the service.

After a wedding trip the young couple will make their home in Orlando where Mr. Maulden is employed with the Seaboard Food Express Company.

Wilbur C. King Seeks Reelection To Public Utilities Commission

Wilbur C. King of Hardee County, announced today his candidacy for reelection to the State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission. King has served 11 years on this Commission.

He stated when he made his announcement that as in the past he would run on his record of achievement for the people of Florida. He exemplifies his statement by pointing out that in 1948 when he came to the Commission, there were 400,000 telephones in Florida. Today more than 1,500,000 are in use.

Mr. King states, "I have been referred to as the daddy of the pogram that has given some 200,000 phones in the urban and rural areas throughout the state." King stated further that for a progressive Florida, transportation companies, power companies and communication systems must keep pace with Florida's rapid growth, as well as project their planning for future growth.

"I have constantly urged that this be done and it is my sincere belief that the utilities under the Commission's jurisdiction, recognizing this responsibility, have accepted the challenge of meeting the needs of the people, and the expanding economy of Florida."

King supported the application of the Texas Gas Company, feeling confidently with natural gas available to all the people of Florida, the state will be in a stronger position to entice new industries and new citizens, thus increasing business and labor payrolls. King stated, "Being a businessman, cattle rancher and citrus grower, there is only one direction to go and that is forward!"

"Florida is going forward, and I wish to continue to be a part of this great growth by giving honest, conscientious service on your State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission."

was when one member of the Bureau voted to see the Commissioners lower the millage then he turned around and requested that the Commission consider donating $1600 to the South West Water Conservation District.

The Board was also presented a request from Mervin Rehrer, County Juvenile Judge, that his salary be increased $1,120 a year, or $2,160 instead of the $1,040 he now receives, and also a $500 a year increase in salary for E. A. DeLaney, Juvenile Court Counselor, thus raising it from $1500 to $2,000.

H. T. Piety, Clerk of the Circuit Court, will present the tentative budget to the Board of County Commissioners at the regular meeting next Tuesday for their approval.

second floor in the large hangar. The remodeling of the hangar cost about $361,000 and the around $50,000.

Approximately twenty-one days are needed from the time a screwworm female lays her egg until her offspring reach adult state. The first flies from the new plant are expected the end of July.

Senator Holland estimated that the screwworm takes an annual $20,000,000 toll in livestock in the Southeastern states. The eradication program over a period of a few years should cost only nine ten million. He said that the U. S. Department of Agriculture will spend about $5,000,000 annually in keeping up proper quarantines and inspection systems to keep out the screwworm after the present program has been completed.

It was because of the Agricultural scientists that the Mediterranean fruit fly was driven out of Florida, and there is no reason to believe that the screwworm, which came into Florida on cattle from the Southwestern states back in 1933, cannot be conquered.

Many of the visitors to the new plant last Thursday viewed movies telling of the eradication program, and watched exhibits of "drops" of screwworm containers from one of the 20 air-planes used in scattering newly hatched sterilized flies over Florida.

Visitors are no longer welcomed at the plant due to the elaborate precautions which must be taken to prevent the escape of unsterilized flies, to prevent cobalt radiation harm to any of the 200 workers and to prevent any interruption of the fly breeding and hatching program.

Code of Ethics Gets Congress O.K

WASHINGTON, D. C. — A code of ethics for government service has won final Congressional approval as the Senate this week unanimously adopted the measure previously passed by the House. The President's signature is not necessary.

The resolution was introduced by Representative Charles E. Bennett (D-Fla.). Sponsored by Bennett in each Congress since 1951 the measure finally caught on last year, when it was unanimously passed by the House.

Bennett said that he had introduced it in cooperation with a substantial number of other Congressmen, some of whom introduced similar resolutions. He singled out Rep. Katharine St. George (R-N.Y.) as one who deserves particular credit for the resolution's success.

The Code of Ethics resolution expresses the sense of Congress on ethical standards in all government employment, including Members of Congress. It reads:

"Any person in Government service should:

"1. Put loyalty to the highest moral principles and to country above loyalty to persons, party, or Government department.

"2. Uphold the Constitution laws, and legal regulations of the United States and of all governments therein and never be a party to their evasion.

"3. Give a full day's labor for a full day's pay; giving to the performance of his duties his earnest effort and best thought.

"4. Seek to find and employ more efficient and economical ways of getting tasks accomplished.

"5. Never discriminate unfairly by the dispensing of special favors or privileges to anyone, whether for remuneration or not; and never accept, for himself or his family, favors or benefits under circumstances which might be construed by reasonable persons as influencing the performance of his governmental duties.

"6. Make no private promises of any kind binding upon the duties of office, since a Government employee has no provate word which can be binding on public duty.

"7. Engage in no business with the Government, either directly or indirectly, which is inconsistent with the conscientious performance of his governmental duties.

"8. Never use any information coming to him confidentially in the performance of governmental duties as a means for making private profit.

"9. Expose corruption wherever discovered.

"10. Uphold these principles, ever conscious that public office is a public trust."

It was pointed out that many cities boast of one or more dazzling illuminated fountains which attracts thousands of visitors each year. The Chamber's suggestion of a series of fountains in the already famous Mall would be an original attraction which far surpasses any other city of its size in the nation.

The fountains would offer beauty by day as well as a fairyland setting at night. This would be an attraction that would appeal to all ages and would draw visitors into our community for an overnight stay.

The fact that Avon Park is located near so many nationally known scenic attractions would be of great advantage.

Mr. Heim stated this project had not been worked out in entirety and he felt some changes would have to be made. However he asked for a Council Committee to be appointed to work with the Chamber in perfecting this unique idea. After further discussion Robert Lee, president of the City Council, appointed Councilmen Paul McFarland and Roland Dilley as representatives of the City to serve with the Chamber in taking this plan under consideration.

Babs and Charlie Whitehurst former local residents now of Marianna, who have been visiting Babs parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pixler, calculate that attending a horse show cost them about $2,000.

They had been digging for precious stones in Franklin, North Carolina and had spent the entire day removing a large boulder. While they were watching the horses some city slicker moved into their excavation and uncovered a saphire about the size of a Coke bottle cap.

They have had some better days though, unearthing small rubies, a saphire, white and yellow topaz and a tholalite garnet, which is a beautiful shade of pink . . . a good hobby if you like to dig and don't mind the blisters.

Cove Realty Opens New Subdivision Adjoining River Ridge Ranches

River Ridge Ranches, the offering of 5, 10, and 20 acre tracts by the Cove Realty, is fast becoming a reality. Already 135 owners, representing approximately 1,000 acres, have been notified that two roads, totaling 5½ miles, bisecting the 2300 acres have been completed except for final capping. A bridge spanning Palmetto Creek is in progress and should be completed soon.

Some of the owners, who hail from Florida to Maine and west to Iowa, have expressed their approval of the Avon Park area and look forward to retirement on their private ranch-type homesite. Others, who reside in the more congested acres of the state, have purchased in order to get away from the fast pace of big city living.

To the south of River Ridge Ranches a 480 acre tract has been set aside for a lot subdivision. The plat of the first section has been approved and accepted by the County Commissioners. This unique subdivision will have a minimum lot size of 10,000 square feet and sell from $595 up, in accordance with the size of the lot. There will be a total of over 1400 lots in the entire subdivision and with the opening of the first section, 348 lots are now available.

The Cove Realty has the plats of this subdivision on display in their office located at 18 East Main Street and will be glad to show and answer any questions regarding this new offering.

Larger Sales—Smaller Profits

A high level of sales by a business doesn't necessarily mean a high level of profits.

An editorial inChain Store Age provides a concrete example of this. According to the 1957 annual reports of some 60 chain systems, operating about 20,000 stores, there was a gain in sales volume—and at the same time there was a decline in net profits, per dollar of sales. The only exception was the food chains. They did manage to show an increase in the ratio of net profits, but the improvement was very slight compared to the gain in volume.

So, Chain Store Age states: "Operating economies have always been a prime objective in chain store operation, but right now they are more necessary than ever." A survey made by the magazine's editors finds that there are actually 144 ways in which various chains have made cuts in operating costs.

The current situation points up a fact that deserves much more recognition than it generally gets—that retail profits are much smaller than most people realize. Leading food stores commonly have little more than a cent left out of each dollar of sales after the bills are paid. Other kinds of stores earn only two or three cents on the dollar. When a profit margin is this small, it could turn into a loss in a hurry, unless strict standards of operating economy are imposed and maintained.

What keeps profits so low? The answer, of course, is competition. It guarantees that the consumer gets the best possible deal for his money.

Favorable Climate Essential For Abundance

A healthy interest in the welfare of American enterprise is necessary to promote jobs and better living.

The spark plug of American industry has been the men with vision, and workmen with the determination, to accomplish the seemingly impossible. A good example is found in the oil industry. Only one hundred years ago this country had to depend on whale oil and tallow for its lamps. Now, oil fuels the family transportation, powers farm machinery, is indispensible to national defense, the railroads, ocean shipping and a thousand other everyday activities.

To pioneer for oil involves risk—tremendous risk. It is found in pockets thousands of feet deep in the earth and under the sea. Not one person in a thousand has the courage to risk his savings in "wildcatting" for oil, even today. It is constantly becoming more difficult and costly to find new oil reserves to replace those that become exhausted.

Vegetation only thrives where the climate is favorable to productivity. The productivity of American enterprise is also dependent on an economic climate inducive to growth. The oil industry will produce more jobs and better living in an atmosphere of more nourishment rather than less. This is why a healthy interest in it, as well as other industry, is a necessary ingredient to ample production.

Medical Armor For The Baby

From the moment an infant is born modern medicine begins to wrap a protective cloak of science about him.

Silver nitrate is immediately dropped in his eyes to guard him against blindness.

At two or three months he is vaccinated against diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus.

At three or four months he is immunized against smallpox.

At six months he is inoculated against typhoid fever.

No wonder the number of deaths among infants under one year old has dropped from 162 per thousand in 1900 to 29 per thousand in 1955.

Since 1955 a new link has been forged by medical science in the infant's armor against disease—the anti-polio vaccine developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk on March of Dimes funds.

Too many parents do not know that even the tiniest tots may be stricken with paralytic polio. Nothing is more pitiful than to see a baby bereft of the power of motion, encased in an iron lung before he has even learned to walk. Until three years ago there was little we could do to prevent it. But now that we have the Salk vaccine, it is gross negligence on the part of parents to deny their babies this protection.

Last year infants under one year old showed the highest rate of polio attack. Babies from one to two years old came next.

Many physicians recommend the first Salk shot for babies at the age of two or three months. Consult your doctor now.

Your Stake In Railroads

The railroads are in a critical financial situation. Their ability to provide this country with the ever-improving standards of rail service we want and need is being impaired, largely because of obsolete regulatory laws and policies stemming back to the vanished age when they had a virtual monopoly on commercial transportation. Bills designed to correct the situation are now being considered in Congress, and one has passed the Senate.

A logical question arises: What interest has the average citizen in railroad problems and the railroad industry?

First of all, everyone agrees that the railroads are essential to the national security and the national economic welfare alike— and we're certainly all interested in these. But the public's stake in the railroads goes farther still.

For instance, you have a direct financial interest in the railroads if you are among the nearly 900,000 railroad stockholders or 1 million railroad bondholders.

You have a financial interest in the railroads if you own a life insurance policy, or have deposits in savings banks or trust companies. Financial institutions such as these commonly have large sums invested in railroad securities.

You have a financial interest in the railroads if you live in a community—as most of us do—where big sums of money, in taxes, wages and purchases, are pumped into the economy by the railroad industry. In 1957 alone, railroads paid over $5 billion in wages, bought more than $3 billion worth of supplies, and paid another $1 billion in taxes.

The pending railroad legislation, for the most part, has the goal of helping the railroads to help themselves—by modifying regulatory strictures so that they can compete more freely and effectively for business, and in other ways. Everyone in the country will benefit from that.

Meikrowaves

By DON MEIKLEJOHN

In football, they have a slick little maneuver called a mousetrap.

The objective is to cool down the enthusiasm of over agressive lineman. To carry out the plot, the agressive lineman is allowed to charge in without offering any serious objection, and someone bops him from the side knocking him out of the play.

A similar plot--intentional or otherwise--seems to be developing in the sphere of Education Television.

Unless someone takes a good hard look at the situation before rushing in, the 1959 Legislature is going to get mousetrapped into spending millions of dollars that it might not be expecting.

Few would attempt to argue against the potential of E-TV, but to classify it as anything but afrill in the current scramble for state funds would be less than honest.

Th key to the deal is a shift in emphasis from closed circuit television, which would not be received on regulation sets, to an open broadcast concept.

The new concept may be the correct approach since it opens up E-TV to millions who might not otherwise be exposed to it, but it also carries a higher price tag for yearly operating costs.

Except for the two university channels, the costs of building and operating these broadcast channels are supposed to be borne by local groups, but even at this early stage of the game, this theory has gone out the window, opening the doors to future doles from the state.

So far, the E-TV Commission has endorsed projects making the E-TV network dependant on these local broadcast channels, which aren't under state control, up to $50,000 to help move the Miami E-TV channel's tower closer to Broward and Palm Beach counties.

It also has approved $160,000 for studio equipment at FSU.

(The University of Florida had a separate appropriation to put its channel on the air, and didn't need money from the E-TV Commission—but it still comes out of the taxpayers' pockets)

The theory is that these broadcast channels can make the programs available to nearby junior colleges and public schools with a twist of the knob on a regular television set--in addition to the public at large.

But there's a rub.

Although these channels are presently privately financed, for the most part they are on shaky ground. Most are operating on shoestring budgets composed of donations, funds from education foundations interested in E-TV experimentations, and limited funds from schools--plus some help from commercial channels where it is competively desirable.

If the state continues its open broadcast concept, it makes the E-TV program on these channels, and it might as well look forward to financing the operation of the channels.

A conservative estimate puts the operation cost of such a channel at $100,000 to $200,000 a year.

Anyway you slice it, the state is stuck for $200,000 to 400,000 a year--or mightly close to those amounts--to operate the state controlled channels at Florida State University and the University of Florida. Some say it can be done for less, but most experts agree these estimates aren't out of line for a reasonably good production budget.

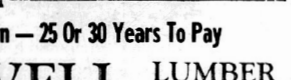
This means that similar contributions to the private E-TV channels in Miami, Tampa, and Jacksonville also wouldn't be out of line--or at least a strong argument could be put up on the basis of actions to date.

That puts the yearly operational cost at $500,000 to $1,000,000, and there's more to come.

This doesn't include northwest Florida.

To extend the system on an open broadcast basis to Panama City and Pensacola where there are junior colleges, channels would have to be activate in those cities.

The state would probably have to chip in on construction coasts at these two sites, and again the operational costs would probably eventually wind up in the state budget.



These channels also would have to be linked by a microwave facility at a cost of several hundred thousands of dollars.

Even more pressing, are basic projects such as a link between the two universities at Gainesville and Tallahassee. This is a key in the system, which is estimated to cost some $270,000.

Eventually, the Miami channel will have to be linked with the rest of the state.

Florida produces more than half of America's cypress lumber.

Tall Collars And Big Belts To be Highlights Of Fall Fashions

By Grace McElligott
Fashion Editor,
The All Florida Magazine

Bosoms are back but nobody notices. This is a leggy year - and the knee seems to be getting more play than anything else. Consistant in every collection is the display of part, if not most of the knee cap on this point all designers agree.

Waistlines continue to wander - some even ending at the normal point. In the few instances when such a dress appeared - the 207 out-of-town press women registered recognition and murmered approval. Most popular seems to be the softly full, high waisted silhouette, echoing the director fashions of the 1795-1800. New emphasis is being brought to the face via "stock" or "stack" collars. The first version named for the puritans stockade are enormous affairs standing away from the neck shallowly cowled, and broadening the shoulder line. The stack stands high around the ears and demands short or at least close confined hair. Monte-Sano highlighted both versions in his suits, coats, and costumes, of stained glass colors.

Belts are everywhere and on everything, varying from slender silvers of self fabric to four and five inch versions of leather crushed kind. And far, for the most part they are worn high. Just under the bosom. Dior's collection employed these great belts to best advantage - dwarfing the diaphrame and belittling the waist.

Gloves are long - more often than not opera length - worn with the brief after five dress - and dyed to the outfit whenever possible.

Furaliterally go to your head - with mink, sable chinchilla deftly draped and molded into bulky hats, dresses, coats, suits and fur trimmed. The tiny muff has wound it's way back in the fashion picture - and accents the Infanta or Josephine look. Coats are often lined with fur - if not completely - then as Pauline Trigere's evening coats with deftly placed ermine tails red and silver fox makes a strong come back - with chinchilla as prevalent as pennys in your change purse.

The extravagant fabrics most certainly speak of - if not for - a prosperous era, silk damasks, metal brocades, warp-printed satin ottoman, even printed cloths of gold fabrics that light a room as effectively as any jewel. In many cases - diamonds would be an anti-climax.

The all-over look is feminine new, and completely desirable both for wearer and beholder. Although the manufacturers are showing their fall and winter collections - with wool dominating the scene. There is no question but that these fashions will adapt themselves to fabrics more to the Floridian's liking and wearing.

A clothesline holding baby clothes was also used to carry out the theme of the shower. The lovely and useful baby gifts were given to Mrs. Birt in a bassinett covered in green which was a gift from the hostesses. Mrs. R. H. Lee won a prize in the clothesline game.

The refreshment table was cleverly decorated carrying out the baby theme. The iced cokes were surrounded by fern and dainty pink flowers, pink and green iced cakes were placed at one end of the table, and novel pink and green sandwiches cut in the shape of a diaper were in the center. Gay napkins in the traditional "three-corned daiper" shape with large gold pins held nuts and mints.

Hostesses for their surprised friend were Mrs. Harold Barker, Mrs. Ed Sharpe, Mrs. R. L. Fletcher, Mrs. Calvin Fletcher, and Mrs. Bertha Birt.

Guests who enjoyed the fun were the Mesdames, Bill Hood, Gene Barker, G. D. Godwin, Bobby Harden, Ray Rutherford, Malcom Crews, C. I. Wells, Randall Douberley, L. Y. Bride-elect Honored With Shower

Miss Jane Ladrie who is to be the bride of Mr. James T. Logan on Saturday, was honored with a shower Tuesday evening, at the Baptist Church Social Hall. As the guests arrived they were given a wedding bell, which they lost to anyone hearing them say the words bride, groom or wedding. Mrs. Joe Perez collected the highest number of bells and was given a small prize at the end of the evening. The wedding pictures were made by those present, including the groom, their home and their children, the results were hilarious. Mrs. Ted Ward, Mrs. Elizabeth Ladrie and Mrs. H. I. McCulley were judged the best artists.

Each guest wrote bits of advice to the bride. These choice bits of advice were pinned to streamers on a corsage which was presented to Jane. She later read all of the advice.

A short musical program was presented with Miss Turah Anne DeLaney at the piano and Claire Maxwell as the soloist. Numbers rendered were "My Hero" and "Somewhere over the Rainbow".

An original presentation of the gifts by Mrs. Ellis Watson included a rolling pin with the following poem:

A toast to Jane and James we make
Who, July 26, Wedding Vows will take.
With these gifts you'll start a new life.
James the "Hubby" and Jane the "Wife";
Use them and cherish them in the years ahead,
For only once this way you'll tread.
Jane, "protect" this rolling pin, and be it said,
Your friends warned you, there'd be trouble ahead;
But go easy on James as he will be
Your hubby from now 'til Eternity!
All Jokin' aside, we're here to impart,
Our very best wishes right from the start.
We present these gifts, and from this day on. . .
They are yours and James to make a "Happy Home."

Miss Ladrie received many beautiful and useful gifts. The Social Hall was decorated with bowls of pink flowers and garlands of fern with bells and bows of ribbon.

The refreshment table was covered with a white linen damask cloth. Table centerpiece was a cluster of silver bells, among pink blossoms and fern.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

JAMES E. HESS

For the past several weeks articles have appeared in the Sun named at emphasizing the fact that the ex-convict's chances of making a place for himself as an acceptable member of society are directly proportional to the number of hurdles he must leap, such as lack of funds, negative employment prospects, and the greatest of all - public antagonism. The task of listing the problems a man faces upon his release from prison is a simple one. Usually it takes little effort to point out the weak spots in a systems. A practical, workable solution to these problems is another matter entirely. Naturally Penologists are aware that these problems exist and in some states possible solutions are being attempted. It is just a matter of time until Florida too, advances along the Penological trail.

In an effort to find plausible on the very day he arrives. "We answers this writer sought out two members of the staff here at Avon Park Prison. One with several years experience, Mr. Louie L. Wainwright, Superintendent of the institution, and the other, comparatively new in the field of Penology, Mr. W. E. Booth, the institution's Classification Officer. Upon comparing notes it was discovered that both men proposed an almost identical solution for assisting the ex-con in his readjustment after being released from prison. Such an occurance demonstrates that the proposal must be a logical one as the subject has long been a matter of conjecture by the Mssrs. Wainwright and Booth.

Mr. Wainwright pointed out that approximately 93% of all incarcerated persons are eventually freed. It is the duty of the institution to begin preparing him for the return to freedom have progressed to the point where rehabilitation while incarcerated is becoming the accepted treatment" he said. "The next step is to show that responsibility doesn't end when the man walks out the front gate. I feel that the State has an obligation to help those deserving of assistance in their readjustment to community life." Mr. Wainwright's proposed solution to the problem confronting the ex-convict is not only interesting, but strikes this writer as being THE answer.

The Division of Corrections or the Institution would have assigned to it an officer to be known as a Placement Officer, who's sole purpose would be to find suitable employment for men released on expiration and parole. Working in close conjunction with the Classification Officer of the institution the placement Officer would have the opportunity to analyze each case. It would be necessary for him to thoroughly know the individual concerned in order for him to intelligently select the type of employment for which the individual would best be suited. Social history must be a part of his study in order to determine if certain localities would prove an unhealthy environment. Each case would be considered only when the inmate himself made an appeal for assistance from the Placement Officer. His main concern naturally would be those persons having no family or friends on the outside who could find them employment or give them financial aid.

By working with the State Employment Agency and making contacts with employment offices of the larger firms throughout the state, the Placement Officer could develop an empressive list of prospective employers. In his placement of the individual it would be necessary to be as cautious of the employer as of the applicant. The wrong employer can do as much if not more damage than no employer at all. Unfortunately there are people who will mercilessly take advantage of a person whom they know is in no position to take offense. The Placement Officer must exert every effort to see that such a situation doesn't arise.

If the subject has no funds upon release and no visible means of obtaining them, a system could be incorporated whereby the Placement Officer lends him an amount to tide him over. This sum to be repaid within a ninety day period. The same applies to obtaining a place to stay when the subject reaches his destination.

It might well sound as if the incorporation of such a plan as outlined above is only a means of pampering the ex-convict, but nothing could be further from fact. Only those individuals deserving of help would be eligible. Those men who had demonstrated with a good record and a sincere desire to make a go of it would meet the rigid requirements necessary to obtain assistance from the Placement Officer.

Imagine the incentive for a man who had no hope if he knew that by keeping his nose clean he would get the tops in assistance. The load off a man's mind if he knew that a job was awaiting him and that he would have no financial worries to plague him until he was firmly settled in his new way of life.

Of course such a program couldn't be put into operation in a week or month. It's a procedure that will take a year or two to develop. Confidence in the system must be instilled in the prospective employers. They must believe that the men sent them are good risks and will prove to be assets to their respective organizations.

Thus we have a probable answer to the question oof setting the ex-con on the right road. Men like Louie L. Wainwright and W. E. Booth can come up with such an answer because they know the needs of the newly released individual, but the actual implementation of such a plan is in your hands. It is YOU, the public who make changes and force development of new ideas.

5th Street South, and 8th Street will go east to Highlands Avenue. On the east side of the school it will go south from 4th Street along the west side of the Atlantic Coast Line right-way, which will eventually tie into 8th Street.

The program also calls for 4th Street to be paved from Highlands Avenue to South Verona, thus traffic to and from the Hopewell School could be easily handled.

The new addition at the Hopewell School will contain six classrooms, and is the first addition of at least three to be built to provide for future needs. The new addition will also contain a central heating system and a room for janitorial supplies.

As a result of some sleuthing in the barber shops it was learned that here there has only been one victim of that "hairless horror" the Mohawk haircut. At the growing-out stage of this scalping, our would-be wild indian became a reluctant, but peacefully bald, Yul Brynner, and was only too glad to give it back to the tribe.

Our teenagers, particularly the boys, have come up with some pretty weird hair-dye jobs . . . what you might call dyed-in-the-wool individualists. Oh dear!

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

Chamber of Commerce please note: There are quite a few newcomers to this section of Florida from California. They love it here too.

The Charles Sherwoods tell of a California friend who visited here last winter. Upon his arrival he was ardent in his praise of his home state, after he had partaken of our sunshine, our hushpuppies, our strawberries and caught some of our big fish Mrs. Sherwood asked him what California had that Florida didn't. He answered, "Smog!"

Jerome Shiltz writes from Lakeside, Ohio that he met a California lady who explained to him what the abbreviation Calif stood for. It means Come and live in Florida.

City workmen were busy last week giving the checker shelter on the Mall a face lifting. Termites were also using it as a shelter, necessitating the replacement of a few new boards. It now is all repainted and guessed up for the winter tourists.

Azaleas have been planted along the walk leading to the picnic table in Donaldson Park, which should add some color to the scene when they bloom next winter.

Mrs. Hood attractive wife of the well-known dairy owner does all the advertising for the large company and considering her sound ideas on the subject has evidently made quite a study of getting Hood's Dairy before the public. Her son Robin Hood will soon be a member of the firm . at the Sebring office.

During an early morning chat at the new azalea walk on the mall with James Sikes and Claude Welch one of his helpers, many interesting facts came to light.

Mr. Sikes, who supervises the care of the Mall was for twenty years in charge of the Miami Beach parks, and did the planting in the north beach area. He has been back in Avon Park for two years and loves his work . . which shows plainly, considering how nice things look.

Chamber To Name Chairmen At Directors Meeting Aug. 7

The Board of Directors of the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce will hold their regular meeting Thursday night, August 7, at the Chamber office with the business meeting beginning at 8 o'clock.

President Jim Heim will announce the Chairmen and their committees for the coming work year. Questionaires were mailed to the Directors asking them to indicate the committees upon which they desired to serve.

The two outstanding projects which the Chamber plans to emphasize this year will be the proposed tourist attraction consisting of sixteen colored fountains in the Mall. The Chamber has been investigating the possibility of this recommended tourist attraction for several months and the plan was presented to the City Council earlier this month. A council committee of Paul Mefarland and Roland Dilley, was appointed to work with the Chamber on the plan.

The other outstanding project is the Chain of Lakes. A resolution was adopted by the Chamber on May 1 on the Chain of Lakes and a copy was sent to the Board of County Commissioners, City Council and Sam Polston, U. S. Soil Conservation Service.

Hue Nunnallee New Director At Avon Citrus Bank

Mr. Hue E. Nunnallee was elected as a Director of the Avon Citrus Bank at a recent meeting of the stockholders of the bank.

Mr. Nunnallee has been the attorney for the bank since 1957. He is a native of Texas but came to Florida in 1956 which proves that even Texans occasionally are willing to admit that Florida can be even better than Texas. Mr. Nunnallee is a practising attorney in Avon Park.

Both he and his wife, Nancy, are residents of Avon Park, with their five youngsters: Thomas, 10; Jane, 8; Jim, 7; Walter, 5; and Sara, 3. He is a Lt. Col. in the Air Force Reserve, was in active duty from 1941-6. He is a member of the local Rotary Club and attended Baylor University, The University of Texas and Stetson University with B.A. and L.L.B. degrees.

The addition of Mr. Nunnallee to the Board of Directors adds to the prestige of this Board by bringing an important member of the legal profession to aid in giving advice and counsel to the bank's officers and will, unquestionably, contribute greatly to the policy-making of this important part of The Sottile Banking Group.

World War I Veterans To Meet August 10

Commander Benton Johnson and District Commander Harlan Lloyd will address a gathering of World War One Veterans, their wives and widows at a special meeting Sunday afternoon, August 10, at the City Pier in Sebring.

Also appearing on the program will be Mrs. Harlan Lloyd, 5th district president of the auxiliary; state president, Mrs. Pauline Rogers, and district president Mrs. Ellen Smith and others.

The aim for the World War One veterans is "one hundred dollars per month retirement" and the slogan is "be a buddie to a buddie".

All veterans, their wives and widows are reminded that the program will be followed by a picnic lunch, and each is requested to bring a lunch basket and enjoy the spread.

Three candidates for council seats jumped into political waters within the first two days that were open for qualifying and presumably others will soon join them, for the deadline for qualifying for office will be 5 o'clock, Thursday afternoon, August 28.

Candidates who have paid their three dollar qualifying fee at the City Hall are Mannin Kirkland, incumbent, who seeks his sixth term on the council; Clarence King and Roland Dilley, incumbents, are both seeking their second term on the city council.

At the present time the slate is small and some predict that it will remain small due to the staggered election being in effect and also that the city election must compete with the first democratic primary. Both will be held on Tuesday, September 9.

Voters are urged to remember to vote in both the City Election at the City Hall and also in the primary in the precinct in which they live.

In the City Election this year three council members will be elected to fill the expired terms, the other two council members and the mayor will be elected next year. Those elected this year will serve a full two year term.

The most important thing is, "Make sure that you are registered", then vote. August 28 is the deadline for registering at the City Hall and is also the deadline for candidates to qualify.

There were approximately 3800 registered voters in the city last year and there were thirteen candidates in the council race, according to these figures we should have at least four more candidates in the race this year.

Chamber Has New US 27 Strip Maps For Travelers

The new U. S. 27 Strip maps, showing the scenic sea-level route between the midwest and Florida, have been completed and a supply is on the display table at the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce.

The strip map shows U. S. 27 from Battle Creek, Michigan to Miami, Fla., and the Florida route is the most attractive in the Sunshine State. Along U. S. 27 are located the greatest number of outstanding attractions and points of interest on any major highway in Florida.

The City of Avon Park is one of the nine attractions or places of interest which have a write-up on the map folder. Mention is made of the mile long mall with more than a thousand varieties of tropical flowering exotic plants and trees; the Winter Guest Club and the many beautiful lakes.

Before taking a tour of the state be sure to get a copy of the new strip map at the Chamber office.

NEW CHAMBER SIGN WELCOMES VISITORS: Visitors traveling in cars or walking on Main Street are greeted and welcomed by the new sign hung in front of the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce building. The big sign measures 8 feet by 11 feet and has been designed and painted in the old English style. Mr. Williams of the Avon Park Neon Sign Co. worked with Jim Heim, President, and Mrs. Anna Belle Worden, executive secretary, in planning and designing the sign.

No Need For Panic

We have heard much of the alleged plight of the nation's schools, ascribed to grossly inadequate pay for teachers, inadequate building of physical facilities, and other such neglects. The commonly proposed solution is Federal support of education.

Now, however, the Institute of Social Science Research has issued an exhaustive study which reaches very different conclusions. It is signed by Rupert Freeman, an acknowledged authority in this field, who, among other things, was consultant on school finance to the White House Conference on Education.

Here are some of the points Mr. Freeman makes and substantiates: In terms of cost, education is the largest public service in the country next to national defense. Between 1929-39 and 1955-56, personal consumption expenditures doubled whereas public schools expenditures tripled. In 1956, we spent $103.94 per capita on education as against $34.17 in Russia. In late years, the number of certified teachers has increased materially more on a percentage basis, than the number of pupils. In these years, in addition, college majors in education have increased by 33 per cent where majors in other fields decreased by 28 per cent. The classroom shortage has been greatly exaggerated and is rapidly decreasing.

Finally, in 1957 teachers' pay, on the average, was 94 per cent above the 1929 level; earnings of all workers were 82 per cent above.

The study certainly does not claim that everything is perfect in education. But it certainly does show that our educational problems have been magnified out of all reason. There's no need to press any panic buttons.

New Miracles In The Making

The agricultural revolution, far from being spent, is just beginning. The past 50 years have seen hand and horse labor disappearing from the fields; trends today indicate that the future will bring complete mechanization and precision control of nearly all farmstead operations.

This forecast comes from Earl D. Anderson, president of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. As he sees it, four major trends are now in being: mechanization of farm chores and materials handling; providing proper environmental conditions for livestock; storing and processing crops for a marketing profit; and strong emphasis on quality control of farm products.

Of these four, he considers the first is probably the more important. In his words: "The farmer who steps down from his tractor equipped with finger-tip control of the hydraulic mechanism is loathe to feed his cattle with a bushel basket." And this farmer no longer needs to do chores the old hard way. The engineers have developed all manner of highly efficient machines to take the place of human muscle and more are coming.

President Eisenhower has pointed out that farm productivity per man hour has actually doubled since 1940—and this increase is as great as the total increase between 1820 and 1940. Mechanized equipment, electricity, improved fertilizers and pesticides—these are forces that have transformed farming to an almost miraculous degree. And new miracles are in the making.

A Short Story About Protection

Out of Africa comes a story about a cattle rancher who was plagued by lions. They raided his corral, broke down his fences and made off with his prize bullocks and heifers.

The rancher got himself the most powerful gun he could buy and kept it loaded at his bedside. But now, for one reason or another, no lions attacked.

After a time, the rancher put his rifle on the shelf. Then he took the cartridges out, and when the rainy season came the bore rusted.

One quiet summer night the lions came prowling again at his farm. He rushed for his gun but couldn't find the bullets, and when he did, the rifle was rusty it wouldn't fire. The rancher suffered fearful losses.

This story parallels the history of the Salk vaccine. The American public contributed millions to the March of Dimes to find a preventive for polio paralysis. The Salk vaccine developed on a March of Dimes grant, was the long-sought-for answer.

But now that we have this weapon, we allow it to spoil on warehouse shelves. Three out of seven polio-susceptible persons have failed to get their shots. So alarmed are polio authorities like the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis that they warn against new polio epidemics this summer.

Nobody else's vaccination—not even your children's—will protect you. Each person has to get his own. Don't take a chance—take your polio shots.

Who Pays Your Bills?

If you go into a store and buy a bag of groceries, a suit of clothes, a household appliance, or anything else, you expect to pay for it yourself. You don't expect other people, who may never patronize the store or buy the same brand of goods, to pay part of the bill for you. The same thing is true when you purchase services.

But there are exceptions to this rule—and they are found in commercial enterprises run by the government. These enterprises rarely if ever pay their own way. They commonly operate at a loss which is made up out of general government revenues, which simply means that they are subsidized to some degree by all the taxpayers.

A long list of examples could be cited. A typical one is parcel post. It is not a basic postoffice function. It does not advance the cause of public information and enlightenment; as do other postoffice functions. It is purely a commercial undertaking. It competes directly with private, taxpaying parcel carriers on a national, regional and local scale. And as the Hoover Commission and other authoritative bodies have pointed out—it operates at a deficit.

This simply means that you pay part of the bills for those who use parcel post service. With the prospect of staggering federal deficits, and increased spending, it's pretty hard to find any sound argument against increasing parcel post rates to the point where revenues balance the costs, both direct and indirect.

Shots For A Nation

Three years ago the Government turned to the country's pharmaceutical manufacturers for an all-out effort to produce the Salk polio vaccine as fast as possible. Five of the leading companies took on the job and used every facility and every ounce of productive know-how to solve an almost impossible production problem. Their success is attested to by the fact that the disease is now 80 per cent eliminated by use of vaccine and that 26 million doses are held in reserve for people who need them but have not yet taken the few minutes time necessary for the "shots". The price of the vaccine has been reduced 5 times.

Against this background of accomplishment has come another story. The Federal Grand Jury has charged the firms that produced the vaccine with fixing the price on supplies sold to the government. Such law suits between the government and private industry are immensely complicated and are usually decided or dismissed only after years of litigation.

Voluntary cooperation between private research organizations, public authorities and the medical profession developed and proved the polio vaccine. But even a development of such significance as this could not have helped many people if pharmaceutical companies had not been ready to produce millions of doses of vaccine at reasonable cost.

Mere accusation does not prove guilt in a company any more than an individual. A court decision in the present case will probably be a long time coming. Regardless of the outcome, there remains the positive fact that production of vaccine in quantities big enough to supply an entire nation was achieved in record time, thus making it possible to almost wipe out a major disease. It's hard to put a "down to the penny price" on that.

". . . The time is coming all too soon, if something is not done to restore law and order, when this country will not be run by the government of the people but by a small coterie of gansters who have gotten themselves by force and intimidation into top labor positions, or in control of those who are their puppets in the leadership of labor unions. Secret elections are about as secret in some unions as they are in Russia and other Communist dominated countries. . . ."—Mt. Morris, N. Y., Post Union.

How About Parcel Post

The new postal bill passed both Houses of Congress without opposition, was signed by the President, and will become effective August 1. Charges for carrying mail, newspapers, magazines and advertising material will all be substantially increased.

The bill is designed to increase postoffice revenues by $550 million a year. However, almost half that sum—$265 million—will be absorbed by pay increases granted postal workers. Thus a very big postal operating deficit will remain. This deficit has been running at around $700 million a year.

The new bill does nothing about a postoffice service which has contributed materially to the deficit for many years. That service is parcel post. The current charges, as the Hoover Commission and other authoritative bodies have pointed out, do not meet the cost of providing the service. So, in effect, all the taxpayers of the country are paying a part of the bills of those who use parcel post.

On top of that, parcel post is not a basic postoffice function. It came into being late—in 1913. And stipulations laid down then by Congress—that it should pay its own way, that is should supplement, not supplant private parcel services, and that it should not unduly compete with private enterprise—have consistently and flagrantly been violated ever since.

The least the taxpayers should demand is that parcel post charges honestly cover all costs—direct and indirect.

Two Local Boys To Take Part In Youth Workshop

William Leroy Farless and Gail Hovey of Avon Park and Delano Arner of Sebring will take part in the sixth annual Youth Workshop to be held at the University of Florida July 28 to August 1.

Wood, consultant with the National Association of Student Councils, Washington, D. C., and Rev. Gary Demarest, assistant director, Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Kansas City, Mo.

Nearly 400 students from all parts of the state will participate.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Martin and their children, Judy and Joey, are happy to be back in wonderful Florida after a three week vacation which took them through ten states. The weather was hot in the day—up to 116 degrees and cold at night—32 degrees but livable because of the extreme dryness. The Martins camped in a number of national parks and report that they had good places with all the comforts of home nearly every night. First they stopped for a look at New Orleans and then went on to Grand Canyon passing the beautiful Painted Desert and the Petrified Forest on the way. From the southern rim of the canyon they went to Hoover Dam and then on to Las Vegas. All the famous tourist attractions that the Martins saw they though lived up to their names. Carlsbad Caverns particularly impressed their family. On the way home they stopped to visit Mrs. Martin's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knotts in Ft. Worth, Texas. Around Ft. Worth they saw some interesting sights that are not nationally known. The children loved the Cowboy Town, a replica of the old west found between Ft. Worth and Dallas. Here teen-age cowboys spend the day holding up banks, robbing stages, and catching Daddies for the tourists. They also enjoyed the Ft. Worth Zoo, the Children's Museum featuring large signs and legends which all children can read, and Storyland, a fairy story playground. Having taken the coastal route out the Martins returned through the center of the gulf coast states. Another attraction they enjoyed a great deal that they feel many Floridians may miss were the ruins of old Ft. Pickens in Pensacola. They feel that their trip was a wonderful success, much fun and an education for all of their family.

Back To School Make-up Tips For Teen-agers

The time for relaxing is nearly over, and the old phrase "back to school" is running through the teen-ager's mind. Skin, nails and hair have been abused during the lazy summer months, when nothing was more important than having a good time at the beach.

Bonnie Bell has found the answer for a skin normalizer for use on all types of skin, the nationally known Ten-O-Six. It is an antiseptic cleanser with unsurpassed merit. It relieves and gives comfort to itching skin on the face, body or scalp. It aids nature in clearing externally caused skin irritations, for Ten-O-Six combines the best qualities of a cosmetic and a therapeutic.

Helena Rubinstein is offering to the public a complete medicated beauty treatment kit called "Wash away Blackheads". The kit contains a simple scientific home treatment for both women and men to eliminate blackheads, whiteheads and excessive oils, it heals surface blemishes and tightens pores.

The three medicated preparations are so effective that only the simplest procedure is required. Women and men, to whom a cleaner-healthier skin is a business asset, will be particularly pleased by the speed of this scientific medicated treatment. It takes only 10 to 15 minutes. For the adolescents this treatment has achieved most dramatic success with the stubborn problems of teenagers.

Revlon's scientific treatment for nails care for problems type nails is the solution for nails which have gone neglected during the summer months. It is specially formulated for nails that break, split, crack or peel. "Frosted Prolife" is the first step towards nail beauty. It forms a tough, resistant film which acts as a foundation for the application or nail enamel and "Supersealer". Its special formulation actually helps protect and strengthen broken, chipped and split nails. It smoothes the nail surface irregularities and forms an additional coat of nail protection.

The keynote for beautiful nails is a repeated application of Revlon's "Supersealer" for problem type nails every day or so. This gradually builds up a thick, tough protective film that actually guards nails against minor blows and jars and makes nail enamel wear two or three times longer.

Nails can be only as attractive as the hands. Revlon's Aquamarine hand lotion is the answer for rough hands, elbows and knees which have been exposed to sun, wind and water throughout the summer months. The luxury lotion soothes and beautifies hands and body. So teen-agers take care school is just around the corner.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

For over a year the "experiment" that was Avon Park Prison endured close scrutiny from both general public and officials of the State of Florida. Some doubted that an institution such as this could succeed; an institution with far less restriction than the average minimum security institution.

For over a year the population of APP has really toed the line, comporting itself in a fashion that was not only a wonder to watching officials, but to the inmates themselves. True, there have been some attempted escapes, but percentagewise APP's record of escapes is much lower than a road prison that maintains a rigid security in the form of shotguns and rifles. Not a man has seen fit to "jump the fence" during the past eight months.

What have we proved during this time? Simply that it is not only feasible to operate an institution of this type in preference to the maximum security type, but practical as well. It was learned by this writer a few days ago that three of the Florida State Road Prisons have withdrawn their maximum security element; the guns have been removed from these camps and they are now in the catagory of honor institutions. What caused this step to be taken? According to reliable authority the plan to make honor institutions of the State Road Prisons has been under consideration for some time, but the final step wasn't taken until the results of the "experiment" at Avon Park Prison were observed. We feel that this action is another step, nay a leap in the right direction. Under proper conditions these camps WILL prove themselves.

Certainly, there is no glory to being in prison; quite the contrary. There is the taint of the felon on us and our families; the suffering entailed by such a stigma is deep and lasting. However, there is a warm satisfaction, at least to this writer, in knowing that we have been instrumental in bettering the system - instrumental in improving the chances of the next fellow who stumbles along the path of life and winds up in prison to regain his self respect and return to society with his account in the black rather than in the red.

There is not a man alive who relishes the idea of having to serve time under any circumstances, particularly so when under the constant threat of the gun. The mental strain is terrifyingly severe. This writer has never had the misfortune of having to serve time under such circumstances, but contact with men who have is proof enough of telling effects, they become hard and embittered. The knowledge that a careless move may precipitate a rain of death dealing slugs is a punishment too much to expect of civilized man. The theory that a shotgun will stop an individual from running is false. The human mind is capable of absorbing only as much stress and then something must give. The feat of being shot while trying to escape becomes less than the fear of continued passive existance under the yawning muzzles. A removal of the source of tension logically removes the tension. In a state of comparative mental calm, the individual becomes receptive to treatment in the form of understanding guidance and the induction of new ideas, thus making rehabilitation a reality rather than just the pipe dream of some far sighted penologists.

This business of rehabilitation in the penal institution is still comparatively new and the overall results are still open to proof, but an effective simile can be offered. Less than fifty years ago, institutions for the mentally ill were places of mistreatment and oft times palaces of exquisite torture. Once an individual was pronounced insane he was as good as dead. Insanity was associated in the public mind with repugnance and fear. The chances of an insane person being considered cured of his mental ills was practically unheard of. With the vast improvement of mental hospitals came a re-education of the public. The number of cured mental illnesses went up proportionately with the advancement of treatment techniques. The public no longer looks with unreasoning disgust at a person who has spent time in a mental institution. Such will be the case with the penal institutions with YOUR backing. Treatment replacing punishment - guidance replacing bread and water. The dividends from your investment of understanding and acceptance will be the souls saved from the pathways leading to Hell.

Ground Breaking Ceremony Aug. 1 For Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch

Live Oak.— Grounds will be broken for the first building at the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch August 1, at 5 p. m.

At the same time the Florida Sheriffs Association will launch a state-wide "Build the Ranch" campaign to raise funds for the next phase of a proposed $250,000 building program.

To focus public attention on the campaign kick-off, Gov. LeRoy Collins proclaimed August as "Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch month" and urged all citizens to support the Sheriffs in their efforts to help needy and neglected boys.

He said the Ranch, located on the Historic Suwannee River, will help to build a better future for Florida by providing a proper home for boys who might otherwise drift into delinquency.

Ground-breaking ceremonies will be open to the public and will be conducted by the Ranch Board of Trustees which includes nine Sheriffs and 10 outstanding citizens.

Monroe County Sheriff John Spottswood, chairman of the Trustees, said work will start immediately afterward on the first residence building — a ranch-style home designed by Gainesville Architect Myrl Hanes to house 20 boys. At cornerstone laying ceremonies this fall it will be dedicated to the memory of the late Pinellas County Sheriff Sid Saunders.

Spottswood said a second residence building and other facilities will be started as soon as sufficient funds are raised in the "Build the Ranch" campaign. It is hoped, he added, that the first boys will be admitted this fall.

Contributions of money can be sent to: Boys Ranch, Box 344, Tallahassee. They are income tax-deductible.

Spottswood said anyone desiring to donate construction materials can do so by contacting his local sheriff. Each Sheriff has a copy of the building specifications.

The 222-acre Ranch site, located 11 miles north of here, was acquired last fall, and the first crops were planted in the spring. Roads have been built and paved by the Suwannee County Commission and a wooden area on the riverfront has been cleared.

He expects to retire within the next several years.

Ridge Babe Ruth All Stars Defeated 8 - 4

The Ridge Babe Ruth All Stars were defeated by the Ft. Pierce All Stars 8-4 in the final game of the Babe Ruth sub-district baseball tournament held at Ft. Pierce last week. The Ridge All Stars drew a first round bye in the three team tournament while Ft. Pierce defeated Vero Beach 10-1 in a first game.

For the Ridge All Stars Landress of Avon Park pitched five innings and Durrance of Lake Placid pitched the last two. Money of Avon Park was the catcher. Richmond and Taylor split the pitching duties for Ft. Pierce with Mallard doing the catching.

For the Ridge All Stars Landress had two hits, Money one and Annett of Sebring one to account for all of the hits. For Ft. Pierce, Stone, the second baseman, and Hall the first baseman each had three hits. Ft. Pierce had a total of eight hits.

Ft. Pierce will play the winner of the sub-district played at Miami Friday night of this week.

The Ridge All Stars were composed of the following boys: Billy Durrance, Smokie Oliver, Frank Ruttinger, and Steve Worley of Lake Placid; Phil Landress, Lamon Money, Jimmy Bates, and Bobby Bates of Avon Park; Wayne Parks, Mike Rapp, Jack Catron, Eric Annett, Charles Scheihing, and Charles Prickett of Sebring.

The Ridge Babe Ruth Coaches will meet Wednesday night, July 23 at the Sebring High School at 8:15 to select an All Star team to play Avon Park who won the pennant with a 6-0 record this year. This is the second year that a team has won the pennant with an undefeated record. Last year Lake Placid won the title with an 8-0 record.

Red Cross Offers Water Safety Instructions

The American National Red Cross at it's National Convention in San Francisco this year adapted a resolution directing the preparation of a manual relating to Small Boat Fundamentals dealing with basic essentials for greater safety and enjoyment of pleasure motor boating and water skiing. This was brought about by the tremendous increase in recreational power-boating throughout the United States in recent years and the recognition of the inevitable hazards resulting from the millions of untrained people using our nations waterways.

Your local chapter, in the meantime, recognizing that it will be some time before this manual is available and that already is two instances such guidance was too late in coming, wishes to remind the citizens of this county that it stands ever ready to arrange for group instruction in Water Safety.

Each citizen of Highlands County who is desirous of receiving or knowns of anyone interested in receiving, water safety instruction is urged to contact the local office here in Sebring. Through the efforts of the local Chapter this county has adequate Volunteers qualified to instruct in Water Safety and these Volunteers stand ready to serve you.

It is the goal of the local chapter to have more people better acquainted in the fundamentals of Water Safety and thereby provide greater safety to those who enjoy our lakes and rivers. Won't you sign up for a course and urge a friend or neighbor to do likewise?

Some people never hit the mark because they never pull the trigger.

Fla. Reports 22 More Cases Of Polio Than During Same Period Last Year

Cases of poolio are increasing in Florida. Another virus, ECHO, is causing some concern in the state, said Dr. James O. Bond, epidemiologist for the State Board of Health (early this week). As of a week ago, Florida had had 22 more cases of polio than during the previous year to that date. There are three quarters of a million people in Florida under forty who have made no effort to protect themselves with Salk shots. These people should begin their shot series right away. The children especially need this protection.

One factor in the increase in polio this summer, Dr. Bond explained, is the fact that polio is known to come in cycles, and that this is the year for a natural upturn in the figures. Besides, Florida gets hot weather earlier than other states, and polio strikes hardest in hot weather. Still another factor is found in the presence in the state of the ECHO virus, which causes a mild disease resembling non-paralytic polio and may be reported as that disease.

Dr. Bond went on to remind the public that in polio the principle of "herd immunity" does not apply. This means that a person unprotected by Salk shots is just as much exposed to the polio virus as though the Salk vaccine did not exist. He said as many as 500 cases of polio could occur among the unimmunized persons in the state if the case rate goes as high as it did in 1954.

Regarding the ECHO virus Dr. Bond stated that the appearance of this disease may have been responsible for the false rumor concerning an outbreak of spinal meningitis in northeast Florida. ECHO virus, he said, is probably transmitted from person to person and good personal hygiene and sanitation are the best protection against it. It is fortunately a mild disease in which fatalities or complications rarely, if ever, occur.

Candidate For Railroad Commission

NAOMI T. MURRELL

To all Citizens and qualified electors of the State of Florida.

I am not a Politician, indeed, I doubt that I could even make a speech, but I know a little about business and my sincere interest in good and clean government caused me to qualify and seek the office of "Railroad and Public Utility Commissioner" (Group, 1.) for the State of Florida.

Events of the past year have clearly demonstrated the important necessity for new blood on this Commission, so recently made manifest, when a political alumunus and former associate of this institution could not withstand investigation by a Congressional Committee on "Legislative Oversight" and resigned.

My Background is as follows; I was born at Florence, Indiana in 1905. When I was a small child my family moved to Umatilla, Florida in "Lake County," where I received my early education. I attended Central Normal School at Edmond, Oklahoma, and John B. Stetson University at Deland, where I majored in the arts, including music, business and people. I know Florida and Flordians, having spent all my life at Sarasota, Jacksonville and Orlando.

My first business was the rearing of my two children. (I now have seven grand-children.) In 1935 I began a career in business and sales and in 1945 acquired an interest in a Company. I have served as the manager and executive head of three Companies, including the Central Florida Broadcasting Company the owner and operator of powerful Radio Stations, WKIS and WORZ, which for ten years has carried National Broadcasting Company (NBC) radio programs to all Central Florida. (None of these companies are regulated by the Florida Railroad and Public Utility Commission.)

During my business experience, I have made policy decisions, dealt with administrative bodies, presided at directors and stockholders meetings and made many economy studies to determine and fix reasonable prices and rates. I have also successfully dealt with large corporations.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

The First Principle: Regional Conditions Are Basic To Our Plan.

Civil defense against man-made disasters demands local and coordinated regional planning. Just as the factory we were speaking of has plans within the community plan, so the community plan is within the regional plan. We may find out from FCDA at least a general indication of the sort of hazards our region may expect in the event of war, just as we know from experience whether our location is in a regular hurricane belt or an area subject to floods. Most information about target areas is not classified. Many factors governing our planning are simply common sense. Are we on the great transcontinental highways across a major river? Though our town may be small, does it contain an important single unit such as a state hospital, research center, reservoir? Should we be ready to receive evacuees from a city? Should we organize to supply special services or gangs of willing laborers for a devastated area? On the basis of such questions we may survey the function of our community, discuss it with neighboring communities, and begin our planning which brings us to our first principle; That Regional Conditions Are Basic To Our Plan.

The Second Principle: Existing Organizations Should Discharge Their Appropriate Responsibilities.

The people who first stir a community to consciousness of a needed effort are not necessarily the best suited to carry out all the details of that effort. I may know the sort of courses we need for training specialized personnel, but you may know how to teach these courses. You may know that all people should have some awareness of the community plan, but I may know how best to reach the most people. I may be able to survey my community accurately, but you may be the one to activate it. You may know our regional geography, but I may have the contacts in the neighboring communities through which to begin coordinating our efforts.

So far as possible, then, our developing plans should be put into operation through the persons and institutions most capable of dealing with them. If there is to be organized teaching for credit or certification, it can be undertaken by the public schools or local college. First aid training is usually the province of the Red Cross, the training of nurses' aides a matter for the hospital. If our police and firemen need additional training, it should be done by their own leaders whom they would send to training centers. The training of auxiliary police would be done by the permanent force. When it comes to informing, as distinct from training, the population, we should entrust this to the agencies with adult educational programs and to the mass media. We should coordinate material and exchange ideas for its presentation.

States with extensive civil defense establishments have specific civil defense services with qualified supervisors and trained personnel able to instruct in training programs and to furnish training material and guidance for the adult education teacher. But the widest possible dissemination of information requires community effort.

As we shall see, other devices may have to be used and special organizations created; but in general we have arrived at a second principle: that existing organizations should discharge their appropriate responsibilities.

FORMER TAX COLLECTOR COMPLIMENTS MRS. PECK FOR EFFICIENT HANDLING OF TAX MONIES AS SHOWN BY AUDIT

On June 25, 1958 I received my final audit, after resigning as Tax Collector of Highlands County and turning over the records to my successor, Mrs. Helen S. Peck, who was appointed by Governor Collins to serve until the coming election.

The audit report covers the period of April 1, 1956 to November 24, 1957, during which time the office collected $1,269,396.52. The audit deals with the handling of this money.

During the period covered Mrs. Peck was my chief deputy. The responsibility of collecting and accounting for the taxes during the period was primarily the work of Mrs. Peck. The office reports were hers and the audit is based upon those reports.

I feel Mrs. Peck is entitled to a large measure of the crdit for the satisfactory showing made by the office during this period, and I wish to publicly recommend her for her fine record of public service to the state and county.

THE AUDIT SAYS!

The following statements are quoted from the audit report made by the state auditing department, signed by A. H. Cash, Auditor:

"All collections of record were accounted for by remittances to the agencies entitled to receive them.

"High collection percentages were attained by the former Tax Collector for taxes on the rolls closed during the audit period.

"Personal property taxes, intangible roll taxes, and occupational licenses were diligently collected through the use of office records, field inspections and follow-ups.

"Commissions were accurately billed during the audit period.

"The 1956 annual report of income and expenses was properly filed as required by law. Figures reported were accurate, and remittances of excess income were promptly and correctly made.

"Budgets were prepared for each year in the audit period, as required by Sec. 193.02 Florida Statutes. Total expenditures did not exceed the appropriations.

"Expenses appeared reasonable.

"Collateral pledged by the depository bank was sufficient at all times to secure the Tax Collector's funds on deposit.

"Balanced cash records were in use, both for collections and for income expenses, and were well kept.

"License reports and correspondence were conveniently filed."

I feel the public should know of the good work Mrs. Peck did in my office, and it is my pleasure to make this statement.

Signed: COLIN DeSHONG

"Good, Improved Permanent Pastures A Must In Modern Cattle Operation"

Cattle must have roughage, and improved pasture grasses are one of our best and cheapest sources of roughage.

So it will pay you to evaluate your pasture-cattle situation thoroughly now. If you need more permanent pastures, the warm, moist summer months are good periods to start a new pasture. But be sure to plan your procedure carefully before planting.

Dr. Gordon Killinger of the Florida Agricultural Experiment Stations says that you need to give special consideration to pastures you establish by sprigging - such as Pangola, Bermuda and other Southern grass pastures.

Attention to six points will help you do a better job of pasture establishment: First, be sure you have a source of strong, live planting material. The best way to do this is to plant your own small increase nursery. Of course, you would have to do this about a year before you plan to use the sprigs.

In planting such a nursery, select the most favorable site, but avoid old crop land where weeds are a problem. One acre can plant 100 acres of pasture if you plant at two or three different dates. Fertilize your nursery liberally, but don't use too much nitrogen.

Second, lime and fertilize the new pasture properly at planting. Most virgin soils will need at least a ton of limestone for grass pastures--more for grass-clover pastures. A soil test will help you decide how much lime to use.

Use a complete fertilizer, like 8-8-8, at 300 to 600 pounds per acre of an 0-12-12 on most soils. Again, a soil test will help. Some soils will need applications of minor elements.

Third, make your planting by sprigging in moist soil, during the period when it rains frequently. Plant the sprigs as deeply as possible, but be sure that the tips are exposed. You can plant with a disc harrow or special planters. Pack the soil with a cultipacker before planting.

Fourth, delay grazing the newly planted pasture for awhile, until the new sprigs begin to grow. The young plants need time to become established and develop an extensive root system.

Fifth, if weeds grow up before the grass, use a mowing machine or chemicals to eliminate this costly competition.

Finally, be sure to add nitrogen as the new pasture becomes established to keep it growing rapidly. After about two months, apply about 100 lbs. of ammonium nitrate or 200 pounds of sodium nitrate.

Remember, rapid establishment of your new pastures means quicker dollar returns from grazing them.

Impressive Cathedral Ceremony Unites Miss Elizabeth Gooch, Gordan Gaster

MRS. GORDAN DEVON GASTER

The historic Cathedral of St. Augustine was the setting at eleven o'clock on Saturday morning, July nineteenth, for the impressive double ring ceremony which united in marriage Miss Helen Elizabeth Gooch and Gordon Devon Gaster.

Rev. Father John R. Duffy, S.M.A., officiated at the wedding and nuptial Mass ceremony. Hubert Clay Gooch Jr., brother of the bride, and Mario V. Hugas Jr., cousin of the bridegroom, assisted as alter boys.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert C. Gooch, of St. Augustine, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jack H. Renfro, of Waycross, Ga., and John B. Gaster, of Avon Park, Fla.

The main altar and the two side altars were beautifully decorated with arrangements of white gladioli and pompons. Graceful palms and tall white baskets holding gladioli were placed effectively on either side of the altar. Tall white tapers in candelabra cast a delicate glow creating a lovely effect. White gladioli tied with white satin bows marked the pews down the center aisle.

Miss Mary Katherine Murphy gave a program of nuptial organ selections.

Attending the bride as her maid of honor was her cousin, Miss Helen Amato. The bridesmaids were Miss Guelda Gaster, Miss Suzanne Souder, and Miss Juanita Mickler.

Little Catherine Tolnay, neice of the bride was the flower girl. She was dressed in white embroidered organdy over mint green taffeta and carried a petite basket of rose petals which she dropped in the path of the bride.

Randy Mickler, cousin of the bride, was the ringbearer. He wore a white linen suit with a mint green carnation in his lapel and carried a white satin pillow trimmed in green net and white streamers.

Mr. Gaster chose Joseph E. Mickler to serve as his best man. His groomsmen were Paul Bowen of Columbia, South Carolina; Charles Collins of Avon Park, and Newton Coler, Leonard Gaster, and Donald Ray all of St. Augustine.

All the attendants were gowned alike in waltz length mint green nylon chiffon dresses. The sleeveless, draped bodice featured trapeze lines formed by flowing chiffon panels which fell down the back of the dresses to the hem. They wore matching pleated horsehair braid hats with open crowns and small taffeta bows, each caught with a single pearl, and short white gloves. Their brocade shoes were dyed to match the dresses.

They carried cascades bouquets of white pompons trimmed in pale green net. The maid of honor carried a cascade of yellow pompons trimmed in pale green net.

The beautifully radiant bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a frosty white gown of imported chantilly lace and tulle over shimmering satin. The delicately molded bodice which came to a point at the waistline, featured a portrait neckline formed by folds of tulle under lace, and short lace sleeves. The voluminous floor length skirt had a straight all lace panel in the front, with the back falling into tier upon tier of lace and tulle and sweeping into a wide chapel train.

She wore lace gauntlets to match her dress which tapered in lily points at the wrists. Her four tiered finger tip veil of sheerest illusion was attached to a full crown of tiny seed pearls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lily of the valley and orchids, trimmed with sheer nylon net and satin streamers. Her only jewelry was a strand of cultured pearls a gift of the bridegroom.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Gooch chose a street length dress of dusty rose lace over taffeta. The sheath skirt formed a side drape which was caught with a taffeta bow. Her small brimmed pink hat was covered with rows of lace and she wore matching assessories and a corsage of white sweetheart roses.

Due to ill-health the parents of the bridegroom were unable to attend. Representing the parents were the bridegroom's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Gaster.

Immediately following the ceremony a lovely reception was held at the Armory. The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Vincent J. Amato, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Raymond Trask. Members of the wedding party received the guests before a background of potted palms and lovely standing floral arrangements of white gladioli.

The bride's table was overlaid with a white ruffled nylon net over pale green satin. The beautiful four-tiered cake was adorned with white roses and lily-of-the-valley, and topped with large sugar wedding bells. The cake was set amidst ruffs of tulle and satin. Branched silver candelabra held tall white tapers and were adorned with nosegays of pale green and white flowers. A shower of flowers and nylon tulle decorated the cake knife and server. Graceful palms and standing baskets of gladioli formed an effective background.

The long refreshment tables were decorated in looped garlands of ivey, fern, and lovely white floral centerpiece arrangements. A bouffet luncheon was served.

A side table bore two silver trays of tiny bags of pale green net filled with rice and tied with satin ribbons. These were distributed to the guests by Misses Deanna Hugas and Torista Gaita, and was used to shower the couple as they later came down the stairs before leaving on their wedding trip to Saint Simon's Island. For traveling the bride chose a smart arnel jersey dress of beige and white. She wore matching assessories and a white orchid corsage taken from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. Gaster is a graduate of St. Joseph Academy and received her B. S. in Education from Florida State University. She is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority.

Mr. Gaster graduated from Avon Park High School and received his B. S. in Economics from Florida State University. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. At this time he is an Ensign in the U. S. Navy and is stationed in Washington, D. C.

By Don Meiklejohn

The State Road Department is beginning to look like a juggler doing a tap dance on top of a rolling ball as it tries to round up money for primary road construction.

So far, it's been doing a pretty workmanlike job, and has managed to lean over an tap the secondary road funds a couple of times without losing its balance—a noble feat indeed.

To date, the manipulations have cost the county secondary funds about $680,000 a year in cold cash.

Although the road department says it won't cause any delays in secondary road building, it is a little hard to see how it will help.

First, the Road Department plans to "borrow" some $10,000,000 in "idle" secondary road funds.

This will cost the counties about $200,000 a year in interest, according to some estimates.

Second, Gov. Collins has ordered that the "handling" charge on primary road funds be reduced from 3 to 2 per cent, and that the secondary road funds be charged a 2 per cent handling charge.

At present, secondary funds are not charged any handling fee by the state comptroller.

This means that the primary funds, which are used to build the major highways and to pay for 10 per cent of the right-of-way on the big inter state highway program, will gain by $650,000 a year.

The secondary road funds, which are used to build farm to market roads and pay for the right-of-way on primary road projects in the counties, will lose by $480,000.

The general revenue funds, which are already in bad shape, also lose $160,000.

Although it seems outwardly fair to charge both funds the same percentage handling fee, there is some undercover debate now going on about the legality of the move.

Old timers say the reason secondary funds weren't charged a handling fee originally was because there was doubt about the constitutionality of levying the fee against the two cents of gas tax levied to pay off old boomtime road debts.

In making the move, Joe Grotegut, new state road board chairman, said the purpose was to put idle funds to work building roads.

This seems like a strange statement to many counties.

In most case, if there are any idle funds around, it's because the road department hasn't furnished the necessary plans so work can go ahead on right-of-ways acquisitions.

Every county has a long list of secondary road projects on the budget, and if the money is available and not being put aside for property acquisitions, it again is usually because plans aren't being cleared fast enough through the road department.

Another factor that has a peculiar ring is that just a few months ago, the road department established a policy of using primary road funds to purchase the state's share of interstate highway land acquisitions.

This was done, they said, because counties couldn't be expected to pay for right-of-way on such projects out of their secondary money.

Now, only a few months later, they are tapping these secondary funds, to bolster the primary funds.

The explanation seems to be that by shifting the money to the primary fund, it can be used in the larger counties where the interstate program is concentrated at the present time.

In effect, the switch is doing in a round about way what the Legislature refused to do in 1955—set up a revolving fund for right-of-way purchases on the huge interstate highway system.

It all may be very proper, but it does point up one thing:

Things are fouled up, or they wouldn't be fooling around.

A former college professor who suffered a nervous breakdown and spent 24 months in a St. Petersburg sanitarium, has been named Goodwill Industries' "Employe of the Year." Dr. White is a bookkeeper for Goodwill in St. Petersburg.

Next time your talking "frozen the shoulder"—try a bit higher up.

Senator Spessard Holland, Pepper has racked up more than 15,000 in a grass roots swing that has carried him from Pensacola to Jacksonville to Miami.

From Florida's panhandle to the Gold Coast, from Tampa to West Palm Beach, the 57-year-old Senate veteran is on the go from 18 to 20 hours a day. Shaking hands with 5,000 voters in one day is just average.

Travelling by plane and by automobile, Pepper is taking his fight directly to the worker on the job, the housewife at her shopping and the pedestrain on the street.

From his speaker-equipped convertible the candidate is reacquainting Floridians with the man who was their representative in the Senate for 14 years. As the white convertible crawls through city traffic or streaks along the open highway at 50 to 60 miles an hour Candidate Pepper says in his best Southern drawl:

"Good morning my friends—This is Claude Pepper and I want to be your Senator and help Florida and you in every way I can. I'd welcome your help."

Travelling ahead of Pepper's convertible is a 40-foot trailer with a sign announcing the approach of the "Caravan for Claude."

A traffic light or an industrial plant when the shifts are changing provides a forum for Pepper. Or it might be a filling station or supermarket.

Despite the rigor of his schedule the former Senator still speaks off the cuff, shunning a prepared text.

When Pepper announced his candidacy on June 26 he promised a vigorous campaign. To date he has more than kept that promise.

Newsmen travelling with the former Senator say that the hard-hitting campaign is meeting with an enthusiastic popular response and that Pepper's easy good nature is showing no signs of strain under man-killing pace.

Villa Rose will meet Miami's Dixi-Lily on Saturday. Miami is one of the pre-tourney favorites and Sebrings dark horse will be trying to knock them off. Chuck Anderson or Jim Cooper will take the mound to try to send Dixi-Lily back to Miami.

The addition of Avon Park's three standout ball players, Anderson, Cooper and Williams makes Villa Rose Citrus a real threat to pick up all the blue chips.

Dr. Lorant Forizs To Accept New Position

Earnest A. Shepherd, Administrator of the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, announced today the resignation, effective September 1, of Lorant Forizs, M.D., the Program's Clinical Director.

Dr. Forizs will assume the Medical Directorship of a private psychiatric hospital.

Dr. Forizs was born in Hungary and received his medical and psychiatric training there. After coming to the United States in 1949, he entered alcoholic rehabilitation work as Clinical Director of the North Carolina Program.

Joining the Florida Program in 1955, he has been instrumental in building up the nationally recognized treatment facilities of the agency's Avon Park Center and the Miami, Tampa, Jacksonville, and Pensacola out-patient clinics.

Dr. Forizs is a leading authority in the field of group psychotherapy for alcoholics and is the author of numerous well-known articles on that and related subjects.

School Budget Adopted By Board Friday

The new Highlands County's school budget for the 1958-59 term was adopted by the Board at the public hearing Friday morning. Not a single taxpayer appeared before the board to enter a complaint of the budget which calls for an increase of $128,000 over last year.

Even with the increase in this years budget the millage will remain the same in all but two districts. District 2 will receive a half-mill cut and District 3 will have a one mill reduction. The millage in the Avon Park and Sebring districts will be 22; Lake Placid district will be 21, and the remaining districts, 20.

In the recent survey made by the State they recommended that the Board start a new school center in Sebring. The Board requested the building of six new classrooms at the Woodlawn School instead. The State has finally approved of this plan but still believe it would be best to start the new center.

Bids were received from those desiring to do grading and covering area with clay at the E. O. Douglas School. The contract for the grading and claying of the E. O. Douglas School recreation area was awarded to L. A. Renfro, Avon Park. His bid was $1,997. A bid of $1,556 was received from D. M. Earnest but was figured on too small an area, and his figures on the correct area would have been over $2,000. The only other bid of $3,182.80 was submitted by J. M. Whitaker and Son.

The Monthly Financial Statement for the month of June and the Annual Financial Statement for the fiscal year 1957-58 were approved by the Board.

The Board also appointed W. H. Hartsfield as custodian at the Lake Placid School.

Officials Are Investigating Dog Poisonings

Three dogs, in the vicinity of Wolfe and North Verona, have died since last Friday night with symptoms that correspond with those caused by arsenic poisoning.

The Avon Park City Police Department and Sheriff Broward Coker's office are investigating the deaths of these dogs. It is believed that someone passing through the neighborhood on foot or in a car is putting out this deadly poison.

A beautiful big black Labrador retriever owned by Jim Heim was the first dog to die from the poison on Friday night. Sunday night a dog owned by Mrs. Lessie McAfee died and early Tuesday morning a little black puppy belonging to Raymond Rhymes died from arsenic symptoms. Two other dogs owned by Rhymes were treated by the veterinarian for the same symptoms and it is believed that they will recover.

Fire Destroys Home Saturday

A fire shortly after eleven o'clock Saturday night, July 26, totally destroyed the residence of C. Miles, Negro, on East Second Street.

Miles claims that when he awoke the house was ablaze all over. The only thing that the Fire Department could do was to keep it from spreading. The cause of the fire is unknown, and damage has been estimated at approximately $600.

The house was owned by Henry Hinson.

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

Hunting is a fine diversion. Preparation for a jaunt into the wilds is exciting, but there is also a form of indoor sport called "Hunt that lone mosquito", the annihilation of which can be as rewarding as the tracking down and killing of any other predatory beast.

You need only be armed with a rolled up newspaper, preferably last weeks copy of the Sun, and a good sense of balance for wall-climbing and furniture-walking.

At the end of the bedroom safari, you will be too tired to care that another skin-diver, attracted by the hunting light, has sidled in by that microscopic crack in the screen and is noisily meal-planning.

With a yawn you sleepily do some meal-planning of your own, like eating more of the blood-building foods such as liver, or just stoically resign yourself to becoming a victim of pernicious anaemia.

—o—

It's a small world but to amateur radio operators it often seems very tiny indeed.

These "hams" as they are called not only have speaking acquaintances all over the world, but many of the "voices" make personal appearances to visit, inspect equipment and of course, talk radio.

Some are just listeners and have no license to send out messages, a privilege requiring months of study and a test by Uncle Sam. A couple from New England who had done much listening but never had an opportunity to talk on short wave, stopped in to visit "ham" Roy Pixler, the father of your reporter. They were delighted to carry on a lengthy "yakking" session with one of the operators of the South Pole Expedition, who was also, it turned out, a neighbor of theirs.

MIAMI COUPLE INJURED MONDAY: Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Watson of Miami were both injured Monday morning when a semi-tractor slid on the wet pavment and totally demolished their car. Both were admitted to Walker Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Beulah Watson, 62, in a serious condition, and her husband William W. Watson, 61 in a critical condition. Mrs. Watson has since died, but her husband had improved. The 1958 International tractor was driven by Ralph W. Lynch of Lakeland. The accident occured just north of the Hospital on US 27 just before noon Monday, when Lynch applied brakes and the rear end of the tractor slid into the path of the Watson car. Damages to the tractor were estimated at $3,000. Investigating officers were Trooper Dave Cauly and Corp. Joe Keene of the Florida Highway Patrol and Sheriff's Deputy Don McIntyre of Sebring.

Board Adopts New Budget With Only One Mill Increase

The Board of County Commissioners Tuesday morning adopted the tentative budget of $761,792, as advertised with the appropriations showing an increase of $104,000, over last year's budget. There will be a milage increase of one mill to take care of this increase.

The appropriations are General Fund $227,525; Fine and Forfeiture Fund $150,275; Road and Bridge Fund $319,940; Jail Bond Fund $38,687 and Health Department $25,365.

C. M. Payne, representing the Farm Bureau, appeared before the Board in regards to an additional reduction of the Budget so as to reduce total budget by one mill. Others attending were S. F. Schwinn, Hayes Maxwell and Bill Payne.

Building Permits Issued In July Total $18,500

Only four building permits totaling $18,500 were issued by the City of Avon Park during July 1958. One permit amounting to $1,000 was for an addition; one valued at $12,000 was for a new residence and the other two, totaling $5,500 were issued for additions to offices.

City Employs Life Guard At Lake Tulane

The City of Avon Park has employed a life guard for the protection of the swimmers at the City Beach at Lake Tulane.

Nelson Butler, a qualified life guard, started patroling the City Beach last week. He will be on duty six days a week, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Butler served as life guard for the City last summer.

The Council hadn't hired a life guard for the beach this summer due to the fact that the swimming classes from the summer program at school were being conducted at Lake Tulane and the instructors all qualified life savers.

Drs. Hartwell And Holliman Lead New Heart Council

Election of officers of the newly-formed Heart Council of DeSoto, Hardee and Highlands Counties was announced today by the Florida Heart Association. President of the Council is Mrs. Percy Carlton of Wauchula; Medical Co-Chairmen are Dr. Donald C. Hartwell of Avon Park and Dr. J. D. Holliman of Sebring; Secretary is Mrs. Orpha Brown of Sebring; and Treasurer is Miss Elsie McAlister, also of Sebring.

The three-county council is the newest of sixteen heart councils of the Florida Heart Association. In combatting the diseases of the heart and blood vessels, the nation's number one killer, it will conduct a program of research, education and community service.

As an affiliate of the Florida Heart Association, the Council will also be a part of the American Heart Association and its nation-wide research attack on cardiovascular diseases, and all-out attack that has channelled more than $31,500,000 into research investigations in the past ten years and will spend during the fiscal year 1958-59 alone more than $8,000,000 of research money, a record amount.

The first service of the new council is an Information and Referral Center set up in Sebring to receive requests and distribute information concerning heart facilities and activities in the three counties. The Center is located in the Courthouse in Sebring. Heart information may be secured by telephoning the Heart Council of DeSoto, Hardee and Highlands Counties.

Earl Rich Named Highlands County Director For 1959 March Of Dimes

Earl Rich, Avon Park, has been appointed Highlands County Director for the 1959 March of Dimes, it was announced today by C. Farris Bryant, Florida state campaign chairman. Mr. Rich was recommended by Hayward H. Davis, Lake Placid, Highlands County Chapter Chairman.

The drive will be held in January.

The polio-fighting organization is expanding into a broad new force that will tackle health problems on a wider front and no longer will confine its activities to a single disease.

"I am confident that the people of Highlands County, who helped make possible victory over polio through their contributions to the March of Dimes over the past 20 years, will give ever greater support to the National Foundation's expanded program in the future," the County Director said.

"We would like to make it clear, as we begin preparations for the 1959 March of Dimes, that the National Foundation will not abandon polio patients," Mr. Rich declared. "We have a moral obligation to the patients of this county to continue to provide needed care and rehabilitation, and we will fulfill this obligation."

Mr. Rich stressed that while solution of the problems of arthritis and birth defects are the immediate new goals of the March of Dimes, the organization will also follow leads as they develop in the fields of virus research and studies of the central nervous system. Polio experience has demonstrated that basic research cannot effectively be limited to single disease categories, he explained.

"The National Foundation, already conducting the largest research, patient aid and professional education programs of any voluntary health agency, will now be an organized medical force with specific goals at first but flexible enough to meet new health problems as needed.

"Arthritis and birth defects were chosen as initial targets because they are regarded as major threats to the nation's health to which the experience and skills gained in the polio fight can be applied," he said.

With the research efforts of the March of Dimes intensified in the new areas, Mr. Rich said, there is real hope that the cause and prevention of the most severe forms of arthritis and of the major disabling birth defects can be found. He also announced that some time in the near future, the benefits of March of Dimes aid for care and rehabilitation will be made available to victims through age 18 of arthritis and birth defects involving the nervous system.

Avon Park Midget League Organized For Next Summer

Interested adults met last Tuesday after a Little League hamburger fry to plan for a more highly organized league for 1959. Plans were made to follow the national plan for next year but to wait until 1960 to seek a franchise in the National Little League.

Officers elected were Joe Perez, president; Raymond Cook, vice president; and Francis LaFlam, secretary-treasurer. The board of directors will be made up of two coaches from each team. The coaches for next year are Grover Bates and Charles Warrington, Rotary; John Ensdorf and Bill Luscomb, Orphans; Durrah Martin, Jack Hutchinson and Joe Perez, Lions; Raymond Cook and Ed Albritton, Baptist.

Several tentative sponsors were suggested for this years unsponsored Orphans. The group expects to have full uniforms for all four teams if the citizens approve.

Over sixty boys of this years teams are eligible to play next season. Each team has 15 players returning because of the limited number of 12 year olds on each team.

Rotary Wins Midget League Championship

The Rotary team won six and lost two to set the pace for the 1958 season. The Orphans finished second with a 5-3 record, Lions third with 4-4 and the Baptist fourth with a 1-7.

2 Local Boys Catch Fresh Water Jellyfish

It is believed that the fresh water jellyfish caught by Jimmy Bilbee and Billy Fries in Lake Isis the first of this week are the first ones to be found in the lakes in this community.

Jimmy and Billy were out swimming when they found the nearly transparent like jellyfish. They vary in size from about the size of a dime to the size of a quarter and have a jellylike consistency with milky colored tentacles. Although the whole fish and tentacles are covered with fine hairs so far neither boy has been stung by them, and apparently the fresh water jellyfish does not sting.

The new four-laning will cover a distance of 3.8 miles and will follow the old road except to take out a few curves, estimated construction cost is $650,000 and the right of way will probably cost better than $400,000.

The State Road Department will also repave part of US 27 in Polk County.

Other roads to be let [illegible]

The drowning Sunday afternoon at the City Beach at Lake Tulane was the first to occured within the City Limits of Avon Park in the last nine years, and the third in the last thirteen years.

Verne Cason Durrance, 36, of Bowling Green, drowned at approximately seven o'clock Sunday afternoon. Durrance and a companion, Maurice Albritton, had been trying to recover a kicker which they lost while boat riding.

The boat capsized and Durrance tired out from trying to recover the motor started swimming to shore, when he drowned just outside of the high grass growing in the water. It is believed that an old injury, he suffered a broken neck in a ranch accident several years ago, had some bearing on the accident Sunday.

Chief Giddens and Mack Flowers, members of the Rescue Squad of the Avon Park Fire Department, tried to revive him without success. It was the first emergency in which the resuscitator purchased by the City in February 1957 had been used. Durrance was pronounced dead by Dr. James Parker.

Durrance is survived by his mother, Mrs. Marjorie Durrance of Lake Josephine; and two brothers, L. Nelson Durrance and W. Dowd Durrance, both of Bowling Green.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at the Chapel of Coker's Funeral Home in Wauchula with The Rev. Dwight C. Spillman of Lake Placid officiating. Interment in the Bowling Green Cemetery.

Editorial

For over a year the "experiment" that was Avon Park Prison endured close scrutiny from both general public and the officials of the State of Florida. Some doubted that an institution such as this could succeed; an institution with far less restrictions than the average minimum security institution.

For over a year the population of APP has really toed the line, comporting itself in a fashion that was not only a wonder to watching officials, but to the inmates themselves. True there have been some attempted escapes, but percentage-wise APP's record of escapes is much lower than a road prison that maintains a rigid security in the form of shotguns and rifles. Not a man has seen fit to "jump the fence" during the last eight months.

What have we proved during this time? Simply that it is not only feasible to operate an institution of this type in preference to the maximum security type, but practical as well. It was learned by the staff of the Dopester a few days ago that three of the Florida State Road Prisons have withdrawn their maximum security element; the guns have been removed from these camps and they are now in the catagory of honor type institutions. What caused this step to be taken? According to reliable authority the plan to make honor institutions of the State Road Prisons has been under consideration for some time, but the final step wasn't taken until the results of the "experiment" at Avon Park Prison were observed. We feel that this action is another step, nay, a leap in the right direction. Under the proper conditions these camps WILL prove themselves.

Certainly, there is no glory to being in prison; quite the contrary. There is the taint of the felon on you and your family and the suffering entailed by such a stigma is deep and lasting. However, there is a warming satisfaction, at least to this writer, in knowing that we have been instrumental in bettering the system.

There is not a man alive who relishes the idea of serving time under any circumstances, much less under the constant threat of the gun. The mental strain is terrifyingly severe. This writer has never had the misfortune of having to serve time under such conditions, but contact with men who have is proof enough of telling effects. Men become hard and imbittered. The knowledge that a careless wrong move may precipitate a rain of death dealing slugs is a punishment too much to expect of civilized man. The theory that a shotgun will stop an individual from running is false. The human mind is capable of absorbing only so much stress and then something must give. The fear of being shot while trying to escape becomes less than the fear of continued passive existance under the yawning muzzles. A removal of the source of tension logically removes the tension. In a state of comparative mental calm the individual becomes receptive to treatment in the form of understanding guidance and the induction of new ideas, thus making rehabilitation a reality rather than just the pipe dream of some far sighted penologists.

This business of rehabilitation is still compatatively new and the overall results are still open to proof, but an effective simile can be offered. Less than fifty years ago institutions for the mentally ill were places of mistreatment and oft times palaces of exquisite torture. Once an individual was pronounced insane it was almost a sure bet that he would never again be considered a sane man. There just wasn't any cure for the insane. With the vast improvement of treatment offered at mental hospitals came a proportionately vast increase in the number of patients pronounced cured of their mental disorders. Such will be the case with penal institutions. Treatment replacing punishment—guidance replacing bread and water. Results will show with YOUR backing, John Q. Public. The dividends from that backing will be more than worthwhile in the souls saved from the pathways to Hell. — A.P.P. Dopester.

Jack Mabley of the Chicago Daily News looks at current female fashions: "I think the fashion operators in Paris and Italy are playing an enormous joke on women. They have deliberately set out to design the most unflattering, ungraceful, bulky and idiotically draped dresses they can dream up." The sack dresses, he adds, "are fine for expectant mothers and shoplifters," but no one else.

Drownings On Farms

Drowning is the second leading cause of farm fatalities, according to a recently published government study. This has caused the Red Cross to list 12 "swimming tips" for farm pond owners. Here they are:

Small children should always swim under adult supervision. All pond users should be able to swim well enough to take care of themselves. Floats and rafts should be stable and securely anchored. Equipment for rescuing persons in trouble, such as ropes and buoys, should be readily available. Someone in the family should be capable of giving artificial respiration. The water supply should be approved by the local health department and periodically checked for contamination. If practical, the pond should be fenced, with a locked gate. Make sure the bottom of the pond is cleared of debris and obstacles. Mark off deep water and unsafe swimming areas with oats or floats. Inner tubes and air mattresses are unreliable—it is too easy to fall off them, and they may float away or become deflated. Never swim alone—even the best swimmers can get into trouble. General water safety education should be arranged for all users of ponds.

There's nothing expensive or difficult about these suggestions. Following them can pay huge dividends in the most irreplaceable of all coins—human life.

What's Good For Your Doctor. . .

There are 206,000 doctors and 430,000 nurses in the United States. These 636,000 persons are key figures in maintaing our health.

They are interested not only in curing us when disease strikes, but in preventing disease BEFORE it strikes. When science develops a new preventive against a disease, they are anxious to make full use of it. That is why once-dreaded afflictions like smallpox and typhoid have been virtually wiped out of the country.

Today our doctors are trying to wipe out another terrifying disease—paralytic polio. Only a few years ago polio epidemics swept this nation like a plague, crippling tens of thousands, reducing them to helplessness for life.

But the Salk vaccine, developed on March of Dimes research funds, has cut the polio toll down to 5,894 cases in 1957, an 85 per cent drop from the 1950-54 average.

Because the medical profession has vaccinated 65 million Americans with the Salk vaccine, polio no longer makes newspaper headlines. But for the 46 million persons under 40 years old who have failed to get their vaccinations, polio is still a serious threat.

That is why the American Medical Association, the American Nurses' Association and the American Hospital Association have all urged their members to get vaccinated themselves and to encourage their patients to do likewise.

Your doctor knows what he is talking about. If polio vaccine is good for him, it's good for you. An ounce of prevention now may save you from a lifetime of crippling.

Hard Way To Die

Nothing is more horrible than death by fire. And this grisly way of dying is suffered by someone every 47 minutes in the United States.

The greatest single death toll in our history occurred on October 8, 1871, when fire engulfed the town of Peshtigo, Wisconsin, and claimed 1,152 lives. That disaster is immortalized in history, and people still write about it. But Peshtigo was unique only in the fact that so many perished in so brief a period of time. The truth is that our average annual fire toll is more than 10 times the Peshtigo figure.

Last year, for instance, fire killed 11,300 people. The average over the last seven years has been 11,616. And, as is to be expected, fire exacts its largest human toll among the old and the young—the two extremes of the human spectrum. The highest death rate is among persons 65 or older, and the second highest is among infants under five.

Will we continue to endure what amounts to 10 Peshtigo cataclysms every year? The answer to that can come from only one source—the people of this country. Almost all fires are the result of human error, ignorance, or carelessness. Almost all fires, therefore, need never happen. If everyone in the country would do his share in the great cause of fire prevention we would save thousands of lives a year—to say nothing of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property.

For every dollar the Class I railroads paid to their stockholders in dividends during the 1950-56 period, they paid $3.02 in taxes to Federal, state and local governments.

Common Sense Is The Most Important Passenger In Your Boat

J. Paxton Hill, Mercury outboard dealer in Avon Park, advises every new boat buyer when his boat is rigged and he has mastered the simple operation of the controls to remember and apply good common sense in boating.

Commenting on this, Hill says modern outboard motors have become so easy to operate and so dependable and so safe that many new owners rush onto the water without a second thought about preparing themselves to be as dependable as their equipment.

Practicing common sense afloat and observing government regulations will go a long way toward making boating more enjoyable for the new boat owner and the boatmen he meets on the waterways.

With this thought in mind, Hill makes these recommendations to outboat boaters:

1. Don't jump into a boat or try to carry a motor aboard a boat. Step in with your hands free and as close amidships as possible.

2. Don't let your passengers stand or change seats aboard a smaller and less stable craft when it's underway. Be sure that weight of passengers and gear is evenly distributed for most efficient and safe operation.

3. Don't heave your anchor overboard from a small boat. Lower it gently until it reaches bottom.

4. Don't indulge in horseplay aboard or with other craft.

5. Do observe posted speed limits and respect the rights of others when passing through anchorages and mooring areas.

6. Do slow down when approaching or meeting other craft close aboard. Respect for the rights and comfort of others is a prime consideration of courtesy on our waterways.

7. Do familiarize yourself with local obstacles and menaces to navigation. Keep your craft well clear of them and out of danger. Government charts for this purpose are available to the public at nominal cost for all navigable waters.

8. Do comply with U. S. Coast Guard and local safety equipment regulations that concern your boat. Failure to comply could mean prosecution in state or federal courts.

9. Do use common sense and courtesy at all times in the operation of your craft.

The U. S. Coast Guard has detailed regulations for the operation of large vessels. For small craft, however, they can be condensed to these points:

1. Boats without engines always have the right of way over powerboats.

2. When two craft are on a converging (or crossing) course, the one to starboard (to the right) has the right of way.

3. In narrow waterways, always keep to the right.

4. When one boat is passing (overtaking) another, the boat being passed (overtaken) has the right of way.

While Mercury outboards have most conceivable safety devices built in as regular equipment, Hill pointed out, in the final analysis boating safety depends primarily on sensible operation by the driver rather than on his equipment.

His final recommendation: ask your dealer if you have questions about your equipment, its operation, boat handling courses, anything nautical. If he doesn't know, he'll find out. J. Paxton Hill Marine is at 516 S. Highlands Ave. Avon Park. Hill is Commander of the U. S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and is Motor Boat Inspection Officer for this region. He will be happy to inspect any and all boats that are brought to his place.

sen—the Republican party.

As you might guess, he wasn't much of a power in the Democrat-dominated House of Representatives, but no one ever accused him of not trying.

Aside from local bills, as far as anyone can recall, he didn't pass one of his pet bills during his entire three terms. In the bill passing line, his only success was a resolution that called for the House of Representatives to recite the pledge of allegiance at the beginning of each week during the Legislative sessions.

Now Petersen is retiring from the Legislature and is seeking a little more friendly forum for his politicking—a seat on the Pinellas Board of County Commissioners, which is Republican controlled.

Possibly, the highlight of Petersen's effectiveness was during the 1957 session of the Legislature.

With a little help from Speaker-Elect Tom Beasley, DeFuniak Springs, Petersen got his biggest legislative support.

Beasley was presiding in the absence of Speaker Doyle E. Connor, and it was time for adjournment.

Beasley called on his old pal and friendly rival, Rep. J. Emory (Red) Cross of Alachua County to make the motion for adjournment so, as Beasley said, "Red could be on the winning side at least one time during the day."

When Beasley called for a vote on Cross's motion for adjournment there was a thunderous "No!" from members of the House—all prearranged in a little before hand lobbying by Beasley.

Beasley then called on Petersen, who made the motion for adjournment, and there was equally thunderous approval.

Despite his lack of success in the Legislative Halls, Petersen didn't let the odds get him down.

Petersen passed through Tallahassee last week, and it was good to see that he still hasn't lost any of his enthusiasm.

He left some handouts with the press corps that among other things predicted that within the next 10 years Republican candidates would capture a "number of statewide offices"; said that a Republican dominated legislature would have solved the reapportionment problem, and labeled Gov. Collins' program of moderation on the racial question as "nothing less than gradual integration of our schools."

AGRICULTURE RACE—From time to time you hear new possibilities mentioned to succeed Nathan Mayo as Commissioner of Agriculture.

Mayo says he will retire after this term, which ends in 1960.

One of the more intriguing new possibilities seems to be Emmett S. Roberts, now a member of the House of Representatives from Palm Beach County.

Roberts is in a key position.

Although he is from one of the larger South Florida Counties, Roberts has a good background in agriculture, including a B. S. Degree in Agricultural Engineering from the University of Florida. He also lives in the "Glades" section of Palm Beach County, known for its fine agriculture.

He also is now serving as a key membe of a Legislative Committee making recommendations on revamping the department of agriculture.

In addition, he also is building a reputation for being tight fisted and well informed on fiscal policies of the state—one of the more important jobs of any Cabinet officer— as chairman of the Legislative Council committee on appropriations, which is better known as the Legislative Watchdog Committee.

He is, perhaps, best known for his work in trying to improve conditions for migrant workers—a job that he has done with money out of his own pocket, instead of riding a Legislative expense account to death.

Roberts claims no Cabinet ambitions, but his name is being discussed as a possibility. Although he is a dark horse, lightning could strike.

SMOG REPORT—If the Florida Development Commission is interested in luring would-be California industries to Florida, it should subscribe to a Los Angeles newspaper, and make copies available to everyone considering moving to "Smoggy State."

A clipping from a recent edition of a suburban Los Angelas newspaper carried the following short, but revealing, story:

SMOG BUILDS UP

"Los Angeles—(AP)—Tomorrow's Smog forecast: Moderate to heavy eye irritation."

These little forecasts are a daily routine out there, just like the weathermen in these parts predict sun or rain.

Ladies After Five Fall Wardrobe To Be Punctutated With Bows

By GRACE McELLIGOTT
Fashion Editor
The All Florida Magazine

There's a story going 'round 7th Ave. that a stock boy observing one of the after five collections declared, "Girls are pretty enough without appearing gift wrapped". No question about it - the packing is beautiful. Gold lame, chiffon embroidered with silver, red brocades and green satins - and like every proper present, punctuated with bows. Drama in late day clothes to be found in every price range - for every type and personality.

Word from Washington is that the first lady - in her Fall wardrobe has included a Mollie Parn's trapeze. Although the frock in question was not submitted for scrutiny we are inclined to think it will be the high belted waistline and gentle flowing skirt not too unlike the directoir silhouette currently being shown. Miss Parnis' collection includes the "Paper Doll Look".

Adele Simpson revealed a stimulating collection. Touching here, releasing there, with waist poised high, the dress skims over the wearer. News from this quarter are the Zouave skirt (a lush oval of drapery), tweed bead necklaces, bar pins and drop earrings, complementary to the new hats and sleek hairdo's.

Evacuation Committee Meeting

The Glades Evacuation Committee, with Luther Jones of Belle Glade, Chairman, presiding, met at the Clewiston Inn, Clewiston, Florida, Friday, August 1st. Highlands County Chapter of the American Red Cross was well represented at this meeting, of which we are a member, as a reception chapter for refugees in case of Hurricane or other Disasters. Communities around Lake Okeechobee advised their own facilities for caring for refugees are now such that unless a major disaster should occur they will be able to take care of their own.

Emphasized in the planning was frequent advisories to the public to stay at home unless officially advised to evacuate and then to do so under advisment of this Evacuation Committee. An official Red Cross representative is stationed in the Weather Bureau in Miami at all times during a disaster or hurricane.

Although the population of the Lake Communities has greatly increased we in Highlands County will not be asked to take care of more than the previously agreed upon number of 7200 refugees due to the better and more stable housing facilities of the Lake communities.

Representatives of the Atlantic Coast Line, Florida East Coast and Seaboard Railroads were present and again agreed to cooperate to the fullest in transporting refugees to the reception chapters. Lt. Duggan of the Highway Patrol was present and assured the committee of their full cooperation. Representative of the U. S. Engineers advised that they were making every effort to keep Lake Okeechobee at lower level and within safety limits and that he felt sure that evacuation would not be necessary because of the waters of the Lake.

Red Cross Chapters and Communities represented at this meeting were: Canal Point, Belle Glade, Clewiston, Okeechobee, Palm Beach County, South Bay, Lake Harbor, Moore Haven, and Highlands County.

Those present from Highlands County Chapter were: Mr. and Mrs. Ted J. Ward, Mr. Ward is chapter chairman, Rev. and Mrs. George C. Stulting, Rev. Stulting is Disaster Chairman, Charles R. Miller, Disaster Warning, Roscoe and Evacuation Committee, and Mrs. Dorthie S. Wooden, Executive Secretary.

Fruited Lemonade Flip

Photograph Courtesy of Birds Eye

LEMONADE IS THE CLASSIC, old-fashioned summer cooler . . . good as is, even better dressed up as a fruited flip. In this frothy modern version, quick-frozen lemonade is combined with beaten eggs and crushed fruit. The fruit goes in the bottom of a tall glass, the lemonade-egg mixture is poured on top. Serve with a long spoon so you can scoop up every last drop.

LEMONADE FLIP

1 can (6 ounces) quick-frozen concentrated lemonade
Cold water
3 eggs, beaten
Crushed pineapple, strawberries, or other fruit

Mix concentrated lemonade with cold water as directed on can. Add the beaten eggs, mix well, cover, and chill thoroughly. To serve, put a spoonful of fruit in each glass and fill with lemonade mixture. Makes about 4½ cups (without fruit), or enough for 6 six-ounce servings.

Double Ring Ceremony United Miss Ladrie And James Logan

MR. AND MRS. JAMES WILSON LOGAN

Miss Jane Cleoy Ladrie became the bride of James Wilson Logan in an impressive double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. A. R. Fagen of Sebring, at 7:30 in the First Baptist Church on Saturday, July 26.

The church was beautifully decorated with fern and banked with palms. Two standing baskets of white gladioli were placed on each side of the altar and the kneeling bench had dainty lilies of the valley and white ribbon arranged on the cushions. A mixed bouquet of summer flowers was also used.

Mrs. J. B. Coen presented a program of nuptial music on the organ before the ceremony and the Rev. Fagen sang "I'll Walk With God."

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her uncle, J. W. Shaw of Melbourne, wore a ballerina length gown of white nylon tulle and lace featuring long sleeves. The Empire neckline and princess style fitted bodice gave way to a full tiered paneled lace and tulle skirt. Her veil fell from a jeweled tiara and she carried a bridal bouquet of fern and dainty white roses.

Mrs. James White, sister of the bride and matron of honor, chose a coral nylon chiffon ballerina length chassic with a tiny tucked bodice trimmed in satin. Her headpiece was a frill hat of coral trimmed in white and she carried a bouquet of pale yellow flowers.

Miss Mary Lois Roberts and Miss Lynelle Griffin were bridesmaids. They wore powder blue and lemon ice ballerina dresses with fitted bodices and full skirts embroidered with lace medallions. Their hats were identical to the matron of honor's and they carried bouquets of coral flowers and blue flowers.

Little Miss Cindy White, flowergirl and niece of the bride, wore a floor length pink nylon sheer gown with a full skirt and tiny puff sleeves. On her head she wore a dainty pink bonnet and she spread rose petals from a basket with pink ribbon before the lovely bride.

William Y. Bennett served the bridegroom as best man. The ushers were Ronald J. Wilson and Philip F. Weber.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ladrie, mother of the bride, wore a dusty rose dress of lace with long sleeves and trimmed with irridescent sequins. Her accessories matched her dress and she wore a corsage of tiny pink roses.

For her son's wedding Mrs. Mildred Logan chose a white linen dress with powder blue accessories. Her corsage was also of tiny pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Social Hall of the church. The room was decorated with fern and white gladioli. The Bride's table held two pink satin hearts, overlapping, with metallic net ruffles and the names "Jim and Jane" on them. These were centered before a lovely three tiered wedding cake topped with a small bride and bridegroom. The punch table was lovely with a frothy pale pink punch in a cut glass punch bowl.

Mrs. H. A. Albright presided over the Bride's Book and Mrs. T. J. Ward served the cake. Also helping serve the guests were Mrs. J. T. Landress, Jr., Mrs. Joe Perez, Mrs. H. H. Rutledge, Miss Mary Ann Nader. Pouring the punch were Mrs. Willard Griffen and Mrs. T. H. Maxwell.

For a wedding trip the bride wore a powder blue linen dress accented with white and blue accessories with biege shoes. Mr. and Mrs. Logan will be at home in Avon Park until early fall when they will go to Miami.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shaw and their family of Melbourne, Mrs. Herma Cenover of Melbourne and Mr. and Mrs. Gene Patton of Sebring.

Surprise House Warming Party For Atkins Family

Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Atkins were surprised with a house warming party in their new home on North Lake Avenue on Tuesday night, July 29.

When fifty friends dropped in with lovely gifts to see their new home the surprise of the Atkins family was completely genuine. Mrs. Art Turner, Mrs. Ray Wells, Mrs. A. McKee Elwell and Mrs. Aline Parnell were hostesses for the party.

The guests were served cake and Cokes and enjoyed a tour to the Atkin's lovely new home. An evening of fun and visiting followed the surprise.

Leaguers Enjoy Hamburger Fry

The Midget League coaches, their wives and other interested parents entertained some 90 Leaguers at a Hamburger Fry last week at the Florida Power Clubhouse.

Floyd Wells was the chief chef in charge of hamburgers and hot dogs and several of the mothers fixed the trimmings of slaw, chips, pickles and other-tid-bits.

The hungry horde came in at 6:00 to demolish the stacks of food handed out by Charlie Warrington and Grover Bates.

A number of parents have helped in many ways with the League this summer and a great deal more interest has been evidenced than in the past. More interest on the part of parents and friends resulted in a steady attendance on the part of the boys.

After enjoying the delicious meal, the teams went to the field for the All-Star game with Ro-

Did Onassis Buy a Pig in a Poke?

SEVERAL YEARS AGO shipowner Aristotle Socrates Onassis set up a trust for his children, which made an agreement with the U.S. Government to build $1 million dollars worth of tankers at Quincy, Mass. But then last year the Government imposed "voluntary" quotas limiting oil imports. Result, the ships would have nothing to do. So now nobody will finance the shipyard contract, and work has stopped. As if that weren't enough, the Bonner Congressional Committee summoned Mr. Onassis to testify about it, and the Department of Justice sued to take away 14 other ships owned by the trust.

But these events merely highlight the problem. Earlier this year, 200 million dollars of tanker orders at American shipyards had been cancelled by various owners because of the oil import restrictions. New York JOURNAL OF COMMERCE says 44,000,000 tons of tankers would need be built in the next eight years to supply growing oil demand for which U. S. industries have developed vast oil fields in the Mid East and Venezuela. They will not be required nor built if import limitations continue. Shipbuilders point out this would be a 10 billion dollars privately financed program. A little-known restriction to help oil-well owners has killed it.

One rueful shipyard worker commented, "There goes my job, but at least I'll have lots of time to watch American's remaining oil go up in smoke, and to wonder how soon I'll have to pay 50 cents a gallon for gasoline."

From The Office Of Congressman Jim Haley

Washington, D. C.—The House passed a bill last week which is of fundamental importance to our American system of government. This bill, H.R. 3, commonly referred to as a States Rights bill, recognizes a fundamental concept in our constitutional history that there must be close cooperation between the State and National Governments and neither should interfere with the proper functions of the other. The bill, if enacted, will establish rules of interpretation governing questions of the effect of acts of Congress on State laws. The measure would and the National Government have concurrent jurisdiction, without fear that their statutes will be declared inoperative under the doctrine of preemption. I supported this bill because it will provide an important safeguard against further diminution of State power and enlargement of Federal power.

The Domestic Marketing Subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee last week favorably reported a bill I introduced, H. R. 7832, which would require all imports of citrus to meet the same high standards as are imposed on domestic produce by federal marketing agreements. I will continue to make every effort to secure enactment of this legislation which is so important to the citrus industry and the consumers.

The Veterans' Administration advised me last week that they had rescinded their plan to close the VA office at Lakeland, Florida, and the VA office in Lakeland will not be closed on August 15, 1958, as previously scheduled. The VA stated that all factors relating to the maintenance of the office will be re-examined at a later date, and until that time, no further action on closing the Lakeland office will be taken. This was indeed good news to me inasmuch as I had protested the closing of that office which has rendered such a valuable service to many veterans in the seventh district.

The Veterans' Committee, of which I am a member, held hearings last week regarding the veterans' hospital bed situation. It is my hope that as a result of these hearings, the Congress and the Executive branch will become more familiar with our problem in Florida with respect to the urgent need for additional beds in the VA hospitals. Even though plans have been approved for an additional 700 bed at Coral Gables and Bay Pines, we will still need additional beds for our disabled and needy veterans. Due to fact that so many disabled veterans go to Florida for their health, the veteran population of Florida has increased tremendously in the last few years which in turn has increased the need for VA hospitals facilities in Florida. I will continue to do everything possible to provide adequate hospital facilities for veterans.

Mrs. McKay Died Thursday At Her Home

Mrs. Linnie A. McKay passed away at her home on Thursday, July 31. She was a native of Obion County, Tenn., and came to Avon Park from Ft. Myers a year ago. She was a member of the Christian Science Society.

Mrs. McKay is survived by one sister, Miss Laura Myles, Avon Park.

A private Christian Science funeral was held at the Mizelle Funeral Home Chapel Saturday morning, after which cremation followed.

Dr. Ted Ward Promoted To Assoc. Professor

Ted Ward, Pontiac coordinator for Michigan State University, has been promoted to the rank of Associate Professor in recent action of the State Board of Agriculture. Dr. Ward's assignment to Pontiac in 1956 led to the establishment of a teacher education center in cooperation with the Pontiac Board of Education. His responsibilities include the administration of the student teaching program, which has already provided more than one hundred and thirty beginning teachers a supervised internship in Pontiac schools, and the development of the in-service education program for teachers in the Oakland-Macomb County area. He will be continuing this work in Pontiac, utilizing the facilities of MSU-Oakland as the new institution progresses.

Holding degrees from Wheaton College and the University of Florida, Dr. Ward came to Michigan from the University of Florida where he was an Assistant Professor in the College of Education. Dr. and Mrs. Ward, with their three sons, reside at 217 Oneida Road in Pontiac.

On Aug. 3, 1942, Mildred A. McAfee became the first woman ever to be commissioned in the Navy.

The Marine Corps reached a maximum strength of 75,101 during World War I. World War II peak strength, reached Aug. 31, 1945, was 485,113.

The Annual Youth Rally of the Orange Blossom Association of Women's Missionary Unions held an all day meeting on Thursday, July 31, at the Oak Grove Church with more than two hundred persons present.

The young people were in charge of the morning program and used the various magazines published for the auxiliaries as their subject. Mrs. Art Turner's Intermediate Girl's Auxiliary won the attendance banner for the meeting. An interesting talk was given by a missionary to the Hawaiian Islands, Miss Ray.

Lunch was served to the group by the Oak Grove Church and the W. M. U. and the G. A.'s held their quarterly business meetings separately in the afternoon. Miss Judy Martin of Avon Park is president of the Association G. A.'s.

Chemise-One Towel

WOULD YOU BELIEVE that this attractive chemise type beach poncho is made from one large size 24"x 48" bath towel, with pockets of matching washcloths? In this case, the towel is deep green, and is bound with wide bias tape in white.

To make this beach poncho, fold towel border to border, suggests The Cannon Homemaking Institute. Cut a 10" head opening in the center and a 5" slit at back of neck. After fitting jacket, mark off waistline and sew a double row of stitching to form slot for inserting elastic. Use bias tape for ties at back of neckline.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

Education is defined "To develop and cultivate mentally or morally; fit for a calling by systematic instruction."

The process of education must work hand in glove with an effective program of rehabilitation. Up to this point, it has been impossible at APP to introduce an educational program, due to lack of space and a qualified director of an educational department. This is no longer the case. As of August 1st Rev. G. Michael Whetstone, Jr., has been added to the staff of Avon Park Prison as Director of Religion and Education.

The history of religion shows that during the dark ages a pursuit of education resulted in death. Learning was restricted to aristocracy and the masses were doomed to remain in ignorance. It hasn't been for to long, since attitudes have changed and education is encouraged for all. Religion and education have become closely united. It is now thought by many educators thtf one tempers the other. It takes education to intelligently interpret what is read in the Bible, while at the same time religion serves to blunt the sometimes sharp edges of education.

The following is an excerpt from the APP Dopester, written by one of the inmates, Dennis O. Yarber. Dennis is the librarian at the institution and sums up the situation nicely by saying: "Spiritual guidance is a necessity, and is even demanded by all right-thinking and civilized people, but before this can be intelligently received there must be a base upon which to build it. All civilized Christianity is based upon: EDUCATION! A lack of it is the reason we still have some illiterate savages eating each other. True, you do not need education to enter the Pearly Gates, but certainly need it to find your way to those portals! To the utter shame of the greatest country on earth, there are men in this institution and elsewhere, who cannot read. A man who cannot read is almost completely blind! He must depend upon the voice of others (sometimes this is downright unreliable) for guidance, information and direction. To rehabilitate a penal inmate under this handicap is extremely difficult. No institution can provide a Counselor for each individual illiterate, any more than the Church can provide a Minister for each individual sinner. How then, is a man to absorb the Bible when he cannot even read it! How is an inmate to absorb a rehabilitative program with only verbal instruction from a Counselor, when he can only listen to equal (abverse) verbiage, coming from one per cent of his associates who have no intention of being rehabilitated! The answer is obvious. Remove the blind from his eyes. Teach him to read and write. Give him the very necessary self-respect needed for the job ahead; Spiritual guidance, and readjustment for his place back in society. Reverend Whetstone is our answer to the problem, which would be a Hurculean task even under ideal conditions. We KNOW he will succeed, for he has all the requirements: A Christian by nature, a Minister by Ordination, and Educator by training, and a HUMAN by the Grace of God!"

It is firmly believed by this writer that primary education should be compulsary for those who have neglected to obtain or never had the opportunity for schooling. Send these men to school and teach them first to read and write; then teach them to add and subtract; from there proceed to other normal subjects that give the individual a solid background on which to build the rest of his learning. There is no doubt that several of these men will balk at the idea of going to school, as they are adults and school is for the kids, but this is a minor problem. How much imagination does it take to see the advantage a literate individual has over the illiterate??

It is only logical to assume that lack of education may be direct reason for many men being in penitentiaries today. Due to higher standards set by employers who are now demanding at least a rudimentary education, the illiterate is hard pressed to earn enough to support himself or family. Although it is true in many instances that schooling was neglected willingly, it is also true that many times it has been a case of no opportunity because head of the household deemed schooling unimportant. This of course results from the head of the household being uneducated himself.

It was mentioned earlier that Reverend Whetstone is well grounded and has just the qualifications necessary to make a success of the religious and educational programs to be offered here at APP. As an ordained minister Reverend Whetstone has a half-dozen years experience as a teacher and student of the Bible. As an educator he has had at least ten years experience as a teacher not only of Math, but of Religion as well, because a minister must teach, thus, we again see the close relationship between the two fields. To learn religion is to be exposed to education.

If we teach the illiterate we instill a self respect that he will carry proudly with him when he once again rejoins his family and takes up community life. His chances of succeeding are at least a hundred times greater than they were before he entered the institution. The educating of these men will not only be a great boon to them, but will make assets to the society that originally proclaimed them as unfit.

Great Southern Contracts To Buy Hunt Truck Lines

Great Southern Trucking Company has contracted to buy Hunt Truck Lines, Inc., of Tampa, Florida, for $215,000, it was announced here today by E. W. Wright, vice president and general manager.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has granted Great Southern temporary authority to operate the Tampa carrier, pending ICC approval of the acquisition.

Hunt Truck Lines operates 32 units of equipment and serves three west-central Florida counties: Hillsborough, Polk and Highlands. Its terminals are in Tampa, Lakeland, Lake Wales and Sebring. Terminal operations in Tampa and Lakeland will be consolidated with the present Great Southern facilities in those cities.

Great Southern, which is a subsidary of Ryder System, Inc., ranks as the Southeast's largest motor common carrier. The addition of Hunt will give the company 40 terminals in seven states.

"Shippers in the three-county area will now have expedited service not only to the direct points of Great Southern and Hunt, but to almost any point in the U.S.," Wright stated. "The Ryder System policy of modern equipment and facilities will be extended to include the Hunt operation.

He's Candidate With A Plan, Pepper Asserts

Claude Pepper is basing his bid to return to the United States Senate on his record of accomplishments for the people of Florida and the nation and his experience in the field of foreign affairs which can help restore American prestige abroad.

In a hard-driving campaign for the Democratic nomination in the September primary Pepper, who at the age of 57 already has 14 years service in the Senate, is putting emphasis on his accomplishments in the field of social legislation and stressing need for further improvement.

In his swing across the State Pepper has repeatedly called attention to the need of attracting new industry to Florida, strengthening the Social Security law, providing better health care for the people and the urgency of a revitalized foreign policy.

In the field of foreign affairs Pepper maintains that the Eisenhower policy has resulted in "tragic failure." The veteran of 12 years on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee says that America's standing abroad is at an all-time low.

"We need new people with new vision and ideas in charge of our foreign policy and a revision of our policy," Pepper declared.

Under a Republican Administration, he says, the welfare of the people has been neglected. Pepper has called attention to the voting record of his opponent, Sen. Spessard Holland, who sided more with the Republicans than with the Democratic majority.

New industry can be brought to Florida, Pepper believes, by offering a fast Federal tax write-off for plants relocating from the North. During his years in the Senate Pepper did much to bring new industry to the South by fighting discriminatory freight rates.

The health of the people, which occupied much of Pepper's time while he was in the Senate, continues to be one of his principal concerns. He feels that doctors and private insurance companies have cooperated to relieve the public of much of the burden of ruinous medical expenses but insists that there is still a problem in this field.

For the benefit of senior citizens he is advocating an increase in Social Security benefits by an amount that would allow older persons to subscribe to private health insurance plans.

Soaring living costs have made present Social Security benefits inadequate, Pepper feels. He proposes an immediate increase in benefits and an end to the $1,200 income limitation on persons collecting benefits. He also would lower the eligible age for men from 65 to 60 and for women from 62 to 55. He thinks the Social Security Law should provide an automatic increase in benefits when the cost of living index rises.

Another urgently needed change in the Social Security Law is a provision which would allow a totally and permanently disabled worker to draw benefits from the date of the disability. Under the present law such disability payments are not made until worker reaches age 50.

How To Make More Profits From Beef Cattle

There are several things you can do right now that will help you make more profits from your beef cattle.

Here is a list of some of these things, as suggested by Animal Husbandman, James E. Pace, of the Florida Agricultural Extension Service.

If you are using your highly improved pastures, especially clover pastures, for fattening two-year-old and older steers, and if these pastures are passing their peak now, it would be wise to try to move these grass-fattened steers to market soon.

Besides selling the class of cattle just mentioned, the wise cattleman will sell all cows in his herd that failed to calve this past season. Cow prices are high and have been during recent months, so now is a good time to cull. Cows producing small, unthrifty calves also should be culled.

It will pay to inventory your cattle numbers in relation to the available feed supply. Ask yourself: Are your pastures overstocked? Do your cattle look as good as they should? What percentage calf crop did you get this past year?

Don't overstock pastures during the summer months. If your pastures are overstocked, reduce your herd numbers and take advantage of the high prices prevailing at present; fertilize your pastures to obtain maximum growth during the rest of the growing season; and use any excess growth as reserve pasture or harvested roughage in the form of silage or hay.

If you have not vaccinated your calves for blackleg and malignant edema, do so immediately. Blackleg can cause devastating losses in a short time. Also, check with your local veterinarian concerning vaccinating your herd replacement heifer calves for brucellosis. Much progress has been made in a number of counties in controlling this disease, and eventually the state will be a certified free area.

Remove bulls from the feeding pasture immediately, if you have not already done so. Late calves seldom do well in Florida. After they are removed from the breeding pasture, give bulls access to the best pasture available.

Cull heifers saved from last year's calf crop as replacements. Sell those heifers not growing out as they should and not showing evidence of good "doing ability".

Since screwworms have been of little concern to cattlemen this spring and summer, most cattlemen who winter their steers and sell them as yearlings or who sell their calves to feeder buyers will find it most profitable to dehorn their calves.

It will pay to make an appointment with your local veterinarian to get a pregnancy test of the cows in your breeding herd. It costs only fifty cents to a dollar to find out if a cow will bring a calf at the next calving season, but it will cost from fifteen to twenty-five dollars to carry her through the winter.

Finally, cattle bothered by flies cannot make maximum gains. There are a number of good spray compounds on the market.

Meet Mr. Florida: The Pepper Story

To the United States and the rest of the world former Senator Claude Pepper is Mr. Florida.

This is what Collier's Encyclopedia has to say:

"Probably the two Floridians best known outside Florida are the novelist Marjorie K. Rawlings and former Senator Claude Pepper."

Senator Pepper's world-wide renown is the reward of a career of public service that stretches back to 1929 when he first served in the House of Representatives of the Florida Legislature.

His rise to national and world prominence began in 1936 when he was first elected to the United States Senate. This marked the real beginning of his life work — a fight for sound, progressive legislation at home and prosperity and peace throughout the world.

The farm boy who became a United States Senator at the age of 36 was born in Chambers County, Alabama in 1900. After serving in the Army during World War I, he was graduated from the University of Alabama in 1921. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1924.

Upon his graduation from Harvard the future Senator taught law at the University of Arkansas during 1924 and 1925. One of his students, J. William Fulbright, went on to the United States Senate.

It was in 1925, with a borrowed capital of $300, that the fledgling attorney moved to Perry, Florida, to begin the practice of law. Three years after his arrival in Florida Claude Pepper became a member of the State Democratic Committee and took the stump for the Democratic ticket. In that same year, 1928, Claude Pepper was elected to the Florida House of Representatives from Taylor County.

When Claude Pepper moved to Tallahassee in 1930 he quickly found an opportunity to serve the people of Florida. Then-Governor Doyle E. Carlton appointed him to the State Board of Welfare and the State Board of Law Examiners. He also became vice chairman of the State Bar Association.

But despite the pressure of his personal and official affairs Claude Pepper found time to teach the Men's Bible Class at the First Baptist Church in Tallahassee. He also kept up his varied civic activities.

A red letter year in the life of Claude Pepper was 1936. It was in a special primary on July 11 of that year that he was nominated to succeed the late Senator Duncan U. Fletcher in the United States Senate. The second big event of 1936 in the life of Claude Pepper was his marriage on December 29 to Irene Mildred Webster.

In his Senate service which extended from 1937 to 1951 Senator Pepper was guided by a political philosophy which he expresses in these words:

"Government was intended to, and should, promote the general welfare, that is to say, aid the people in achieving prosperity, homes, health, education and culture and happiness. This, of course, should be done in the democratic way, that is, in pursuance of our Constitution, and in the lawful and orderly way and manner which is in furtherance of our great American tradition. Certainly I do not believe that the Government should do what the people can adequately do for themselves and the Government should generally do no more than is necessary for any occasion. But the Government is after all the servant of the people and the people have a right to use it in their service."

Senator Pepper's long-time interest in international affairs was heightened in 1938 when he was appointed as a delegate to the Interparliamentary Union Conference at The Hague in Holland. Following the conference his travels in Europe gave him an opportunity to observe at first hand the threat Hitler then posed to the free world.

On his return from the 1939 conference at The Hague Senator Pepper spoke repeatedly over the country in an effort to arouse the people to the dangers of Nazism. He was the first to introduce a Lend-Lease resolution in the Senate in 1940. Senator Pepper continued his enlightened endeavors in the field of international affairs when he was first to introduce a resolution in the Senate for setting up the United Nations. He supported the Atlantic Pact, the Marshall Plan, the Foreign Aid Program, the Point Four Program and all those measures designed to give the United States greater security and to protect the free world from aggression.

Again in 1945, as a member of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and the Senate Committee on Small Business Senator Pepper made a trip to 19 countries to survey the post-war situation and to recommend steps the United States could take to bring a permanent peace.

In 1950 Senator Pepper was again a delegate to the Interparliamentary Union Conference, this time meeting in Dublin, Ireland. Following this conference Senator and Mrs. Pepper spent three months in travel across Europe through India, Siam, Hong Kong and Japan. Senator Pepper spent a week in Korea before returning across the Pacific with Mrs. Pepper.

In the Senate he served for 12 years on the Foreign Relations Committee. He served for 14 years on the Committee on Education and Labor. This later became the Committee on Labor and Public Welfare. He was Chairman of the Committee on Inter-Oceanic Canals, having jurisdiction of the Panama Canal, and was a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce and Military Affairs.

During the war he was Chairman of a special Committee of the Senate to investigate matters pertaining to health and education. This Committee on War-time Health and Education conducted extensive hearings and made recommendations, many of which later became law. The Committee was responsible for legislation providing a program of nation-wide Federal aid and construction of hospitals and similar facilities.

He was a member of the Senate Steering Committee.

In addition to his law practice, with offices in Miami, Tallahassee and Washington, D. C., he is active in Kiwanis and is a member of the Harvard Club of Washington.

He is a member of the American Society of International Law, American Judicature Society, American Bar Association, Florida Bar Association, Dade and Leon County Florida Bar Associations, an associate member of the City of New York Bar, a member of the American Legion, a Mason, a Shriner, Elk, and Moose. He also holds memberships in Phi Beta Kappa, Omicron Delta Kappa, Kappa Alpha and Phi Alpha Delta.

He holds the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from McMaster University, conferred in 1941, from Toronto University in 1942, from the University of Alamaba in the same year and from Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida, in 1944.

He is the author of numerous articles appearing in leading periodicals.

PERSONAL NEWS ITEMS

Mrs. Clarence Rhen and her son, John, of Pittsburg, Pa. arrived this week for a visit with her mother, Mrs. E. L. Phillips. Accompanying them were Mrs. Phillips' sister, Mrs. Charles Zimmerman and her grandson, Jim Hay, also of Pittsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Miars of Miami visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Harden last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley McCullough of Jacksonville visited his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Bill McCullough last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilford Hill of Hialeah were guests of Mayor and Mrs. E. A. DeLaney and visited other friends in Avon Park for several days last week.

Jan and Sherry Adams of Miami have been spending the summer with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Adams. Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Adams, will arrive this weekend and the whole family will leave on a long trip. They plan to go to Canada stopping to see Washington, D. C., Niagara Falls and many other interesting places on the way. The families will be gone for several weeks.

Mrs. Will Price of Dowagiac, Michigan, is visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. Clinton Harden, this week. The Hardens have shown their guest the many beautiful attractions in the Ridge Area.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sharpe and their children, Eddie, Tommy and Gwen, have just returned from an enjoyable trip of sightseeing in South Florida. Sanibel Island was their first stop and all enjoyed hunting shells for which the island is famous. On a lonely road leaving this island they happened upon a real drama with the Highway Patrol and local police involved. Two escaped convicts had seized the home of an expectant mother and her family, whom they held as hostages and the police were shooting it 'out' with them. After this excitement which turned out well for all they visited in Naples and then went on to the Keys. Along the Tamiami Trail they saw the interesting home of the Seminole Indians and marveled at the fact thay could live in such swamps.

They went over the thirty nine bridges linking the key to Key West and the mainland. Mrs. Sharpe was quite leary of the seven mile bridge from which could only be seen water and more water and the thought of a hurricane tearing it up seemed quite real and frightening. In quaint old Key West they saw the southernmost house in the U. S. and were close to Cuba and to the mainland of Florida. The Conch Train Tour afforded much enjoyment for the family with views of the Naval Station which is a restricted area and guards boarded the train while it was in the station. The Little White House where President Truman and eight other presidents have stayed was another interesting sight. The history of Key West was interesting to all the family. Other places they thought especially interesting were Ernest Hemmingway's old home and the Turtle Kraals where restaurant owners buy the large sea turtles for steaks. They learned that Ybor City was started when the cigar factories of Key West burned and the people moved to Tampa to rebuild. On the trip home they visited a cousin in Hileah and toured Miami. The whole family feels that it was a wonderful vacation and that there is so much to see right here in our own lovely state.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Watson have as their guests their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Schweckendiech of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Kretzer and their daughter, Janet, of Cleveland, their nephew and his family, are also spending a few days with them. On Tuesday Mrs. Howard Kretzer and her son, Kenny, of Orlando joined the group to visit with the other members of her family.

Gayle and Vickie Rutherford, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. William Rutherford of Plant City are spending this week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Rutherford.

Mrs. Ozzie Sapp and her daughter, Linda, of Lakeland spent from last Wednesday until Sunday visiting her mother, Mrs. M. J. Bell, and other relatives.

How To Select Lawn Grasses For This Area

If you are trying to decide which grass is best for your lawn, you won't have to draw straws. We have a number of good lawn grasses suitable for lawns in this area.

Dr. Gene Nutter, turf specialist with the Florida Agricultural Experiment Stations, lists Bermuda grasses, St. Augustine, zoysia, centipede, carpet and Bahia grass as suitable for lawns.

But how do you choose what's best for your lawn? The best index may be the relative amount of care and money involved in keeping the grass growing their best. Let's look at these grasses with this thought in mind.

The new, improved Bermuda grasses requires a high level of maintenance. They are the finest of the Southern lawn grasses in both texture and quality. Dr. Nutter presently recommends Everglades No. 1, Ormond and Tiflawn Bermudas.

These Bermudas require frequent fertilization, watering during dry periods, and must be mowed more frequently than other lawn grasses. Diseases and pests may cause trouble at times.

St. Augustine and Manila Grass require a mederate level of maintenance. However, St. Augustine is a favoriate host of the chinch bug, and is often severely damaged. The better zoysia varieties are very desirable for Florida.

Two kinds of zoysias have been recommended. One is Zoysea matrella or Manila grass, and the other is the newly released Emerald variety, a hybrid zoysia. Emerald is probably best for Florida.

Of the low maintenance grasses, centipede is best. Under favorable conditions, it will provide a good, low maintenance turf, particularly on the heavier soils. It requires little mowing and fertilization, and is not very susceptible to disease. A pest known as ground pearl does attack it, and there is at present no known control for this pest. Also, centipede turns brown in winter.

Other low maintenance grasses — not so satisfactory as centipede — are carpet grass. Carpet grass may have a place on low, moist, relatively acid soils, and Bahia is useful for extensive areas where low cost maintenance is needed.

Rotary News

Randy Robinson, member of the Florida Highway Patrol, and Safety Director for this District presented a very interesting safety program at the Avon Park Rotary Club luncheon on Wednesday, July 30, at the Jacaranda Hotel.

If all citizens would abide by the safety laws the highways would be a lot safer.

Fred Sargent, Miami, was the guest of Franklyn Ward.

Jan Dolcater, Tampa; Bill Passmore, Lakeland; Dick Dressel, Miami and Jack Stephenson of Sebring were the only visiting Rotarians.

4-H'ers Strive To Be Good Citizens And Speakers

Chicago (Special)-Good citizenship is emphasized in all 4-H Club work, while just about every project or activity requires a certain amount of talking and demonstrating before club members and other groups. Many 4-H'ers also are invited to appear on local radio and TV programs.

To encourage personal development in these two activities, the Cooperative Extension Service directs the 4-H Citizenship and Public Speaking programs. In many states, urban as well as rural boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 21 participate.

Incentive awards are offered in both programs. In citizenship, certificates of honor will go to the best qualified boy and girl in the state who then become eligible to try for national $400 college scholarships.

Club members competing for public speaking awards will qualify for county, state, and national honors. All awards are for one boy and one girl in each classification. County winners receive medals. The top boy in the state will get a handsome jewel wrist watch and the girl a beautiful set of silverware. Both will then be eligible to compete for national awards which are $400 college scholarships, and expense-paid trips to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

Donor of the public speaking awards is the Pure Oil Co. Awards in the citizenship program are given in honor of Tho. E. Wilson, a pioneer in aid to 4-H youth. Both programs

Whats New With The National Guard

By M/Sgt. Ollie P. Gentry

For the first time since the organization of Battery C 712th AAA Bn, the unit is at full authorized strength. This situation is due to the recently imposed strength ceiling of 4 Officers, 1 Warrant Office and 63 Enlisted Men. However, it is anticipated that this crippling ceiling will soon be raised and that this unit, along with other Anti-Aircraft units of the Florida National Guard, will be authorized to maintain 85% of full TOE strength. Details of a proposed plan for this increase in strength are being considered by top officials. With the help of the American voters, this plan will succeed.

Being at full strength does not mean that Battery C has stopped recruiting. Due to the turn-over in personnel, new recruits and qualified personnel must be recruited to fill the vacancies created by discharges and transfers. Prior service men and high-school seniors are urged to visit the Armory on Verona Avenue and discuss their military obligation with Sgt. Gentry. National Guard Headquarters in Avon Park is always open to the people of this community and will assist in any matters concerning the military.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

The Third Principle: Knowledge and Skills Acquired Should Be Functional In Our Community.

An interest in civil defense may lead some individuals to the serious study of the basic sciences or of International politics. This is commendable, indeed desirable, but it is not necessary. Interested persons should be encouraged to know all they can about civil defense whether it is strictly relevant to our community or not-every community can use a few "experts." But the important thing is that the knowledge which is strictly necessary to our community should be clearly perceived and understood.

If ours is a reception center for a disaster area, we need to centralize a great many facts about accommodation, spare beds and bedding, private and public food storage, total water supply, sewage and hygiene facilities, names of persons skilled in first aid or nursing, vehicles such as delivery trucks and station wagons suitable for emergency service, and so on. If our police and firemen are to cooperate with similar forces outside our community limits, we need to know what arrangements can be made for their insurance coverage and other protection when they are outside the boundaries of their normal employment. Where our forces are to be augmented by trained volunteers we must know what protection is extended to them. So our third general principle is: Knowledge and skills acquired should be functional in our community.

The Fourth Principle: Special Knowledge Is For Special Individuals and Groups, Not for All.

The above paragraph refers to knowledge of general concern to the community, an emergency, however, will be met and surmounted by groups and individuals who, though they operate under a general plan, must carry out individuals tasks requiring specialized knowledge. The numbers of specialists needed is not governed exclusively by our own community but rather by our area. A village does not need a large demolition squad. In case the wind should carry radioactive fallout over a village as the result of a nuclear attack on a large city nearby, many monitors may be needed in that village to determine the hazard present. The large city not far distant may need more monitors than it can train. If it is a critical target area it may have to control a major disaster with great speed after taking heavy casualties. Monitoring, which involves the use of Geiger counters and survey meters, is intrinsically interesting to practical people, especially young and active men. Apart from the potential usefulness of these men outside our community, their interest may lead to further training.

Some people will need to be trained for work which is entirely new. Others will merely need additional training to cover the various types of disaster for which civil defense organization is important. We have noticed the retraining of firemen and police for the special conditions resulting from radioactive fallout. The first aid worker or nurse called upon to dress wounds or burns caused by a nuclear explosion needs to learn that cleansing and dressing such wounds will not contaminate her or transmit radiation sickness. The housewife in a reception area needs to know that the evacuee whom she is taking in and who may have been slightly injured or at least exposed to radiation can drink from her cups, eat from her plates, and sleep in her linens without danger to her household. So much mystery and horror have become attached to modern weapons that our native and spontaneous readiness to help others in a natural disaster may be inhibited by ignorance in a wartime catastrophe.

Another group of people may not need any training or retraining but may need only to be located and informed. Some of them may be modest or shy because they may not have had any unusual education or have developed any special skill. But there are a great many needed abilities that have not been learned in credit courses. There is the woman on our street who belongs to no clubs, doesn't seem to go out much, doesn't play cards and seems quite content to stay home. All the neighborhood children seem to collect in her yard and we often see her out there with them. If children have to be brought together in an emergency, this woman may be the one to take charge of them. People who can read aloud, tell stories, lead community singing, play a portable instrument, or improvise nonsense games are invaluable in shelters. Most of these people are not amateur entertainers, they simply have a hobby known only to a few friends. They need no training, but they may need to be "brought out," helped to see their hobby as highly useful in certain types of emergency, and organized in groups. This is our fourth principle: Special Knowledge is for Special Individuals and Groups, not for All.

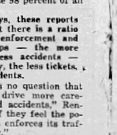
MOTOR MAIDS



3 "I's" Cause Traffic Mishaps

By Jeanne Smith,
Dodge Safety Consultant

ONLY TWO PERCENT of all automobile mishaps are true accidents, according to police officials in Berkley, California.

In fact, police there no longer use the term "accident." Instead, says Sergeant George A. Rennacker, they refer to those mishaps involving cars as "caused occurrences," resulting from the three "I's" — Indifference, Incompetence and Irresponsibility.

Miss Smith

Rennacker, Berkley's veteran police traffic expert, keeps comprehensive accident reports to substantiate his claim that the three "I's" cause 98 percent of all mishaps.

And, he says, these reports also show that there is a ratio between law enforcement and traffic mishaps — the more tickets, the less accidents — and, conversely, the less tickets, the more accidents.

"There seems no question that motorists will drive more carefully and avoid accidents," Rennacker says, "if they feel the police department enforces its traffic laws strictly."

Therefore, he has set a policy of strict law enforcement as a major solution to traffic problems. As an example, Berkley has used radar as a traffic law enforcement tool for five years with rewarding results. Last year, 5583 speeding citations were handed out as a result of radar checks.

Within a few days after radar check points were set up in a specific locale, speeds decreased and "caused occurences" dropped—because drivers knew the police were on the job.

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

Children, dogs, auto accidents and irate telephone users keep Ernest Prevatt busy as a repairman. For four years now he has been one of the several employed by the telephone company to keep the phones in working order.

Children use the telephone as a toy, dogs crawl under the house and chew the wires in two and then there's always one in every town . . . the muscle-man, who yanks the phone off the wall in a fit of temper. Fortunately, there are only a few of these.

Ernest had an exciting near brush with 12,000 volts from a broken power line while repairing a telephone wire. A motorist had knocked down a pole and the wires had become entangled. It was a nervous repairman who got that mess straightened out.

City policeman find slugs, and buttons along with the pennies and nickles taken out of the parking meters.

A favorite trick is to use a bent penny, which naturally doesn't work.

Policeman Blanford has a brilliant idea for collecting out-standing over-time parking fees . . . just add them to the water bill and if they aren't paid . . . cut off the water . . . it would be a toss-up between a clean slate and a dirty neck.

Mr. Waters who has the taxi stand on the Ward's corner sometimes has a fare as far as North Carolina and back. He makes frequent trips to the closer cities such as Miami.

Conversation overheard in the Kwik Chek by couple examining nectarines, "these are those peaches they shave on TV" . . . no fuzz.

Our friend, Absent-minded Addie, wrote the following "billet doux" to her milkman, whom she had never seen: Please leave an extra pint of cream, Love, Addie.

THE NEW APHS MAJORETTE LINE: If practice makes perfect the new majorette line this year should be one of the best for the girls have been at it all summer. Many attended Band Camp in Miami and also special classes during the summer months. This week the girls are taking special baton lessons from Mona Merle Nobles, Florida State Champion in 1949. Miss Nobles was solo majorette at the Miami High School Band of the Hour. She was an assistant to one of the Triple A Judges at the National Baton Contest in Milwaukee, Wis. on July 24. The above picture was taken during class Monday morning at the high school, left to right, Instructor Nobles, Cecilia Weinziri, Nancy Coleman, Judy Shields, Chere Durden, Patsy Peres, Faye Watford, Tura Ann Delaney, Sammie Wright, Head Majorette, and Hattie Leighton. Two majorettes, Karen Kirkland and Carolyn Biggs, were not present when the picture was taken.

The bulletin will list all information which would be of interest to any company seeking a site for industry in or near Avon Park.

The Board decided that the Chamber will sponsor a contestant in the Sugar Daddy Contest, to be staged by the Junior Woman's Club in connection with their Sugar 'N Spice Follies. Jim Heim, president of the Chamber, appointed Franklyn Ward, George Border and Dr. Richard Hedrick to serve on a committee to select a contestant.

School Board Approves Final Plans For Six Classroom Addition At Hopewell School

The Highlands County School Board at its meeting Tuesday, approved the final plans and specifications for a six-classroom addition at the Hopewell School.

The project for the Negro pupils here has been in the making for several months.

Patrons of the school have requested the board to provide three additional rooms to house high school students from the 10th through the 12th grades. But the request could not be granted because the present law prohibits expenditure of capital outlay funds for high schools where the enrollment is small.

There are about 50 Negro students in Avon Park who are in the high school grades. They and Lake Placid Negroes are transported to the E. O. Douglas School in Sebring for their high school education.

A recent survey team approved grades from 1 to 8 for the Hopewell School, but the County School Board has gone beyond the recommendation by having 9th graders taught at Hopewell.

The Highlands Board also approved the request from the Board of Public Instruction of Hardee County for permission to continue through the 1958-59 school term for their Negro high school students to attend the E. O. Douglas School.

Bids were received from those desiring to furnish milk for the schools during the coming year. The bid was granted to the lowest Dairy at 6.9 cents per one-half pint of milk, other bids were Hood's Dairy 8.9 cents; Borden's Dairy 7 cents; Foremost 7 cents.

The bid for centipede grass for the E. O. Douglas School play ground area was awarded to the Sebring Sod Co.

Avon Park Included In Florida-Wide Premiere Of "Everglades" Picture

"Wind Across the Everglades", starring Burl Ives, Christopher Plummer and Gypsy Rose Lee in a Warner Bros. motion picture release filmed in Warner Color entirely on location within a hundred miles of Avon Park, will open its local engagement at the Hilans Theatre Sunday, August 24, as an important part of the Florida-wide Premiere showing.

The screen drama was written by Budd Schulberg, noted author whose home is in Sarasota. It recounts an important era in the development of the South with emphasis on the settlement of Florida around the turn of the century, a rough-hewn history of our own locality and south into the mysterious Everglades country.

The steller supporting cast of "Wind Across the Everglades" includes ex-heavyweight contender Tony Galento, top-money jockey Sammy Boyd, world-famed clown Emmett Kelly and Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist MacKinlay Kantor. The picture is said to be one of extremely outstanding entertainment quality and its engagement at the Hilans will be keenly observed for patronage support by other motion picture producers desiring the ideal releasing point for similar releasing plans in the future.

One Woman's Warning

"While I was in the acute stage of polio, I vowed that if I lived I would write down my experiences with this terrible disease. Before the Salk vaccine there would have been no purpose in sharing my suffering with others. But now it should serve as a warning."

This is how Elisabeth Anderson, 37, a New Jersey housewife and mother of a two-year-old daughter, begins her account of her heartbreaking struggle with polio.

Stricken just before Thanksgiving in 1955, Mrs. Anderson endured weeks of "terrifying panic." Her story, printed in the monthly News of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, continues: "I had hallucinations that I was riding a train upside down. Ten days after I went in the iron lung I felt sure the end was near. That night it seemed my face was turning to cement. I spent the next several hours moving my jaws and face and wiggling my tongue. After that my arms and legs became paralyzed. . . .

"Today I have one-third of my normal breathing capacity and use a rocking bed at night. I can move my feet around and stand without braces. My left arm I cannot use at all, but I can use my right arm from the elbow down. None of my fingers bend, but I manage to turn pages with my right hand.

"Not long ago a man said to me: 'Don't you hate the world because this has happened to you?' I admit that I've shed many bitter tears. Sometimes I feel like a spectator sitting on the side lines watching the game of life, but I still find it a fascinating game.

"It is inconceivable to me that people neglect their polio shots. Even after reading my experience I'm afraid some of them will. I know—I didn't think polio could happen to me. But it did!"

Calls For Aspirin

The new and higher mail charges are in effect. To most individuals they won't amount to a great deal—just an extra penny for a stamp now and then.

But to certain kinds of enterprise the cost will be heavy. For instance, as Changing Times, the Kiplinger magazine, puts it: ". . . many a publisher will shortly be calling for more aspirin when he starts calculating his postal bills." One very large magazine operator expects its annual postage budget to increase by $1,250,000. In many instances, higher subscription rates will go into effect. One way or another the increased postage costs will be passed on to the consumer—as all other overhead costs are and must be passed.

The reason for these and the other increases in postal rates is simple enough. The postoffice deficit has been in the neighborhood of $700 million a year. Postal employes have been given a deserved wage increase. Thus, something definite had to be done to increase postoffice revenues, lest the deficit approach or pass the billion-dollar point.

Unfortunately, however, the increases are confined to three mail categories—first, second and third. This means that a category which has made large contributions to the deficit over the years is still to be operated on a taxpayer-subsidized basis. That category is fourth-class mail, or parcel post. And, to make a bad matter worse, parcel post competes directly with taxpaying private parcel carriers on the national, regional and local levels of business.

In sum, the next needed step is a revised schedule of parcel post charges, which will honestly meet both the direct and indirect costs of providing the service.

A Name Is Shortened

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis is shortening its name. It will be known henceforth as the National Foundation. And back of this simple change lies a story of vast potential significance.

The Foundation will carry on its winning fight against polio—a fight whose decisive weapon is the miraculous Salk vaccine. At the same time, it will seek to open new frontiers of knowledge in the fields of arthritis and birth defects (congenital malformations). The need for this is enormous. At least 11 million people suffer from arthritis and rheumatism, and 250,000 children are born with significant birth defects each year, excluding birth injuries.

In the words of Basil O'Connor, the Foundation's president, "The heart of the new program is research. Research will be expanded from where it is now, without the restriction of being confined in the future to a single disease. Professional education also will be expanded to cover training of personnel both for research and patient care in all areas of activity. . . .

"As an organized force for medical research, patient care and professional education, we have chosen the broadest program of all."

At the beginning, due to the enormity of the program, patient care must be limited. It will be offered only to arthritis patients and children suffering from malformations of the central nervous system through age 18, in both instances. Later, it is hoped, it will be possible to do still more. The key, of course, will be the measure of public support the Foundation receives. Its work will continue to be financed through the traditonal March of Dimes drive. The American people should contribute even more generously than they have in the past.

Killer Of Children

Burns cause more injury and death among children than any other agent. Every parent should know how to identify and treat them.

This point is stressed by Today's Health, an American Medical Association publication. It then provides some simple but vital rules:

Youngsters will grasp everything within reach, so never allow conditions to exist which can lead to accidents. Keep matches from children; keep pots from the edge of the stove, and keep youngsters from fires.

Determine quickly the degree of burn. In a first degree burn the skin is red; in second degree, the skin is blistered; in third degree the skin is charred.

For first or simple second degree burns, coat affected area with antiseptic ointment or olive or baby oil. This relieves pain and prevents skin from cracking and drying out.

City To Receive $3,055 From Cigarette Tax

The City of Avon Park will receive $3,055.60 as is share of the Cigarette tax collected by the State of Florida during June.

H. G. Cochran, Jr., Director of the State Beverage Department which collects the tax announced that $2,347,434.91 was available for distribution and of this amount $742,964.52 will go to the General Revenue Fund.

The remainder of $1,604,470.39 will be distributed to incorporated municipalities.

Impressive Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Grainger and Billy Cooper

MR. AND MRS. BILLY FRANK COOPER

Miss Jo Ann Grainger became the bride of Billy Frank Cooper in a candelight ceremony before an altar banked with palms and baskets of white gladioli in the Florida Avenue Baptist Church at 8 o'clock on Saturday, August 9.

The Rev. J. M. Gilbreath officiated at the double ring ceremony and Miss Tura Ann DeLaney presented a program of nuptial music on the piano. Mrs. James Ehler sang "Because" and "Oh Promise Me" before the ceremony. Jerry Casey and Sam Elder lighted the candelabra in the beautifully decorated church.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, James A. Crawford, wore a traditional floor length bridal gown of white nylon net with lace and pearl inserts at the v-neckline. The bodice featured a pointed waistline with short sleeves and the full skirt had tiers of net and lace on each side. Her veil fell from a lace cap and she carried a white Bible topped with an orchid and streamers of tube roses.

Miss Betty Clair Foster, maid of honor, wore a yellow silk over taffeta ballerina gown and carried a bouquet of yellow roses. Her headpiece was of yellow nylon net in a wide-brimmer halo effect.

Robert Cooper served his brother as best man.

Mrs. Grainger, mother of the lovely bride, wore a sheath dress of light blue with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. Mrs. C. W. Campbell, mother of the bridegroom, chose a navy blue orlon dress with white accessories and white carnations corsage also.

Surprised Lady...

A housewife-motorist recently paid her first visit to a Phillips 66 Station, and reported as follows . . .

"All I expected from my Phillips 66 Dealer was ten gallons of gasoline and maybe the windshield wiped. But the first thing I knew they had cleaned the windows all around . . .

"Was I surprised when the attendant suggested he check the tires, including the spare! Then the battery and radiator. I figured he must have me mixed up with someone important. Wife of the mayor, maybe?

"You could have knocked me over with a feather when he started brushing out inside the car. 'You do this for everybody?' I asked. That's what he said . . . everybody!

"About the gasoline . . . I got that, too. And that Phillips 66 Flite-Fuel makes my car run swell!"

Miss Basemore Weds Richard Backus In Candlelight Ceremony August 9

MRS. RICHARD BENJAMIN BACKUS

In an impressive candlelight ceremony marked by beauty and dignity, Miss Patricia Ellen Basemore, daughter of Mrs. Vicie B. Lamb, became the bride of Richard Benjamin Backus, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Backus of Frostproof, at eight o'clock Saturday evening, August 9, at the First Methodist Church in Avon Park.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. E. Myer of Cross City, and the Rev. E. L. Dinkins of Frostproof.

Palms in the shape of fans formed a background for potted palms and baskets of gladioli and pompons. Tall tapers were lighted before the ceremony in the rear of the church. Eight branched candelabras behind the altar and on either side of the altar cast a soft illumination over the wedding party as the couple exchanged their wedding vows.

An interlude of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Edna Jackson, organist and Mr. Ted Hall of Frostproof, vocalist. Organ numbers were "At Dawning", "Oh Promise Me", and "Indian Love Call." Mr. Hall's selections were "Because" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told", the latter being sung at the wedding of the groom's parents 25 years ago, Mrs. Grady Wilson, sister of the bride, sang "The Wedding Prayer" as the couple knelt after their vows.

The traditional wedding marches were used, and the bridal party entered the church down white carpeted isles, with the family pews designated by white satin bows entwined with lilies of the valley.

The tapers were lighted by Mr. John Earl Barberee and Mr. Ronnie Johnston of Frostproof.

The bride, given in marriage by her maternal grandfather, J. J. Still, was radiantly lovely in her bridal gown of imported Alencon lace over whisper taffeta. The fitted bodice of Alecon lace was encrusted with medallions of sequins. The very bouffant skirt of poie de soie over taffeta featured side medallions of Alecon lace with side pleats of tissue taffeta ending in a pleated pauf flowing into a chapel train. Her wrist length veil of silk illusion fell from a jeweled crown of seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white satin Bible surmounted with tuberoses centered with a white orchid.

Miss Basemore observed a tradition by carrying the same white Bible that was carried in the weddings of her sisters. She wore a blue satin garter encrusted with seed pearls, a gift of the groom's sister.

Miss Patricia Strassberger attended as maid of honor. Miss Sandra Kelsey of Avon Park and Miss Karen Backus, sister of the groom, were bridesmaids. Bridesmatrons were the bride's sisters, Mrs. Ned Cox, Mrs. Grady Wilson, and Mrs. Gordon Tyre.

The three sisters were gowned in radiant blue taffeta and white tulle. The bouffant skirts featured side paufs of taffeta over alternating layers of white and blue tulle. They wore matching hats in the shape of a star and carried star shaped bouquets of yellow pompons. The other attendants wore identical gowns of sunflower yellow and carried blue pompons.

The winsome flower girl, Miss Kathy Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Payne of Frostproof, wearing a radiant blue taffeta gown identical to the brides' attendants, scattered rose petals in the pathway of the bride from a basket entwined with yellow and blue ribbons.

Mrs. Lamb, mother of the bride, chose a pink lace over satin gown with a scoop neckline, fitted bodice, and a straight front skirt with a flowing back panel. She wore white accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom was attired in a princess style gown of blue and white embroidered nylon over white taffeta. A floor length bow of blue taffeta flowed gracefully down the back. She wore white accessories and a purple orchid corsage.

The groom was attended by his father as best man. Ushers-groomsmen were Robert Murray, Wayne Langford, Ned Cox, Grady Wilson, and Gordon Tyre of Frostproof.

Mrs. Lamb entertained at a wedding reception in the church social hall immediately after the ceremony. A bridal note of white and green prevailed in the decorations. The bride's table was overlaid with a linen cutwork cloth and centered with a four tiered wedding cake decorated with white wedding bells and swans, and surmounted with a minature bride and groom under a wedding bell.

Miss Mary Ann Nader of Avon Park was in charge of the Bride's Book. Mrs. J. Paxton Hill of Avon Park was hostess of the receiving line, and Mrs. W. Arthur Davis of Frostproof presided at the cake table. Mrs. W. P. O'steen and Mrs. George Kelsey served at the punch table. Others assisting in the hospitalities were Mrs. I. H. Ford, Mrs. T. H. Maxwell, Mrs. T. O. Martin, Misses Peggy Bussard, Eve Campbell, Patricia Tondee, Sallie Harrison, Martha O'Steen, and Claire Maxwell, all of Avon Park.

The couple left, during the evening, for a wedding trip on the east coast. The bride was traveling in a white sheath of embroidered silk with a matching sleeveless duster of red silk. She wore white accessories and a white orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Out of town friends and relatives attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Moore, Mrs. W. J. Grantham, Mrs. Ralph Miller, Mrs. Vallie Backus, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Duncan of Tampa; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Grantham, Jr. of Gainesville; Mr. and Mrs. Ray Joyner and Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Merritt, Jr. of Winter Haven; Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Riley and Sarah of Wauchula; Mr. and Mrs. Tom Backus of Tallahassee; and Blair Culpepper, Douglas Hall, Walker Batts, Jack Lambertson, Reggie Kurfiss, John Stein, fraternity brothers of the groom from Gainesville.

After September the first, the couple will be at home at 824 East University Avenue in Gainesville, Florida. Mr. Backus will complete his senior year at the University of Florida, majoring in Entomology.

Walker Memorial Church News

The Walker Memorial Seventh-day Adventist elementary school in Highland Lakes opens September 2, with an expected enrollment of 30 pupils according to Pastor W. C. Arnold, Chairman of the school board. Staff members are Mr. W. A. Connel, from Knoxville, Tenn., new principal of the school, who will also teach grades 7 through 10, and Miss Ruth Kummer, Maitland, Florida, who taught here last year, and will resume her teaching duties this year with grades 1 through 6.

The school's curriculum will match that of the public schools but with the addition of courses of religious instruction. In addition, a spiritual slant is given other subjects where that is appropriate. Extra curricular instruction is also available through the school's Pathfinder organization, in which youngsters may study crafts and nature subjects.

The school here is one of a chain of some 5,000 educational units operated by Seventh-day Adventists around the world, from simple mission schools to complex college organizations such as the College of Medical Evangelists, medical education center in Los Angeles California.

Body Contour Plays A Great Role In Cassinis Fashion Philosophy

By Grace McElligott,
Fashion Editor,
The All Florida Magazine

Oleg Cassini, long the pet of the press women because of talent, charm and sassy wit is missing today. In his place was a tape recorded message made prior to his departure for Europe. Among the things Cassini said was, "The body contour plays a great role in my fashion philosophy"... and proceeded to go all out (as did his models) in an effort to expose as much of that body contour as the law would allow. Actually, we seriously doubt that some of his creations could get (movie censor) Johnson office approval. Camel, gold, olive greens were stand out colors — and of course the inevitable black sheer or lace over nude or pink toned silk. Not too much of the flirty flounce in this collection.

Capezio offered lots of shoe excitement. Now that most of the women have accepted the pointed toe — we're being introduced to the blunt-toed tapered look — appearing mosty in shell flats and T-straps. Another eye-opener was a rain resistant boot of helanca stretch knit from knee to ankle where it was joined by patent pump.

Boots were prevalent — Robin Hood style for country wear and copies of "turn of the century" boot for city wear.

Ann Fogarty offers this season a Orbit sheath in her gold key collection, as well as the camise - which is by far the newer look. It's a high fitted bodice often shirred all around on a child-like yoke. A graceful black velvet shirtwaist gained a round of applause. Also offered was a Tubular jersey, straight from hem to neck - where it was joined to a turtle neck collor bearing the name Bicycle Knit. This was destined for the college campus as was a Pony Dress of cut velvet - which bore deliberate resemblance to Tonto's Pinto.

But if all this has you tearing your hair — don't. The Tousseled look is out.

Get Together Held Aug. 6 For Bride - Elect

One of the many courtesies shown Miss Pat Basemore, bride-elect, was the informal "get together" given by Mrs. J. Paxton Hill, Wednesday afternoon, August 6.

The Hill home was decorated with snapshots and pictures of Pat which showed her progress from a very small child until her graduation from high school. The display brought laughter and memories to the invited guests.

A book for the guest to record special memories was given to the honoree.

Cokes and snacks spiced the choice bits of memories that were enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Hill and Mr. Ellis Watson served as sponsors for the 1957 Senior Class of the Avon Park High School; Pat was the class president. The guest list was chosen from Pat's classmates, school mates and close friends.

Mrs. L. M. Greer, mother of Mrs. Hill, and Mrs. Ellis Watson assisted the hostess.

Mrs. Hill presented the honoree with a personal gift of lingerie.

"Unquestionably we are in a battle for survival. The stability of our government, its fiscal soundness and the strength of private enterprise will count most in establishing Democracy as the best way of life"—Senator Holland.

Spessard Holland is a man who believes that the American way of life MUST be preserved. A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By JAMES E. HESS

"What's it to me if the State Prison is a little overcrowded? It's not any of my concern; why should I care about what happens to a bunch of convicts anyway?"

The above is a common reaction to a common situation. John Q. Public just doesn't care about those "bunch of convicts." You better start caring John, and not next year either, but right now! Why? The true national penal picture is not familiar to most. It is a situation that deserves consideration simply for the money it takes for institution operation if for no other reason. What it costs to run city, county, state and federal penal institutions may best be illustrated by a comment made by one of the boys the other day: "If I had all the dough it took to run all the joints in this country for one year, I'd have enough loot to go out and whip the Rooskies in thirty days." A little exagerated perhaps, but not far from the truth.

The idea for this article came one afternoon while going through the register of State and National Correctional Institutions of the United States of America, compiled by the American Correctional Association. Out of sheer curiosity more than anything else, this writer decided to count just how many institutions, camps, etc., there were within the continental limits of the U.S. When that figure was attained it seemed only natural to do a little more research and add up the average populations of those institutions. An afterthought resulted in still further collecting of statistics from the current World Almanac.

Throughout the forty nine states there are 404 state operated penal institutions, and likewise the country sustains 33 federal institutions. These figures do not include city and county jails. The average population for these 437 institutions during 1956, totaled 217,357 men, women, and children—more than a quarter million human beings.

Ignoring the money angle for a moment lets look at another side of the situation. Anytime an individual is incarcerated the imprisoned certainly isn't the only one involved. He or she will have a husband, wife, parents, brother, sisters, or children who are directly concerned. You can figure that there are at least a total of three persons directly intangled in the web of circumstances that places an individual in prison. In 1956 there were over three quarters of a million people directly concerned with penal picture. To go a step further, we could mention the people responsible for imprisoning a felon and those employed at maintaining his custody and welfare during incarceration. Police officers, city jailers, county sheriffs, attorneys, court officials, institutions' personnel, state and federal penal officials—the totals would be staggering.

An estimate of the cost for operating and maintaining these institutions reaches astronomical proportions and would be enough to make the average thrifty taxpayer lurch for the smelling salts. It is not possible to state the exact average figure for supporting an individual during his period of incarceration, but a fairly decent estimate can be offered. Speaking conservatively, it costs approximately $2.50 a day per man for his food, clothing, and medical attention. Add it up Mister! At a cost of $912.50 per year, the tax payer foots a bill of almost 200 million dollars annually for the support of the nation's penal populations.

In that same year, 1956, there were 2,563,150 major crimes committed in this country. It is quite reasonable to assume that the populations will increase rather than decrease for 1957 and '58. In order to accomodate the influx of new prisoners, new institutions are being built, more personnel are being hired—the story goes on and on. A complete narrative and statistical analysis would fill many pages.

It is our hope that facts as presented above will make an impression upon you, the readers. We want you to ask "What can I do about it?" For several weeks it has been this writer's purpose to try and sell you the idea of rehabilitating the convicted felon rather than to merely mete out punishment. Avon Park Prison has been described as the type institution that allows a man to return to community life with a revised set of values and a determination to make something of himself other than another number in another "joint." If the program proves successful here, why not on a national scale? Elimination of the "repeaters" will serve to eventually cut the penal populations of this country to the quick.

YOUR support of APP and institutions of a similar nature will help bring about such an elimination. The people of this country are the deciding factor in adopting or rejecting such programs. If you believe in us, your advocacy will serve to insure the needed advancements in penology.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

The Fifth Principle: The Work Equation and the Human Equation Should Be Balanced.

Knowledge and skill are not enough; there are also temperament and health. Our civil defense projects have the best probability of smooth operation if the plans for work to be done take account of the human equation . In an emergency people often transcend themselves, but wise plans cannot be built on this assumption.

Let us look at typical cases. Here is a fully trained, conscientious, dedicated and happy nurse busy in her hard work. She expects to spend the rest of her life nursing, but she does not work in the operating theatre because she is inclined to faint at the sight of blood. This example is a common one and is not regarded by nurses as something to be ashamed of. There is ample and important work for this nurse to do, and she will tell the civil defense director of her limitation in order to facilitate his planning for her share of emergency work. Mature people do not shrink from their own limitations. And mature leaders, of whom we need many in civil defense, are able to make it clear to those they interview that no shame attaches to being human. Our nurse is not any different from persons who suffer from hay fever under certain conditions. We limit the work of such persons to conditions not likely to aggravate their complaint.

One skilled ham radio operator in our community is a 15-year-old boy. He is used to working alone, sitting up late and talking to people in distant parts of the world, But he is not used to sitting along with flood waters whirling by or nearby buildings collapsing in flames. Moreover, he is used to holding spontaneous conversations with friends, not to reading explicit instructions accurately. This boy should not be removed from his proper occupation of emergency radio operator, but he should receive training in reading, he should himself train some older and mature person in the operation of his set, and he should be taught to work with a small team of calm and competent people who would share his post in the event of disaster.

Planning For Evacuees:

Mrs. Jones has a large house and is well known for the way she took in neighbors after the hurricane flattened a corner of our town. There were people sleeping on the davenports and even on the floors, but it did not even seem to worry her. Mrs. Jones is a bit shy of city folk. She thinks they might be too sophisticated and critical—everybody knows everybody in our small town. But the highway running past her house eventually leads to the best residential area of the cit y60 miles away, and our town is planning with that city to serve as an evacuation area if necessary. Mrs. Smith, who also has a big house and is very kind, is the widow of a congressman and inclined still to argue with persons from the other party. Mrs. Brown is an excellent citizen but is inclined to be anti-labor. Mrs. Black is very worried about her Dresden china when children are in the house. In an emergency each of these houses can and must be filled. An intelligent community will send the right sort of people to the right house, especially in the event of war, for bomb damage may require the housing of evacuees.

We have a neighbor who always spends the night here when her husband is away; she simply cannot bear to be alone. Another neighbor gets very excited if we have a temporary power failure; in fact, even a fuse blowing will upset her for half an hour. Nothing seems to faze the couple opposite; they get right out on the porch to watch the worst thunderstorm, even seem to enjoy it. There's the man at the end of the street who seems to know everything and his ideas are always worth listening to, but you cannot persuade him to take any responsibility in the neighborhood. Thus it goes, the differing temperaments in any group of people. Normal people will generally do better the sort of work that does not irritate them. Our fifth principle is: The work equation and the human equation should be balanced.

By DON MEIKLEJOHN

As the political campaigning gets down to the traditional "mudslinging stage", the need for a uniform yardstick to measure the candidates' standing becomes obvious.

Such a yardstick would have many advantages.

It would cut campaign costs and put political campaigning on a scientific basis.

In addition, it would let the candidates conduct their campaigns without getting out of the air conditioned comfort of their headquarters, and the voters would have a quick way to rate the candidates without having to wade through thousands of words of gobbledegook or miss their favorite TV shows.

This political batting average would give a capsule review of the strong and weak points of each candidate.

It should include five basic points.

1. Name calling ability; 2. hand shaking ability; 3. baby kissing ability; 4. ability to shout over the boos of a crowd; and 5. tomato-dodging ability.

The total of all these abilities would determine the VGR (vote getting rating) of each candidate.

The name calling ability would be established during the campaign. Each candidate would have a staff of naming calling experts, and trainers to increase proficiency in the other campaign arts.

As a candidate thinks up a name to call his opponent, it would be sent to a group of impartial judges—representing all important factions. This commission would have a giant electrical brain, and each name would be given an appropriate rating.

Instead of running all over the state or county calling names, the politician could sit at home and accomplish the same purpose.

Names would be scientifically rated. For example, calling an opponent a "pussyfoot" would be worth 75 points, but by adding a few adjectives it could be increased in worth.

A "sneaky pussyfooter" would be worth 85 points, and a "Sneaky Pussyfooting Rip Van Winkle" would be worth 100 points.

Calling a opponent an "incurable optimist" would get a 75 point rating. By making it a "gullible and incurable optimist" the rating would go to 85. A "gullible Humpty Dumpty optimist" would get a 100 rating.

By camparing these rating, the candidates and the voters could tell how the name calling end of the campaign is coming along.

A candidate might decide to get a low name calling rating to appeal to the more conservative voter—or he could try for a high name calling rating to win over the less conservative voter.

The other phases of the campaign could be handed in a series of weekly contests.

In actual competition, the candidates would show how many babies they could kiss; how many hand they could shake; how well they could dodge tomatoes, and how well they can shout over the boos of a crowd.

Each contest would be rated on the basis of 100 points. A candidate who kissed 100 babies in an hour would get 100 points, while his opponent who kissed 75 would get 75 points.

Of course, the judges would also have to judge how well each candidate fared in kissing the babies. One with a high output that left all the babies crying would get docked a point for each crying baby.

A weekly bulleting on the standings of each candidate would be issued, and at the end of the campaign a composite standing sheet would be tabulated.

The candidate with the highest overall total wouldn't necessarily win.

One voter might like a candidate with a low "name calling rating" and a high "tomato dodging ability."

Another might like a candidate that's high on "baby kissing" and low on "tomato dodging".

It would be up to each candidate and his brain trust to figure out the trent, and hope for the best.

The Winter Haven Lions Club presented a program with slide projector demonstration of their nationally famous "Winter Haven Story" at the regular luncheon meeting of the Avon Park Rotary club on Wednesday, August 6, at the Jacaranda Hotel.

The "Winter Haven Story" is a long range visual research program in the Winter Haven School System sponsored by the Winter Haven Lions Club. Dr. Charles W. From The Office Of Congressman Jim Haley

Washington, D. C.—The Secretary of Defense has requested all State and Territorial Governors to announce an "Armed Forces Voters Week" from September 15th to 22nd of this year. This campaign is designed to stimulate interest among the military personnel and their families serving overseas in the elections and get them to vote. The campaign is being conducted pursuant to the Federal Voting Assistance Program established by Act of Congress, Public Law 296, 84th Congress. It is estimated that there are 2,610,000 eligible persons covered by this program. Consequently, those who are charged with the responsibility of administering this program are endeavoring to stimulate as much interest as possible.

The Florida Society in Washington has done its part in suggesting to the Members of Congress that it is time to go home. The Society, composed of Florida residents temporarily residing in the Nation's Capitol, held its annual adjournment party last Friday night in the Senate Caucus Room. At the party, it was generally agreed that Congress should follow the lead of the Society and also plan an adjournmen soon so that the Floridians could go home. Mrs. L. F. Sikes, wife of Florida's Third District Congressman Bob Sikes, is the very capable President of the Florida Society.

Inasmuch as the Congress in all probability will adjourn in the near future, this will conclude my weekly newsletter for this session. I am presently compiling material for my annual End of the Session Report to the people of the Seventh District, which I hope to sumbit soon after adjournment. In general, this has been a hard working Congress. A great amount of work has been accomplished. However, entirely too much money has been appropriated in the current session, and I am of the opinion that the longer the Congress continues in session, the more money it will cost the American taxpayer in added appropriations. Most of the Members are anxious to adjourn but the leadership has not been receptive to the idea of setting a definite adjournment date.

2 Weeks Peace Officers' Training School Opens Monday In Sebring

A two weeks Peace Officers' Training school will open in Highlands County at Sebring on Monday, August 18th, beginning at 1:00 p. m., according to an announcement made by Fred Wild, Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Highlands County Sheriff, Broward Coker. The school is conducted under the Peace Officers' Training Program of the State Department of Education and is sponsored by the Florida Peace Officers' Association in an effort to bring the latest training methods to local enforcement agencies. Duplicate classes will be held daily, starting at 1:00 p. m. and at 6:00 p. m., each class period being four hours in length and daytime courses will be repeated at night, thus making it possible for both day and night shifts to obtain the entire training by attending one four hour period daily. All classes will be held in the new County Jail building. Adam C. Hostutler, a veteran Peace Officer with many years of training experience and a member of the regular teaching staff of the Peace Officers' Training Program, will be the instructor. Courses covered in this session will include Applied Police Psychology, Report Writing and Accident Investigation. These schools have been given for a two week period annually, and many of the Peace Officers in this area have already earned their 200 hour Diplomas. However, the training is continuing and many of them are now working toward their 500 hour Diplomas which is considered the complete course in Basic Law Enforcement.

Dr. Walter Williams, Director of the Division of Vocational and Adult Education, Thurman J. Bailey, State Supervisor of the Trade and Industrial Education Secion, and Willard J. Carlson, State Coordinator of Peace Officers' Training, all of the State Department of Education, will cooperate with local school and enforcement officials in presenting the school.

Sheriff Coker urges all enforcement agencies in this area to avail themselves of this course, and stated that anyone wishing information about the school could contact his office. First enrollment for afternoon classes will be Monday at 1:00 p. m. and at 6:00 p. m. for the night classes.

Plan To Attend Fourth Annual Frostproof Day

Plans are being completed to welcome hundreds of Central Florida merrymakers to Frostproof on Labor Day. Committees are busy winding up the details for the Fourth Annual Frostproof Day, which has become an outstanding attraction in the central part of the state on Labor Day.

Twenty beauties of this pretty little town will star in the parade which opens the day's festivities at 1:00 p.m. Over twenty elaborate floats have been entered in the parade, each one a foil for a particular candidate in the Beauty Contest.

Preliminaries of the contest will be held during a lull in the boat races, another popular feature of the celebration. Boats of all classes and sizes will race for golden trophies on picturesque Lake Clinch, situated within the city limits.

Some fine home cooking will mark the fish-fry and dinner, which will be served on the grounds of the Tourists Club, which lies on the shores of Lake Reedy just across town.

Rumor has it that a male fashion show, which provided so much hilarity in a near-by town, will be held shortly after the dinner.

Dancing under the stars in the City Park from 8:00 to 7 will wind up the festive day. During the dance, finalists in the Beauty Contest will appear, and Miss Frostproof II will be named at that time. Her prize will be a trip to glamorous Havana, Cuba.

There'll be fun for all the family in Frostproof on Labor Day .. y'all come!

Radio Station WAVP Sold

The Avon Park Radio Station WAVP with Studios and Offices in the Jacaranda Hotel changed ownership last Wednesday. The sale was made three months ago to Albert B. Gale and Mrs. Ida E. Gale of Tampa, Fla. However, final action by the Federal Communication Commission was not completed until last week when the License Transfer was approved.

Mr. Gale has completely revamped the Office and Studios by redecoration and refurnishing as well as adding new equipment. Starting yesterday a new program format went into effect featuring Local and Regional News programs three times daily. There are many other features to be heard every day vastly new and different for the radio listener.

During the past few years Mr. Gale was associated with WKXY in Sarasota and WDAE in Tampa. And for the past 26 years Mr. Gale has been in the Radio business as owner, manager, and salesman with stations in the midwest and south.

A native of Florida with knowledge of this market the new owner feels that Avon Park has a good potential for growth in business and population. This was the reason he purchased the station and is dedicating it to full community service.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale are presently living at 301 Camphor St. in Avon Park. Their one son Donald is in the USAF, stationed at Hunter Air Force Base in Ga.

Signs of fall: Merchants are clearing out summer-wear at give-away prices to make room for the new fall things . . . back-to-school items are being advertised . . . the majorettes are practicing diligently . . . Specially made red and white Red Devil notebook covers have arrived and are on sale here at the Sun . . . Vacationists are returning with glowing accounts of places, happenings and, of course, that age-old subject, the weather encountered. So welcome the fall . . . and what are you wearing Halloween?

City workers have been busy for the past week mowing the airport grass, which incidently, was up to here. It looks real tidy now and much safer for any aircraft which should happen to stray from the runway . . . We have daily traffic at our airport which is large enough to accommodate fair sized planes. At least the mowers realize it covers quite a few acres, as well as the hotel guests who fly their private planes here in the winter.

Pedestrians on the Mall were amus..l and delighted to see a gleeful group of passengers in a tiny jeep station wagon, which consisted of a pigmy-sized pony and several jovial juveniles. As the jeep rounded corners, the adult driver used one arm to keep the pony from leaning too far to starboard.

The Jack Hutchinsons just back from a city vacation welcomed the sight of two newspaper people, paper in hand, intent on the business of publication, smack-dab in the middle of main street, and unaware of the oncoming traffic. Which only goes to prove that motorists in our town are very courteous and warrant the trust not ventured in the heavy traffic of, let's say, New York's 42nd St.

Tickets for "Sugar and Spice" are now on sale and can be purchased from Mrs. Jim Turnbull or any member of the Junior Woman's Club. Wins 2nd Place In Shulton's National Display Contest:

Vernon H. Tyson, manager of the Touchton Drug, was presented a check for $500 as the National second place winner in the third annual contest sponsored by the Shulton Inc., makers of the famous Old Spice line. James R. Freel, Shulton Sales representative for Florida made the presentation at the local Touchton Store Friday morning. Shown during the presentation are, left to right, Mrs. Mildred Ford, office manager at Touchton's; James Freel, Vernon Tyson and Miss Mary Chandler, Cosmetic Supervisor.

Four thousand displays were submitted in the annual Father's Day Contest by department stores, men's stores, and drug stores throughout the United States. The contest was divided into two groups for stores in communities of over 220,000 population and for those with under 220,000 residents. Touchton's won second prize in the latter group.

The display of the famous ship "Grand Turk" was constructed by Dick Reddick, who received half of the prize money for the artistic work he did on the display. The unique display also won for the local store $50 plus $5 for submitting a picture in the Touchton's inter-store contest. A picture of the winning display is printed on another page of today's Sun.

The Shulton Company was founded by the late William L. Shultz who started out as an interior decorator in Penna. at the time when everything was being created in the Early American pattern and design. Mr. Shultz first created Old Spice for ladies in 1939 and a few years later Old Spice for men was created and it has become the largest selling fragrances for men on the market today.

Each of the delicate fragrances created by the Shulton Company represent a portion of the United States. Old Spice was created for the settlers around Jamestown and the designs on the packages portray the ship "Grand Turk" which carried spices back and forth across the ocean.

For the ladies the Shulton Co. created Friendship Garden, a floral fragrance for the southern part of the United States. Dessert Flower, new and modern in both its package and fragrance, represents the new part of the United States, the West. A fragrance from the old world was introduced with a french touch in Escapade which was created by one of the leading perfume chemist in the world.

At the untimely death of William L. Shultz in 1950, who resided in West Palm Beach, the management of the firm fell to his son, George L. Shultz. Under his guidance the firm went from a nine million dollar business to a thirty-two million dollar a year business.

Local Artist To Have Paintings In Atlanta Show

Mrs. Maxine Fries of Maxine's Art Studio and Supply has been invited to enter several of her oil paintings in the 13th Southeastern Art Exhibit of Atlanta.

Mrs. Fries selected two of her paintings to enter in the exhibit, both have been on display in Touchton Drug Store for the residents to view. One was entitled "Majestic" and portrayed a mountain scene of New Mexico in vivid oils, the other was titled "Mystic Night" and was an oil portrait of Mrs. Grace Herring which Mrs. Fries did with a pallet knife. A picture of this painting was published in the Sun several months ago.

Paintings entered in the Exhibit in Atlanta will be on display for several weeks and the judging will be done after September 5.

Mrs. Fries has introduced a new medium of painting in Avon Park. The technique is her own original interpretation called reincarnating memories. She will listen to a mental picture of any scene and then draw a picture of this scene which may be kept forever.

Her first picture drawn in this manner has already been sold, it was an Alaska scene, and the purchaser was so pleased with the work she did that he has al-

When the Liggett Drug Company purchased the eleven drug stores from the Touchton Drug Company last week it brought to a close a 43 year old drug business in the Touchton family. Announcement of the sale for an undisclosed sum was made last Friday by Ira C. Kepford, president of the Liggett Drug Company.

The sale includes two stores in Tampa, one in Avon Park, Largo, Sarasota, Lakeland, Winter Haven, Sanford, Daytona Beach, Bradenton and one under construction in Orlando.

Walton and Ed Touchton and Herbert Todd, the principal Touchton officers, will remain active in the company. Walton Touchton will continue to make his home in Tampa but Ed Touchton and Herbert Todd will reside in Jacksonville.

According to information available there will be no change in the operation and management of the local store.

The history of Touchton's Drug in Avon Park dates back to 1917 when the late Dr. W. C. Touchton acquired an one-half interest in the Avon Park Drug Store with Dave Lander. A few years later Dr. Touchton purchased the full ownership of the store and changed the name to Touchton Drug Store.

The first Touchton Drug Store was located in only a small portion of the building which now houses the large self-service drug store.

During the next twenty years Dr. Touchton at one time or another, had drug stores in Sebring, Wauchula, Kissimmee, Fort Myers, DeLand, St. Augustine and Daytona Beach. Throughout the years Dr. Touchton sold some of these stores and began devoting more of his time and interest to his medical practice and to his holdings in citrus and cattle raising.

At the time of his death in 1954 Dr. Touchton still had four drug stores and his sons, Walton C., Jr. and Edward G., and his son-in-law, Herbert Todd, assumed the managementship of the Touchton Estate which included vast holdings in real estate, and the ranching business besides the four stores.

Shortly after Dr. Touchton's death the store in DeLand was sold, and they began building new self-service drug stores in a num-

The following Editorial written to the voters of Highlands County appeared in the Highlands County News on Thursday, August 7, 1958.

To Fair-Minded Voters

An Editorial

Fair-minded voters of the Tenth Judicial Circuit are going to be called upon in the coming primary to assert themselves and prevent an injustice to the people of Highlands and Hardee counties.

We refer to the election of a circuit judge. The law setting up the Tenth Circuit provides that "One of the circuit judges shall reside outside Polk County." Obviously, the meaning the Legislature intended to convey was that one of the judges should be a resident of one of the other two counties.

But as it is, a candidate from Polk county threatens to deprive the two smaller counties from having a resident judge. This, in face of the fact that the three other judges of the circuit live in Polk County.

This is how the votes are lined up:

The tenth circuit has some 68,000 voters. About 52,000, or over 75 per cent of them live in Polk County. Thte other 16,000 are divided: Highlands, 9,000; Hardee, about 7,000.

That three of the four judges are residents of Polk County is a fair division, percentagewise. But equally as fair, would be for the other judge to come from one of the other counties, as the law intended.

Here in Highlands County, we favor Frank E. Bryant, able Sebring lawyer, who possesses the qualifications necessary for a circuit judge. Bryant has honesty and integrity. He is studious and industrious, and possesses a sound legal background. For many years he practiced with one of Florida's most profound lawyers, Fairfax T. Haskins.

Sebring people think well of Frank Bryant, and will vote solidly to back him in his race for the office. But, as may be seen from the number of potential voters, Highlands County cannot do the job alone. Highlands and Hardee must center on the stronger candidate, and must have the help of fair-minded Polk County voters to elect a judge "from outside of Polk County."

On reading the statute in its entirety, it can be seen that the Legislature made a bad choice of words. It was intended that the fourth judge be a resident of one of the other two counties prior to his running for the office, or being appointed to it. If one interprets the law literally, Bryant could have opponents in this race from Miami, Jacksonville, Tallahassee, or anywhere else in the state.

Fair-minded voters of Polk County should follow the spirit of the law in this case because Bryant's Lakeland opponent is taking advantage of a loosely worded law, whereas if he were observing the spirit of the law he would be running against Judge Gunter Stephenson in Polk County, whose position would have been on the ballot if anyone had qualified against him.

Neither the Highlands County News or Sebring friends of Frank Bryant dislike the Lakeland candidate. If he were running in his own territory, he would be given courteous consideration. But under the circumstances, we feel Highlands and Hardee county voters—and fair-minded voters throughout the circuit—will want to do the right thing and give the Southern end of the district a resident judge.

That's not a lot to ask, when Polk has the other three.

Following is a copy of the answer to the above Editorial written to the Highlands County News by Clifton M. Kelly, Candidate for Circuit Judge Tenth Judicial Circuit.

TO: MR. W. M. HETHERINGTON, EDITOR
HIGHLANDS COUNTY NEWS
SEBRING, FLORIDA

Dear Sir:

In view of the fact you wrote an editorial in the Highlands County News on August 7, 1958, which to say the least was very unfair to my candidacy for Circuit Judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit, I am asking you to please publish my reply to your editorial in the next issue of your paper, which will be on the 21st day of August, 1958. I would fuether appreciate it if you would give my reply to your editorial the same front page coverage that you gave your editorial favoring my opponent from Highlands County.

Sir, you make an appeal to fair-minded voters in your editorial, but in doing so, did you give the citizens of Highlands County all the facts?

FIRST: You state "a candidate from Polk County threatens to deprive the two smaller counties from having a resident judge."

ANSWER: The laws of the State of Florida require one of the Circuit Judges of the Tenth Judicial Circuit to live outside of Polk County. How then could the eletcion of Clifton M. Kelly change the laws of the State of Florida? Furthermore, I have publicly announced I would establish my residence outside of Polk County, even though the law doesn't say which of the Circuit Judges of this circuit shall reside outside of Polk County.

SECOND: You state, "It was intended that the fourth judge be a resident of one of the other two counties (meaning Highlands or Hardee) prior to his running for the office, or being appointed to it, and you further state in effect that Clifton M. Kelly is taking advantage of a loosely worded law in order to qualify as a candidate for Circuit Judge.

ANSWER: Let's analyze these statements and see if in truth and fact your conclusions are correct. In 1953, the Florida State Legislature passed an Act requiring one of the Circuit Judges of the Tenth Judicial Circuit to reside outside of Polk County. Immediately following the passage of this act by the Florida Legislature, Judge William P. Allen was appointed Circuit Judge of the Tenth Judicial Circuit by the late Dan McCarty, then Governor of the State of Florida, and Judge Allen at that time was a resident of Bartow, Polk County, Florida. It is well to note that the Legislature has not changed or attempted to change this 1953 Law, which proves that the intent of the Legislative delegations from Highlands County and Hardee County, as well as Polk County, was simply that one of the circuit judges should reside out of Polk County, Florida, after being elected or appointed. Surely the Governor would have followed the spirit and intent of the law in connection with the appointment of Judge Allen, a resident of Polk County.

I would further like to call your attention to the fact that I am a candidate for the unexpired portion of Judge William P. Allen's six year term of office. You see, after Judge Allen's initial appointment in 1953, he came up for election in 1954 and at which time he did not have an opponent, therefore, he was elected for a six year term of office which began in January of 1955. When Judge Allen was appointed to the Second District Court of Appeals, Judge Kinsey was appointed to fill the vacancy created, and the appointment of Judge Kinsey was effective only until January of 1959. You referred in your editorial to the fourth circuit judgeship belonging to Highlands and Hardee County. It would appear to me it is hard to determine just which judgeship is the fourth, because Judge Gunter Stephenson holds the fourth judgeship that was created by an increase in the population of the three counties, and Judge Allen held the third one, and Judge Kinsey was appointed to take Judge Allen's place.

Now, for further reply to your editorial appealing to fair-minded voters to elect the Highlands County candidate, don't you think a more democratic approach to this election of a Circuit Judge of this Circuit would be to ask the people of all three counties to elect the very best qualified candidate? The people of Polk County have an equal interest with Highlands and Hardee County in the qualifications of a Circuit Judge who will hear and determine cases in Polk County just the same as in the other two counties.

I feel certain that you are in agreement with me with reference to the people having made available to them both sides of a matter.

I am,

Sincerely yours,
CLIFTON M. KELLY

Dogs, Cats And Gasoline

Most of us take industrial progress for granted little realizing how deeply it affects our lives and welfare. Because of this progress, all of us are enjoying better products, and getting more value for our money, than we did years ago.

Suppose, for example, that automobiles and gasoline, which are as much a part of the average U.S. home as the family cat or dog, had not undergone any improvement since 1930. In that case you would be paying about $140 more for your gasoline each year. This represents the cost of the 475 additional gallons which the average motorist would have to buy in order to drive the distance he now covers.

Because of their mutual progress since 1930, the oil and automotive industries have jointly made possible a 70% increase in the distance that a gallon of gasoline can move a ton of automobile. A recent comprehensive survey shows that, back in 1930, a gallon of gasoline could move a ton of the average car then on the road a distance of 25 miles. Today, however, thanks to high compression engines and high octane gasoline, a gallon of gasoline will move a ton of automobile a distance of 43 miles.

It cost the average motorist about 2/3 of a cent a mile, exclusive of taxes, to move a ton of automobile in 1930. By 1957, however, it cost him only about 1/2 a cent a mile on the same basis, or 18% less.

With the cost of living as a whole 73% higher than in 1930, great progress is shown by industries that make it possible to get 70% more useful work out of a gallon of gasoline at an 18% saving in unit cost. It is also a tribute to our system of free competitive enterprise because it illustrates one of the many ways in which we continually benefit from industrial progress.

Two Prominent Families Move To Jacksonville

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Todd and their children, Becky, Nancy, Sally, and Judy; and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Touchton and their children, Ed, Jr. and Patricia, will be leaving soon to make their homes in Jacksonville.

Both families have been residents of our community for many years and their many friends are sorry to see them leave Avon Park. Dr. W. C. Touchton, father of Mrs. Todd and Ed Touchton, came from Georgia in 1914 to settle in Avon Park. Mrs. W. C. Touchton also came from Georgia and their three children, Walton, Ed, and Betty were born here. Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Todd, parents of Herbert Todd, were married in Avon Park shortly after the first World War and their four sons were also born and reared here.

Mrs. Ed Touchton was the former Mary Jane Sunstrom of New York and she attended high school in Avon Park, also, while living with her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Betts.

Except for the years while Ed Touchton attended college at Emory University and the University of Tennessee, Mrs. Todd attended Florida State University. Herbert Todd attended the University of Florida and the University of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Touchton attended Brenau College, they have lived in Avon Park. Both families have been active in numerous civic organizations and their churches.

All the citizens of Avon Park wish them well in their new home and hope that they will return often for visits.

He will be present on Monday night to become acquainted with the Junior Club members and other interested friends at the "Kick-Off" gathering.

Mr. Chatham will be here for three weeks to inspire and direct the soon-to-be chosen, talented cast of "Sugar 'n Spice" which will be presented for your enjoyment and the benefit of the Ridge Area Day School for Retarded Children and the Avon Park Youth Center on the nights of Friday, Sept. 12 and Saturday, Sept. 13 in the Avon Park High School Auditorium. Farewell Party For Ed Touchton

Ed Touchton, Jr., who will be moving to Jacksonville very soon, was entertained with a party on Monday night, August 18, at the Florida Power Clubhouse.

About twenty-five of Ed's friends enjoyed an evening of dancing and games and wished him farewell. Miss Donna Sue Pounds and Milton Stokey were hostess and host for the gay party.

Later in the evening delicious refreshments of sandwiches, punch, and cookies were served the boys and girls. Assisting with the party were Mr. and Mrs. Milton Stokey, Mrs. D. J. Parker, Miss Delores Stokey, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hutchinson.

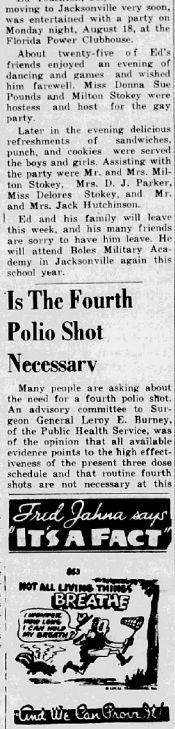
Ed and his family will leave this week, and his many friends are sorry to have him leave. He will attend Boles Military Academy in Jacksonville again this school year.

Is The Fourth Polio Shot Necessary

Many people are asking about the need for a fourth polio shot. An advisory committee to Surgeon General Leroy E. Burney, of the Public Health Service, was of the opinion that all available evidence points to the high effectiveness of the present three dose schedule and that routine fourth shots are not necessary at this time. It is left up to the individual physician as to whether he will give fourth shots.

Fourth shots would be in order if an outbreak of polio occurs in your area or if you are traveling to an area where the incidence of polio is high. There have been reports of substantial immunity for three to four years in about 90% of those receiving three injections. The conclusion to be drawn from this is that an initial immunization series of three shots or completion of your series is more important than fourth shots at the present time.

When a policy is to be put into effect for the giving of fourth polio shots, there will be adequate publicity through newspaper and radio announcements.



Get your series started today.

New Mercury Outboard Motor Announced

The Mercury Mark 58A for 1959, with greater performance yet quieter operation has been announced by the Kiekhaefer Corporation, Fond du Lac, Wisconsin. The new outboard motor, first of the 1959 models to be introduced in the industry, is in production and is now being shipped to dealers across the nation.

The company said that the Mark 58A was brought out in advance of the scheduled fall release date for the full Mercury line because of the unforeseen demand for last year's Mark 58 which exhausted dealer stocks three months earlier than anticipated. Other 1959 models will follow later.

The run on the Mark 58, company officials reported, made this 45 horsepower motor the most popular model in Mercury's 1958 line which ranged from the six horsepower fishing class to the six-cylinder 70-horsepower water skiing and cruising outboard.

Inventories of all Mercury models in factory and dealer hands are at the lowest level for this period since 1949, officials said. The company, they said, is at a 19-year peak in sales and employment.

The newly-styled 1959 Mark 58A is a four-cylinder-in-line outboard which will be rated in excess of 45 horsepower, representing a ratio of better than one horsepower per cubic inch of displacement. It will be available as manual or electric starting model with built-in generator. Long shafts for 20-inch transom boats will be optional. It has Mercury's propeller slip clutch which eliminates shear pins and drive pins.

The 1959 syling of the Mark 58A combines smart new lines with the traditional functional design which has identified Mercury for 10 years. It will be available in a deluxe or custom deluxe model. The latter will have a choice of colors and a chrome-trimmed cowl.

A sealed noise-deadening cowl which utilizes a rear air intake is used for the first time by Mercury for even greater quietness.

The Mark 58A sets a new standard in easy manual starting with the use of a new, large diameter starter cable sheave.

Mercury's Mark 58 was the industry's fuel economy leader in 1958, with its Merconomizer fuel linkage which allows up to 60 percent more miles per gallon on a family-sized outboard boat when throttled back to normal cruising speeds.

It has hydraulic Dyna-Shock Absorbers as optional equipment. These cushion the impact of collision with underwater or floating obstacles, permitting the motor to kick up without damage to motor or boat transom, and then bring the motor back to its normal operating position. A Safety Tilt switch cuts off the ignition temporarily during any kick up.

Fixed-jet carburetors, as used in most automobiles, are standard on the Mark 58A, eliminating the need for high-speed needle valve adjustment by owners.

The Mark 58A marks Mercury's eleventh year of production of four-cylinder-in-line engines, a field occupied exclusively by Mercury until last year when the first alternate firing four cylinder competitive outboard made its appearance, indicating the move toward multiply cylinder engines in all major brand lines.

The Mark 58A will be marketed without propeller so that dealers can tailor the motor to the buyer's boat from the selection of 11 propellers, ranging from 8" to 15" pitch, designed by Kiekhaefer for this specific engine.

The fabulous Mark 58A is on display at J. Paxton Hill's Mercury Outboard shop at 516 S. Highlands Ave. in Avon Park, as well as other 1959 models.

U. S. Soil Conservation Service

The Highlands Soil Conservation District is now advertising for bids on the Fisheating Creek Marsh Watershed project. The sealed bids will be opened at the Lake Placid City Hall September 4th according to Mr. Ivey E. Futch, Contracting Officer for the District.

The works of improvement consists of 870,000 cubic yards of channel excavation, over 13 miles distance from four miles south of state road 70 north to Hog Island. There will be one water control structure fifty feet wide requiring 72 cubic yards of concrete, 10,604 pounds of reinforcing steel and 23,760 pounds of steel sheet piling. The structure will be closed with flash boards in dry weather to prevent over-drainage.

It is estimated that actual construction will begin about Oct. 1st and will require approximately one year to complete. In addition the final survey is under way by the Soil Conservation Service engineers for the construction of two intercept canals that will leave the main channel and run in a northwesterly direction to a point close to the DeSoto County line. The cost of this project will be shared by the local people and the Federal Government under PL 566 (Small Watershed Act of 1954). Maintenance costs will be borne completely by the landowners, arranged through the Highlands County Commission.

The Fisheating Creek Marsh Watershed is the second in the Highlands District and Florida, to reach this stage of construction. The Lake Placid East Chain of Lakes Watershed being the first project, with construction about 50% completed.

As The Tourists See Us

SAYS A MAN FROM CONNECTICUT:
I'd like to be in the Nutmeg State
When the plow is in the furrow,
And the woodchuck, that old furry skate,
Is dozing by his burrow.
I'd like to be up there to hear the first spring peeper,
But I'd rather be in Florida where living costs are cheaper.

A LADY FROM NEW YORK STATE SPEAKS UP:
I'd love to be back there
When comes the blooming spring,
I'll love to be back there
Just to hear the robins sing.
I used to think their music the sweetest ever heard,
But I'd rather stay in Florida and hear the mockingbird.

PIPES UP A LAD FROM MARYLAND:
Oh, take me back to Baltimore
When the leaves are falling down,
And the gusty winds are blowing them
All about the town.
I'd like to be back there though skies be dull and gray,
But I'd rather live in Florida where the sun shines every day.

A MAN FROM THE MID-WEST REMARKS:
Now I was born in Michigan,
It is the grandest State.
Yes, it was there my life began,
But now let me relate
That when assessors came around to make the annual levy
I up and went, to Florida bent, where taxes aren't so heavy.

A MAINE FARMER BROKE IN TO SAY:
I want to be in the Pine Tree State
When summer days are there,
For there's music in the meadows
And beauty everywhere.
I'd like to be in Speedunk Town on some town meeting day,
But I'm better off in Florida, two thousand miles away.

THEN ALL TOGETHER IN CHORUS:
We love this green and pleasant land,
Its sunshine and its showers.
We love its beaches of white sand,
Its innumerable gay flowers.
We came by plane, by bus, by car, from States quite far away,
But now in Florida we are, God willing, here to stay.

Religious Emphasis Week Services To Be Held In Lake Wales Sept. 15-18

Plans for the fourth annual county-wide Religious Emphasis Week were announced today by the Kiwanis Club of Lake Wales.

As in the past the special services marking the week will be held in the 3500-seat open air amphitheatre used during the winter months by the Black Hills Passion Play.

Dr. Pierce Harris, pastor of the First Methodist Church, Atlanta, Georgia, will conduct four night services on the theme "God at the fireside—A Faith for the Whole Family".

Dates for the services are Sept. 15, 16, 17, 18 with the programs starting at 7:45 each evening.

Started by the Lake Wales Kiwanis Club as a non-sectarian project to unite the community in spiritual interests, the Religious Emphasis Week has grown each year and attracts visitors from throughout Central Florida.

Full cooperation is given by churches in the county and music for the programs is furnished by various singers from church choirs. Each year a nationally known minister is secured to conduct the four night series of talks.

This year's speaker, Dr. Harris, is one of the South's best known pastors and makes several hundred addresses each year to church conferences, missions and other public gatherings. He is now in his 18th year as pastor of the 5,000 member Atlanta church.

From The Office Of Senator George Smathers

Washington.—Senators Spessard Holland and George Smathers have co-sponsored an amendment which would permit persons drawing Social Security payments to earn $1800 yearly -- in addition to Federal benefits -- without being taxed. Present laws limit earnings to $1200.

The provisions, they said, would enable Social Security recipients to increase their annual income by $600 in a time of rising prices.

It would also overcome the objection voiced by elderly citizens who want to work in some part-time job -- to occupy their time and make use of their abilities -- but have been unable to do so because of the salary limit.

The Senators said that better utilization of the manpower of older citizens would be possible if the legislation is adopted.

The amendment now goes to the Senate Finance Committee, of which Senator Smathers is a member.

Top Drivers To Appear In Leesburg

The increased popularity of micro midget racing among fans and drivers alike is sure to be in evidence here when close to 100 drivers from throughout twelve southeastern states are on hand for the third annual running of the southeastern championships over the Labor Day weekend.

Sure to be welcomed back will be Nelson Reese of Montgomery, Alabama who powered his No. 2 Triumph Special to victory in the 100 lap feature as well as winning his heat race and turning in the best time trials of the three day event last year. Another top contender out of Alabama by way of Birmingham will be Charlie Reed.

From Charlotte, North Carolina will come three of the top drivers from the Tarheel state; Glenn Morton, Bill Harwell and Bill Gardner. Gardner, you will remember, was hot on the heels of the front running Reese last year until he was forced out of the race.

Another top notch driver sure to put in an appearance is Jim Purdue who came out of Shelby, North Carolina over the fourth of July and waltzed off with top honors in the National Championship Race in Selma, Alabama.

Brunswick, Georgia has always been a hot bed of micro midget racers and this year is no exception so you can bet those boys will be off and running come Labor Day in Leesburg, Florida when the Southeastern Championships get underway. Time trials are scheduled for Saturday the 30th with racing Sunday the 31st and Monday Labor Day.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

The Sixth Principle: There is a Minimum Which Every Citizen Must Know.

There are a few things that every person should know, even those who have no voluntary duty to perform. It is advisable to know your blood type and those of your family; the alert signal coming by radio or siren and the proper action to take or place to go on hearing it; the proper radio channel to dial if the local station goes out; the highway to use, the highway to get off, if driving when the emergency occurs; the block warden and his aides. And these will probably be special instructions peculiar to each neighborhood.

Above all, we must learn to stay where we are, or go to where we have been specifically instructed to go, and await instructions. To try to escape in our own automobile may prove futile, even fatal. A traffic jam can be a very exposed position. Thus we have a sixth principal: There is a minimum which every citizen must know.

At this stage the task of community civil defense, which we had thought to be a job for the civil defense director and a couple of his friends, begins to look so big and complicated as to be easier ignored. Actually, it offers no insuperable difficulties. Our civil defense program will become and stay operable if our education for it is well planned. The final sections of this booklet show how this can be done using mainly the educational skills and personnel we already have in our community.

Types of Training:

While reading what follows, the volunteer worker or interested citizen may have an inward feeling of insecurity as the size and complexity of the work unfold. The feeling may be personal ("I couldn't possibly undertake any of this") or inspired by community circumstances ("This is just too big for the resources of our little town"). These feelings are perfectly natural. It is inevitable that when we sit down alone to read a pamphlet designed as a call to action, a little bit of our brain is already asking what we propose to do and another little bit is taking side glances at our community. This goes on simultaneously with our reading and may get progressively more disturbing. Do Not Worry About Such Feelings. There Is Something You Can Do.

That Feeling of Inadequacy:

First a word more about why we have feelings like this. The great strength of American freedom lies in its individual communities. You and I are probably the sort of people who have been settled in one community for at least 10 years. If we were not happy in our community, we would not be reading pamphlets designed to help us preserve it. With the exception of places of direct concern in our lives, the other communities in the state are not known to us in detail.

This is particularly true when it comes to education. We know our school and our college, but we do not know the total educational resources of our state and region. The total resources, however, are known to people in key positions, and we shall presently be reaching out to make use of them without necessarily meeting them personally.

Capitol Capsule . . .

By Don Meiklejohn

Tallahassee.—There no longer seems to be any doubt that Gov. LeRoy Collins' full cash-value property assessment crusade has fizzled.

In most cases, Tax Assessors have ignored Collins' implied threats of suspension.

The reason appears to be obvious by glancing at the campaigns being waged for legislative races.

In all but a few instances, the campaigners seem to be in agreement on one issue—property assessments.

They either promise to repeal the "full cash value" law or up the homestead exemption . . . sometimes both.

It is apparent that if this is the will of the legislature Collins has very little chance of doing much about it.

Should he suspend a tax assessor, the State Senate wouldn't confirm the suspension.

About all that would happen is that the tax assessor would pick up pay for the months he was under suspension, and could enjoy a pleasant vacation.

The outlook is that Collins will come around to some sort of program for the next legislature in which a more acceptable definition of full cash value is established and combine it with some sort of a proposal for a state agency to oversee property assessments.

However, it appears to be apparent that whatever the definition of "full value" is, there will be little or no change in assessment.

As in the past, assessment levels will be determined by local needs and opinions. After all, the tax assessor has to get elected.

If the majority of the people in his-or her--county wants property assessments higher, they will be higher.

If a majority wants them lower, they will be lower.

—o—

CLEAR CUT ISSUE—One of the clearest cut campaign issues in the current legislative races is in Jackson County.

In the Jackson County Senate race, Sen. John Rawls is being opposed by James E. Lambe.

The issue: Lambe wants a telephone, and blames Rawls for not getting him one.

—o—

FLORIDA'S UN DELEGATE—Gov. Collins denies it, but the trip of his administrative assistant--John Perry--to the UN debates is a tipoff that he is grooming himself on world affairs in case lightning strikes in the form of a presidential or vice-presidential nomination.

Although it may be criticized, it is a smart move.

—o—

CHANGE OF MIND—It may or may not be significant, but the day before it was announced that Suwanee County Sheriff Hugh Lewis wants to tell all before the Johns Investigating Committee, a bolt of lightning just missed him.

Lewis was hush-hush before the committee on his knowledge of Klan participation in an alleged flogging in his county.

The decision to testify would help get Gov. Collins off the hook.

Some people argue that Collins could suspend Lewis for not testifying--just as one of the reasons for suspending Duval Sheriff Al Cahill was his refusal to testify before a grand jury.

Highway Assn's To Meet In Silver Springs

Lake Wales.—Highway associations from six states will meet at Silver Springs, Florida, Sept. 18-20 to discuss future improvements and promotion of U. S. 27 highway from Michigan to Key West.

Mrs. Dorothy Hunt of Lake Wales, who is president of the U. S. Highway 27 Association of Florida, reports that similar organizations from Michigan, Indiana, Tennessee, Kentucky and Georgia will hold separate meetings and then join in a general assembly to work on an over-all program.

The principal speaker will be Joe Grottergut, recently appointed chairman of the Florida State Road Board.

There also will be special division meetings for chamber of commerce executive, attraction, restaurant, motel and hotel operators.

Silver Springs and the Marion County Chamber of Commerce will host the convention. The program also includes two receptions, a banquet and a dance.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By JAMES E. HESS

The following is a brief excerpt from the "Presidio", an institutional publication from Iowa State Penitentiary: "The editor of the local newspaper went on a prejudice binge recently when he commented on a convicted robber as follows: 'The thief's face was stamped with his years of brutality. The twisted lips snarling at the police, the beady eyes . . . typical of the usual run of ex-convicts.' " The above quotation was part of an article entitled "What is a Convict". The article went on to give examples of typical convicts and they don't quite match the "twisted lips and beady eyes" variety.

The incident that brought the above so forcefully to mind was a visit this writer received Saturday before last from my Mom. We hadn't had the pleasure of sharing each other's company for more than two years and naturally after the opening amenities had been taken care of, the subject got around to how horrified Mom has been to learn that her son had been thrown into prison and how she was worried about my exposure to those "terrible convicts."

My Mother is no exception to the rest of the general public. Her ideas have been conceived from what she had heard, read, and seen on the subject of prisoners, convicts, felons, or whatnave-you. Also unfortunate is the fact that these conceptions are encouraged by the popular crime magazines, T.V., and movies. They all picture a big slob with beetling brows simply oozing brutality and beastiality.

It took me most of the remainder of that visiting day to half-way convince Mom that her son was not in mortal danger, that those "terrible convicts" were actually pretty few and far between in most institutions and were nonexistant at Avon Park Prison. My best argument was to simply point out the rest of the inmates in the pavilion who had visits on that particular day. Looking around she had to admit she didn't see anyone who quite fitted the picture of the "terrible convict" that her mind had continued up. Putting them in civilian clothes and mixing them in with a group of men from any walk of life would result in complete nonentity for the inmates. Although she didn't give the impression of being entirely convinced on the matter, Mom was easier in mind when she left then when she had come.

Arrival at the Florida State Prison at Raiford had filled this writer with a very real sense of trepidation. The experience of being incarcerated was a brand new one and I had been exposed to the same brand of books, films, and T.V. that successfully convinced my Mother that prisons and penitentiaries were filled with subhuman animals. It didn't take long to realize that yours truly was strictly all wet. For every "creep" encountered in prison, there are fifty or a hundred men who are average joes of a pretty decent sort.

To our way of thinking it just isn't possible to pick out any certain individual and say "This is the typical inmate." It would be just as impossible to pick a man at random off the street and pin the title "Mr. Average American" on him. In the bed next to mine is a man serving a life sentence for first degree murder. On the other side sleeps a forger serving an eighteen month term. A few beds down in the same dormitory is a fellow doing two years for breaking and entering. Stand these three men side by side and we defy you to pick out who did what. Outward appearance is certainly no clue. The boy serving life has built nine years on his sentence. During that nine years he has maintained an unblemished record; this "killer" is quit and unassuming, asking only that you mind your own business so that he can mind his. In direct contrast to the lifer is a "creep" who has been sentenced to a year for non-support; he's an empty brained, loud mouthed braggart who proclaims to all who listen of the injustice that put him in prison in the first place. The differences between these two men is completely normal phenomena. It is all part of this business of being members of that strange category known as Homo sapiens.

Another Penal Press Publication not too long ago took up the cause of the "Terrible convict" and presented a marvelously descriptive article pointing out the exploits of inmates throughout the country. Lets look at a few of the illustrations: 1. Hundreds of inmates were paroled to the Armed Forces during the last war—many losing their lives. 2. Convicts fight shoulder to shoulder with civilians in the almost constant fight against forest fires in California. 3. Inmates volunteer for dangerous experimentation as guinea pigs in medical research programs being carried on in many institutions. 4. Thousands of men have donated their blood to the American Red Cross. 5. Florida has a right to be proud of the feats of her own penal populace; inmates of State Road Prisons have aided in fire fighting and assisted in clearing wreckage during and after hurricanes.

Even tougher than doing time itself is the realization that being in the status of ex-convict taints the lives of those dearest to us. A man's family suffers for his mistakes. The individual's wife is snubbed by neighborhood women when they discover she is the spouse of the "terrible ex-convict." Children can be especially cruel in their barbs if they gain the knowledge that little Johnnie's daddy has been in prison—cries of "Johnnie's Daddy is a Jailbird" can play havoc with the young and impressionable mind.

It is hoped that my Mother will refute the common acceptance of the term convict or ex-convict if the opportunity presents itself in the future, but as we hope YOU will refute it. Those of you who had occasion to attend the open house held here at APF and the ball games in Avon Park in which the prison team participated know that "twisted lips and beady eyes" isn't exactly an accurate term for describing the inmates of Avon Park Prison. As inmates we only have one thing in common with each other—a fierce desire to regain our places amongst you as equals; a chance to show how we can again hold up our heads in the belief that our mistakes has been paid for. Snub your nose and it might well mean putting a man back in prison—offer the hand of friendship and allow a fellow human being to stand at your side. "To err is but human; to forgive is devine."

On Aug. 22, 1945 the Japanese garrison at Mili Atoll, Marshall Islands, surrendered aboard the Navy's USS Levy.

Miss Doris Rocker And Clement McFarland Are Married In Georgia

MRS. CLEMENT McFARLAND

Miss Doris Ann Rocker became the bride of Clement Alden McFarland of Avon Park in the First Baptist Church of Statesboro, Ga., on Sunday, August 10.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin G. Rocker of Statesboro, Ga. and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. McFarland of Avon Park.

The Rev. R. T. Smith, pastor of the church, performed the impressive ceremony in the beautifully decorated church. A program of music was presented before the service.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional bridal gown of chantilly lace and net. The tight fitting bodice featured a sweetheart neckline outlined in lace scallops and the long sleeves ended in points over each wrist. A bouffant skirt swept into a full chapel train with cascades of alternating lace, sequins and seed pearls. Her three tiered silk illusion veil fell from a Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls.

The bride was attended by three of her friends as bridesmaids and her sister served as maid of honor. The girls wore mint green ballerina sheaths of chantilly lace with harem overskirts of matching taffeta and head bandeaux of leaves and seed pearls in matching shades.

A reception was held after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McFarland and their sons, David and Paul, attended the marriage ceremony.

Members of The Salvation Army League of Mercy visited more than 2,500,000 individuals in hospitals, prisons and homes for the needy in this country last year. Christmas visits to institutions with distribution of gifts are a traditional activity of the League of Mercy.

By DON MEIKLEJOHN

Tallahassee.—For something like three years there has been a squabble about juggling the seats in the State Legislature.

The politicians call it the "reapportionment problem".

As it stands, there doesn't seem to be a satisfactory solution.

It's time for the governor, the legislature, and the people to quit playing politics and get to the core of the problem . . . lack of understanding.

With understanding there would be no reapportionment problem.

To most people, the issue is a vague sort of thing at best.

In larger counties, they think it is something brought on by a bunch of small county senators, called "pork choppers," who are running the state the way they like it . . . thumbling their noses at the needs of urban areas.

We are told this is bad, and that the more populous areas should have a bigger voice in state government.

In the small counties, the picture is slanted the other way. The feeling in these counties is that a bunch of fast talking city slickers are trying to grab all the power and run the state.

This would be bad, we are told, because the governor, state cabinet, and supreme court are elected on the basis of popular vote . . . giving the large counties a bigger say so in the executive and judicial branches.

To counter balance this, the legislature is weighted toward the smaller counties, according to this theory.

There are the traditional viewpoints about the reapportionment squabble.

There have been thousands of plans . . . and a carload of numbers and theories advanced.

To clear the air, the various factions in the squabble should come up with what they consider a perfect apportionment proposal for their needs.

When these proposals have been drafted, they should be framed and everyone should forget about them.

Then the state can go on about its business.

To help things along, we would like to present the "Sixty-Seven" plan . . . Big county version and Little county version.

It is a simple plan.

on population.

For example, a vote from the representative of Dade County—the largest county in the state—would be worth 10 votes. The smallest county—Glades—would have a vote worth, say, 1/25th of a vote. These aren't accurate figures, but some of the slide-rule boys could give us the exact totals for each county based on population.

Under this system, the top seven counties, based on the 1950 population, would control the legislature. But since they have a majority of the state's population, this is fair—or at least this is one theory of how apportionment should work.

The small county version would be similar.

Again we would have a unicameral legislature. It also would have 67 representatives—one for each county.

In this plan, we would put in a reverse-population factor.

The smallest county would get the most votes and the largest county the fewest votes.

Under this formula, Glades County—the smallest in the state—would get 10 votes, and Dade County would get 1/25th of a vote.

This would put the small counties in complete control of the legislative branch, and provide the necessary checks and balances.

Both plans have some fine features.

[illegible] Cutting the size of the legislature from 133 members to 67. Giving each county a representative all its own. 3. Providing more room in the Capitol.

Despite these features, neither plan would have a chance.

The people would kill the small county plan, and the legislature would kill the big county plan.

This would leave us about where we are today—except everyone would be on record and could point with pride that they supported the plan that was best for their county.

With all the preliminaries out of the way, the Governor, the legislature, and the people could get down to brass tacks in finding a compromise between the two extremes.

The failings of both plans are the same.

They overlook the element of compromise.

The strength of a Democracy is based on compromise.

When the possibility for compromise is eliminated, a Democracy is doomed with inaction.

Compromise is a delicate balance. It can't be described in percentages or fit into neat packages.

Compromise is the human—and thereby unpredictable—element that makes Democracy tick.

It is the process of understanding the other fellow's problem.

With understanding, reapportionment would not be necessary.

As Florida reaches out for greatness, the people in the small counties must see the wisdom of their legislators supporting the needs of the urban areas . . . the building of expressways to unclog traffic snarls; giving the urban areas the tools for effective community and area planning; establishing basic and flexible principles of home rule to deal quickly and effectively with pressing community problems, and adequate financing to keep pace with growth in all departments.

On the other side, the people in the larger counties must understand the needs of the smaller counties and expect their legislators to support measures designed to give these counties a boost in meeting agricultural problems, attracting new industries to bolster the economy, providing adequate farm to market roads, and providing adequate schools and other facilities.

In this way, the state can grow together.

Without it, the state could become bogged down in sectional conflict.

The candidate seeking the office of County Commissioner in District 4 is Vernon D. Tyson of Lake Placid.

The Sun feels that the announcement should be made in answer to the questions which have arisen over the similarity in the two names, and in fairness to the voters of Highlands County and to the two candidates (James C. Peck, incumbent, and Vernon D. Tyson) who are seeking the post of County Commissioner in District 4.

Crews, E. Ray Wells and Mrs. Anna Bell Worden. The preparation of this budget was made at a meeting of the Finance Committee plus President Heins. At this meeting careful study of the estimated income for the coming year was made, with current and preceding years as a guide. Consideration was also made of the growth of the Chamber and the scope of its activities this past year. The Avon Park Chamber now boasts the largest number of members in the history of the organization.

The Finance Committee, for the first time in the 33 year history of the Chamber existance, recommended that the individual membership dues be increased to $12 and minimum business dues to $24, and this recommendation was approved by the Board of Directors at their last regular meeting. The new dues will become effective at the beginning of the Chamber year, January 1, 1959. Plans have been made for a much more complete membership service during the coming year.

The activities of the Chamber have increased tremendously this past year and the opportunities to be of greater service are without bounds. The Directors decided that the increase in the budget would mean that the Chamber would be able to extend the reach of the services and operations in proportion to the growth and development of Avon Park. The Chamber of Commerce should maintain standards as high as those of a well run business. In order for this to be accomplished, funds should be made available to carry out a well rounded program of work for the Chamber year.

Chamber Planning Pictorial Letters And Color Brochures On Avon Park

The Advertising Committee of the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce held a special meeting Friday afternoon at the Chamber office to complete plans for a Chamber pictorial letter and to put the final touches on the proposed color brochure.

The clever picture letters from Avon Park will be ready by the time the first tourist arrive this coming season. The letters will be an added accommodation for the tourist who are to busy seeing Florida to have time to write back home, but will contain a space for them to add a post-script.

These letters are another Chamber means of advertising our friendly city and they are sure to make a hit with the tourist. The letters cover the high spots and are written on a friendly individual basis.

The letter tells of the famous Mall down the center of town planted with more than a thousand varieties of flowering trees and shrubs that are carefully and proudly tended by the town, it also mentions the 23 lakes within a five mile radius for swimming, water skiing and fishing; the growth of Avon Park; the secret location for sightseeing tours since the town is within easy driving distance of so many nationally known tourist attractions; homes built for tropical living and the accommodations the city has for the tourist.

The letter will be an enticing invitation to those in the north who receive it to come and visit Avon Park.

"Sugar 'N Spice" Starts Production With Talent Galore

"Ain't we got talent in Avon Park!" was the proud refrain that was heard over and over at the Kick-Off Party for the Junior Woman's Club Follies on Monday night, August 25, in the Jacaranda Hotel.

The more than one hundred people present for the party filled the dances the director casted immediately and still the casting goes on. "This looks like fun" was a remark hear over and over again Monday night. "You sign up for this one and I'll take that number", "Do you think I could Charleston?", "I'll keep your kids so you can practice with the Rockettes" and many other mysterious remarks were flying through the air. On Monday night the theatrical fever was raging in the Jacaranda Hotel, all right.

One reason for this acting mania was the personality of Tom Chatham, Senior Director from the Howard Cargill Pro-

"A Battle That Must Be Won"

"There are far too many examples throughout these United States of American business standing by and watching the gradual, creeping paralysis of our free enterprise system with its ever-growing loss of freedom, loss of opportunity and loss of our form of government," said J. E. Crette, President of the Edison Electric Institute. "We in the electric power industry realize that, despite our constant efforts, the very gradual socialization of our industry and the country continues, but few others have this realization.

"The electric power industry today has more than $36½ billion invested, pays almost $2 billion a year in taxes, employs 350,000 people and has annual capital expenditures greater than the telephone industry, the steel industry, the railroad industry or the automobile industry.

"In the last 10 years, the average increase in dollars spent on new plant has been 12.5 per cent per year. Even if this average were reduced to 6 per cent annually for the next 10 years, the investor-owned utilities of this nation would have invested in plant nearly $100 billion by 1968. And if taxes continue at their present trend, this industry's contributions to federal, state and local governments in 1968 will exceed $5 billion annually.

"If this investment is forfeited to government or public ownership, if this taxpaying contribution is destroyed, you will see immediately the enormous impact on federal spending, on government income budgets, on the entire economic structure of the country."

He then added that his greatest effort as President of Edison Electric Institute would be to awaken American business and labor to the importance of everyone taking a far greater interest in government—and to winning the first great battle in the war against socialization which has been raging for years.

"Cover-to-Cover Readers"

From the Belmont, Ohio, Chronicle:

"A strong voice of approval for advertising in weekly newspapers spoke out recently at a Milwaukee Press Association meeting.

"According to a front page article in The Publisher's Auxiliary, Alan R. McGinnis, chairman of the Board of a Milwaukee advertising agency, stated: '. . . It is my opinion, although not officially documented, that subscribers of weekly newspapers will come closer to being cover-to-cover readers than any other print medium available. . . .

" 'I don't subscribe to the thought that the way to get maximum return on the client dollar is necessarily that of buying as much circulation as possible.'

"Along with the obvious advantage of reasonable column rates, is the fact that a full-page ad in a weekly will hit the reader's eye like a rocket burst and he will remember that advertiser's name and product because it is not buried in forty or fifty pages of newspaper."

Teenage Talk

A New York reporter recently wrote a series of terrifying articles about teenage delinquents. He called them "the shook-up generation". In teenage lingo shook-up means emotionally unstable.

Other teenage slang, listed in a glossary at the top of his pieces, includes: rumble—a gang fight; jap—an ambush; pot—drugs; hopping club—a fighting gang; gig—a party; and deb—a teenage gangster's girl.

This is the kind of talk and the kind of life that is bred in big city slums. Most of us, fortunately, don't hear or see much of it.

Not that our teenagers don't have a special language of their own. By now even the most sheltered of us adults are familiar with such phrases as big deal for an important event, cool for excellent, hip for knowing and square for stupid.

Recently we heard of a new addition to teenage vocabulary. It was started by some bright youngsters who were asked to help get their fellow teenagers vaccinated with the Salk vaccine. To polio authorities like the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis they gave this advice: "Make polio vaccination a fad like like pony tails, blue jeans and rock 'n roll music. We'll give you some catch words to do it with."

Maybe on this deal the kids are hip. If it helps get our teenagers protected against paralytic polio, we give our sanction to "Roll up your sleeve, Steve" and "Don't balk at Salk."

If Merchant Shipping Stopped

As you read this, merchant ships flying the American flag are entering or leaving our ports with loaded holds. You may never have seen one of these vessels. But suppose that, all of a sudden, merchant shipping stopped. What would be the effect on you and all other Americans?

It would be a drastic effect. Our living standards would drop. All of the tin that goes into ordinary tin cans comes from abroad. So do all of our cork, coffee, cocoa, tea, bananas and many other foods and spices. So do 80 per cent of our olive oil and 35 per cent of our fish. So do varying percentages of all manner of articles in general use.

And the list is certainly not limited to consumer goods. We must import a long list of raw materials, because we have none within our own borders or because our own supply is insufficient. These materials are needed by major industries—steel, machinery and others. Many of them are essential to military production as well.

Finally, we sell all manner of foods and goods abroad—and the money thus obtained flows into the pockets of farm and factory people everywhere.

Vice President Nixon recently pointed out that 4,500,000 Americans owe their jobs to foreign trade. The significance of it can be gained from the fact that when, during this year's recession, unemployment reached the 5 million point it was considered a very grave national problem.

Those U. S. flag merchant ships are a bulwark of American strength and prosperity.

Invitation to Disaster

Congress has passed a major new transportation law. Its primary purpose is to help the hard-pressed railroad industry to help itself and recover from grave financial doldrums.

But another proposed law would undo the good that the newly-passed law is designed to accomplish. It has been described by the Association of American Railroads as an "invitation to disaster", and with good reason.

The law in question would increase the retirement insurance and unemployment benefits enjoyed by railroad workers—benefits which, in the case of these workers, are federally established. The additional cost to the railroad industry would be nearly $200 million a year. It would come on top of contracted increases in wage and other payroll costs which will run to some $250 million a year. The industry simply hasn't got the money.

Moreover, the railroad workers are certainly not being discriminated against. Today the railroads pay there times as much in retirement taxes as is paid by employers under the general Social Security Laws, and the retirement checks of rail workers average much more than the Social Security checks. A similar situation exists in the case of unemployment payments—under present laws, the minimum benefits for railroad workers are higher than the maximum paid to workers in general in two-thirds of the states.

Railroad employment has dropped sharply. In May it was at the lowest level of this century. The proposed law would have the inevitable effect of reducing employment still farther. It's a perfect example of how to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

"An Atmosphere of Freedom"

When the Journal of the American Medical Association celebrated its 75th anniversary a short time ago, President Eisenhower sent the editor a letter in which he said: "Throughout my lifetime of service in the Army, as well as in my present position, I have watched with pride and interest the giant strides that have been achieved toward a rising standard of health for people everywhere."

No one doubts that American medicine will continue to make such strides—and that they will be longer and longer. We have every resource, human and material, that is needed. The AMA's president, Dr. Gunnar Gundersen, tells what is on the medical horizon. There will be greater emphasis on preventive medicine and rehabilitation of the disabled. Vital new facts will be revealed concerning cancer, heart disease, mental and nervous disorders, and various chronic ailments. Expansion of voluntary health insurance will solve the problem of medical care costs for the great majority of our people. Medicine's physical facilities, such as hospitals and clinics, will be notably improved.

But there is more to medical progress than such assets as these, important as they are. Dr. Gundersen stresses that truth in these words: "The future of American medicine is bright, if we can continue to work in an atmosphere of freedom, motivated by the dual spirit of enterprise and cooperation. The dominant socioeconomic challenge of the present is to preserve that atmosphere and that spirit."

Rules For Right Of Way

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

"WHO HAS the right of way in traffic" is settled by a list of rules of the road compiled by the Inter-Industry Highway Safety Committee.

Miss Smith

Based on the road code of most states, the rules are:

At a crossroad the driver approaching last should yield the right of way. If two drivers approach at once, the driver on the left should yield.

If there's a stop sign, cars on the side street should yield the right of way.

The driver making a left turn should yield to the driver going straight ahead, if close enough to be a traffic hazard.

Drivers pulling into the street from driveways should yield the right of way to drivers on the street.

Pedestrians at corners or crosswalks have the right of way, as does a pedestrian who starts on a green light, if the light changes.

Police cars, fire engines and ambulances have the right of way, and other vehicles should pull to the side of the road when the siren sounds.

When crossing a street, a blind person always has the right of way, and vehicles must stop until he is safely across the street.

Cars behind a school bus yield their right to pass, and must stop when the bus stops to pick up or discharge children.

State Health Units To Participate In Tallahassee Housing Survey

The Leon County Health Department will conduct a housing survey in the City of Tallahassee beginning September 8th and running through November 14th. This survey was authorized by Governor Collins as a result of last winter's housing problems among the migrant workers at Immokalee.

The survey of substandard housing will be made at the Capital to determine how many dwellings are without proper sanitary facilities such as flush toilets, running water, screens, heat, electric wiring and proper ventilation. The premises will be checked for trash, garbage and general unsanitary conditions, as well as for fire hazards.

Teams of sanitarians will be sent from each Health Unit in the State to participate in the survey. These teams will be under the direction of consultants from the State Health Department In -service Training program. Each sanitarian will remain for a period of two weeks and upon returning to his County will set up the same type of survey if Governor Collins finds there is need to make the program state-wide.

Dr. William F. Hill, Jr., Director of the Highlands, Glades and Hendry County Unit will send two sanitarians to Tallahassee for training in this program.

Because of the rapid increase in Florida's population during the past few years it has been impossible to cope with the growth of problems of housing and sanitary conditions.

This survey will determine the need for better zoning, better building regulations and broader powers of the County Commissioners to control the building of sub-standard housing throughout the State.

High School PTA Plans Busy Year

The Avon Park High School Parent Teacher Association is getting ready for an active and useful school year. Mrs. L. A. Renfro, president, and her Executive Board met last week to discuss plans for the reception for the teachers and various projects.

The first meeting of the P T A will be held on Thursday, Sept. 18, and all parents, teachers and friends are urged to remember this date and plan to attend.

The P T A is a group for people interested in their children and the children of the community and the schools of Avon Park, Florida, and the United States. The purpose of the organization is to help parents, children, teachers, and communities. Each local group is only as strong as the members make it and it is up to each and every parent to help their school group.

Make plans now to attend and take part in the Avon Park High School P T A this year. The meetings are held on the third Thursday of each month and all interested parties are cordially invited to attend these meetings. Interesting and informative programs are planned for the meetings and several worthwhile projects will be worked on. Volunteer your help.

County Signup For Conservation Reserve Of The Soil Bank Now Open

The signup in Highlands County for the 1959 Conservation Reserve of the Soil Bank is now open at the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office in Sebring, Chairman W. J. Post announced today.

The first step in the signup is for the farmer who is interested in the program to come to the county office and request that annual rental payment rates be established for his farm.

At the same time, the farmer should bring with him information to be used by the County ASC Committee in establishing rates for his farm. The chief facts needed, Chairman Post said, are acreages and yields of the three principal crops on the farm for the past two years and acreage for other land use on the farm.

The Conservation Reserve is the only Soil Bank program available for 1959. Under the program, farmers retire land from general crops for up to 10 years, and devote the reserved acreage to land, water, or wildlife conservation practices. The Government makes an annual rental payment for the land and will also share in the cost of establishing the Conservation Reserve practices.

The average rental payment rate for Conservation Reserve land in Highlands County in the 1959 program is $12.00 per acre per year. Maximum payment rates will be higher for the most productive farms and lower for less productive farms.

For farmers who request it, the County Committee will figure two sets of maximum annual rates, Chairman Post said. One will apply if only part of the eligible acreage on a farm is placed in the Reserve. Another rate, 10 percent higher, will be available if all eligible land on a farm is put in the Reserve for at least 5 years.

After maximum rates have been determined for a farm, the farmer will have two weeks in which to decide on participation, designate land for the reserve, and apply for contract. Land may be offered at less than the established maximum to increase the chance of acceptance in case there are insufficient funds to cover all offers.

The signup phase of the program closes October 10, 1958, and all requests for establishing farm rates must be received by that date, Chairman Post said. The deadline for applying for contracts is also October 10, 1958.

Resident Manager At Fla. Sheriffs Boys Ranch

VINCENT M. JONES

Live Oak.—A farm-bred vocational agriculture teacher from a long line of farmer ancestors has been appointed resident manager of the Florida Sheriffs Boys Ranch, a home for needy and neglected boys on the Suwannee River, 11 miles north of here.

He is Vincent M. Jones, 32, of Live Oak, who holds a Master of Science Degree from the University of Florida, and has been teaching future farmers in the schools of White Springs and Live Oak for almost eight years.

H. E. Wood, State Supervisor of Vocational Agriculture, told the Sheriffs Association: "You couldn't have made a better choice. Vincent Jones is one of the outstanding young men in Florida in the field of Vocational Agriculture, and he has produced one of the best Future Farmers of America chapters in the nation."

Hillsborough County Sheriff Ed Blackburn, Jr., will continue as the non-paid executive director of the Ranch, and will be Jones' immediate superior.

He said Jones' duties will include supervising construction of the first buildings at the Ranch (now under way); developing a scientific farming program on the 722-acre site; and planning a detailed child-care and vocational program which will go into effect when the first boys are admitted.

Descended from North Florida pioneer stock, Jones is a native of Trenton. His Future Farmers of America Chapter at Suwannee High School, Live Oak, has three times won a gold emblem, highest national award, for the excellence of its total program.

He is immediate past president of the Florida Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association and holds the Honorary State Farmer Degree, highest award conferred by the State FFA Association.

He is married to the former Grace Cannon, a native of Chiefland. They have two sons: Cecil Vincent, 5; and David Allan, 10 months.

Editor's Mail Bag

Gulbransen Drug
Menominee, Mich.

To Whom it may concern:

Congratulations to the Touchton Drug Store of Avon Park.

You will be very surprised to hear from me, but when I read in the report from Shulton Old Spice that a store that I used to visit and trade in was one of the winner's in the Father's Day Contest, I just had to drop a line.

I was a GI at the Bombing Range Base back in 1943 and 1944. I use to come into Avon Park as often as I could. My wife joined me there and we had an apartment in the Brickel Building.

Avon Park was wonderful to me, all the time I was there I enjoyed all of it, including the Army life at the base. I made a lot of friends in Avon Park and although I have not been back since '44 I think of it a lot. In the near future I will surely have to take a trip down there, for I hear that the place has changed a lot in the last ten years. Well we all have in fact. But I bet the people are as social and friendly as they were to us back in the war days.

My brother and I run a drug store here in Menominee, Mich., we were born here so this is our town. We also entered this Father's Day Contest, but we were one of the "also rans".

So that is my story to you people back in good old Avon Park I never was so glad to read that a store that a person knew's wins a prize, and as far as I could figure out Avon Park was the smallest city on the list. So that goes for more congratulations. (Our town here is around 11,000.)

It has been a pleasure writing to you, for it brings back nice memories. So again congratulations.

Robert Gulbransen

Dear Editor,

I wish to express my appreciation to you, your newspaper and the entire town of Avon Park. Everyone made my visit to Avon Park, one always to remember.

I have never met finer people than Mr. and Mrs. Jack DeLaney and their family. I enjoyed their hospitality so much.

I sincerely hope I did help the Avon Park majorette corp. I'll looking forward to that first football game.

Always,
Mona Merle Nobles

H. C. Educators Attend 2 Day Meet In Sebring

Highlands County educators met at Woodlawn Elementary School in Sebring, August 19, 20, to open the pre-school teacher preparation period with constructive and informative talks and discussion.

The two chief speakers were Dr. Ted Landsman, Professor of Psychology, University of Florida and Mr. Charles S. High, Associate Consultant of Education for Exceptional children from the State Department of Education.

The theme of the entire two-day meeting was Learning is Personal. Both speakers dealt primarily with the subject in its relationship to child, teacher and parent. The needs of both gifted children and "slow learners" were stressed and a better understanding and handling of these groups urged.

Discussions followed both talks and were spirited and varied. Smaller groups were formed and question and answer periods completed the sessions.

It was felt by the entire group that much of value had been gained.

To Close Monday

The Avon Park City Hall and U. S. Post Office and all offices in the Court House in Sebring will be closed for Labor Day on Monday, September 1.

Offices in all three places will open at the regular hour Tuesday morning, September 2.

She organized the Chester, N. J. Branch of the American Red Cross and was the first honorary member of the New Jersey Dental Society.

From 1918 to 1926 she served in various capacities in the U. S. Public Health Service and during the latter part of this period she was assistant director of the Presbyterian Hospital Social Service Department at Philadelphia.

Mrs. Borda was the executive director of the Cumberland County, N. J. Tuberculosis Association for 27 successive years ending 1953.

Mrs. Borda moved to Sebring in 1954 and while here has continued her health education services in her activities with the Red Cross, TB Association, D. A. R. and the American Legion Auxiliary. She is an active member of the St. Agnes Episcopal Church of Sebring.

Lightning Hits Water Pump

During the electrical storm Monday afternoon the lightning struck the water pump at Pine Acres and caught the motor and wires on fire.

The Avon Park Fire Department was called to extinguish the blaze. Estimated damage was set at approximately $1450 for a new pump had to be purchased an installed before residents of Highlands Lakes could receive any water.

President George Washington declared an embargo against England and France on March 26, 1794, as economic reprisal against those countries for aggressive actions against U. S. shipping.

What To Do About That Insecure Feeling:

First, do not read the rest of this pamphlet as though it were a novel. Get a pencil and some loose paper. As you read you will not only have vague worries but also flashes of insight concerning people and organizations you know. Write these down. You will be surprised that they come with increasing rapidity.

Second, do not be the only person to read this pamphlet. Having read it give it at once to someone you know, ask him to promise to read at least some sections of it that night, meet with him the next day or as soon as possible for coffee and conversation. Again the ideas begin to come, ideas for something that looks worth trying, or simply a clearer perception of problems we can sense as being ahead of us.

Third, continue this process into an enlarging circle or circles, being sure to include in your own group not only your intimat friends but neighbors who may belong to other civil organizations or perhaps to none.

Fourth, see your local civil defense director. You already know that he is or should be in contact with county, state, and regional directors and with local directors in neighboring communities. Within the state organization there should be a person responsible for education. His work may be direct action or simply liaison with the responsible state agencies such as the department of education and the state and private institutions of higher learning. If your local civil defense director does not know what exists, ask him to make inquiries instead of going home and criticizing him. He has often been disappointed because local citizens have not asked questions and is glad to find interest. You should not expect him to know all the answers; his job is to know where to find answers.

Fifth, ask your civil defense director if he has on file basic course material such as Basic Course for Civil Defense or Introduction to Radioactive Fallout. Borrow them and review them in your circle. If you cannot understand a technical word or phase, take it to a local science teacher or engineer. Once again the concrete ideas begin to appear.

If your state has not developed an educational network or has allowed previous efforts to die out, consult with your civil defense director about the ways to re-activate them and your part in helping.

At this stage you may find it necessary to develop intercommunity efforts and to visit and talk with friends in a neighboring town. You are now so busy that the feeling of inadequacy has probably disappeared. So let us review the typical educational and training program that should be accessible to you either locally or somewhere in your state.

Language Barrier No Halt To Safety

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

THERE'S NOTHING new about the idea of driver training schools, but Chicago's Driver Improvement School has one unique feature: classes are now offered in Spanish and Polish as well as English.

Miss Smith

Explains Dr. Arthur L. Conrad, director of traffic education and the safety division of Chicago's municipal court: "In the past several years Chicago has had a large influx of Puerto Ricans and displaced persons from Poland.

"While some of these people have language barriers, they still drive cars . . . These classes were established to assist them to become safer drivers."

Chicago's Driver Improvement School itself was begun in October, 1956, and Spanish and Polish classes were later added when some of those attending could not understand the proceedings.

Currently, at least one foreign language class is scheduled every month. Some of the material was even shipped from Puerto Rico.

Classes are open to anyone over 15 who understands Spanish or Polish, but does not speak English. Instruction is given for four weeks, once a week for two hours, for a total of eight hours.

At the last class, an official from the Secretary of State's office is present to administer written driver permit tests, translated into one of the two languages, so potential drivers can be tested under optimum conditions.

Lake Wales Amphitheatre Scene Of Religious Emphasis Week Services

The huge Lake Wales 3,500 seat outdoor Amphitheatre will be the scene of a four-night Religious Emphasis week program beginning Sept. 15th, the Kiwanis Club of that city announced today.

Already known internationally as the winter site of the Black Hills Passion Play, the big amphitheatre is the largest in Florida and one of the largest in the entire South.

Famed for its natural acoustics, the amphitheatre lies in the heart of a orange grove just south of the Lake Wales city limits on highway 17. Its two-block long stage is bordered by replicas of the buildings which play a prominent part in the story of Christ's last days.

Use of the amphitheatre for the Kiwanis Club's annual Religious Emphasis week was started four years ago when members of the civic club conceived the idea of a series of non-sectarian programs emphasizing spiritual values of life.

Each year an outstanding, nationally known, minister is secured to give a series of four inspirational talks. These are accompanied by a musical program furnished by various choirs and have drawn increasingly large crowds each year.

This year's speaker will be Dr. Pierce Harris, Atlanta, Georgia, pastor of the First Methodist church there for 18 years. Dr. Harris is widely known as one of the South's most dynamic religious leaders and has spoken to audiences in pratically all of the Southern states.

This year's program begins Sept. 15th. The program begins through Sept. 18th.

Highway Philosophy

By Trooper Bill

Feller who drives in the wrong lane is heading for eternity.

Share the road with others or life in the grave alone.

Man who adjusts to living with the same woman for years, goes out and battles traffic on a non-cooperative basis.

The highway safety theme for August is Share the Road. Unless you do, you stand a pretty poor chance of reading these lines again next year.

Don't get too hot in traffic. It only leads to a blistering session with a traffic court judge.

Old Jake refused to share the road:
The hearse now carries a lonesome load!

Speeding Can Cost You Money And Maybe Life

That fable about flies streaking 820 m.p.h. is for the birds. Top speed for insects is about 35 m.p.h. in short sprints, according to a British professor of entomology.

And you'll never catch a horsefly going faster than 15 m.p.h., he says.

Even if insects could travel faster, they'd have horse sense enough not to, insect lovers claim. Too many dangers from traveling fast, they point out.

The same is true on the highway — traveling fast is pretty dangerous there, too. But a lot of humans, apparently, don't have the sense of insects when it comes to driving a car.

Speeding is a factor in about 4 out of 10 fatal motor vehicle accidents, according to the National Safety Council.

You don't necessarily have to exceed the posted limit to be speeding, the Council points out. Observe the limit in a 25 m.p.h. zone during a blizzard and you may end up with a ticket.

"Speeding," the Council says, "increases the likelihood of an accident. The greater the speed the less time you have to react in emergencies. It takes longer, naturally, to stop a speeding auto than one moving slowly.

"Besides, speeding is costly. It can cost you money — and maybe your life."

Seniors, Try Eating 'Em This Way!

Believe it or not, the Cuban senor (photo left) is eating a tasty native orange that has been peeled "to order" for his complete enjoyment. In contrast to ice cream wagons and hot dog stands in the U.S., street vendors in colorful Havana do a thriving business selling the cleverly-peeled oranges to passersby. There the many orange stalls have hand-cranked, rotating machines which grip the fruit while a sharp blade cuts off the peel in one long strip (photo right) for easy eating.

The two most popular oranges grown in tropical Cuba are the Valencia, a large, fleshy variety originally from Spain, and the Maranja de China, a smaller, juicier, deep-colored fruit which came to the island republic from Old Cathay many years ago. This latter variety is grown mainly on the Isle of Pines, 60 miles off the Cuban mainland.

ducing Organization. Tom put everybody at ease immediately and had some of us rusty old fogies dancing like Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in a matter of minutes. Of course he has had a great deal of experience at this after having produced shows like Sugar 'n Spice in 36 states as well as other varied theater experiences of all types.

Bob Barben acted as master of ceremonies for the informal program and introduced Mrs. John Gambrell who sang "I Don't Know Why" and "Ain't Misbehavin'". Clayton Fields gave an excellent reading of "The Creation" and then Bob introduced Tom Chatham, the director. By the time Tom has demonstrated steps and routines from some of the numbers even the creakiest of the audience has their feet tapping. Then the rush was on to sign up for the numbers being cast-and rush it was. Mrs. Fred Montsdeoca and Mrs. Art Turner, Talent Chairmen, really got their talent. "It is so much fun" was the password for the evening.

Rehersals started on Tuesday with a bang in the Woman's Club Building. So Sugar 'n Spice really gets rolling now and in three short weeks your friends and neighbors will surprise and delight you with their newfound talents.

Teenagers from the Youth Center have volunteered to help the mothers in the cast with their baby sitting problems in appreciation for the interest in the Youth Center. Mrs. Mannin Kirkland will supply the particulars for this. This help is especially appreciated because babysitting is one of the big problems!

So if you notice some reliable young matron or respectable business man dancing down the Mall, they're not crazy, but practicing for 'Sugar 'n Spice". Remember, all the world's a stage', for the next three weeks anyway.

purchased by the Board of Public Instruction and improved bus service and schedules will be put into effect.

The tentative bus routes will be explained to the pupils at school and by the drivers in order that they know at what time and where they will be picked up on Wednesday.

In keeping with a plan worked out cooperatively by the P. T. A., Mayor DeLaney, other city officials, and local school administrators, there will be no parking of cars on the east side of Lake Avenue in front of the old elementary school beginning this school year.

This is to be a loading and unloading zone only. Teachers and students will park their cars in the new parking lot recently completed by the Board of Public Instruction in cooperation with the City of Avon Park.

The faculties of the schools have been participating in county wide and local conferences since August 18. They have also worked on committees studying curriculum, program of studies, health topics, and various other activities relative to promoting a good school program. Again a record enrollment is expected to greet about fifty instructional personnel and administrators when the bell rings on Tuesday.

This year the assessed value on land but not on personal property was re-appraised. The only new appraisals on personal property was on homes constructed during the past year.

After all complaints had been presented to the Equalizing Board Robert E. Lee, President of the City Council, presented his gavel to Paul McFarland, Vice president, and made the motion that the City revert all land assessments back to the 1957 valuation. The motion was seconded by Councilman Roland Dilley.

At this late date it is impossible for the Council to have all the land re-valued in time to get the Tax Statements mailed out, so the Council deceided to use the 1957 assessment.

Regular monthly reports from various other committees were presented.

Directors attending the Board meeting were President Jim Heim, George Border, Franklyn Ward, Malcolm Crews, Dr. H. W. Coleman, E. Ray Wells, Robert King, Hubbard Biggs, George Woodman, W. A. Meyer, Robert Barben, Dr. Richard Hedrick, Robert E. Lee and Mrs. Anna Bell Worden. Directors Charles Metcalfe and Jack DeLaney were both out of town.

Miss Susan Maura Tierney And Earl Ware, Jr., Are Married In Conn.

MRS. EARL HODGES WARE, JR.

Miss Susan Maura Tierney became the bride of Earl Hodges Ware, Jr., in a morning ceremony in the Church of Assumption in Fairfield, Conn., on Saturday, August 16. The Rev. Robert L. Christopher read the rites in a setting of palms and altar vases filled with white chrysanthemums, pom-poms, and gladioli.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robert Tierney, Jr. of Fairfield, Conn., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hodges Ware, Sr. of Tampa and former resident of Avon Park.

A program of music was presented before the ceremony by Carmen Galluci.

The lovely bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a traditional white wedding gown of camelia silk organza, fashioned with fitted bodice and trimmed to the hip-line with Venetian lace embroidered with seed pearls. The scalloped portrait neckline and short sleeves of lace medallion design matched the bodice. Her bell shaped skirt with bustle bow swept into a full chapel train. Her fingertip veil of French illusion lace fell from a small headdress of embroidered Venetian lace and she carried a cascade bouquet of white orchids and stephanotis. A single strand of pearls was a gift from the bridegroom.

Miss Marcia Irene Tierney attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sondra Wieland of Fairfield, Conn., Miss Ethel Mason of Pawmoke, Md., Miss Patricia Fouhy of Floral Park, N. Y., and Miss Lorraine Katt of Ho-Ho-Kees, N. J. Their dress were of ballet blue silk organza fashioned with pleated off the shoulder neckline and ballerina length harem skirts. They wore matching pearl braided head bands and carried bouquets of pink garnet roses and delphinium.

Miss Patricia Tierney, sister of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a petal pink organdy with a Peter Pan collar and short sleeves. She wore a small matching head band and carried a nosegay of blue delphinium and tiny pink rosebuds.

Paul Antinori of Tampa was best man and serving as groomsmen-ushers were John P. Lenihan of Washington, D. C.; J. Michael Lynch, East Orange, N. J.; William R. Tierney, Jr., brother of the bride; William T. Redgate, Bridgeport, Conn.; and William G. Murphy, Jr., of Fairfield, a cousin of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Tierney were hosts at a reception and seated dinner in the Algonquin Club. When Mr. and Mrs. Ware left on a wedding trip to Nassau she wore a navy linen sheath dress with a matching coat of navy and white checked design with white accessories and a white orchid corsage. The young couple will be at home in Tampa.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Ware and their daughters, Linda, Jeanne and Dianne, left Tampa on August 13 to attend the wedding. The Wares were hosts at a Wedding Rehersal Dinner on August 15 for the wedding group at the famous Red Barn Country Inn in Bridgeport, Conn. They will spend some time sightseeing in New York City before returning to their home.

Earl Ware, Jr. attended schools in Avon Park before his family moved to Tampa. He later graduated from Notre Dame University and attended Georgetown University in Washington, D. C. earning a degree in Government and International Relations in 1958. He is a member of the firm of Ware Manufacturing Company in Tampa, Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Ware and their three children have visited often in Avon Park and have many friends here.

Post Office Department To Install New Processing System

The "Mail Magic" of the Post Office Department's new "Mail Flo" letter processing system will be installed in 9 additional post offices, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced today.

The "Mail Flo Letter Processing System" is a modern semi-automatic conveyor arrangement which moves letters between mail sorting areas on workroom floors of post offices with the least amount of time and effort.

The first Mail Flo began operations Dec. 4, 1956, in the Roosevelt Park Annex of the Detroit Post Office. It has proved to be a "tremendous success," Mr. Summerfield said, "enabling the Postal Service to handle the growing volume of mail more swiftly and at less expense to the taxpayer."

"Mail Flo helps the Post Office break the biggest bottleneck to speedier mail service—the time it now takes to get letters sorted in and out of post offices using present old-fashioned hand methods that haven't changed since Ben Franklin's day," Mr. Summerfield added.

The new Mail Flo systems scheduled for installation are:

1. Grand Central Station, New York City. A Mail Flo installation to handle 800,000 outgoing and 400,000 incoming letters an hour will be completed on Sept. 8, 1958, at a cost of $443,009.

2. Los Angeles Terminal Annex. Mail Flo scheduled to commence operations in this city Oct. 31, 1958. Cost is $1,652,000. Capacity is 1,266,000 outgoing and 945,000 incoming letters an hour. Automati. overhead handling facilities also process 1,183,200 pieces of lower priority mail, such as advertising circulars, which are handled in periods when first-class letters are not being processed.

3. Boston, South Postal Annex. Completion is expected by Mar. 30, 1959, at a cost of $1,614,854. Capacity will be 576,000 outgoing and 144,000 incoming letters an hour or 72,000 larger pieces and circulars an hour. Handling facilities for 960 circulars and larger mail pieces are also provided.

4. General Post Office, New York City. A Mail Flo section to handle outgoing mail will be completed March 1, 1959, at a cost of $1,239,942. Capacity will be 1,500,000 letters an hour or 140,000 larger pieces of mail an hour. An incoming section is to be installed during 1959, at an estimated cost of $1,200,000 with an approximate capacity of 1.3 million letters an hour.

5. Chicago, Main Post Office. The new incoming Mail Flo section here will be completed by Mar. 31, 1959, at a cost of $2,899,754. About 1¼ million letters an hour will be processed. Handling facilities for 1,100,000 circulars are also provided. An outgoing mail section will be built during 1959, at an estimated cost of $2,200,000. Its capacity will be 1,700,000 letters an hour.

6. Washington, D. C., Main Post Office. Completion is expected Nov. 6, 1959, at a cost of $1,158,000. Capacity of the system will be 600,000 outgoing and 520,000 incoming letters an hour. It will have handling facilities for 1,550,000 circulars.

(All of the above installations of Mail Flo are part of major renovations of these facilities and other improvements are projected.

7. Ogden, Utah, Postal Transportation Service Terminal. Bids are being solicited for installation of an addition to the existing Mail Flo system here in the fall of 1958, at an estimated cost of $120,000. The capacity will be 33,000 outgoing circulars an hour and 22,800 larger mail pieces known as "flats" an hour. Handling facilities will provide for 26,400 larger pieces and circulars.

(The Mail Flo system which will be the principal new installation at Ogden as well as at the two facilities below is being planned primarily for the handling of circulars and larger pieces of mail, since it is not anticipated that they will normally process large quantities of first-class letters.)

8. Morgan Annex (9th Ave. and 30th St.), New York City. This Mail Flo is to be completed Aug. 31, 1958, at a total cost of $60,000. The capacity is 30,000 outgoing circulars an hour and 24,000 larger pieces (flats) an hour.

9. Penn Postal Transportation Service Station, General Post Office, New York City. Mail Flo will be ready for operations on Oct. 31, 1958. Estimated cost is $120,000 and capacity 72,000 outgoing circulars an hour; 66,000 larger pieces an hour.

The pioneer Detroit installation currently handles approximately 1¾ million outgoing and 2 million incoming letters in an average day, plus about a million incoming and outgoing circulars.

Built on the relatively simple concept of using electronically controlled conveyor belts to move large volumes—an idea used in American industry for a number of years but first applied to the Post Office on a large scale with the Detroit installation—the Mail Flo "represents the start of an important evolution in mail handling methods without endangering the jobs of permanent career employees," Mr. Summerfield said. "Ultimately we hope to use it in many post offices all over the country."

Capitol Capsule . . .

By Don Meiklejohn

Tallahassee—There is an old story that you can juggle figures to prove about anything you want to prove.

The State Road Department apparently believes in this theory. They have slanted a factual report on interstate highway progress into a real "slam bang—rah! rah!, look what we done done" press release.

In a flowery "press handout", the road boys are bragging about how in "less than nine months" Florida has jumped in ranking from 38th to 11th place" among the states in funds "obligated" for construction of interstate highways.

The report goes on to tell about how Florida has "actually spent or obligated more than $88,653,000 on interstate projects involving 98 miles of multi-laned highways."

This would lead the reader of the handout to believe there has been some momentous road building done in the last nine months. Actually, it means that there has been a lot of paper work done—but litle road building.

The road boys were nice enough to attach a "status of progress" report to the press handout, and the true picture of Florida's progress in the interstate field can be gleaned from going through this report.

When the handout says, "obligated $88,653,000 on interstate projects involving 98 miles of multi-laned highways," it means:

1. We have completed 4.04 miles—most of it on the Jacksonville expressway.

2. We got another 37.85 miles under construction, but few of the projects are as much as 50 per cent complete.

3. We are buying land on another 49.3 miles.

4. We're gonna take bids pretty soon on 6.9 miles.

Of the 4.04 miles complete, all but 2.8 miles are on the Jacksonville expressway, and the other 2.8 miles is on a project that is so old that it qualified for only 60 per cent federal participation instead of the current 90 per cent.

It should be pointed out that the Jacksonville expressway project was launched as a bond project—70 million dollars worth backed up by tolls on bridges and gas tax money from Duval County—long before the real interstate highway program got underway.

These projects shouldn't be used to indicate progress on the interstate system.

Of the four projects completed, all are on a 60 per cent federal participation basis.

Now, checking the 15 projects that are listed as being "under construction," five of them are expressway projects.

Outside of expressway projects, the only other project that is listed as being more than 50 per cent complete is one in Polk County. This project, which is 85 per cent complete, also is so old that the old 60-40 federal aid financing was used.

Two other projects—outside of expressway projects—are listed as being 47 per cent complete, but they are both parts of larger projects and will be useless or next to useless until the other phases are complete.

One is the Mid-Bay Bridge between St. Petersburg and Tampa. The status reports show that the middle section is 47 per cent complete, but the east approach is only 13 per cent complete.

The other project—again outside the Jacksonville Expressway—that is listed as being 47 per cent complete also is a middle part of a bridge.

This is the 36th street causeway in Miami. The middle part is 47 per cent complete, but the west approach is zero per cent complete and the east approach was not bid on until last Tuesday.

Actually there is a pretty good reason for the road department not making too good a showing mileagewise on the interstate system.

It has been concentrating on the urban areas where it is hard to log big mileage and costs are high. But instead of stating the case in that way, they have used a meaningless figure like "funds obligated" to prove they are doing a red hot job.

If the theory of building roads first in the urban areas is justified, there is no need of hiding the fact in juggled figures.

Program For Peace

Claude Pepper, throughout his service in the Senate and especially after World War II fought for peace. In 1945 as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he made a visit to nineteen countries trying to find out how he could promote the cause of peace.

In his pursuit of peace he conferred with Winston Churchill in London, General DeGaulle in Paris, General Dwight D. Eisenhower in Frankfort, General Lucitus Clay in Berlin, General Joseph Stalin in Moscow, and leaders of the governments in the Middle East, Italy, Greece, Turkey, and Eastern Europe. He sought a basis of peace with Russia right after the war in which we had been Allies and while the United States had the atomic bomb and Russia did not have it.

Claude Pepper was one of those in the Senate who helped to set up the United Nations. He strongly supported it all the time he was in the Senate. He advocated the United Nations' sending a military mission to Greece and Turkey when they were threatened with Communist aggression. He supported the United Nations in going into Korea to stop Communist aggression. He believes now that the United Nations should be the police force to curb international crime and to preserve law and order in the world.

Believing that a hydrogen war would destroy civilization and inflict upon the world indescribable horror, Claude Pepper believes that an honorable peace is the crying need of our time. He has a four-point program for peace for which he will do everything in his power when he returns to the Senate, as follows:

1. Put new blood and a new point of view in our State Department. Review and revise our foreign police to lift the prestige of America abroad and to strengthen the unity of the peace-loving nations of the world.

2. Strengthen the defense of America by putting America ahead of Russia in missile and space weapon development and in so strengthening our other forces that Russia will dare not attack us here or anywhere in the world.

3. Strengthen and support the United Nations as the instrument of keeping the peace of the world.

4. Try to bring together the religious leaders of the world of all denominations and faiths with the hope that they can create the moral climate and the will for peace among the people of the world who would be destroyed by war.

Karen DeLaney Celebrates Eleventh Birthday

Karen DeLaney and some of her friends enjoyed a picnic and birthday party on Karen's eleventh birthday on Saturday afternoon, August 23rd, at the Florida Power Club House.

After swimming and playing games, the girls roasted their own weiners at the outdoor grill under the lovely pines. Mrs. R. P. DeLaney served her daughter's guest cold drinks, delicious homemade cookies, and all the trimmings.

Helping Karen celebrate her 11th birthday were Jo Ann Kelly, Patsy Martin, Janet Douberley, Sherry and Kim Wells, Cindy Metcalfe, Judy and Linda Wester, Bonnie Townsend, Trudy Mitchell, Joan Tootle, Beverly Giddens, and Tim DeLaney.

Some wand-waving is taking place hereabouts and Avon Park will soon have a Fairyland. 'Tis the little people who must be properly attired.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By JAMES E. HESS

The following article is meant to be a criticism, but an objective one. It is not the writer's intent to take sides in the matter of Unions. Such a discussion would necessitate far greater knowledge of the subject than this writer possesses. Rather, it is felt that a principle is involved when thousands are condemned for the actions of a very few.

In August 18th's issue of Life magazine a six page spread appeared depicting the terrorism of the Teamsters' Union. The article along with pictures, places a strong emphasis on the fact that the local unions are infested with ex-convicts and men with police records. The following is an illustration: "The most widely infested city in the Teamster empire is Philadelphia, where the union brass includes at least 35 men with police records. Local 107 alone has 19 such characters." The verbal illustration is reinforced with pictures of some twelve members of Local 107 and sixteen men who supposedly constitute a large segment of the "brass" making up one of this country's largest unions.

To this writer's mind the article places itself in a rather ridiculous light. Life goes to all the trouble to accumulate the above statistics and then goes on to point out the total membership of Local 107—a membership that runs over 14,000 strong. Out of these 14,000 men says Life, 19 have police records. A big fat .14 of one percent has been unfortunate enough to have been fingerprinted and mugged in one of Philadelphia's police stations. If the city of Brotherly Love is considered one of the most widely infested cities because about 1/10 of 1% of one of its locals have police records, then the Teamsters' can't be in too tough a shape from the prude's viewpoint who frowns on the idea of employing individuals with police records.

In order to get at one man, Jimmy Hoffa, Life is panning a whole organization. An organization who's total membership must run into the hundreds of thousands. The Magazine gives the very unpleasant impression that the union policy is in the dead wrong because it hires ex-convicts. Apparently it is Life's contention that the ex-convict doesn't have to work for a living."

We do not wish to go on record as standing up for Hoffa or any of his goon squad. On the contrary, if they have broken the law punishment is their just due. But we adamantly proclaim that it is criminally wrong to falsely lead the public into thinking that the whole organization it at fault. It is publicity of just such sensationalistic nature that we are so strongly opposed to. To sell their magazine they go to great lengths to give the impression of an expose—this is NOT journalism, but rather cheap sensationalism and insurance that the sucker will spend his two bits for a copy of Life.

This writer was at one time a member of a Teamsters' Local in Chicago. Through contact it was discovered that the local's members were a pretty tough and ready group of men. They had to be to make their livings as: truck drivers, taxi drivers, bus jockeys, etc. It's a tough way to make a buck—take it from one who knows. The union policy doesn't frown on taking a man that has served time and putting him to work. For this they are to be condemned? It is this writer's opinion that praise would be far more befitting.

The spread shows pictures of 28 men from all over the country and capitalizes on their records of arrests and the few convictions that are mentioned to further their inconclusive intimations that the Teamsters' are overrun with cut-throats, murderers, thiefs, strong arm thugs, etc. Their statements concerning the union brings to mind the false syllogism: The man robbed the bank . . . the man is a salesman . . . all salesmen are bank robbers.

Several of us got quite a laugh out of the article until we saw the possible harm that such journalistic drivel could do. Unfortunately, the Public is characterized by having that commodity known as human nature. It is certainly natural and pretty much an accepted fact that many people will believe almost anything they see in print, especially in a nationally popular magazine. All we can ask is that you think a little and read between the lines. Don't take sensationalistic tripe at face value.

Miss Doris Rocker Weds Clement Alden McFarland August 10 In Ga.

On Sunday afternoon, August 10, Miss Doris Rocker and Clement Alden McFarland were united in marriage at an impressive ceremony taking place in the First Baptist Church of Statesboro, at 4:30 o'clock. The Rev. R. T. Smith, pastor, officiated.

The altar, covered with white satin, held a central massive arrangement of white gladioli, white chrysanthemums and mums, on a white column and on either side were smaller columns with identical arrangements. Four, seven-branched cathedral candelabra holding white candles and entwined with minature ivy and clusters of large icy leaves, interspersed the central decorations. The background was formed of stately Jade fern trees. The choir rail was banked with jade fern and white candles. The reserved pews were designated by a spray of white gladioli centered by a large white chrysanthemum and tied with white and pale green cut satin bows. The same white and green effect was used on the satin covered steps leading to the prie-Dieu and kneeling bench.

The wedding music was presented by Mrs. E. L. Barnes, organist, and Dr. Jack Averitt who sang, "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee", by Gounod; "When I Have Sung My Songs To You", by Charles; and "O' Perfect Love".

Mrs. McFarland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Rocker, of Statesboro. Mr. McFarland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. McFarland of Avon Park.

The honor attendant, Miss Patricia Rocker, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids, Miss Charlott Blitch of Statesboro, Miss Jane Shadron of Bradenton, Fla., and Miss Jo Ann King of Monks Corner, S. C., were gowned identically in mint green ballerina sheaths of chantilly lace with harem over-skirts of matching taffeta and bandeaus of leaves and seed pearls in matching shades. They carried crescent bouquets of white glamelias and miniature ivy, tied with pale green satin ribbon. Usher-groomsmen were David and Paul McFarland, brothers of the groom, F. M. Lide of Augusta, Ga., cousin of the groom and Norman Cavender. Mr. McFarland was his son's best man.

The radiantly lovely bride entered the church and was given in marriage by her father, Alvin Rocker, wearing an exquisite gown of chantilly lace and net. The tight fitted bodice featured a sweetheart neckline outlined in lace scallops. The long sleeves ended in points over the wrists. The bouffant skirt swept into a chapel train with cascades of alternate lace and net. The gown was encrusted with embroidery of sequins and seed pearls. Her three-tiered veil of silk illusion fell from a half-Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet was Stephanotis and feathered white carnations centered with a white orchid.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Rocker, chose a sheath of rose chantilly lace fashioned with a jacket effect in the back with flat bow of faille and matching bandeau of feathers. Mrs. McFarland, the groom's mother, was attired in dior blue chantilly lace with matching accessories and a purple throated orchid.

Immediately following the wedding the bride's parents entertained at an elaborate reception in the Banquet Room of Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen. Mrs. C. M. Mathison greeted the guest and they were introduced to the receiving line by Mrs. Kermit Carr. In the line were, Mr. and Mrs. Rocker, Mr. and Mrs. McFarland, the bride anad groom and lady attendants. The bride's table was overlaid with an organdy and lace cloth over white satin, centered by the four-tiered wedding cake topped with a bride and groom. Two beautiful arrangements in silver compote were of white snapdragons, white althea, gypsophila and green grapes. Directly behind the table was a white wrought iron arch entwined, with miniature ivy and topping this were double wedding bells, with showers of narrow pale green and white satin ribbon. On the serving table were triple arrangements of white snapdragons, althea and rubrum lilies and ivy. Encircling the punch bowl was ivy and green grapes.

Assisting serving were, Misses Jane Beaver, Willett Woodcock, Cecelia Anderson, Mrs. Jan Richardson, Mrs. Sam Brown and Mrs. Harry Brunson.

When Mr. and Mrs. McFarland left later in the afternoon for a wedding trip, Mrs. McFarland changed to a gray silk tween chemise with mock jacket in front, with flat bow at waist of jocket, new stand-away collar and three-quarter length sleeves. With this she wore gun-metal accessories and a white feathered hat and the orchid from her wedding bouquet.

KITCHEN SHOWER

Mrs. Sam Brown and Mrs. C. M. Mathison were hostesses on Wednesday at a lovely Shower-Luncheon at Mrs. Bryant's Kitchen, honoring Miss Doris Rocker, bride-elect of August 10.

The long table held a tray filled with fresh fruit. Miscellaneous items which Doris would find useful for her kitchen, were placed at intervals down the full length of the table, each article tied with green and white satinribbon. A bun warmer was the hostesses' gift to the honoree.

SUPPER HONOREES

Friday evening Miss Doris Rocker and her fiance, Clement McFarland, were central figures at a supper party given by Mrs. Brannen Richardson at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Whelchel on College Boulevard. Summer flowers and native foliage decorated the home.

The table was covered with a cranberry colored cloth with the center piece formed of caladium leaves. The delectable supper consisted of grilled chicken, stuffed potatoes, chef salad, iced tea, hors d'oeuvres, french bread and lemon chiffon pie. The honorees were presented a set of Libby glasses by their hostess.

Doris was lovely wearing a black sheath, featuring boat neckline, with back treatment of loose panels of chiffon extending from the shoulders to hemline.

BRIDESMAIDS LUNCHEON

Mrs. Kermit Carr entertained at the Bridesmaids Luncheon on Saturday, August 9, at her home on Jones Avenue. Her color scheme was pink and white, using arrangements of pink and white carnations.

A delicious salad plate was served, with home made peach ice cream and cake and pink mints. Guests were seated at individual tables covered with pink cloths. Silver slippers holding pink carnations marked the seating of her guests.

Floating pearl necklaces were presented her attendants by Miss Rocker.

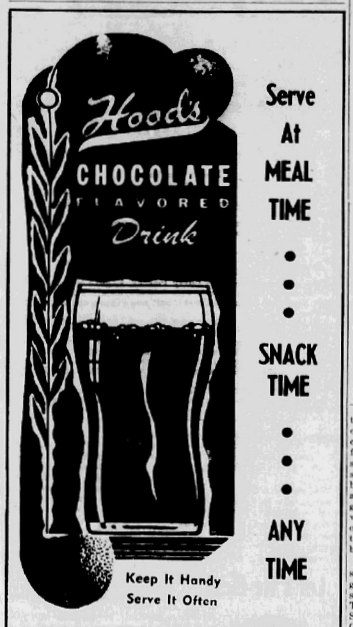
WEDDING PARTY FEATED

A buffet supper on the terrace of the Forest Heights Country Club at 8:30 Saturday evening, followed the wedding rehearsal of Miss Doris Rocker, and Clement Alden McFarland. The supper was given by the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. A. McFarland of Avon Park, Florida. The color motif for this party was green and white. The tables were "U" shaped. The place cards were white, edged with silver. At intervals the entire length of the table, were miniature white bride and groom figurines. Marking the seating of the bride and groom-elect, was a wedding bell arrangement. Nylon tulle bags filled with rice were favors. A lovely fruit arrangement centered the buffet table.

Mosaic Trays From Linoleum

Resembling a jig saw puzzle, but much easier to complete, is this do-it-yourself mosaic-linoleum tile tray. ABOVE: Snips of linoleum, cut from 9-inch-square tiles, are secured with a white glue which dries clear. RIGHT: The finished tray is attractive, easy to clean, and resistant to hard wear.

Bright, colorful mosaic trays that are durable and practical can be made easily by even the inexperienced craftsman merely by substituting linoleum for the usual ceramic tiles.



Linoleum, readily available in 9-inch squares and in a variety of colors, is easy to cut with scissors when warm. Also, it's inexpensive.

Other than the tray itself, which can be an old one found around the house or one made from a piece of finished wood with strips of wood attached to form raised edges, all that is required for the 8-inch by 14½-inch "lobster" model shown here is the following: 4 squares of linoleum, each a different color—red, peach, black, and ivory; model cement (grout); a squeeze bottle of "Elmer's Glue-All," and some paste wax.

Use this lobster pattern from McCall's Needlework & Crafts Magazine, which also features two other designs plus detailed instructions in the Fall-Winter issue now available at pattern counters and most newsstands, for crafts designs of your own invention.

Then glue appropriately colored bits of linoleum within the outline, leaving a ¼-inch space between the "tiles." When the white glue has dried, mix the grout to a thick, creamy consistency. Pour it over the surface and rub it into the cracks with an old paint brush. Then wipe the surface with clean rags. Allow the grout to dry for 48 hours. Coat the surface with paste wax and rub well, for a glossy finish.

If an old tray is used, the surface first should be sanded slightly, especially if it is painted or made of metal. If you make a new wooden tray, the edges and the bottom should be painted black after the job is finished.

HOLLAND
YOUR U. S. SENATOR

HOLLAND'S SENATE VOTING RECORD 97.7%

His opponent's Senate voting record 76%

Who deserves your vote for U. S. Senator? Spessard Holland, with his 97.7% voting record and who stays on the job ALL the time? Or his opponent, who averaged a poor record of voting 76% of the time in the 79th, 80th and 81st Congresses. In fact, Holland's opponent missed 52% of the votes in one session, 47% in another.

Senator Holland has never failed to take a stand on important issues in the Senate. But his opponent did fail to vote on many issues when it suited his political ambitions to do so. Why did he fail the people of Florida? Where was he?

This voting record tells a big story. It's the story of one Senator who faithfully performs his duty to you and to his State . . . and of a former Senator who neglected his job and was defeated because of it.

Senator Holland has given sincere, dedicated service to Florida and the nation. His 97.7% voting record, one of the highest in the Senate for that entire period, shows that he stays on the job, exercises his sound judgment, and reflects the will of those he was elected to represent. Such a loyal public servant merits retention by the people of Florida.

Vote for and support Senator Spessard HOLLAND . . . YOUR U. S. Senator.

Tallahassee—In the middle was a tower, manned by a guard.

Around it, walking in an endless circle, were 500 to 600 men.

They walked 15 minutes and sat down 15 minutes.

They called it the "grist mill."

This was the scene at Raiford prison a little more than a year ago. The object: To keep the prisoners busy.

Now these same men, . . or men like them are in a prison without bars. . . a prison where the guards carry no guns.

The place: Avon Park prison, located about 10 miles east of Avon Park, at the south end of Lake Arbuckle, in Highlands County.

Until a little more than a year ago, it was an old Air Force Base, but now it is a tribute to an experiment in penology in Florida.

The man behind the change is R. O. Culver, director of the Division of Corrections. The new look is based on Culver's 25 years as a federal prison expert. Although friendly, Culver is not a codler.

He is tough, but realistic.

As a former federal prison warden, Culver knew about the unused Avon Park facility, and he made arrangements for the state to use it.

To head the "new institution," Culver picked a young man—L. L. Wainwright, who has compiled a fine record as Captain, of the guards at Raiford.

His immediate objective was to cut down the prison population at Raiford, which just a few months before had been rocked by rioting prisoners.

At the same time, he was confident that by using proper classification of prisoners that a minimum security prison such as Avon Park would work.

Although the concept was new to Florida, Culver had seen it work in other places.

At present, there are 650 prisoners at Avon Park, and instead of a temporary "stop-gap" facility, Culver hopes to make it a permanent installation. He is dickering with the Air Force for the title to some land nearby for a permanent facility.

At the same time, backed up by a good classification program, the "no gun policy" is being carried into some of the other institutions, and recently several state road camps were designated as "minimum security camps."

Will there be more escapes?

The record at Avon Park and other similar facilities says, "No."

With proper classification of prisoners, the percentage of escapes is more likely to decrease than increase. At Avon Park there hasn't been an escape in almost a year.

The reason seems to be morale. As Culver puts it, "There is nothing worse for a man's morale than the grist mill. There is nothing constructive for him to do."

At Avon Park, the prisoners have been kept busy renovating and cleaning up the old camp—a job with a purpose.

The key to the whole program is classification. About 400 new prisoners are received at Raiford each month. The first step, is to undergo a thorough classification. This includes, physical and mental tests, along detailed checks into each prisoners background and individual ability.

For the younger prisoners who measure up, there is the Apalachee Correctional Institution—but until Avon Park was established the only place for older prisoners or prisoners with physical disabilities such as a bumn leg or back was the grist mill—15 minutes walking—15 minutes sitting—15 minutes walking—15 minutes sitting — around and around in an endless circle.

Perhaps, the attitude of the prisoners at Avon Park is best expressed by an inmate, who writes a weekly column for the Avon Park Sun.

He wrote recently, The knowledge that a careless move may precipitate a rain of death dealing slugs is a punishment too much to expect of civilized man."

"The theory that a shot gun will stop an individual from running is false."

"The human mind is capable of absorbing only as much stress and then something must give."

"The fear of being shot while trying to escape becomes less than the fear of continued passive existance under the yawning muzzles."

"A removal of the source of tension logically removes the tension. In a state of comparative mental calm, the individual becomes receptive to treatment in the form of understanding guidance and the induction of new ideas, thus rehabilitation a reality, rather than just the pipe dream of some far sighted penologists."

As for Culver himself, he says, "For the first time, I think we are beginning to see some daylight. We have the cure, but not the remedy."

This is just one phase of Florida's prison reform—but it is a significant one—one that will pay dividends in the years to come.

Ideal Meal For Entertaining

Here is an ideal meal for entertaining which can be prepared in advance and stored in the new gas refrigerator until ready to serve. The meal consists of Baked Virginia Ham garnished with branded fruits, rotisseried chicken stuffed with wild rice, and Mango Tropicale (mango stuffed with curried crabmeat and garnished with fresh shrimp). Add Baked Alaska Supreme for dessert, and you have lovely Julia Meade's favorite refrigerated party foods. Julia is hostess on the gas industry's award-winning TV dramatic series, "Playhouse 90."

Mango Tropicale

2 Mangoes
1 lb. Crabmeat Lumps
1-1/2 Cups of Boiled Rice
4 oz. Cooked Spinach
12 Filets of Anchovies, chopped fine
16 Cooked and de-veined Shrimp
2 Cups Mayonnaise
2 Teaspoons Curry Powder
1 Teaspoon Dry English Mustard
4 Teaspoons Worcestershire Sauce
1 Lemon quartered
1 Large Tomato sliced
Salt and Pepper

Take a mixing bowl—add Curry Powder, English Mustard and Worcestershire Sauce and mix well. Add Mayonnaise slowly. After sauce is well mixed, add Crabmeat, Salt and Pepper, and fill peeled Mangoes.

Mix the Cold Rice with chopped Spinach, Anchovies, Salt and Pepper, and mould or shape into large oval.

Arrange the Mangoes in the center of a platter. Place the rice mould at one end and sliced tomatoes and quartered lemon at the other end. Split shrimps in half and garnish them around the Mangoes. Serve Mayonnaise seasoned with Curry, Mustard and Worchestershire Sauce on the side.

Keep refrigerated in RCA Whirlpool gas refrigerator until ready to serve, then garnish entire platter with crescent-shaped ice cubes for decorative effect.

RE-ELECT

Mannin Kirkland

TO

CITY ELECTION SEPTEMBER 9, 1958

I have served 5 terms on the Council and if re-elected I promise to do my best for the growth and development of Avon Park.

I Will Appreciate Your Vote.

(Paid Political Advertisement)

RE-ELECT

HENRY G. BAILEY

MEMBER OF HIGHLANDS COUNTY BOARD OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION—DISTRICT 5

I have served on this board for more than seven years, and I am thoroughly familiar with the problems we have encountered and overcome in the past and with the plans for future development and improvements in our school system.

I am a native-born Floridian. I am married and have two daughters who are being educated in the Public Schools of Highlands County. Being thoroughly familiar with the problems facing our schools today, I am vitally interested in the schools of this county.

Being a businessman and property owner, I am familiar with and sympathetic to the tax load that the property owners are carrying today. I will continue to strive to get a full measure of goods and services for each dollar of school funds.

Highlands County is a fast-growing county, and I feel that our excellent school system is partially responsible for this growth.

A VOTE for Henry G. Bailey is a vote for a continuing and progressive school system in Highlands County.

Your Vote and Support Will Be Appreciated.

Strassberger - Shepard Vows Exchanged Tuesday, August 19

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR WILLIAM SHEPARD

Before an altar banked with taffeta gown with a chiffon and palms and feathery plums of net over skirt with an off the bamboo, Miss Patricia Jean shoulder rolled neckline. Her Strassberger and Arthur William head piece was a matching band-Shepard were united in marriage eaux and she carried a bouquet on Tuesday evening, August 19th of yellow roses.
at 7:30 in the Union Congregational Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kempton and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Shepard, both of Avon Park.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Herbert A. Graetz who read the vows in front of a lattice screen of palms and bamboo flanked by tall standing baskets of white gladioli. Adding to the beauty of the church was the soft candlelight from the two large candelabra in front of the altar and from the four white shadow boxes in which were silver candelabra with long white tapers arranged across the front of the church.

Mrs. Edna Jackson presented a program of nuptial music before the ceremony. Mrs. John Garber sang "Oh Promise Me" and "Because". "The Wedding Prayer" was sung by Mrs. Richard Backus at the close of the ceremony.

The lovely bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length traditional wedding gown of white satin with a lace over skirt and sweeping train. A fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline and wrist length sleeves. Her fingertip veil fell from a dainty cap of seed pearls. The beautiful wedding gown was designed and made by Mrs. Robert Harden with the bride's assistance. She carried a white Bible topped with a white orchid and sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Faran Snedeker, Jr. of Orlando, served her sister as matron of honor. She wore a yellow

Mrs. Richard Backus, of Frostproof, was bridesmaid and Miss Delores Stokey, Miss Betty Shepard, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Linda Hart were bridesmaids. They wore gowns identical to Mrs. Snedeker's in ballet blue with matching head pieces and bouquets of yellow roses. Little Miss Mary Elva Sherertz, niece of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a dress of yellow organdy over taffeta.

Nelson Butler served as best man and ushers were Wayne and Bryan Kempton, brothers of the bride, and Jimmie Bennett and Dale Landress. Walter Kempton, young brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a full skirted pearl gray dress featuring a low neckline and long sleeves with ruffles at the wrist and neckline. She wore a corsage of red roses. Mrs. Shepard, mother of the bridegroom, chose a blue dress with a white panel of lace and short sleeves for her son's wedding. Her corsage was also of red roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the social hall of the church. The bride's book was presided over by Mrs. Jimmie Pravett at a table attractively and originally decorated with a silver tray in which reposed the bride's going-away shoes, gloves, and festive hat.

The bride's table, covered with a white cloth, held a four tiered wedding cake topped with a small wedding couple. The table was set against a background of palms and bamboo and two tall baskets of white gladioli. The bride's bouquet was use as table decoration. Mrs. John Crittenden and Miss Sandra Kelsey served cake to the guest. Mrs. Joe Franza and Miss Mary Lou Roberts served colorful fruit punch from a crystal punch bowl which was surrounded by the bridesmaids' bouquets. Mrs. Robert Harden assisted with the planning and direction of the wedding.

For a wedding trip to the Florida beaches, Mrs. Shepard wore a beige polished sheath dress embroidered with beige and aqua with an aqua duster and matching accessories. Her corsage was a white orchid. Arthur Shepard will return to duty with the U. S. Marine Corps in Jacksonville, and Mrs. Shepard will remain in Avon Park for the present.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. W. H. Kempton, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Adlyn Ward, Mrs. Evelyn Brennan, and Mrs. Robert Reitz of Holly Hill, Florida.

Safety Scores At the Half

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

TRAFFIC SAFETY is receiving "the old college try" these days at many campuses throughout the country.

Miss Smith

Students at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa, for instance, have staged several safety demonstrations during football games when, as one campus leader put it, "We have a captive audience."

At one game last season, three police squad cars lined up at the goal post during half time to attract the attention of spectators.

An announcement over the loudspeaker informed students that they were about to see the distance it takes to stop a car at various speeds.

When a siren sounded teams of students picked up the ends of eight - foot - wide canvas strips piled in front of each car and went into action.

For a stopping distance at 20 miles per hour, one strip was pulled out 15 yards—for 40 mph, a strip was pulled to the 50 yard line (150 feet) and for 60 mph, the third strip was pulled the full length of the football field.

During another game, fans were surprised to learn at halftime that tires, glass area, sideview mirrors, etc., on their cars had been safety checked by a team of students during the first half . . . more than 200 cars were inspected in the stadium parking lot.

Another half-time safety feature was a driving "ponies" in front of the grandstand. Teats included straight-line driving, backing, stopping and parking. Participants were judged by a group of students.

Highlands Has Record Enrollment Of 3,744; Avon Park Has 1,449 Students

The largest school enrollment in the history of Highlands County was reached Tuesday morning when 3,744 white and Negro children attended the opening day of the 1958-59 school term. The enrollment for all Avon Park Schools reached a new high of 1,449.

Avon Park led in the total white enrollment with 1,179, including 510 students in the junior-senior high schools. Sebring was second with 1,129, of which 545 are in the high schools. Lake Placid was third with 431, including 171 in junior-senior high schools. De-Soto City elementary had 152 pupils, thus giving a total of 2,891 enrollment in the white schools.

The Negro enrollment was 853 an increase of 31 over last year. Hopewell had an enrollment of 270 students in grades 1 through nine.

Fred Wild, Superintendent, said that bids for the additional rooms to be built at the Hopewell School will be sought soon.

R. B. Wilhite, Supervising Principal of the Avon Park Area Schools, announces that when Vincent Barnard reports to the high school Friday all the teacher's posts will be filled.

The high school got off to a fine start Tuesday morning with opening exercises in the auditorium and a special number by the High School Band. Noon classes were shortened in order to get all students lined up in proper classes but the afternoon classes were on regular schedule. The tentative opening time for the Junior Senior High Schools will be 8:15 a. m. instead of 8:10 as it was last year and school will be dismissed at 3 o'clock instead of 3:06 p. m.

Ran into Edna Pierce Lock recently. Mrs. Lock, erstwhile prominent figure in politics and native Floridian has spent a lot of time commuting between her former home on the Kissimmee river and London, England, where her husband is in business.

London has the same problem as California . . . Smog! But they are working to control it, as they have to a great extent in Pittsburgh.

As to the weather in London, it would be unfair to quote Edna, because actually, she said not a word. Well just say it's jolly well chilly, old chappie, and be glad we have something that gives a nice guy like Dick Pope, of Cypress Gardens something to work on in his present project . . . which is SOS, meaning, Spread Our Sunshine. More about this when the thermometer drops.

Fire Chief Giddens was put right back into action first thing Tuesday morning after his vacation. The fire was not too serious but the drivers of both fire trucks had a couple of near misses while dodging motorists as they entered the intersection on the Sun corner. Watch out for the corners at the sound of sirens.

It was real noisy for a few moments what with brakes screeching and sirens wailing.

If you want to see the latest in dairy operation drive out to Dressel Brothers Dairy Farm some evening and watch the cows being milked about 5:30.

You can watch the milk as it bubbles through glass tubes into the huge tank for cooling, about a thousand gallons a day. This glass is so strong that it can be used as a hammer to pound a two-penny nail into wood.

Very fancy are the plastic anklets that the cows wear for identification and to keep the records straight. The same number which appears on the anklet is also tatood on the bovines ear.

HEADS SUGAR 'N SPICE FOLLIES: The dynamic young man in the picture is Tom Chatham of the Cerome Cargill Producing Organization of New York and director of "Sugar and Spice", the Junior Woman's Club Follies. Tom was born in Texas and has been with Cargill since 1950 and is now a senior director. He has had threatrical experience of all types, T.V., movies, and the legitimate theatre. Miss Patt Lagoni seated, and Mrs. Mannin Kirkland are general chairmen for the follies. Both of these lovely ladies have been president of the club and are hard and valuable workers. With these three working together the production goes full steam ahead.

Ridge Area Day School Opens For 2nd School Year

The doors of the Ridge Area Day School in King's Court opened Tuesday for its second year of operation. The school is sponsored jointly by the Ridge Area Association for Retarded Children and the Highlands School Board. Four pupils were present Tuesday but more were expected to be enrolled within the next few weeks, according to Mrs. Maxine DeLahunty, principal Children will be referred to the Day School by county teachers in the regular schools and by Mrs. Orpha Brown, county coordinator of special education. Mrs. Brown has estimated that enrollment at the Day School will probably reach ten to twelve.

The Day School presented a neat appearance at school opening thanks to the City of Avon Park, who again graciously donated the use of the building, and members of the Florida Power Steam Plant Employees' Club. Members of the FPC Club who worked diligently in painting and mowing to ready the school were: Floyd Wells, Arlin King, C. I. Wells, A. L. Kelly, Charles Warrington and R. F. Hardin.

Last year the Day School served pupils from Hardee and Desoto counties as well as Highlands. This year both of the other counties have started schools for the mentally retarded of their counties and the Ridge Area Day School will serve only Highlands.

Because of the interest in the Day School shown by the civic clubs throughout the county, financing the operation of the school this year will not be too great a problem. A fund drive will be held in November to coincide with National Retarded Children's Week. One of the primary backers of the School, the Avon Park Junior Women's Club, is presenting a local talent follies, "Sugar 'n Spice", on September 12 and 13 for the benefit of the Ridge Area Day School and the Avon Park Youth Center.

Campaign Paths Slated To Cross In Senate Race

The campaign paths of former U. S. Sen. Claude Pepper and Sen. Spessard Holland may cross at least four times in the final days of the race for the nomination in the Democratic Senatorial primary of Sept. 9.

Holland has steadfastly declined Pepper's offer to meet on the same platform and debate and issues of the campaign but both candidates have been invited to three rallies and a dinner during the next several days.

Two of the rallies are on Saturday, August 30, in Broward County. The Oakland Park Lions Club will hold its rally at 2 p. m. The West Hollywood Democratic Club will hold a similar event at 7:30 p. m.

The dinner to which both Pepper and Holland have been invited is being sponsored by the Tampa Junior Chamber of Commerce on Thursday evening, Sept. 4.

The third rally, which will be televised, is slated for Sept. 6 in front of the Tampa Tribune Building.

Pepper's plans for the closing stretch of the campaign includes a stepped-up schedule of television and radio appearances as the candidate continues to criss-cross the state to meet the voters.

He will begin the last week of the campaign by spending Monday, Sept. 1, in the Pan-

Pepper Sees Sure Win In Senate Race

Former Senator Claude Pepper, entering the home stretch in his race to beat our Senator Spessard Holland for Florida's contested seat in the United States Senate, foresees an overwhelming victory for his campaign.

"In my twenty five years of Campaigning throughout the State of Florida, I can definitely state I've never received a more friendly and enthusiastic reception from people everywhere." Pepper declared.

Pepper based his optimistic outlooked not only on his personal observations garnered from his whirlwind campaigning which has taken him into every nook and cranny of the State, but also, "from the reports we receive constantly from the daily press."

Papers in the North and Western parts of the State, Pepper said, have been putting him far ahead of his oppenent. He pointed specifically to an article in the Tampa Tribune, which he noted had endorsed Holland, as stating:

"West Florida politicians re-

Our Claude And The Little Man

A fellow with a sense of humor could get quite a bang out of all Claude Pepper's talk about how he's for the "little man" and Senator Holland is only for the "big man."

That's probably the oldest line in American politics, but some of us never learn to avoid its hook.

Claude has it well-baited this time.

He talks about all those "fat cats" who are supporting Holland, and we forget to look at those "little men" who have popped the maximum $1,000 each into Pepper's own campaign fund. He lists several Monday. We don't know who all of them are, but anybody who can give $1,000, and another $1,000 from his wife, isn't a little man" in our book. Such contributions are strictly all right, but let's not be fooled about the economic of political size of the person who's giving them.

And all these things Claude is going to do for our little people:

He finds taxation a burden to them and says, "Taxes can be reduced when non-essential government spending is stopped and government is made more efficient." This we applaud, and note that Senator Holland has been working hard with a minority group in Washington to convince some of Pepper's old

Censorship Through Taxation

Ask anyone what the Internal Revenue Service is and you'll get some such answer as this: "It's a Federal administrative agency, whose duty is to collect taxes as provided in revenue laws passed by Congress."

But the Internal Revenue Service is going far afield from its proper and established function. It is, in effect, setting itself up as a censor of what enterprises and organizations may say in their advertising, on pain of heavy tax penalties. It is also making decisions that are purely within the province of business management.

Here is the remarkable and menacing story.

Internal Revenue Service has ruled that electric utility companies cannot regard the cost of institutional advertising, which presents their side of the public-vs-private power controversy, as a legitimate business expense, deductible in income tax returns.

Internal Revenue Service has also ruled that the cost of literature opposing socialism issued by one of the country's most respected professional organizations, the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, is not exempt from tax.

Internal Revenue Service has also disallowed public relations advertising placed over a four-year period by the Timken Roller Bearing Company. This advertising discussed the Bill of Rights, Capitalism vs. Socialism, principles of taxation, and other such matter.

In other words, Internal Revenue Service holds that advertising designed to sell products or service is a legitimate business deduction—but that advertising designed to maintain an economic and political climate in which private enterprise may successfully produce those products and services is not. It is attempting to muzzle the right of people to speak their minds freely and without penalty—and, in doing that, to prevent other people from knowing and weighing both sides of controversies.

If Internal Revenue Service's incredible stand is maintained, no one will be immune. Anyone may be faced with the choice of accepting bureaucratic censorship—or of paying a heavy penalty for exerting absolutely basic rights which are supposed to be guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. This is one of the ways in which dictatorship begins.

National Newspaper Week

This country has something of a mania for "weeks" and "days" celebrating all manner of things and occasions from the sublime to the ridiculous. But some of the observances are far above the common ruck, and deserve the public's interest and attention.

This is certainly the case with National Newspaper Week, October 1 - 8. Its theme is "Your Newspaper Guards Your Freedoms." And that's more than just a felicitous little slogan. It's a fact. A free press is the most potent weapon against tyranny and persecution than any nation can possess.

Dictators always take over the press as soon as they gain power and pervert it to their own ends. That's only logical. For dictatorship can't stand the freedom of expression and debate a free press stands solidly for.

"There Must Be A Change"

People hould wake up and demand that Congress stop its spending spree.

That urgent need is emphasized by a member of Congress itself—Representative Byrnes of Wisconsin. And he doesn't feel he is fighting a lost cause. He says: "I think there is always the hope that when people start to understand—and the people must be made to understand where we are—there will be a change in the attitude. There must be a change. . .

"And I am sure Congress will be responsive to a feeling for economy on the part of the people. I have not given up the fight and I am still going to exert every effort I can to bring economy into our government."

Congressman Byrnes' statement of principle could not have come at a better time. It now looks as if the Federal deficit for this fiscal year will be at least $12 billion. The debt ceiling has been raised again—to $288 billion—and there is a definite possibility another increase will be requested next year. The last Congress, like its predecessors, made huge appropriations for which there was little if any justification. For instance, it voted to give the Atomic Energy Commission twice as much money for the construction of atomically-fueled electric projects as the Administration asked for.

Congressman Byrnes said the plain hard truth in five words: "There must be a change."

Simple Matter

The increased charges for the carrying of first, second and third class mail were sparked by the necessity of giving postal workers a long-overdue pay boost. Had the boost been given and the old charges retained the postoffice deficit would have reached an intolerable point—about a billion a year.

The new rates, however, will not and are not designed to wipe out the deficit. They will simply hold it in check. It will still come to several hundreds of millions of dollars annually.

This being the case (at a time when the total government deficit threatens to pass $10 billion), it is certainly the part of wisdom and plain common sense to take another important step in reducing postoffice losses.

That step lies in upward adjustment in parcel post charges, which were not changed by the new law. Parcel post—a purely commercial service which is directly competitive with taxpaying private carriers of goods—has long been operated at a deficit, even though the law authorizing it specifically provided that it was to pay its own way. Various authoritative studies—including that of the second Hoover Commission—have pointed to the need for putting the service on a self-sustaining basis.

It's a simple matter. Let those who use parcel post pay for what they get—instead of depending on the rest of us to pay part of this postage bill.

"Not Charity, But A Chance"

There are many splendid charitable organizations in this country and their work is of the utmost value. But there are numbers of handicapped people whose need is for employment within the limits of their physical or mental capabilities, rather than outright aid. Goodwill Industries, which operates in more than 100 American and many foreign cities, is geared to meet that need.

Its slogan is "Not Charity, But A Chance." Its plan is as effective as it is simple—to create joobs and provide training for handicapped people out of the repairing of contributed clothing and household articles. These materials are collected from homes and household articles. These materials are collected from homes and brought to its workshops. There they are made usable and sold, and the handicapped receive the proceeds.

Goodwill Industries, in sum, helps people to help themselves. It is a non-profit organization, operating under special provisions of the Federal wage-hour law. It is bringing new life and hope to multitudes of unfortunates.

Long Way To Go

The 85th Congress deserves the praise of the whole country for the transportation legislation it framed and passed after exhaustive hearings.

It repealed the unjust and inflationary World War II excise tax on the transportation of freight. This will save shippers some $500 million a year and be of benefit to consumers everywhere.

Of top importance, it approved the Transportation Act of 1958. This makes positive and long-needed contributions to sound national transportation policy and to the relief of their present serious state of physical and financial health.

At the same time, as the president of the Association of American Railroads points out, the measures thus taken, welcome as they are, should not be regarded "as the solution of all, or even the most serious, of the problems confronting our essential common carriers."

Congress itself has wisely recognized that fact. It did so by authorizing the appointment of a panel of experts to study and report, with recommendations for future action, on important transportation problems not yet resolved. The subjects to be so investigated include the need for regulation for transportation in the present age; the question of government assistance to various forms of transportation; the desirability of a system of charges for the use of publicly-provided facilities by transportation agencies, and the subject of ownership of one form of transportation by another.

Congress has made a praiseworthy start in dealing with transportation problems, but it still has a long way to go. To quote the Association's president again: "Until the last of these major problems is resolved, railroads will continue their efforts in behalf of sound national transportation policy and fair and equal opportunity for all forms of transportation."

Shouldering A Bigger Job

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—the March of Dimes organization—has changed its name and announced an expanded health program.

Hereafter it will be called the National Foundation. It will tackle a far bigger job than polio.

Here is The National Foundation's new concept:

It will become "an organized voluntary force in the fields of medical research, patient care and professional education, with specific goals, but flexible enough to meet new health problems as they arise."

Research will be at the heart of this new concept. It will expand its virus-disease explorations, and extend investigations into disorders of the central nervous system. But if scientists find new leads for solving other human afflictions, they will be encouraged to pursue them.

To polio, The National Foundation will now add the No. 1 U. S. crippler—arthritis—and birth defects, the major childhood health problem.

It will help train more medical workers—doctors, researchers, nurses, therapists, medical social workers—sorely needed to send the disabled back to their homes and jobs.

This news, coming from the health organization that gave us the Salk vaccine against paralytic polio, will bring hope to millions of sufferers. Arthritis tortures anywhere from 11 to 30 million people in the U. S. Their loss in working hours and income runs into billions of dollars. As for birth defects, some 250,000 American babies are born each year malformed.

So when The National Foundation says it will seek "the causes, remedies and preventies of these afflictions," we can expect results.

This does not mean that polio will be neglected. The National Foundation still pledges patient aid to polio victims. It still urges vaccination. With two out of every five persons under 40 still unvaccinated, polio isn't finished yet.

If you are one of those upvaccinated, don't delay another day. Only when EVERYBODY has had the complete series of three Salk shots will The National Foundation be ready to shoulder its big new job.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By JAMES E. HESS

Avon Park Prison may be credited with another first in the advancement of modern penology. To the best of this writer's knowledge the APP Dopester, this Institution's inmate publication, is the only panel publication in existence that is written, printed and distributed amongst the population without censorship of any kind. The inmates are justifiably proud of this fact. Just the psychological advantage of knowing that they have one media of expressing themselves with complete liberty is tremendous. On the staff or "flag" page of the Dopester are written the words: "Opinions expressed by the editor, staff, or contributors do not necessarily concur with those of Institution or other State Official. Edited and published as a phase of the overall training and rehabilitation program of the Institution."

Few people are actually aware of the closely knit organization known as "The Penal Press." Its members are composed of publications from penal institutions all over the world. To different degrees, their primary purpose is single in nature . . . a means of allowing the inmates to express their thoughts. There are over two hundred such publications in circulation at the present time. Their method and frequency of publication may vary, but their aim is the same. Noteworthy articles or stories are not a rarity in these publications that are for the most part written and published by men (and women) who have had little or no experience in journalism. The majority of writers contributing to penal pubs are composed of average inmates who have the urge to get something off their chest; many have an honest desire to expound on their personal experiences in the hope that by doing as they can save another from taking the crooked path; others are budding authors who want to write when they are released and have found a means of getting their stuff in print.

Erle Stanley Gardner, well known fiction author and originator of "Perry Mason", recently wrote an article for one of the Penal Publications entitled "The Importance of the Penal Press." In the article Mr. Gardner says: "The way for inmates to meet the public is through the prison press. When inmates write stories showing their yearnings, their longings, their ambitions, their recognitions of the individual problems which have caused them to become incarcerated, people will say, 'Why doggone it, that fellow's a human being just like I am. His problems are a little more intense than mine, but when you come right down to it, they're the same sort of problems I face in my own life.' If we can build up an 'outside' circulation for the prison magazines as much as possible, and if the inmate can write stories and articles showing their problems as human beings, the result is bound to be far better understanding. And out of that understanding may come intelligent co-operation in the field of inmate rehabilitation. Moreover, writing is about the best way I know to develop insight into life and into character. You can't write about something without studying it, and when you begin to study the people around you, the manifestations of life, and little quirks of character, you begin to see beneath the surface. And with each story, regardless of whether it is acceptable or not, a man gains a little more facility in the use of words, a little more insight into character, and a little better understanding of the problems of life."

One of the Penal Publications from the State of Ohio has a credo that we feel is particularly fitting and one that in essance is the policy of all penal pubs: "The Penal Press endeavors to calendar man in his challange to remain productive in a censored existence. For man must live with himself in spite of all hazards, and think, regardless of physical enslavement; and to the end, realize a need to be wanted and, to be needed. Such thinking and determination has taught society that even in the air of degeneration there can be born fresh hope and progress. For through the rapid projection of ideas casting a shadow, lies the little people's will; the redemption of lost causes and the media for voice. Herein are voices not individuals, that are instruments of progress democratically dedicated."

A Heavenly Pie

IT'S A CHEF WITH THE WINGS OF AN ANGEL who can turn out a pie like this: A heavenly peach pie in a fluffy flaked coconut meringue shell. You can do it, too—and we recommend you try it for a special occasion. Another use for the meringue shell recipe—fill it with pecan ice cream balls or with flat spoonfuls of vanilla sherbet to make a petal filling. For these fillings, pass a butterscotch sauce.

COCONUT ANGEL PIE

2 egg whites, unbeaten	2 cups (No. 2½ can) drained sliced cling peaches
½ teaspoon cream of tartar	½ cup whipping cream
Dash of salt	2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup sugar	½ teaspoon almond extract
½ teaspoon vanilla	½ cup Angle Flake Coconut
1 cup tender-thin flaked coconut

Combine egg whites, cream of tartar, and salt in mixing bowl. Beat until foamy throughout. Add sugar, 2 tablespoons at a time, beating after each addition until sugar is blended. Then continue beating until mixture will stand in very stiff peaks. Fold in vanilla and coconut. Spread mixture on bottom and sides of lightly greased 9-inch pie pan. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) about 30 minutes, or until shell feels dry and firm. Cool.

When peaches are thoroughly drained, arrange in bottom of meringue shell, reserving a few for top. Whip cream until stiff. Gradually beat in 2 tablespoons sugar and the almond extract. Spread over peaches and garnish with remaining slices. Sprinkle rest of coconut over the top. Chill for at least 2 hours. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The Three-way Benefits of Good Telephone Earnings

Users Employees Investors

They benefit the telephone customer by providing the means to expand and improve the service and do it economically.

They benefit employees because they help to provide good jobs.

They benefit the investor by protecting his savings and insuring a good and secure return on his investment.

There is, indeed, no basis for the belief that keeping telephone earnings low is a sure road to keeping rates low.

Such a philosophy, by limiting progress and long-pull economies, will lead almost always to the opposite result . . . poorer service at a higher price than the customer would otherwise have to pay.

In all lines of business, it's the companies whose earnings are good that are able to make the best products, provide the best service, and give the best values.

Miss Ellen Marie Banco Becomes Bride Of DeWitt Story In California

MRS. DEWITT FREER STORY III

Miss Ellen Marie Banco became the bride of Dewitt Freer Story III in the Bethany Lutheran Church of Santa Clara, California on August 2. The Rev. George R. Flora performed the double ring ceremony before altar urns filled with white stock, carnations and chrysanthemums and banked with greenery to add to the loveliness of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Banco of San Jose, California and Dewitt Story is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewitt F. Story of Avon Park.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a ballerina length wedding gown of princess style featuring a bodice of chantilly lace with scalloped neckline and wrist length sleeves. Her shoulder length veil fell from a tiara of fresh dainty white tea roses and she carried a white Bible, a gift from her matron of honor, with sweetheart roses and white stock.

Mrs. Wilbert O. Dodd, of San Jose, California, was matron of honor and only attendant. She chose for her friend's wedding a blue nylon ballerina gown with a permanent pleated skirt and matching floral headband. She wore a double strand of pearls and teardrop earrings, a gift from the bride. Her bouquet was white chrysanthemums surrounding a large yellow throated orchid.

George A. Banco, of San Jose, brother of the bride, served as best man. Ushers were Micheal A. Kope, cousin of the bride, David M. Kope, cousin of the bride, and Allan J. Kope, cousin of the birde, all of San Jose.

The mother of the bride wore a gown of beige lace and nylon over taffetta with matching accessories. Her corsage was coral tea roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony for approximately seventy-five friends of the young couple. For a wedding trip Mrs. Story wore a pink eyelet sheath dress with concealed train and grey accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Story graduated from Campbell High School in San Jose attended college at San Jose State College and the San Jose Beauty College. Mr Story attended school in Avon Park and is now an airman second class in the United States Air Force. The young couple will make their home at his new base, the Larsen Air Force Base in Washington State. They plan to return to Avon Park to live when the bridegroom is discharged from the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Story of Avon Park plan to visit their son and his wife in the near future and will enjoy hearing a tape recording of the wedding ceremony which was a gift to the young couple from the minister who married them.

Social Security Payments To Be Increased

The Social Security Amendments of 1958 will provide increased monthly payments to about 14,500 people in Polk, Highlands and Hardee Counties, beginning with the checks which are due early in February 1959, according to W. E. Arnold, Social Security District Manager in Lakeland. The amount of the increase will be about 7 percent, although the increase in some checks will be slightly more than 7 percent and it will be slightly less than 7 percent in some others.

People who are already getging social security payments do not need to apply for the increase. It will be automatically added to the checks for January, which will be mailed out early in February.

Under other changes made by the new law, social security benefits will become payable to a number of people not previously eligible for payments. They must however, apply to their social security offices before payments can start. Among the groups now eligible because of the amendments are:

1. Dependents of people who are 50 or over who are now getting disability insurance benefits (children under 18 or disabled; a wife of any age who has a child in her care who is entitled to benefits; a wife 62 or over; or a dependent husband 65 or over).

2. Disabled people 50 or over who could not qualify for benefits under the old law because they did not have as much as 1½ years of work in the 3 years before they were disabled. (A total of at least 5 years of work under the law is still required.)

3. Dependent parents whose son or daughter died after 1939 and who could not qualify for benefits under the old law because the son or daughter left a widow, widower, or child.

4. Adopted children whose adopting parent began receiving retirement benefits less than 3 years after the adoption. (In many cases this provision will also make possible payments to the mother of the adopted child).

5. A peron receiving benefits who marries another person also receiving benefits can continue to receive monthly checks, or can become eligible as a dependent of the new husband or wife without waiting 3 years.

Some people in situations similar to those mentioned above may have applied for benefits in the past and been notified that they did not qualify for payments. These people should get in touch with their social security district offices promptly about filing new applications, Arnold noted.

Disabled workers whose social security disability benefits were reduced or were not payable because they received workmen's compensation or other federal disability payments will begin to receive the full amount of their social security disability payments. (These people do not have to file applications. Their social security checks will be started automatically with checks mailed out early in September.)

Mr. Arnold emphasized that it is not necessary for people already receiving monthly payments to apply for the automatic increase. It will be added to the January checks, which will be delivered early in February.

"Inquiries about the automatic increase will slow down our effort to start payments promptly to the people who can now get payments for the first time," he said.

Clown Party Cake

FROM FIVE TO FIFTY or even more, who wouldn't this party clown adore? The smiling mouth and crinkly eyes are painted on with melted chocolate, a work of art achieved with a child's paint brush. Do The Words '4-H Club' Mean Nothing To You?

If so, you might be interested in looking into this organization of young people which is playing an important part in our national life.

Many things could be said to sum up the work done by this organization of young people. But let's consider some quotes from speakers in a recent 4-H Club public speaking contest. Here's what these young men had to say about 4-H:

"To help prepare tomorrow's citizens physically, mentally, and spiritually, 4-H Club work provides opportunities for voluntary participation in leadership and citizenship programs, built on interest and needs of youth."

"Leadership, ettizenship, a sense of personal responsibility, and the meaning of cooperation, are taught through the 4-H Club program. 4-H often makes the difference between an average boy and one who goes a little farther in helping his family and community move forward. 4-H also helps in training us physically, mentally and spiritually, to become more successful in future years."

"An outstanding objective of 4-H Club work is to help boys and girls develop desirable ideals and standards for farming, homemaking, community life, citizenship, and a sense of responsibility for their attainment. 4-H shares the objectives common to other educational institutions and movements in its concern with the development of individual abilities and capacities for learning intellectual and moral character, and qualities of effective citizenship."

In Florida, according to State Boys' 4-H Club Agent Woodrow W. Brown and State Girls' 4-H Club Agent Miss Emily King, almost 40 thousand boys and girls were enrolled in 4-H Club work during 1957. Of this number, 16,500 were boys and 23,024 were girls.

The 4-H Club is conducted by the Florida Agricultural Extension Service. But a major share of its success is due to the work of local adult leaders in the program.

For more information on 4-H —or to join the club—see your county agricultural or home demonstration agent.

Write That Letter—It's Fun!

As any serviceman will tell you, the day's biggest moment usually comes at mail-call, when that long-awaited letter from home arrives.

For shut-ins, the sick and, in fact, almost everyone—a letter received from a loved one is the day's most welcome visitor.

But writing a letter is also fun, and this year, as it has for 21 years now, National Letter Writing Week serves as a reminder that the personal letter is the almost perfect "hello."

For all the millions of letters written, millions more remain unwritten, and this year's national observance, October 5-11, seeks to "unfreeze" all the blocks against writing. Actually, there are not many good excuses for failure to write letters. Even the busiest people could write one in the time they take to explain why they don't! No one gets so busy that he can afford to let friendships fade away, or neglect the dear ones to whom letters are the only ties to home.

The United States Post Office, which joins in this annual event, reminds how economical letters are as messengers from home. For only pennies, your personal letter travels anywhere in the country. Even the world is quickly, and economically, spanned by mail.

With more and more people traveling vast distances as a result of our expanding economy, the importance of "keeping in touch" increases. Letters keep together families and friends who are separated by miles. A letter of thanks, of congratulations, or one of personal news, restores that feeling of belonging.

At such a time, the perfect gift is a box of stationery to make correspondence so much more convenient. Generally thought of for women, a gift of stationery also is ideal for men. Even children can be encouraged to develop the social graces by helping to send out personal invitations to parties, writing thank you notes, or chatting by mail with cousins and friends.

The time to write that letter you have been putting off is now—and there's fun ahead for both sender and receiver.

Thefts Of Mail Again At Top Of Postal Crimes

Thefts of mail from householders' mailboxes again is at the top of the list of postal crimes, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said today.

Chief Postal Inspector David H. Stephens reported to Mr. Summerfield that postal inspectors caused 7495 arrests for mail crimes in the 1958 fiscal year, ended this past June. A total of 7401 convictions—98.7 per cent—were obtained in cases taken to trial.

"This high conviction rate," Mr. Summerfield commented, "demonstrates how thoroughly postal inspectors investigate a case before they cause an arrest, and how effectively they operate when they find there is a violation of postal laws."

Postal statutes most often violated last fiscal year were those involving thefts from mail receptacles, particularly home mailboxes. There were 3,835 arrests in this category in fiscal 1958, compared with 3,287 the previous '57 fiscal year.

Mr. Stephens' report revealed growing numbers of criminals are victimizing householders in thefts from the home boxes. In an increasing number of cases, he noted, these criminals are dope addits after money to buy drugs.

Lone operators or gangs of such thieves sometimes will ransack many mail boxes in an entire neighborhood, particularly where there are large apartment developments that have mailboxes clustered together in the lobbies.

Those who receive regular government allotment or pension checks are often victimized, and their checks stolen, forget and cashed. Ultimately, they get their money, but there are often delays which involve hardship.

Several factors have produced more thefts from home mail boxes in recent years. In addition to the millions of new homes and millions of persons added to pension lists, there has been a growing tendency among merchants and businessmen to cash checks easily, often without making certain of the identification of the person cashing the check, Mr. Stephens noted.

In addition to home mail box thefts, Mr. Stephens' report noted increases in mail frauds. At the top of the "best seller" list in the mail fraud fields, he noted, are such products as "miracle" weight reducers, "bee jelly" supposed to have magical curative powers, fake cancer cures and similar worthless nostrums.

A total of 351 mail fraud arrests were brought about by inspectors in the 1958 fiscal year. Involved in these 351 arrests alone, Mr. Stephens estimated, were fraud schemes which bilked the public of an estimated $1,408,000.

Even this high total, however, does not reflect the full extent of mail fraud operations during the year. Many would-be mail fraud operators were encouraged to get out of their budding operations before they had gone far enough to be arrested, and after inspectors learned of their schemes, Mr. Stephens noted.

Another category of postal crimes which showed an increase was that involving illegal mailing of non-mailable matter. There have been particularly serious increases in mailings of "filth and obscenity," Mr. Stephens noted, and the Postal Inspectors are giving high priority to investigations where obscene mailings are suspected.

Citizens can help in prosecutions of such crimes, Mr. Stephens observed, by reporting suspected violations promptly to their postmasters, who will see that postal inspectors are advised promptly.

According to Mackey Airlines officials, the Grand Bahamas Club in the Bahama Islands is responsible for the flurry of interest in vacationers traveling to that part of the world. Mackey has daily flights to the island.

Dr. R. P. Hedrick Attends Seminar In Orlando

Dr. and Mrs. Richard P. Hedrick of this city, returned today from Orlando where they have been attending a graduate optometric Seminar held at the Orange Court Hotel.

Lecturer for the Labor Day Weekend Conference was Dr. A. M. Skeffington, noted author research authority, and Director of Education for the Optometric Extension Program, an international organization dedicated to the postgraduate education of optometrists.

In pointing out to those in attendance the latest developments and advances in optometry, Dr. Skeffington stressed the importance of prevention in vision care–for child and adult.

"A child needs visual guidance from about three years on to prevent the development of a visual problem that could result in the formation of eye problems," stated Dr. Skeffington. An early investigation of the visual abilities, with the greater emphasis on the abilities at near -- where exist the greater demands of our modern culture -- provides the opportunity for proper visual development.

"The same is true for the executive who finds that he is not able to clear his desk of work in a reasonable time. Certainly he should give serious thought as to whether he is visually disadvantaged.

"Vision is the most complex mechanism in the whole organism. The two eyes must work together by a balance created by the brain controlled through the nervous system. Failure in any single step of the precise and positive coordination required by the complex visual process can result not only in lowered efficiency in the search for meaning from the printed word, but also in the 'errors of judgement,' the 'mistakes,' and so many of the 'accidents' that occur in school, at work and on the nation's highways."

Two Minor Fires Tuesday Morning

Fire Chief Wilbur Giddens was told that everything had been quite while he was away on vacation. He reported back to duty at eight o'clock Tuesday morning at 8:28 the first of two calls was received at the station.

The first call was to one of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad section houses on North Central Avenue. The fire was caused by a cigarette in an over-stuffed chair, at the resident of Joe White, Negro. Damage to the house was estimated at $100 and $50 to the contents.

The firemen had no sooner returned to the station and gotten things in order when they were called to South Lake Avenue. For some unknown reason the front seat in Dr. H. W. Coleman's station wagon had caught fire. Estimated damage was set at $50.

Good Mailing Practice Urged

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield noted today new postage rates make it more important than ever to use good mailing practices. He gave these suggestions on how to mail most economically and efficiently:

1. Mail early in the day.

Many mailers allow letters to pile up until the end of the day before mailing. This often causes the mail to miss connections and may delay delivery as much as 24 hours.

2. Separate out-of-town mail from local mail.

If you have large quantities of mail, bundle them before mailing with "local" and "out-of-town" bands which are available free at most large post offices.

3. Use the complete address.

Complete street number, rural route or post office box number should be used on all mail. Be sure that the name of the street is complete with avenue, parkway or drive. Avoid abbreviation of street and state names. Incomplete addressing is often unnecessary, too, because mailers have full addresses available.

4. Use zone numbers wherever possible.

It is surprising how many people fail to do this, even when the zone numbers of the addresses are well known to them. The zone number specifically identifies the particular part of a city to which the mail is addressed. This provides faster handling and speeds the delivery of mail bearing similar street names. Be sure to include your zone number in your return address.

5. Check your postage scales.

All mail with inadequate postage is now forwarded. If your scales are incorrect, this can mean embarrassing postage due collections must be made from the addressee. This can generate resentment, and ruin the value of of letters, particularly business letters. Also, letters with inadequate postage require extra handling and may be delayed.

6. Where it may be necessary to prove that a particular letter was delivered, "Certified mail," offering many advantages of registered mail at less cost, is a good way of cutting down on postage bills. (Be sure, however, that cash and irreplaceable papers are sent by registered mail.)

7. Consult your local postmaster if you have a mailing problem.

The Post Office Department is as anxious as you are that your mailing be correctly prepared.

Your local postmaster will be happy to advise you on technical mailing problems arising under new postage rates and how to use the mails most economically and efficiently.

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

OUR generous government is now proposing to pay certain farmers a goodly sum for taking their farms out of production. The farmers in question would be retired during the life of the agreement, could live on their farms, paint the buildings, do essential repair work, and be guaranteed a certain cash income based presumably on what the average yield of the farm had been.

Dr. Kershner

This tempting arrangement will no doubt appeal to many farmers and probably something similar would appeal to many manufacturers, shopkeepers, distributors and professional people.

But if some can retire at government expense, then why not all? If anything is to be gained by not working it would seem that the solution of our problems is going to be easy.

Government intervention in the economic activities of the people is always wrong and lessens their satisfactions, but when it reaches the absurdity of this proposal, surely it will become evident to all.

South Magazine reports:
"S&H GREEN STAMPS are helping Dixie grow"

"During the past few years a major addition to business in the South has been the fast-growing trading stamp industry.

"Proof of the growing importance stamps play in bolstering the area's economy is found in the Southern operations of The Sperry and Hutchinson Company, distributors of the widely-known S&H Green Stamps.

"In 1957 alone, S&H purchased more than $12 million worth of merchandise from Southern manufacturers, providing many of the area's industries with increased outlets for their products and boosting Southern payrolls.

"Added to those figures is the $2,250,000 annual payroll written by S&H for its present and growing 866-person Southern personnel. The Company has invested hundreds of thousands of dollars in real estate to locate its modern redemption centers, indicating that the industry has become a permanent part of the area's business life."

A Square Deal for Dogs

Housing standards go under inspection
Whenever there comes any kind of election.
With every bounce of the political ball
New homes rise where tenements fall.
But neither politics, laws, or what-have-you protect
Dog houses in the country from a state of neglect.
Leaky-roofed, ramshackled, they stand 'til they tumble
And the tenants just bear it with nary a grumble.
But Dog Week's a-coming . . . new homes are at bay
For our four-footed friends, thanks to FHA.
F stands for FRISKIES, the H is for HOUSING,
A for the AUTHORITY that FRISKIES is spousing.
During DOG WEEK all owners are called to heel
To turn do-it-yourselfers, with this fervent appeal.
Hear ye, professionals and all you unskilled,
A dog house is ever so easy to build.
From cinder blocks, lumber, cement and some nails
Come homes that bring thanks via glad wagging tails.

Creamy Nut Caramel Sauce

THIS HOMEMADE DESSERT sauce surpasses any "ready made" one we've found—and it's perfect for cakes and other desserts in addition to the ice cream we've pictured here—keeps beautifully in your refrigerator, too, so you can store it for ready use. (Once the family tastes it, we can't promise how long you'll be able to keep it, however.) New instant cream gives this nut caramel sauce its special goodness; you'll find it an invaluable addition to your pantry shelf.

CARAMEL NUT DESSERT SAUCE

2 cups sugar	½ cup shortening
1½ cups Instant Cream	¾ cup corn syrup
1 cup water	¼ teaspoon salt

Combine sugar and Cream. Add remaining ingredients and cook over medium heat, stirring frequently as mixture thickens, constantly as it darkens. Cook to 230 degrees or when a little dropped in cold water forms a very soft ball. Add ½ cup chopped nut meats. Serve warm on ice cream, cream puffs, warm cake squares, etc. Can be made ahead and kept refrigerated. Reheat over hot water. Makes about 2¼ cups sauce.

Old before its time?

Just like people, a tire can get old before its time.

For example, the life of a tire may be shortened as much as 25% merely as a result of chronic under-inflation. Over-inflation is bad, too.

Best way to avoid premature aging of your tires is to let your Phillips 66 Dealer take care of them for you. He'll check them frequently, make sure they're properly inflated, and repair them if necessary. And, if a tire becomes unsafe, he can provide a new and dependable Phillips 66 Action-Tread Tubeless Tire.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, LL.D.

THE Editor has received a statement from an English mine inspector who, himself, worked in the mines as a youth. He says "I could have done three times the amount of work one of the foremen does. When I tried to urge the man to produce more he countered 'why should I get my self fired? If I did I would not be able to enjoy my free time after the day's work'."

Dr. Kershner

Paying men to do less than a normal day's work is one of the reasons why socialism fails. The head of a great railroad in America stated the other day that he paid a full crew a full day's wages for 81 minutes of work. Someone has said recently that this depression could be cured in a matter of days if, starting tomorrow morning, everyone would do a full day's work.

From Sweden comes a disturbing editorial. In Svenska Folksbladet, as translated by Dr. John F. C. Green we read:

"Now for the first time we face the threat of the enslavement of the Church by the State. This through a purposive de-Christianization by State power. By every means it is attempting to eradicate from the life of the State all Christian being and Christian history (background); the outward and the inward. Often in the name of democracy, democracy is misused."

In other words this editorial is saying what we have so often said that socialism is un-Christian and anti-God. It exalts the State to replace God as the ruling power in the lives of men.

The two incidents cited above show why socialism does not function successfully as a producer of wealth and how it strives to eradicate Christian ideology from the minds of men.

Cyprus—A Center of Gravity in Middle East Crisis

AMERICAN MARINES are on the beaches of the Biblical lands. Consequently, the island of Cyprus where Paul and Barnabas embarked on their journey to spread Christianity to the West is now a kingpin in the defense of the democratic world against Communism.

There are two communities on Cyprus—Turks and Greeks—and Greek demands for the annexation of the Island have thrown them into strife, jeopardizing the position of the West.

The conflicting claims are as follows: the Greeks assert that since they are in the majority, the Island should be joined to Greece. The Turks state that the Island was Turkish for 350 years and has never been Greek. Moreover, it is 600 miles from Greece but only 40 from Turkey, and is an extension of the Turkish coastline guarding Turkey's life-line with the West. In addition, Turks own 40% of the land, and are equally entitled to self-determination.

At this critical juncture in the Middle East, it would appear that the best solution of these divergent claims is the partitioning of the Island between Greeks and Turks, since self-determination on which opposing claims are essentially based would be met in full for both parties.

TOTS and TEENS

By Mrs. Joan Cameron

Some children are always getting nosebleeds. My other children rarely have them, but six-year-old Bud is always coming into the house and yelling "Ma, I've got a nosebleed!"

Usually, I can get him over it quickly by having him lie down quietly with his head on a thick towel to protect the upholstery from stains. Well-wrapped ice cubes at the back of his neck will help, because cold constricts the blood vessels.

How To Stop a Nosebleed

If the nosebleed is severe, try packing the nostril with narrow sterile gauze and leave one end dangling. Coat the gauze with Vaseline petroleum jelly. This pure lubricant prevents the clotting blood from sticking to the gauze so that you can pull out the packing without starting the bleeding again.

Sometimes, if Bud's nosebleed is difficult, my doctor has also advised pinching the nostrils gently for about 10 minutes to stem the flow. However, if these treatments don't bring results, it's time to call the doctor.

In any case, even if the nosebleed is mild, Bud has to lie quietly for at least 20 minutes after the bleeding has stopped, and he knows that he is not to blow his nose for some time.

At Bud's next medical check-up I intend to speak to the doctor about his frequent nosebleeds because I know he will consider this an important clue to Bud's general health. If your child is a nose-bleeder, I'd advise you to talk to your doctor about it, too.

Our—

free-spending pals that it is sound business.

OUT OF THE TREASURY

Yet, our Claude is going to dig canals all over Florida and make towns like Orlando seaports, whether the U. S. Corps of Engineers say it is essential and feasible or not. He's going to tap the federal treasury to help promote such primarily local things as the St. Augustine-Pensacola quadricentennial celebration (probably by making trades for federal support also for such things as the Cheyenne, Wyo., Roundup and the Thomasville Rose Festival.)

Sure, he'll lift the tax burden from the little man by reducing non-essential government spending—he says from this corner of his mouth.

And he's going to do something for the little old man, too.

Our Claude's going to reduce the retirement ages for Social Security and increase the pensions, gear them to a cost of living scale, and add enough to them to pay hospitalization insurance premiums. Fine. Only he doesn't mention the billions of dollars it will take to do this for the little old man—nor where the money will come from.

Of course, it will have to come from increased deductions from the paychecks of the little young men of the nation—matched by contributions from employers who are in most cases the little business men whom Claude also is going to help. This will cut take-home pay, add to the cost of doing business, increase prices and send the inflation spiraling upward along with the treasury deficit which eventually will blow up in the face of the little man's son or grandson.

CUT TAXES FOR WHOM?

But Claude, promising everything, is also going to cut taxes. For the little man? Why, of course, but—

To industrialize Florida he's going to pass a law permitting a factory to take a fast federal tax write-off when it moves to our state from the North. We can imagine how much support he's going to get in Congress from the states which would be losers in this deal; and, anyway, isn't that fast tax write-off one of the things Claude's kind of bleeding hearts have been lambasting because it favors the horrible corporations?

Oh, our Claude is going to spend and spend for the little man—and cut taxes. Soak the rich and successful? No, sir!

He says "It is contrary to my belief in our free enterprise system to take away from any citizen by income tax more than half his income.

We agree, although we don't know any little men who are in the tax bracket which takes more than half a person's income. But let's be understanding with Claude, the little man's friend. He probably has to say something encouraging for those folks who can afford $1,000 campaign contributions.

THE BETTER CHOICE

Our Claude has something for everyone, but we think even most of those who have been talked into thinking they are little men will recognize that somebody has to pay for them—and that the man of moderate means always seems to be the fellow who gets the bill in one shape or another.

We think a good majority of them will decide to go along with Senator Holland, who has been working for (not just talking about) reduction of non-essential government spending, even when he finds it at home, who is playing fair with the people by not promising them tax cuts until they can see a reduction in the deficit and the spending; and who follows a philosophy that federal government is best for all the people when it isn't handing them fool's gold and doesn't classify Americans into "little people" and "big people" and try to convince them they ought to cut each other's throats.—Reprinted from the Tallahassee Democrat of Sunday, August 17, 1958) ported this week that former Sen. Claude Pepper is running far ahead of Sen. Spessard Holland in their areas."

The article went on to give the opinions of a number of State Senators and Representatives as to the progress of the campaign in their areas, all of which placed Pepper far in the lead.

"The same can be said of the Jacksonville area," Pepper said, and went on to predict that he "would carry that area by a 10,000 vote majority."

"Our policy of taking the issues directly to the people and of presenting them with a definite program for the future of Florida and the Nation has been greatly appreciated and applauded by voters everywhere," Pepper explained.

With only a week and a half to go before election day, Sept. 9, Pepper indicated there would be no letup in his backbreaking schedule that has taken him into every county in the State.

"We will continue to give the people a concrete program and let them decide the issues on the facts," Pepper stated. "My opponent has offered no program but has typically been satisfied to rest on his non-existent laurels and waste his time trying to discredit me."

"We are dealing with an electorate that is interested in the future and in the progress of this State. They have shown that they resent a campaign based only on name calling and innuendo and have come to recognize it as a sham to keep them from examining the real issues involved," Pepper said.

The working press of the State came in for high praise from Pepper in his evaluation of the campaign.

"It is to the great credit of our newsmen that even though it might not have been endorsed by their paper's editorial policy, they have, nevertheless, reported this campaign fairly and squarely and have given their readers a basis for calm and considered judgement," Pepper declared.

Pepper said he and his staff keep close tabs on Florida's political pulse by scanning the hundreds of articles written on the program of the campaign in every paper in the State. His office, he said, receives a clipping of every article the day after it appears in print.

"This avalanche of newsprint carrying our message and reporting its acceptance by more and more of the people in every area each day is extremely heartening," Pepper stated.

Highlight of Tuesday's schedule will be a rally of 2,500 precinct workers at the Dade County Auditorium in Miami.

This will be the largest public rally of the campaign. Entertainment will be provided by Preacher Rollo and his Sunshine Band. Other guest stars will appear.

Thursday will be divided between Jacksonville and Tampa. On Friday, Pepper returns to Jacksonville for a full day of campaigning that will be climaxed by a state-wide television appearance from 8:30 to 9 p. m.

Saturday, Sept. 6, the candidate will again visit the Tampa Bay area. On Sunday he will be in Miami for a Knights of Columbus picnic and a television show.

Monday, the last day before the election, Pepper will make a final tour of Dade County.

Dressel Bros. Dairy Farm In Operation

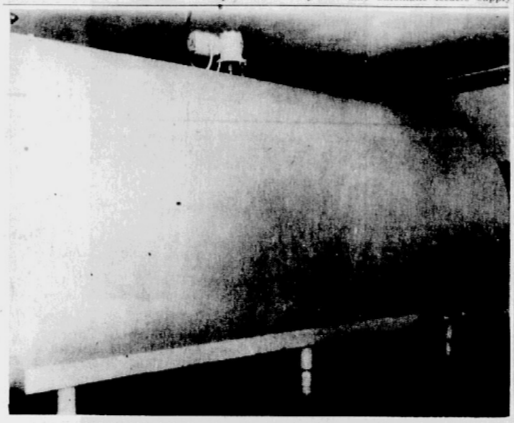
Another first for Avon Park, A milking parlor, Herringbone stalls and the unique idea of close packing cows for milking at Dressle Brothers new dairy on the Bombing Range Road is not only the first dairy using this method and equipment in Avon Park but the first in Florida and one of six in the United States.

The unique idea of close packing cows (belly against next cow's neck and second cow's belly against the first cow's hip) thus utilizing space originated in New Zealand nearly four years ago, from there it spread to England and then to the United States.

Snow white tile is used in the forty feet long and sixteen feet wide milking parlor at Dressel's. Here a hundred cows can be milked in less than an hour by only two men.

Dressel Brothers, one of the leading names in the dairy business in Miami for the last seventeen years, in an effort to improve and increase their herd started looking for an ideal location for their modern new dairy. R. L. (Dick) and C. L. (Jerry) Dressel are very happy with the 850 acres which they purchased on the Bombing Range Road just east of Avon Park.

At the present time they have four hundred milk cows at the new site and they are increasing the herd each week for they plan to have around seven hundred at this dairy in the near future. Everything for the welfare of the herd has been done. Sheds to protect the cows from the sun have been built and there is plenty of cool fresh water.

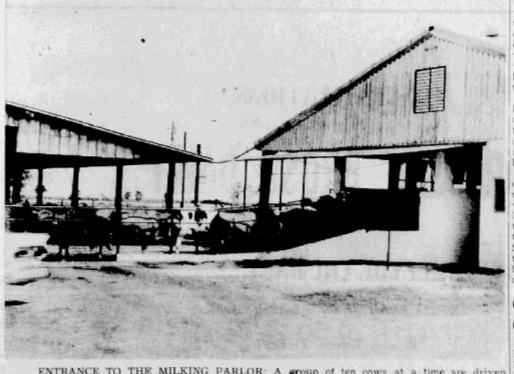


The cows are brought up under a huge shed to feed before entering the milking parlor. After leaving the shed they are herded in groups of ten through wading pools and believe it or not up a flight of stairs into the parlor. During the milking time automatic feeders supply each cow with another type of food to round out their balanced diet. As the first ten cows are being milked ten more are brought in and prepared for milking.

The milk passes from the electric milker into glass tubes and then to a 40,000 gallon stainless steel tank in a period of about five seconds and during this time it is cooled from around 95 degrees down to less than 40 degrees.

A ten ton refrigerator system is used for the cooling of the milk. Around a thousand gallons of milk are added to the tank each day, and every other day the two thousand gallons of milk are pumped into a stainless steel tank truck and taken to Miami for bottling and distribution. At no time is the milk exposed to the air.

As the cows leave the milking parlor each is sprayed to keep away flies and insects. Each cow has been numbered on the hip and to make it easier for the workers plastic hoof tags bearing the same number will also be used. Individual records are kept and milk samples are taken at least once each month from each cow.



Fifteen persons are employed at the new dairy and Dressel Brothers have built six new homes at the dairy for their employees who moved here from Miami. Manager of the new dairy is Elmer Fentress who has been with Dressel's for the past three years. Former residents of Miami who are now making their home on the Bombing Range Road are Liston White, Douglas Fuller, Other Farley, Carlos Young, James Sever and Leland Young.

40,000 GALLON TANK: This huge stainless steel tank is used to store the milk at the new Dressel Brothers Dairy on the Bombing Range Road. From the time that the milk comes from the cow via an electric milking machine and then passes through a glass tube into the above tank it has dropped from 95 degrees to less than 40 degrees in a period of about five seconds. Milk is pumped from this tank into stainless steel milk truck tanks every other day and taken to Miami for distribution.

FEEDING SHED: The herd at the Dressel Brothers Dairy comes up under this huge shed to feed and cool off before entering the milking parlor. A close check is kept on the diet of the herd and the first portion of their diet is fed to them under this shed, another portion is fed to them by automatic feeders while they are being milked. The cows leaving this shed will walk through a wading pool before entering the parlor.

ENTRANCE TO THE MILKING PARLOR: A group of ten cows at a time are driven from the huge shed up the stairs and into the above milking parlor at the new Dressel Brothers Dairy on the Bombing Range Road. An invitation has been extended to local residents to visit the dairy and view this unique method of milking and to inspect the new dairy. Around a hundred cows an hour can be milked in the parlor with only a few employees. Approximately five and one-half hours are required to milk the herd now at the dairy and they are shipping about 2,000 gallons of milk to Miami every other day.

OFFICIAL TOUR of the Dressel Brothers Dairy: The Dressel Brothers were host to a number of City Officials last week as they took them on a tour of inspection of their new dairy on the Bombing Range Road. Guests attending the tour included, back row left to right, Robert King, representative of the Chamber; W. H. Prescott, Deputy Clerk to the Commissioners; Robert E. Lee, president of the City Council; James G. Creel, president of the County Commissioners; Mrs. Anna Belle Worden, Executive secretary of the Chamber; Robert Barber, Chamber member; Commissioner M. H. Grice, and Commissioner Arthur J. Tubbs. Front Row: Mrs. Mary C. Durden; R. L. Dressell and C. L. Dressel, owners; W. A. (Bill) Meyer published of the Avon Park Sun; Mayor E. A. DeLaney, Sr.; and E. Ray Wells, Chamber member.

OWNER OF THE NEW DAIRY: C. L. Dressel, better known as Jerry, and his brother, Dick, are the owners of the new Dressel Brothers Dairy just east of Avon Park on the Bombing Range Road. They have been in the dairy business in Miami for the past seventeen years. Although Jerry's home will continue to be Coral Gables he is looking forward to spending some time in Highlands County. The Brothers have extended an invitation to all who would like to tour the dairy and view the new milking method.

OWNER OF THE DAIRY: R. L. Dressel, better known as Dick, is shown at his desk at the new dairy on the Bombing Range Road. Dick and his brother, Jerry, are the owners of the new dairy here and also one in Miami where they have been in the dairy business since 1941. Their father was with the Borders Dairy for a number of years. The brothers are very well pleased with the location of their new dairy and are happy to be a part of our fast growing community.

Public Health Nursing In H. C. Health Dept.

The public health nursing activities in Highlands County is comprised of services meeting the nursing needs of the whole family. Since it is impossible to isolate the nursing needs of individual members of a family, a generalized program is carried on - that is, a service in which one nurse performs all the public health functions in her district, the type of service which meets the needs of the family most effectively.

For administrative and statistical purposes, health services are classified according to the nature of the immediate condition needing care of according to age groups of individuals. Effective service involves a consideration of the health and the relationships of the family as a whole.

Basic to all phases of the health program is the consideration of such essentials as mental hygiene, nutrition, and personal hygiene. These are all important factors in family health.

Public health nursing is part of the whole community health, medical, educational, and social welfare program, and the public health nurse's approach to the family is that of nurse, teacher, counselor, and friend. She has a sincere interest in the family, and wishes to make her knowledge and skill available to them.

Oldsmobile Introduces 2 Completely New Body Styles For 1959

Detroit—The automobile industry in general, and Oldsmobile in particular, are headed for a successful 1959 model year, according to the optimistic prediction made in Detroit today by Jack F. Wolfram, general manager of Oldsmobile and a vice president of General Motors.

Speaking to the nation's automobile writers and editors gathered in Detroit to preview the 1959 Oldsmobile, Wolfram revealed that Oldsmobile will introduce two completely new body styles in its 1959 line. They are the Holiday SportSedan—a sporty four door family size car—and the two-door Holiday SceniCoupe which has an entirely new silhouette, a spay-py appearance and exceptional visibility in all directions. The two new styles will be available throughout the Oldsmobile line.

"I believe that these two body styles will attract the many people who want a totally new automobile—something different—especially buyers who want a full-size family car with a sporty flair," Wolfram said.

"Oldsmobile's line," he added, "will continue the well-established Dynamic '88', Super '88' and '98'. I know our customers are going to like that."

"Oldsmobile's styling for 1959," Wolfram said, "is entirely different than anything we've done in the past, with clean lines, yet still exciting, brilliant and distinctively Olds."

"Our customers will also like Oldsmobile's greater trunk space—up to 64 per cent more in the Dynamic '88's and the Super '88's. In fact," he added, "more room is a big feature of the entire 1959 Oldsmobile line. As a result of requests from our customers we have built more room and more comfort into all our models. There's more shoulder room, more hip room and more leg room."

Many mechanical innovations designed for added comfort, safety and economy of operation were outlined to the press on an off-the-record basis pending first public showing in Oldsmobile dealer showrooms Friday, October 3.

Production will begin the first week in September, Wolfram said, with initial schedules calling for a production rate of 25 per cent over what it has been during the latter months of the 1958 model schedule.

"We will add approximately 1500 people to the payroll within a few weeks of start-up," the Oldsmobile general manager said. "Then as we go farther into the new model year, we'll have a chance to evaluate dealer demand and the market and adjust our schedules accordingly. I'm confident they'll be upward," he said.

Wolfram commented that in the highly competitive 1958 model year customer preference had boosted Oldsmobile to first place in the medium price class.

"And as champions of the medium price class I want to serve warning to all competitors that we're going to keep that position," Wolfram declared.

Wolfram credited Oldsmobile's sales position to its styling, engineering and high reputation for quality together with the excellent cooperation of the Oldsmobile dealers "who are making such good progress in the quality merchandising of our product".

Looking toward the coming year, Wolfram said there is a pent-up market for automobiles that has been built by the "wait-and-see" attitude created among prospective buyers during the past year. "And there is a huge pent-up market for Oldsmobiles that will soon break loose because the 1959 Oldsmobile will appeal to more people, even more than the 1954 and '55 models, which today are still so popular with the used car buyer," he said.

Wolfram told the auto editors that Oldsmobile expects to sell 8 per cent of the predicted industry total of 5½ million cars in 1959.

He continued, "I think all the elements of a good year are beginning to shape up. Several significant business indices have started to reflect an upturn in the general economy. But equally important to the automobile industry is the fact that about 4 million cars a year are being scrapped."

During the afternoon the newsmen attended a private showing of the 1959 Oldsmobile and in the evening saw the special dealer show, "Grand News About Oldsmobile for 1959", a Broadway musical declared.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By Russell Kay

For centuries, engineers have sought the secrets of the builders of Egypt's Pyramids. How, without modern equipment, were these gigantic ancient structures erected? How were the huge stones, weighing many tons, lifted into place?

In the steaming jungles of Central and South America we find similar Pyramids and structures, some believed to have been built long before those in Egypt, by long dead civilizations, the Mayan, Aztec and Toltec.

Here again gigantic blocks of solid stone were placed one atop the other after having been cut with such skill that they fit in place perfectly without mortar.

It seems that these engineering secrets lost to the world centuries ago were known, understood and practiced by one modern day individual, who alone and without assistance of other individuals of modern equipment, built structures in South Florida, as amazing and baffling from an engineering standpoint as those of ancient vintage.

The builder himself was as mysterious as the buildings he erected for he was a recluse, who lived and worked by himself, shunning the rest of the world and resenting any intrusion.

A frail, sickly man, Ed Leedskalnin, a Latvian immigrant, settled a small tract near U. S. 1, about 25 miles south of Miami, beginning his amazing building project in 1919. Neighbors, few at the time, had little or no contact with this strange eccentric who became known as "that crazy Latvian".

Small of stature and weighing only 85 pounds, this man, single handed, built a castle with surrounding walls, using coral rock weighing as much as 30 tons to a block. Using crude, home made hoists, he lifted the blocks 20 feet or more above the ground. These hoists were constructed from hand hewn timbers, the result of his own labor.

His knowledge of engineering and balance was uncanny. Each stone in his three story castle was cut to fit with the sureness of a jewelers intricate work. The seams are perfect and fit in place exactly without the use of cement or mortar.

He surrounded his three acre tract with an eight foot stone wall, three feet thick and fashioned a gate of stone so perfectly pivoted that inspite of its great size and weight it can be pushed open by a childs finger tip. One of these gates consists of a 10-ton block of solid coral rock, three feet thick, set on edge and so perfectly balanced, that it swings with the slightest touch.

Uncommunicative, Leedskalnin would tell no one why he was building his castle or explain to curious neighbors how he accomplished his amazing construction. So closely did he guard his secret that he did most of his work at night, with the aid of only a small lantern for light. He made no written notes, no plans or blue-prints, nothing from which his secret could be revealed.

It took him 33 years to build Coral Castle and he died shortly after its completion, his secret going with him to the grave.

Today Coral Castle is an outstanding Florida attraction and each year thousands of people visit it to stand in wonderment as they contemplate the mysterious building and surrounding walls.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Basic Training:

As we have seen everyone in our community needs a minimum knowledge of what to do in the event of disasters, but it is not sufficient to know only things of immediate personal interest and use. Avoidance of confusion and panic depends on our knowing not only what to do, but what other people are doing in relation to us and to the overall plan and why they and we are doing these things. If we understand what is happening and why we are more likely to discharge our own duties well and to avoid hysteria and panic.

FCDA has designed an instructors' guide called Basic Course for Civil Defense which can be adapted to our community. One of the skills we require is to translate this inevitable general document in terms of the concrete facts and persons of our community. A committee rather than a single instructor should plan its use so that the relevance and the best way of teaching each part can be considered and made meaningful for our own community. Turning generalizations into local instances, making the far away appear next door, turning the impersonal into the personal, finding the local illustration of the universal condition-these are the basic features of good teaching for action, the ways in which facts and activities outlined by unknown experts are "brought home" to local people.

Basic training for all does not mean that everyone has to take a formal course: though our public schools should be asked to organize classes, especially to train teacher-leaders. Much of the training will go on through self-learning groups, many of which are already in existence. Spontaneous groups can be generated by the lone reader.

Clubs and societies which have regular meetings can devote a portion of each meeting to the training program. A portion of each meeting is far better than one single program which might be long, crowded with detail and too fatiguing to result in effective learning. There need not be an undue demand made upon people's time. Training can go on during factory or business lunch hour, for half an hour before the bridge game, as a part of the weekly church night and so on. Unlike special training, it may be unwise to attempt basic training through a one-day session or a series of consecutive daily meetings. Good civil defense habits will build themselves into our community more substantially if they are a part rather than an interruption of our normal living. Obviously our best security depends on right attitudes ways of thinking and activities becoming normal and routine in our lives. Therefore it is better to incorporate training for all as a new part of existing continuous programs.

As in all good teaching of adults, we not only need instructors (who may be our usual group leaders provided they take trouble to read the literature) but also resource persons. The local science teacher in school or college and the local doctor can help us in understanding what atomic energy is and why we are asked to do certain things if disaster strikes. A local architect or engineer will be able to provide guidance on the best types of shelter available in our community and how to organize demolition and the clearance of debris. Communications, water supply, gas and electricity, personality testing, skills testing-there is a partial expert in our community for all of these. As we consider each detail we should have our work checked by the local person who knows it best.

Education means developing the mind, not stuffing the memory.

Sporty Yet Dressy

STATION WAGON is an appropriate name for this fashionable Lee chapeaux, a new style that'll handsomely top off sport clothes; lighten the mood of a heavy coat, and look equally well with conservative business suits. This model has the popular pinch front crown in a soft suede finish, complimented by a medium brim and narrow, textured two-tone band. It's distinctive in appearance, lightweight and comfortable wearing in town or country.

Keep Florida Ahead!

HOLLAND

YOUR U. S. SENATOR

Promises are Deceptive . . .

Records are Not!

The voters of Florida do not want a political chameleon for U. S. Senator. A political chameleon will promise anything. It changes color outwardly without any real change beneath its political skin.

Florida's future progress demands sound, sensible, stable, responsible, proved representation in the U. S. Senate.

Senator Spessard Holland provides the kind of representation that Florida needs. His impressive record is open for all to see.

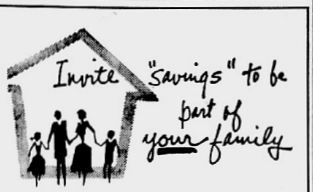
Spessard Holland is the first Florida Senator in 40 years to serve on the vital Senate Appropriations Committee. He is a member of the important Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry. As a firm and courageous fighter for States' Rights, he was the principal sponsor of the Tidelands Act that brought Florida 4,000 square miles of offshore area, including potential oil fields. Holland has been, is, and will continue to be a leader in Florida flood control and waterways projects, pest eradication, citrus development, veterans' affairs and hospitals, old-age assistance, anti-subversive legislation, and many other programs vital to Florida's welfare.

THE VOTING RECORD

His ultra-liberal opponent, the already once-rejected ex-Senator, neglected his job when he was in the Senate, compiling a very poor voting and attendance record. (Holland was on record on 97.7% of issues vs. his opponent's 76% in three Congresses.) The former Senator supported much legislation unacceptable to Florida.

The former Senator failed Florida and the South.

In seeking re-election the former Senator is desperately trying to deny his record — a record that caused Florida voters to repudiate him in 1950.



The former Senator has become a political chameleon, trying to win votes with empty promises.

The record shows that Senator Spessard Holland is the man Florida needs. He is a leader, a doer, a man who thinks at all times of the needs of Florida and the South. He stays on the job, votes soundly, and reflects the will of those he represents.

Vote for and support Spessard L. Holland for U. S. Senator.

7076 New Postal Vehicles On Order For Delivery In Next 12 Months

A total of 7,076 new postal vehicles now are on order for delivery during the next 12 months, Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield said today. This number compares with the total of 7,099 delivered during the two-year period from August 1, 1956, to August 1, 1958.

These figures exclude the three-wheeled mailsters used by suburban mail carriers, of which 1,500 were delivered during the two-year period, and 2,895 are on order for delivery during the next 12 months, the Postmaster General noted.

"Set off against the new vehicles," Postmaster General Summerfield declared, "should be 2,936 obsolete vehicles retired during fiscal years 1956 and 1957, and an as yet undetermined number to be retired this year. It is anticipated, however, that by the end of fiscal 1959 the postal fleet total approximately 36,000 Government-owned vehicles, as compared with the present approximate 30,500, in order to keep up with increased mail volume.

"By the end of fiscal 1959, we anticipate also," the Postmaster General continued, "that over 60 percent of our fleet will be modern, standardized, lighter-weight vehicles, which cost far less to operate and maintain than the heavier, custom-built vehicles of an earlier day.

"Approximately 77 percent of the total fleet now is painted in the new red, white and blue color scheme -- pain jobs which cost less than the former khaki.

colored, gold and black combination, and which tend to prevent accidents by increasing the visibility of postal vehicles. It is expected that within 20 months all postal vehicles will be in the new colors."

The postal vehicles to be delivered over the next 12 months include 1,500 ½-ton trucks; 2,574 ¾-ton trucks with enclosed bodies of 140 cubic foot capacity; 2,269 ¾-ton trucks of 300 cubic foot capacity; 313 2½-ton trucks of 500 foot capacity, 330 tractors and trailers, and 90 ¾-ton jeeps with snowplow attachments.

Vehicles delivered between August 1, 1956, and August 1, 1958, include 1,762 ¾-ton trucks, 140 cubic foot capacity; 594 ½-ton trucks; 625 ¾-ton trucks with enclosed bodies of 200 cubic capacity and right-hand drives; 2,150 ¾-ton trucks of 200 cubic foot capacity and left-hand drives, and 1,968 ¾-ton trucks of 300 foot capacity.

Protect Our Children

State School Supesintendent Thomas D. Bailey estimates that there will be over 900,000 children going to school this year. For many of them this will be their first time away from home. Parents are urged to show their children the nearest and safest route to and from school. Most Florida schools open next week.

Children are leaders of tomorrow. Therefore, drivers should use every caution in driving near schools, especially when school opens and at closing time.

Many of the drivers do not observe or understand the law in passing school buses. When a bus is either loading or unloading, all vehicles coming in either direction must stop and wait until the bus is again in motion. This observance on the part of drivers will prevent the many bus accidents which occurred early this year. Also drive carefully and observe school zone driving.

"Children are not thinking about accidents" stated Asher Frank, director of the Florida Safety Council. "It is up to the drivers to think that one of these children may be his own."

Schools of Thought

For Voters Of Highlands County

My oldest daughter, Benni, returned from college for the summer and due to her background of our good educational system in Highlands County, plus her desire to take advantage of it, was prepared scholastically for college. In a panel discussion, Benni and other college students were asked "What was most difficult in the transition from High School to college. Their answers were (1) making decisions, (2) handling personal liberty.

They had learned to accept their knowledge, but had not learned sufficiently to think, question, analyze and from their own opinions or make their own decisions.

I would like to see a course in High School SPECIFICALLY in Logical Thinking and Reasoning. Instruction that will require our students to think and reason in all phases of education, Rather than accept blindly what is taught and told to them. If we can prepare our children to form their own ideas, based on a firm educational foundation, then we are less likely to have a race of people who are possible subjects of propoganda, and who can become leaders on an international level.

After the political rally in Sebring, I was advised by the incumbent, Henry Bailey, that one of the policies that I would like to see accomplished in our school system was being tried, That of providing special instruction for fast learners and those with special talents, similar to our present provision for the Exceptional Child, or slow learner.

I would like EMPHASIS placed on this specialized training, especially in the fields of science and mathematics, in order that we might prepare students that can compete in the progress of the world.

I have three other children in the Highland County schools. My previous experience with the school system has been in the capacity of Highlands County Trustee and President of the Parent Teachers Association. At present, I am finishing my 4th and final year on the City Council of Sebring. These experience lead me to believe that I am qualified to serve on the Board of Public Instruction which has the following major responsibilities.

1. Establishment, organization and operation of schools.
2. Personnel
3. Child Welfare
4. The Instructional Program (Involving courses of study and other instructional aids).
5. Transportation of pupils
6. School Plant
7. School Finance
8. School Districts
9. Records and reports

I would like the opportunity to share in the above responsibilities with special consideration on the Educational and Instructional policies. . . .

Congressman Matthews To Participate In Growers Meet

The 1958 Distinguished Service Award of the Florida Fruit and Vegetable Association will be presented by a veteran educator-legislator, U. S. Congressman D. R. (Billy) Matthews, during the Association's 13th Annual Convention in Miami Beach next month.

The award, highest honor of the organization which represents the state's vegetable and sub-tropical fruit growers, is given each year to the individual who makes the greatest contribution to Florida's industry of agriculture.

CONGR. MATTHEWS

Last year's recipients were Edwin H. Finlayson, Greenville, and Thomas K. McClane Jr., Gainesville, president and executive vice-president of the Florida Farm Bureau.

Taking the award in 1956 was John W. Campbell, a grower-shipper of Goulds, with previous winners Andrew Duda Jr., Oviedo, grower and cattleman, Frank L. Holland, Winter Haven, secretary-manager of the Florida Agricultural Research Institute; George H. Cooper, Princeton grower; Nathan Mayo, Florida's Commissioner of Agriculture; U. S. Senator Spessard L. Holland, Bartow; grower Luther L. Chandler, Goulds; Dixon Pearce, Miami grower; Paul B. Dickman, Ruskin grower; and Harold Mowry, Gainesville, former director of the Florida Agricultural Experiment Stations.

Names of the winner, until the presentation ceremonies, is one of the conference's best-kept secrets.

Congressman Matthews, a member of the House of Representatives from Florida's 8th District since 1952, and in the field of education as a teacher, principal and administrator for some 23 years prior to that time, has a practical knowledge of farming in the Sunshine State.

As a schoolboy, Matthews aided his father in the management of the family's turpentine interests in Lochloosa and Orange Spring. As an active 4-H Club member, he introduced the first registered Poland China hogs to the eastern section of Alachua County.

The senior Matthews pioneered strawberry cultivation and truck farming in the Hawthorne area.

For 10 years, the congressman served as an assistant 4-H agent working with Florida's rural youth and acting as director of 4-H Club summer camps throughout the state.

Representative Matthews is a current member of the House Committee on Agriculture, 85th Congress.

OPEN LETTER FROM

Frank Bryant

Dear Friends in Highlands County:

Once again I wish to apologize to you for not having visited you during the last eight weeks. As you know I have been busily engaged in a campaign for election to the position of circuit judge. Since Polk County is in the Circuit and contains more than five limes as many registered voters as Highlands County I have had to spend almost all of my time in that county.

I am trying my best to keep this position in Highlands County where it rightfully belongs so that the new circuit judge will be closer to your problems than would be a stranger.

By spending my time in Polk County I have been able to personally see more people in that county than will vote in this County. I therefore hope that you will excuse me for not seeing you and will take this ad as my personal solicitation of your vote and will go to the polls on Tuesday and vote for Frank Bryant as circuit judge.

Sincerely,

FRANK BRYANT

SEPTEMBER MEANS "back to school" for over 668,000 Florida youngsters. Whether the children travel to school in rural areas or congested cities, their safety is largely the responsibility of the American motorist. So says Miss Carol Lane, noted traffic safety lecturer and women's travel director of Shell Oil Company. Last year, according to Miss Lane, motor vehicle accidents killed 2,600 children in the 5-14 age group, and injured 150,000 others. "This year," says Shell's safety expert, "these deplorable figures can be drastically reduced—if each motorist will practice extra caution wherever children are likely to be. When approaching school zones, slow down, stay alert, expect the unexpected."

THE STATE OF CITRUS

BY JOHN SIKES

Florida Citrus Mutual

Lakeland.—Ever wonder what in the world happens to all those oranges that grow on Florida's trees?

Well, here's a breakdown on the utilization of the 1957-58 crop of 82,500,000 boxes of oranges, just announced by Robert W. Rutledge, General Manager of Florida Citrus Mutual:

Shipped in fresh form by express, truck freight, or otherwise: 14,425,000 boxes. (These were mostly for the domestic market, with some going to Canada.)

Overseas export in fresh form, mainly to West Germany, Sweden, Belgium and The Netherlands: 785,000 boxes. (Seeds of ten moved from the port at Ft. Pierce.)

Canned (single-strength) juice and salad: 12,800,000 boxes.

Frozen concentrate (by far the biggest utilizer): 43,900,000 boxes. These made 57,184,000 gallons, a yield of 1.30 gallons per box.

Processed concentrate (mainly for beverage bases, including soft drinks bottled in West Germany): 790,000 boxes.

Chilled salad (fast becoming a favorite of American housewives for a quickly prepared, refreshing complement to lunch and dinner): 500,000 boxes.

Chilled juice (packed mostly in quart-size milk carton-like containers delivered to your doorstep mornings, and called by Herman Steele, FCM assistant GM, the "Infant Prodigy" or orange crop utilization): 6,000,000 boxes.

"Other" (This includes home use, like when you go out to your own tree and pick a batch to home-make marmalade or maybe ship to Aunt Penelope in Peoria): 3,100,000 boxes.

That's it; down to the last orange.

PEELINGS.—Vern Conner, FCM Prexy, thinks a sun-tan lotion made from Florida Oranges would be a natural. The advertising possibility is a beaut: Sun-Tan with Sunshine Fruit Grown in the Sunshine of the Sunshine State . . . This way, to paraphrase that well-known saying, you could eat your fruit and rub it on you, too. . .

Do You Have An Old Thermometer

Got an old thermometer around your house? It may be worth some cold cash, if it's one being sought by Thermometer Corporation of America.

This company is scouring the country for old and unusual thermometers to add to the collection it is assembling. This collection will be incorporated into an International Thermometer Museum which eventually will be sent to cities throughout the United States for public display.

Thermometer Corporation of America says no limit is being set on the number of thermometers it may buy. The prime requisite is that the thermometer help portray the development of thermometers through the years, and the part they have played in everyday life.

If you do own a thermometer which you think is either unusual or unusually old, send a description or a snapshot of it, together with any background information you can give (such as some famous person to whom it belonged, how long it's been in your family, or other pertinent and interesting information) to:

Do not send the thermometer itself. If yours is a thermometer that is needed for the collection, you will receive an offer for it by mail. All letters

Soil Conservation News

By Sam Polston
U. S. Soil Conservation Service

SOIL CONSERVATION

Cooperators of the Highlands Soil Conservation District report that the early variety of Hairy Indigo cover crops are now blooming and beginning to set seed. If allowed to stand it will mature seed in October. The best proven method of managing the cover crop is to allow it to mature seed before chopping and mulching it on the surface to conserve moisture and prevent wind erosion in the spring.

This method insures re-seeding and could be used as a cash crop if the seed were combined. Mr. Von Maxcy says the late buyers of indigo seed have found the supply exhausted throughout the state. Cooperators of the Highlands District planted several thousand pounds of indigo seed as cover crops, all of which came from outside the District.

When the indigo is allowed to mature there are usually combine operators who will harvest the seed on shares and the average yield price the landowners would realize about 15-20 dollars per acre for allowing the indigo to mature.

There are many thousand pounds of grass and legume seed planted in the Highlands District cooperators each year, almost all of which is harvested in surrounding counties. There are thousands of acres of indigo, grasses and clover that could be combined to supply the landowners needs.

The District received applications for assistance in developing conservation farm plans from P. M. Porter and Alan M. Tyson. Both farms will be developed for citrus production.

A person can't hope for success—he has to "hop" for it.

Re-elected To Council

CLARENCE KING

ROLAND DILLEY

MANNIN KIRKLAND

Some 1265 of the 2792 registered voters in Avon Park went to the polls in the City Election Tuesday, September 9, and re-elected the three incumbents to the City Council for two-year terms.

Largest number of votes cast for any one counciman in the race Tuesday was 809 votes for Clarence King.

Roland Dilley was second with 720 votes and Mannin Kirkland placed third with 607 votes.

Other candidates running on the ballot and their count is as follows: Malcolm Crews 575 votes; Jim Pearce 324 votes; John Seaborn 300 votes and Lacey Bennett 159 votes.

There were no write-in votes cast in this election.

Last year when the staggered election went into effect in Avon Park King, Dilley and Kirkland were elected to one year terms. Beginning with this years election and from now on all Councilmen will be elected to two-year terms.

Seventy-one more votes were cast this year than last year. Last year only 1194 votes were cast. With nearly 2800 qualified voters registered on the City Books it means that better than half the voters in Avon Park did not care to exercise their voting rights.

Poll workers in the City Election this year missed the County Voting machines that we were fortunate enough to get to use last year for it was after mid-night when the final returns in the City Election were known.

The re-elected Councilmen will be officially installed and will assume their duties the first of October, 1958.

The canvassing of Highlands County's absentee ballots this morning will decide which of the two candidates, James G. Creel or Vernon D. Tyson, is the winner in the race for County Commissioner from District 4 and will also determine who will be in a runoff with Clifton M. Kelly for a judgeship in the Tenth Judicial Circuit.

Commissioner Creel received 2194 votes to Tyson's 2082 in the 22 precincts in Highlands County's Democratic Primary Tuesday, thus giving him a 111 lead over Tyson but he will need to poll 72 of the absentee ballots to win the election.

Although Clifton M. Kelly of Lakeland did not carry Highlands County he polled 16,437 votes in the Tenth Judicial Circuit, which includes Highlands, Hardee and Polk Counties. The counting of the absentee ballots will determine which of the other two men he will face in the run off. Clyde Maddox, County Judge of Hardee County, received 2986 votes in the circuit for a slight lead over Sebring Attorney Frank E. Bryant, who polled 8941.

Of the votes cast in Highlands County Bryant received 2164, Kelly 911 and Maddox 1096 votes.

Also appearing on the runoff ballot on September 30 will be Arthur J. Tubbs, incumbent, and Eugene Hamlin, for County Commissioner from District No. 2. Tubbs, seeking re-election to the Board, polled 1818 votes to Hamlin's 1788. The third man in the race was Frank Waldron who polled 642 votes.

Glen Darty, former assistant Polk County Solicitor, will succeed State Attorney R. B. Huffaker of Bartow, who was appointed to the post. In the Tenth Judicial Circuit Darty polled 16,313 votes to Huffaker's 13,-711. In Highlands County's vote Tuesday Darty received only 1640 to Huffaker's 1655.

Howard Livingston defeated James Turnbull by 3223 to 1245 as member of the State House of Representatives from Highlands County.

W. H. Prescott received 2467 votes which won for him the

You Can't Trust To Luck

During the first 28 weeks of 1958 there were 791 cases of polio reported in the whole United States. In pre-Salk years (1950-54) the averages for the first 28 weeks was 5,379 cases. This year's figure shows a drop of ome 85 per cent.

Effective as it is, the Salk vaccine cannot account for this drop. Only about 60 per cent of the population most susceptible to polio has had vaccine.

Scientists have two theories about this disease. Some think the Salk vaccine may have created "herd immunity." Herd immunity is a condition that occurs when a sufficient proportion of a population is vaccinated against a given disease. The "chain of infection" is then broken, and even the unvaccinated get protection.

Other scientists say that Salk vaccine does not create herd immunity, since a vaccinated person may carry polio virus and infect unvaccinated people. They attribute the polio drop of the last three years partly to Salk vaccine, partly to luck. They point out that in certain periods of the past, polio went through cycles of low rate attack.

Because there is no scientific evidence that Salk vaccine does create herd immunity, The National Foundation (formerly the National Foundation for Infartile Paralysis), which spearheads the polio fight, warns that we cannot trust to luck. What we acn trust is the Salk vaccine. The safest course, then, for you and your family is to get vaccinated now. Remember, there is no cure once polio has struck.

Credit In The Securities Market

Early in August the Federal Reserve Board raised the margin requirement on common stock buying from 50 to 70 per cent. This margin is the percentage of cash the investor must put up at the time of purchase. In other words, an investor buying $100 worth of any stock now must have $70 in hand.

It is the responsibility of the Board to prevent excessive use of credit in the securities markets, and its action indicates that in its view danger signs had appeared. Yet a factual study of margin sales, made by the New York Stock Exchange to assist the Board in its delicate work, does not show that the use of credit is or has been out of hand.

On a late day the amount of money used to finance the purchasing and carrying of securities amounted to only 1.3 per cent of the market value of all stocks listed on the Exchange on the same date. This ratio was almost exactly the same as it was a month earlier and a year before. There was an increase in credit as measured by dollar volume—but this increase, the Exchange reports, represents a desirable improvement from an abnormally low level, and has served to provide a market liquid enough to meet the public's investment needs quickly and with minimum price changes.

At the same time, the Exchange states, "Though we may differ with the Board's evaluation of the need for the increased margin, the new credit restrictions will, of course, be observed meticulously. . . ." That is always Exchange policy.

"Your Money"

The Portland Oregonian prints a letter from a reader which offers an interesting suggestion. He proposes that we stop the "silly practice" of referring to the financing of projects with "government money" or "Federal funds" as though it was manna from heaven."

Instead, he thinks, we should start calling such financing by its right name—that is "your money" or "taxpayers' funds."

There is a world of merit in this iedea. A great many people, apparently, don't relate "Federal funds"or "government money" to the state of their own pocketbooks. They don't realize that every cent must be paid one way or another by the taxpayers of today and of generations to come. And that term "taxpayers" includes everyone in the country. Even people in so low an income bracket that they pay no direct taxes, must pay hidden taxes every time they buy an article or a service.

The widespread use of such a term as "your money" would be a tremendous help in correcting this sad situation. We'd think twice if we really understood that we must pay a part of the cost of everything government does—whereas now we only think once or don't think at all.

At any rate, keep it in mind next time you read about government spending. It's "your money"—billions upon billions upon billions of it, collected in taxes.

A Fundamental Principle

Paying one's way is an old and honored American custom—one in which we have long taken fully justified pride.

It simply means that we pay for what we get—whether it be a suit of clothes, a car, a meal in a restaurant or anything else. We expect to yap the cost of providing the service or the commodity in question, plus a reasonable profit for the provider. We don't expect other people to pay a part of it for us—and we don't expect to pay a part of the price of the things other people buy.

This fundamental principle governs the vast majority of all commercial transactions, large and small. But there are exceptions—exceptions which many people don't know exist. They are found in commercial undertakings of the government.

An example is the parcel post service of the Post Office Department. It is a purely commercial business—without the "public enlightenment and educational factors" that attend other post office functions. It is directly competitive with private, tax-paying carriers of parcels and small freight shipments. Yet those who patronize parcel post do not pay the whole bill. The service has commonly been operated on a deficit basis ever since it was started in 1913. So all the taxpayers must bear a part of the cost of carrying on the service whether or not they ever use it.

Compelling arguments can be made against government entering any commercial business in competition with its own citizens and taxpayers. At the very least, when government does go into business, it should charge rates that fairly and honestly cover the costs.

What Happens To A $10 Bill

Chain Store Age tells what happens to a $10 bill a housewife spends when she goes grocery shopping in a typical chain store. The breakdown covers 50 classifications of varying importance—beverages, vegetables, pet foods, bakery goods, soap and cleansers, and so on and son on.

All in all, $7.94 out of that $10 bill goes to the manufacturers and farmers who provide the goods the chains are selling. Then $1.77 goes to pay for the store, the help and the overhead. Taxes take 15 cents.

A little simple arithmetic shows that a mere 14 cents is now left. This is the profit—the amount the owners are able to keep. It comes out to just 1.4 cents on the dollar.

This is mass distribution at work. It is based on a principle that many thought unsound and doomed to failure when it was first tried, but is proven today—that stores can make a satisfactory total profit by selling a huge amount of goods at extremely small unit profits.

Mass distribution, of course, isn't limited to foods. It is found in all other important fields of chain retailing, and the principal is identical in all cases. Stores, which must deal with style trends, seasonal merchandise, lower-moving inventories and other such problems, earn a larger percentage per sale. But, generally speaking, it is limited to a few cents on the consumer dollar.

You can't blame retail profits for the high cost of living.

"Bill Of Rights For Athletes"

The heavy and growing emphasis on sports in our colleges has inevitably increased the chance of injury. That has caused the American Medical Association's Committee on Injury in Sports to prepare "A Bill of Rights For the College Athlete."

"The athlete," the Committee observes, "has the responsibility to play fair, to give his best, to keep in training, to conduct himself with credit to his sport and his school. In turn he has the right to optimal protection against injury as this may be assured through good technical instruction, proper regulation and conditions of play, and adequate health supervision."

The importance of good coaching cannot be minimized. Technical instruction leading to skillful performance helps in lowering the incidence and decreasing the severity of injuries. And good coaching includes the discouragement of tactics, outside either the rules or the spirit of the rules, which may increase hazards.

Good officiating is another need. Rules to protect players as well as to promote enjoyment of the game should be thoroughly understood by all involved, and be enforced by impartial and qualified officials.

Good equipment and playing facilities are major defenses against injury. The use of cheap, worn out, outmoded or ill-fitting gear is false economy.

Finally, good medical care is another essential. The Committee divides this into three elements. Participants in sports should be given a thorough physical examination—many tragedies occuring each year result from unrecognized health problems. A physician should be present at all contests and be readily available during practice sessions. And in all medical matters, the physician's authority should be absolute and unquestioned.

These are all simple stipulations. Following them can and will cut the hazards of any sport to the minimum.

W. A. Connell is the new principal of the Highlands Lakes School and he and his family are making their home on Lake Lillian.

A large number of friends and patrons of the school attended the pounding and welcomed their new friends. Mrs. W. C. Arnold, arranged the party. A clever game was played when the guests took turns making up an imaginary life story for the Connells and then checked it with the real story. This afforded a lot of fun and laughter. An evening of visiting and music followed.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

James E. Hess

Peace of mind . . . a commodity that is a prime requisite if any inmate of any penal institution expects to lead a half-way bearable existence while incarcerated. Building time is a pretty rough proposition in itself, to do so when faced with personal problems and the frustrations of not being able to do anything about them makes for a life of nightmarish aspect.

In the majority of cases the inconvenience of being imprisoned combined with the discomfort of hard labor is of little consequence when compared with the mental stress involved. A man who worries constantly about the ability of his family to care for itself because of financial difficulty or sickness has a touch time of it. Likewise, the individual who has no family or friends on the "outside" has a worrisome burden to carry; how and where he is going to gain suitable employment upon his release without assistance.

No matter how petty a problem may seem to one not involved directly, you can be sure that it is of major importance to the inmate concerned. It is an accepted fact that even small problems become magnified all out of proportion to the actual degree of their seriousness. Not hearing from home at regular intervals can grow into terrifying significance for the man who has no way of learning one way or the other of what is happening at home; a death in the family is doubly heartbreaking when it is not possible to properly mourn the passing of a mother or father with other loved ones.

It has been stated by statistical psychologists that the mental age of the average inmate is twelve to thirteen years. Just as the young teenager is susceptible to the pulls and tugs of mental strain so is the mentally immature inmate. Instability is the rule rather than the exception. In the majority of cases it is a matter of having to re-educate the individual completely, due to a life time environment of "dog-eat-dog." Who is to say it is not natural that such individuals who have no aptitude for earning a decent wage legitimately should turn to crime as a source of income? The problem is to convince him that he is capable of making his own way in society by training him to do so and simultaneously instilling the necessary self confidence. In close conjunction with training the inmate comes the necessity of convincing the public that it is to society's advantage to lend a helping hand. Ostracism or antagonism are the two surest ways of returning a man to the "big house." Just as patience and understanding pay off with the twelve year old, so will such treatment be rewarding to the inmate, resulting in confidence and trust and opening a heretofore closed mind to further teaching. It is no simple matter to indoctrinate a program based on honor and self respect when a life time may have been spent in an opposite type environment.

At Avon Park Prison the program of rehabilitation has progressed steadily. It is now planned to inaugerate a new pre-release program that entails the bringing down of agents representing various fields of employment. These agents will lecture and instruct classes of inmates scheduled to be discharged in six months or less. The institution's operation will be so geared as to closely resemble life on the "outside" in order to prepare the individual for possible problems that he may have to face.

The success of this new program rests entirely with the public. It is the acceptance of the ex-convict that will prove the value of going to the trouble of rehabilitating him in the first place. In recent years the public has been educated to accepting the cured alcoholic or the cured mentally diseased; it is our prayer that the ex-con will be accepted as an individual that has made a mistake and paid for it. Is it unreasonable to assume that just because a man has been unfortunate enough to have been convicted of a felony that he is unfit to live a normal life forever more? Give us a break Mr. Citizen . . . you won't be sorry.

School News

All schools in the Avon Park Area got away to one of the best beginnings in years despite the fact that occupancy of the seven new classrooms at the Avon Elementary School was in doubt until the zero hour.

However, the teachers and pupils moved in on Tuesday morning, Sept. 2, and school was underway. The building contractor has been busy after school hours and on the week-end graveling the roof and laying the floor tile as well as those jobs needing the last touch.

The Junior High School also moved to the ground floor of the old elementary school vacated by the fourth and fifth grades. The sixth grade still is housed in the upstairs rooms of that building.

Several pupils have registered since opening day, both in elementary and high school, to swell the total school enrollment.

All teaching personnel are now present and on the job. Vincent Barnard from North Adams, Mass., who taught the past two years at Newberry, Fla., reported on Monday.

He will direct the vocal music groups and do part time teaching in Junior High Health courses.

Class schedules, bus routes, and other routine problems are being adjusted to take care of the immediate needs but full time classes have been in effect since opening day.

The inventory of beef cattle in Florida is valued at over $152 million as compared with a little over $114 million last year.

Among the leading producers of American Fire and Casualty Company who are graduates of the American Institute of Insurance and Human Relations is Mrs. Emily B. Biggs who represents the "American" through the Hubbard Biggs Agency, Avon Park.

Insurance Agents Study At Little Red Schoolhouse

"A dream come true" for Walter L. Hays, Founder and President of American Fire and Casualty Company, and the brightest spot in busy downtown Orlando, Florida, is the vivid-colored "Little Red Schoolhouse," reminiscent of the one-room school with the potbellied stove of bygone days.

The "Little Red Schoolhouse," located next to "American's" six-story Home Office on the main street of Orlando, is the home of the American Institute of Insurance and Human Relations, the Educational Divison of American Fire and Casualty Company. Founded in 1945, it was the first accredited insurance school in the State of Florida. From the beginning, it has been under the leadership and direction of Harold E. Marsolf, Vice President in charge of Education, who is affectionately called "Pappy."

Students come from many states for this school covering the fundamentals of all Fire and Casualty coverages, including Fidelity and Surety Bonds, Salesmanship, Human Relations, Public Speaking, and Civic Activities, to prepare themselves to become agents and return back home as authorities on insurance, qualified to become civic leaders in their communities.

From the inception of the American Institute, theory was discarded, not because of its lack of value, but because of the necessity of accomplishing as much as possible in the shortest time. No lectures are given . . . no time is wasted.

Red Cross News

There will be a Special Meeting of the Board of Directors of the Highlands County Chapter of the American Red Cross at the Chapter Office in Sebring, Thursday, September 11th at 5 p. m.

The students learn "by doing."

On the morning of September 29th, when the bell on top of the "American's" modern-day, old-fashioned "Little Red Schoolhouse" rings, it will sound out the call for down-to-earth reading, riting, and 'rithmetic covering all phases of today's multiple line insurance operations.

The scouts are working on their achievements and badges and will have a board of review soon so that each boy may advance.

Troop 157 of the Avon Park Boy Scouts sponsored by the Rotary Club has William Turner, minister of the First Christian Church, as its new leader. will one of the other contestants shoot ahead to be named the Sugar Daddy of 1958?

Posters with the pictures of the four contestants, George Woodham, Dr. Coleman, Francis LaFlam and Guy Garrett, will remain in the stores until Saturday afternoon about 3 or 4 o'clock. Residents of the community are urged to vote for the Sugar Daddy they prefer, remember a vote is only a penny. So each time you past the posters with the bright red cups empty the change from your pocket.

As Rotary members started to enter the dining room at the Jacaranda Hotel Wednesday at noon they were greeted by Nancy Coleman and Chica Durden who were soliciting votes for the Sugar Daddy Contest. Each held a poster containing a cup for each contestant and the girls made sure that the Rotarians voted in this year's contest.

Have you voted in the Sugar Daddy Contest? If not won't you please do so today, for the proceeds will be used by the Junior Women's Club for the support of the Ridge Area Day School and the Youth Center.

Attend the Sugar 'N Spice Follies. The Sugar Daddy of 1958 will be announced during Saturday's nights performance at the High School Auditorium.

Dr. Cumming practices medicine in Ocala, Fla., and is a member and past president of the Rotary Club of Ocala. Born in Winchester, Kentucky, he was graduated from Kentucky Wesleyan University in Owensboro, Kentucky, and received his doctor of medicine degree from Johns Hopkins Medical School in Baltimore, Maryland. He is a former mayor of the City of Ocala, and an officer in many civic undertakings. During World War II, he was a colonel in the U. S. Army Air Corps. He has been a member of the Rotary Club of Ocala since 1933. Elected as a district governor of Rotary International for the 1958-59 fiscal year at Rotary's 49th annual convention in Dallas, Texas, he is one of 258 district governors supervising Rotary activities in 110 countries and geographical regions throughout the world.

Wherever Rotary Clubs are located, President Biggs asserted in discussing the governor's visit, their activities are similar to those of the Rotary Club of Avon Park because they are based on the same general objectives - developing better understanding, fellowship, community undertakings, and fostering the advancement of good will, understanding and peace among all the peoples of the world.

Each year, this world-wide service organization continues to grow in numbers and in strength, President Biggs added. During the past fiscal year, 350 new Rotary clubs were organized in 51 countries, bringing the total number to an all-time high of nearly 10,000, and 8 countries were added to Rotary's roster - British Honduras, Eritrea, French Guiana, Laos, Martinique, Papua, Virgin Islands and the West Indies Federation.

Attends Workers Meet This Week

Pastor W. C. Arnold and Chaplain and Mrs. Herman C. Ray left last Sunday to attend the Workers Meeting of the Florida Seventh Day Adventist Churches at the High Springs Youth Camp.

Religious Emphasis Week Services Begin Monday Night In Lake Wales

The largest attendance on record is expected next week when the fifth annual Religious Emphasis Week program begins at the Lake Wales Amphitheatre.

Sponsored jointly by the Lake Wales Kiwanis Club and the Lake Wales Ministerial Association, the four-night program will feature talks by Dr. Pierce Harris, noted Georgia minister. The series opens Monday night.

DR. PIERCE HARRIS

Dr. Harris is pastor of the First Methodist Church in Atlanta, one of the largest congregations in the South and is much in demand as a church conference and convention speaker.

His general theme for the four talks to be given at the Amphitheatre Is "God at the Fireside—A Faith for the Whole Family."

Each of the nightly programs begins at 7:45 and sponsors are urging attendance in family groups if possible. Dr. Harris' talks are non-sectarian in nature but all emphasize the importance of religion in every day life.

Accompaning the talks will be choir music provided by a group of singers selected from choirs throughout the county. Michael Malis, well known Baptist choir leader in Winter Haven, will lead the group in several numbers each night.

Now in his 18th year as pastor of the Atlanta church Dr. Harris strengthens his messages with appropriate humor and is very popular with young people. A trustee of three Georgia colleges, he speaks often at high schools, colleges and universities in addition to his other schedules.

An active civic worker in his own community, he is also a newspaper columnist writing one of the Atlanta Journal's most popular columns and is an ardent golfer, having "won more than 80 trophies in that sport.

There is no admission charge to the programs. Like Waleans are underwriting all expenses through individual sponsorship contributions.

A Lavin Plan Retirement Center To Be Built In City

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

One of the cutest things on wheels is little three year old Pamela Murphy, who gyrates with ease and grace around her Daddy's skating rink located next to the Youth Center.

Little Pam has been skating since she was eleven months old. In fact, you might say she learned to skate as she was learning to walk. The skates she now wears are small but the first pair her parents ordered for her must have been teensy-weensy.

Pam always draws a crowd of spectators when she performs. She skates backwards with as much aplomb as forward, but, like all kids, only when she's in the mood, which is usually when she isn't asked, her father, Mickey explained.

Mickey Murphy has had the popular recreation center here for the past five years. He loves children and has many friends, young and old, among his customers. He, of course, is enthusiastic about skating as a healthful exercise and encourages the parents of the young people to take to wheels for purposes of either taking on, or shedding weight, as the case may be. Several large schools have included this form of exercise in their physical training program.

Bryant To Face Kelly In Circuit Judgeship Run-Off September 30

Only the names of four candidates running in two races will appear on the ballot for the second primary on September 30.

The counting of Highlands County's absentee ballots last Thursday put Frank E. Bryant, Sebring Attorney, into the run-off with Clifton M. Kelly of Lakeland for a judgeship in the three county Tenth Judicial Circuit. Up until the time that the absentee ballots were counted last Thursday the third man in the race Hardee County Judge Clyde Maddox held a slight lead over Bryant. The 189 absentee ballots cast for Bryant put him in the run-off with the Polk County solicitor.

The only other run-off appearing on the ballot will be in the State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission race where Jerry Carter, incumbent, will face Jim Blanton.

The twenty-two precincts in Highlands County will be open from 7 a. m. until 7 p. m. on Tuesday, September 30, for all registered Democrats to vote in the second primary election.

City And County Law Officials Have Busy Weekend In Avon Park

A stranger requesting that a police officer pay his coffee bill at the Drug Store Saturday afternoon seemed to be the beginning of a busy weekend for the City Police and the Sheriff's department.

Jasper Smith, 42, from North Carolina was arrested Saturday afternoon by Chief Leland Harrison and Assistant Chief Blandford for being drunk in a public place and shoplifting. His companion, John Frederick, 38, of Baltimore was also arrested for shoplifting.

Both men were turned over to Sheriff's Deputy Bob Barringer and appeared before County Judge Mervin Rehrer Tuesday morning.

The county charged Smith and Frederick with shoplifting and vagrancy and Judge Rehrer sentenced them to three months on each charge.

Also arrested by the City Police for being drunk in a public place were Roy Scarbrough, 39, and Guy Rector, 44.

Late Saturday afternoon in answer to a call from Mary's Place the City Police arrested Sandra Jenkins, 21, of Atlanta, Ga., who so badly resented being arrested and placed in the patrol car that she fought Patrolman Blanford and then proceeded to break out one of the back window glasses with her fist.

She was turned over to Sheriff's Deputy Barringer. Also arrested by City Police and the Sheriff's Department were her friends and companions, Betty Eckers, 25, of Texas; Robert Smith, 24, and Eugene Jenkins, 27, both of Tenn.

All four appeared in County Court Tuesday and Judge Rehrer imposed the following sentences.

Sandra Jenkins, drunk in a public place $25 or 30 days; profane language $25 or 30 days; vagrancy 20 days; destroying city property $50 or 30 days; must replace patrol car glass or serve three months and ordered a $1,000 bond posted for adultery.

Betty Eckers, fornication, $25 or 30 days.

Robert Smith, plead not guilty to the charge of vagrancy and fornication, and bonds of $100 and $250 were ordered.

Eugene Jenkins received 30 days on a vagrancy charge and plead not guilty to the improper driver's license charge.

The Sheriff's Department is investigating the possibility that the four may be wanted in Tenn. or Ga. on a breaking and entering charge.

Fla. TB Assn. Gives Grants To Medical Schools

For the second consecutive year the Florida Tuberculosis and Health Association has made grants of $3,000 to each of the medical schools at the University of Florida and the University of Miami.

These grants, funds for which are derived from the annual sale of Christmas Seals, help further the medical program sponsored by the Florida Tuberculosis and Health Association and its medical section the Florida Trudeau Society. Dr. Hawley H. Seiler of Tampa, heads the medical education committee of these two groups.

The Highlands County Tuberculosis and Health Association has contributed the total sum of $1100 to this program over the past two years.

"Close Sheriff Surveilance To Be Given APLP

Sheriff Coker has advised that the Avon Park Lakes area will be placed under constant and very close surveillance by his office and it is hoped that this will result in the speedy arrest of the culprits responsible for the depredations.

Youth Center Entered Twice

Last weekend the Avon Park Youth Center was illegally entered for the second time in the past two months. The Sheriff's Department has been investigating these occurances and two individuals have been apprehended for the recent entry and will be held responsible for all damage to the premises.

Andrew Miracle, Youth Center Director, has announced that the Sheriff's Department will patrol the area of the Youth Center with especial vigilance for the next several months to prevent a recurrance of this type of crime. Friends of the Youth Center are asked to please help the Sheriff's Department and Mr. Miracle by noticing any suspicious activity around the center and getting in touch with them. Wrongdoers will be punished.

The Youth Center is the property of the community and the help of each person is necessary to help keep it for the use of all.

ARTHUR J. TUBBS

Arthur J. Tubbs, nearing the end of his 14th year as a Highlands County Commissioner from District 2, withdrew as a candidate for the post in the September 30 runoff primary.

His withdrawal gives the renomination to Eugene Hamlin, 28, Sebring roofing contractor, who had placed second in the first primary. This was Hamlin's first try for a public office.

Tubbs, 74, during his 14 years on the commission has established an excellent record of accomplishments both county and district-wide.

It was with regret that the Board learned that Ted Ward, Chapter Chairman, is moving to St. Petersburg and would be forced to resign as chairman of the Board.

He was Campaign Chairman for the City of Avon Park for two years, and served as Regional Campaign Chairman for National Red Cross for three years. School Officials Inspect Other Florida Schools

The Highlands County School Board, School Architect and the Superintendent, visited newly constructed school buildings outside the county during the past weekend. According to Superintendent Fred Wild, the School Board has constantly visited schools out of the county to insect the buildings, talk with school officials and other individuals in order to gain as much information as possible so that the best possible school buildings can be planned for the schools in our county at a minimum cost.

It has been their opinion that a small additional cost on the original school buildings will save many dollars in maintenance and general up-keep of the buildings. It will also add greatly to the general appearance and use of the buildings.

In comparing the cost of school buildings constructed in our county with the cost of constructing of school buildings in the surrounding counties, the cost per square foot has been approximately the same. In comparing school building condition after several years use, the buildings in Highlands County give the appearance of being new, while a great majority of the buildings in other counties visited have shown much wear and tear.

The School Board plans to continue with their program of visiting other schools in Florida and recommends that all citizens interested in making comparison in school building construction and usage, visit schools out of the county.

Rotary Works For International Understanding

Rotary clubs in 110 countries and geographical regions throughout the world are united in an endeavor to promote international understanding, good will and peace. That was the message of Dr. Richard C. Cumming, of Ocalf, Florida, governor of district 696 of Rotary International, in addressing the Rotary Club of Avon Park yesterday, following a conference with local Rotary officers and committee chairmen.

In addition to the activities of the more than 9,800 Rotary clubs within their own countries, and to promote this objective, Dr. Cumming explained, Rotary International has awarded grants of more than $2,600 during the past 11 years through its program of student fellowships, which enable outstanding college graduates to study for one year in countries other than their own, as Rotary ambassadors of good will. Since 1947, when this program was established, 1,076 Rotary Foundation Fellowships have been awarded to students in 65 countries for study in 43 countries.

"With fellowship and service to others as its keynote, Rotary provides a common ground for 462,500 business and professional executives throughout the world, regardless of differing nationalities or languages or political and religious beliefs," the Rotary district governor emphasized.

6 Year Old Sebring Negro Boy Killed In Fall From Truck

A 6-year old Negro boy was killed Monday when he fell from a City of Sebring trash truck and the rear wheel crushed his head.

The death of the child, Alfonso Kinsey, was the seventh highway fatality in Highlands county this year.

County Judge Mervin Rehrer announced that a coroner's jury, composed of J. W. Sircy, Rex Baxton and Herman Pettus of Sebring Robert E. Lee, Billy D. Walker and L. on Kelly, of Avon Park, d that the youngster met d in an accidental manner, d absolved R. A. Spires, t truck driver, of criminal n ance in the accident.

Spires was sing the Negro school at ach time and stopped when he heard youngsters calling to him. Two boys, Bernard Davis and the victim's brother, Elijah, got on the offside running board. Spires told the jury he didn't give or deny the boys permission to ride on the truck. He also stated that only the victim got on the truck, and did not know he was there until one child yelled that "Alfonso fell off."

Clara Pearl, sister of the victim, stated that she saw her brother fall from the moving truck. The truck had traveled only a short distance when the accident occured.

Assistant State's Attorney Joseph Macbeth requested that a inquest be held after making a preliminary investigation.

Dr. Bayless Rites Held Here Monday

Funeral services for Dr. Bayless, 72, who died Saturday in Sebring, were held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Avon Park Methodist Church.

Dr. Bayless was a native of Georgia and had been a resident of Sebring for 30 years. He was a member of the Methodist Church.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Ethel Bayless, Sebring; two sons, Dr. Frank Bayless, Sebring and Dr. Elgin Bayless, Avon Park; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bayless Hall, Sebring; a brother, Dr. Frank Bayless, Sr., Sebring; a sister, Mrs. Ethel Bayless Hall, Sebring; and seven grandchildren.

Interment was in Oak Lawn Memorial Park, Sebring.

Soon Avon Park will be known as the home of one of the famous Lavin Plan Retirement Centers.

The Lavin Plan was first put into operation in March 1948 by Charles S. Lavin and proved to be such a success that now there are 14 Lavin Retirement Hotels in operation located in Florida, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Arkansas, Texas and California.

Mr. Lavin and Mr. Stephens, both of Miami, met with the City Council Monday night in a special called meeting to discuss with them a wonderful plan for Avon Park. They are the owners of quite a sizeable plot of land in Sunset Hill Subdivision located at the top of the hill surrounding King's Court.

The fourteen establishments which they have in operation are all on the hotel plan. In Avon Park they plan to introduce an entirely new idea for instead of one huge building they plan to construct residence type homes consisting of four bedrooms, living room, porches, baths, kitchens and kitchenettes.

The purpose of the Lavin Retirement Plan is to offer a good home to persons in the low income bracket who have already retired or are ready to retire. The Plan provides a very pleasant home in a friendly surrounding for retired persons, and delicious meals are included at low cost.

Before the meeting Monday the Council had contracted reputable attorneys on one of the Lavin Plan Hotels. The report was excellent. The Council was told that the plan was working like a charm and that the establishment was filled to capacity. The food served was excellent and everyone was happy.

Mr. Lavin assured the Council that work on the new retirement Center would start soon, and that all buildings would be constructed according to the City's requirements.

The Lavin Retirement Plan received nation-wide attention

Hardee Lawyers Support Polk Man In Judgeship Race

WAUCHULA—"Virtually all" Hardee County attorneys are supporting Polk County Solicitor Clifton Kelly for a judgeship in the 10th Judicial Circuit, Leff Mabie said today.

Mabie, former Hardee County judge, said the attorneys had authorized him to make the statement. He said there are eight or nine practicing attorneys in Hardee and all except one are supporting Kelly.

The attorneys' support is being given as individuals, Mabie said. There is no active bar association in the county.

Kelly faces Frank E. Bryant, a Sebring attorney, in a second primary run-off Sept. 30.

Mabie said Hardee attorneys supported Hardee County Judge Clyde Maddox in the first primary. He said the attorneys were now hoping that Bryant would withdraw so there would not be any controversy between Highlands and Hardee County attorneys.

Bryant, however, has indicated he will not withdraw from the three-county race.

Tallahassee—Wankard Pooser says he is calling it quits.

To some folks this might not seem like earth shaking news, but to anyone who has ever read "Wankard Pooser's Bumble Bee—The Paper With A Sting"—the news should cause considerable sorrow or elation.

The paper, which according to it's masthead is "published spasmodically at Marianna, Florida" is in a class by itself for freewheeling journalism.

Wankard, who describes himself as a "famous author, statesman, poet, etc. et cetera and so forth," is also known locally in Marianna as "Something of a lawyer, ex-legislator, father of seven children, noted local after-dinner speaker, wit, critic, and owner of a house-moving business."

As a member of the State Legislature, Wankard is probably best remembered as the fellow that got down on the floor of the House of Representatives and prayed for the taxpayers after the sales tax bill was passed.

Despite this record of public service, he has this to say about politicians in his last edition:

"We hear a lot of grand promises from politicians that they have and will 'bring home the bacon.' The trouble is that these wily worthies usually stash about all of the meat IN THEIR OWN SMOKE HOUSES!"

The Bumble Bee, according to the masthead gives "All the low Down on the High Ups" and is "Dedicated to the purification of government, local, state, and national."

After no one knows how long of "spasmodic publication," Wankard Pooser's Bumble Bee is going to leave the stinging to someone else.

Pooser put it this way in the Sept. 5, 1958 edition:

"It also touches our tender heart terribly that so many, many, many (all right, a few did) of our wildly enthusiastic readers have generously offered to part with good, U. S. non-counterfeit currency in return for a Subscription to our brain child. It just breaks our heart to have to decline these donations, on account of we just love money (maybe because we see so little of it.) But, the fact is that you are probably perusing what constitutes the swan song of the mighty 'Bumble Bee.'

"We're just getting to old and lazy to prepare these brain storms, it's about like having a baby."

"So, with these few intensively interesting remarks, we bid you fond adieu!"

For people outside the general circulation area of the Bumble Bee, it might be enlightening to point out a few of Wankard's crusades in his last edition:

In his "pertinent Preambulation Column"—a column for "Men, Women, and children only"—Wankard continues his crusade for a parking place in downtown Marianna "For House Movers Only."

He tells his readers, "You see us house movers, doctors, public officials, etc. et centera and so forth are above you common run of folks, and that is why we rate this top priority, prefered treatment."

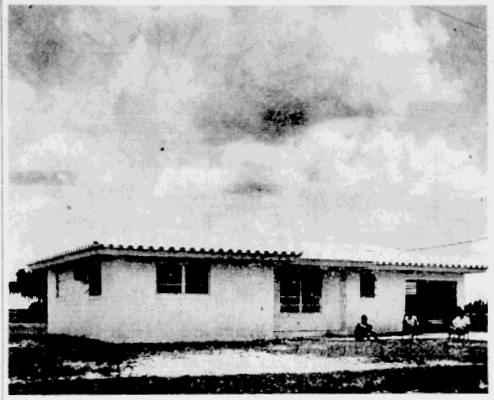
Then, he's also mad with the telephone company for not moving some lines so he could move a house for a church over in Jackson County. However, Wankard gives only the essential details of this endeavor because, "A full and complete account of the trails and tribulations of these good church men in their futile endeavors along this line would so arouse the good church people and sovereign citizenry of the county as to maybe promote rioting and possibly bloodshed, so we dare not give all the harrowing details."

The paper also is filled with plugs for his moving business such as "Poosers, the worlds best house movers (excuse the subtle little plug.)"

It also carries a picture of Wankard, which was taken some 20 years ago, and the last edition carried a "Department of Political Research" in which he took the hide off Gov. Collins and a couple of state legislators.

This was a question and answer column in which the last question and answer went:

"Question: Are we to understand that you are against the Governor, the Senator or the Representative and their record in public office?"



"Answer: Listen, brother, the redoubtable editor of this department is neither for nor against anybody or anything. You asked the question and we gave the answers. You vote as you d-mned please, and we'll do the same."

Of course, Wankard as editor of his own little paper, has an ad on the front page for his moving business.

It reads:

"If you have a WPA toilet or a ten-hen chicken house that you want moved, see one of our competitors! They Specialize in Such! BUT, if its a Valuable house, one requiring care, skill and efficiency, THEN REMEMBER It always pays to get the best. The World's Best House Movers."

Although Wankard says he is swearing off newspapers, there are those who believe the Bumble Bee has not lost its sting . . It's just a matter of finding a target.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Teacher Training:

One of our most urgent tasks is the training of teachers to carry on: (a) basic instructional of all, (b) special instruction of specialized workers, and (c) educational instruction in how to teach people the innumerable small jobs, attitudes and skills by which knowledge is translated into activity. By "teachers" we mean all those who will carry on the instruction of adult. Many of our teaching force will not be professional teachers but volunteers who have taken courses to equip them to instruct in some special part of our program. There should always be a percentage of professional teachers. Their professional knowledge and experience can be adapted to the peculiar ming circumstances our voluntary instructors will encounter.

Ideally, teacher training is a job for the state. The education al facilities of the state are best known by someone who works at the state level. Certain states, Illinois and New York, for example, which have developed a remarkable network of training and teacher-training centers now turning out hundreds of trained personnel, have made the development of training programs in existing institutions the special responsibility of a single staff member of the Department of Education. Such an appointment must not be nominal. Its occupant must be given time for work which involves new learning, travel, committee meetings, certification duties, and he must believe in his work.

In the institutions of higher learning there are teachers and research workers who are expert in the subject fields concerned. In the hydraulics laboratories of engineering schools you will find experts on floods. There is a fire control expert in every Land Grant College. Department of police science exist in some universities and colleges. The complex problems of legality and public administration find their answers in the colleges of law and schools of public affairs. Every liberal arts college has physicists, chemists and bio-chemists who can teach the basic science needed for special training, and who know how much to teach and how much not to teach. Medical schools and colleges of nursing are best equipped to train those who will teach local volunteers. Sociologists and psychologists can help train people in the basic principles of understanding human relations and organizing group and intergroup work. Departments of adult education know much about the circumstances in which adults readily learn, the problems of motivating and sustaining interest, setting and reaching goals.

If the state department of education accepts leadership responsibility, it is possible to organize intensive teacher-training programs throughout the state, using the state institutions, private colleges and the larger public schools, especially those with existing programs in adult education. Other problems can be more readily solved if teacher-training is established on a coordinated state-wide basis. A state can produce its own mimeographed program materials especially suitable to that state. Many of us are inclined to believe that something specially designed in and for our state will be more useful than something designed in another state or at the national level.

Bring The Young To God

By THE REV. P. F. WATTERSON

During the early years of childhood, the essential connection between the Church and home can be easily and naturally established. The opportunity should not be allowed to slip by. For this reason children should be encouraged to talk about their home experiences in the Church School. This link will be strengthened as parents talk at home about the Church and other things of God. Both father and mother should take part in making this vital association between Church and home. Unless both are involved, the child may think of the Christian faith as something which concerns only mothers or only fathers. Don't give your child "spiritual schizophrenia." There are many specific ways in which parents can bring the Church into the home. Here are some of them.

One way to strengthen your child's awareness that your family is a Christian one is to pray family prayers together regularly. The routine you adopt will depend on the ages of your children and how long you have been saying family prayer together. A simple grace at mealtime is one way to begin. Add an extra prayer or simple Bible passage on special occasions such as a birthday or other family or Church anniversary. Prayers in the morning before family members go their separate ways, or prayers at the bedtime of the youngest child, provide a second step. The Lord's prayer or simple thanksgivings said in unison appeal to smaller children. Prayer is an adult business, and a young child will learn more from the reverent and earnest manner of his parents and elder brothers and sisters than he will from the words of the prayer itself. The more members of the family included in family prayer, the better.

Just as young children learn about prayer by watching their parents pray and by taking part themselves in family prayer, so they learn about corporate worship by participation. Though children cannot fully understand the service, they learn a great deal simply through participation. The important thing is that they are with their parents as part of the congregation at worship. The child cannot accept the Church as his larger family unless he sits with you often as part of the worshiping community. Your child has asked or will ask: "Who am I?" "Who are the people around me?" These are questions which you yourself (the parent) are still facing in one form or another. As a parent you ask: "What kind of a mother or father will I be?" "What kind of a person do I want my child to become, and how can I help him?" You have to decide how best to train him to live with others, how to provide for his needs, how and when to discipline him, and, most important of all, how to show him your love.

These questions are religious questions. The basic of even the simplest decision a parent makes about a child is the answer he gives to the questions: "Who am I?" "Who is my neighbor?" The world teaches one answer; Christianity another. Let us not be mistaken about that! Only when we have wrestled on an adult level with the eternal questions asked by mankind can we help our children to deal in a christian way with the questions they are asking.

Parents and children alike live in a world where it is not easy to act in accordance with belief. But through worship, through the fellowship of the Church in its organizations and educational program, the parent and child can be strengthened. The child finds through his Church School Class the loving world of a larger family. Parents can be upheld in the ministry to their children, and become apostles for Christ in a world which still so largely ignores Him. Bring your child to Church this Sunday . . . then take God back into your home.

TO THE VOTERS OF HIGHLANDS COUNTY

I want to thank Mr. Arthur J. Tubbs for his action in withdrawing in my favor in our race for county commissioner of District 2.

I feel that Mr. Tubbs is being big about this. With his vote, who knows, he had as good a chance as I had to win.

His action in withdrawing saves us both a grueling second primary race, and frankly, I am glad to get out of it.

I invite those of you who voted for Mr. Tubbs to join me in my efforts to give you my best in the conduct of the office, and I will welcome your support, your counsel and good wishes in the job I am undertaking for the next four years.

Sincerely yours,

Hibiscus Show To Be "East Meets West"

St. Petersburg—The Palmer Hibiscus Club of St. Petersburg has set Sunday, Sept. 28th as the date of their annual Hibiscus show. The title of the show will be "East Meets West", and the staging will be done to emphasize the Chinese background of Hibiscus, using paper lanterns, parasols, fans and oriental screens. Home arrangements will follow the show theme using accessories and plant material to create the oriental feeling. Flower arrangements will have such titles as Fans and Fantasies, Pine is Forever, Sweet Incense and Flowers, The Temple Prayer, Stones and Reflecting Pool, The Mandarin, Bamboo and Buddha, Tea for China, Tea Pot and Chop Sticks. There will be corsages of Hibiscus classed by the featured color. Of interest to Hibiscus fanciers will be the collections of varieties and the seedling display. Bus. Women Begin Fall Meetings On Monday Nite

Miss Eve Campbell and Miss Pat Tondee addressed the members of the Business and Professional Women's Club at their first fall meeting on Monday night, Sept. 15, in the Florida Power Customer's Room.

The club sent one of the girls to Girl's State last summer as one of their projects. This was the first year that our Legion Auxiliary has ever sponsored two girls and this was made possible by the Business Women's Club sending one of the girls. It was with great pleasure the members heard the excellent talks on the recent Girl's State that were given by the girls. The purposes of the State were explained and many other interesting details.

Seventeen members were present for the business meeting that followed. Plans were discussed for several phases of the coming years work and many suggestions given.

During the social hour which followed the meeting, the hostess, Mrs. Neva Atherton, Mrs. Mildred Logan, Miss Verna Heim, and Mrs. Fred Garrett, served Cokes, snakes, and cup cakes. Bridge and canasta were enjoyed by a number of the members. Mrs. L. A. Renfro and Mrs. Ethel Williamson won the canasta prizes and Mrs. Henry Sellers won the bridge prize. Lovely floral arrangements were used by the hostesses.

County Council Of PTA Organized

Twenty interested persons were present at the home of Mrs. J. M. McAdam in Sebring on Tuesday night, Sept. 9, for an organizational meeting of the Highlands County Council of Parent-Teacher Organizations.

The purpose of a County Council is coordinate the work of the various PTA's in the county and profit by mutual work on similar problems. In several counties outstanding work has been done by these councils. The field that they may cover is large and would depend on community decision. A discussion of the purpose and projects of such a group was held on Tuesday night. The twenty present showed enthusiasm and worthwhile ideas.

Attending from Avon Park were Mrs. L. A. Renfro, president of the Avon Park High School PTA. Mrs. Maldwyn Parry, president of the Avon Elementary PTA; A. B. Wilhite and George Kelsey, Avon Park Principals; and the Rev. Maldwyn Parry.

Notice will be given of the next meeting of the group and all who are interested in this county effort are invited to be sure and attend.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By Russell Kay

When sponge beds were discovered in the Gulf of Mexico at the turn of the century a small group of hardy Greeks whose ancestors had been sponge fishermen in the Aegean Sea since before the time of Christ, journeyed from their homeland to establish this industry in the New World.

They settled near the mouth of the Anclote River at Tarpon Springs. Sponge diving is an ancient art that only the hardy and experienced may engage in. From generation to generation the art has been handed down from father to son and it is practiced today much the same as it was two thousand years ago.

Greek boat builders followed the divers and the Tarpon Springs Greek colony grew and prospered. The present fleet is a large one and when in port is worth going many miles to see.

Each year thousands of tourist visit Tarpon Springs to see the sponge docks, browse through the quaint curio shops that line the waterfront, dine at the Greek resturants and watch sponge diving exhibitions from the deck of typical boats which cater to tourists.

I have visited this quaint Florida attraction many times and it is a must on any itinerary I make up when taking our visiting friends and relatives on a tour of this section of Florida.

While Tarpon Springs has not been publicized to the extent of some of our famed attractions such as Silver Springs or Cypress Gardens, it nevertheless has much to offer the visitor and I was delighted to learn that the October issue of the Reader's Digest will feature a story entitled, "The Sponge Divers of Tarpon Springs", written by Lucien Burman, who joined the crew of a sponge boat for a fishing trip in the Gulf to gather first hand material.

It is a splendidly written article that vividly describes the life and activity of the sponge diver who seeks his fortune in the deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico where life is full of drama and danger no different from that experienced by their ancestors who hunted sponges in the Aegean Sea.

From stories gathered from the ship's crew or picked up in the coffee shops on the colorful waterfront Burman divulges secrets of the sea that the sponge divers have learned over the centuries. Their friends and foes encountered in the depths and the friendly porpoise that seem to possess human intelligence and warn when a storm is approaching or drive off the sharks as they maintain a patrol about the fleet when it is anchored over the sponge beds in the Gulf.

The Greek fisherman is religious. Many carry icons, and a cross as well as pictures of Saints are to be found aboard most ships. A waterspout frequently develops on the Gulf. It is the counterpart of a tornado on land, a whirling pillar of water reaching from the clouds to the surface that can wreck tremendous damage on anything it strikes.

St. Nicholas, the patron saint of the sponge fisherman, guides the fleet to the best fishing grounds and guards it if the members of its crew remain in their faith. They tell you that when a waterspout appears if you will take a knife that has never cut onions, and drive it forcefully into the center of a wooden cross as you quote certain passages from the Bible, St. Nicholas will break the spout in half so that it will dissipate and fall harmlessly into the water. Call it nonsense or superstition if you wish but old times will tell you it works and their faith is absolute which probably accounts for the miraculous results they attest.

Read the Digest story in the October issue. I'm sure you will enjoy it.

America is at war. We have been invaded and the enemy from a small beachhead in Alabama has taken control of most of that state as well as large areas of Mississippi and Louisiana. On top of that, the foe has sent crack parachute battalions that have established battle zones in Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

No invading human army can match this enemy for ruthless brutality and destruction. It has killed women and children in three states, destroyed over a half billion dollars worth of crops and killed livestock and poultry, driving farmers from their land and sweeping everything before it.

This enemy is the fire ant. A tiny insect, not much different in appearance from the ants we are familiar with. Ordinary insecticides have no effect on them. People who have gone to the attack with DDT have had to retreat and were killed or hospitalized as a result.

Our agricultural authorities are trying frantically to find some method of control but in the meantime the insects are increasing and taking over more and more territory. Not only do these pests destroy cultivated crops and livestock, they are also killing all small game in the area they invade. They threaten to wipe out our doves and quail, muskrats, rabbits, and other species.

A Texas farmer, driven from his home and land reported that the ants have as many as 365 hills to the acre and the hills are from two to four feet across. They get into building foundations, under sidewalks and even eat fence posts, they gnaw insulation from wiring, starting dangerous fires and kill young calves and chickens with ease.

A woman and two children have been killed by the ants in Florida and deaths are being reported from other states. So serious is the situation that the federal government, after considerably delay has appropriated two and a half million dollars to fight the pest, but entomologists say that this won't go very far as it costs about $8 an acre to destroy the ants and as they now occupy millions of acres and spread by flight, as passengers on most any type of vehicle, the problem of controlling them is a superhuman one.

Chlordane and Dieldrin are being used with some success but control in any given area doesn't mean very much when they break out in other sections constantly.

At Flomaton, Ala. the ants took over Henderson Field which had to be closed to air traffic and military maneuvers of troops have been halted at Maxwell Air Force Base and Ft. Benning, Georgia until the pests could be brought under control.

The fire ant is a native of South American and were first reported in the vicinity of Mobile, coming here in all probability as passengers on some ship. American entomologists have been sent to South America to consult with authorities there, but report they have been able to gain very little helpful information.

The deadly venom of the fire ant is new to our doctors. They have trouble diagnosing ant poisoning and snake bite remedies don't work on ant victims. At Tulane University in New Orleans scientists are trying to develop a vaccine but such research takes time.

A victim of fire ant poisoning develops asthma, strangulation from swelling of the larynx and a drop in blood pressure. Sometimes the blood pressure completely stops and death follows.

Everyone should be on guard and if fire ants are suspected in an area they should be reported immediately to your county Agent. They are difficult for the laymen to identify, but if bitten by a number of them you will know it and the large mounds they build can be spotted easily.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

TALLAHASSEE - Day-to-day watchers of matters political found reasons in the off-year results to reshuffle their lists of possibilities for '60.

The voting did not enhance the vote-getting reputation of any local candidate recognized previously as a potential aspirant for statewide office. To the contrary, some reputations were tarnished.

The returns indicated a number of these might do well to forget or postpone their ambitions for gubernatorial and other higher office in the immediate future.

(In politics, as in many other endeavors, nothing succeeds like success. Unquestionably, the fact that LeRoy Collins won better than three out of four votes over strong opposition for the State Senate in Leon county in 1950 had much to do with selling his candidacy to political leaders - and later to voters generally - when the vacancy occurred in the governorship in 1953 through the death of Dan McCarty. Collins had a record of winning; his rivals, in and out of the McCarty camp, did not.)

The voting also showed it still was possible to lose Dade county and yet win statewide office.

Perhaps the fact that Claude Pepper carried Dade but lost the state, as he had done eight years earlier, helped restore realities forgotten by many politicos in the shock of the enormous majorities LeRoy Collins twice piled up there in his elections for governor.

Since the Collins sweeps there has been a rather general tendency by pundits to write off any potential candidate for statewide office who did not seem to them to possess the ability to win votes in Dade.

The Holland-Pepper outcome revealed the real problem to be that of cutting the winner's majority in Dade if the county cannot be carried. Senator Holland showed it is entirely possible to lose Dade on a strict win-lose basis but still pile up more votes there than some 20 other counties combined may cast for all candidates.

One after another of competent observers around the state said the off-year returns buttressed their belief the next governor likely would come from among these men, alphabetically listed:

Farris Bryant, Ocala lawyer, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, and an also-ran for governor in '56.

Millard F. Caldwell, Tallahassee lawyer-banker, former member of Congress from the Florida panhandle, and Governor in 1945-49.

State Senator Doyle E. Carlton, Jr., Wauchula rancher and namesake son of the Governor in 1929-32.

Justice Stephen C. O'Connell, a Fort Lauderdale lawyer before he came to the Supreme Court in 1955.

(Also mentioned by some observers were State Senator Joe Eaton of Miami, Public Utilities Chairman Alan S. Boyd of Miami, Milk Commission Chairman J. Brailey Odham of Sanford, State Senator Fred O. Dickinson of West Palm Beach, Circuit Judge John M. McCarty of Fort Pierce and House Speaker designate Thomas D. Beasley of Funiak Springs.

(One of those questioned is himself a potential candidate who said he was calculating the make-up of the possible field through the number of times he was told 'I'll support you if so-and-so doesn't run" by persons whose support he sought.)

Those discussing the '60 gubernatorial situation rather generally placed Bryant by himself and said an opponent would come from among Caldwell, Carlton and O'Connell. It was felt that only one of these actually would become a candidate when the qualifying time arrived.

Interestingly, the composite list already has shrunk from a similar roster of a year ago although nothing tangible has occurred to demonstrate a loss of voter appeal by those persons dropped.

The Holland-Pepper situation in Dade seemed to bear most heavily on Bryant's future in the minds of those politicos questioned.

For various reasons, even Bryant's friends have been proceeding on the theory that Dade would be a weak place for him although Bryant never has conceded his problem there was any more difficult than that presented by a massive bloc of votes elsewhere.

Bryant has been endeavoring methodically to break down this massiveness into manageable groups by devoting to Dade many of those days - at least one out of each week - Bryant gives to politics.

The Ocalan's idea seems to be that his opportunity to win friends is just as good when, say, he addresses a Kiwanis audience of 100 in North Miami Beach as it would with a similar Kiwanis club in Tallahassee.

The off-year results also indicated to some observers that political endorsements are as useful in Dade as they are in other areas where candidates cannot reach personally every voter but that a split in these or the lack of them is not necessarily fatal to a candidate.

After the supper the guests were entertained with a unique fashion show narrated by capable Mrs. Jamie Lee Edge. Mrs. Edge introduced the charming models who certainly brought new ideas to the audience for their own wardrobes. Mrs. Stuart Ward modeled a "Box Suit" made from a large cardboard box, Mrs. Doris Everett looked lovely in a Colander Clocke, Mrs. Shirley Franza was chic in a dress of newspaper with pleated skirt, Mrs. Griselda Murphy wore a beautifully decorated Trash Can Tam O'Shanter, Mrs. Gladys Maness modeled a true tea gown covered with real tea bags, Mrs. Mary Ellen Ward's burlap sack was in high style, Mrs. Mary Metheny was ready for church in her dainty Cookie Tin bonnet, Miss Claire Gilmer was set for any arty mood in her Artist's Arsenal, Mrs. Gladys Hemphill got away from the world in a shower curtain dress that covered the model from head to toe, Mrs. Bea Outlaw was protected from sun in a Wash Tub Wimple stylish hat, Mrs. Louise Perkins' stylish bonnet was named the Saucerpan Shako, Mrs. Fred Reddick modeled a beautiful chignon of real crystal, Mrs. Jane Barben's gown was the very latest and most practical dinner gown with plates, cups, and utensils attached, and Mrs. Martha Allen wore what all teachers always need the 'sees all beanie with eyes in the back of the head. The audience howled and all the women made notes to rush home and make their own models of these gorgeous creations.

Mrs. Maldwyn Parry, president, presided at the short business meeting which followed. Mrs. Griselda Murphy's third grade room won the attendance banner this month with the most parents present.

Mr. George Kelsey, principal, then introduced the teachers to the parents and the meeting adjourned for an evening of visiting.

Rio de Janeiro Social Worker To Study At ARC

Mrs. Maria Saldanha da Gama arrived in Avon Park last week for a six weeks' period of study and training at the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center. Mrs. da Gama, a social worker from Rio de Janeiro, is in the United States under the Exchange Visitor Program of the United Nations.

During her stay here she will spend her time in observing the Center's daily routine and in discussions with staff members. In addition to her desire to get a clear picture of the total treatment process, Mrs. da Gama is particularly interested in the work that the Program is doing in group therapy.

This is the last of six rehabilitation agencies visited by Mrs. da Gama during the past two months. The others were located in California. She believes that her observations of these various agencies and institutions have given her many new ideas which can be profitably utilized in her specialty of medical social work upon her return to Brazil.

To achieve success one must make an attempt.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

James E. Hess

When was the last time you took a look at the night sky simply for the purpose enjoying the presence of the stars and moon? The mere thought of being able to look at the night sky is taken pretty much for granted by most of us. This was brought forcefully to this writer's attention one day a few weeks ago. A newly arrived member of the population was asked how he liked it down here at APP. The fellow grinned and replied: "Great! It's almost too good to be true; the food's fine and the 'freemen' seem like pretty Joes, but what really takes the cake as far as I'm concerned is being able to go out after dark and look at that night sky." It seems that this particular individual was located in a cell at the State Prison at Raiford where it was not possible to see the sky. O course he got out to work during the day and on Sundays he was allowed to watch a ball game, but it had been almost three years since he had seen the stars or moon. Quite a bit of this man's spare time in the evening is spent simply walking up and down the road that runs through the compound area looking up at the sky.

The privilege of walking abroad at night comes under that basic commodity we are all guilty of taking for granted until it is lost to us . . . FREEDOM. It is a commodity that the convict learns to cherish and covet.

At Avon Park Prison one of the principles behind rehabilitation is the granting of maximum freedom privileges. Why is this done when the purpose of a prison is to restrain its population in such manner as to forestall escapes of dangerout felons? What is to prevent an inmate from running away if you allow him freedom to roam around as he will? The answer is . . . nothing! There's nothing to keep a man here who doesn't wish to stay; that is, nothing except the possible addition of ten years to his sentence when he's caught; nothing but the knowledge that escape must mean complete loss of your true self; nothing, but the knowledge that an over the shoulder existence is in store for the escapee . . . watch that guy he might be following you . . . did that traffic cop give you a fishy stare . . . the ring of a door bell or a tap on the shoulder become symbols of suspenseFull terror. Speaking personally, escape holds absolutely no fascination . . . the one place that this writer would want to go to would be closed off immediately . . . home. No, escape is no answer for anyone save a foolish or mentally deranged individual.

The purpose of extra freedom for the inmate is basic in the rehabilitative process. It must be remembered that the individual is going out into a free world and will be comparatively unrestricted in his movements; this takes as much adjusting to as being locked up does. A minimum of restraint will expose the inmate to conditions that are far more similar to life on the 'outside' than maximum security can.

Several months ago APP's Superintendent, L. L. Wainwright, made the statement: "We are trying to turn out better men than we receive." This statement readily sums up the whole idea of rehabilitation. It is this writer's sincere conviction that an inmate discharged from an Institution of this type is far more apt to make a go of it than a fellow that has spent all his time in a maximum security institution. It is simply a matter of comparing environments. On the one hand you have constant surveillance and maximum restriction combined with bitterness and discontent, while on the other hand surveillance is negligible and minimum restriction is combined with an atmosphere of friendliness and understanding. Over a period of time which of the two environments do you think would have the most desireable effect? Isn't it logical to assume that a man that has gained his self respect and his determination to succeed will make a far greater asset to society than the embittered human derelict that can think of only one thing . . . revenge?

Scallops Are Economical, Try Them This Week

Have you had scallops lately? If not, you're missing a real treat. Scallops are available now and most of them come from our neighboring Panama City. New beds of scallops were found in the Gulf water up there recently and these little gems of the sea are delicious. Bay scallops are a creamy pinkish color, while deep sea scallops are white. Like oysters and clams, scallops have two shells — hence are called "bivalves". The only part of the scallop that is eaten is the large muscle which controls the shell movements. Europeans eat the entire scallop, just as whole oysters and clams are eaten, but Americans have not learned to eat anything but the excellently flavored muscle.

To prepare, rinse the scallops in cool water, drain thoroughly. Dip in seasoned flour, beaten eggs and then in cracker or soft bread crumbs. Fry to a golden brown - Ummm! there'll be calls for seconds. Scallops are economical, as are all seafoods now. They can be prepared in many ways. Try them boiled and in salads, scalloped, broiled and deviled.

These and many other seafood recipes are available at no cost to you. Just drop a card asking for them to State Board of Conservation, Box 551, Tallahassee, and we will see that your copies are mailed immediately.

Here is another easy way to prepare scallops and it is GOOD:

Wash and drain 1 quart scallops. Dip in fine bread crumbs, beaten egg, and crumbs again. Arrange on oven-proof plates. Pour melted butter liberally over the scallops. Arrange a strip of bacon across the plate. Place under broiler flame for 5 to 10 minutes, until bacon is crisp and the scallops tender. Serve on same plates with this Zippy mustard sauce.

Mix 2 tablespoons dry mustard with a few drops of Worcestershire sauce and 2 tablespoons water. Add ½ cup melted butter. That's all!

TIP FOR TODAY: To prevent any odor of raw fish clinging to the hands thoroughly chill them in cold water before touching fish. If Dad has caught the fish and is cleaning them himself, suggest that he sprinkle salt on his hands for easier handling.

That's all for today, but don't forget to ask for FLORIDA seafoods.

Peeples - Rothenbach Engagement

MISS JACQUELYNE KAY PEEPLES

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Peeples of Sarasota have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Jacquelyne Kay, to William Russell Rothenbach, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Rothenbach of Sarasota.

Miss Peeples is a native of Sarasota and was graduated from Sarasota High School in 1957. While in high school she was a majorette in the band and active in many other activities. Also during her high school years Miss Peeples was a member of the Cotillion Club, a social organization for high school students. She attended Florida State University in Tallahassee for one year and is at present employed at Belk-Lindsay Department Store in Sarasota. Mayor and Mrs. E. A. DeLaney and Mrs. Ouida Peeples of Avon Park are the bride-elect's grandparents. She has visited often in Avon Park and has many other relatives and friends here.

Mr. Rothenbach was born in Langhorne, Pa., and received his early education there. He was graduated from Sarasota High School and is engaged in the construction business with his father in Sarasota.

Plans are being made for a December 5th wedding in the First Baptist Church in Sarasota.

Girl Scout News

Troop 1 of the Avon Park Girl Scouts held its first meeting of the fall on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 11, at 3:30 in the Scout Hall in Kings Court. There were fifteen Scouts, members of Troop 1 from last year present at the meeting which was conducted by Mrs. John Townsend assisted by Miss Sally Nute.

The girls and their leaders held an open discussion on plans for the coming year at this first organizational meeting. Plans were made for cookouts, crafts, community projects and other phases of their work. The Avon Park Garden Club will aid the Scouts with a study of Birds throughout the year. Much enthusiasm was shown by the Scouts and their leaders for the plans of the coming year.

It was decided that each patrol would be responsible for twenty minutes of the meeting once a month. Scouts are asked to bring their $1.00 yearly dues as soon as possible. All members of Troop 1 are reminded that the troop will meet each Thursday at 3:30 in Kings Court from now on.

Mrs. Alice Post Weds Martinus Ruskjer Sept. 11

Mrs. Alice Post and Martinus Ruskjer were united in marriage on Thursday evening, Sept. 11, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ruskjer in Sebring. Elder Shreedrock performed the marriage ceremony.

Mrs. Ruskjer is the head of the Women's Physical Therapy Department at Walker Memorial Hospital in Avon Park. Mr. Ruskjer is from Beemidji, Minnesota.

The bride wore a semi-formal pink gown of nylon lace. She was attended by Mrs. G. C. Coulson.

James Ruskjer attended his brother as best man.

After the ceremony the close friends and relatives who attended enjoyed wedding cake, punch, ice cream, mints and nuts with the bride and bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruskjer left Wednesday to make their home in Beemidji, Minn. but plan to spend the winters in Florida. Their many friends wish them much happiness.

Clifton M. Kelly of Lakeland, top vote-getter in the first primary election, will be opposed by Frank E. Bryant, of Sebring, in the run-off race for the Tenth Circuit Judgeship in the September 30 second primary election.

Highlands County absentee ballots which were tabulated two days after the September 9 primary decided the runners-up in the second primary. Third man in the first primary was Judge Clyde Maddox who missed entering the September 30 run-off primary by only 114 votes.

Final totals of the first primary, in the three county circuit, gave Kelly 16,354 votes, Bryant 9,130 votes and Maddox 9,016.

The run-off between Kelly and Bryant for the Circuit Judgeship and the run-off between Jerry Carter and Jim Blanton for State Railroad and Public Utilities Commissioner will be the only two races on the ballot for the second primary next Tuesday.

It has been predicted that only approximately one-third of the registered voters will go to the polls Tuesday due to the small ballot. It is the privilege and the duty of all to vote, for one vote has been known to win an election.

Voting precincts in Highlands County will be open from 7 a. m. Tuesday morning until 7 p. m. that night.

Bud Edge Elected President Of AP Athletic Association

The Avon Park Athletic Association held it's organizational meeting last Tuesday evening in the High School Gym with about thirty members present. The first order of business was the election of officers for the 1958-59 year with the following men elected to serve; Bud Edge, president, J. C. Murphy, vice president, Donald Ford, secretary and Guy Garrett, treasurer. The three-man board of directors elected was Clarence King, Ed Albritton and Raymond Cook.

Discussion was held on the request of E. O. Douglas High School to use the local football field again this season. A new field has been built for the Negro High School in Sebring but will not be ready for play until next year. The association agreed to let them use the field under the same conditions as last year.

Athletic Director Joe Franza gave a report on the condition of the field stating that a lot of work has been done and outlining the things that still needed to be done. A work-night date was set Monday, September 22 with all interested members to report with various tools, paint brushes etc.

The association voted to set the dues for this year at $1.00 with the funds to be used as the association sees fit. Cards are to be printed and issued to all members. The association also voted to hold at least four meetings during the year--the board of directors to call other meetings as they are needed.

A committee was appointed to work with Capt. Ensdorf who stated that certain materials that could be used in bettering our facilities might be secured from the Avon Park Bombing Range.

Another committee was named to secure information on the construction of new concrete bleachers. A report will be given at the next meeting.

Coach Franza reported on plans for starting a little league football program with four teams to be made up of boys in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades.

A. B. Wilhite gave a short talk on the good condition of our association compared with the other associations in neighboring towns, after which the meeting was adjourned.

Anyone interested in joining the association can contact Donald Ford or any other member to get his card. Seasons tickets are also available from various members.

Jr. Woman's Club To Make Large Donations With Follies Profits

From the money realized on the recent follies the Avon Park Junior Woman's Club will give approximately five hundred dollars to the Ridge Area Day School for Retarded Children and close to eight hundred dollars to the Avon Park Youth Center.

At a special meeting of the club on Tuesday night, Sept. 23, the reports from the follies were compiled and these donations decided upon by the members present. When all bills are accounted for, "Sugar 'n Spice" will show a profit of slightly less than thirteen hundred dollars. Mrs. James Turnbull, president, thanked the members of the committee and all members for their hard work on the very successful project.

The Avon Park City Council adopted an estimated budget of $185,135 for the fiscal year beginning October, 1. The budget calls for an increase of $8,000 over last year.

To meet this increase the Council approved an increase of 2 mills for city operation, bringing city operation millease to 9 mills, and leaving the debt service at 10½ mills. Total millease for the coming year will be 19½ as compared to 17½ mills last year.

The present bonded indebtedness is approximately one and a quarter million dollars on bonds issued for the general improvements of the City and the 1927 sewer bond issue.

With the refunding of the bonds in 1942 the interest rate was cut from 6 per cent down to half this amount and in some instances lower than that.

The City pays approximately $59,000 annually on this bond indebtedness, including interest and principle. The City paid $39,561 this week on the bond indebtedness and $19,000 of this amount was for principle paid off.

City officials report that nearly nine-tenths of the City's approximate 2500 taxpayers have filed applications for the homestead exemption advantage and can only be taxed 10½ mills, unless their property vaulation is in excess of $5,000. The 19½ mill levy will apply only on valuation amounts above the $5,000 mark. Thus only one-tenth of the city's taxpayers contribute to the City's operating expense.

According to the new budget only $59,155 could be raised towards the city's operating expense from taxes collected on both real and personal property. The City can not be assured of this amount as estimated receipts must be based on 100 per cent tax collection, and never have taxes been collected 100 per cent.

The second largest estimated receipt on the budget is the Cigarette Tax at $34,500, then the Sanitation Collection Service (which includes residents and business district) at $20,500. Fines and Forfeitures for the coming year have been estimated at $18,000 and all other receipts will total only $54,880.

In the estimated expenditures the largest item on the budget is the Street Department at $29,020. Administrative expense has been estimated at $27,800; Police Department at $28,005; Public Improvements at $15,700; Extension of Sewers-Sinking Fund $14,870; Sanitary Department at $14,700, and the total of all other expense has been estimated at $57,040.

1507 Students Enrolled In Local Schools

The Avon Park Area School enrollment continues to rise week by week. Latest figures show an enrollment of 699 in Avon Elementary and 525 students in the Avon Park Junior-Senior High School, for a total of 1224 pupils to date.

Hopewell Elementary and Junior High School has 283 enrolled through September 18, for a grand total of 1507 in the Avon Park Area.

The Ridge Day School has an enrollment of 7 pupils at present with pupils coming from DeSoto City, Sebring and Avon Park.

The Annual Coke Party for prospective members of the Junior Woman's Club will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 30. Mrs. Fred Jahna and Mrs. Cecil Skipper urged all Juniors to give them names of prospective members so they could be sent written invitations to the Coke Party. Members were asked to invite prospective members and bring them to the party. The Executive Board will be in charge of the refreshments for the evening and the location of the Coke Party will be announced later.

After the meeting refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Harold Burbee, Mrs. Vernon Tyson and Mrs. Henry Hood.

Tallahassee.—Sen. Dewey M. Johnson of Quincy—the newly tapped Florida Senate president—has the grip of a farmer . . . a grip that is as strong as the present majority bloc's control of the Senate . . . one that will not be shaken loose any time soon.

Johnson thinks it is "absurd" to talk about putting Senate representation on a population basis.

A staunch defender of the Senate majority bloc, better known in the press as the "Pork Chop Gang," Johnson thinks the need for drastic shuffling of legislative seats has been "exaggerated and made a political football."

As Johnson views it, the majority bloc was welded together by the reapportionment squabble and will remain together as long as shuffling of legislative seats is a threat to the control of the body by the medium and small counties.

Summing up the attitude of the majority bloc, Johnson says it simply boils down to a proposition where the group in control cannot be expected to hand over control to another group.

"You wouldn't do that in business if you had the advantage and were not going to do it in the Senate," Johnson said.

Although the majority bloc often splinters apart on general legislation, Johnson feels that it will stick together on reapportionment.

He firmly believes that the present Senate control is better for the state than giving up control to larger countries. As he views it, it gives the state a stable influence . . . one in which steady progress has been made.

Johnson says, "I'm willing to stretch my elasticity as far as possible to give more representation to some areas," but he quickly adds that the stretching will stop short of turning over control of the Senate to the big counties.

As for frequent references to the Senate majority being elected by 15 or so per cent of the people, Johnson says that there never could be a workable plan to increase that percentage by too many points.

To illustrate his point on population being overrated as it applies to Senate seats, Johnson points out that for Dade County to have representation in the Senate based on its population would result in one of two things:

"Since Dade County has about 25 per cent of the state's population, we would have to either give Dade County about 10 senators based on the present membership of 38, or we would have to reduce the Senate membership from 38 to 4—with Dade County getting one of the four and the other 66 counties having to share the other three. Anyone can see that this is an absudity," Johnson said.

Johnson believes that the criticism directed at the proposed reapportionment plan under the new constitution, which was killed by the Supreme Court, was primarily against the 114-members for the House of Representatives—not not the 48-member Senate.

He said that the Senate took little part in the discussion of House seats. "We let them settle it . . . since we didn't feel we should dictate to the House."

Generally speaking in the Constitutional revision field, Johnson favors general recodification and rewriting, but does not favor any sweeping changes in the State's basic law.

In the race relation field, Johnson is an unyielding segregationist. He doesn't say much about it, but that is only because his convictions are such that they need no elaboration.

He believes segregation is right, and sees no reason to beat his chest or make long speeches.

"Just say I am for segregation and I think the white people and the better class of colored people in my county are for it too," Johnson said.

As for segregation legislation in the next session, Johnson believes the legislature will "put as many stumbling blocks in the way as possible to maintain total and complete segregation in Florida."

Since one Negro has already been admitted to the University of Florida law school, Johnson was asked if the legislation might include measures to stop integration at that level also.

"Yes," he answered. "At all levels."

The specific "stumbling blocks" that might be used by the Legislature, Johnson said, will probably be determined by the current troubles in Virginia and Arkansas.

In making committee appointments—one of the more powerful functions of the Senate president—Johnson says that he will appoint his friends to the key posts, but will draw on each member of the Senate to perform tasks for which he is best suited.

In the reorganization of the Senate, Johnson feels that one vital need is to develop closer coordination between appropriations and taxation committees—possibly even combining them into a finance committee.

"If a fellow has to think about where the money is coming from to pay for some of these appropriations, he is a little more diligent in cutting out some of the unneeded expenses," Johnson said.

The money policy of the next legislature, Johnson believes, "will be tight fisted, but aware of the needs of a growing Florida."

Christ And Our Times

BY THE REV. PETER F. WATTERSON

Today we hear much about culture, but just what is the cultured man?

The cultured person is one who has discovered some unfailing magic in life and who has found, in a way of measured living, the secret of enjoying the wisdom he has found.

The cultured man is one with certain spiritual qualities which enable him to remain calm in adversity, in loneliness to be free from despair, at all times to be happy and to rest content.

He is the man whose spirit is electrically awake. He is alive in his mind and keenly receptive to beauty and humane feelings. And he is just in all his dealings, rational and sane in all the affairs of life. But the cultured man has one distinguishing mark. . . poise. And poise is the distinctive characteristic of a Christian.

When we recollect the lives of Christian saints and the deaths of martyrs, we note that they both are marked by qualities of coolness, calmness, and composure. Real Christians of all ages possess an unique quality of spirit and character that reminds one of the quiet at the hub of a hurricane. A strong, reasoned peace that is invincible in temper . . . such is the authentic mark of a Christian and the hall mark of the truly cultured man.

This truly marvelous quality, possessed by so few of us in these volcanic times, is gained by those persons who know and practice self-control, which is mastery by those who have sought and who live for a vision, which gives them a direction, a dynamic motivating force, and stability; by those who harbor convictions, which keep them firm.

Serenity, the last lesson of culture, is the result of having self-control, a vision, convictions, confidence, and sure trust in God. And we all know that such inner poise of spirit, which rests on that secure anchorage of the soul, trust in God, is power.

But the real reason why the Christian is a person marked among men is that he has, above all else, certainty; and, possessing certainty, he is endowed with that amazing peace of God which surpasses the world's understanding and which lies beyond the world's ability to give or take away.

The Christian is poised at all times because he knows that "Whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe." The Christian owns inner serenity of spirit, poise, and calm of soul, because he has heard God speak these words: 'I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whithersoever thou goest and will bring thee again into this land."

Let the peace of God rule in your hearts. . . and you will have peace and poise and power. "The peace of God. . . which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Jesus Christ."

MORE TAXES?—Although most legislators run on a no new tax program, the betting now is that some increased taxes will be necessary in the 1959 session of the legislature.

Experiences from the 1957 session seems to show that the pressures for increased services outweigh those advocating no new taxes.

Since politicians have to get elected, they will listen to the loudest voices and vote accordingly.

The state is going to have to cut back on its construction program because of lack of money this year, and this in turn will create more pressure to take care of Florida's growing needs.

Best bet? New taxes.

APPORTIONMENT—Already weary of the battle for legislative apportionment, the state is facing another such battle—only this time it will be apportionment of congressional seats.

It is expected that the 1960 census will show Florida is entitled to three new congressmen.

The problem then is up to the State Legislature to say where the new congressional districts should go.

The main battling this go around will not be as much big county vs. little county, as has been the case in legislative apportionment, but Republican vs. Democrat.

Most folks see little possibility of dividing up the new seats without assuring at least one more Republican representative in Congress.

Florida has one Republican congressman at present.

NO BRUTALITY—A Children's Commission study of alleged brutal beatings at the School for Boys at Marianna has shown that the beatings were not as bad as pictured.

The report states the beatings, spankings, or whippings—or whatever they were—weren't out of line.

The corporal punishment policies of the school got national headlines some months back when a psychologist testified before a Congressional committee.

The psychologist—Dr. Eugene Byrd, of Miami—once worked at Marianna. He termed the punishment as "brutal".

Action is being taken to cut the use of corporal punishment to a minimum at the school—and strengthen the psychiatric treatment department.

SENATE PRESIDENT—Dewey M. Johnson, Quincy, who has been assured of election as Senate president, thinks it's "absurd" to talk about apportioning the Senate according to population.

Johnson says it would be unthinkable to give Dade County representation according to population in the Senate.

If this is done, Johnson points out that Dade would get 10 of the 38 Senate seats now provided.

The only other way for Dade to get proportionate representation in the Senate would be to cut the membership down to four—and give Dade one of the senators—with the other 66 counties sharing the other three.

It's time enough to say it, when you know it to be true.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Using The State Training Programs:

It is not only our duty to see that state programs exist. At our local level it is also our duty to see that these workshops or short courses for training instructors are used to our best advantage. Colleges and universities that voluntarily entered the field of training leaders for civil defense have sometimes complained that communities have taken little advantage of their excellent offerings. From many communities no one came; from some communities the wrong persons came. Sometimes good central programs were discontinued for this reason. It is our local responsibility to see that the right persons go from our community and that they go in adequate numbers.

There should always be at least two, preferable three. A coordinated state training program will offer a number of specialized leader training courses at different times and in different places. Some of these will be specialized in problems of law and public administration, some in defense against radioactive fallout, some in retraining of police and firemen. One of the three persons we should send will be the person whose civil defense function is most closely allied to the major theme of the school he is attending. His business at the school is to learn everything he can of the content being offered and the materials exhibited to become more expert in knowledge. The second person who should go with him should be a trained teacher who will listen to the content lectures and review the material but will spend most of his time thinking and consulting with instructors about the presentation of this content. These two will later be able to plan together what has to be taught and how to teach it. The third desirable person to send is someone from the chamber of commerce, the advertising agencies, or the mass media, someone who is skilled in the general disbursement of information rather than in organized instruction. On return home, these three form a team for training local leaders in what to impart and how to impart it and for furthering the basic knowledge of all.

Because motivation of our community to civil defense effort is not easy, we must also give publicity to the people going elsewhere for special training. These people should be sent by our community council even though they may be paying their own way-they should not just happen to take a training course as part of a casual vacation. Their departure should be widely publicized as a news item by local papers and radio stations and also through some brief reference in the announcements made at club and study group meetings. They should be encouraged to write a brief letter to the local press while attending the course. If the course results in their receiving a certificate, their photos should appear in the local press. On return they should be interviewed briefly (especially on TV if possible).

Fearlessness is the mother of confidence.

Last year you said you would CERTAINLY order your Christmas cards earlier this year. Remember? Well, early is NOW! So if you come in and select them before the First of October we will imprint them FREE!

for as little as $175.00 per acre and cut 50% from fuel and labor costs

Now a revolutionary new idea in low cost grove and farm heating efficiency. Initial investment, fuel cost, labor and maintenance are reduced more than 50 per cent over old methods now in use.
The all new Racebilt Grove Heater is small, compact and light weight . . . Overall size is only 16 inches from fuel base to top of stack.
MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL - Racebilt Heaters are designed to be placed under trees so all heat moves directly into the trees for maximum protection—there's no heat lost! The base of heater may be placed in a small scooped-out hole in the ground (few strokes of hoe will do it) and only 8 to 10 inches extends above ground surface. Racebilt Heaters burn practically clean and the small, compact size provides ease of storing and handling.

Racebilt Heaters are also efficient and economical protection for vegetable crops and home shrubbery. The low cost makes it practical for many uses.

Walker Memorial

Walker Memorial Seventh-day Adventist Church will dedicate its special quarterly offering this Saturday to help provide funds to build a clinic in Kingston, Jamaica, a medical center in Casacas, Venezuela, and to expand a seminary in Haiti.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Richardson, who spent three years as missionaries in Caracas, Venezuela, will lead out in the program in which the different children's divisions of the Sabbath School will take part, with Mr. Richardson, who is now laboratory technician at the Walker Memorial Hospital, giving the mission appeal. Paul Lee Richardson age 11, from the Junior division will give a narrative of the conditions in Caracas at the time he was born there as compared with the conditions there now. Miss Connie Arnold, daughter of Pastor W. C. Arnold, will tell of the kindness of one little child there, and the whole group of juniors will sing in Spanish, "My Jesus Loves Me," and "To The Work". They will also have on display, a costume of the Venezuelan children.

"The teeming underprivileged thousands of this vast area are a mighty challenge to demonstrate practical Christianity," said Mrs. D. C. Hartwell, assistant superintendent of the Sabbath School, as she announced the special offering that will be taken for these projects.

"We believe it is significant that Christ, in His ministry on earth, spent more time in healing than He did in preaching. Modern-day Christians would do well to follow His example, which first gave help to the body, then to the soul." Mrs. Hartwell said she expects an "unusually large" offering by church members, to meet this triple need for Christian facilities.

Recent over-night visitors at the Walker Memorial Hospital are Pastor and Mrs. H. K. Halladay, from the Columbia Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Pastor and Mrs. J. M Hnatyshyn, of Oshawa, Ontario, Canada, who spent 25 years as missionaries in India and Africa and is now Home Missionary Secretary for the Canadian Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, Misses Rose Marie Radley, and Miss Audrey Jackson, nurses and Miss Loma Stewart, all from Australia. They are on their way to an executive secretary's council of the Sabbath School, Home Missionary, and Radio Departments of Seventh-day Adventists to be held in Miami.

Hardee Judge Backs Solicitor For Circuit Post

Bartow, Sept. 22. (By Staff Writer)—Hardee County Judge Clyde Maddox, unsuccessful in his own bid to become a judge in the 10th judicial circuit, threw his support behind Polk County Solicitor Clifton Kelly today.

Frank Bryant, Highlands County attorney, is running against Kelly for the fourth judgeship in the circuit, composed of Highlands, Hardee and Polk Counties.

Maddox was eliminated from the race in the first primary when he ran a strong third behind Bryant who beat out the veteran judge by 114 votes to gain the run-off.

Kelly outdistanced both contenders coming up with more than 16,000 votes. The combined total of Bryant and Maddox however, forced the run-off for Sept. 30.

In announcing his support of Kelly today, Maddox said "I am voting for and supporting Clifton Kelly in this run-off campaign."

Dove Shooting

Now that the summer is over and gone and the time for the shooting of birds is at hand, I am reminded of a picture in the Morning Tribune several months ago depicting a man in hunter's togs proudly displaying a string of doves strung over his shoulder. He looked like a conquering hero, and doubtless he considered it a worthy accomplishment to have bagged a dozen or more doves in a day's outing. But when I recall that the dove is a symbol of peace in this troubled world that accomplishment takes on the color of sacrilege, for which one should be ashamed.

Bird shooting is considered a sport. If it were not fun to go gunning few people would take the trouble. The dove shooter above probably went to a lot of trouble to bag his birds, but he got a lot of fun out of it. But suppose we look at the matter from a different angle. Suppose that this gunner, having somehow caught a live unharmed bird, just for the fun of it snapped a leg in two, then a wing, then dislocated the will with a sudden twist, then pricked out an eye with a pin and then, annoyed by the agonized fluttering of the bird, bashed its head on a rock, so giving quietus to it.

Most of us seeing him do such things would regard him with horror, call him a fiend fresh from Hell, and would gladly have him bolted in oil for such cruelty. But suppose that he does exactly the same things, breaks leg and wing, crushes bill, blots out an eye, not with thumb and finger but with a charge of number eight shot from a gun, what then? Oh, that is different. He is no fiend from Hell. He is a gentleman sportsman to be congratulated on his marksmanship. Yet is there any essential difference between the two acts? Not in respect to the bird. It is exactly the same to him whether mangled by thumb and finger or by a charge of shot. It is plain torture and nothing less.

When men can find pleasure in torturing harmless birds, in particular those regarded as emblems of peace, of the Holy Spirit, it would seem that they were only half civilized; and the same may be said of nations that settle disputes with guns instead of letting reason and the will of God prevail. So says

International Letter Writing Week Oct. 5-11

International Letter Writing Week will be celebrated in Avon Park, Florida during the week of October 5 to 11, Postmaster Perry announced today.

Twenty one years ago, realizing the importance of written communication, the Post Office Department joined in the observance of an annual letter writing week — an event celebrated to emphasize the meaning and value of letter writing as a link between people throughout the world.

Postmaster Perry explained that by participating in both International Letter Writing Week and National Letter Writing Week this worthwhile objective is promoted between all peoples everywhere.

"As we all know so well," Mr. Perry said, "a personal letter is next to an actual visit, the most intimate means we have to communicate with our fellow human beings". Letters between our citizens and between peoples of different nations are a sure method of establishing friendly relationships and understandings.

"I urge all citizens of Avon Park to join in this celebration of International Letter Writing Week. And at the same time, don't overlook your friends and relatives in America. Write them a letter too!"

Most Lakeland Attorneys Said Supporting Kelly

Lakeland, Sept. 21. (By Staff Writer)—Forty-two of Lakeland's approximately 55 attorneys are planning to vote for Clifton Kelly for circuit judge, a Kelly supporter said today.

Cecil Smith, a Lakeland attorney, said he and another attorney, Leonard C. Carter, polled most attorneys in Lakeland after becoming concerned over advertisements placed by Kelly's opponent, Frank Bryant of Sebring.

The advertisements urge voters to ask attorneys about the qualifications of the candidates.

Smith said 42 of 45 Lakeland attorneys he talked to said they planned to vote for Kelly. Smith said he did not contact nine attorneys in two large law firms who are known to be supporting Bryant.

Altogether, Smith said, there are from 55 to 57 practicing attorneys in Lakeland.

Voters in three countys—Polk, Highlands, and Hardee—will vote in the Sept. 30 run-off between the two men.

Soil Conservation News

By Sam Polston

U. S. Soil Conservation Service

Clover planting time is drawing near in the Highlands Soil Conservation District. Several cooperators are preparing land now to plant about October 15. Among them are C. A. Skipper, Marvin Kahn, Carl McIntyre, Joe Stiles, Ike Hartt, Roy Seims, Carrol Payne, Jim Nargrove and others. Most of the clover plantings are being made on an established grass sod; however, some are planting Argentine bahia grass with the clover.

Marvin Kahn reports using parathion spray effectively for an infestation of aphids on a recently fertilized pangola grass pasture. He said it cost about $10.00 per acre to fertilize and about $2.00 to spray for the aphids. Kahn said he figured the $2.00 per acre was a good investment to save the $10.00, especially since it most important he have the pangola pasture for late fall grazing.

In his rotation grazing program he fertilizes the pangola in the late summer and lets an excess of grass grow up for the late fall period. This tends to fill the gap between the time when grass stops growing and clover is ready to graze.

Ike Hart is planting about 20 acres of rye grass on organic land. He was pleased with the results he had last winter but says it is not as good as his white dutch clover.

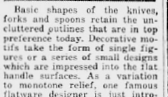
The Soil Conservation Service engineers are now working on a water control plan for Graham's Dairy at Venus. They will seepage irrigate 300 acres of clover this winter. The SCS also assisted E. W. Hartt Ranch in locating a 16 inch well to irrigate 400 acres of clover pasture.

The Highlands Soil Conservation District assisted two new cooperators this week in developing complete soil and water conservation plans. They were Graham's Dairy and Oak Acres Dairy both of Venus. These are new dairy operations moved in from Miami. Mr. Bill Graham says land prices for sub-divisions are moving almost all the dairies out of the Miami area. The Dressel Brothers also moved their dairy from Miami to Avon Park earlier this year.

Oak Acres dairy plans a very intensive pasture improvement program including a deep well for a 300 acres seepage irrigation system. The pastures close to the barn will be grazed and the more remote fields will be planted to such plants as millet, hairy indigo, alfalfa, sweet clover, pangola grass, Argentine bahia grass, etc., then cut and hauled to the cattle as green forage. Mr. Talmadge Watson, dairy manager, reports that he is very pleased with a three weeks old stand of Sudan grass that is three feet tall and being cut as green forage. We believe the 60 acre field of Sudan grass is the largest planting ever made in the Highlands District and apparently compares very favorably with cattail millet as a temporary pasture and for green forage cutting on flatwoods land.

The District also assisted Mr. Ike Hart, Jr. of Sebring in revising his conservation plan on 3,000 acres. Mr. Hart has several hundred acres of good citrus land that he plans to start developing this year. Heretofore this citrus land has been used as pasture but presently Mr. Hart feels that there will be an advantage to diversifying his cattle operation by using the land for what it is best suited. He pointed out that the market price of citrus land was much higher than pasture land and also the citrus soils were not too good for pasture because of their droughty conditions.

Hart has 300 acres of organic marsh land on which the Soil Conservation Service engineers are assisting him in establishing water control. This area is being established to Argentine Bahia and clover for a winter fattening pasture.



New Flatware Trend

Stainless steel flatware, which has gained wide popularity in clean-lined patterns, is now also taking the lead in a rising new trend in modern place settings for the table. Called "united designs," these pieces achieve the happy combination of simplicity with the ornate.

Basic shapes of the knives, forks and spoons retain the uncluttered outlines that are in top preference today. Decorative motifs take the form of single figures or a series of small designs which are impressed into the flat handle surfaces. As a variation to monotone relief, one famous flatware designer is just introducing an interesting two-tone version in patterns that highlight the delicate designs with colored enamel fill-ins.

The new incised patterns offer unusual versatility in that they can coordinate equally well with fine decorative china as well as with simple pottery. Being made of stainless steel, of course, these pieces have the added virtue of being very easy to clean while never requiring polish.

Members of The Salvation Army League of Mercy visited more than 2,500,000 individuals in hospitals, prisons and homes for the needy in this country last year. Christmas visits to institutions with distribution of gifts are a traditional activity of the League of Mercy.

Local Leg. Aux. Members Visit Sebring Unit

Five members of the American Legion Auxiliary attended the Monday night, Sept. 22, meeting of the Leslie Collier Unit 74 of the Legion Auxiliary in Sebring.

Mrs. Ben Stewart installed Mrs. John Arnold as president and Mrs. John Llewellyn as vice president of the unit at the meeting. The two officers have been recently elected to fill vacancies in these offices.

After a business meeting the Avon Park and Sebring ladies enjoyed a social hour with lovely refreshments. Attending from Avon Park were Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. James Heim, Mrs. Peter Boney, Mrs. Ed Dunne, and Mrs. H. T. Sasser.

Salvation Army officers frequently act as parole officers for released prisoners. Nearly 3,000 persons were paroled to Salvation Army officers in this country in one year.

Glamour Clothes Pin

The long familiar clothes pin has taken on glamour! A new multi-purpose pin designed in stainless steel affords a virtual lifetime of service, not only for hanging up the family wash, but also for all the other little uses which have made the clothes pin one of the handiest of household gadgets.

Made with a firm-gripping spring, the stainless clothes pins will not rust or splinter. They're strong enough to hold a heavy blanket on the windiest day, but are equally gentle for sheer lingerie.

Smooth and shiny, the attractive pins have many miscellaneous indoor uses, too. Snapped on a wire hanger, they make neat skirt, trouser, necktie or belt holders. They're ideal for holding heavy extension cords in place in the home workshop or garage. They might also be used for convenient wall or desk paper clips.

PARISH ISLAND, S. C. (FHTNO)—Arthur W. Shepard, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Shepard of Avon Park, Fla., is congratulated by his commanding officer, Capt. G. O. Gordon, Jr., upon being promoted to Marine Private First Class during recruit graduation August 13 at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

Shepard was one of six Marines selected from his platoon to be promoted for "demonstrating qualities of leadership throughout recruit training."

Before enlisting in May 1958, he graduated from Avon Park High School.

Minutes Of A Regular Meeting Of City Council Held September 22, 1958

Members Present: Mr. Lee, P. A. McFarland, M. Kirkland, Clarence King, Roland Dilley, Mayor, City Attorney and Clerk.

The invocation was given by Mr. McFarland.

Minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved as read.

Mrs. Townsend appeared before the Council as an individual to discuss with the Council the possibilities of raising funds for Civic Center. She explained that the plan was to contact each and every organization which would be the only way that a project of this size could be accomplished. She wanted permission from the Council to go ahead with plans, specifications, costs, etc., that is to secure estimates of course so that when the various organizations were called upon there would be some more or less concrete figure to talk about. After enough figures were gotten together Mrs. Townsend will come back to the Council with a report.

Mr. Sikes, Park Foreman appeared before the Council and discussed with them the possibility of removing a couple of trees around the flag pole which are badly in need of coming out, due to the fact that they create a hazard with the power lines in-wound around them. The Chairman requested that Mr. Woodham, Manager of Florida Power Company, be contacted with regard to same.

Motion by Mr. Lavin, seconded by Mr. Dilley, that Fred Conners, colored Policeman, be given a car on a trial basis. Upon roll call all members unanimously voted AYE.

Motion by Mr. Kirkland, seconded by Mr. King that the City Council confirms its position stated in the meeting of September 15, wherein the Council advised Mr. Lavin that the City would consider the offerings of Kings Courts for sale upon Mr. Lavin's completion of certain Building Units on land presently owned by him. Upon roll call all members unanimously voted AYE.

Motion by Mr. McFarland, seconded by Mr. Kirkland that the City Council confirms its position stated in the meeting of September 15, wherein the Council advised Mr. Lavin that the City would consider the offerings of Kings Courts for sale upon Mr. Lavin's completion of certain Building Units on land presently owned by him. Upon roll call all members unanimously voted AYE.

Motion by Mr. Kirkland, seconded by Mr. King that the City advertize for bids on 100 Parking Meter Heads. Upon roll call all members unanimously voted AYE.

The Chairman read letters from Mrs. Margaret Duggan, President Youth Association and Mrs. Anita Renfro, President of the Parent-Teacher-Association which are as follows:

Avon Park, Fla.
September. 17, 1958
Gentlemen:

The Avon Park Youth Association respectfully requests that, in the future, you consider not renting space out near the Youth Center to the Skating Rink.

This request is made because recently some undesirable characters, who are not dressed properly and who also appear to have been drinking, have come over from the skating rink and tried to enter the Youth Center on Saturday nights. We feel such conduct is a bad influence on our high school boys and girls; and further, would endanger the good reputation of our Center.

Since we are not under the City Police Protection, there is a good possibility of unpleasant incidents arising.

We submit this for your consideration.

Yours very truly,
Avon Park Youth Association
September 18, 1958
Avon Park, Fla.
Member of the City Council
City of Avon Park, Florida
Dear Sirs:

It was brought to the attention of the Board of Directors of the PTA that the City had again leased the property, next to the Youth Center, to the skating rink. As I remember we were promised by the Council that this would not be done. We do not object to a skating rink in town, in fact, we need all available recreational facilities. But, we do object to the location.

Older boys are attracted to the skating rink from the Beer Hall across the street and then they come to the Youth Center, and even though they are not admitted they cause disturbance and are a bad influence on our impressionable boys and girls.

Would you please refrain from renting this location to the skating rink next year?

Sincerely yours,
Parent-Teacher Association

The Clerk was instructed to acknowledge both letters.

The Chairman read a letter Miss Elizabeth Howell, Staff Editor of Annual Staff of 1958-59 in which was stated that at an early date an informal Annual Staff Member would call on the City in connection with advertising for their Annual. The Board will be expecting a call.

The following departmental reports were reviewed: Park Department, Housing Department, Street and Sanitary Department, Fire Department.

Trooper Randy Robinson of Troop C, F. H. P. appeared before the Council to make presentation from THE DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC SAFETY.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By James E. Hess

Several phases of institutional life and elements of the rehabilitation program being employed at Avon Park Prison have been discussed at some length. One that has been overlooked is the status of the inmate population as a whole. Up to now the individual has been concentrated on in these weekly articles, but it must be brought out that some phases of rehabilitation come under the heading of "mass treatment." A little known fact is that the inmate population of any penal institution is an extremely sensitive body. Although the individuals making up that body for the most part play lone hands, the whole group is closely knit . . . they all have several basic things in common: we have all been convicted in a court of law; we are in a status of incarceration and will remain so for a period of time as specified by law; we are all looked upon as outcasts of society. As a body, the population is sentative to tensions, undercurrents, dissatisfactions, etc., which wouldn't be readily apparent to the outsider.

In May of this year APP held an open house for the public. The affair ran for a period of two days and included an exhibition of displays similar to those to be found in county fair booths. The open house was primarily held in celebration of this insititution's 1st anniversary.

The most impressive element that came out of that two days, was the reaction of the population to the hundreds of visitors that roamed at will through the compound area and buildings of the institution. It was noted that some men who hadn't really smiled in months broke out in the big grins just at the proximity of children who in turn were generous with shy, but unmistakeably friendly smiles. Some of the inmates who have no relatives or friends to visit them had not had the pleasure of being close to people from the "outside" in years and the experience was a delightful one for them. True the population realized that a few of the visitors had come out for the same reasons that they would have gone to the zoo . . . to see the animals, but it was just as obvious that the vast majority were honestly curious about this institution that had been moved into their back yards.

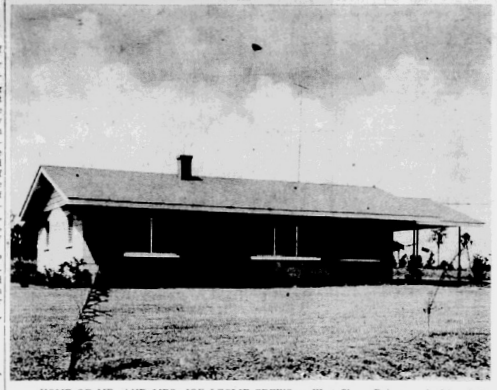
The point is this . . . the officials were quick to note that this contact with the "outside" had a remarkable effect on inmate attitude. Many walked around for days preening themselves merely because they had exchanged a few words with some of the visitors . . . members of that society that have placed us into the outcast status.

Gradually the "contact-with-the-outside" idea has been developed and enlarged upon. The softball team went into town and played in the City League; the Avon Park High School Band has come out on several occasions to play concerts for the population; the baseball team plays teams from Avon Park, Sebring, Frostproof, and Lake Placid; it is tentatively planned to have the newly formed APP Band before the public at some time in the future. All these activities serve to expose the inmates to the public. It's undeniably one of the best possible therapies for the inmate and at the same time serves to educate Mr. Citizen to the fact that No. 72777 isn't the depraved, gimlet eyed sadist painted in the popular crime magazines, in movies, and on TV.

It is to the credit of the people of Avon Park and neighboring communities that they have accepted the institution and as such the inmates. The sincere friendliness of visitors during the open house; of the players that come into the institution to play against the APP team; and of the people that the inmate population of any penal institution is an extremely sensitive body. Although the individuals making up that body for the most part play lone hands, the whole group is closely knit . . . they all have several basic things in common: we have all been convicted in a court of law; we are in a status of incarceration and will remain so for a period of time as specified by law; we are all looked upon as outcasts of society. As a body, the population is sentative to tensions, undercurrents, dissatisfactions, etc., which wouldn't be readily apparent to the outsider.

In May of this year APP held an open house for the public. The affair ran for a period of two days and included an exhibition of displays similar to those to be found in county fair booths. The open house was primarily held in celebration of this insititution's 1st anniversary.

The most impressive element that came out of that two days, was the reaction of the population to the hundreds of visitors that roamed at will through the compound area and buildings of the institution. It was noted that some men who hadn't really smiled in months broke out in the big grins just at the proximity of children who in turn were generous with shy, but unmistakeably friendly smiles. Some of the inmates who have no relatives or friends to visit them had not had the pleasure of being close to people from the "outside" in years and the experience was a delightful one for them. True the population realized that a few of the visitors had come out for the same reasons that they would have gone to the zoo . . . to see the animals, but it was just as obvious that the vast majority were honestly curious about this institution that had been moved into their back yards.



The point is this . . . the officials were quick to note that this contact with the "outside" had a remarkable effect on inmate attitude. Many walked around for days preening themselves merely because they had exchanged a few words with some of the visitors . . . members of that society that have placed us into the outcast status.

Gradually the "contact-with-the-outside" idea has been developed and enlarged upon. The softball team went into town and played in the City League; the Avon Park High School Band has come out on several occasions to play concerts for the population; the baseball team plays teams from Avon Park, Sebring, Frostproof, and Lake Placid; it is tentatively planned to have the newly formed APP Band before the public at some time in the future. All these activities serve to expose the inmates to the public. It's undeniably one of the best possible therapies for the inmate and at the same time serves to educate Mr. Citizen to the fact that No. 72777 isn't the depraved, gimlet eyed sadist painted in the popular crime magazines, in movies, and on TV.

It is to the credit of the people of Avon Park and neighboring communities that they have accepted the institution and as such the inmates. The sincere friendliness of visitors during the open house; of the players that come into the institution to play against the APP team; and of the people who attended the ball games in Avon Park during the City League play was all felt by the population. That acceptance has done a great deal toward putting and keeping men on their best behavior . . . They don't want to let down their new friends . . . friends who think of us as unfortunates paying for the mistakes we have made rather than as the gimlet eyed type referred to above.

We hope that the program of increased contact with the "outside" continues. It's a way of obtaining a preview of what it'll be like on that day when we can walk through the gate . . . a time when contact with the free world will be permanent and the relationship begun in prison firmly cemented.

COLORED SCHOOL NEWS

The Highlands County Teachers' Association elected and installed its officials for the 1958-59 school year during the Pre-Planning Conference at the E. O. Douglas gymnatorium. First Vice President Leroy Wallace succed Mr. Homer T. Williams for the presidency. Mr. John Gainey was elected to fill the office formerly held by Mr. Wallace, and Mr. Bobby Saffold was elected to the office of second vice president. Other officers elected were: Mrs. Armenta Thomas, Recording Secretary; Miss Lillye M. Thomas, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Margurette Jones, Treasurer; Mrs. Diana Harris, Chaplain; Mr. Herman Hudson, Parliamentarian and Mr. Calvin C. Gibbs, Reporter.

The sponsorship of the three standing committees rotated in their general procedure to the three schools, with the Program Committee presently at Douglas School, the Social Committee at the Hopewell School, and the Courtesy Committee at the Carver School.

The organization voted to continue its scholarship to be awarded to the member of the graduating class who acquired the highest average in scholastic achievement, and also exemplified outstanding qualities of character and leadership.

E. O. DOUGLAS

The 1958-59 school year has begun with much enthusiasm on the part of the thirty who comprise the faculty and school personnel, and the 460 students who have already enrolled. The faculty anticipates tremendous progress with only one new replacement in its staff. This replacement is that of Librarian, which was formerly held by Mrs. B. Vereen, and now held by Miss Helen Baker, a graduate of Florida A. & M. University, and a resident of Ferandina, Florida. Mrs. H. George returned after a year leave.

The coaches and Athletic Committee of the E. O. Douglas School wish to announce their opening game of the 1958 football season, to be played Saturday night, September 27th, at 8:00 p. m. This game will be played in the athletic field at Avon Park. The opponent is Pinellas High of Clearwater. The Coaches and Committes solicit your full support.

HOPEWELL SCHOOL NEWS

The Hopewell Junior High School has a present enrollment of 285 students. This enrollment will possibly reach a peak of an estimated 350 with migratory workers and children returning.

The position left vacant by Mrs. Virginia B. Williams and filled by Mrs. Mae L. Bennett, was the only new and complete change in the instructional staff. However, Miss Irma J. Sledge who came as a relief teacher last term became a part of the regular staff in the absence of Mrs. Marie Van Poole.

Other school personnel are: Miss Mildred B. Wallace, First Grade; Mrs. Freddie M. Peterson, First and Second Grades; Mrs. Ernestine Johnson, Second Grade; Mrs. Massalena W. Britt, Third Grade; Miss Lillye M. Thomas, Fourth Grade; Mrs. Arletha J. Sims, Fifth Grade; Miss Mildred Manning, Fifth and Sixth Grades; Miss Clara F. Tolliver, Sixth Grade; Mrs. Mary L. Gillings, Seventh Grade; Mr. John H. Gainey, Eight Grade; Mr. Calvin C. Gibbs, Ninth Grade; Mrs. Johnnie M. Gainey, Speech Correctionist; Mrs. Massalene Johnson, Lunch Manager; Mrs. Mary E. Jones, Cook; Mr. Edward Meyers, Custodian; Mrs. Q. Esther Coward, Secretary; Mr. Ernest E. Sims, Principal.

CARVER SCHOOL NEWS

Thus far, 142 students have been enrolled at the Carver School, with the prospect of more to come. All have settled down to work, and it appears that this will be the banner year at the institution. Participation in the lunchroom is higher than ever.

Teachers include H. T. Williams, Principal and teacher of fifth and sixth grades; Mrs. Julia M. Williams, teacher of First Grade; Mrs. Bernice Henderson, teacher of Third and Fourth Grades; Mrs. Armenta Thomas, teacher of Fifth and Fourth Grade classes; and Mrs. Edith Dean Reeves, teacher of Second and Third Grade Classes, who is an addition to the Faculty this year.

Red Devils Drop Opener To Mulberry By Score Of 40 - 27

BY JOHN GAMBRELL

Despite determination and high spirit, the Avon Park Red Devils bowed to the Mulberry Panthers 40-27 in a high scoring, hard fought game last Friday night at Mulberry.

Captains Bryan Kempton and Bill Parrish won the toss and elected to received to open the first game of the 1958-59 football season. Douberly took the kickoff on his own 20 and ran it back to the 35 where with just a few plays gone Mulberrys' Ronald O'Steen picked up a loose ball and ran 35 yards for the Panthers first score. The try for the extra point was good and Mulberry led 7-0.

Mulberry picked up their second T. D. on a 53 yard gallop by Randall Mills. Again the extra point was good, making the score Mulberry 14, Avon Park 0.

As the second Quarter got under way the Red Devils began to roll on passes from quarterback Reggie Butler to end Leroy Farless and halfback Tommy Douberly. With the ball resting on the 25 yard line in Mulberry territory Bryan Kempton took a handoff and scatted the distance for the Red Devils first score. Kempton also added the extra point making the score at this point 14-7 in favor of the Panthers.

Time ran out to end the first half with the Red Devils in Possession of the ball fighting to tie the score.

Mulberry took the second half kickoff and moved the ball to the Avon Park 46 yard line. At this point Neil Dillard broke loose around his own left end and skipped 46 yards for the Panthers third score of the game.

Avon Park still full of pep started moving the ball down field. Reggie Butler once again took to the air and hit Tommy Douberly on a pass down the middle that traveled 40 yards to make the score 21-14.

Mulberry's second score of the quarter came on an off tackle play in which Ronald Frazier raced 40 yards putting the Panthers ahead 27-14. Once again the Devils came knocking. With the pig skin resting on the Mulberry 45 yard line Reggie Butler's pass to Tommy Douberly was good for 36 yards. A quick pass to Leroy Farless put the ball on the five yard line. Bryan Kempton pushed on to the two and Reggie Butler carried across for the score on a quarter back sneak. Tommy Douberly added the extra point.

The Panthers broke the game open in the last period on a 15 yard off tackle play with Jimmy Galbraith carrying for the touch down. This was followed by a 35 yard sprint by Randall Mills.

Although trailing 40-21 the Red Devils were not to be denied another count. With only seconds left in the game Reggie Butler found Warren Alwood open in the end zone and hit him for the Red Devils last touchdown making the final score 40-27.

Special recognition goes to Leroy Starling, Bill Parrish and Daniel Money for their fine defensive work and to Tommy Douberly, Bryan Kempton and Leroy Farless for their offensive work.

The Common House Fly

Some of the diseases that have been found in the fly are typhoid fever, diarrhea, tuberculosis, yaws, cholera, smallpox and poliomyelitis. There are just a few of the many diseases carried by the fly. There have been as many as four million bacteria found on a fly and as many as twenty-eight million found in the gut of a single fly. The average life span of the fly is about forty-five days, during which period the female may lay as many as five hundred eggs.

Flies and garbage go together like bread and butter. Whenever flies are present you can be sure that you have poor sanitation in the vicinity. You or someone nearby has failed to properly dispose of his garbage, sewerage or other breeding materials. Garbage should be collected at least twice a week. If there is no garbage collection in your neighborhood then take it to a proper disposal pit or bury your garbage and burn your trash.

In the past several weeks there has been excessive dumping of garbage and trash along the roadsides and on empty lots. This makes an excellent breeding place for flies, besides the fact that it is against the law and carries a heavy fine. Cooperate with your Health Department in locating and removing fly breeding places. Remove the breeding places of flies and you will eliminate the flies.

AAA Motor Clubs Pass Six Million Membership Mark

Tampa—Total membership in motor clubs affiliated with the Aemrican Automobile Association has now passed the six-million mark, according to official word received from national headquarters of the AAA in Washington, D. C., by Marvin L. Holloway, president and general manager of the Peninsula Motor Club (formerly the Tampa Motor Club).

"This large total of motorist members places the AAA in the front ranks among all American voluntary associations," Mr. Holloway declared.

Organized in 1902, the AAA reached one million members in 1940. There was a slight drop during the early years of World War II, but growth has been rapid since then.

A total of two million members was attained in 1947, the third million in 1950, four million in 1953, five million in 1955.

The Peninsula Motor Club, aside from its headquarters in Tampa, maintains seven branch offices for service to members from Florida and all other states at Pensacola, Gainesville, Ocala, Lakeland, Bradenton, Sarasota and Fort Myers, providing AAA facilities to 46 of Florida's 67 counties.

The local organization, affiliated with the AAA for more than a quarter century, has a membership of more than 42,000 automobile owners and is ranked among the 25 largest motor clubs in the United States.

To The Editor
Avon Park Sun

Some of my friends do not seem to understand why I withdrew from the run-off race for County Commissioner from District 2.

The main reason was not that the job was too hard, as has been reported, for I really did enjoy doing my best to receive full value for every dollar which I spent of the County's money.

It was not the duties of a Commissioner from which I withdrew, but I felt that I could not, for my health's sake, go through a grueling second primary.

I sincerely hope that my decision was for the best.

Sincerely yours,

Warn your children about playing in the streets and highways.

A "STOVE" FOR THE TABLE

Time was when the treat of having pancakes for a leisurely breakfast or Sunday supper also meant that mother had to "exile" herself in the kitchen in order to keep the supply properly replenished. But all that is passe now, since the advent of individual electric cookers that allow cooking to be done right at the table.

Aside from being fun for the whole family, modern table cookery results in perfect dishes every time. Correct temperature is set and controlled with the twist of a dial. These convenient small appliances make handsome table pieces, as well. Most frequently, they are designed of gleaming stainless steel which brings easy cleanability along with today's top-preference material for cooking ware. Among the newest of these stainless designs is Toastmaster's open fryer shown above. Square shaped to give additional cooking area, the cord plug is removable so that the pan is immersible for easy washing.

Depositors To Vote On Local Banking Hours

The depositors of the Avon Citrus Bank will have the privilege of voicing their opinion in regards to the Bank's closing on Saturdays.

The Bank enclosed a ballot in each of the depositors statements that were mailed last night. The ballot contains two questions and each depositor is asked to mark the one that suits him best. The purpose behind these questions is to determine the depositors preference as to the banking hours.

In May the Avon Citrus Bank in keeping with other banks in the State began closing all day Saturdays and having late banking hours on Friday evening to take care of the local merchants and to cash the payroll checks of the working people.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce presented a letter to the Bank Directors requesting that consideration be given to a survey to determine the preference of the depositors.

Tallahassee.—Some of the fanciest back passing in years has been going on in the Capitol in the last week or so in the discussions about the state's sorry financial outlook.

Recessions . . . depressions . . . cold weather . . . over appropriations by the Legislature . . . sum revenue estimates . . . adverse court rulings . . . loop holes in the new tax laws—all these things have gotten some of the blame . . . all true to a degree.

But the fault for letting the situation float along until now without more cutbacks in state spending has to be put principally on Gov. LeRoy Collins and Budget Director Harry Smith.

Collins has been whistling past the grave yard for the last four months, hoping things would get better so the high powered construction program he advocated could be put into action.

As far back as last May there was a warning from a qualified expert that the state was in serious financial shape . . . even worse than Budget Director Smith, who serves at the pleasure of Gov. Collins, would admit.

In mid-May, after the Cabinet made a series of budget cuts to keep the state in the black, L. K. Ireland, Jr., director of the Legislative Council's appropriation committee, estimated that the state would have to cutback an additional 16-million dollars.

Some four months later—and after spending $5,000 for a special financial study—the state finds Ireland was right—only the estimate is up to 24-million dollars.

Did they listen to Ireland back in May?

Nope!

Instead, Budget Director Smith poo-poohed Ireland's figures.

Had Ireland been listened to at the time, the state would have had four months in which to make adjustments, and possibly would not find itself faced with cutting back some high priority projects and borrowing from trust funds for operating money.

Ireland's job was created in a round-about-way. The legislature created the job of "watch-dog" by resolution, but Atty.-Gen. Richard W. Ervin ruled the post could not be created by resolution.

The main purpose of the job is to see that money appropriated by the Legislature is spent correctly, and to dig up facts to guide the legislature in making appropriations to the various agencies.

After Ervin ruled that the job couldn't be set up by resolution, it was set up under the Legislative Council budget. The Legislative Council is composed of Senate and House members from different parts of the state, and its research arm, the Legislative Reference Bureau, serve as the study committee for the Legislature.

A subcommittee, headed by Rep. Emmett S. Roberts, Palm Beach County, was created, and Ireland was hired.

It will probably turn out to be the best money the Legislature ever spent.

Ireland is an expert in state fiscal matters.

In the next session, the legislature won't have to rely only on estimates from the executive branch of government.

It will have estimates provided by a man who is independent from the executive branch.

The work Ireland has done so far already has convinced many Legislators that the job should be expanded.

Such a move will probably be one of the first moves made by the Legislature in 1959.

CHRIST AND OUR TIMES

By THE REV. PETER F. WATTERSON

What We Desire

There is an everpresent struggle in the hearts and minds of all of us between our desire to be perfect, even as our heavenly Father is perfect, and our desire to be conformed to the world.

Many people have been raised to a high point of exaltation, in which state they have given themselves to God. They have been what some people call "converted", and so expect that from that moment on, they not only will not sin, but that the strength of their temptation will either be removed or considerably diminished.

In the very early days of Christianity this was a real problem. It was recognized that sins committed before baptism were forgivable; but it was hoped and believed that once one was baptised and received the grace of God in this way, that there was no possibility of sin; hence no forgiveness. As time went on, the Church, led by God learned that such was not the case, and so the therapy for sin in pennance and absolution became a normal part of the life of a Christian. It was realized that conversion is a gradual process, and perhaps it will clarify the problem to think, rather than in terms of conversion as a completed event, of the sanctification which is a constant and gradual growing into the likeness of God.

Let you think we are setting up a "straw" man to knock over, think honestly of yourself; of the judgments you have made about yourself. How many of us have to struggle in the toils of the conviction that we have committed the unforgivable sin and so are separated from God forever! This must not be.

Peter, who became a great saint, thrice in a short space of time, in important circumstances, denied that he even knew Jesus. . . and yet he was able to grow in the knowledge and love of God and of his Son, Jesus Christ, to such an extent that in his life a moving and great witness was borne.

As we are created free, so we make false choices; our lives with God being based on Faith, ebb and flow in our fullness or companionship. When we are discouraged and feel cut off we need to remember our moments of closeness and the joy that they brought. Of course, we will be sorry when we fail, and yet we will increasingly learn to turn to God for forgiveness in order that we may be restored to the place which is ours in His family, and at His table. In this way we will grow gradually.

A flower is created to face the sun; to draw its life from the warmth of the life-giving rays of that sun. A flower in a pot by a window will face the light. Should the pot be turned around so that the flower faces the room, and so into the dark, a slow but inexorable process will begin as that flower eventually turns back. If it were to wrench itself around instantaneously its stem would be tortured and broken, and the flower might die; but little by little, and day by day, the plant will turn back to the source of its life.

This analogy seems to me to be like us. We face Him; we turn from Him; we face Him again . . . until gradually we come to live more and more in the light and life of His presence. We are forgiven times without number, and we must learn to accept His forgiveness; and as we are forgiven by Him . . . so we can forgive ourselves.

STATE CUTBACKS — The State is still scrambling for money.

As it stands, it is 24-million dollars short—despite heavy cutbacks in May.

To keep its head above water on current expenses, the state is going to have to borrow some 20-million dollars from trust funds . . . to be paid back from tax revenues before the end of the fiscal year.

There is heavy pressure being applied to borrow more to crank up some of the high priority construction projects, but Comptroller Ray Green has said, "No."

If Green sticks to it, that will pretty well count out such projects as the new Raiford Prison and the University of South Florida at Tampa.

Green's reasoning is that he can't in good conscience support borrowing more than the 20-million dollars because he isn't sure the money could be paid back this fiscal year.

Should the Legislature have to levy more taxes to pay off the money, the roof would fall in.

Better not to build and be on the safe side, he reasons.

Also, it could be another bad winter—but let's hope not.

DAISY CHAIN? Florida voters will be asked to vote on the controversial Daisy chain in November.

The Daisy chain amendment would allow the constitution to be revised by the Legislature and voted upon in a package. This is not legal under the present constitution. Each article has to be voted upon separately.

The Daisy Chain provision is all that is left of the proposed constitution passed by the 1957 Legislature.

The rest was tossed out by the Florida Supreme Court.

Gov. Collins will vote against the Daisy Chain amendments—not because he objects to the basic idea—but because he thinks that the wording is confusing since it was orginally intended to tie the proposed constitution into one unit.

COLLINS CONSTITUTION—In the meantime, Gov. Collins has a committee of five working on a new constitution in private.

This effort will reflect Collins's thinking in the constitutional field.

Most folks are convinced that this effort will get a pretty thorough overhauling by the Legislature before it gets to the people.

TAX ASSESSING — Figures released by the railroad assessment board show that only 15 counties out of the State's 67 counties are assessed at more than 50 per cent.

Although it has been known for sometime that the state's tax assessors weren't too concerned about Collins' "suggestions" that they move assessments up to "full cash value," this makes it more or less official.

Collins hasn't had time to study the report, but promised comment when he has.

It seems doubtful that he would give an assessor the boot.

Fire Prevention Week Oct. 5-11

Next week, October 5th through the 11th, has been designated as National Fire Prevention Week.

A vigorous, community wide fire prevention campaign is being initiated this week by the Fire Prevention Bureau of the Avon Park Fire Department under the capable direction of Fire Chief W. W. Giddens.

Posters emphasizing fire prevention have been placed in the various business places and literature and pamphlets are being distributed in the schools, civic clubs, and business organizations.

Fire Chief Giddens and the members of his department are sending out a personal plea for the support and co-operation of every citizen in this community to help make our homes and places of business fire-safe not only during Fire Prevention Week, but every day of the entire year.

Fire destroys, injures and kills, yet it is an enemy that can be stopped. Statistics show that seventy-five per cent of the fires in the nation are caused from human carelessness. We can stop fire losses and deaths through an alert, active Fire Prevention Program. Let's get started now—all of us—on this critically important program.

Olds Introduces SportSedan for 1959

Oldsmobile's distinctively styled and attractively different Dynamic "88" Holiday SportSedan for 1959 represents "family-sized" transportation luxury in sports car design. The thin roofline and rakish wrap-around rear window serve to accentuate the mobile appearance of Oldsmobile's "Linear Look" for 1958. Sweeping full-length along the body, the sculptured twin booms give the car a look of mobility even when parked. They also highlight Oldsmobile's unique two-tone styling for 1959. Recessed in the smart grille, the four-beam headlamps are located closer-to-the-road for improved nighttime visibility. The SportSedan body style also is available in the "98" and Super "88" series. Increased interior roominess is a feature of all 1959 Oldsmobiles.

Dear Sir:

I am trying to locate some former members of Weapons Company, 7th Marines who served with me on Guadalcanal. The First Marine Division Association held a very successful reunion this year at Boston, Massachusetts, and at this reunion our company members resolved to try to locate as many members as possible.

I am writing to you in hopes you can help me locate: Herbert L. Willis, whose address in 1940 was Box 813, Avon Park, Florida.

This is the only address we have and a letter written to this man was returned. However, I feel that there must be friends or relatives of this man still living in or around Avon Park who could put him in touch with me.

I don't know if your paper has a "Letters to the Editor" column, but if it has would you print this, or make a letter of it, or make an item of it? Trying to locate two hundred (200) men from their 1940 addresses is quite a task and any help you could give me would be appreciated.

Incidentally, any former Marine who served with the First Marine Division and who is interested in joining the Association can write to me and I will forward his name.

Thanking you in advance for any help you might be able to give me, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Harold L. Mackenzie, Jr.

A Tale Of A Squirrel

In our yard is an avacado tree of goodly size; also a gray squirrel with a bushy tail and healthy appetite. And thereby hangs a tale, of no great moment yet interesting in a way.

Said squirrel has been recipient of many favors: to wit, handouts from the kitchen, and permission to nibble the cracked corn and wheat along with the birds on a special table for them against a mango tree. But oh, behold his base ingratitude!

Just a year ago this September when the pears were almost ripe, the little bugger found that they were good eating. He began to nibble them. Every morning would see two or three on the ground with marks of squirrel teeth on them. Like other children he would sample one and then another, and so on. It looked like we were not going to get many whole pears, so we said we must do something about it. We did. We encircled the tree with 5-foot chicken fire fence, then thumbed our noses at that squirrel. He thumbed back; in a way, that is. Next morning more chewed pears on the ground. The little cuss had just shinned up an electric light pole, leap into an orange tree, thence into the avacado tree. Easy as that, it was.

So we said we must do something else, and we did. We made a box trap after much labor and rough language, and set it with an apple for bait. Two mornings later the little bugger was in it. "Ha, ha," we chortled. "Now we'll just take him down country a ways and turn you loose to eat somebody else's pears." We went into the house to spread the glad tydings, and then came out with all the family to see the procession move off. It didn't. That pesky squirrel was on top of the electric light pole shaking his tail at us just as sassy as a rabbit in a briar patch. Seems like the door of the trap was a trifle loose, and he had squeezed out so soon. And there he was up there laughing at us.

Oh well, soon after that the frosty nights came, and pears fell off so fast there were enough for all hands, including the squirrel. So that was that. We still own the pear tree, and the squirrel is still around. But no pears on the tree this year so we don't expect any trouble. Come to think of it, it's nice to have somebody here that's smart and clever.

1959 Oldsmobiles To Go On Display In Avon Park October 3

I. H. Ford of I. H. Ford Motor Company, announced today that the 1959 Oldsmobiles will go on display in his showroom at 309 W. Main St. beginning Oct. 3.

The 1959 Oldsmobile will feature two new family-size body styles, two completely new and more efficient Rocket engines, increased passenger and luggage space, new Air-Scoop brakes on all four wheels and many other advancements, according to Jack W. Wolfram, general manager of Oldsmobile and vice president of General Motors.

"Oldsmobile for 1959 represents the most outstanding product in Oldsmobile's history in styling, quality and value," Wolfram stated. "And our two new Holiday hardtops introduce an entirely different trend in passenger car design", he added.

The Holiday SportSedan is a sporty four-door family-size car. The two-door Holiday SceniCoupe has an entirely new silhouette, a snappy appearance and exceptional visibility in all directions. The two new styles will be available throughout the Oldsmobile line.

An extra large, heat-resistant rear window on the Holiday SceniCoupe curves high into the roofline to give unparalleled visibility. Rear window glass area on this model measures a big 1792.5 square inches. On the Holiday SportSedan the rear window wraps around beneath the extended rear edge of the roof.

Total glass area in all models has been increased up to 36 per cent to give increased visibility in all directions. The new "vista-Panoramic" windshield has up to 370 square inches more glass area and contours deep into the roofline offering an unhindered view of overhanging traffic signals. Electric windshield wipers, with a wider cleaning area, are standard equipment.

For 1959 Oldsmobile is offering 15 body styles in its Dynamic "88", Super "88" and "98" series. In each series are the Holiday SceniCoupe and Holiday SportSedan, a four-door sedan and a convertible. In the Dynamic "88" series, in addition, there is a two-door sedan and a Fiesta station wagon. The Fiesta is also built in the Super "88" series.

All models are marked by their thin rooflines, with increased passenger compartment roominess and comfort. Shoulder room has been increased over four inches and yet the overall width of the car was increased less than an inch. Rear seat passengers have over an inch more leg room in the Dynamic "88" and Super "88" series. Trunk space has been increased up to 64 per cent. In the "98", a new larger body distinctively Oldsmobile, gives rear seat passengers 4 inches more leg room.

The trim, tasteful beauty of Oldsmobile's new "Linear Look" for 1959 is apparent at first glance from the completely redesigned body and wide-spaced four-beam headlamps set within a full-width grille of anodized aluminum.

For maximum protection, the rectangular patterned grille is deeply recessed under the hood and well behind the leading edge of the bumper. Oldsmobile identification appears in bold block letters across the center of the grille. The new, circular parking lamps are located between each pair of headlamps which provide better lighting from their new wide-apart spacing and closer-to-the-road location.

Sculptured twin booms sweep full-length along the body to give the car a look of mobility even when parked, and also serve as the key area for Oldsmobile's unique two-toning for 1959. Oldsmobile will offer 15 exciting exterior "Magic Mirrow" color finishes for 1959. These exceptionally durable acrylic base paints, formerly optional at extra cost, are now standard finishes on all models.

Smart, new interiors including upholstery and appointments will complement Oldsmobile's new exterior styling which, as Wolfram said, "is entirely different, than anything we've done in the past, with clean lines, yet still exciting, brilliant and distinctively Olds."

Included among the many new functional but smart styling touches are the new rear deck handle and the "platform" top of the rear burpber in the center of which the hinged, fuel-filler door is located. The optional recessed, circular back-up lights are located in the projecting bumber ends. The taillights are individually styled in the "98" series, with the Super "88" and Dynamic "88" models sharing their own distinctive design.

The cowl air intake grille is located on the hood and the new ducts and outlets increase ventilating air flow up to 75 per cent. Incoming air now travels directly to special fresh air outlets in the inner shroud panels on each side of the front passenger compartment. Louvered outlets permit even distribution of cooling air throughout the interior.

To match the spectacular advances in styling, Oldsmobile for 1959 has developed two of the most responsive and economical Rocket engines since the first high-compression Rocket was introduced by Oldsmobile in 1949. Both are smoother and quieter in operation with a new cylinder block, having longer cylinder bores, new reinforced aluminum pistons, connecting rods with greater bearing area, a larger intake valve and a more rigid crankshaft.

Equipped with a two-barrel carburetor, the new engine powering the Dynamic "88" series is rated at 270 horsepower with 390 lb.-ft. of torque. The Super "88" and "98" series are powered by a new Rocket with four-barrel carburetion which develops 315 horsepower with 435 lb.-ft. torque.

Economy of operation in both new engines has been improved through better carburetion, more efficient, freer "breathing" and a new automatic split choke system that will give greatly increased fuel economy especially during engine warm-up in cold weather operation.

Ride and cornering characteristics of the 1959 Oldsmobile have been further improved through use of a stronger and wider X-member frame; new wider tread both front and rear; new double-acting front suspension; new rear springs and wider-base rear suspension.

Oldsmobile's "Roto-Matic" power steering is completely new to give more power assistance and greater steering precision. Heart of the new system is a new rotary control valve that responds faster, and requires only one pound of effort for straight-away steering control. In difficult parking situations, 50 per cent less effort is required than formerly. The new system is standard on the "98" series, and optional on the Super "88" and Dynamic "88" series.

Brake fade and brake lining wear have been reduced with Oldsmobile's new "Air-Scoop" brake design for 1959. This is accomplished by a large new flange which literally "scoops in" the cooling air around the brake drums and more efficiently cools them under the most severe driving conditions.

Offered as an optional accessory on all models is Oldsmobile's new Trans-Portable radio with push button tuning. This utility transistor radio plugs into the car's electrical system when in position and operates on its own long-life batteries when out of the car. When locked in position with the glove compartment door closed, it is identical in appearance to the stationary deluxe radio.

The glove compartment door and radio are a part of the newly balanced design of the "Twin-Contour" instrument panel which places the instrument cluster directly in front of the driver for greater convenience and driving pleasure. The new "Safety-Spectrum" speedometer utilizes varying colors to help the driver maintain safe driving speeds. Speed is indicated by a moving band of color which is green from 0 - 35 m.p.h., orange from 35 - 65 m.p.h., and red above 65 m.p.h.

Fifty Attend Jr. Women's Club Coke Party

The Annual Coke Patry of the Avon Park Junior Woman's Club entertained more than fifty young women of the community on Tuesday night, Sept. 30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mandis.

A lovely cutwork cloth covered the refreshment table which was tastefully centered with an arrangement of pink hibiscus and greenery. The guests were served dainty sandwiches and cookies with their Cokes. Roses were used in eye-catching arrangements in the living room, dining room and Florida room. The guests were also to visit on the patio.

The Junior and the prospective members enjoyed a 'get acquainted' party and hopes were high for an exciting club year.

The next meeting of the Avon Park Junior Woman's Club will be on Tuesday night, Oct. 7, at 8 o'clock in the Woman's Club Building on South Verona. An interesting program on Conservation is planned. All members and new members are urged to attend and all prospective members are cordially invited to the meeting.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By James E. Hess

Readers of this column will recall a few weeks ago, the mention of a "Pre-release Plan" being considered for Avon Park Prison. The Plan has been approved by the Florida Division of Corrections and steps are being taken to work out the details so that the Program can be put into effect as quickly as possible.

APP is again playing the "experimental" part. If the Program proves itself a success here it will in all probability be put into effect in the other State Penal Institutions.

The program, as proposed and approved, is as follows:

1. Enrollment of Inmates: All inmates who are interested in help along these lines and whose records indicate they might profit from this type of training will be enrolled approximately thirty days prior to their release.

2. Extra Writing Privileges: These inmates will be given extra writing privileges to enable them to make necessary contacts to secure employment, arrange for living facilities, etc.

3. Registration With the State Employment Service: Thirty days prior to the inmate's release he will register with the State Employment Service nearest his destination and advise that office of his desire to secure a job. Initially, it is believed that Mr. L. L. Wainwright, Superintendent of APP, can work out the details of this registration with the Employment Service at Winter Haven, and perhaps they will provide Mr. Booth, APP's Classification Officer, with required registration cards and the policy concerning their use.

4. Group Discussions led by APP Staff members and other specialists in various fields will be an important phase of the program and are as follows:

a. Problems the inmate may expect to face upon release - By H. J. Fowler, Assistant Superintendent of APP.

b. How to apply for employment - By Wm. E. Booth, Classification Officer of APP.

c. Budgeting of personal funds - By H. C. Kelley, Business Manager of APP.

d. Civic organizations that may help the inmate with his problems - By Rev. G. M. Whetstone, Jr., Chaplain and Director of Education of APP.

e. Group discussion covering the problems of released inmates - By a representative of the Florida Parole Commission.

f. Group discussions led by citizens, bankers, Department of Public Welfare Officials, businessmen, members of the Florida Peace Officers' Association members of Industry, etc. It is felt that Mr. Wainwright can secure suitable speakers for this type of lecture without requesting any speaker to talk more than once or twice a year.

So there you have it. A Plan that advances the field of penology another giant step in the State of Florida. Mr. Wainwright, just recently returned from St. Augustine, states that while there he broached the Board of Directors of the Florida Peace Officers' Association concerning the Pre-release Program. He was met with enthusiasm by the Board. They have tentatively voiced their approval and support of the program and have decided to hold their October Board meeting at Avon Park Prison in order to see at first hand the workings of the Institution in order to give them a better idea of what the rehabilitative program at APP has accomplished.

Now the big problem that is left is the same old one of convincing the public of the feasibility and practicality of such a program. Its ultimate success is in the hands of Mr. Citizen. The idea of indoctrination and training is a fine one, but without the support of the public, the end result of all that training will be negative. We're willing to lead honest, rewarding lives . . . if you're willing to let us.

1958 Dollars For Democrats Canvass Oct. 11

Doorbell ringing date completing Florida's 1958 Dollars for Democrats fund-raising drive has been set for Saturday, Oct. 11.

That is the day thousands of volunteers will knock on doors of Florida Democrats, giving them an opportunity to contribute toward support of their party.

Alan S. Boyd, chairman of the Railroad and Public Utilities Commission of Florida who is heading the Sunshine State's drive, said soliciting in Florida will be part of a nationwide campaign to ring 15,000,000 doorbells in the 156,000 precints in the United States.

In the rest of the states, contributions will be solicited Sept. 26-29. The later date was selected for Florida to avoid conflicting with elections scheduled Sept. 30.

Mailed contributions may be addressed to Dollars for Democrats, Post Office Box 406, Miami 48, Florida.

Democratic committees in each county are in charge of recruiting volunteers to solicit in the Oct. 11 door-to-door canvass. Persons wishing to volunteer their services may contact the state headquarters of Dollars for Democrats by writing state chairman Boyd at the foregoing address.

Dollars for Democrats is carried out along the lines of the American Heritage Foundation program of interesting all Americans in giving financial support to their political parties.

National campaign slogan of the foundation is "Don't pass the buck—give a buck to the party of your choice."

Two-thirds of the money collected in Florida will remain in the state for use of the Democratic party while the remaining third will go for similar use to the national party headquarters, explained Boyd.

Boyd further explained that of the two-thirds allocated for Florida, one-third would be kept in the county in which it was collected for activities of that county's Democratic organization.

American Heritage's aim is to take political power from the few wealthy big contributors and put it in the hands of the many of average means. Dollars for Democrats is a function of the Democratic Party putting this program into practice.

The foundation points out that more than 90 percent of the money raised in Federal election campaigns is contributed by less than 1 percent of the people. Only about 2 percent of Americans contribute at all to political parties.

The idea backed by American Heritage in advocating political party financing by the many rather than the few has gained support of numerous periodicals including Reader's Digest, the New York Times Magazine, Newsweek, Parade, Life, and Look.

A Safe Driver Is Concerned About Eyesight

How's your eyesight? If you drive a car the condition of your eyes should be of great concern to you, naturally. Yet, according to a professor of opthalmology, poor eyesight probably is one of the basic causes of traffic accidents.

About 35,000 drivers in motor vehicle accidents in 1956 were reported to have defective eyesight, according to the National Safety Council. Add to that the number of accidents that result from blocked vision, and you can see just how important sight is to motorists.

In more than a million auto accidents in 1956, not being able to see clearly was a contributing factor. In about half of the million accidents, obstructions on the vehicle -- most important of which were rain or snow on the windshield -- were factors.

Highway obstructions such as trees, bushes, buildings and signboards were the culprits in more than 200,000 of the million accidents.

How can the problem be solved?

1. Don't drive if your eyesight's so bad it can't be corrected with glasses.

2. Reduce your speed 5 or 10 m.p.h. so you'll have more time to spot hazards ahead.

Hyacinths To Be Removed From Arbuckle Creek

The Hyacinth Division of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission is in the process of clearing the hyacinths in Arbuckle Creek, from Arbuckle Lake to Lake Istapoga. As of this date, the spray crew has succeeded in opening the creek from Arbuckle Lake to the railroad trestle south of Whatley Bridge.

According to Technicians John W. Miller and Bob Westmoreland, the entire creek will be open for boating and fishing within the next few weeks.

The chemical (2-4-D Amine) used to eradicate the hyacinths is non-toxic to animals, fish and humans. The cost of the chemicals and equipment used for the application is derived from the appropriation set up by the Legislature which met in 1957, for the control of aquatic vegetation in the State of Florida.

Try Seafoods For Weight Control Problems

Seafoods are made to order for persons with weight control problem. They are delicious baked, poached, broiled and with non-fattening sauces. You can add flavor and zest to fish dishes with lemon, onion, parsley and spicy seasonings.

The Florida seafoods as the meat required on your diet. Two ounces of fish fillet, or a piece 4 inch square and ½ inch thick gives you the same nutrients as other lean meat, a 2 ounce meat patty, 2 ounces of poultry or 2 ounces of cottage cheese.

Working wives seem to always be concerned about weight control. You would think that holding down a job and having her housework to do would be enough to keep her weight down, but this isn't always the case.

The trouble, no doubt, is that homemakers who hold down outside jobs try to keep up their strength by eating more food. Excess fuel doesn't make extra strength. It goes to fat. Then, too, in middle age the body requires fewer calories, so more of the food tends to be excess. The normal housewife who works at light office work, for instance, uses about 2,000 calories a day. The sales person or teacher uses 200 to 300 calories a day more. In any case, you can reduce on 1200 calories a day and be perfectly nourished.

Eat to increase your energy by having every meal measure up to the optimum on the protective score. Protein is the nutrient that makes good the wear and the tear, so make sure that every meal includes a complete protein. That should mean plenty of seafoods.

The National Nutrition Committee recommends that every person eat at least one serving of seafoods every day. I hope you will follow this suggestion and always ask for FLORIDA seafoods.

Tip for today: Try adding a teaspoon of dry mustard to your water to rid utensils of fish odors. Leaves no taste of mustard.

Avon Park Red Devils Defeat Kathleen Red Devils 19-12

By John R. Gambrell

Scoring once in the second quarter and twice in the fourth period the Avon Park Red Devils downed the Kathleen Red Devils 19-12 in a Ridge Conference game.

It was Avon Parks first win of the 1958 campaign and evened their season record at 1 win and 1 loss. Kathleen suffered their second straight defeat of the season.

Although the first period found no score from either team there was plenty of hard fought football. Avon Park won the toss and elected to receive to open the first home game of the season. Douberly took the kick off on his own 20 yard line and ran it back to the Avon Park 31 yard line. A mix up in the Avon Park back field caused a fumble on the first play from scrimmage. Kathleen recovered deep in Avon Park territory only to find a strong stubborn Avon Park defense.

Neither team was able to make any large gains in the first period and it faded into history with the score tied at 0-0.

Early in the second period Reggie Butler hit Leroy Farless on a quick pass over the middle that carried to the Kathleen 20 yard line. From the 20 Tommy Douberly carried to the 15 but an off side penalty brought the ball back to the 25. A 24 yard gallop by Leroy Starling carried the ball to the Kathleen 1 yard line. With a first and goal to go situation a hand off to Starling accounted for the Avon Park touchdown. The try for the extra point was no good and the score stood Avon Park 6 Kathleen 0.

The first half ended on a desperation pass that paid off for the Kathleen Red Devils. With only 33 seconds left in the first half Bill Dawson connected with Joe Amos on a pass from Kathleen 41 yard line to the Avon Park 20. Amos ran the remaining 20 yards. The try for extra point failed and the score at half time stood Avon Park 6 Kathleen 6.

Early in the fourth period the Avon Park Red Devils started rolling on nice gains by Leroy Starling and Tommy Douberly and a pass from Reggie Butler that carried to the home teams 11 yard line. Starling scoring his second touchdown of the night carried over from the 11 yard line. The extra point was no good and the score at this point was 12-6 favor of Avon Park.

Later in the last period with Kathleen in possession of the ball deep in their own territory Gail Hovey made a sensational interception catching the ball falling down. From the Kathleen 18 yard line Leroy Starling behind the fine blocking of the Avon Park forward wall carried to the 2 yard line. Tommy Douberly carried over from that point on the next play. Reggie Butler ran the extra point and the score - Avon Park 19, Kathleen 6.

With two minutes left in the Game Joe Amos covered an Avon Park fumble on the 36 yard line. Three plays later Bill Dawson hit Amos on a long pass that left the Kathleen team only five yards for another touchdown. Ronnie Jordon carried over from the 5. The final score 19-12 with the 19 belonging to Avon Park.

Leroy Starling was the leading ground gainer picking up 142 yards in 19 carries followed by Tommy Douberly with 117 in 15 carries. Butler attempted 10 passes and completed 5 for a total of 68 yards.

Defensive stand outs were Bill Parrish, Buddy Price, Dalton McCullough, Bryan Kempton, Daniel Money and Warren Alwood.

Avon Park picked up 263 yards rushing and 68 yards passing. Kathleen picked up 63 yards rushing and 81 passing.

Avon Park Meets Ft. Meade Here Friday Night

In Avon Park's two previous games over twenty players a game have seen action. This weeks probably starting line up will be Ends - Leroy Farless, Warren Alwood; Tackles - Buddy Price or Manuel Smith, Bill Parrish; Guards - Kenneth Fentress, Dalton McCullough; Center - Daniel Money; Half-backs - Tommy Douberly, Bryan Kempton; Fullback - Leroy Starling; Quarter-back - Reggie Butler.

Commander of the American Legion. He holds a B. A. degree from Georgia Normal College, Douglas, Ga.

Mr. Penrose S. Wilson has been in the field of finance and banking since 1930 except for the period of war service during World War II. He started with the bank as head loan teller in 1935 and was promoted to Assistant Cashier in 1957. He is a graduate of Miami High School and holds an A.B. degree from the Georgia School of Technology. He is married and resides in the Homestead area with his wife, daughter and son. He is active in fraternal and church affairs.

Miss Harper has had over 14 years, experience in banking in the South Florida area. She is a graduate of Florida State University with a B.S. degree and is a graduate of American Institute of Banking, having taken a number of additional courses after graduation. She will be working directly with Mr. Howard in over-all management of the bank.

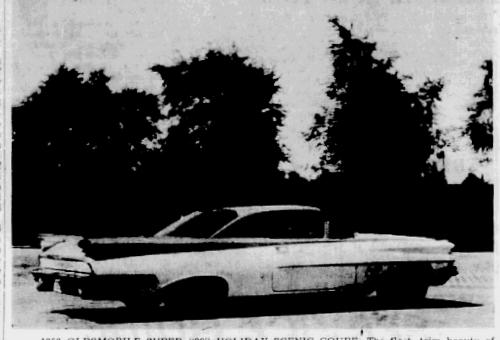
Mrs. Thelma T. McGarrah has been with the bank since 1951. She is extremely active in women's clubs, civic organizations and church affairs. She is a member of the Miami Chapter of N.A.B.W.

Also promoted was Marian Zimmerman, formerly of Lancaster, Pa., from bank teller to Assistant Cashier. Miss Zimmerman, too, is extremely active in civic and church affairs.

Grace L. Johnson was raised from Proof Department supervision to Assistant Cashier, Mrs. Johnson came to Florida in 1951 from Barnesville, N. C. She has been in banking ever since her arrival in this state, and she, too, is a graduate of the AIB School of Miami.

Myra Frey moved from supervision of Bookkeeping Department to Assistant Cashier. Mrs. Frey is a former resident of West Virginia, and a graduate of the Boyd School, Washington, D. C.

The appointment and promotion of 5 women officers in this bank is part of the over-all program of the Sottile Banking Group, as expressed by Mr. James Sottile, Jr., operating head of the banks. He said: "Our Directors and policy-making bodies of the banks for sometime have felt that we can not and will not differentiate between men and women in the promotions within our organization. We are more interested in the quality and abilities of the individual. We know that the customers and friends of the South Dade Farmers Bank concur with the promotions made. This has been evidenced by the number of congratulatory letters we have received since the appointment took place in August.



"The Bank, under Mr. Howard's direction, assisted by these new officers, we feel, will more ably service the community, and the personnel upgrading is an indication of our continuing growth. A number of new departments are anticipated as well as the enlargement of existing departments.

"The South Dade Farmers Bank is noted for its participation in South Dade civic affairs and contributions made by its officers and staff in the way of membership and activity in the various community projects and clubs of the area."

The Chemstrand Corporation's nylon plant in Pensacola recently completed five million man-hours of safe work and is holder of the world's textile plant safety record.

Pity the poor man who strives away while he's here to make enough money so his family can loaf and be no account when he's gone.

—o—

My mentioning a black snake last week brought forth another incident involving a serpent who enjoyed watching TV. It somehow crept into the room and was engrossed in Queen For a Day . . . when suddenly it was discovered and crowned by the lady of the house. It turned out to be a small and harmless black snake.

It was a tense group of ys from the fire department, police, highway patrol and press who watched the hugh truck trailer loaded with approximately 23 tons of butane gas being righted after it overturned Tuesday on Rt. 17 south.

Fortunately no one was hurt when the trailer and tractor parted company due to mechanical failure. Only the trailer overturned. However, the driver, Henry Macon Giddens formerly of Avon Park and now of Marianna, Fla. must have suffered some bad moments when he summed up what might have happened . . . had it been a high tension wire instead of the telephone lines which were dangling, for instance, when the semi hit a pole and knocked it down.

There were more tense moments when after hours of work in getting the truck upright a cable slipped and over she went again, all 6000 gallons of potential boom boom! This time it seemed to us onlookers as though two of the boys from Murphy's Garage were right under the gigantic tube of steel. We weren't fast enough to catch Jim Murphy and Don Wiggins as they streaked through the orange trees out of danger.

About six, fifteen almost five hours later, the job was done, the semi rumbled out and a lot of relieved people left the scene, most of them smiling and smoking.

Mrs. John Dawson, "Linkie" to her close friends, is the ideal clubwoman. When she has a job to do, and she has many, she goes at it methodically. Last winter as Chairman of the Garden Club Flower Show she spent much time in planning the decorating of the Youth Center down to the last inch. Unfortunately because of a shortage of flowers the show had to be called off.

Now once again, it's time to go ahead with plans. However, much to her dismay, "Linkie" finds that most of the partitions have been removed from the building - thus making her job two-fold.

Anyone know of a nice building where the flower show could be held?

This information was left on my desk by an unknown helper. "One of our residents, Mrs. Alvin Riggins has been groaning as she works among her flowers and shrubs. Reason, a cracked rib. Cause, her husband hugged her too hard".

Thank you, Unknown Helper, all contributions gratefully accepted.

Fred Davis, of the Florida Power Corporation has once again taken over as Scout Master of one of the two Scout troops. Elton Lawrence heads the other group.

While discussing scouting Fred pointed out that parents can be very helpful by attending the Honor Courts and showing an interest in their son's progress. He believes that parents can spark the success of a boy just by interest and encouragement.

Scout work is very important to a growing boy but no matter how hard the Scoutmasters work, unless the boy himself is anxious to advance, and is encouraged by his parents, it doesn't mean much.

Red Devils Score 20-0 Victory Over Bullpups

By John R. Gambrell

Led by the running of Tommy Douberly, Leroy Starling and Sethe McCormick, behind the blocking of Dalton McCullough, Leroy Farless, Bill Parrish and Daniel Money, the Avon Park Red Devils downed the Frostproof Bullpups 20-0 last Friday night at Frostproof.

The Red Devils scored twice in the second quarter and once in the third period and held the Bullpups scoreless. Only once did Frostproof seriously threaten and this was halted by fine defensive play by the Red Devil line.

Early in the second quarter the Devils accounted for their first touchdown of the night. With the ball resting on the Frostproof 32 yard line Sethe McCormick took a pitch out from Reggie Butler and scooted to the 3 yard line before being driven out of bounds. The Devils suffered a blow on the play, however when a 5 yard penalty pushed them back to the 37 yard line. From this point Leroy Starling scatted down to the 12 and Tommy Douberly carried over from there on a quick opener. Starling added the extra point and Avon Park went ahead 7-0.

Later in the same quarter the Devils climaxed a 87 yard drive with Sethe McCormick carring over from the 9 yard line. The Devils started the drive from their own 13 yard line. McCormick carried to the 39, Douberly on a 34 yard gallop placed the Devils in the Frostproof 27 and Starling pushed on to the 20 then to the 9 where McCormick scored the Red Devil's second T.D. of the night. Starling again added the extra point and Avon Park led at halftime 14-0.

During the halftime intermission the two teams received a double treat while watching the Red Devil Band perform plus the Bullpups Homecoming Ceremonies. The Devil Band is under the capable direction of Gene Gorman and is led by Miss Sammie Wright. Miss Connie Holloway was crowned Queen of the Frostproof Homecoming. She is in her junior year at Frostproof and her escort was David Joiner.

As the third period got under way the Red Devils quickly started clicking. The Devils last touchdown came on a two yard plunge by quarterback Reggie Butler. The T.D. was set up on a beautifully punt return by Tommy Douberly from his own 35 to the Frostproof 30. From the 30 Leroy Starling bulled his

CHRIST AND OUR TIMES

By THE REV. PETER F. WATTERSON

In His favor or the worlds

One of the most difficult spiritual lessons which all of us must absorb in the school of Jesus Christ, is that which makes us imitate the publican and say with him, "O God, be merciful to me a sinner?"

It is the assignment wherein we must learn to discount our own importance and our strength in favor of the might and majesty of God Almighty. Very often, because of our polish and suavement, our manner, our astuteness in the world of affairs, our magnetic personal qualities which draw us many friends, we feel a certain delicate pre-eminence which in the long run may lead us to forget that we are made of absolutely nothing and that every single talent given us was freely bestowed by God.

This is the one fact, however, which we must never forget. If we do, then the edifice of the spiritual life, which we must raise and attend to and make strong, will one day collapse with awful sound because the base of the edifice was ourselves . . . not God.

Our Lord clearly illustrates this truth when He says: Everyone therefore who hears these my words and acts upon them, shall be likened to a wise man who built his house on rock. And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, but it did not fall, because it was founded upon rock. And everyone who hears these words and does not act upon them, shall be likened to a foolish man who built his house on sand. And the rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell, and was utterly ruined.

We ought this day to pause in our pilgrimage through life and think a while about our spiritual fitness. It is possible that, when we pray, we have grown to assume the attitude of the Pharisee who stood in the temple and said, "O God, I thank thee that I am not as other men." Or if we do not actually speak these words, we may have gradually assumed his posture and mentality, because all along we have been holding back from God, the due credit which is His for everything we have and own and are. For too long a time, because of our popularity with men, we may have forgotten that the only thing which really counts, is our popularity with God.

If the foundation of our life is not the solid one of humility, we may be eternally buried beneath the structure when it finally tumbles. We may have to build over again and, when we do, do it right. Use rock . . . not sand. Brand ourselves before God as we really are, and not as we pretend to be. Compromise no longer with our faith because of human opinion. Stand next to the publican. Hear him call himself a sinner. Have you struck our breast in sorrow even once today. Or don't you think you need too?

The Ministerial Association is responsible for the morning devotions heard over radio station WAVP each week, Monday through Friday, from 10:15-10:30 a. m. The Association also sponsors a speaker at the Hillcrest Nursing Home each Sunday evening at 2:00 p. m.

Members present at the October meeting of the Ministerial Association were Rev. A. D. Childress, President, Pastor W. C. Arnold, Secretary-Treasurer, Pastor H. C. Ray, Rev. J. M. Gilbreath, Rev. W. E. Spurlock, Rev. W. Luttrell, and Rev. H. D. Graetz.

Addressing the Man in the Moon

Mr. Man in the moon, please listen to me,
Though to what I say you may not agree.
For millions and millions and millions of years
You had your own way among the spheres:
You have circled the earth without any fears,
But now get ready to shed a few tears.
There are fellows down here, smart fellows too,
Who are planning a big surprise for you.
They've made a big gadget and are planning to fly
It into the vast and vaulty sky,
Just hoping to land in your yard some day
And claim it all for the U. S. A.
Ha, you smile at that? You don't believe it?
You seem to say you can't conceive it?
That folks who monkey with such crazy things,
They must belong to the lunatic fringe?
You may be right, but don't you know
I just can't say it's going to be so.
To utter such prophecy, may be one shouldn't,
So many things have been done that couldn't.
But they've tried it once, they've tried it twice.
The last try went so very nice
Except they missed which doused all smiles,
By a hundred and fifty thousand miles.
But they're not through. They have a yen
To try it again, again and again.
So keep your eyes peeled, mister moon,
May be they'll hit you, come next June.
And may be not. I wouldn't know
For all who're looking it's quite a big show.
But costly when all's done and said,
For folks like us so deep in the red.
Some eightly billions, more or less,
What's going to happen, I just can't guess.

Barbara Miller Has Carnival Birthday Party

Barbara Lee Miller was five years old on Saturday, Oct. 11, and entertained some of her friends with a Carnival Birthday Party which would delight the heart of any child.

The Miller yard at Highland Lakes was decorated with carnival booths and each small guest was given a paper sack filled with play money upon their arrival. Then the play money was exchanged for tickets to be used in playing the booth games. The children also decorated their sacks and used them to keep their prizes in. There was a ring toss booth, a fish pond, popcorn stand, clothes pin toss games, and several other interesting booths. Mr. Lewis Miller, Barbara's father, was a weight guessing expert, and conveniently did very poorly with his estimates of the childrens weights so that each child won a sucker for a prize. Before the party was over each delighted child had filled his treasure sack with a horn, coloring book, balloons, and a whirling pinwheel.

Mrs. Miller had hidden colored peanuts of various hues all over the yard and each guest hunted for nuts of his particular color so that all found a larger number. This game was exciting and fun for all.

Barbara's birthday cake was a little girl's dream with lancing dolls of several sizes. Ice cream and cold drinks were also served the guests. Helping Barbara enjoy the carnival were Joan Seims, Gail Methany, Martha Mosley, Patty Turnbull, Claire Lanier, Mike DeLaney, and Carl Lee and Wendy Bowers of Sebring, and Patricia Lewis, Barbara's sister. Mrs. Julia Hamm helped Mr. and Mrs. Miller with their daughter's party.

Miss Shirley Jo Hall Weds Jack Mansfield In Candlelight Service

MR. AND MRS. JACK MANSFIELD

Miss Shirley Jo Hall became the bride of Mr. Jack Mansfield in a candlelight service at St. Catherines Catholic Church in Derby, Colorado, September 27th at 7 o'clock in the evening. Father Dominic Albino officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The church was beautifully decorated with colonial baskets of Autumn mums and gladiola placed at the Alter.

The lovely bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina length gown of nylon net and chantilly lace over white satin, with a finger tip veil, also trimmed in chantilly lace and secured with a head band of pearls and sequins. She carried a white orchid placed on a white prayer book, with streamers of orange blossoms and autumn leaves. For something old she had a 1940 penny, for the year of her birth, placed in her left shoe, a borrowed pearl choker necklace, and the tradional blue garter.

Her bridesmaid was Miss Joan Saurini, who wore a beautiful yellow gown of taffeta and lace, with a matching wide brim Halo, and carried a bouquet of lovely autumn mums and carnations. Domenic Saurini was the groom's best man. Billie Martin and Helmer Nordburg were ushers.

Miss Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Hall, former residents of Avon Park, Fla. Mr. Mansfield is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew J. Mansfield of Brooklyn, New York.

The bride's Mother wore a dress of powder blue lace, with pink accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Out of town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mott and daughter, Janice, of Avon Park, Florida, Mr. James Faubion of Dothan, Alabama, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Broeg of Colorado Springs.

A reception was held immediately following the wedding at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Saurini in Adams City. Miss Donna Doan attended the bride's guest book. Miss Mildred Martin and Miss Carole Vickers assisted Mrs. Saurini in serving the three tiered wedding cake and punch. Mrs. Thelma Martin assisted with the gifts. Music at the reception was furnished by Domenic and Johnny Saurini.

Following a short honeymoon the couple will make their home at 6671 East 73rd Place in Derby, Colorado.

The refreshment table was centered with a lovely tiered cake decorated in blue and white with large baby bootee of blue topping the tallest tier. Fred Wild Explains School Building Program To Parents Of Elem. PTA

Fred Wild, County Superintendent of Schools, spoke to more than one hundred and forty parents, teachers, and friends, at the meeting of the Avon Elementary PTA on Thursday night, Oct. 9.

Mr. Wild gave a very clarifying picture of the process by which the school needs in this county are decided upon and then taken care of. He told the group that a planning committee from Tallahassee had come last spring and made a comprehensive study of present needs and a prediction of future needs. From this study the construction of the new Hopewell Elementary school and the new classrooms at the Avon Elementary was realized. Mr. Wild stated that the school population was growing at a rapid rate in Highlands County and that another planning group would probably be called upon in less than the usual period of five years. On the agenda for construction as soon as possible is a science and manuel arts building at the Avon Park High School. His talk gave the audience a much clearer picture of how the needs of our schools are studied and met.

During the business meeting with Mrs. Maldwyn Parry, president, presiding, the budget for the 1958-59 year was read and accepted by the group. Mrs. Ben Stewart read the by-laws of the organization and they were also accepted and will be sent to Sarasota for acceptance by the state Parent-Teacher Association. A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. Stewart and her committee for their excellent work on the by-laws. The members of the PTA also voted to take the attendance count on the number of persons present for each room by counting the parents and friends and then awarding the banner to the room with the largest number present. Reports were given to the group by the various committee chairman.

Mrs. J. C. Murphy's third grade won the attendance banner with a number of rooms running a close race in the number present. Delicious cookies and punch were served the guests from an attractive table after the meeting for a very pleasant social hour. The Fifth Grade Mothers were hostesses for the evening.

Great salesmanship is a lot of little sales put together.

Miss Alma Nathe And Larry Hooper United In Double Ring Ceremony

MRS. LARRY CLINGMAN HOOPER

In a double ring ceremony on Sunday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, at Sacred Heart Church in St. Josepa community, Miss Alma Rose Nathe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphons B. Nathe, became the bride of larry Clingman Hooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Hooper of Avon Park. The Rev. Benedict Wegand, O.S.B., officiated at the nuptial rites, following a program of music presented by Miss Elizabeth Barthle, organist.

Pedestal baskets of white chrysanthemums formed the setting for the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of tulle and lace over taffeta. The full outer skirt of tulle, with veiled tiers of net ruffles, was trimmed with deep scallops of Alencon lace around a simulated front and back panel. The front of the bodice was fashioned of lace with a sweetheart neckline, extending over the shoulders to form a low v-shape at the center back. The cap sleeves were complemented with long lace mitts. Her fingertip veil of illusion, bordered with lace, was held by a crown pf seed pearls and sequins. She carried a white prayer book, topped with bride's roses and a shower of ribbons.

Miss Janet Spigg of Dade City, maid of honor, and Miss Judy Hooper of Avon Park, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, wore identical dresses of electric blue taffeta in terrace length. Each dress was designed with a scoop neckline and a very full skirt with a crushed cummerbund of the dress material. Their small hats were flat bows of taffeta, matching their dresses as did their satin slippers. Each wore a strand of pearls and matching earrings, gifts from the bride. They carried similar bouquets of white chrysanthemums and rosebuds.

Darryl Edwards of Avon Park served the bridegroom as best man, and grooms-ushers were M. Rene Davis of Avon Park, and David A. Nathe, of Orlando, brother of the bride.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Nathe chose a dress of navy blue taffeta, trimmed with matching lace. She wore a pink hat and her other accessories were of navy. Mrs. Hooper wore a silk crepe dress of teal blue, and white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of pastel yellow rosebuds.

The reception was held in the church hall, where arrangements of white flowers were used. The bride's table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, was centered with the tiered wedding cake, encircled with white chrysanthemumms and greenery and flanked by white tapers in crystal candlesticks, set amidst chrysanthemums. Similar flowers formed a garland at the base of the crystal punch bowl, placed on a linen-covered table. The bride's book was kept by Miss Gertrude Neuhofer, and others assisting in the hospitalities were Miss Joyce Payne, Miss Ruth Nathe, Miss Rose Marie Nikolai, and Mrs. H. C. Young, Jr.

Winter Guest Club News

The 1958-59 season at the Winter Guest Club officially opened with the arrival of our secretary, Tony Kerr, on Wednesday, Oct. 8. Fifty-five memberships have been paid, to date, so we're off to a good start. You will find Mr. Kerr either on the courts or in his "office" where he will be glad to relieve you of that $3.50.

The courts have been in use every morning and evening throughout the summer, with a potluck tournament on Saturday evenings. The last of these, managed by our genial friend, Bill Ford, was won Saturday evening by Harry Gibson and Harry Arms. Just how these two doughty wielder of the cues managed to pick each other for four consecutive drawings will likely remain the year's deepest mystery. That's potluck for you; one of the surprises which keeps interest high.

On Satuday, Oct. 18, Henry Kidder, chairman of the local tournaments, will stage another potluck affair. On Wednesday, Oct. 22, at 6:30 there will be a choose-your-partner tournament according to Mr. Kidder. This Wednesday and Saturday pattern will continue thusly until cold evenings indicate a change to the afternoon schedule.

Also, on Saturday, Oct. 18, at 5:30, will see the resumption of the carry-in suppers. Now, all you good cooks, get out your favorite recipe, pack that picnic basket, and meet your friends for an hour of food and fellowship.

On Friday, at eight o'clock, October 17, the season's dance program will begin. This will be an evening of a variety of dances: squares, waltzes, polkas, fox-trots, etc, as in previous years. Mr. Will Kienzel is dance chairman this year, with Ken Lewis and Worth Rodgers completing the committee. Bring your thermos with your favorite drink and join the others with doughnuts after the dancing is done.

Mrs. Wyman, chairman of the Tuesday bridge games, announces the games will resume on October 21, at 1:30 p. m.

As other activities get under way, we will keep you posted in this column and also on the bulletin board. It's a pretty good idea, by the way, to take a glance at that board real often, just to make sure you don't miss something. Then, later, you won't be joining the chorus of, "I didn't know about that".

Another good habit, at this time of the year especially, it to get to the clubhouse every day or so to welcome the "returnees" and also greet the newcomers and help them get acquainted. Remember how much you enjoyed the glad hand when you first came?

One of our most beloved past presidents, Mr. Frank Beckwith, and Jane, celebrate their fiftieth anniversary next week. We know they read the "Sun", so through this medium, the club extends heartiest congratulations to them on their very special day, October 21.

New Style Line, More Safety And Comfort Featured In 59 Chevrolet

A complete styling transformation, along with more safety, comfort and performance, was announced today for the 1959 Chevrolet passenger car line.

The cars, which will be displayed at nationwide dealer showings on Thursday, October 16, represent one of the most imaginative designs ever to come from the automobile industry.

In shape, and in detail, the new styling reflects the influence of a space-conscious age. Lines sweep rearward in a virtually level plane. Tops are flatter and visibility is dramatically increased.

Appreciably lower, the overall appearance of fleetness is further conveyed by an adroitly sculptured frontal area. At the rear, horizontal wings branch out from the center of the deck in a simulation of mobility that might have been conceived on the sands of Cape Canaveral.

While the unusual appearance will draw instant admiration, Chevrolet has not neglected other phases of engineering in its bid to continue the sales popularity registered by the company in 1958.

Here are some of the 1959 mechanical highlights:

Fundamental improvements in coil spring suspension, incorporating specialized controls. Refinements in the optional Level Air suspension to acquire softer, quieter operation.

Larger braking surfaces, benefitting further by flanged drums and 27 per cent more lining area provide surer stops, longer life. Tires improved for durability and reduced in rolling resistance through newly developed cords, which run cooler, offer a softer ride and last longer.

A Turboglide transmission of advanced design. One of two automatic transmissions in the 1959 line, the quality of Turboglide has been raised to a new peak.

Easier steering and the inclusion of a second, shock-resistant universal joint. A radiator increased in cooling area. A simplified, more productive electrical system.

In addition to a bold, fresh design, Chevrolet bodies for 1959 excel in comfort and structural unity. An impressive increase in passenger room is exemplified by almost five inches more width in the five and one-half ft. front seat. With 20 per cent greater capacity, the trunk has been increased up to 32 cubic feet. Still another example of general commodiousness can be found in station wagons. The cargo space has been lenghtened to almost eight feet.

One angle cannot show the complete styling changes which have been made in the 1959 Chevrolet. Lowered headlamps set into the freshly styled grille, and functional air intakes accent the beauty of the front view of the Impala convertible (below). Smart and original is the bold sculptured treatment given the rear quarters and trunk deck of the Impala sport sedan (above).

Sedans have been reduced in height one inch; sport models two inches. Through lower body mountings and a new roof configuration, the advantage has been accomplished without sacrifice, and in some cases an actual gain, in headroom. Station wagons are now no higher than the four-ft. eight-inch sedans. Front tread of the car has been broadened 1.5 inches; the rear tread .5 inch. Wheelbase is 119 inches and the overall length 210.9 inches.

County Democrats To Re-organize Tuesday, Oct. 21

Highlands County Democrats will hold a county-level reorganization meeting Tuesday evening at 7:30 p. m. in the county commissioners room on the third floor in the County Court House.

New officers will be elected for the Democratic Executive Committee to head up its activities for the next four years.

Officers to be named by Democratic precinct committeemen and committee-women include chairman, vice chairman, secretary, and treasurer.

Standing and special committees within the main county committee are due for some reorganization—especially with the appearance of many new faces in the county committee.

Due to the withdrawal of the candidate, a county committeeman to represent Highlands County on the State Executive Committee will also have to be elected.

In announcing the Tuesday night meeting, County chairman S. F. Schwinn urged all precinct committee members to be on hand for reorganization balloting.

Where committee members find they cannot attend the meeting chairman Schwinn advises them to delegate "a trusted Democrat who lives in their own precinct" to cast a proxy vote for them.

Such proxy votes must be filed with the credentials committee between 7 p. m. and the start of the meeting, Schwinn added.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Special Courses:

By using experts already in our community and sending persons to training centers we shall soon be able to offer a number of specialized courses of importance in modern civil defense. A group of these courses will be concerned with health and the care of the injured with the aim of enlarging the supply of semi-skilled supplementary personnel for hospitals, including emergency hospitals, home-nursing and so on. We might well make a community project of persuading one adult in every family to learn first aid.

Another group will be concerned with training auxiliary help for a great number of the regular services in our town: police, firemen, communication workers, telephone operators, electronicians, instrument repairmen, demolition gangs, and so on. A third group will be concerned with training for war-caused disasters. This group will include monitors, meter readers and decontamination experts. They must learn both the use and the maintenance of new instruments.

A fourth group will be concerned with inventory, accommodation, total food storage, earth moving equipment (heavy and light), manpower. A fifth group will offer studies in principles of administration and organization, including regional and state organization and cooperation. A sixth will deal with the task of how to release our community "social imagination." This important group of trainees has the difficult task of translating apathy into enthusiasm, putting people to work with the minimum dislocation of their personal lives, solving problems in human resolutions and maintaining morale. Because this is largely a matter of perceiving the unperceived, it is dealt with separately in Chapter Six.

In our community our teaching resources for civil defense training are already larger than we think. The word "teacher" tends to raise a vision of the public school and its personnel. But the study circle leader in the League of Women Voters or Fortnightly Club is also a teacher. So is the person whom we tend to listen to when the conversation in our circle turns to national or international problems or some other specialized subject. A clue to finding our teachers is to look for them among the people already occupied in doing the things for which we wish to train supplementary volunteer aid. The regulars in the fire department and police force will train the auxiliary volunteers, and this will be true for most of the utilities and services in our community. Science and industrial arts instructors in schools and colleges can teach the technical courses, and the principles of administration can be taught by a combination of plant and business managers, public officials, and superintendents of schools. For learning how to develop ways of catching public interest we might expect to find good teachers among the advertising agencies. In rural areas, agricultural extension workers can be of great assistance through their volunteer program leaders and extension agricultural, home demonstration, and 4-H Club groups. State and county agricultural extension workers are trained educators of adults.

The head or senior official within each group is not necessarily the best teacher. The five chief may know best what has to be taught but other members of the fire department may be better instructors - the men who are good with words, good with men, customarily regarded as authoritative. In a plant our instructors may be found among the managerial staff or among the foremen and trade union stewards. The advisory committee should encourage this search for teaching talent within each group and should also encourage rotation of teaching personnel. A central roster of names, addresses, and special teaching subjects should be kept. Being the only teacher for a year may be too much of a sacrifice for an individual. From the point of view of the learner, a new teacher can often reinforce and bring new point to things already considered.

When words fail—try a few new ideas.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By Russell Kay

On my way to Miami recently I stopped at Clewiston for a visit with Harry T. Vaughn, president of the United States Sugar Corporation.

Barring hurricane damage or another servere winter, Florida's 1958-59 sugar harvest should be a good one. Not as large as in some past seasons due to the fact that last winter's cold spells did considerable damage to the cane and it will be another year before this is offset.

Right now engineers, mechanics and laborers are swarming over the big sugar mill putting it in readiness for the coming season which will start in October and continue until spring.

Once the wheels start turning, the giant mill operates on a 24 hour a day basis through the season. Harvesting the cane from 33,000 acres is a big job that calls for round the clock operation.

The 10 to 12 months old cane is cut by hand and stacked in rows for the automatic loader which picks it up for transfer to three and one half ton capacity carts. The loaded carts are then pulled by tractor to a final loading railroad siding for another automatic transfer to gondola type railway cars which haul it to the mill where it is automatically dumped, a carload at a time, to an endless conveyor that transports it to the shallow knives for shredding and then to the crushing and grinding tandems. The juice runs like a river from the crushers and the fiber that remains, known as bagasse, is used as fuel in the hughe furnaces or is baled and sold as poultry litter.

When processed the raw sugar is shipped to the Savannah Sugar Refining Company for refining and reaches the consumer under the trade name, "Dixie Crystals."

Blackstrap molasses from the mill is sold for cattle feeding and other purposes.

Cuttings of the harvested cane are used for planting which is carried out at the same time the harvest is underway. Two-foot long cuttings are laid horizontally by hand so that the end of each cutting overlaps the next. The approximate age of sugar cane from the date of planting to harvest ranges from 10 to 14 months. In the Everglades it is replanted every five years under normal conditions. The second, third, fourth and fifth growths are known as stubble cane which matures between nine and 12 months.

While the sugar mill is not listed as a Florida attraction it nevertheless draws many thousands of visitors during the harvest season. As an accommodation the sugar corporation provides regular tours for those wishing to see the plant in operation. Tours are conducted hourly and without charge.

Vegetable fields in the Lake Okeechobee area were being readied for the coming season and everything looked good. Growers really took it on the chin last year but they are looking for a good winter and hope to get well this season.

Fishing has been excellent this summer in the Clewiston area. The Clewiston Inn caters to sportsmen and provides comfortable air conditioned accommodations and the finest of meals at surprisingly modest prices. Bill Johnson's famed fishing camp as well as a number of others operate the year round providing every facility including boats, kickers, guides, bait and tackle. The Inn puts up an excellent fisherman's lunch for those who do not wish to come ashore at noon.

Florida has reason to be proud of her sugar and vegetable industries made possible by the vast Everglade drainage program. Things look bright for the coming season and if Mother Nature behaves herself this fall and winter everything will be o. k.

1959 Fords To Go On Display Friday, October 17

The 1959 Ford car line, which already has received an award at the Brussels World's Fair for styling elegance, will go on display at Ford dealerships on Friday, October 17, J. O. Wright, Ford Motor Company vice president and Ford Division general manager, announced today.

"The 1959 Ford car is new in concept and new in style," Mr. Wright said. "The 1959 styling theme is good taste, as a result of consumer demand for more elegance and dignity in automotive styling as opposed to gaudiness or extremism," he added.

In addition to Ford engines that have been engineered for greater fuel economy, Ford offers quality-designed construction and a new, lighter Ford-matic transmission with 105 fewer parts than in 1958, Mr. Wright said.

"Every piece of body sheet metal in the 1959 Ford has been changed to reflect the good taste of the Thunderbird — America's most successfully-styled car. The Thunderbird's crisp, taut lines have given the Ford a formal quality and the impression of a bigger, heavier car without the addition of bulk," Mr. Wright added.

Ford's 1959 styling earned the plaudits of the noted fashion authority, the Comite Francais de L'Elegance, which, for the first time in history, bestowed a gold medal for styling on an American automobile at the close of the Brussels international exposition.

The 1959 Ford engines offer greater operating economy and improved engine performance in the normal driving ranges, 30 to 70 m.p.h. Ford recommends regular grade gasoline in all standard engines, which can result in a saving of up to one dollar a tank full. These benefits have been achieved in part by a slight horse-power reduction.

Mr. Wright said every 1959 Ford is "quality-designed," a term Ford engineers use to define the emphasis placed on quality in the basic design of the car, starting from the drawing board stage. The result is a simplified design where possible, elimination of unnecessary parts as in the case of the new transmission, and more durable parts, such as Ford's new extended-life muffler and Diamond Lustre finish, an enamel that requires no wax ing for the lifetime of the car.

Supporting the "quality design" program is a "quality built" philosophy, that centers on Ford's recently-dedicated Quality Control Center at Allen Park, Mich., where 1959 models were assembled on a pilot line months before introduction to be sure that each part met all engineering specifications and assembly requirements.

The 1959 Ford line includes 17 models ranging from the Custom 300's which are six inches longer than in 1958, through the six station wagon models, to the Fairlanes and Fairlane 500's. Station wagon length has been increased more than five inches; cargo area is eight inches longer, and cargo space is 11 cubic feet more than in last year's models. All 1959 Fords will be on a 118-inch wheelbase and will have an over-all length of 208 inches.

Windshield area has been increased 208 square inches, or 29 per cent, over 1958 Ford models.

With its refined engines, Ford is introducing a new version of the Ford-matic transmission. The 1959 Formomatic, a two-speed automatic transmission, has eliminated the need for 105 parts, which, with the use of case and bell housing, has reduced the total Fordomatic transmission weight by 50 pounds, or 22.8 per cent.

Ford's four modern engines combine efficiency, durability and economy with the added customer savings resulting from quick and easy servicing. The full-flow oil filter, standard equipment on all 1959 engines, permits Ford to recommend an oil change only every 4,000 miles, resulting in further savings to the customer.

In addition to the new Ford-matic and Ford's proven three-speed syncromesh manual transmission, Ford offers an improved version of the dual-range Cruise-O-Matic combining overdrive economy with automatic transmission convenience. For the ultimate in economy, the three-speed manual transmission also can be obtained with overdrive.

A new, Ford-designed Equa-Lock differential, providing positive traction when driving under conditions of poor footing, such as ice, snow or mud, is available as optional equipment.

Ford is introducing a new version of the MagicAire heater which provides instantaneous temperature response and even control. The new heater mixes hot and cold fresh air by mechanical dampers instead of modulating the water temperature in the heater core, thus maintaining a consant temperature even when car speed is changed.

The 1959 Ford aluminized muffler is designed to last twice as long as conventional types. It is standard on all models. Use of aluminum-coated walls and heads to resist corrosion, a double-thick inner shell, and an asbestos wrapping between the inner and outer castings results in a slower condensation rate, less corrosion and, consequently, longer muffler life.

A new foot-operated parking brake, affording more convenience and knee room for the driver, is released with an easy-to-operate tip-down handle.

Ford's Master-Guide power steering has been improved to reduce the power required to operate the pump by as much as 37½ per cent, thereby reducing the drag on the engine.

Ford engineers have improved the already superior riding qualities for the 1959 Ford with a new, link-type, rubber-bushed ride stabilizer to reduce road shock, and recalibrated shock absorbers for a smoother, easier ride.

The 1959 Ford with new Diamond Lustre finish, a super-enamel that doesn't require waxing, is available in a wide selection of solid and two-tone exterior colors, color-keyed to match the interior upholstery.

The safety concept of "package the passenger" against injury, which Ford introduced to the auto industry, includes as standard features the extra-rugged, five cross-member frames with wide-flared side rails, safety door locks and the Life-guard steering wheel. Safety seat belts, padded instrument panel and padded sun visors are available as optional equipment. Laminated safety glass, which Ford pioneered, is used in the windshield and side windows. The roof is strongly supported at the four corners and reinforced by channel-section cross braces.

Shown in a picturesque Brussels World's Fair setting is a 1959 Ford Sunliner convertible. Ford offers two convertibles in 1959: the soft-top Sunliner and the retractable hardtop Skyliner. Ford's tasteful styling theme in 1959 is a result of consumer demand for more elegance and dignity, as opposed to gaudiness or extremism. In the background is the Atomium, prominent landmark at the Brussels World's Fair.

Hunters - Don't Kill Farmers

Hunting season is now open. Again this year many hunters who have never been in the woods before will take a gun and a dog and start to look for game. The farmers, being an early riser, has frequently been taken for game, stated Asher Frank, Director of the Florida Safety Council.

In 1957, there were 62 persons killed and many injured by fire arms. Early one morning near Jay, Florida, while hunting for turkeys, a boy mistook his father for game and shot him.

The above is just one of many accidents that happen throughout the state during the hunting season.

"HUNTERS, take safety precautions while in the woods. Look out for poisonous snakes. It's always wise to take along a well stocked first aid kit, and be sure that you know what you are shooting at," urged Frank.

The Scripps-Howard chain, which owned or controlled more than 25 dailies in 1930, succeeded Scripp-McRae as the name of the syndicate in 1922.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris

Tallahassee—Right now, key legislators are being privately pulled and hauled over extension of legalized gambling.

Seldom, if ever, have there been so many different propositions involving the broadening of State-approved wagering as are being pushed subsurface presently among members of the new Legislature.

All of these, however, turn around pari mutuel wagering. There is no serious legislative support now discernible for any form of outlawed gambling—roulette, dice, slot machines, bingo and the like.

The current intensification of the continuing legislative struggle over gambling results from a combination of circumstances.

(Incidentally, the phrase "continuing legislative struggle" is used advisedly. During the 1957 regular session, although other matters captured most public attention, 36 bills affecting racing were introduced. Some of these produced feverish activity in capitol corridors.)

These circumstances include the State government's need for more tax dollars and the stiffer competition for tourists which some, mainly Miami Beachites, blame on the lure of casinos in hotels and night spots of Havana and other nearby offshore areas.

The kind of winter experienced by Florida before the convening of the regular session of the Legislature in April likely will have important bearing on what finally is done by the lawmakers. A good season, in terms of tourists and their tax dollars, would relieve some of the pressure for more wagering opportunities. A bad season could produce desperation legislation to legalize casinos.

Governor Collins' attitude—and it's important because his veto power requires proponents of a specific measure to muster two-thirds support in each legislative house—is that "any further extension of legalized gambling will carry with it serious damage to the state."

Personally," says the Governor, "I would feel much better if we could roll back the clock and get along without any of it."

In the Legislature, however, the moral factor does not play much part in the general attitude toward pari mutuel wagering. A majority seems to take the position this issue was settled in 1931 when the Legislature authorized county option elections on wagering.

By the way, Governor Collins says he thinks the vote of legalizing additional dog tracks should be taken in the area which reasonably could be expected to provide their patronage. Such tracks, he continues, often draw much of their business from outside the county in which the election is held. He will ask the new Legislature to define broader territorial limits for future elections.)

In the legislative arena, the fighting since pari mutuel wagering was legalized has pitted almost exclusively those who hold wagering permits and (1) oppose further competition within their sphere of patronage or (2) want to better their position either by longer or more advantageous seasons of operation.

As the pari mutuel laws do not apply uniformly - the dog tracks, for example, collect more money for their operators than do the horse tracks - there is the incentive for jockeying to competitive advantage at each session of the Legislature.

Among the specific proposals being talked now by legislative insiders are these:

1. Legalize wagering, at dog tax rates, at each of three specific harness horse tracks in Broward and Seminole counties.

2. Legalize harness racing statewide so these tracks could be established in all counties whose voters have approved - or, by future elections, do approve - pari mutuel wagering. (Florida has one such licensed track now, midway between Jacksonville and St. Augustine.)

3. Permit summer dog racing in the Dade-Broward area. (Managements of the four existing tracks are said to be in agreement on summer racing but a number of alternative plans for rotation of the season among the tracks and for lengthening the number of racing days from the present 90 to 100 or more are still being discussed.)

4. If a summer season for dog tracks in the Dade-Broward area is approved, it is expected the two jai alai frontons there - plus possibly those in West Palm Beach and Tampa - will ask for similar consideration. The frontons now are allowed a season of 100 nights. Their managements may seek an equal number of summer nights.

5. The management of Tropical Park, at Coral Gables, may ask for permission to race horses at night. This would draw the opposition of the dog tracks and frontons since these operate in the evenings.

Two proposed laws to legalize wagering on harness racing were passed by the 1957 House of Representatives but neither got out of the Senate.

Agitation for taxing off-track betting on horse races has ebbed and flowed. Dormant since 1951, the tax problem may bring its revival.

The New York City Council recently asked, in searching for money, for a statewide referendum on off-track betting. In Florida, proponents have visualized the establishment, in counties having horse tracks, of a small number of State-supervised betting stations electrically tied into the pari mutuel apparatus of the tracks. The idea always has met with vigorous objection from the tracks.

Legal gambling presently may be conducted in Florida at five horse tracks, four jai alai frontons and sixteen dog tracks. During the last fiscal year, racing produced $24,722,241 in State revenue.

THE STATE OF CITRUS

BY JOHN SIKES
Florida Citrus Mutual

LAKELAND.—Obviously, the name and works of Florida Ciarus Mutual are moving well beyond the borders of its home state, where it is now serving more than 9,000 citrus growers.

A newspaper clipping from Weslaco, Texas, comes to FCM Head Man Bob Rutledge telling of the formation there of Texas Citrus Mutual. The news story goes on to state that the new group will request information from Florida Citrus Mutual about by-laws, etc.

Only recently, James C. Morton, Auburndale, one of the pioneers in the Florida Citrus Mutual movement and now FCM vice president emeritus, went to Weslaco to explain Mutual to the Rio Grande citrus growers and to help them get their new organization started.

In recent months Mutual has had visitors from such widely scattered points of the globe as the Malaya Federation, North Africa and Michigan seeking info on Mutual with views toward forming similar groups. Least you think they grow oranges there, the Michigan group, was interested in forming an apple cooperative, based on Mutual principles.

WEATHER—In case you've recently heard horseback forecasts that there'll be freezes in the citrus belt again the coming Winter, lets get official.

Warren Johnson, director of the Federal-State Frost Warning Service in Lakeland, points out that a definite weather forecast of more than 72 hours in advance has little, if any, value.

And the American Meterological Society, composed of professional weather experts, minimizes long range predictions thusly: "Forecasts for periods of more than a month in advance are sometimes attempted . . . The position of the American Meteorological Society is that individuals or organizations publish forecasts for more than one month in advance mislead the public if they do not clearly describe the forecasts as experimental and of unproven value."

PEELING: Add completely distaff staffs on Florida newspapers the New Smyrna Beach NEWS, edited by Fran McGrath and whose publisher, advertising manager and front office assistant all are women. Other completely woman-staffed newspapers with business departments that comes immediately to mind is Mrs. Helen Hennig's Tarpon Springs LEADER . . . Speaking of women "newsmen," Pat Neal, Clearwater Beach SUN staffer, reports she found it "real instructional" covering the first of Mutual's Grower Council meetings in Largo the other evening. Says she learned a lot about citrus sitting in, and talking with Herman Steele, Mutual, assistant GM, and Dale Carlton FCM's Grower Relations Division director. "Particularly about pounds-solids, which I had no idea were in oranges before I attended the meeting," says Pat . . . It's real salubrious having so many ladies interested in what goes on with Florida citrus.

Business Women To Elect New Officers Monday

The Business and Professional Women's Club will meet on Monday night, Oct. 20, at 8 o'clock in the Florida Power Customers Lounge.

Election of officers for the coming year will take place during the business meeting and all members are urged to attend this important meeting. Plans for the booth at the Halloween Carnival will also be completed.

CDA Plans Clinic To Review Past Five Years

Mark Wheeler, Community Improvement Director for the Florida Power Corporation, met with the Board of Directors of the Community Development Association on Wednesday night, Oct. 8, in the Customers Lounge of the Florida Power Office for a special meeting.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the prospects of having a review of the accomplishments of our community and a preview of further projects. The first planning clinic was held in December 1953-five years ago—and it is felt that December 1958 would be an excellent time to hold another clinic to evaluate present accomplishments and to list the most pressing future need of Avon Park.

Mr. Wheeler will direct the three day clinic which will consist of meetings with all groups during the day and in the evening. All civic groups are asked to make plans to send their representatives to the pre-planning meetings in November. Exact times and dates will be announced at a later date.

All residents are encouraged to plan to attend the clinic and offer their suggestions for a better Avon Park as well as evaluating the efforts of the past five years. The Clinic will be a review and preview of the community efforts in Avon Park.

Hostesses for the evening will be Gladys Smith, Patti Hill, Chloe Lookhoff, and Louise Fields.

Plans not translated into deeds are just plans.

The Bullpups threatened late in the final period when Arnold Smith of Frostproof intercepted an Avon Park pass on the mid field strife. Smith returned the interception to the Avon Park 10 yard line before being brought down from behind by Kenneth Fentress. On the next play Doyle Hadden sliced inside the 5 yard line. A tough Avon Park line caused a costly fumble in the Frostproof backfield and killed the Bullpup threat to score.

Final score Avon Park 20 Frostproof 0.

Organization Formed To Build Youth Center In Downtown Area Of City

The temporary organization formed for the purpose of exploring the possibilities of building a Youth Center in the Downtown Area of the City of Avon Park took a long step, last Wednesday night, toward final permanent organization.

The initial name "Donaldson Park Development Association" was changed to "Youth Center Development Association"; a motion was approved to raise money for the project by public contribution; and a committee was appointed to draw up a Charter and By-Laws for approval by the organization.

Prior to the motions a general discussion of many phases of the project was held with the President, Mrs. John Townsend, serving as moderator.

Jim Helm had previously been appointed to study the utility tax method of raising money for the project. He made a report in exhaustive detail outlining the pros and cons of the utility tax method and gave facts and figures indicating that many hours of work had gone in the study. Mrs. Townsend presented the advantages of raising the money by solicitations and private projects.

After lengthy discussion of these two reports Mrs. James Anderson offered a motion which received a second from Mrs. Andrew Miracle. The motion: That the Association build a Youth Center in Avon Park to be used at the discretion of the Youth Association by other civic groups, funds for

Chamber Issues Clever Pictorial Letter On City

A very clever pictorial letter describing Avon Park has been published by the Chamber of Commerce for residents and visitors to mail to their friends in the North.

The new letters have met with approval from those who have visited the Chamber this past week. If you would like to mail one North stop in at the Chamber office.

The letters done in blue and green are skillfully decorated with miniature sketches of palm trees, shuffleboard players, skiers, swimmers and of course it wouldn't be complete without a picture of a fish.

The high spots of Avon Park are covered in the letters, and mention is made of the beautiful mile long Mall with more than a thousand varieties of flowering trees and shrubs planted down the center.

The Chamber has written the letter in a very friendly manner and has included news of the Winter Guest Club, the population and growth of the community, the weather, water-sports, the many lakes, fishing and of course our sun-tanned beauties.

The picture letters are a very nice form of advertising Avon Park and are an invitation to those who receive them.

Hula Hoop Contest At Carnival

For the first time in the history of Avon Park there will be a Hula Hoop Contest to determine the city champion of this wonderous art!

For ten cents any pupil in the schools of Avon Park, or any child too young to attend school who lives in Avon Park, may enter the contest and have their chance to win a gold trophy or free ticket to the Hilans Theater. Two trophies and a number of passes will be given to the lucky winners.

So boys and girls bring your own hola hoops and meet on the tennis courts in Donaldsen Park after the prizes have been awarded for the Halloween Parade. Be prepared to keep the hoop at any position of your body and start your hoop with one try. Elementary and Junior and Senior High will be divided into groups with a trophy for each group.

The Avon Park Junior Woman's Club will sponsor the Hula Hoop Contest as part of the fun at their Annual Halloween Carnival on Saturday, Oct. 25, in Donaldson Park.

Their TRICK is to TREAT

Celebrate Halloween Saturday With Trick Or Treat For UNICEF

All children in Avon Park are urged to celebrate Halloween this year with a Trick or Treat for UNICEF. Collect coins for the United Nations Children's Fund while you are having your Talloween fun. Some of the churches in the city are having parties for the children following the Halloween Carnival. Any other group wishing to participate may obtain the necessary material and information from the Chamber of Commerce office, Saturday night, which is to be headquarters for the UNICEF drive.

Children who are going out for the UNICEF Trick or Treat will have official badges and arm bands and they will leave a banner on the door of every home they visit where they receive a contribution, which identifies the house so no other team will visit the same place. This should eliminate some of the nuisances endured by residents in the past years of having dozens of calls in one evening. Residents are urged to put their coins in the containers

Droit Must Pay Office Expense From His Salary

In the salary increases recently granted by the Board of County Commissioners the $2400 boost, from $4800 to $7200, given to Registration Supervisor Roland X. Droit is not for Droit alone. From the $7200 Droit must pay his salary and the salaries of his assistants and the expense of running his office.

The examination of Droit's office for the 1956-57 period which was recently completed by A. H. Cash, resident state auditor, shows that the net compensation of the office in 1956 was $2898 and was $3692 last year, an average of $3295 each year.

Corrected figures on the pay increases given Welfare Director Mrs. Anna Dee Church and Veterans Service Office Harvey Roberts, has also been furnished. The correct increase in Mrs. Church's salary is from $3000 to $3300 and Robert's was upped from $3300 to $3600.

Once again the ghosts and goblins are about to come out of hiding to invade the streets of Avon Park. At five o'clock Saturday afternoon, October 25, the annual Halloween Parade sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club, will get underway at the Post Office and will march down Main Street to Butler and then return to Donaldson Park.

The Junior Woman's Club urges all the pre-school and school children to enter the parade. A number of merchants have donated favors which will be presented to every child in the parade.

The parade line up will begin at 4:30 on North Verona Avenue and the parade will begin at five sharp.

Leading the parade will be the Color Guard, next will come the Fire Truck and then the strutting Avon Park Marjorettes, lead by Sammie Wright, and the Red Devil Band.

Mayor E. A. DeLaney will follow in a new car and then all Boy, Girls, Brownie and Cub Scouts will be in the parade. Many members of the Old Settlers Club will march in the

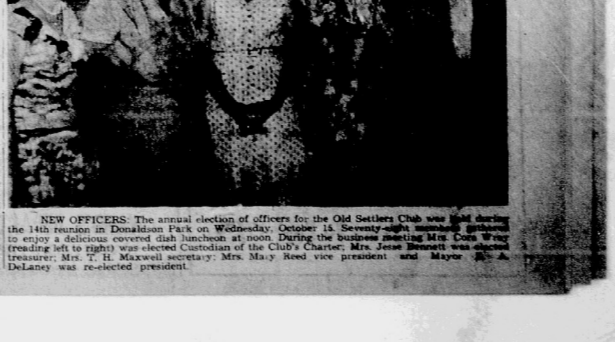
Visit The YCDA Country Store At The Carnival

An old-fashioned Country Store will be adder to the Junior Women's Club Halloween Carnival this year. The Club has given permission for the newly formed Youth Center Development Association to have the store to raise funds for the building of a Youth Center in Avon Park.

Home-made aprons, fancy handkerchiefs, home canned goods, gifts of all kinds, plus a Big White Elephant sale and a rummage sale will be conducted after the big parade.

Profits from the baseball game and the shooting gallery as well as all profits from the Country Store will go into the fund for the Youth Center, so make sure you visit these as well as all other booths at the Carnival this year.

Moderate Increase In Assessed Values Appear On 1958 Tax Roll



Highlands Conuty Tax Assessor P. G. Gearing in a notice to county property owners stated that he honestly tried to use a "horse sense" approach and made what he considered a very moderate increase in the assessed values on the 1958 tax roll.

In a notice being mailed to all taxpayers Gearing stated, "It is my responsibility to assess property at its full cash value as required by Florida law. In spite of a state-wide clamor to raise property assessments as much as 100 per cent and more, I honestly tried to use a "horse sense" approach to this all important matter, and made what I consider a very moderate increase in the assessed values on the 1958 tax roll."

Gearing also stated that the School Board and the County Commissioners worked very hard on their budgets and they wisely held the line on the millage. In fact, the millage increase was only one mill, and yet the county officials are providing additional services for the fast growing county.

The 1958 Tax Roll reached a new high of $1,072,346.10 an increase of $169,519 over last year. Gearing's tax roll was accepted by the Board of County Commissioners during the regular meeting Tuesday morning.

The 1958 non-exempt tax rates by districts: Avon Park and Sebring 39.5 mills; DeSoto City and Spring Valley 37.5 mills; Lake Placid 39.25 mills; Hicoria, Venus, Lorida and Brighton 38.25 mills.

NEW OFFICERS: The annual election of officers for the Old Settlers Club was held during the 14th reunion in Donaldson Park on Wednesday, October 15. Seventy-eight members gathered to enjoy a delicious covered dish luncheon at noon. During the business meeting Mrs. Cora Wray (reading left to right) was elected Custodian of the Club's Charter; Mrs. Jesse Bennett was elected treasurer; Mrs. T. H. Maxwell secretary; Mrs. Mary Reed vice president and Mayor E. A. DeLaney was re-elected president.

Tallahassee.—For years there has been yapping about the "local bill evil" in the State Legislature—most of it overrated.

The very procedure used in passing a local bill in the State Legislature makes it a prime target for a story of intrigue—but despite the apparently casual manner in which the local legislation is passed, it ain't half the evil it has been cracked up to be.

As in all things political, there is one of the best checks in the world against abuse of the local bill—the people. They can boot a legislator out of office just as fast for a wrong vote on a local bill as they can for his vote on some of the more "statesman-like" measures.

If there is a "local bill evil" it is evil in direct proportion to how well the public is informed. If local bills are handled above the table and with full opportunity to discuss the measures by the people, there is no evil.

If people aren't kept informed, it is a tremendous "evil".

In recent years, it has become customary for most legislators—especially in the larger counties—to hold public hearings well in advance of the legislative session to discuss proposed local legislation.

If folks don't like the proposals, they can say so.

However, there are still some legislators who play it pretty close to the vest on these local matters and wait to get to Tallahassee—far from the local voices before making any move on local bills.

This needs to be corrected . . . and local folks should demand to know what the score is on local legislation. It also should be set up so legislators don't have to spend the entire 60 days arguing about local bills.

For some legislators, handling local bills is almost a full time job during the 60-day biennial session. They have little or no time to get acquainted with the complex statewide measures on which they must vote.

One of the most sensible suggestions to come along the pike in many years was advanced the other day by Rep. John E. Mathews, Jr. of Duval County.

Mathews, who was by far the most outstanding freshman member of the House of Representatives last year, has suggested that the Duval County delegation announce locally before the start of the 1959 session what they expect to do on proposed local legislation.

If carried out, the suggestion would be revolutionary.

It would mean that the legislators, before they left home, would let the people know what they are going to do on local legislation . . . The decision would be made on the local grounds, and would avoid the implication that once they got off to Tallahassee they were doing something sneaky.

If at all possible, and in most cases it would be, the procedure should be carried one step further . . . the actual bill should be drafted.

There, of course, would be instances where a decision could not be made before the session, but these would be few and far between.

It's an idea that other legislative delegations ought to kick around, and one that local citizens should insist upon. Then it would give them a chance to be on an equal footing with everyone else. As it is now, the folks who can afford to travel have to spend the entire 60 legislators' doorsteps have an advantage over the ordinary citizen who has no paid lobbyist.

This is how Mathews explains the idea:

"In the past sessions of the Legislature, the Duval delegation has been holding public hearings with reference to local legislation, but then waiting until the legislative session had actually started before making decisions with references to matters presented at public hearings".

"During the last session of the Legislature, the Duval delegation devoted several hours nearly every day in the early morning in the consideration of purely local matters.

"Usually at each of our early morning meetings there was a delegation of citizens from Duval County waiting to be heard either to espouse or oppose some particular local bill which had been presented to us at the public hearings several months before the legislature started."

Mathews said he thinks, "It would be more sensible" and save time for the delegation, and also save time and expense of interested citizens, if the delegation could get together after public hearings, but before the legislature meets and announce publically their decision on local bills.

"Of course," Mathews says, "There could well be certain local bills about which we may not have made up our minds, and our decision on those would be postponed, but for the majority of them, I see nothing to be gained by waiting until the Legislature convenes to make up our minds, or if our minds are made up, by waiting to announce our decision to the public."

Mathews is quick to point out that he would continue to be happy to talk to local delegations when they come to Tallahassee, but adds, "I am simply trying to save the time and expense of those who make that long trip to the Capitol with reference to bills which should have already been decided."

CHRIST AND OUR TIMES

By THE REV. PETER F. WATTERSON

Where are you Going?

To know God is as much a duty as to love and serve Him . . . and to grow in knowledge as obligatory as to grow in love. The difficulty does not excuse, especially now that our Lord has come. We are made in His image; consequently we can argue from what we find ourselves to be as to what He is. Our chief tendency is to self-sufficiency and independence; therefore these attributes must be altogether and supremely His. Our love for others prompts to service and sacrifice. That, therefore, should mark our love for Him.

Amongst the "other things" created by God to help us save our souls are the circumstances of our life, . . . birth, position, sex, and so forth. . . some changeable, others not. As regards the former, we cannot argue that because God has arranged them, therefore we should not desire to change them. For one thing, they may be meant to help us by "withdrawal"; and, in any case, there is a lawful ambition and a proper use of talents which in exercise might well produce change. All that is required is that we should have God's service in view always.

No way more surely and safely and speedily brings about detachment from the means than attachment to the end: in other words, the more purely we love God, the keener we shall be to see and adopt what helps us to love Him better, and to drop what hinders. All true love means giving up what displeases the beloved.

There is no final profit in doing one's own will: it is like spending one's capital. . . a waste here, and an absolute loss hereafter. Wisdom therefore urges the search for, and the performance of, God's will as our one sane course during life.

Detachment means coming within the orbit of Christ's love and therefore feeling the attractions of earthly goods much less difficult to overcome. It is the natural attitude of all who pursue some end very intensely and consequently "scorn delights and live laborious days." It is commonsense once more applied to the business of salvation.

Since order is the reduction of many things to one it follows that the essence of ordering one's life is the establishing of one principle to which its multifold activities can be referred, one ideal which shall govern its whole development. This principle and ideal of its own nature must be such as will suit all men, however diversely situated; otherwise they will not be adopted for human nature as a whole.

As God's will even in "lesser" things is infinitely perfect in object and motive, so all trangression of it or neglect of it is in a sense an infinite evil. Perfection consists in doing God's will for one's best ability and for God's love; the opposite to perfection is violating God's will. And God's will in its general aspect. . . to do right conscience. . . should be known by every rational being.

Capitol Capsule . . .

Tallahassee.—As a plan for a streamlined Department of Agriculture goes into the general discussion stage a couple of key points seem to be the most obvious trouble spots—Milk Commission and the proposed Advisory Council.

The plan has been given general endorsement by those involved, but, as in any other plan, there are some points that may need some changes.

Members of the agricultural services committee, which drew up the plan readily admit that some polishing up will be needed.

Basically, the plan is simple. It eliminates four boards now appointed by the governor—Milk Commission; Plant Board (same membership as the Board of Control which would continue overseeing the university system); Livestock Board, and Agricultural Marketing Board.

These four boards and 13 present divisions now under the Commissioner of Agriculture are consolidated into eight divisions.

All sanitary inspection functions go to the Board of Health.

Administration of the whole set up is broken down into five different regions—as much as possible by the type of agriculture. In other words, areas in south Florida where fresh vegetables are the most important crop, are in one region; most of the citrus area is in another, and so forth.

A key provision in the new draft—and one that will probably get the closest scrutiny is a proposed Agricultural Advisory Council.

This council would be made up of 16 members.

Five would be appointed—one from each of the five regions—by the Commissioner of Agriculture . . . It is anticipated that these men would reflect the general public's attitudes.

The other 11 would be picked by the Commissioner—on the recommendation of the various agricultural interests. Those interests would be general agriculture; citrus; vegetable; cattle; swine; dairy; forestry; fertilizer, pesticide, feed, and seed; poultry; petroleum, and ornamental plants.

Each organization could submit three nominations.

The eight general divisions would be administration; plant industry; animal industry; inspection; chemistry; marketing; standards; and citrus and vegetable inspection.

The biggest single problem still facing the committee is definitely nailing down the function of the milk price control section.

Milk inspections would all go to the board of health, but the regulatory body for milk would be shifted from the present milk commission to a section under the marketing division.

It is anticipated by the committee that a basic change in the attitude toward milk regulations would be necessary to make this workable.

As viewed, the legislature would provide laws to govern the milk industry similar to those in South Florida, which is regulated by federal milk orders.

The marketing director would regulate the milk industry under the provisions of the laws provided by the legislature.

There is a possibility that the public's voice—the milk buying public's voice—might be downgraded under such a set up, but the committee feels that a satisfactory set up can be established.

The other point of debate will possibly come on the appointment of the agricultural advisory council. First, 16 members is a pretty big number, and all members are appointed by the commissioner.

The committee said it dealt at length with the council, trying to establish it as a group would be responsive to both the public needs and the needs of the industry.

This group would have the "veto" power on appointments to the all-important directors posts and on technical rules and regulations established by the agriculture group.

To avoid any personality clashes, the new system would not go into effect until early in 1961 after Nathan Mayo has left office. This would give the new commissioner a chance to be on the grounds during the period of change.

It also would provide time to make reajustments.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By James E. Hess

Quite some time ago this writer was asked "In your opinion, what one phase of the rehabilitation program at Avon Park Prison does the most good?"

The question was a real puzzler and required no little thought. The reason being, that all phases are important and it is tough to try and decide which particular element is of most value. You can be pretty sure that no two inmates would answer in the same way. Good food might be the most important to one, while recreational activities might be number one to another. Both are extremely effective in obtaining a desired end result. Perhaps, the business of minimum "minimum security" would be the answer . . . no guns, locks or bars to constantly remind a guy that he's "in the joint."

My method of getting around the question at the time was relatively simple. I merely answer that in my opinion all phases were of equal importance and that neglecting any one particular phase would hurt the whole program, which is quite true. But the problem remained with me. What was the most effective element employed? What feature of the program brought about the wanted result of putting a man back on the so-called right path?

The best way to answer the poser would be discuss briefly a case that I'm quite familiar with . . . my own. For all practical purposes, my identity is nailed down by the number given when first incarcerated. Officially, I am known as No. 58842. The name is a secondary means of identification. My record shows that I am a twenty-nine year old white male, a first time offender (and last, I might add); I am married and the father of three children. The jacket goes on to point out my educational background, religious preferences, and gives a complete physical description of my body including a set of finger prints. In all probability, I am what most people would term as an average sort of a guy. What the personnel jacket fails to reveal is . . . me. It doesn't tell of the fierce desire I have to rejoin my family and make a wholesome and happy life for my wife, kids and myself. The statistics given in my jacket might be what you could call "average", but I know I'm not the least bit average, rather, I am quite unique . . . there is only one of me. Every man in APP shares this trait, in that they too are unique . . . we are all individuals.

So that's my answer to the original question "What one phase of the rehabilitation program does the most good?" At Avon Park Prison every man is treated as an individual. We are not just "one" of the mob." Every problem is handled individually. Institutional policy is geared to individual treatment. Any action that emphasizes individualism is encouraged. Every man bears his name sewn over his shirt pocket so that when a correctional officer or another inmate doesn't know him a quick look will result in calling by name rather than "Hey you!" Every man in the institution is periodically interviewed by the classification officer to determine how he's getting along. Any personal problems are quickly handled through requesting an interview with the person best qualified to take care of it, be it the Superintendent, Chaplain or Classification Officer. Every man is interviewed by the classification committee upon arrival at APP to decide where the man would be most suitable employed in relation to his abilities and desires.

Perhaps, the population doesn't give this business of individual treatment much thought, because you can't taste it like the food or you can't watch it like a baseball game, but curtail that treatment and see the reaction.

In last week's article this writer mentioned the situation confronting Avon Park Prison if the Government doesn't renew its lease. The suggestion was made that all interested persons write to Congressman James A. Haley and Senator Spessard Holland stating your wishes in the matter. It is felt that this suggestion bears repeating . . . PLEASE WRITE. Don't allow the first successful adventure in Florida Penology go by the board.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Training Is Not The End:

The end of civil defense education is action not meditation. We build a good training program so that we may have trained persons to use; therefore, work of our advisory council and officials does not end with the training. A rough initial plan may be made before we establish a training program but the experiences and new learnings within the training will be fed back into the planning. The program must be a continuing program. This is as true for the individual as for the community and its groups. Individuals should be encouraged to train in more than one activity. Many of the activities form logical sequences such as monitoring, meter-reading, instrument-maintenance, and repair. But the sequences might be diversified by the various needs of individuals, monitoring, first-aid, etc. Not all of us will wish to undertake more than one type of training, but we must at least refresh our knowledge from time to time. So the program needs periodic test exercises of both a serious and an entertaining nature.

The ultimate test of a good community program is the demonstrable capacity for sustained intelligent action by the community in a disaster. A community will pass this test only if it develops the capacity to sustain its program before or between disasters. In the lull between the Battle of Britain and the appearance of buzz-bombs, the London City Council feared that its citizens were becoming complacent. The check rooms and lost property offices of its large suburban railway stations were filled with unclaimed gas masks which citizens were supposed always to carry. If this can happen in a war-battered city where the evidence of man-made disaster is everywhere, the importance of testing during peace-time needs no justification.

It is a mistake to have a total test too frequently. It is possible to test the smooth operation of our essential machinery without involving the public each time. It is also desirable to test each part of the machinery from time to time. Tests should sometimes be run in co-operation with neighboring communities. It is a good idea occasionally to have a total test in our community at the same time that the country is having a nation-wide alert.

But when we are merely testing our machinery, the public should at least know. A certain large city decided to test the emergency operation of its fire services. The alert was sounded and all fire engines at once drove to the edges of the city to pump from which they would converge after the imaginary bomb had fallen. However, so many people followed the fire engines to the supposed fires that several engines were unable to get back to town on schedule.

If we are not to involve the general public in every practical test of the machinery, we should use other forms of testing to be sure that all know what to do. These tests can be used at any time with quite small groups and most of them can be entertaining. We need to apply our social imagination to the task, for nothing can destory interest more rapidly than the fear of an unending sequence of high school test papers. Tests need not be dull, need not be labeled "test" at all. Some of the devices that a really imagination can use for testing purposes are discussed at the end of Chapter six.

Vital Statistics Records Most Important Of All

Vital Statistics records are among the most important of all documents in our time. They are a true record of your life from the time of birth until the time of death.

Births and deaths were recorded in the family Bible or almanac until the middle of the last century; however these records were sometimes destroyed or lost and the person had no way of proving these facts. The first public record pertaining to Vital Statistics in Florida was in 1865 and beginning about 1917 the State made it mandatory for Doctors and mid-wives to record deaths and births with a central agency.

It is important to furnish all the pertinent facts about death or birth and to be sure the information is accurate before the certificate is recorded so that it may be used to prove age and place and date of birth or death at any time in the future. This is your best source of information for insurance claims, social security, retirement benefits and for job applications, passports, etc.

Each person should have a certified copy of his birth certificate kept in a safe place where it will be easily accessible at any time. Anyone wishing to obtain a copy of his birth certificate, or of a death certificate, may do so by writing the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State in which the birth or death occurred.

Easiest way to crush your sales laurels is to lean on them hard.

Mother Of Mrs. O. B. Cantrell Dies In Tampa

Mrs. Susie L. Smith, 82, mother of Mrs. O. B. Cantrell of Avon Park, passed away Sunday morning, October 5, at the home of one of her daughters in Tampa.

Mrs. Smith, a native of Attapulgus, Ga., moved to Orlando when only a small child, and lived there until her marriage after which she moved to Quincy and lived there until the death of her husband, J. E. Smith. She made her home here in Avon Park with Mrs. Cantrell for nearly ten years. Mrs. Smith is a member of the First Methodist Church of Avon Park.

She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Cantrell of Avon Park, Mrs. Fant Johns of Ellenton, Fla., and Mrs. Ralph M. Tutt of Tampa; one son, E. Elton Smith of Lake Wales; one brother, L. C. Cox of Orlando; five grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Funeral services were held in Attapulgus, Ga., her home town, Tuesday morning, October 7, from the Methodist Church with interment in the Attapulgus Cemetery.

Pity the poor man who strives away while he's here to make enough money so his family can loaf and be no account when he's gone.

In a stepped up campaign to combat shoplifters and bad checks artists, the Florida State Retailers Association has instituted a statewide educational program conducted by its store protection council.

CUTLERY CARE

Experts say that efficient use of cutlery depends largely on the care you take of it. Most good knives today are made of strong stainless steel, but a little pampering takes no more time and will go a long way in helping you get maximum satisfaction.

1. When doing ordinary kitchen slicing, use a wooden cutting board. This helps to protect the knife blade and makes the whole operation neater, too.

2. Keep blades sharp. Stainless edges can be renewed very easily by honing them on fine emery. Equally successful is an electric sharpener. But don't force the knife or press down hard. Simply draw it through gently, from back to tip.

3. Wash knives individually instead of including them in the regular dishpan load. Blades can be damaged by knocking against other objects. Stainless blades have easy cleanability built in to start with, so a quick wipe with a damp and then a dry towel is usually all they need. If stubborn spots do appear, they are easily removed with a mild household abrasive.

4. Proper storage is very important for fine cutlery. Keep knives separate from each other or from other utensils when they're not in use. They can be wrapped in a soft cloth, or stored in one of the special racks for knives which fit neatly inside drawers or attach to wall areas. One of the newest ideas is the Lazy Susan counter design shown above which conveniently presents the right knife with a spin of the turntable.

Many New Features Add To The Quality Design Of The 1959 Ford

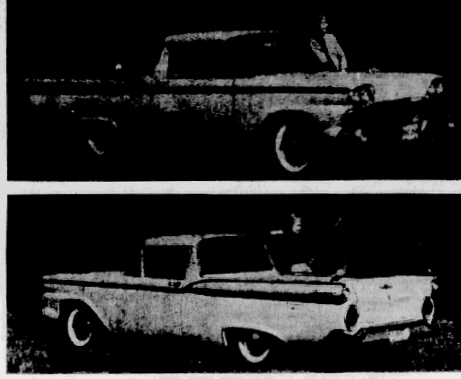
"Quality design," the term engineers applied to Ford's emphasis on quality in the basic design of the car, began when development of the 1959 model was still in the drawing board stage.

Rigid quality standards and the latest manufacturing techniques went into this quality-designed and quality-produced 1959 Ford. The result is an automobile designed and built to reflect sound craftsmanship throughout.

To begin with, Ford engineers developed many new features that add to the quality of the 1959 Ford. For example, they simplified some components such as the new Fordomatic transmission. With 105 fewer parts, this transmission will give better service and require fewer repairs.

They designed a new, extended-life muffler that will last twice as long as the conventional type. The aluminized muffler, incorporating heavier steel, asbestos wrapping, and aluminum-dipped shells to reduce corrosion, is standard on all models.

Chemists found ways to improve the traditionally superior Ford finish with a new Diamond Lustre enamel that requires no waxing for the life-time of the car. The paint also resists dulling and scratching, and is 50 per cent more chip resistant than in the past.



Body engineers improved the sound-deadening material — and used more of it — to reduce the noise level. Annoying squeaks and rattles of conventional designs were studied, analyzed and were designed out of the car from the very beginning.

Much of the credit for the "quality-built" 1959 Ford goes to Ford's Quality Control Center, a unique pilot model plant in Allen Park, Mich. There Ford studied and perfected the 1959 assembly techniques months before production began in the nation-wide assembly plant system.

Assembly operations at the Quality Control Center were conducted in much the same way as they later would be performed in the regular Ford plants, but on a smaller scale, since the pilot model plant is less than one-tenth the size of the average assembly plant.

Each part was checked as it arrived at the plant to see that it met the engineering specifications and assembly requirements. Those parts which deviated from the rigid Ford standards were returned and corrections were made before parts ever were produced in volume for use in the regular 1959 models.

Ford's quality audit program, introduced last year, is being continually improved in each of the Ford assembly plants. Special factory audit teams check Ford vehicles as they are completed, inspecting visually or operationally more than 1,500 separate items on each unit. The audit supplements the numerous and thorough inspections the car receives throughout the assembly operation.

The Ford Custom Ranchero, first prestige pickup of its kind in the industry, is completely restyled for 1959. The Custom Ranchero has the same clean, tasteful styling of the 1959 Ford station wagons and a new, longer 118-inch wheelbase. The nominal body length of seven feet means a bigger loadspace for cargo of all sorts. The Ranchero has the same luxurious interior as the 1959 Ford Country Sedan.

Ford Offers 150 Models In Heavy Truck Lineup

Ford's heavy and extra heavy trucks in 1959 offer nearly 150 conventional, tandem and tilt cab models designed to meet any heavy duty hauling requirement.

Heading the lineup of extra heavies are seven new tilt cab tandem models available on special order in Gross Vehicle Weights from 37,000 to 51,000 pounds, with GCW ratings up to 73,000 pounds. With these new Ford trucks, operators get the servicing and handling ease of Ford's tilt cab design plus tandem axle haul-ability.

The complete engine accessibility of the Ford tilt cab design means extra savings through reduced maintenance costs and less down-time. Major service operations, such as engine replacement, can be done in-al-most half the time required for other type cab forward models. Eight rear tires on the tilt cab tandems provide more flotation, which keeps trucks from bogging down in deep mud or sand. Walking action of the tandem suspension levels bumps by 50 per cent.

Ford offers six V-8's, including three Super Duty engines with up to 534 cubic inch displacement, for its heavy and extra heavy trucks. To get the most performance and economy from these modern short stroke engines, there are new axle ratios and a wide range of power train options to permit each truck to be tailored to operational requirements.

Ford's Super Duty V-8 engines for the extra heavy trucks include the 226 horsepower, 401 cubic inch; the 260 horsepower, 477 cubic inch, and the 277 horsepower, 534 cubic inch. These Super Duty V-8's provide the best horsepower-to-weight ratios obtainable in any comparable all-truck engines.

In-block wedge-type, fully machined combustion chambers give controlled compression and balanced power from each cylinder. The intake manifold, water-jacketed for stabilized temperatures, aids high horsepower and torque output and improves engine economy.

Other features of the Super Duty engines include Turbulance-Top pistons for maximum power, alternately spaced sodium-cooled exhaust valves, forged steel crankshaft which equalizes bearing loads for greater durability, internally mounted oil cooler and extra large Full-Flow oil filter with a two-quart capacity for double filtering area.

Power plants for the Ford heavy trucks in the "700," "750" and "800" series include the 187 horsepower, 292 cu. in. heavy duty V-8; the 196 h.p., 302 cu. in. V-8, and the 212 h.p., 332 cu. in. V-8.

For positive fuel feed to the Super Duty engines, the electric fuel pump is located in the fuel tank. This large capacity, submerged-type pump delivers only liquid fuel — no vapor — under pressure to the carburetor, independent of engine rpm's.

The new Ford trucks offer "driver-tired" cab comfort and convenience, including such features as full-wrap windshields, improved ventilation, nylon reinforced seat upholstery, formed wire springs to minimize seat sagging, dome light, safety steering wheel and double grip door locks. The custom cab offers additional values in two-tone instrument panel face, arm rest on the left door and foam rubber padding in seat cushion and back.

New Ford Trucks Offer Greater Fuel Economy

"Ford's 1959 truck line introduces greater fuel economy, new advancements, in economical maintenance and traditional rugged dependability that means cost savings to truckers in all lines of business," Wilbur Chase, Jr., Ford Division truck marketing manager, said today.

Only Ford offers the greater economy and durability of short stroke design in every engine. Mr. Chase added. Rigid "deep-block" construction provides greater strength for longer engine life.

Ford's 139 horsepower six-cylinder engine, which Mr. Chase said is the most modern "six" in the industry, has improved fuel economy capabilities in the high speed or increased load range.

The 223 cubic inch "six" gives better fuel metering, and the carburetor and spark control valve have been designed for greater fuel economy and better performance. For greater durability, this engine has such heavy duty features as free-turn valves, chrome plated top piston rings and aluminum alloy pistons with integral steel struts.

Operation of the V-8's has been improved with a new series of carburetors, new tappets of special heat-treated iron, new exhaust manifold gasket, a new air cleaner element, new fuel pump filter, new oil pan baffle for better lubrication and longer engine life, and modified combustion chambers for greater fuel economy.

Come out and help support the Red Devils.

Red Devils Rout Eagles By Score Of 48-13 Friday

The Red Devils of Avon Park clobbered the Eagles of Naples last Friday night in Naples giving the Devils their third win of the 1958 season. It was Naples fourth straight defeat and left them winless.

Eight Avon Park players joined in the scoring spree — Sethe McCormick scored three times on running plays; Leroy Starling scored twice on running plays, and Tommy Doubarly and Danny Vaughn scored once each on the ground. Reggie Butler connected with Leroy Farless and Warren Alwood for two extra points and Kenny Long ran the other.

The first Red Devil score came when Leroy Starling carried over from the 2 yard line climaxing a 45 yard drive in eight plays. He also added the extra point.

Early in the second quarter the Devils climaxed another 45 yard drive with Sethe McCormick dashing the last 14 yards into pay dirt. The try for the extra point was no good leaving the Devils with a 13 point lead.

Late in the second period Tommy Doubarly took a Naples punt on his own 20 and returned to the Avon Park 40 yard line. On the next play Douberly zig-zagged down to the Naples 20 yard line. Two plays later Sethe McCormick carried over from the 8 for his second T.D. of the night. A pass from Butler to Farless was good for the extra point.

A pass interception by Gail Hovey at mid field ended the first half. Avon Park led Naples 20-0.

With only three minutes gone in the third period, Tommy Doubarly pushed over from the 5 yard line for the Devils fourth score of the night. Alwood added the extra point making the score 27-0.

Leading 27-0, late in the third quarter the Red Devils took over on the Naples 41 yard line and five plays later Danny Vaughan scored from the 15 yard line. Kenny Long added the try for the point and the Devils led 34-0.

With the last period only one minute old, Captain Buddy Askew of Naples connected with teammate and end Jerry Fingers on a touchdown pass that traveled 20 yards in the air and 45 yards on the ground. The extra point was no good and Naples trailed 34-6.

The first play after the kick off Tommy Douberly on a beautiful run put the ball on the Naples 30 yard line before being brought down. From the 30 Sethe McCormick scored on a run equivalent to that of Douberly's.

With only four minutes left in the game and two touchdowns to go, Wayne Kempton intercepted a pass on the Naples 40 yard line and was downed immediately. An Avon Park fumble was picked up by Jerry Fingers on his own 40 and he traveled 60 yards for the Eagles second score. The try for the point was good and Naples had 13 and Avon Park 41.

Leroy Starling wound up the scoring on a 32 yard gallop that took him into the golden land that the Devils saw 7 times. Starling again added the point after the T.D. making the final score Devils 48 - Eagles 13.

Tommy Douberly led the attack with 139 yards followed closely by Leroy Starling with 121 and Seth McCormick with 110. Gail Hovey picked up 30 yards, Danny Vaughan 25 yards and Wayne Kempton 17 yards to round up the rushing yardage for the Red Devils.

Correction

In the story of the winners of the Cherry Pie Contest in the Avon Park Sun last week it stated that the contestants won in order that they were printed. It should have read: Pat Tondee Winner; Linda Griffin second places; Gloria Seaborn third, and other contestants were Lani Fries, Anna Zeigler, Paulette Gilbreath, Alice Hollingsworth, Linda Anderson, Anita Luscomb and Linda McClure.

Accidents are the leading cause of death to persons 1-36 years of age, according to the National Safety Council.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT, this 7½ pound blue-cat was caught on an artificial lure by Dale Collins at the Avon Park State Prison during a recreational fishing trip. Collins, an old hand at fishing and lure making recently caught a four pound channel cat on a lure on which he has a patent pending. Many fishermen will vouch for the fact that catfish do hit artificial lures and Collins has responsible witnesses to his feat. His lures are made in the Institution Hobby Shop for sale to visitors. He makes several types of bait-casting and spinning lures. His favorite being the surface bait, an imitation frog with self-kicking rubber legs which he calls the "Shayde Dayde", nickname of his daughter, Sharon. He hopes to be able to put this lure on the market when and if he is able to get it into mass production. It is part of his plan for the future. Collins and most of the inmates of the local institution feel that to be able to fish at times is one of the greatest morale builders ever introduced here or elsewhere, as it allows a man to commune with his soul and nature, and agrees wholeheartedly with Mohammed, that "Allah does not deduct from the alloted time of man, those hours spent in fishing". The big cat was brought into town by W. G. Robinson who is with the construction department at the Institution.

Make Sure You Are Protected Against Tetanus

Do you work in the yard, around the house, work with tools or other equipment capable of causing a scratch or wound? When you get such a scratch, what do you do to treat it? Do you wash it with soap and water and put an antiseptic on it? Then do you think everything's O.K.? Have you thought about tetanus, and if you've thought about it, are you protected? In the State of Florida last year there were 64 cases of tetanus. You may say that's not many in comparison to the hundreds of cases of measles, mumps, chickenpox and others. Well, you are right but here is the clincher. Of these 64 cases of tetanus, 39 died. This is a death rate of 60%. In this day of modern medicine, this is an extremely high death rate and the pity of it all is that it is entirely avoidable. There is a tetanus toxoid shot available which can protect everyone and it is as near as your local physician's office or your County Health Department. Will you be a statistic in the near future? You don't have to be if you get your protection now. See your local physician and tell him Doc Hill sent you.

Charter Member Of Methodist Church Honored

The adult department of the Methodist Sunday School had a short special service Sunday morning, October 19 honoring the only living charter member of the Church, Mrs. Charles Harris, affectionately known to her friends as "Aunt Ida". Mrs. Harris and her late husband were both among the little band of devout people responsible for starting the First Methodist Church of Avon Park in 1914.

Mrs. Harris was the first president of the Women's Missionary Society, the forerunner of today's Women's Society of Christian Service. She was the Church's first pianist(they had no organ in those days.) And she was the first teacher of the Friendship Bible Class, of which she is still a member. She was the youngest in the class at that time and was very much frightened of her undertaking.

Mrs. Harris admits that she has often been called upon, in her Church life, to do things of which she thought she was incapable. But, as so often happens, it seemed there was no one else to do them. So she accepted the responsibilities, asked divine help for performing her duties, and always received it. She feels she has been richly blessed and rewarded for what she has done.

At the service Sunday morning, Mrs. T. Hayes Maxwell introduced Mrs. Harris, telling of a few of "Aunt Ida's" accomplishments, and Mr. Reason Shivers escorted her to the altar and presented her with a corsage, which Mrs. Maxwell pinned on for her.

The tribute was a complete surprise to Mrs. Harris and she was deeply affected; but she graciously managed to say a few beautiful words of thanks to all.

Garden Club News

Founders Circle of the Avon Park Federated Garden Clubs met at the home of Mrs. B. C. Ostling on Lake Lotela on Thursday, Oct. 9, at 2:30 with Mrs. Gen Hurd serving as cohostess.

Mrs. Robert Mosier, Recreational Therapist at the Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center, spoke to the group. Plans were made by the circle to supply greenery and materials to the Center so that the patients might make wreaths for Christmas decorating at the Center.

Plans for the Plant Mart on November 12 were discussed. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses.

Hibiscus Circle of the Federated Garden Club held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Gene Barker on Walnut Street on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 9, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. George Kelsey served as co-hostess and sixteen members and one visitor were present at the meeting.

Mrs. Charles Kempton, vice president, presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. L. D. McGibbeny, president. Programs of the 1958-59 year were given out and discussed. Plans for the Nov. 12 Plant Mart were completed. Members were reminded of the Garden Club Radio Series which began on Tuesday, Oct. 14 and will be on the air each week on Tuesday at 10:45.

Mrs. L. D. McGibbeny and Mrs. James D. Costain were elected delegates to the District Garden Club meeting the new Garden Center in Lakeland in November.

Refreshments were served the members after the meeting and beautiful arrangements of fall flowers were used throughout the home.

Winter Guest Club News

An error was made in reporting tournament winners from Saturday, October 11. The winners were Harry Gibson and Charles Brush, whereas Harry Arms had been reported as winner. Apologies to both of these courageous cue-wielders. There are no winners to report from October 18 as the games were rained out.

However, the rain did not prevent a happy group from assembling for the weekly pot-luck supper. After the supper hour more folk gathered at the clubhouse for an evening of cards and visiting, welcoming the most recent "returnees" etc.

Next Saturday, Oct. 25, there will be no supper at the clubhouse; it is suggested you patronize the food stands in Donaldson Park and then come to the clubhouse for visiting and games.

Friday night's dance was a happy time for the nimble of foot, and some not so nimble. About forty people were in attendance, with over half staying for the social hour later; doughnuts, coffee, and visiting.

The dance on October 31 is to be an especially gala affair, to celebrate Hallowe'en. Everyone in attendance (spectators as well as dancers) is to come dressed as you might be had you been shipwrecked. The Dance Committee (Messrs. Kensel and Lewis) will be on hand to levy fines and punishments for any who have the temerity to appear out of character.

On Tuesday, Nov. 4, there will be no activities in the clubhouse as the building will be in use for the election--bridge players take note.

During the business meeting of the Association four new members were welcomed. They were Mrs. Roy Pixler, Mrs. Rosa Loomis, Mrs. W. C. Touchton, and Mrs. Norman Todd. Mrs. Keith Collyer, President, read the section of the charter concerning new memberships.

Four tables of bridge were in play during the afternoon. Miss Lelia Johnson won the high prize and Mrs. Frank Love the second prize. Absent Duty members were present for the luncheon and meeting.

Girl Scout And Brownie News

Troop 3 of the Girl Scouts sponsored by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church held it's regular meeting on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 14, after school in the Woodruff Heights Scout Building. Mrs. Roy Ladwig, Leader, Mrs. E. B. Poff, and Mrs. Jim Runkle assistant leader, met with the girls. Four new members were welcomed by the Scouts. They were Candy Flint, Nellie Barker, Barbara Harden, and Beverly Pitts. Naomi Lawrence and Nellie Barker were elected patrol leaders and Judy Runkle was elected scribe for the new troop. Mrs Runkle read the Scout laws and duties and plans for the year were discussed. The troop is selling cards, paper, and novelty gifts for Christmas. Mrs. Franklyn Ward served refreshments to the Girls. They held their meeting in the yard as the building is being painted.

The girls of Troop 1 visited Hillcrest Home during their regular meeting on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 16. The Scouts decorated the home for Halloween and presented a skit for the residents. Joan Kelly, Karen DeLaney, Patsy Martin, Diane DuBose, and Beth Sullivan were in the skit. Refreshments were served the residents of the home and the girls by Mrs. Leamon Kelly and Mrs. Durrah Martin. Mrs. Bob Lee, leader, Mrs. John Townsend, Mrs. N. H. Booth, assistant leaders; and Miss Sally Nute, Senior Helper, accompanied the Scouts.

Two new Brownie Troops for second grade girls met last week for the first time. On Friday afternoon in the Brownie Building in Woodruff Heights eight second graders met with Mrs. Walter Mandis and Mrs. Tom Hallam for their first meeting. Several more girls will join them next week. The girls read the Brownie pledge, made plans for the year, and enjoyed a play time at Donaldson Park. Mrs. Mandis served refreshments.

On Wednesday afternoon thirteen more second grade Brownies met with Mrs. G. L. Townsend and Mrs. Bill Thompson in the Brownie Building. They made plans for their first year of Brownie work also and Mrs. Townsend and Mrs. Thompson served refreshments.

Troop 4 for third grade Brownies met on Monday, Oct. 20, and practiced their flag ceremony for the Halloween Parade. Each Brownie will bring a penny for each year of her age to help celebrate the birthday of Julliette Gordon Lowe, Girl Scout Founder.

Troop 5 for fourth grade Brownies held its first meeting of the fall on Tuesday, Oct. 14, in the Armory with thirty girls present. Mrs. Roy Felknor, Mrs. Ollie Gentry, and Mrs. Ben Stewart were present to work with the girls. Volunteers are needed from mothers and friends to start another troop for these Brownies as thirty is too large a number for the leaders to work with for the best results with the girls. The Flag Ceremony was practiced and Mrs. Felknor and Mrs. John Turner served refreshments.

A number of Brownies from the various troops and the Girl Scouts will participate in the Halloween Parade. Mothers are reminded that the Brownie registration fee is $1.00.

High School PTA Met Thursday

John Crittenden and Earl Varnes presented a very informative program on the Math and Science Departments of the Avon Park High School to the members of the High School PTA on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 16.

The teachers attempted to show what is being done for the average and gifted children of our school in these fields. Various teachers explained their programs to the group. Miss Frankie Thrope and Miss Bobbie Faye Arnold spoke on their work in science and math. The program was designed to give the public a better understanding of what is being done in Math and Science locally. A number of parents, teacher and friends were present for the meeting.

During the business meeting the group decided to install a pay phone at some spot on the grounds for the use of the student body. The meeting was then adjourned and no refreshments were served because of a county teacher's meeting afterwards.

Mrs. Odom Given Stork Shower

A Stork Shower honoring Mrs. Roland Odom was held in the Florida Power Lounge on Thursday night with dainty pink and white hibiscus being used to carry out the baby theme.

Lovely gifts filled a bassinet and all the guests enjoyed helping Mrs. Odom open them. Mrs. Eva Weeks and Mrs. Jean Odom won prizes in the games that were played during the evening.

The punch bowl was surrounded with pink hibiscus and green fern and was placed upon a white cloth. Open faced sandwiches, nuts, mints, and fruit-cake were served the guests with their punch.

About fifteen friends of Mrs. Odom's were present to enjoy the evening. Hostesses were Mrs. Blanche Liles, Mrs. Mary Anderson, Mrs. Edna Anderson and Mrs. Lucille Flood.

Ninth Annual Boat-A-Cade Week Began Sunday In Kissimmee

Kissimmee, Florida—Despite the fact that Lake Tohopekaliga, starting point for Kissimmee's ninth annual Boat-A-Cade, is below the average for this time of year, there will still be ample water to hold the cruise, W. B. Makinson, Kissimmee sportsman who founded the cruise back in 1950, said yesterday.

Makinson said there are several places that have sand bars in canals, but said if the necessary rainfall does not materialize by Wednesday, October 22, he will see that these are dredged so that craft drawing up to 30-inches can navigate without any trouble.

Makinson said water conditions south of Lake Hatchinea are almost normal and present no problem, and that the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers and Central-Southern Florida Flood Control District have eliminated a water hycinath problem which occured during the summer.

"We not only seem to have good conditions for the cruise," Makinson, a local hardware dealer said, "but we are expecting a larger crowd than ever" Makinson predicts, and bases his judgement on early registrations, that some 700 boats and 2,000 persons will make the trip this year. Some 20 states are already represented, he said.

Actually Boat-A-Cade Week starts in Kissimmee on Sunday, October 19, with the beginning of the second annual Boat-A-Cade Boat Show, at which all the latest boat models and motors will be displayed. This phase of activity is under the chairmanship of Bill Morse, local real estate dealer. Morse said yesterday that some 30 companies have already engaged space in the show and that more are being rented each day. He said that special events are under the direction of Tony Ponticelli, who will have a special pirates theme for the boat show — which will be climaxed on Tuesday night with a giant fireworks display on Lake Tohopekaliga.

The actual cruise will start the morning of Wednesday, October 22, and will cover Lakes Tohopekaliga, Cypress, Hatchinea and Kissimmee, down Kissimmee River to Okeechobee and return. It will officially end Saturday, October 5th.

A highlight of the Boat-A-Cade is the special feeds which are put on by various civic and service clubs. The Kissimmee Kiwanis Club will put on a fish-fry for Boat-A-Caders who arrive early - and Boat Show personnel — at the lakefront at 5:00 p. m. Monday, October 20th.

The Kissimmee Junior Chamber of Commerce will be host at one of its famous steak barbecues, also at the lakefront, at 5:00 p. m. Tuesday, Boat-A-Cade Eve — Which will be highlighted by a final briefing and this followed by a dance.

The first night stop of the cruise will be at Camp Kiro on the Kissimmee River, where the Lake Wales Legion Post will serve a blue plate roast beef dinner. Then on Thursday night, which will be spent in Okeechobee, a number of events will be on tap.

The Okeechobee Boat Club will put on a steak barbecue, a Boat-A-Cade queen will be selected from ladies making the cruise, and a dance will follow. A number of prizes will also be awarded each night of the cruise to persons catching the biggest and assorted fish.

The flotilla will depart Friday morning for the return trip to Kissimmee, with Kicco again designated as a night stop.

As in past years, planes and boats from the State Florida Game and Fresh-water Fish Commission, the Florida Development Commission and the U. S. Corps of Engineers will be present to aid in carrying out the mass cruise. The Coast Guard Auxiliary will have around nine boats on the trip for leading the boats, and a special Red Cross boat carrying adequate medical supplies and a physician will be present for any emergency that may arise.

Makinson also said that several boats with special mechanics and equipment parts for any type motor will be along as a service in case they are needed. Three boats will be equipped with radios so that constant contact can be made.

Makinson said he bases his beliefs that this hugh number of boats will participate on past cruises. When he conducted the first Boat-A-Cade in 1950 only 75 boats and 125 persons went along. It has grown each year to the point last year when 600 boats and 1800 persons made the four-day trip. Makinson said each participant is required to register at $1.50 per person, which is used to promote the annual event. He said that the biggest drawing card of the Boat-A-Cade is the fact that it is a family affair—with emphasis on camping out and 'roughing it'.

"People like to get out away from the hubbub of normal living," Makinson said, "and there is not a less exploited spot in Florida than the Kissimmee River waterway, route of the cruise."

The 1958 All-Florida Breeders' Show at Webster November 5-8 will be open to cattle from anywhere for the first time in its 12-year history, says L. L. Giddens of Webster, general chairman.

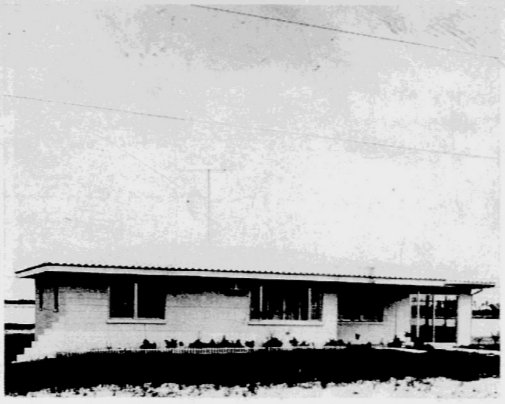
FISH FOR THE FREEZER



Fish stories are again on the loose. If the fisherman didn't get the biggest one, then he surely caught the most or had the toughest fighter, even if it did get away.

Along with knowing how to tell believable stories, how to bait, cast and sense the "strike," fishermen of every age should also be familiar with the steps in careful preparation of the catch for refrigeration and freezer storage.

Fish are extremely perishable and must be handled carefully and quickly if they are to remain sweet and fresh. A real helper during the fishing season is transparent plastic wrap. Fish that has been cleaned, chilled with ice, and wrapped in saran will be brought home from the lake without fish odor permeating the car. The fish keep fresh and moist in the air-proof wrap.

To prepare fish for freezing, first clean, then rinse them in salt water. Drain or wipe nearly dry. Use folded pieces of plastic wrap between individual fish so they may be easily separated before cooking. Wrap fish tightly in the film and seal with freezer tape. Mark the tape with name of fish and date of catch.

With proper care of fish, large or small, the fisherman can proudly tell his stories once again, at a delectable fishfry.

Veterinary Magazines Article Tells How Use Of Tranquilizer Saves Money For Cattlemen

Kansas City, Mo.—Further scientific documentation that the use of a tranquilizer in cattle before shipping will give measurable dollar-and-cents savings is presented in an article in the current (October) issue of Veterinary Medicine, a professional journal.

The authors report that in nine controlled tests, involving more than 300 steers, the animals receiving Trilafon showed less weight loss, were easier to handle, had a lower incidence and severity of shipping fever and went to feed faster than the untranquilized animals upon arrival at the feed lot.

In one study, 13 treated and 13 untreated cattle were shipped by truck a distance of 275 miles. The untranquilized animals lost an average of 46.8 pounds, while the tranquil animals lost only 25 pounds.

In another, 54 treated and 54 untreated steers were shipped 1,350 miles by rail, over a period of four days. The untreated steers lost an average of 59.2 pounds, while those which had received Trilafon lost only 31.1 pounds.

In one of three studies to determine resistance to shipping fever, 15 treated and 15 untreated steers were shipped 256 miles by truck during a driving snowstorm. Among the untreated, or controls, severe shipping fever developed in six and noticeable respiratory symptoms in the remaining. All the tranquilized animals remained normal.

(The exact cause of shipping fever is not known. It manifests itself as severe respiratory infection, usually resulting in pneumonia. It has been estimated that this cause alone costs the cattle industry at least $25 million a year.)

The authors propose that the lowered weight loss, always a serious problem to the industry, reflects a reduction in degree of tissue dehydration. Specifically, this beneficial effect is credited to the anti-shock action of the tranquilizer.

"The variety of adverse circumstances coincident to transportation of cattle by rail or truck may be expected to result in shock . . . Weight loss phenomenon, lowered resistance to infection and delayed adaptation to feedlot environment are closely related to, or are manifestations of, the cumulative shock insults incurred," write the scientists.

The overall problem involved is a condition broadly identified as "stress", which is often applied to situations in human medicine.

(There is no one accepted definition of stress. Generally, stress is thought of as the condition of abnormal physical and emotional pressures on a person or animal. There is evidence that extreme stress can result in a physical or emotional breakdown, or in lowered resistance to disease organisms.)

New Mercury Outboard Line Has Industry's Highest Horsepower

The all new Mercury Outboard line for 1959 with the industry's highest horsepower, two new power class ications, increased performance, yet quieter operation is being shipped to dealers currently.

That's the report of J. Paxton Hill, Mercury dealer in Avon Park, who has just returned from a demonstration of the 1959 line for key dealers.

Paxton Hill met with officials of the Kiekhaefer Corporation, manufacturer of Mercury outboards to discuss marketing plans following demonstrations of the nine newly - styled models headed by the 70 horsepower, 66 cubic inch Mark 78A, the industry's power leader for 1959.

Ranging from the two-cylinder six-horsepower Mark 6A to the six cylinder Mark 75A cruising and water skiing motor, the line represents the industry's widest choice of power for next year, Paxton Hill said.

The local Marine dealer said that Mercury is moving into two new horsepower classes for 1959—15 and 35 horsepower. The two-cylinder Mark 15A will give the company four engines in the "fishing" class - 6, 10, 15 and 22 horsepower. The four-cylinder Mark 35A will further strengthen the Mercury position in the upper power range with five models - 35, 40, 45, 60 and 70 horsepower, he said.

Announcement of the 1959 line marks the 20th anniversary of the company, founded in 1939 by Carl Kiekhaefer in Cedarburg, Wisconsin. It now has plants in five cities in Wisconsin and FLORIDA.

Inventories of all Mercury models at the retail level are at the lowest points at announcement time in over 10 years, Paxton reported, and sales and employment are at an all-time peak.

Three of the 1959 models will be rated at equal to or better than one horsepower per cubic inch of displacement, he said, with the Mark 78A leading the industry at 1.06 horsepower per cubic inch. Kiekhaefer is the only outboard manufacturer who has achieved this one-horse-power-per-cubic-inch rating on production models, a universally accepted measure of high engine efficiency.

Paxton Hill said that the Mark 75A again can be expected to be the industry leader in horsepower per dollar with a value of $12.42 per horsepower. This compares with a low of about $20 per horsepower only two years ago. The Mark 78A and the 60 HP Mark 75A will also offer the industry's best horsepower/weight ratio: about 2.6 lbs. per horsepower.

Paxton noted that the 45 horsepower Mark 58A had been in dealer hands since early August. It was brought out in advance of the announcement date for the full Mercury line because of the unforeseen demand for last year's Mark 58.

Three Polio Shots Are Needed To Prevent Threat Of Polio Epidemic

The current polio epidemic in Detroit, Michigan is a vivid reminder that paralytic polio will remain a threat to every community in the nation as long as millions of Americans neglect vaccination, Hayward H. Davis, chairman of the Highlands County, Chapter of the National Foundation, declared today.

"What is happening in Detroit could happen here," Mr. Davis said. "There are far too many unvaccinated individuals in our county and many others who have had only one or two shots. While expanding our program to take in arthritis and birth defects, we must not lose sight of the third face of crippling — polio. It is still with us."

By the end of September more than 630 persons had been stricken with polio in Wayne County (Detroit), half of them paralytic, and more cases were being reported each day, the chapter chairman revealed.

The Wayne County Chapter of the National Foundation has purchased 100,000 shots of Salk vaccine for large-scale group vaccination programs throughout the county and also in supplying large quantities of needles and syringes for use in the program. Chapter volunteers are assisting doctors of the Wayne County Medical Society in the operation of the group centers.

"We have been fortunate in our county this year in that the polio rate has been light," Mr. Davis said. "However, with many of our children and young adults unvaccinated, we are probably as susceptible to an outbreak as Detroit."

The Wayne County Chapter of the National Foundation is now spending almost $50,000.00 per week on care of the victims of the epidemic, and the chapter estimates that it will need more than $1,000,000.00 for aid to patients by the end of the year.

Death Stalks The Highways

Whenever any disease reaches epidemic proportions we get much concerned about it. If we are wise we hunt for the cause, which may be bad drainage, bad habits, or bad bugs such as mosquitoes, then by applying proper remedies we head off the epidemic. As a rule we can not stop it any other way.

Accidents on our highways, which result in the death of thousands every year, and injuries to thousands more, is a disease which has reached epidemic proportions. We ought to find out the fundamental cause of that disease and, then apply the right remedies to stop it.

Well, does anybody know the fundamental cause of our bloodied highways? Oh yes, I think that our road authorities know what it is, but do not want to do anything about it. I think that most of us who have any brains know what it is but do not want to apply the right remedy. That may seem to be arrent nonsense, but it is not. The fundamental cause of so many deaths and injuries on our highways is our almost insane love of speed. We like to go fast, the faster the better. Hence, since the law allows us to drive at dangerous speed, millions of us doing it every day, and many of us exceeding even that limit when the law isn't looking. And since car makers create cars that can be driven 90 mph or more, we shall continue to live dangerously along our fine roads. So long as we can not curb our desire for high speed, and so long as the car manufacturers are allowed to pamper us in that regard, just so long shall we have death stalking the highways, and all the stop signs, and other warning signs we erect, all the driver education we carry on, all the warnings we had out to be careful, all the fines we impose for careless or drunken driving, will not do very much towards stopping the epidemic. We shall continue to drive dangerously because we like to do it and the law allows it, and we shall continue to pay the price in blood and tears. That is the opinion of

The popular F-100 pickup is one of 371 Ford truck models available in 1959. Dual headlights and a new Ford nameplate on the hood are standard features on the pickup models. With the 223 cubic inch six-cylinder engine — the most modern "six" in the industry — Ford offers greater economy in the high speed or increased load range. The pickup is available with either this Styleside body, which Ford pioneered with the 1957 models, or the Flareside body.

"TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY"

By Russell Kay

Well, here we go again. After my trip to Mexico and Guatamala last Spring I figured I'd had it and did not expect to be going anywhere again for a long time but when the National Editorial Association came up with a European Study Mission and invited me to join the party, I found it too tempting to resist.

Mrs. Kay and I have embarked on a three weeks trip that will take us to Holland, Belgium, France and England before we return. We left New York with the editorial group September 19 and we will return to Florida about the middle of October.

The NEA commission will study economic conditions in western Europe, visiting some of the larger industries, we will be given a briefing on the activities of SHAPE and NATO and spend several days at the World's Fair in Brussels.

The entire trip will be by air with the exception of bus tours in the countries we visit. The Belgain government is going out of its way to make sure we see all that can be seen in the short time we are there.

American ambassadors in Holland, Belgium, France and England have assigned representatives to our tour party to assist in arranging our itinerary and contacts.

It will be an interesting and busy three weeks and we are keenly looking forward to it. While business and study will occupy a good part of each day there will be numerous receptions and time for sightseeing and, of course, shopping.

Tour arrangements were made by International House of New Orleans through facilities of the American Express Company. We will fly from New York direct to Amsterdam via KLM-Royal Dutch Airlines and return from London via Pan American Airlines so we will have an opportunity to compare these two inter-continental services as well as western Europe feeder lines in the several countries.

We are informed that H. R. H. Prince Bernard of the Netherlands will hold a reception for our group on arrival and later that day we will be received at the City Hall by the Burgomaster and the aldermen. During our short stay in Holland we will visit the Hague Peace Palace, Hall of Knights, Royal Palace, Mauritshuis Art Gallery as well as the cities of Rotterdam and Utrecht, traveling by motor coach. Some of the larger industrial plants will be checked enroute.

At Brussels we will, of course, spend most of our time at the World's Fair and a press conference with the United States Commissioner General is planned at the American Pavilion. The following day we will be guests of His Excellency Baron Moens de Fernig at the Belevedere Palace Gardens and later a reception given by the Burgomaster of Brussels.

One of the most interesting events will be a visit to the Chamber of Deputies in Paris where we will have an opportunity to interview a number of French officials as well as industrial leaders.

An entire day will be spent at NATO headquarters where we will be brought up to date on the background, structure and operations of this organization and will hear an address by the Secretary General.

We will then visit SHAPE headquarters where a similar briefing will occur. In London we will visit British and American official offenses and meet a number of officials. Press correspondents in London will entertain us during our stay.

Civil Defense For Adult Americans

Motivation - Exercising "Social Imagination."

Many persons who set up training programs that began with a flourish and died out are now doing nothing about civil defense. Many of them would tell you that they would be quite willing to instruct again, but that the program they worked with died out "because the interest was just not there." The question most frequently asked by people we have met a conference on community civil defense is not "What shall we do?" but "How can I get people interested?"

Too frequently our training schools have been devoted exclusively to caring for the injured, clearing away the debris, monitoring the radioactivity, and putting out the fire. We have been to a number of these training schools at which the volunteer student showed great interest in the new learning, mastered it thoroughly, but were not even given a chance to discuss the problem of how to "infiltrate" it into the stream of activities back home. Indeed, some of them did not realize this would be a problem until after returning home. Few of our courses have paid even lip-service to the problem of interesting people, yet interest is the unseen foundation on which all the courses rest.

The apparent lack of interest is easy enough to understand, for interest depends on knowing, or, at least on having an experience that would create a desire to know. We tend to forget that interest has always to be aroused: if Thomas Edison had waited for the public to be interested in lights, New York City would still be burning gas. Arousing interest in civil defense may be a little harder, for the material benefits are not so obvious as improvements in lighting, and past efforts to arouse interest have too frequently been based exclusively on fear. This is particularly true of nuclear warfare which has been presented as something we can not even try to cope with. And at least in the Midwest, there is also a traditional feeling of geographic security.

Mrs. Worden At Exec. Conference

Mrs. Anna Belle Worden, executive secretary to the Avon Park Chamber of Commerce, left Saturday to attend the American Chamber of Commerce Executive Conference in Jacksonville.

The George Washington Hotel served as headquarters during the conference which opened with registration Sunday and ended Wednesday night. Mrs. Worden is expected to return today.

C. W. Williams Completes Jungle Warfare Training

FORT KOBB, CANAL ZONE (AHTNC)—Army Specialist Four Cleveland W. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ingrom T. Williams, Lake Placid, Fla., recently completed three weeks of intensive jungle warfare training in the Canal Zone.

Specialist Williams is an assistant gunner in the 20th Infantry's Mortar Battery at Fort Kobbe. He entered the Army in July 1957 and completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S. C. Williams arrived overseas last January from an assignment at Fort Chaffee, Ark.

The 20-year-old soldier is a 1956 graduate of Lake Placid High School. In civilian life, he was a carpenter.

Cattle numbers are expected to begin rising again this year, and by January 1 should be 1.7 million more than on January 1, 1958.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, LL.H.D.

BEHIND THE COMMUNIST LINE April 1958, is authority for the statement that "4,300 students were expelled from Lenin University during 1957 for political reasons."

Dr. Kershner

That must be nearly half of the student body. These young people were selected by rigid standards and should represent the cream of the Soviet educational crop. The fact that they are so dissatisfied with the system under which they live is significant.

The same magazine asserts that many teen-agers sent to work as brigades to virgin land projects return home after a few weeks to stage sit-down strikes in factories and on farms. They boycott communist indoctrination classes and clandestinely publish news sheets critical of the Soviet regime.

The communist mandate that intelligence must be sacrificed to dogma remains in force but the revolt of communist youth is so far reaching that the Kremlin tyrants hesitate to use terror against it.

American Motors Adds New Economy Wagon

A new two-door station wagon has been added to the 1959 Rambler American series, due to public demand for such a vehicle. The 100-inch wheelbase five-passenger wagon is an addition to the two-door Rambler American sedan introduced in 1958. Both the station wagon and the sedan provide numerous consumer benefits, according to American Motors, including low purchase price, top operating economy, handling ease, ease of parking and outstanding maneuverability. Both models, powered by an economical six-cylinder L-head engine developing 90 horsepower, will go on sale at Rambler dealerships on October 8. American bodies are dipped in a rust-preventing primer during manufacturing for longer car life.

Unemployment Benefit Payments Dropped $49,415 In September

You girls who are interested in improving your figure . . . and who isn't, will be glad to hear that one Avon Park woman took four and a half inches off her waistline — in just one week. This miracle took place at the Gredel' Message located at Mary Jane's Beauty Shop Sebring Hotel.

The amiable operator and owner of the shop, Gretchen Dalton, has been very successful in removing extra poundage the easy relaxing way. Two inches off the hips in one week is not unusual. On the grand tour of the shop with the various types of equipment I learned a lot of things I didn't know before about reducing and message. There are special machines for arthritic patients, or those suffering from different ailments.

Even if you are happy with the way nature made you (and who isn't), you will enjoy the vibrators which soothe jangled nerves and give you toning without groaning.

Lake Placid Watershed Control Project To Open Last Of October

Plans are being made here for the opening of the Lake Placid East Chain of Lakes Watershed Control Project, the latter part of October. The Greater Lake Placid Chamber of Commerce and the Town of Lake Placid are jointly sponsoring the opening ceremony. This is the first watershed project to be completed in the United States under U. S. Public Law Number 566 passed in August 1954. It is jointly financed by local people and the Federal Government through the Soil Conservation Service. The Highlands Soil Conservation District, and County Commissioners have furnished guidance to the land owners group through the completion of the project.

A special luncheon of invited guests and officials is planned to be held at the Presbyterian Conference Center, just before the opening ceremony which will be held at 2 p. m. at the site of the start of the project.

The location is between Lakes Grassy and Huntley.

Arrangements are being made to have the Lake Placid School Band in attendance and a special Master of Ceremonies and Speaker.

The outlet between the two lakes will be opened at the ceremony by Chairman L. L. Holson of the Land Owners Committee.

After the opening, a motor tour of the project is planned. The other lakes included in the watershed are Lakes Clay and Aphorpe.

Boy Scout News

The Boy Scouts of the Highlands District are invited to participate in a Boat-a-Cade up the Kissimmee River on Nov. 7. This trip is for all Scouts and their leaders. A camp will be set up on U. S. 98 between Sebring and Okeechobee on the Kissimmee River on Nov. 6 at 5 o'clock. Each troop should bring their own food and fire wood. Each troop is also asked to plan a skit or other entertainment for the campfire that night. The next day the boats will leave at 9 o'clock and return that afternoon. Each boat will have an adult leader and life perservers. All troops are asked to make plans and take advantage of this outing.

There will be a Highlands District Leaders meeting in the Florida Power Lounge on Tuesday night, Oct. 28. Plans will be made of the annual Covered Dish Banquet and Court of Honor in Sebring.

Troop 156 enjoyed an outstanding talk on safety by the local Highway Patrolman at their meeting on Monday night. He gave the scouts safety booklets and asked them to help them with law enforcement by means of a clever game. Each Scout should "drive" a driver with whom he is riding one dime for every rule broken. The Scouts were in favor of the idea.

Troop 157 went to the Armory on Monday night and was shown the building and equipment by Sgt. Ollie Gentry. He explained to the Scouts how the guns worked and were taken care of. The boys enjoyed their visit very much. Sgt. Gentry will be at the troop's next meeting to help them practice marching.

Troops 156 and 157 will march in the Halloween Parade on Saturday.

carried by the children, and the children are urged not to visit the houses where they see the streamers tied on the door.

All groups should start out after eight o'clock Saturday evening, and report back to their starting point before ten o'clock. All the containers should be brought to the Chamber of Commerce office by ten o'clock, where the money will be counted by a committee made up of representatives from all of the Civic Clubs in the city. If everyone cooperates, this Halloween can be fun for everyone.

Helping UNICEF means helping some of the 600,000,000 sick and hungry children in the world. Last year 2,000,000 American youngsters contributed over $1,000,000 to UNICEF for "all the world's children." Transformed by the Children's Fund into life-saving medicine and food, each penny meant five glasses of milk or the vaccine to protect a child from tuberculosis, and each nickel, the penicillin to cure a child from yaws, a crippling tropical disease. UNICEF is also helping in a ten year malaria eradication program to completely rid the world of this scourge. In addition, maternal and child welfare centers have been established where long range programs of health and nutrition education are in operation. Here people learn how to prevent future health disasters, as well as to care for immediate problems.

Each trick or treat coin more than doubles itself, because UNICEF assistance means self-help. Each country receiving aid contributes an average of $2.00 in either money or services for every dollar from the Children's Fund. Participation in Trick or Treat for UNICEF means a more productive life today, and a better world tomorrow for millions of children.

Pre-school children dressed for the occasion as ghosts, goblins and many other Halloween characters will lead the children group. Next in line will be the grade school children, then those in grade 7 through 12, and then the novelty group.

Floats entered by merchants and organizations have been entered in the parade. The president of the Junior Woman's Club will ride in the parade in one of the many beautiful new cars which have been entered.

Young and old alike will enjoy the beautiful horses and ponies which will end the parade.

This year for the first time every child participating in the parade will return to Donaldson Park and march across the judges stage. A number of judges have been selected and awards will be presented. Then the big Hula Hoop Contest will be held, and winners will receive gold trophies and other prizes. See the story on this contest.

Booths and more booths will be found at the carnival. Permission for civic clubs and organizations to have booths at the carnival is always granted by the Junior Woman's Club. This year the Junior Chamber of Commerce will have the food booth and plans have been made for dancers to be able to sit down and enjoy their supper. They will have hot dogs, hamburgers, french fries and all the trimmings.

The Senior Woman's Club will be in charge of the pie, cake and coffee booth. Candy will be sold by the Business Woman's Club. The Girl Scouts will have a booth for Girl Scout Cookies and the Cub Scouts will have snow cones and Candy apples, pop corn will be offered by the Jr. Woman's Club.

To delight the youngsters the Junior Woman's Club has made arrangements to sell rides on the Fire Truck, they will also have a Fish Pond and a Fortune Teller.

The Junior Woman's Club gave permission to the newly formed Youth Center Development Association to have a baseball game and a shooting gallery and an old fashioned Country Store. Profits from the store and these two games will go into the fund for the building of a new youth center.

Be sure to see the parade for it will be the most colorful and exciting one that Avon Park has had, after the parade take the whole family to Donaldson Park and enjoy the carnival. Have dinner there at the food booth and then visit each and every booth for an evening of fun.

To further carry out the 1959 program officials approved negotiations through which they hope to be able to present a nationally televised show from the Citrus Exposition grounds. "At present", Griffin said, "We are hoping to be able to complete arrangements with one of three variety-type shows, all of which have expressed an interest in bringing their programs to the Exposition during the show."

Changing of the name of the group came on vote of a motion offered by Clayton Fields and seconded by Mrs. Charles Kempton. It reads: "That the name of this organization as it now stands be changed to Youth Center Development Association", Motion carried.

President Townsend appointed a committee headed by Keith Collyer to draw up a Charter and By-Laws for approval, amendment, or rejection by the group at a called meeting to be held within a few days.

Other members of the committee are Mrs. Charles Kempton, Royal Coats and Roy Scism.

President Townsend announced that Mrs. Mary Durden is chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Mrs. Anita Renfro, co-chairman.

Much discussion was held concerning the possibility of the purchase of private land on which to erect the Youth Center instead of accepting the offer by the City of space in Donaldson Park. Mrs. Townsend reports that progress is being made in this field and will be reported at the called meeting.

At this meeting the appointed committee will present the proposed Charter and By-Laws. After their adoption, an election of permanent officers and a "Skippy" Seifert, as he will readily admit in his own words is probably the smartest bird in town. He is the bright feathered pet of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Seifert, who live on Walnut St.

This parakeet has an estimated vocabulary of about 300 words, and not only speaks English but German, French and Italian.

The Seiferts are avid bridge players, and when the bidding gets rolling Skippy will get in the act with "I bid no trump". Sometimes the players just give up card playing and listen to this brilliant budgy's eloquence, especially when he gets on his "preachin' stump", as Mr. Seifert refers to the top of the bird's cage.

In addition to the regular phrases usually learned by parakeets, such as "Hello Sweetheart" and "You're a sweetie pie" this little feathered orator recites poetry. The words of Peter Peter Pumpkin Eater come out loud and clear until he reaches "wife" which gives him trouble and becomes "phf".

"Skippy" also adds his own flourishes to "Little Bo Peep" He insists that to "leave them alone and take it easy" is the best way to end that verse.

Once on a trip thru Alabama with the temperature at near 100 degrees "Skippy" broke a long silence with this encouraging phrase, "Merry Christmas to you and a happy New Year too"

Another time "Skippy" was lost for three heartbreaking days. When he finally found his way home, very bedraggled from being pecked by the wild b'ds, he was in such sorry shape that the Seiferts weren't sure it was their pet. After about three days of recuperative silence he assured them of his identity by announcing "Skippy Seifert is here". "Skippy is fine, thank you".

This unusual parakeet has a lot of personality and a way of figuring out situations. Once in a while he hits the nail right on the head with his thoughtfulness or thoughtlessness, as the case may be. A talkative female guest of the bird's owners had been holding forth for a long time, only pausing to take a deep breath. Timed precisely

Board of directors will be held, it was reported.

This project came into being following a proposal made public by the Senior Woman's Club of Avon Park.

Hurd on the Mall

BY GEN HURD

The Halloween Carnival was a huge success . . . most of the booths reported a profit . . . The JC's were cooking on all the burners trying to keep ahead of the hungry hordes with their delicious hamburgers and hot dogs . . . the soft drink concession finally sold out and wheeled their little red wagon right out of business. The reason they didn't replenish their supply was because it was too late to ice down any more drinks . . . and who likes hot ones . . . One unfortunate little girl stepped out of one of her shoes during the parade and it got lost in the shuffle. We at the Country Store quickly averted a near tragedy by raising the price of one article to some ridiculous amount. The reason being that one eager Boy Scout bent on buying his mother a present, chose the very thing that she had wanted to the cause. Everyone had a jolly time . . . the hula hoopers hooped until they were near exhaustion . . . and did every trick in the book during the contest . . . One little goblin needed an extra hand to hold his candied apple, fishing pond prize and Coco-Cola, what a juggler. The costumes were cute and original. Some of the judges looked haggard from decision-making. Some of the parents looked haggard from making loans on Junior's next week's allowance. The fire engine and pony rides did a bang-up business. It was a beautiful day, and who can say who was the happiest, the kids who won the prizes for costumes, the weary mothers who sat up all night making Zorro suits or the enthusiastic fathers who sawed out those Jack-in-the-Box outfits.

One of the brave souls who climbs that shakey ladder to a perilous perch far above the football field is Bill McKenna. His job is to observe the players from this vantage point and report by phone to the coaches on the ground below.

The coaching staff is very happy to have the assistance of this former professional football player who hails from way up in Canada, and played end with the Calgary Stampeders for two years.

Bill is stationed at the Avon Park Bombing Range with the Signal Corps.

Rumor has it that R. S. "Dick" vonBurske will reactivate the Stivon Realty Company. This time probably on Highway 27. Welcome back Dick, and good luck.

Meikrowaves

By DON MEIKLEJOHN

Tallahassee.—Most of them don't know it yet, but some of the state's leading whisky violators are the "stars" of some remarkable wire recordings.

The recordings were made by state beverage agents while working under cover. They give an intimate glance of the life of moonshiners and other whisky violators in their day-to-day plotting to avoid the clutches of the law.

Such innocent looking things as a tie clasp or wrist watch served as the "microphones" feeding information into tiny wire recorders, which were concealed on the agents.

The recordings, most of them obtained at the risk of the agents' lives, are spiced with the lingo of the illicit whisky trade . . . a few four letter words . . . but more important they document violations for use in pending court trials.

The tiny wire recorders are just one aspect of a trend toward modern crime detection in the Beverage Department. The Department is also making wide use of an airplane, small cameras, movie cameras, walky talkies, devices that can be planted in a room and transmit what goes on to a radio car several blocks away, and other similar signal devices.

These devices alone would be useless as a row boat on the Sahara Desert, but through the skill of the beverage agent and careful coordination they are being translated into effective law enforcement weapons.

This coordination is not limited to operations within the beverage department, but also include day-by-day coordinated efforts with federal and local law enforcement agencies.

Effective results aren't obtained with a 40-hour work week in the beverage enforcement business as a September report of the department indicates.

In September, beverage agents in the state logged 8,000 hours of overtime. However, they get paid on a flat monthly salary basis . . . and do not get any pay for this overtime work.

H. G. Cochran, Jr., beverage director, points out that a whisky enforcement agency is just as effective as the information it gets.

Information comes from a multitude of sources.

Private citizens write letters about violations . . . some signed some not signed; informants volunteer information for money—usually $5 or $10; crooks who have been caught squeal on other violators; and beverage agents themselves keep their ear to the ground.

Information from citizens varies from detailed maps . . . showing the location of a still . . . to crank letters from folks who just have a gripe.

Although some of the information proves to be useless, Cochran says that an amazing amount of the information provided by private citizens results in action being taken against violators.

Each fragment of information is carefully evaluated and coordinated through Carl Wilson, acting chief law enforcement officer of the department.

Working through four regional beverage supervisors and 13 district supervisors, each lead is checked out . . . and dovetailed with other informations.

At the same time, the department has two "statewide agents"—Phil Tomberlin and William Eddy—who cruise the state picking up leads on violators.

When it is time to move, it is up to Wilson to set up the plan.

It may call for an undercover man.

In such a case, an agent who is not known in the area is picked to do the undercover work.

Not all agents are capable of capable of performing such tricky undercover work . . . It takes a man who can think quick and a man who fits into a pattern of the assignment.

To get into a moonshine operation it might take a fellow who can talk rough and knows moonshine lingo.

Another assignment might call for a fellow who looks at home in a tuxedo.

The record seems to indicate that the modern law enforcement concept together with revamped auditing procedures and higher qualifications for agents is paying off.

For example, last year, the department showed an increase of more than four million dollars in revenues,—a gain of 6.37 per cent—when other state revenues were sagging.

So far this year—the first three months of the fiscal year—revenues are running about a million dollars ahead of last year or an increase of 6.77 per cent.

Although Cochran concedes that stamping out all illegal whisky operations would be next to impossible, he believes that modern law enforcement methods—along with qualified personnel—can make a big dent and keep the boys loose.

"It's not a popular job, but our boys aren't trying to win any popularity contests . . . They're just trying to enforce the law," Cochran says.

CHRIST AND OUR TIMES

By THE REV. PETER F. WATTERSON

"Make room for this man"

Christianity is a life time attempt at allowing Jesus to gain complete possession of our heart. Once Adam and Eve had broken God's solitary decree in the Garden of Eden and mankind succeeded to the penalties of that Fall, the human race found itself in a condition far different from the one in God's original plan. Instead of being able to love God constantly and with superior appreciation as a natural consequence of the Almighty's great love in creating him, man discovered that his heart had become an unstable one, attracted magnetically toward the things of world and flesh which had taken on deceptive beauty. Futhermore, the fallen archangel Lucifer was roaming wild over the field of human creation, making necessary those words which would years later fall from St. Peter's lips, "Be sober, be watchful! For your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, goes about seeking someone to devour."

Nevertheless, although Paradise occurred and sin was born, man would still have to strive for the fulfillment of his destiny. The barricades in his path would be large, the obstructions many. Hell was a fact and man could go there. Man would have to control his heart and keep from plunging into forbidden occasions. The world and the devil and the flesh would throw their might against him and, despite their onslaught and their enfilade to capture his immortal soul, man would have to fight the enemy and drive it back or elude it. To try this of himself was futile, worthless. He did not have a chance. And God Almighty knew it. So, down to earth God came in the Person of His only Son. John the Baptist pointed Jesus out to all the world when he said, "Behold, the lamb of God, who takes away the sins of the world—that He may be known to Israel, for this reason have I come baptizing with water—And I have seen and borne witness that this is the Son of God."

The world has no alternative, then, to accept Jesus. He is the only way to salvation. People must be brought to know that they must "make room for this Man". They must make room in their hearts for the Diver Lover. Christians who claim Jesus for their own must also want to make Him known. Many are in ignorance of Him. Others have made Him what they want Him to be. And it must be ever the object of our Christian life to introduce humanity to Jesus at every given opportunity.

Before we can help in this courtesy of introduction, we must again look within ourselves. How much of our own heart rests with the world or in the flesh? How much remains for Jesus? He has to have it all. No worldly loves must be permitted to exist in Him. Who owns our heart today, really? Jesus, the world, or the flesh?

CRACKER POLITICS

By ALLEN MORRIS

Tallahassee — Are Miamians really Floridians?

That is to say, do they respond to the same political impulses that motivate the people who vote in the rest of the state?

That's the riddle which has been tormenting statewide politicos ever since the lower east coast began flexing its voting muscles several elections ago.

It was worry enough when it became apparent the gold coast could cast up to a third of the state's vote. They were thinking about Miami electing a governor.

But this concern became a real headache more recently when some South Floridians started talking about retaliating for the unbalance—if population be the only factor—in legislative apportionment by electing only that area's aspirants for all seats around the cabinet table.

In the unique Florida system, a governor does much of the talking as chairman of the board. But he can be outvoted —and outmaneuvered—by the men who head the six independent cabinet offices. To many interests, a friendly cabinet is just as important as a friendly governor and indispensable when the chief executive is hostile.

An interpretation of what loosely might be labeled the Miami attitude—and some reasons why it exists—was voiced by a politically-astute Dade countian while taking refuge in a Gainesville motel room from the rain during the University of Florida Homecoming.

Naturally, his name can't be mentioned. But he has served in both the legislative and executive fields of the State government. And the fact of his having been a key strategist behind the scenes in Dade of a succession of winning campaigns—including the last three gubernatorial—qualifies him as an authority on the Miami attitude.

He first was asked whether the people there had rather a feeling of "us-against-them".

"Not in my opinion: I mean the average person hasn't" he replied.

"You get a laphead like this guy who's talking about splitting the state; some fellow who's yapping about how Dade county is getting fleeced by the rest of the State. One of those guys got on television the other night and didn't know that Dade was getting nearly $2,000,000 a year from racing for old age assistance. He thought we were getting just that $160,000 that goes to every county. He didn't bother to get the facts.

"One fellow putting out that kind of conversation does Dade more harm with the rest of the state than can be straightened out in 10 years."

Then the question and answers went this way:

"What do the people of the lower east coast want in a governor?"

"Principally, I think, they want a governor they feel will recognize their problems; not the problems necessarily of Miami but those of the urban areas everywhere in the state: the Tampa Bay area, Orlando, Jacksonville and Pensacola."

"Do you believe the number of votes represented by the urban areas will in itself assure the election of an understanding governor?

"Well, yes, to a degree. I think that as we become more and more an urban state, every candidate for governor is going to have to make campaign commitments which will take into account the problems of the urban areas. The task of the voters will be that of determining which candidate can, by reason of his sincerity and of his capacity, carry out these commitments, if elected."

"Do you sense a feeling among Miamians, as a result of the two sweeps by Governor Collins, that they will be electing Florida's future governor?"

"That's true and certainly understandable. It was because of the Collins elections that they realized for the first time the political power that could come from solidifying their vote. And, I think, that realization will cause them to get together in the future."

"But will a candidate for statewide office need votes from outside the lower east coast?"

"Oh, definitely. But he won't have to tell the people of Miami, say anything special to get their support than he would the people of any other urban area."

"Is there any likelihood of the next governor coming from the Miami area?"

"Well, I don't want to be picking candidates, but we do have a number of men who have earned reputations as able public officials and therefore must be considered gubernatorial timber. We have outstanding men in Judge O'Connell, Alan Boyd, Joe Eaton, Bud Dickinson and Cliff Herrell."

(O'Connell, from Fort Lauderdale, is a Justice of the Supreme court. Both Boyd and Eaton have North Florida backgrounds. They went to Miami to practice law and Boyd now is Chairman of the State Railroad and Public Utilities Commission while Eaton is the State Senator from Dade. Dickinson is State Senator Fred O. Dickinson, west Palm Beach lawyer. And Herrell is State Representative W. C. Herrell, Miami Springs businessman.)

"What's your opinion of the Eaton-Herrell probabilities?"

"I've heard some talk of Joe tackling the governorship in '60 but I really suspect he's just keeping his name in the pot for '64. Actually, Cliff Herrell could be more serious about '60 than Eaton is."

Then the rain slackened, and the Miamian trotted away.

Avon Park Defeats DeSota High 20-7

By John R. Gambrell

Scoring early in the first period, again in the second and third periods a fired up Avon Park squad knocked the Arcadia Bulldogs from the undefeated ranks last Friday night at Memorial Field.

Capt. Buddy Yarbrough of Arcadia won the toss and elected to receive to open the game. Jim Alsobrook took the kickoff and was brought down on the 8 yard line by Sethe McCormick. The Bulldogs failed to pick up a first down and were forced to punt. Tommy Douberly took the punt on the Bulldog 39 yard line and returned to the 20 before being brought down by a host of Arcadians. Three plays later Sethe McCormick dashed over from the 8 yard line to put the Devils out in front 6-0. Doubedly added the extra point making the score Red Devils 7 Arcadia 0.

There was only one score in the first period but one touchdown was called back for the Devils due to a holding penalty and a 35 yard run by the visitors was nullified because of a penalty. Midway in the first period Jim Alsobrook took an Avon Park punt on the 50 yard line and behind beautiful blocking carried to the Red Devil 15 yard line only to have it called back to the Devils 40 yard line because of a clipping penalty. Just before the end of the first period Leroy Farless gathered in a Reggie Butler pass on the 35 yard line and quickly lateraled off to Sethe McCormick who came around from his half back position and scatted the remaining 35 yards. A holding penalty brought the ball back to the Devils 45 yard line.

Early in the second period the Bulldogs jumped on a Red Devil fumble deep in Avon Park Territory but a determined Avon Park defense held and took over on the 19 yard line.

After holding the Bulldogs on a fourth down play the Red Devils took over and after a series of first downs moved the ball to the Arcadia 10 yard line. Leroy Farless took a quick pass from Reggie Butler and pushed to the yard line. Fullback Leroy Starling bulled his way over from the 1. Starling also added the extra point putting his team out in front 14-0.

A pass from Buddy Yarbrough to Jim Alsobrook put the ball on the Avon Park 25 yard line as the half ended.

Leroy Starling returned the second half kick off to the 38 yard line and with only three minutes gone in the third period the Red Devils added 6 points more to their score. After Starling returned to the 38 the Devils picked up a first down on the 41 yard line and then another on the 20. From the 20 Halfback Tommy Douberly took a hand off from Quarterback Reggie Butler and on a beautiful piece of broken field running carried over making the score Avon Park 20 Arcadia 0.

The Bulldogs threatened late in the fourth period but a Yarbrough pass intended for Mercer fell incomplete on the Devils 22 yard line and the Devils took over there.

With two minutes left in the game the Bulldogs on consecutive first downs moved inside the Devils 15 yard line only to be stopped again by a stubborn Avon Park forward wall.

The Devils took over on their own 12 yard line and on the first play an Avon Park fumble was recovered by a Bulldog. Arcadia called time with only 9 seconds left in the game. When play resumed there was time for only one play. Yarbrough faded back to his own 10 yard line and found Jim Alsobrook alone on the 40 yard line. Alsobrook gathered it in and cut across field and raced 60 yards for the Arcadians lone score. The extra point was good; the game was over; Arcadia was knocked from the undefeated ranks, and Avon Park won their fourth game of the 58-59 season.

Final score Avon Park 20 Arcadia 7.

Hardee Packing Co. Joins Fla. Citrus Exchange

The Hardee Packing Company of Wauchula announced today that it has affiliated with the Florida Citrus Exchange for marketing its fresh citrus pack. The announcement was made in a joint statement by John T. Lesley, general manager of the Exchange, and Lorenzo Wilson, manager of the Hardee packing house.

Lesley called the membership of the Hardee Packing Company an important addition to the Exchange's fresh fruit line because of its potential half million box capacity and its heavy tangerine tonnage.

"We are particularly happy to announce this association with the Hardee organization because of their location in the citrus belt in an area in which we have not had representation. This plus their large tangerine pack makes their membership in the Exchange particularly important to us", Lesley said.

Wilson called the move an important one for the Hardee organization . . . "because of our desire for a more effective and efficient sales system".

"We believe the Exchange's experience and reputation in the markets as well as in the industry will give us definite sales advantages that were economically impractical under our old system of marketing. Centralized selling seems to offer the first important fresh fruit sales improvement to come along in years, and we have confidence in the Exchange's marketing ability", he said.

The Exchange is making a determined effort, according to Lesley, to rejuvenate the fresh fruit industry through organization of fresh fruit shippers for supply and economic purposes. The large marketing cooperative announced the affiliation of the Diamond Fruit Company in Winter Haven last week.

Panel Of Leading Scientists And Doctors Scheduled For Convention

West Palm Beach, Fla.—A possible way to prevent the nation's principal causes of death —coronary thrombosis and strokes—will be described to the Fla. Chpt. of the American Academy of General Practice when it holds its annual convention here Oct. 30 to Nov. 1.

Dr. Donald Thompson, West Palm Beach, program chairman, announced the convention will hear a panel of leading scientists and doctors who have been making a series of discoveries and have been using these discoveries for patient care and with promising results.

The panel is comprised of nationally known scientists—Dr. William T. Foley, New York City and Dr. Jack P. Whisnant, Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., who have done much research in this field. Also Dr. E. Sterling Nichol, Miami, Fla., who at the University of Miami and in private practice has been using these new techniques in treating a large number of patients.

Each of the panelists is scheduled to present the results of his own work and will then join for a free discussion among the panelists, and in an open forum and question and answer period for academy members.

The Florida Chapter convening here is associated with the American Academy of General Practice, an organization with a national membership of some 24,000 family physicians dedicated to improvement of medical care for the public. One of these ways, according to Dr. Thompson, is by making available promptly to America's family doctors, the new developments in research. The family doctors, Dr. Thompson added, are in one of the best positions to prevent or minimize killing diseases, because of the continuous supervision of their patient's health.

Also scheduled for the convention program are three additional discussions dealing with cancer, psychiatry in general practice and the doctors role in caring for mass casualties in the event of atomic bomb attack or other disaster. Nationally known scientists, doctors and professors are scheduled to participate in each of these symposia.

Dr. Thompson said, that because of the importance and interest in the subjects and treatments to be reviewed at the convention, plans are being made for wide publicity of the event since the organization feels that one of its prime responsibilities is to keep the public informed of research developments and new methods.

During the convention, wives of the Academy members, will be taking part in a planned program of sight seeing and conducted shopping tours in the Palm Beaches, while their husbands—as is traditional with the family doctor—will be working.

Dr. Hartsell will attend this convention this weekend. His wife will accompany him.

More accidental deaths occur in the bedroom than anywhere else in the home, according to a study reported by the National Safety Council.

Ma And Pa Kettle Theme For Rat Day Friday

"Ma and Pa Kettle" will be the theme which the freshmen will protray on Rat Day Friday, October 31. Rat Day is sponsored annually by the Sophomore Class at the Avon Park High School.

The girls in the ninth grade will come to school Friday dressed in long sloppy dresses, sloppy shoes, uncombed hair piled high on the top of their head and no make-up.

The boys will wear long trousers with rope suspenders, old T shirt, sloppy shoes, straw hat and have a corn cob pipe.

Carrots, bell peppers, raw potato and a cucumber will be tied to a string and worn around the neck of each freshman. On Rat Day all the upperclassmen have the pleasure of making the lowly freshmen jump too and obey orders, but it is all in fun.

By Friday morning each and every freshman must be able to recite the following, forward and backwards: Hillbilly (Student Name) harbinger hardly harboring hectic hallucinations due henceforth humible honor the heterogeneous hierarchy of Avon Park High.

Winter Guest Club News

The bridge games got off to a good start on Tuesday, October 21 with four tables in play. High scorer was Ann Duffy, with Grace Bonner a close second. Because of election there will be no games on November 4, but play will resume on November 11.

Jim Brown and Harry Gibson triumphed over Ota Gibson and Lura Pickell to win Wednesday's choose-your-partner shuffle tournament, on the twenty-second. On October 25 the potluck tournament, it was Ota Gibson and Frank Henderson who won out over Lura Pickell and Kostitch. There was a goodly crowd turned out for this afternoon's play, as well as several spectators. At times it seemed as though the committee on arrangements had "goofed", as the sun was pretty hot. However, in the evening most folk agreed it was too chilly for lengthy tournament play.

The return of cool evenings is most welcome to all the dancers, some fifty of whom enjoyed a pleasant get-together on Friday night. Remember this Friday, October 31, is "ship-wreck" night; come appropriately dressed or be prepared to pay a forfeit. Word has leaked out that the committee has some novel ideas all ready for us.

The Saturday potluck supper at 5:30, which was omitted last week in favor of the carnival, will be resumed this Saturday, November 1.

Mr. Shiltz announces the beginning of the "sing" sessions on November 2, at 3 p. m. If you haven't yet made the Sunday Sing a habit we urge you to do so; this is a fine hour of song and fellowship you can't afford to miss.

Florida's First Watershed Opens Nov. 7

Lake Placid: This Florida town, the southernmost on the famous Florida Ridge, on Highway US 27, has a chain of lakes on either side of the town. In fact there are 27 lakes within a 5 mile area. The eastern chain of lakes, composed of Lakes Grassy, Hutley, Clay and Apthorpe cover normally 1,880 acres but after a prolonged rainy season spread over nearly 3,000 acres. When this occurs, land bearing caladium and easter lily bulbs is flooded, one crop of which is worth from three to four thousand dollars per acre.

Local land owners have long sought a solution for this flooding problem. Local officers of the Soil Conservation Service, L. L. Holmes, Paul Buckley and Jim Bowen heard of the help offered by the Federal Government under Public Law 566 for watershed protection and flood prevention, passed by the Congress in 1955. After application and final approval on State and local levels, State Conservationist Colon D. Gunn assigned Henry T. Stanley, his assistant, and D. H. Evry, as leaders of the first watershed project planning.

Pastor Ward Scrivven, Educational Superintendent of the Seventh-day Adventist elementary schools of Florida was a visitor on Tuesday, October 27, at the church school which is connected with the church on Lake Lillian.

Members of the Seventh-day Adventist Church were urged Saturday in a special "Temperance Day" sermon to participate in a ten-point year-round temperance program said W. C. Arnold, pastor of the church. The program, he says, is not simply a shake of the head when invited to partake of alcoholic beverages. It is a positive action program.

The minister listed the ten points as follows:

1. Turn down every invitation to drink or to smoke with a polite "No, thank you."
2. Patronize and commend managers of all food stores, drugstores and restaurants who do not permit the sale of alcoholic beverages in their establishments.
3. Commend newspapers and magazines who refuse to advertise alcoholic beverages.
4. Become informed through reading as to the effects of tobacco and alcohol on the physical, mental and moral powers of the individual, as well as on the social, economic, political and religious life of the nation.
5. Distribute temperance literature.
6. Place temperance bumper strip on your car, publicising the traffic safety program.
7. Place posters on temperance in schools and other places.
8. Arrange for showing of the Temperance films 'One in 20,000' and 'Cancer by the Carton.'
9. Express yourself freely but tactfully regarding the serving of alcoholic beverages on planes, and the advertising of alcoholic beverages.
10. Take part in every local option campaign having to do with the temperance issue."

For Seventh-day Adventists, refraining from the use of tobacco or alcoholic beverages is a test of church fellowship, the minister said.

Some of the boys and girls can really make that old hoop go and it is hoped that they will keep practicing for next years contest.

Mrs. Maxine Delahunty thrilled many children in the Fortune Teller's Booth by giving them all kinds of exciting advice. This booth was very popular. Six small ponies were enjoyed by many children and that old favorite, the city fire truck, didn't lack for customers for it's rides. A Country Store did a brisk business for the benefit for the Youth Development Association and the Cub Scouts and snow cones and candied apples. The cakes and pies of the Senior Woman's Club were lovely to look at and delicious to taste and soon were gone. The hamburger booth sold completely out of their delicious hamburgers and hot dogs.

Yes, there was truly something for everyone from the whole community at the Halloween Carnival. The Junior Woman's Club thanks each and everyone who took part and came for making this the best carnival ever and hopes for an even better one next year.

YOU WOULD HAVE THOUGHT IT WAS A BIG LEAGUE GAME. From the cheers heard last Thursday afternoon at the Avon Park State Prison one would have thought they were hearing the cheering section of a big league game. Loud speakers were set up and a play by play description was given in the game between the Big Reds and Whites of the Midget League. The inmates, institution employees as well as the many local citizens viewing the game thoroughly enjoyed the afternoon. The Avon Park Band and also Director of a Band at the Prison. The Band provided a real fan-fare to encourage the young boys and it is hoped that another game can be arranged. On hand to make it a regular big time affair was Gene Gorman, director of the Avon Park Parks and Recreation Department. Gene has done a wonderful job with the baseball program and it is hoped that the success of this game will help to encourage the young boys to participate in baseball. Gene has been instrumental in getting baseball equipment for the inmates and employees at the institution.

A Voice From Avon Park Prison

By James E. Hess

It has been the desire of Avon Park Prison's administration to accomplish projects that would justify our being considered an asset to the neighborhood in which we are located. These projects have been undertaken with the aim of certifying ourselves as members of the community.

We feel this has been partially accomplished through activities such as the assistance given the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Such an instance has been embarked upon in order that the Commission may effectively carry out their dedication toward the conservation, restoration, and protection of Florida Game and Fish. Perhaps the most impressive example of this particular project was completed some months ago. Under the supervision of Wildlife Officers, inmates designed and constructed a dam at the site known as Morgan's Hole. This site is located on the State game Preserve, but is not in any way affiliated with Avon Park Prison. The dam has served to back up the waters of Morgan Creek, thus forming a reservoir that is being utilized for the restocking of fish at that location. It is also tentatively planned to construct a camping site at Morgan's Hole. Other assistance to the Commission has entailed the construction and placement of turkey feeders and feeder plots throughout the game preserve.

Activities such as the ones described above are done as a benefit to the State as a whole and the surrounding community in particular. The next time one of you bags a turkey or a covey of quail on the Avon Park Game Preserve, or hauls a mess of bass out of Morgan's Hole, remember us with friendliness.

The following is addressed specifically to those of you who enjoy reading for recreation. Have you ever stopped to think how much you actually read in your spare time? The number of books and magazines digested over a period of time would probably amaze you. The point is, if your source of reading material were suddenly curtailed, those of you who really like to read for entertainment would be at a loss. Speaking personally, there is nothing this writer enjoys more than sitting down with a good book. It's a way of loosing myself . . . it serves as a form of escape from my environment of incarceration.

From an inmate's point of view, that form of escape is quite important. Forgetting our circumstances for a few hours and living the life of the story book heroes assists a man in his "building of time." Can you see why this would serve as a wonderful form of recreation and relaxation for an inmate of a Penal Institution? As you have undoubtedly surmised by this time, there is a definite purpose behind all this bush beating concerning reading and its value as a recreational device.

When the Federal Bureau of Prisons vacated this site over ten years ago, they left behind them approximately 1,000 books of various age and subject matter. APP fell heir to these books when the institution known as Avon Park Prison was opened in April of 1957. Disuse and time had played havoc with most of these books, necessitating the rebinding of many and at least a partial reconditioning of them all. It is not the habit of this writer to look a gift horse in the mouth, but these books were in pretty poor shape. During the year and a half that we have been in existence, there have been a few generous souls that have donated books and magazines to the institution's library, all of which have been accepted eagerly and with sincere appreciation.

The long lost point referred to in the second paragraph above is: We NEED books, magazines, or reading material . . . period. The age or condition of the book is of no consequence. In most cases age will not effect a books readability. If you have some books around that you feel you can part with, we'll jump at the chance to take them off your hands. Just call GI 2-7801 and arrangements will be made to pick them up at your convenience. We'd really be grateful for your generosity.

This meeting is the planning meeting for all Girl Scout and Brownie work in our community. All interested persons are cordially invited to attend the meeting. All troop leaders, troop committees, and a member from each sponsoring organization should be present to help make plans for the Avon Park Girl Scout.

The Brownie and Girl Scout organizations have gotten off to an excellent start this year with many more girls being reached by these groups. New troops have been organized and plans are being made for even better scouting activities. Let's all support the girls and their leaders.

Halloween Party At Burrescia Home Sat. Nite

An old-fashioned Halloween Party entertained a few of the friends of Charlene and Jimmy Burrescia at their home on Saturday night, Oct. 25.

The boys and girls were scared silly by a visit to the ghost house where they shook hands with a real 'dead' ghost. A fortune teller gave them words of wisdom about their future. Other games enlivened the evening and gave everyone much entertainment. Prizes were given to Karen DeLaney for the most original costume, Kim Wells for the cutest costume, and Carolyn Vaughan for the prettiest costume.

Refreshments of popcorn, candy and hot chocolate were served the guests. A birthday cake for John Henry Sikes third birthday was a surprise and pleasure to the children also.

Boys and girls enjoying the party were Karen DeLaney, Gail Harris, Lewis Weaver, Delores Reynolds, Bill Green, Kim Wells, Carolyn Vaughan, Paulette, Karen and John Sikes.

Coffee Thursday Morning For Miss Leila Johnson

A Morning Coffee was another of the delightful courtesies honoring Miss Leila Johnson, bride-elect of John Carter Adams, on Thursday morning, Oct. 23.

Mrs. Charles Auetuife, Mrs. C. Parke Anderson, and Mrs. Roscoe Bass were hostesses for the coffee at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Bass. Miss Johnson was given a piece of her chosen silver by the hostesses.

Pink and white flowers were used in lovely arrangements throughout the home. A mixed arrangement of pastel flowers was centered upon the lovely table. Mrs. Charles Lanier, Mrs. R. R. Porterfield, and Mrs. Frank Love poured coffee at the table.

About eighty friends of Miss Johnson called during the morning.

A SOUTHERN INSTITUTION

OF the South
BY the South
FOR the South

THIS COMPANY is a Southern institution in all that this name implies:

Of the South—because two-thirds of the Company's dividends are paid to more than 14,000 of its stockholders living in the five Southern States we serve;

By the South—because our officers, directors, division managers and the majority of our personnel, are all Southern men;

For the South—because all of our plants, terminals, service stations and other properties are located in the five Southern states shown on the map above.

We appreciate your confidence, which has rewarded our products with sales leadership. It is reflected by our confidence in the future of the South.

During 1957, for instance, our expenditures in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky and Mississippi, for additional real estate, buildings and facilities . . . enlargement, repair and maintenance of present plants and equipment . . . and all expenses of operation, including payrolls, licenses and taxes (excluding federal income tax)—amounted to over $50,000,000.00. We spend our money where we make it, in the South.

Hyacinth Crew Completes Work In County

A hyacinth control crew completed lake and stream improvement in Highlands County on October 9, 1958, according to John W. Woods, Director of the Hyacinth Control Division of the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. Operations for this application were started September 2, 1958.

The bodies of water treated by the crew were Arbuckle Creek, from Lake Arbuckle to Lake Istapoga and Lake Glenada. Approximately 562 acres of hyacinths were spray-killed by the crew, and all hyacinth blocks in Arbuckle Creek were opened.

The chemical herbicide used in the operation was 2,4D-Amine, which is not harmful to animals or fish.

Commission personnel involved in the work was John W. Miller and Bob Westmoreland from the Lakeland Hyacinth Control Division office.

U.S. Navy builders working on the air-sea base being developed at Rota, Spain, found that oxen were more efficient in hauling heavy sheet steel fuel tank sections through mud and sand than were man-made vehicles.

State School Lunchroom Supervisor Visits All County Lunchrooms

Mrs. Thelma Flanagan, State School Lunchroom Supervisor, visited Highland County lunchrooms on October 16 and 17. We were proud to have her see our freshly decorated lunchroooms and to have the privilege of talking with her. After conferences in the various schools Mrs. Flanagan spoke to the Highlands County School Food Service Association Assn. meeting at Woodlawn Elementary School, Sebring Friday afternoon. The regular monthly usually held on the second Tuesday of the month was postponed to coincide with Mrs. Flanagan's visit.

All the personnel of Avon Park Elementary and High School, Sebring Elementary and High School, and Lake Placid School were present. Also present were Mr. Julian Markham and Five School Principals. Mrs. Flanagan spoke of the four guided missiles the State Association hopes to put in orbit this year. They are - 1. Better Meals; 2. Better recruiting and personnel training; 3. A well informed public; 4. Better Legislation. These aims can only be accomplished by the constant efforts of all lunchroom personnel.

The State summary of last year's work is finished and will be published soon. Mrs. Flanagan pointed out that the state average food cost for a school lunch was 23.7c. This does not include labor, utilities or supplies. This shows substandard lunches were served and free lunches reduced. The cause was a desperate effort of lachrooms to stay within the available income in the face of rising food costs. She complimented Highlands County on the fact that our food costs were 25.9c. per meal, showing that we had not succumbed to this trend. Our county school board made it possible, by supplementary financing, to keep our standards high and the necessary free lunches possible.

Quoting from a state school superintendent from Oregon, Mrs. Flanagan said "With increased emphasis in our schools on science, mathematics and languages to meet the world situation let us not forget our first line of defense is healthy children." One cannot teach a hungry child.

Your school lunchroom's first object is to make possible nutritious appetizing meals for ALL school children. Legislation to stabilize the feast or famine assistance from tax sources to the program has been formulated. This will be presented to the legislature at the next session.

On Saturday 23. members of the association attended the district meeting at Orange Ridge School in Bradenton. This is a beautiful new elementary school. Highlands County provided a school bus driven by Mr. Harnage. Speakers gave helpful pointers on each of the state aims mentioned above. The entire meeting provided inspiration and assistance to our members, who also enjoyed being on the other side of the counter, for a change, when the delicious dinner was served.

$20.90. Some groups of children came by the Chamber of Commerce headquarters for their official badges so they could collect for UNICEF, and then asked that their total be added to their church's fund. Representatives from the Civic Clubs present to count and wrap the coins were Bob Gay, Rotary Club; Mrs. J. H. Ford, Woman's Club; Harold Guernsey, Lions Club; Mrs. Ben T. Stewart, Legion Auxiliary and Mrs. T. H. Maxwell, UNICEF Chairman who wishes to extend her deep appreciation to everyone. Mrs. Maxwell states that a check for $90.21 has been mailed to the United States Committee for UNICEF.

Hill, Medical Director of Highlands, Glades and Hendry Counties Health Departments; Mrs. Alexander Blair, Director at Large on the Florida Tuberculosis and Health Association; Mrs. Mary Sand, Executive Director of the Polk Co. Tuberculosis Association and Miss Claire Redfield Health Educator of the same association.

A special film entitled "Are You Positive" will be shown. This film has been shown all over the United States causing much comment.

It is hoped to have a representation present from all the local civic and health groups to see this film as it will shortly be available for showing at the various meetings of these groups, through the curtesy of our local County Tuberculosis Association.

Musical entertainment will be furnished by the "Blue Notes", a local group under the direction of James J. Thompson.

This meeting is open to the general public and all interested in the good health of the Community are cordially urged to attend. Reservations must be made in advance by contacting E. A. Houck, executive director, P. O. Box 84, Sebring or by phoning him EV6-5404.

The expense will be $1.50 per person.

over the hu... thetic special ... Long's leg w... places last Fri... game with Arcadia ... one of the most popular ... bers of the team. Even those who didn't know him too well felt the terrific impact of a somber silence. A thousand minds a... dwelling on one thought . . . a tremendous hope that everything would be all right for Kenny . . . and soon.

And so with [illegible] and a happy note to this story. Kenny is going to be fine. He probably won't be able to play football again this season but he'll be on the sidelines this Friday night as a spectator, wearing his solidly autographed cast. His hospital room has been a jammed extension of the Youth Center lately. As I said Kenny is a very popular boy.
