

Winter Guest Club News

In a jangling rain this column speaks recently about the great desirability of a certain court for the shuffleboard fans in that it was happily shaded while the others were more or less exposed to the rays of the morning sun. So desirable is this court that members seemed to race to see who would get there first. First come, first served, that being the usually accepted rule.

This past week a certain very honorable member outmaneuvered all the others in this race for the shade. How so? Why, by simply getting there before breakfast indeed before some of us were even quite awake, and marking that particular court with his initials. That gave him priority so he said; that reserved the court for him and his party to use whenever they might appear. And the bluff worked. When his party arrived the group already playing on that court were gone, and he and his party moved off, and told to go play somewhere else. When he did that feeling somewhat relieved at being deprived of what seemed their natural rights.

That was all. The incident did not lead to all out war. The morning games went merrily on. Everybody had a good time, especially those on the shady court.

But perhaps some wondered if there is anything in the club's constitution or by-laws allowing any member to reserve a court for his own use by simply putting his initials on it in the morning. If there is, it might lead to a pretty kettle of fish, as the fellow said when the waiter served him sculpins instead of the catfish he had ordered.

The weather of the past week suited everybody. The garden lovers had afternoon showers, which cleared up before evening so that the shuffleboard hounds could run off their bi-weekly tournaments as usual. Verge's Annal begins with words, "After the sun and the moon, I sing," this column begins by singing of Arms and the woman, which is quite proper since Harold Arms and Mrs. Warner won fame and Wednesday's tournament at the same time. Mr. Shauger and Kistich fought the good fight and kept the faith but had to be content with the consolation honors. On Saturday evening it was Harold Arms again along with Paul Beldice who took the main event. Mr. Lanson and Mrs. Warner trailing them in the consolation. Win or lose everybody had a good time.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my many friends for the lovely cards and flowers sent me during my stay in the hospital.

Mrs. John Lawsha

Though Friday evening was warm and humid the usual dance went on, enough numbers being present for five sets. To give a pleasing variety to these weekly dances a new square is presented each time, a proceeding meeting everybody's favor. Twenty-five remained for the "After the Ball" repeat of coffee and donuts, another pleasing feature to the dance.

Saturday evening pot-luck supper was not attended by a large number, 13 to be exact, but was probably more pleasant for that reason. Big supper parties are usually too noisy for solid comfort; too noisy with the rattle of plates, clashing of knives and forks, the yak yak of tongues, everybody talking and nobody hearing what anyone says. Small parties are not so. They are quieter, less hurried, more sociable and when followed by a tournament on the courts, with winking stars overhead and a neighborhood trilling tune or two, it is a pleasing end of a Florida week. Sand Mountain Picnic Ends Brownie Year

Twenty Brownies of Troop 4 made thousands of trips up and down Sand Mountain for their end of the year outing on Saturday, May 16.

The third grade girls explored the sand hill from top to bottom and managed to bring most of the sand home with them in their clothes. The mothers accompanying them made a valiant attempt to reach the top but most fell by the way. Mrs. Fred Llave, troop leader, proved her fitness to lead the girls by reaching the top not once but several times and Mrs. Clara Mae Bennett, assistant leader, made the trip once.

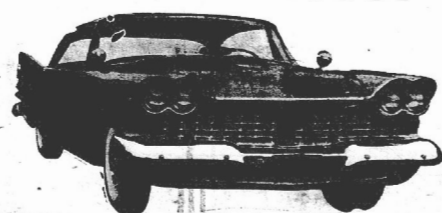

After the sandy fun the troop enjoyed a sack lunch with refreshing cold drinks at the bottom of the hill, and then conquered the mountain several more times before returning home. Mrs. Betty Holden, Mrs. E. Land, and Mrs. J. M. Anderson furnished transportation for the trip.

The girls made this trip their final outing last year and enjoyed the Saturday trip as much as last year. Some are already making plans for a Brownie trip to the mountain next year. Troop 4 will not meet again until the fall and wishes to thank its sponsor, The Avon Park Sun, for its support this year. Kim Wells of St. Petersburg and former member of Troop 4 was a special guest at the wonderful picnic.

There was also an art gallery with pictures of the brides present. This made an interesting style review of other days. Everyone wishes Miss Kristiansen a happy journey as she leaves for Chicago and her June 14th wedding to Earl Swenson in the Swedish Seventh-day Adventist Chapel in that city.

At First Baptist Church Sunday

The Coronation service for the Girls' Auxiliaries of the First Baptist Church was held Sunday night at 8 p. m. This is an affair held each year for recognizing the Forward Steps work. This includes selected scriptures memorized and understood, mission facts and denominational information.

The service under the direction of Mrs. Aden D. Childress, was beautiful and impressive. The theme was "A Story to Tell," and a large replica of the Bible, made by Mrs. E. A. Martin, formed the interest center. Tall white and yellow flowers and greenery completed the setting in the church auditorium.

Candlelighters were Judy Martin and Linda McClure, past Queens of G. A.

Mrs. Jerald H. Dunn opened the service with a reading of missionary hymns on the organ, chimes and vibraphone.

To the procession "I Love to Tell the Story" the following girls entered to become Maidens: Gail Harris, Diane Dubois, Kaven Delaney, Rita Bennett, Sharon Sue Childress, Vicki Rowland.

Ladies-in-Waiting presenting a part of their work were Sally Beth King, Diane Landress, Janice Mills, Trudie Mitchell, Patsy Harden, Joan Kelly, Beth Sullivan.

Three girls were recognized as princesses, Lynda Shepherd, Patsy Martin and Ann Milton. Highlight of the evening was the crowning of six Queens. After a trumpet call and the announcing of her approach, each queen with her chosen flower girl entered.

These queens were dressed in formal of varying pastel hues and carried charming bouquets of mixed garden flowers. Each queen also wore a sterling silver charm bracelet with charms to signify the steps she has passed. When all were on the platform, each girl reviewed some part of the many requirements for passing this step. As each girl knelt in front of the Woman's Missionary Club, Mrs. Harold Guendert, President of the Woman's Missionary Society, crowned her queen by placing upon her head a shining gold and green crown centered with the G. A. emblem, and then gave them individual charges.

Achieving the high honor of Queen of Girls' Auxiliary were: Cheryl Guendert, Frankie Smith, Linda Smith, Joyce Antley, Carol Ann Childress, Marilyn Cook.

Flower girls for each queen were Marilyn Smith, Marion Turner, Pattie Turnbull, Sherry Smith, Beverly Wicker, and Sarah Turnbull.

Proceeding the benediction by Mrs. Guendert, all members of the Girls' Auxiliaries stood to give their G. A. Allegiance as a closing act of rededication.

Felt emblems for each step were presented the girls by their counselors. Mrs. Sam King is counselor of the Marion Longbottom G. A.; Mrs. E. Ray Walls and Miss Betty Lou Baughan are counselors of the Dorothy Clark G. A. and Mrs. Art Turner is counselor of the Helen Masters G. A.

Girls' Auxiliary is sponsored by the Woman's Missionary Society of Southern Baptists; is a missionary organization for girls around the world. Organized in 1915, it now has more than a quarter of a million members.

The Wild Flamingos — Also Extinct In Florida

By Bird Writing

This week we shall write about the FLAMINGO, which was once native to our State, but has become extinct as a bird of the wild, and can only be found in the zoos and aviaries of the world. The last flamingo to be seen in Florida, was killed at Cape Sable in south Florida in September 1921, although it was practically extinct before that date. The last record we can find of breeding birds being killed was in 1907, at that time five were shot near Cape Sable, and many Herons and their skins and plumes were also taken and shipped to Cuba en route to France.

There seemed to be a lively market for bird skins and plumes in France, and as we have written before, the Egret almost suffered extinction owing to this same market.

Since we do not have these exotic birds in the wild, many attempts have been made to bring some of them back as show birds in tropical parks. This met with failure for some time, as they would escape and return to their island home, then it was found that if their wings were clipped, they could be kept in enclosures, but the wings must be kept clipped.

Hialeah Park at Miami imported thirty from the Bahamas, and kept their wings clipped, but for seven years they remained as captives but did not nest, many solutions were advised why there were no nests, but at length when observers went to their native island, the mystery was solved.

They did not have the proper environment, they knew what was needed to build their nest, and until the proper material was furnished they were not even interested in nesting. The wonderful Creator had endowed the first pair with the knowledge of nest building, and that knowledge has been passed on down through the generations. So quantities of soft dirt was dumped near the water, with the addition of sticks and grasses the conditions were satisfactory, and they immediately began to build their nests. Mud was mixed with the sticks and grasses, and miniature flat topped volcanoes began to spring up all over the place.

These nests are as exotic as the birds themselves, and how they can manipulate those long gracefully legs, which bend forward or backward at the knee joint, is still a puzzle to us. If you have never seen one poled on its one shaped neck and seeming to be very much at home incubating its eggs with its legs manacled very comfortably, it would be worth your while to go to a Park and see just how it is done. Many smaller birds lay as many as six eggs per nest, and hatch two or three months each season, but the Flamingo lays but one egg each year, and if that egg is destroyed it waits until the next year.

In Cuba and the Bahamas where there are still some Flamingos in the wild the natives hunt the nests and eat the eggs and if there are young in the nests, they are taken for food, and as the laws are very lax protecting them, and the enforcement is also lax, we are afraid that this beautiful bird will soon be extinct as a wild bird.

The Flamingo is a rose pink long legged wading bird, and procures its foods from the shallow water, and its feeding apparatus is so constructed that when it feeds it must put its head under water upside down and collect its food with a scooping motion.

It is about the height of the great Blue Heron, with which we are all familiar, and it belongs to the Heron family, although it has many exotic features that the Heron does not possess. Naturally when these birds are in captivity they must have a diet other than the small marine shells and mollusk which they normally take from the shallow pools and lagoons, so it has been found that they thrive very nicely on grits, corn meal, rice, shrimp, and chopped fish with probably a little cod-liver oil added.

Wouldn't it be a wonderful sight to see these pink exotic birds wading in our lakes and bays, heads, and flashing pink as they flew through our green fields and wooded lands? This could easily be the case if our ancestors had been a little more thoughtful, and were conservation minded.

But "Of all and words of wisdom, it might have been". We are afraid that the future generations will look back on us and wonder why this generation was so negligent in protecting wild life. And we are not able to "miss the water until the well went dry".

All wading birds are now in more or less peril, and the STATE AUDUBON SOCIETY, is working with the Governor and many interested citizens to see what can be done. We are happy to say that at least one area has been set aside as a SANCTUARY. "Through the cooperation and agreement between the CORONET PHOSPHATE CO. of Plant City, and the phosphate division of SMITH, DOUGLASS CO. INC. NORFOLK, VA. and the Fla. State Audubon Society, the first wild life sanctuary in central Florida designed primarily for the protection of the endangered WOOD IBIS, only number of the stock family in North America, has been established at the TENOROC MINE of the company at Lakeland."

This does not mean that other birds are excluded, but the Wood IBIS seems to be in most need of protection at this time. We have seen them for many years between here and Wauchula when the water was standing along the road sides, during the rainy season, and they are a beautiful sight to behold, especially when they rise to fly and display the black border under their great white wings.

They have a black watted head and fly with their neck and legs extended in the "Heron" style, and with its neck tucked back, there is also a white line and it has a red face and legs just tip of black on the wings.

We hope that precautions are being taken in time to keep this bird from joining the list of beautiful birds that have become extinct by carelessness.

Episcopal Church To Donate Nuclear Reactor

The Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, is one of the more than 10 thousand churches at home and abroad which are contributing funds towards the development of nuclear energy.

The Episcopal Church's gift of a nuclear reactor to be used for scientific and medical research at St. Paul's University and St. Luke's Hospital in Tokyo, Japan, was announced today.

Approved by the Church's General Convention last October, the reactor will be a "birthday present" from the Episcopal Church to the Nippon Seikai (Anglican Church in Japan), which is now celebrating its hundredth anniversary, and will be the second reactor and the first privately-owned one in that country.

The Japanese people and press have received the news of the project with "high hopes and enthusiasm," according to Douglas W. Overton, an Episcopalian who is Executive Director of the Japan Society, a non-profit organization of American and Japanese which seeks to foster cultural relations between the two countries. "They were unanimous in approving the idea, not only for what it can mean to the people of Japan, but also for the way in which it was advanced as a free, 'no strings attached' gift from Christians in America to their brethren in the Far East," he declared.

Mr. Overton stated that the gift would stimulate further theoretical research in all of Japan's 450 universities. In addition, he expressed his belief that it would probably increase both agricultural and industrial production, and that new medical techniques "can be introduced and brought to nearly one million people."

"This gift is the most imaginative expression of people-to-people relations between the United States and Japan to come to light in many years," he said. "It will be a dramatic witness to the belief we all hold, that we must work to beat our swords into plowshares. Providence has seen fit not only to reveal nuclear energy and its destructive powers to the world, but also to show the way to its uses for the betterment of man. We should be grateful that its recipients, a country of great promise, a leading university established in the Christian tradition, and a fine medical center, are prepared to receive this gift and put it to use."

Estimated cost of the reactor is $500,000. The Episcopal Church will contribute $300,000 towards this amount, and Japan's Fuji Electrical Company has subscribed the balance.

Students And Band To Parade For Youth Center

The Red Devil High School Band and students from the High School, Junior High, and elementary school will parade through the downtown area at 3 p. m. Saturday Day in celebration of the Avon Park Youth Center Development Association fund drive for the proposed new youth center building, according to Fred Davis, chairman of the fund drive.

The parade will end near the drive barometer at Main and Lake Avenues where a loud speaker will be installed for interviewing "students concerning their desire for a new, centrally located youth center."

"Many people have asked how the youth of the community feel about the project," Davis said, "and this will be a good way to publicly answer the question."
