Winter Guest Club News

A rather quiet week just passed by, but offering much in the way of excitement for us to scribble about. It was the weather of course giving us copious showers and pretty warm sunshine. You don't feel like pushing blocks around the courts in a deluge nor even in a sprinkle, nor when the Florida sun beats a merry tattoo on your back. You seek to the shelter of the clubhouse porch, there to sit and chin awhile if anybody else is there to chin with.

There we were sitting on a morning of last week along with several other ancients (and honorables of course) when the question of respective ages came up. Says one "I'm eighty-five and a half". Says another: "I'm in my eighty-ninth year!" "By golly," says another, "I sure hope that when I get to be as old as you fellows I'll be as chipper and as up and coming." Well, we all agreed, even if we didn't exactly say so, that the recipe for a hale old age is early party and not too much hard labor along the way.

And of course sitting in Florida and joining A. P. Winter Guest Club before you are quite worn out helps a lot.

While chinning thus and so passing the time pleasantly we noticed a car come in with a well known couple who got out with five gallon jugs in their hands. No, not 5-gallon jugs but five jugs each holding a gallon. They filled them with water from the house spout, chatted pleasantly a moment and then shoved off for home. It seems they live down the road a piece where the well water isn't too good, so they get their drinking water here. Good idea and good water too. Seeing them reminded us of seeing a gentleman last year bring a 5-gallon Demijohn to the club, fill it with water, and then because of its weight to hold it along on the ground towards his car. Very good that was until it hit someone's head when, oh my countrymen, what a smash there was! The water spilled all over the place, and the poor man had to go home and face the wife with only a busted demijohn. Well, accidents can happen to the best of us and often do.

But Saturday's weather was just right, bringing out a goodly number of aspirants for fame that evening. Two tournaments were played, main and secondary, commonly known as consolation. Top honors went to Mrs. Park and Mrs. Warner, consolation honors to Mrs. Pickell (yes, Mrs. Pickell again) and Bill Johnson. And so ended the week, a quiet week on the whole but rather pleasant. So says The Stroller.

Friends of Captain Dalton E. Brady were saddened by his sudden death at Walker Memorial Hospital on Friday, Sept. 4. He will especially be missed by his neighbors on Lake Lillian where he often walked and visited with them.

He enlisted in the army and saw service in the Spanish American War, During World War I he attained the rank of captain and resigned his commission in 1920. In 1927 he re-enlisted and regained his rank and saw service in World War II. Capt. Brady's last post was in Jacksonville with the recruiting service. He had an outstanding army record and had received several medals from Gen. John Pershing for bravery. At the risk of his own life he saved several of his comrades.

He and Mrs. Brady moved to Lakeland to make their home when he retired from the army. In 1938 he published "Drifting Twigs". Capt. Brady joined the Seventh Day Adventist Church in 1931 and for the last six years he and his wife have made their home in an apartment in Walker Memorial Sanitarium. He was a member of the local Adventist Church, the American Legion,

Sebring City Council Report

At regular session of Sebring City Council last night, all members were present. First in order was the financial report, which showed $1,094.29 in the General Fund; $1,074.00 in the S&T Fund, and $1,417 in the Sewer Service Fund.

After reading of previous minutes, Councilman Holliman reported that he and Councilman Schaeffer had conferred with the Sebring Utilities Commission, at which time the Commission had agreed to provide surplus money to balance the City Budget. Proposed inspection of the Commission books which will take possibly a 60-day period will take place around the first of the year, instead of at present. Council voted to approve this report.

Council President Pillinger next recommended that Sup. T. Burns be instructed to dismantle the old Sewer Lift Station, salvage all material possible and store same for repair use. Council voted to approve this report.

Councilman Schaeffer then reported that the wiring installed in the new Sewer Lift Station by the Utilities Commission was not according to the specifications by the engineer, and he would not authorize payment of the bill. Policy of Council was agreed to be that Utility bills accumulate and be settled at the end of the fiscal year.

Next discussed was the repair of the lighting cables now out of order on N. Lakeside Dr., causing dark streets. Duration of the Utility Commission, said he believed repairs were charged to the City. Councilman Schaeffer moved that a new switch be put in for existing lights, and when the underground fails again, to put in mercury vapor lighting. Aye vote. He brought an engineer who gave facts concerning the installation of mercury vapor lights from the Circle to where the Alternate HWY. 27 turns left from N. Lakeside. Briefly, the lights should be staggered, about 120 feet apart, between 28 and 30 feet high, using wood poles for economy, and would cost approximately $8400 for the installation. Next report was of the Hospital Committee; the amount of money needed for a 50 bed hospital costing approximately $413,000.00 and added cost for equipment was discussed as basis for placing an added 5 per cent tax on the utilities, the money so raised to be held in reserve for the Hospital. No action was taken except to provide for a special meeting at a later date on the matter.

A kindergarten given free service to children in Highlands Homes was proposed by Miss Lillian Hires in a letter to Council requesting space in the Administration Building in that area for that purpose. Council was very happy to grant the request.

Plans were set up for the creation of a Charter Board of 9 members who will be elected by the citizens at the City election in December. These members will then proceed to formulate a new City Charter which will not depend upon the State Legislature for approval, but will, in effect, be the action of the people themselves.

Speaking Of Ducks

By Bird Woman

In our recent article about ducks in general, we wrote that certain species are deep water feeders and have the little flap of skin on the hind foot which enables them to dive deep for food, but the species we discussed now, does not have this little flap, and consequently in a shallow feeder.

The common Mallard, is no doubt the best known and easiest recognized of all ducks, for it is the origin of most of our domestic ducks, and is quite easily tamed. And may be found over most of the world's surface, with the exception of South America, Australia, and parts of Asia and Africa, both hemispheres have at one time abounded with these beautiful birds.

In breeds from the middle west of states, south to southern California, and north to the Arctic Circle; also over the greater part of northern Asia and Europe. In southern Greenland a slightly different form is resident.

But where ever found, they are a typical high-flying, swift flying "river ducks", they seem to prefer to live on fresh water, but if they are found on salt water, it will be along the shore where aquatic life insects and plants are plentiful, being shallow feeders they may be seen when feeding with their heads and necks below the water and in an up position.

In the early days of the west, the streams and lakes were covered with these mallards, but as civilization crept westward and the farms began to be tilled, the water supply became scarce and so did the ducks, without conservation laws, many were slaughtered uselessly, and as with all migrating birds, when people took advantage of them and as they migrated such a distance it left them exposed to many different areas of hunters, and as they would land at night to feed and rest, they were always enemies at hand to reduce the number.

Naturally a conservative hunter wishes to see game have a fair deal, and Wild Life organizations have taken steps to protect game, so that there will always be plenty of it to hunt, even if this seems to be a selfish idea, it has benefited wild game. A few years ago about the time for the northern migration, ducks from different areas were caught and dipped in different colored harmless dye, so that it wouldn't be necessary to kill the bird and look at a tag attached, to know where it had spent the winter, this dye would last until the bird molted, and no doubt many people thought they were "seeing things" when they saw a foul on a stream or lake that looked like a certain species only it would be all yellow or possible green or purple. I do not recall just which color was used, but there was quite a furor among people who were not familiar with what was going on.

For many years birds of various kinds have been trapped and tagged, so that anyone killing one of these birds or finding the dead body of one, could report to the wild life organization which tagged it, and in that way a great amount of knowledge has been gained about the wanderings of many birds, and the areas where they spent their summers and nested.

In fact a private individual may get permission to tag birds, and it has become quite an interesting and profitable hobby for many. But it takes much time and an endless amount of patience.

We have been told by a noted Ornithologist, that mallards migrating to the north from the marshes of Louisiana and Texas, often pass over Florida on their track north and often stop to rest and feed. When we look at the map we are amazed to see the detour they must make to visit us.

With all the advancement humanity has made in so many fields, yet we still do not know all that we would like to know about the ways and habits of our birds. Some use a direct route as if they had a compass, others follow the shore line and make a few mile off shore, but unless storms interfere, each and every one has its own fly way, and bird lovers in various sections of the country gather at the same time and place to watch certain birds pass over on their way to warmer climates, and they rest during the day, others fly by day and rest at night.

The mallards come to us in Oct. or late Nov. and return north to nest in March, it seems that a few who must not be physically fit to migrate, do not nest in Fla., but the main body of them do migrate. The mallard is a most common duck, and nothing in the way of grain or small animal life comes amiss, and it has a habit that no other duck seems to indulge to the same extent, and that is to go into the fields where the grain has been harvested and "clean" the grain that has been wasted. We believe hunting is called a sport, if there is any sportsmanship about this, we do not seem to be able to recognize it. The mallard is one of our beautiful ducks, naturally the drake is more colorful, he has a bright green head, yellow bill and a small white ring around his neck dividing this vivid green from the brown color of the chest which joins a light grayish under body. The back grows from a light gray to almost black on the rump and a fan of white feathers making of the tail, then the darker wings with the meet of a band of bright blue feathers bordered with a narrow band of white.

As usual the female is less colorful, having what looks like brown feathers overlapping a lighter lining, her head is light and the bill is orange. No white collar, her only adornment being the same type of bright blue in set band in the wings, which the male possesses. Like all ducks their feet are webbed, and in the case of the mallard are an orange shade. Any one thinking he can improve on the Wonderful Creator's coloring and blending of colors to make a beautiful bird yet camouflage it to melt in with its surroundings, should take a handful of feathers and see what he can do, to improve on the mallard.

Back To School

Vacation ends for 1,068,922 Florida youngsters this month. This is the first time over a million students have answered the school bell in 144 school centers over the state. For 121,722 it will be a new experience according to present estimates.

"The sign to slow down is out" says Carol Lane, woman's travel director of Shell Oil Company and sponsor of the National Safety Council's Carol Lane Awards. "Let's all try to keep the roads safe for everybody."

"HOW TO LIVE LIFE"

By: ALAN R. STUART
Minister First Methodist Church Little David, visiting in the home of a neighbor, was given a piece of bread and butter. He smiled and said a polite, "Thank you."

"I like to hear little boys say 'Thank you,'" the neighbor said. "Well," said David, after a little thought, "if you would like to quit definite about the number that can be killed per day by a hunter, and we think these laws are enforced more stringently than most conservation laws for the wild life organizations are lack of it."

We have always felt that game birds are not given a fair chance by most hunters, they are content to match wits with the birds, but enforce wooden ducks, painted like ducks, that would deceive even another human, and then let them float on the water while they hide in a "blind", and with artificial "calls" to attract the birds to settle on the stream where they can slaughter them. We believe hunting is called a sport, if there is any sportsmanship about this, we do not seem to be able to recognize it.

The mallard is one of our beautiful ducks, naturally the drake is more colorful, he has a bright green head, yellow bill and a small white ring around his neck dividing this vivid green from the brown color of the chest which joins a light grayish under body. The back grows from a light gray to almost black on the rump and a fan of white feathers making of the tail, then the darker wings with the meet of a band of bright blue feathers bordered with a narrow band of white.

Women Realize Need For Water Softening

Manufacturers of home water conditioning appliances complain that modern nation's women for having recognized need for treating water for home use.

Modern design of advanced modern automatic water using appliances for the home has given the homemaker a much wider range of fabric protection in automatic washers, greater protection of china and glassware in automatic dishwashers, along with a broad range of temperature control to conserve water heating costs.

Today's homemaker has recognized the need to condition water for modern appliances by either using partially effective packaged water conditioning products, or through the installation of modern water softener appliances in the home.

Manufacturers of water softener appliances are offering to condition the total water supply in the home. They stress the value and need to soften or condition water for home use by either continuing to use partially effective packaged products, or by the installation of a water softener appliance. They advise continued need for the modern home in order to allow all other water using appliances to function at their peak efficiency.

Enlisted men in the Continental Marines of 1775 to 1785 were called to serve in the army of the United States. They were called to serve in the army of the United States. They were called to serve in the army of the United States.

Although the heart serves as the pump which keeps blood circulating through the body, the blood which passes through the four chambers doesn't feed it. The heart is a tremendously hard-working muscle, and it demands its own supply of rich fresh blood, coursing through a network of arteries going through the heart to nourish it.

When a major "tunnel" leading to the city of the heart is blocked, that part of the heart instantly begins starving. Heart attack follows.

Scarlike tissue forms on the inner walls of the arteries as they roughen and narrow. Eventually, the opening closes, or a blood clot blocks it—and the supply of oxygen-carrying blood to a portion of the heart is suddenly cut off.

Information On Protection At
Hurricane Time

If you observe the following precautions you need have little fear of an approaching storm.

1. If you feel insecure in your home, go to your nearest Red Cross shelter. Evacuate exposed beaches and islands only. Evacuation orders may not go off.
2. Take blankets and pillows to shelter. If special diets or baby formula are needed, take materials with you. Only emergency rations will be provided.
3. Pets cannot be taken to shelters, so be sure to leave plenty of food and water for them.
4. If you are staying home, remove or lash awnings and close shutters. If you are boarding up, use strong lumber and nail securely. Brace French doors.
5. Collect and place indoors some objects, such as garbage cans, yard tools, porch furniture.
6. Check lamps and flashlight batteries. Check swimming pools, swimming facilities and be sure adequate fuel is on hand. Lay in a supply of canned foods and milk. Electric power may be damaged or shut off as a safety precaution if winds reach hurricane force.
7. Conserve refrigeration. Turn your box and freezer to cold and keep as long as possible. Only when absolutely necessary and close quickly. Refrigerators and freezers will stay much longer if these precautions are taken.
8. Sterilize your bathtub and other containers and fill with water.
9. Fill your car with gasoline.
10. As the storm progresses, listen to your radio for frequent references from the weather bureau and the Disaster Committee of your Red Cross. These are of great help.
11. While storm winds blow, play inside. Keep a door or window open on the side away from the wind. Be sure to close it if the wind changes direction and open on the other side.
12. The flashlight, if possible, a gas of wind might upset a lamp or candle and cause a fire.
13. If the storm center passes your area, there will be a calm period or lull lasting from several minutes to half an hour. Wind and rain may completely cease, but do not be fooled. Do not go out. The wind will resume from the opposite direction, often with greater force than before.
14. After the storm, be cautious of every move. Do not touch fallen or low hanging wires of any kind under any circumstances. Avoid puddles with fallen wires in them. Watch out for weakened limbs, porches, bridges and so forth which might collapse.
15. Use your phone for emergencies only. Jammed emergency calls for police, firemen, doctors, and Red Cross Disaster Unit calls.
16. If damage is widespread, do not jam the telephone system to report interruptions in individual service. Report individual trouble only after service are back on in your neighborhood.
17. Do report immediately hazardous conditions, such as live electric wires and broken gas and water mains.
18. Use extreme caution with emergency lighting or cooking devices to avoid fire hazards.
19. If you need help before or after the storm, watch for police, Red Cross disaster workers, or all Red Cross Headquarters.
