Immunization Figures Given By Health Dept.

The results of the recent immunization survey in Lake Wales County were given by the State Department of Health in cooperation with the local County Health Dept. have been received. The survey showed that 51 percent of the preschool children, 67 percent of school age children and 40 percent of the persons aged 15 to 64 are adequately immunized. Although the figures are fairly good overall, we should have 100 percent on all persons 40 and under immunized.

In the breakdown of the population in ages from 0 to 14, the survey showed that 51 percent of the persons in the same age group in the colored race are immunized.

The general trend of polio outbreaks today is that it is being kept under control. A large number of immunizations with slight spread into areas of adult immunizations. In order for our community to prevent the possibility of an outbreak we must work on the low immunization groups. Polio immunizations are given in room Avon Park Clinic every Wednesday from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m. Help us preserve your health by getting the proper immunizations.

Candidates Vie For Votes; Costs Open

Mall Rally Planned By Avon Jaycees

Avon Park's political warriors have acted down to a month of campaigning for the September 12 city election following the qualifying and registration deadline last Friday.

Two candidates are in the mayor's race and six are seeking two available council seats, all of which will be vacated September 30.

Mayor E. A. Delaney, seeking re-election will be faced by present Councilman E. O. Blanford. Both qualified only minutes before the deadline.

Blanford appeared at city hall shortly before 6 o'clock with his three-dollar qualifying fee and when emerged from the hall was met by Delaney enroute to qualify.

Blanford is completing his first term as councilman. He is a former member of the Avon Park Police Department. Delaney is seeking his fifth consecutive two-year term.

In the council race Sam McKenzie, incumbent, leads a tie of six candidates. Lucy E. Bennett—a veteran of previous political wars, but never victorious—was the last to file for the two-year post. Others who filed earlier were former councilman J. B. Sparks, H. M. (Coke) Fawcett, E. E. Shearer and S. W. Woodard.

According to Jaycees President Harry Hood, the club is planning to sponsor a political rally on the Mall on September 9, the Saturday preceding the election on Tuesday.

The total number of voters eligible was not available, as County Registration Supervisor Roland X. Drott was in the process of preparing the voting roll. Voting machines will be employed.

Although Ed Touchton will work out with the team, it is not definite that he will be eligible this season. Ed's eligibility became mixed up when he transferred from Avon Park to Holmes Military Academy and back again.

Other hopeful candidates who have seen action with either the varsity or the B squad are Earl Matthews, Tom Bengtson, Bob Lane, Ben Beisock, Robert Dugan, Jim Singletary, Doyle Griffin, Lance Pedgett, Jim Bob Madrox, Leonard Sullivan, Billy Mirselle, Bobby Bates, Bill Ward, Randy Hewitt, and Don Collier.

Head football coach Guy Franza and line coach Guy Garrett will be joined by "B" squad coach Lee Maness and eighth graders who are conducting drills with the Red Devils through next week.

Last season the Red Devils won the Ridge Conference championship and were runner-up in the state playoffs.

Eight seniors graduated from the squad last year. Guy Milton, Raymond Hall, Clayton Jenkins, Don Guy, Jimmy Porter, Dick Nagel, Dale Batson, and a Milton Stokes.

Would Serve As Protection From Storms

Avon Park residents who desire to construct fallout shelters can do so without fear of additional taxation, thanks to action by the city council Monday night.

The council decided to waive all fees for permits and inspection of such shelters. They were further by saying that fallout shelters would not be assessed as building improvements, whether incorporated as part of a new home or built apart from an existing building.

Council were of the thought that a fallout shelter might also come in handy in the event of a tropical storm, which was witnessed here last fall.

Council chairman is thinking regarding water skiing on Lake Verona. At Monday's meeting the council decided to work with residents in exercising all necessary safety precautions.

A letter to the council outlined the wishes of the citizens of Sebring, who are in the process of several interrelated parafactions agreed to work with each other regarding safety rules and regulations and also asking to continue on the lake.

In other action closely related to Lake Verona, council voted to contribute $100 to the Avon Park Firemen's Association toward the completion of recreation facilities at the city beach on the lake. A resolution accompanied the $100 expressing the council's gratitude for work done by the organization.

Following a number of complaints, council voted to hire a dog catcher in an effort to limit the number of stray dogs. A notice of public hearing on this subject will appear in this week's Sun.

Five from five companies for a motor grader were opened, but no action was taken, pending a study of the bid.

Griffin Group Makes Changes

Ben Hill Griffin, Jr., President of the Ben Hill Griffin Foundation, announced changes in his organization this week which involved the management of two divisions.

Griffin announced that John A. Giddens, Jr., who previously had the dual responsibility of managing the foundation's business affairs as well as supervisor of field operations, would now devote full time to the management of field operations and administrative matters.

Giddens was responsible for the fruit procurement action of the organization.

To take over the management of the Fresh Fruit operation, Griffin pointed out that he felt very fortunate in being able to hire J. T. Williford who would bring over 25 years of experience to the organization.

Williford graduated from Avon Park High School and from 1939 to 1961, with the exception of three years spent in service, was employed by the Lake Rydal Packing Association in Avon Park. Williford then spent six years as a salesman for the Florida Citrus Exchange. During the past four years he has been salesman of the Lake Ridge Packing Association in Tavares.

Williford has already taken over the responsibilities of his new job and is now located in Frostproof. In the very near future he expects to be joined by his wife Dorothy.

Giddens pointed out that this was a move to strengthen the organization of Ben Hill Griffin, Inc. in order that it might better perform the functions for which it was intended and better serve growers in this area as well as its customers.

A DIFFERENT KIND OF ADVERTISING

Advertisements prepared by Mobil Oil Company won a George Washington Honor Medal from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. The ads in question weren't designed to sell a product. They are part of a community relations program being conducted by the company's refineries, and appeared originally in local newspapers.

One, for instance, showed pictures of the mayor and councilmen of Augusta, Kansas, described the progress and planning that have gone into the city's growth, and complimented both the volunteers and the salaried officials who apply time and talent to city government. Another, which appeared just before election day, showed two refinery employees, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, shaking hands.

The Freedoms Foundation chose these advertisements for high honors on the grounds that they helped to "bring about a better understanding of the American Way of Life." That understanding is vital to every business and industry, as well as to every individual. The whole future of this country depends on it. It would be good indeed if more and more businesses would devote a part of their advertising dollars to fostering industry-community relations and the preservation of our freedoms.

CRACKER POLITICS

By Allen Morris
TALLAHASSEE.—People all over Florida are being quietly asked these days to commit themselves to the '64 gubernatorial candidacy of Jacksonville's hustling Mayor Haydon Burns.

Burns can't do much publicly beyond showing himself at non-partisan gatherings, talking on such audience-pleasing subjects as the updated Jacksonville Story and Communism vs. Democracy.

(Nearly every Florida city wants to do a better job of renewal and development, and Jacksonville has been strikingly successful. And Mayor Burns' seven missions to Europe and Latin America enable him to speak authoritatively on what he saw.)

But if Burns can't ask support openly, he has a 3,400-member Burns Bitter group of Duval counties to whip up interest in him. This group is an outgrowth of the 87 Burns boosters who fanned out from Jacksonville in the '60 campaign.

Burns was the heart, soul, and brains of last year's introductory drive for votes. No one really recognized the appeal of his approach as well as Burns himself, and many of those who supported him then did so out of a variety of reasons that resulted in the expenditure of less than maximum energy.

Even some of those nearest him in the campaign organization were dumbfounded by the strength of his finished, a fact which could have embittered Burns if he were the sort of fellow who wasted time lamenting over what might have been. Instead, always a realist, he forgot yesterday and began planning for tomorrow.

The figures from the first Democratic primary of '60 speak for themselves: Burns received 166,322 votes to 193,507 for Farris Bryant and 186,228 for Doyle E. Carlton, Jr. Back those three leaders were John M. McCarty with 147,010, Fred O. Dickinson with 115,020, Ted David with 80,007, and a field of four other candidates with 50,623.

Obviously, it wouldn't have required much extra effort, even if all county ties to have put Burns in the second primary if such had been the situation. Burns would have been the beneficiary of that special lift which the element of surprise nearly always gives.

Burns has one more political river to cross before the '64 gubernatorial campaign. If he must face Jacksonville's own voters in May, 1965, when he will be a candidate for a fifth term as Mayor, Burns will find it is no secret to politicians that supporters of other '64 gubernatorial potentials are planning to do some skin diving in the deep water.

majority contest, for this almost certainly would finish Burns off as a state-wide contender. Those supporters will try if they can to cause him to come a cropper then. But this task must be approached with a high degree of delicacy for voters usually react in local elections.

By finishing as strong as he did, Burns was helped rather than hurt by the '60 defeat. He demonstrated that he could get votes statewide. He earned a statewide acquaintanceship, and he learned the identity of some people in each community who would be helpful to him in a future campaign. Now his Bitters are trying to get those people committed to Burns.

Too, the sort of defeat that Burns experienced fits into the pattern of Farris Warren, Dan McCarthy and Farris Bryant, all of whom were elected governor the second time out.

Burns regards Dickinson, the West Palm Beach lawyer who finished fifth in the '60 field, as obviously a repeat candidate. He thinks there were indications that Senator Scott Kelly easily of running. And while he can't think of anyone else new, Burns feels sure Dickinson will have company in '64.

The mayor seems inclined to share the Tallahassee feeling that Dickinson's chairmanship of Governor Bryant's Council of 100 hasn't turned out to be the political vehicle it first appeared. But this could change if the Council, clearly untested, pulls some rabbit out of its hat.

Burns was 49 last March 17. He weighs 167 to 172 pounds, stands six feet, two and a half inches, and is a realist. He is a fulltime job, and he's usually in his City Hall office by 8:30. He's still a business consultant, with two or three clients, but no separate office.

In addition to speaking engagements within Florida, he's much in demand elsewhere, largely by virtue of his office as president of the United States Conference of Mayors. For example, he'll be in Seattle later this month.

Haydon Burns learned much from the '60 campaign. One of those lessons was that the public likes a candidate who is somewhat like themselves. The famous Burns straight pompadour has given way to typical part. His hair presented another problem which also has been cured. It was so soft that he used vaseline to hold it in place. This glinted under television's bright lights, and helped spread the nickname of "Slit," which some called him derisively. Now he uses another hair dressing which accomplishes the same purpose of grooming without shining.

Letters To The Editor

Avon Park, Fla. August 10, 1961
 Dear Editor:
 Would you be kind enough to print this in the Editors Mail box.

I have been reading where our county paid bills for the Rucker girl amounting to over five thousand dollars.

Now I feel very sorry the girl had that awful accident and the family has so much expense. But I have read in the past of fund raising for her.

Now I do not feel it fair to other poor widows and others like Rucker, to mortgage their homes and go into debt to pay for their own hospital and doctor bills.

The full amount was over $14,000 allowed for that kind of relief, yet one person received over a third of it. There should be a limit on any one person the amount of relief they receive so it can be divided among more sick folks. I know one widow in our city that had a lot of expense from cancer operations and treatments, and only a daughter to help her. Yet she had to mortgage her home.

I understand Mr. Rucker has a steady job with the county. I have heard a lot of remarks from citizens wondering just why one person is allowed so much and they have steady income. I think our County Commissioners should wake up and have to do like other poor folks and widows do.

Then relief fund runs short and some less fortunate suffer.

Dry Weather Blamed For Changing Pattern of Honey Bees Last Year

GAINESVILLE (Special)—Extremely dry weather last winter and spring can be blamed for the fluctuating pattern that characterized Florida's honey production the past 12 months.

In reviewing records for the fiscal year just ended, F. M. Packard, chief apiculturist for the Division of Plant Industry, declared that the weather was a heavy contributor to the fact that 1960-61 turned out to be an average year for the state's honey producers.

In 1960, Florida ranked third nationally in honey produced, with 277,000 colonies of bees storing up 19,340,000 pounds of honey, an increase of 5,263,000 pounds over the previous year.

In his report for the fiscal year, Packard stated:

"A short, scattered citrus bloom during the inclement weather made the production of orange blossom honey variable. Strong colonies gathered a good surplus of honey, while in a weakened condition from adverse wintering reared only brood and gathered very little surplus."

"A small crop of tithi honey was produced to had weather during the blooming period. The tupelo honey crop was good in some locations, while in others only a half crop was realized. Most beekeepers gathered a fair crop of gallberry (leak) honey."

Due to extremely dry weather, saw palmetto produced a bumper crop and at the present time black mangrove is yielding well in most locations.

The surplus yield per colony went up from 51 pounds per hive in 1959 to 70 pounds last year. The 1960 total wholesale value of honey produced in Florida was $2,774,000, and beeswax was valued at $150,000.

During the 1960-61 year, Division apiculturists checked 102,288 colonies of bees in 4,991 apiaries located in 62 counties. Of this total, 1,271 colonies were found to be infested with American foulbrood disease and destroyed by burning, Packard reported. In discussing the disease, he said that records for 1959 revealed that 17 states spent $500,000 on apiary inspection for control of foulbrood, with a value of $500,000 being fixed for colonies of bees destroyed through state law enforcement.

The Division issued permits allowing 20,294 colonies of bees and equipment to be moved into Florida from other states. In addition, 75 special permits allowed point-to-point movement within the state and 545 permits were issued to Florida beekeepers for the transportation of colonies.

Figures for the 1960-61 year indicate that inspectors were busiest in Polk County where 10,249 colonies of bees were examined, and in Duval County, where 9,814 colonies in Orange County, 9,458 in Volusia, 9,438 in St. Johns, 7,809 in Lake, 7,607 in Hendry, 6,543 in St. Louis, 6,141 in Wakulla, 5,961 in Duval and 5,787 in Gulf.

There are 3,461 bee colonies in Highlands County.

Capacity Crowd Attends Citrus Growers' Institute At McQuarrie

GAINESVILLE (Special)—Expansion in the 60's set the theme for the three-day 26th annual Citrus Growers' Institute at McQuarrie.

A near-capacity crowd from throughout the citrus producing areas of Florida listened to predictions for and problems of anticipated expansion of the citrus industry during the next 10 years.

Problems of increased population and higher land taxes in relation to citrus acreage were discussed, as well as new developments in the search for a additional land, previously thought unfit for citrus production.

Dr. Al Wilson, Minute Maid Corporation, pointed out that growers will have to use less desirable land in the future to keep production level with demand. He outlined land preparation, erosion and water control problems which are now being dealt with by citrus plantings.

An entire morning's program was devoted to this subject of citrus plantings on flatwoods soils. Dr. F. E. Gardner, USDA, Orlando; Dr. W. F. Spencer, Citrus Experiment Station, Lake Alfred; and Dr. H. J. Reitz, head of the Citrus Station, discussed rootstock, fertilization and other cultural practices on flatwoods soils.

Dr. Reitz said he doesn't feel too many fertilizer recommendations changes will be made on flatwoods soils, pointing out that present recommendations seem adequate if adapted to fit the particular situations. He did point out that lime and copper requirements will differ from well-drained soils on flatwoods soils.

Dr. Reitz cited drainage, irrigation and erosion as major problems in the search for new land. He predicted that as much as 20 per cent of Florida's citrus production in 10 years may come from flatwoods soils. Further predictions for industry expansion were heard in an outlook report by Dr. W. E. Black, marketing specialist with the Florida Citrus Commission. He predicted that Florida citrus will account for three-fourths of the nation's citrus production increase in the next 10 years, stressing the need for more effective marketing research.

The day of the 100-million-box orange crop is almost here, according to Dr. Black, but may not come next season due to extended drought conditions. Looking ahead, he predicts an orange crop of 135-million boxes in Florida by 1970, provided there is no major calamity or price collapse.

Turning to present problems of the industry, Dr. J. F. L. Childs, USDA, Orlando, reported on research with the citrus blight problem. He said that the term "unsatisfactory" could be used to sum up research results on this problem. This disease is causing a 1-million 500-thousand dollar annual loss to the Florida citrus industry. As of today, no effective method of vectoring trees has been developed.

The actual cause of blight is unknown, so control is also unknown. It is felt by some that it may be a virus disease, spread by flying insects. Dr. Childs' recommendation is to remove affected trees just as soon as the disease has been definitely identified. Commissioner of Agriculture Doyle Conner told assembly.

"Don't Chunk That Brick!"

...let him who is without sin do it." Of course we live in an imperfect world but we have no right to point a guilty finger. The cynic's seat is filled with accusers. The finger of scorn does but little good. This is the way of the Pharasee, the hypocrite. It is characteristic of a vain, boastful person who thinks everybody else makes mistakes but himself. Are you one of those low-principled, finger pointing, chunk throwers? Then, it is time for you to straighten up and show your compassion for your fellows. The sinner needs your help. He has to be understood. He requires assistance. He must be healed. We are, each of us, our brother's keeper. We cannot afford to betray God, nor our brother. The penalty is too great. The American Indian would ask us to walk a moon in his moccasins before we criticize another. What a plan they used to bridle the tongues of the weak... the boisterous. Neighborliness is at the heart of democracy. Then, since we believe in men, in all men, let us help each other. Let us invite someone to worship with us in church this week.

President King read a letter to the Council regarding Boating and Skiing on Lake Verona, which letter is filed in the City Hall. There was a group of citizens present to discuss openly the problem and after much discussion it was decided that the citizens would do their part in keeping and obeying all rules and regulations to make boating and skiing as safe as possible on Lake Verona and the City will do its part to also make this recreation as safe as possible and that boating and skiing would continue on Lake Verona.

Mr. Johnson appeared before the Council with the problem of stray dogs and after much discussion the Clerk was instructed to advertise for applications for "Dog Catcher" and see if this might clear up the dog situation in some manner.

Mr. McKenzie made a motion,

The City received bids from the following Companies for a Motor Grader:

Richardson Tractor Company - P. O. Box 11216, Tampa 16, Fla.

As they will serve not only as a fallout shelter, but will come in handy in case of a tropical storm. The motion unanimously passed.

There was a discussion on removing remaining part of the City Dock on Lake Polk and the Chair instructed Mr. Ziegler to remove same as quickly as possible.

Sports Program Serves Students At New School

Florida's new state university is placing accent on physical education and intramural sports deferring indefinitely plans for an intercollegiate athletic program.

An official policy statement by University of South Florida President John S. Allen placed emphasis on activities "designed to serve all students" rather than benefit the few. First priority in the development of an athletic program will go to the required physical education program.

"With limited staff and facilities in the Physical Education Division," the statement continued, "it is evident that intercollegiate competition cannot start before the University graduates its first class and becomes accredited. How soon after this such programs will be started depends on available facilities and staff. Sports to be initiated at that time will be those that do not depend on gate receipts from spectators for their financial support."

An authority says that only teenage girls understand teenage boys. But, Professor, as auto doesn't understand either and that's whose company they keep most.

Fla. Patrolmen Busy During The Month of May

TALLAHASSEE. — Florida state troopers spent 12,571 working man days on our highways during the month of May, the Florida Highway Patrol said in a periodic report today.

They traveled 1,769,227 miles while on duty, arrested 11,082 traffic violators, gave out 22,702 faulty equipment notices and got 9,973 convictions of cases.

Left pending were 23,008 cases while there were 1,540 dismissals from previous months.

In safety education, the men gave 265 safety talks—including 10,836 minutes of time, attendance totaled 64,964. Appearances included civic clubs, schools—both civilian and military, and 3,000 radio programs.

Plus 5,341 radio spots produced at the local level.

Property damage climbed to $1,195,341 in the 2,141 accidents recorded and 14 were killed while crashes injured 1,111. These are wrecks investigated by the Florida Highway Patrol, and is NOT the state's grand total for the period.

In the worst section—the men who hold to a lawful minimum the state's highways—46,624 trucks were weighed, 686 were found overweight and their owners assessed $10,903.

On the accommodation side of the ledger, state troopers gave first aid to 124, helped change 2,649 flats, found 1,817 motorists out of gas, and a variety of sundry others for a total 8,781 assistance rendered.

Students Urged To Get Checkup Before School

JACKSONVILLE. — A physical examination and immunization check-up for children before school starts was urged by the State Board of Health this week.

"At this time when we are being reminded from all sides of the need to keep our children need for starting back to school it is equally important that we make sure the children are ready from the health standpoint," said Dr. L. Parks, Director of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health.

"Private physicians and public health authorities are agreed that every child should have a physical examination and check on his immunization status before he starts to school in September. The examination would determine whether any defect is present and should be treated. Protection against certain diseases is accomplished through inoculation or vaccination. Before starting in the first grade the child should have the basic immunizations for diphtheria, lockjaw, whooping cough, smallpox, and polio.

An already immunized child may need booster injections for these. Parents should determine if the child's immunization and examination schedule are up-to-date, and act accordingly. Children entering school need health protection as much as they need school supplies, wearing apparel, and food," Dr. Parks concluded.

County Cattlemen Plan For Third Annual Steer Sale

The Highlands County Cattleman's Association announced this week that plans are rapidly shaping up for the Third Annual Highlands County Steer Sale scheduled for September 9 at the Hardee County Livestock Market on September 9.

Carl McIntyre, chairman of the steer sale for the association said over 1100 head of steers and yearling heifers are being consigned to the sale, which will attract feed lot buyers from Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

The approximately 700 steers in the 400-500 pound class will be sold and another 400 yearlings ranging from 600-700 pounds will be sold. He also was happy over the increased number of cattleman who are taking part in the sale, which will attract feed lot buyers from Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

APHS Declined Foreign Student For School Term

Word received from Mrs. William Schuffert, Florida Representative for American Field Service, states that Avon Park was not granted a foreign student for this school term.

Everyone who has worked so hard and looked forward to having a foreign High School Senior here for this school year is disappointed. The Rotary Club was to have been the sponsoring group and the entire high school body began preparation last year to participate in this project.

Of the 1872 foreign students in the United States only 30 were allotted to Florida.

To quote from Mrs. Schuffert's letter to Mr. Wilbur, she states that, "The State Department has asked us to step up the effort and aim for 100 in Florida next year, which does so much to boost better world understanding among peoples." Thank you for all the work you did in Avon Park, the groundwork has been laid and next year we shall urge everyone to get in their family application by March, in order to give the New York office more time for placements.

THE AVON PARK SUN, AUGUST 17, 1961—PAGE 7

From The Office of James Haley

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Those who have been scheming for the nationalization of public education, finding themselves at least temporarily blocked by the Congress, now are threatening to use reprisals which in my opinion fall little short of political blackmail.

To coerce votes for a two and a half billion dollar federal school subsidy, these people are threatening to withdraw the 11-year old plan for helping "impacted" areas. They insist the two must be tied together in one package.

Impacted areas include districts where schools have been swamped by children whose parents have moved in to work for government installations. The federal payments actually are made in lieu of taxes, and do not constitute subsidies. However, all of these school districts would be in trouble.

Since the districts are widely scattered, the tactic of the schemers puts heavy pressure on many congressmen—some 200-odd in all. And all of this is done in the name of an emergency that does not actually exist—the alleged critical situation in our schools is nothing more than a mask for those who would federalize education.

While some of the poorer states may need some sort of help, and all have to sacrifice to pay for good schools, the propaganda concerning a national school emergency in progress to be faked by these facts: School expenditures have grown many times faster than enrollments. Average teaching loads have increased. The number of teachers still low in general, are rising considerably faster than the national average. Classroom are being constructed by the states and local governments without federal aid faster than would be scheduled with federal aid.

The general federal aid to education will be exposed for what it is by the fact that it contains the vote-catching device of providing cash for all states. This emphasis on the obvious fundamental aim of this campaign, which is to gradually take control of the schools away from local boards and turn it over to professional education bureaucrats. This would be accomplished by regulations which are bound to accompany subsidies.

If there were sincere desire to ease local school tax burdens, this could be accomplished without federal control or subsidy. The federal government could allow the taxpayer to deduct any amount paid in taxes during the tax year for the support and operation of the public schools. As an example, if a man owed Federal income tax in the amount of $100 but had paid $50 in school taxes during the year, he would have to pay only $50 in Federal income tax. If advocates of "Federal aid to education" are not interested in Federal control of our schools, why then do they not give support to one of the many bills before Congress which would allow income tax credit for school taxes paid? Such a bill as this could be passed.

Hepatitis Is Increasing In Sunshine State

JACKSONVILLE. — Infectious hepatitis is increasing in Florida, with some counties especially hard hit, but the state still is among the least affected in the country, the State Board of Health said today.

There were 933 reported cases through July compared with 603 through the similar period last year. The total last year was 1,107 against 545 for 1959.

The disease, caused basically by a virus transmitted when there is bad sanitation and inadequate personal hygiene, inflames the liver; can cause serious illness and even death. It has been rising over the nation since 1960 with the worst areas a group of western states and some Mississippi valley and eastern states.

Florida's rate per 100,000 at last check was 1.9 among the very lowest in the nation, and down a little from the first quarter of the year.

Dr. James O. Bond, Director of the Bureau of Preventable Diseases, said the disease runs in cycles of seven to eight years. Florida's last peak was in 1955 when 503 cases were reported. He said the reason for the 7-year cycle is that this is the period required to build up a sufficient number of susceptible victims. He said hepatitis is primarily spread through contamination by body discharges or things eaten or put in the mouth.

"Principle susceptibles are younger persons in general," he said. "Children usually have it and some do not even know it. Having the disease makes one immune thereafter."

"The incubation period of infectious hepatitis is 15 to 40 days. Another type is serum hepatitis. This comes from blood or blood products and can be transmitted by an unsterile hypodermic needle. The incubation period of this type is 60 to 90 days. This is not transmissible except by blood or blood products such as plasma."

Dr. Bond said some Florida counties with small populations have a very much higher hepatitis rate than some urban areas; a few heavily populated counties also have high rates.

"At present we have no explanation for this varied picture," he said. "However, rural counties in the 1955-59 average were hardest hit, and my first guess as to the reason would be less adequate sanitation in these areas." "As to the way it is spread, a number of Florida investigations have indicated to us that it is chiefly spread from person to person. During the last two years we have found only three outbreaks which came from a single source, such as an eating place."

"We have checked Florida shellfish and found no contamination. My own conclusion is that most cases are spread by personal contact with a prior case, but that an unknown amount result undoubtedly from contaminated food or water."

Illness can result in lengthy hospitalization, nausea, vomiting, and pain in the upper abdomen are symptoms. Fatigue and loss of appetite are almost always present. Sometimes the victim is jaundiced. Treatment generally is rest and nutritious food under a physician's care. Resuming activity too soon can cause a relapse. A badly damaged liver cannot be repaired.
