THE FARM FRONT

BY DOYLE CONNER
COMMISSIONER
FLORIDA
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

The farm people up in Pennsylvania are not missing any bets. Latest story from the Keystone state is indicative of how progressive educational, research and producer forces have joined up to put farming operations on a more profitable basis.

As reported by the agricultural agent in Montgomery county, Penn State's electronic brain was utilized for linear programming - a "mathematical method of maximizing farm income." To demonstrate the effectiveness of the new idea, two family-operated dairy farms were used.

Scores of details on the farming operations were assembled - size, soil fertility, labor limitations, amount of capital, extent of credit, production per cow, feed costs, price of milk, etc. These and many other facts were fed into the electronic brain.

According to the agent's report of the experiments, the device flashed, calculated, punched and out came the details of possible profitable farm organization. To an experienced dairyman it might not be surprising to learn that the basic answer in both cases indicated the most profit would be made by milking a large number of high producing dairy cows.

An interesting sidelight, however, is that in both instances low-profit poultry operations were dropped so that the owner's efforts could be concentrated on improving the dairy end of the business.

Turkey raising was dropped on farm A and cow numbers were gradually increased from 50 to 96. Use of 125 acres of cropland was adjusted, the large turkey pen was converted to a loafing area for cows, silage storage was added and grain was purchased for feed. The results were a spectacular increase in farm income with slightly less family labor and no additional hired help.

Application of the electronic brain's answer to farm B resulted in dropping a broiler raising operation, remodeling a 150-year-old barn to house 60 instead of 40 cows and using additional land for high producing silage crops.

"The need for effective farm management programs is acute in our county which borders Philadelphia," the county agent reports. "Farm real estate is valued from $400 to $2,000 an acre, taxes are high, as are other costs, but markets are good."

Then he adds the real clincher: "These facts necessitate topnotch management."

So, when you come right down to the bedrock of profitable farm operation, "topnotch management" is the answer and you don't need an electronic brain to figure that one out. It's the use of electronics to guide a progressive, intelligent farm manager that is interesting in the report from Pennsylvania. And I wouldn't be surprised to see this idea expanded greatly where such equipment is available to provide help to agriculture.

Industry is putting electronics to work in every conceivable fashion. Out in Washington state a packing equipment company is demonstrating a newly developed electronic "eyes", color readings are taken and averaged by the mechanism. Low color (for culls), fancy color and extra color fruit is separated and the packing house can turn out 4500 to 5500 boxes of carefully sorted fruit in a 7½ hour shift.

In Florida the citrus industry has been told by a manufacturer it has developed an electronic device to determine the juice and soluble solids contents of oranges without destroying the fruit. It claims the device is small enough to take into a grove for a field test of internal fruit quality.

If such a device really delivers the goods, it could go far in preventing heavy "dumping" of early season fruit that has failed to meet inspection requirements in the past after it had reached the packing house. There would be little excuse for picking citrus too early if an electronic tester could give a reliable report as to its condition.

Paul B. Dickman Farms at Ruskin, Florida, gets a two-page spread in Produce Marketing magazine, for its success in pioneering the quick movement of "consumer-Unit" packaged vegetables from farm to retail market.

Dickman's operation sends four refrigerated trucks twice weekly to about 300 stores within a 100-mile radius delivering vegetables which were picked and packaged the day before. That's what you'd call "farm fresh."

Dickman's success is another example of utilizing research to develop the highest possible efficiency. Soon after he started the present operation, his packing house was headquarters for U. S. Department of Agriculture and Florida Experiment Station specialists who spent two years there researching practically every facet of packaging.

APPEAL FOR OLD SHEETS

The Women of the First Baptist WMS are making an appeal for old sheets they can use in rolling bandages which are shipped to hospital missions in Africa. They can also use old garments, colored ones that have no black. Anyone having these old items are asked to phone the church office of Mrs. J. B. Coen to have them picked up.

Bones of the mastodons and Elephas Colombi have been found in the big cave at Florida's Silver Springs more than 60 feet below the surface.

Sebring Proving To Be Mecca For World-Wide Motor Racing

Sebring, Le Mans, Daytona, Monza, G.T., all names bandied about with abandon by todays manufacturers of popular priced cars for the American highway.

Tomorrow, these cars will be on the front line of the used car lots, today they are the plan of automobile sales promoters, with their ear to the ground, to give the American car buyer the feel that he, the car buyer, is at the wheel of one of the fastest machines on earth.

Chevrolet, Pontiac, Studebaker have added to their impressive array of car style names, such internationally famous racing circuits as Le Mans, France; Monza, Italy; Sebring, Florida; and the Daytona, Florida, high speed oval track circuit, on which drivers have given their lives, kissed off death in lightning swift manuevers, brought to their personal lives the tragedy of losing and the glory of a victor's crown. Monza, one of the high speed road and oval circuits of Italy, now rides on an agile Corvair Monza Special. Le Mans, France, home of the 24 hour race graces another high speed American product, the Pontiac "Le Mans Tempest". Studebaker, out of South Bend, Indiana, added to its list of styles, the Daytona" from the fastest racing oval in the United States.

Especially designed of interest to the road racing enthusiast is the "Sebring Corvair". Sebring, home of the internationally famous 12-Hour Endurance Race with only one other comparable race in the world, and that the 24 hours of Le Mans, France. Other makes using the initials G.T. (Grand Tourisimo) designating a body and engine design capable of taking the driver and road punishment that such a race as only, The Sebring 12-Hour Endurance Race can give to a car.

Racing cars that can stand the pace of the Sebring high speed enduro, after returning to their place of origin, are taken apart, stresses and strains noted, excessive wear measured out and drivers' reports of handling and faults all assimilated on paper, the fact noted, and tomorrow or a year later, the improved plans or ideas are part of the new "G.T.s", the "Sebrings" or the "Daytonas". Safer and faster from experience gained by such a race as the Sebring 12-Hour Endurance Race, coming up Saturday, March 24, the twelth in twelve steps to make driving safer and easier for today's highway drivers.

THE SIX

The new size Dodge Dart has the most powerful standard six engine in the business. It develops 145 horsepower from 225 cubic inches. It takes a V8 in other cars priced near Dart to keep up with it. Even then most of them can't. Dead weight and useless overhang have been all but eliminated in the '62 Dart. What results is an amazing power-to-weight ratio that makes any Dart-6 act like an eight. A very quick eight at that! This same six got better than 23 miles to the gallon in last year's Mobilgas Economy Run.

Frankly, we don't think anybody but a pro can get this kind of mileage. But it does give you an idea of the engine's potential. Repeated tests in the new size Dart prove that it will deliver at least 6% better gas economy than last year. See the new size Dodge Dart. There's no better value on the market.

Passion Play Opens Sunday

LAKE WALES — Sunday, February 11, has been set as the opening date for the 10th annual production of the Black Hills Passion Play.

Staged in a natural amphitheatre, Joseph Meier will again play the leading role of the Christus supported by 35 professional actors and nearly 125 local volunteer citizens.

Sponsored annually by the Passion Play Amphitheatre Corp., a non-profit organization of local citizens, this perhaps will be the last season for the production in Florida unless public support is increased over past years.

The 1962 schedule, ending Easter Sunday, calls for matinees on Wednesdays in February only. Regular performances have been set for each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 7:30 p. m. and 6 p. m. on Sunday.

The Passion Play was brought to this country by Meier from Westphalia, Germany, where it originated in 1242. It presents the story of the last seven days in the life of Jesus of Nazareth.

this pilot study in Home Management.

Of special interest was reports by Susan Booth, Kathy King, Saundra Fuller and Judy Pritchett on their special projects. Carol Ann Childress and Devorah Reddick presented a skit on shopping techniques.

According to veteran homemakers who witnessed this program, the girls who have had this kind of training, should certainly make better housewives and mothers, than those who have not, and also, Mrs. Moseley is due a great deal of credit for the amount of work that she put into this program.

Since schools from six cities participated in this semester pilot study, Mrs. Moseley invited Sebring to send a representative to report on their work which seemed very similar to the APHS accomplishments. Other schools who participated in this pilot study included Wauchula, Fort Meade, Haines City and Lakeland.

Development Agency Studies Tourist Habits

TALLAHASSEE, Feb. 1 — Why don't some people in other states spend their vacations in Florida?

The Florida Development Commission today released results of a survey designed to find the answer to this question.

The biggest reasons found in the Commission's survey were lack of time, too expensive in the winter, and too hot in the summer. But 67.5 percent of those interviewed said they planned to visit Florida some time in the future.

Lack of time in the winter, said 67.7 percent. Only 42 percent gave this reason for not coming to Florida in the summer.

Too expensive in the winter said 56 percent. Florida vacations are too expensive in the summer, 46 percent thought.

A fifth gave the "hot" weather as their reason for not coming to Florida in the summer.

Less than 20 percent preferred other areas over Florida in the winter. One-third preferred other areas to Florida in the summer.

Of those interviewed, over 90 percent had seen Florida ads. About 42 percent had seen newspaper ads and 65 percent, magazine ads. Ten percent had seen signs, billboards, or posters and another ten percent, literature, and posters in travel agencies, train stations, and other display centers. Eleven percent had seen television programs and 14 percent, store window displays and travel and industrial shows.

Assisting the Commission on the survey were research departments in colleges and universities in 24 markets in 23 states and the District of Columbia.

Col. John Glenn, Jr.'s trip into space figures to cost each American man, woman and child $2.16.

Of course it's paid by tax. Otherwise it would be hard to collect. The women and children could pay their share alright. But where would the old man get that kind of dough?

The two bucks, sixteen cents also includes flights to up yonder by Alan Shepard, Jr. and Virgil Grissom and the chimps Enos and Ham.

And they didn't name Hame Ham without reason. They wanted to show a rocket could send Ham higher than a super market.

But the thing sort of backfired. Ham became weightless, practically killing the chance of any super markets in outer space.

These flights into space are necessary if we are to outdo the Soviets. And we must all do orbit.

Olsen Explains Some of Bad Moods Experienced By Drinker

By Harve Olsen

"Good bye! I'm gettin' out of here. I'll be back when you're in a better mood!"

Many alcoholics have stomped out of their homes because the wife kept nagging, nagging, nagging—about the job, about the expected raise that didn't go through, about his failure to do something he promised to do a week ago, or about his drinking.

The wives (or husbands) of alcoholics probably become the best goldarn naggers on this mundane sphere. And they are not to be blamed too much. The Lord only knows what they go through; how their nerves are brought to the breaking point; how they become so frustrated that they don't know what to do.

Those who are near and dear to the alcoholic have tried about everything in and out of the books. They've been kind and loving, they've cajoled, pleaded, prayed, coaxed, threatened and nagged until they're nigh worn out.

But to no avail. When that front door slammed, Alcoholic Joe headed for the nearest bar, where he could find the sympathy and understanding of his pals; where he could in no uncertain terms give verbal vent to his feelings about "that nagging wife of mine."

Very few battles with the bottle have been won on the warring home front, where the principal weapon was the lashing tongue.

As impossible as it may seem to these people, sympathetic understanding can and often does pay off. The understanding that troublesome and excessive drinking is the result of an incurable illness; the knowledge that the illness can be treated and arrested; the realization that "you are not alone" in your dilemma, that millions across America have the same frustration caused by the same problem—these things are the most effective weapons available on the home front.

Sympathetic understanding does not mean "Go ahead, drink yourself to death . . . see if I care," but trying to "get through" to the spouse the fact that he or she is ill, that alcoholism is an illness, that the condition can be treated and arrested, that home life can once again be a happy experience.

Nagging never won friends nor influenced people, especially those near and dear. Patience and knowledgeable understanding might help eliminate an insidious opponent—alcohol—and help win the battle.

Further information on the problems of alcoholism is free for the asking. Simply write: ARP, Box 1147, Avon Park, Florida.

Veterans Get $6,090,900 In Dividend Pay

A total of $6,090,900 is now being distributed to 119,868 GI insurance policyholders in Florida in 1962 annual dividend payments, the Veterans Administration announced today.

The dividend checks will be paid on the anniversary date of the policies this year as is the usual custom. The VA last year speeded up the payments in an effort to aid the national economy at the request of the President.

Rufus H. Wilson, Manager of the VA Regional Office in St. Petersburg, explained that the anniversary date is the anniversary of the date each individual policy became effective. By consulting his policy each veteran would be able to tell when to expect his dividend check.

Approximately $225 million will be divided among almost 4.5 million World War II veterans holding participating National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policies. Some 228,000 World War I veterans who hold participating U. S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) policies will receive approximately $16 million in dividends.

Dividends will average $50 for World War II veterans and $70 for veterans of World War I.

The annual dividends are primarily a return to policyholders of part of the premiums they have paid since the death rate of veterans continues to be less than estimated in the mortality tables upon which the premium rates were set by law.

Although alcoholism can not be inherited, the Florida Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program says the presence of an alcoholic parent in a child's environment may sometimes produce emotional conflicts in the child which can cause him to be susceptible to alcoholism later in life.

Sebring Driver Gets 3 Months On DWI Charge

A Sebring driver has been sentenced to spend three months in jail for driving while intoxicated.

Herman Fred Pennington, 28-year-old white man, pleaded guilty. In County Court this week evidence was introduced to show that Pennington has been convicted on a long list of traffic charges and at the time of his latest arrest he was driving without a license.

His right to a license has been revoked for "the maximum time the law will permit." Judge Mervin Rehrer set Pennington's fine at $150 or 60 days more in jail.

Bruen Hagen of Avon Park was in County Court again this week. He entered a not guilty plea to a charge of unlawfully removing and disposing of property. His bond was set at $500.

Elijah Pressley, 21-year-old Negro from Avon Park, requested a preliminary hearing on breaking and entering charge. Judge Rehrer set the hearing for February 13.

Joe Drayton, Jr., 20-year-old Lake Placid Negro, waived preliminary hearing on an Aggravated assault charge. His bond was set at $2,000.

"Fruit-Pickin" Tourist Given Fine of $25

Visiting fruit-pickers were in trouble in Highlands County Court again this week.

Two young men entered pleas of guilty on fruit larceny charge.

Florida Highway Patrolman H. A. Moore arrested the men, who said they are visiting here from Alabama, in a grove near Avon Park. They were accompanied by two young relatives so they were also charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors.

One of them further had to face charges of driving with improver tags and an improver driver's license.

The visitors entered guilty pleas on all 11 counts.

Judge Mervin Rehrer sentenced each of the men to 15 days in jail and suspended the sentences.

On the traffic charges the fines were $25 or 15 days on each count. The fruit larceny charge drew a fine of $25 or 15 days for each of the Alabamians.

Some weeks ago a visitor from Illinois was fined for helping himself—rather generously—to fruit in a grove in the northern part of the county. Like the men arrested by Patrolman Moore, the Illinois man claimed that he did not even suppose that anyone would object to his picking "a few oranges."
