YOUR REASON FOR LIVING

"The Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." St. Matthew 20:28.

Do you have a reason for living? Or are you like the man who confessed: "An aimless existence is fit for an animal, but a man needs a reason and I have none." How much better to link one's life to something that has meaning.

Life's glorious energies are so often poured into that which has no lasting quality. The end of such living is pointed out in a one act morality play: "A Morality Play For The Leisured Class." In it there are two characters. A man who had been killed in an automobile accident and an experienced inhabitant of the other world. The newly arrived inhabitant is greeted pleasantly.

"Can I do anything for you, Sir?"

He wants to know what's to be had and is excited by the answer:

"Anything you like . . . anticipating your desires I have already taken thirty years off of your age."

"Perpetual youth, eh? . . . what about the golden crown?" he replies.

And there it was. He was told that he could have anything else but pain, suffering and struggle. There followed a succession requests but in the end nothing seemed to give him any satisfaction. At last he cried out:

"Hold on! I've got it! I want some pain; that's it."

"I'm sorry, Sir, but no one is allowed pain in this place," he replied.

"But," the earthing complained, "I can't stand this everlasting bliss! I'd rather be in hell."

The Presence stepped back, as in astonishment, and said:

"And wherever do you think you are, Sir?"

The earthing's desires had been for that which is ephemeral, that which disintegrates and falls away. We suppose that such a condition is about as good a description of hell as one can imagine.

At last he came to himself, but, too late. He asked for pain. That was not to be granted him because one must have experienced real depths of life before his heart is pained. The cross on which Jesus died was first in the heart of God. Pain is a portion of heaven, as strange as that might seem to some. It is a fact that the more we love the more susceptible we are to pain.

Just recently a friend of mine said of a certain prominent citizen: "He has no concern for the community, his whole interest is to get all he can for himself and his family." That description of an extremely selfish character reminds one of the way a barnacle operates. The barnacle attaches itself to a rock or the bottom of a boat. It then stretches forth an arm, through a trap door in the top of the shell, and waving it back and forth clutches everything it can. It grabs, grabs and grabs! Not a very pretty picture, is it?

Jesus tried to persuade the Rich Young Ruler that such a way of living gives no lasting satisfaction to anyone. The emphasis in one's reason for living ought not to be on: "What can I get out of it?" but rather "What can I give?" Florence Nightingale lived in a home where she had everything she wanted, for it was a home of wealth and luxury. However it was only after she looked beyond her comfortable environment and saw the desperate state of the nursing profession of her day, and asked herself the question: "What is wanted of me?" that she discovered a real reason for living. She will be remembered in history as a woman who became great by giving herself to the advancement of the scientific care of the sick.

Einstein once wrote that if it were not for the joy of cooperating with others, life would be empty. "Cooperate," he said "with other people to help something better become real."

Life is worth what we have to share. This has been true in the lives of all those who have been benefactors of humanity. When the mother of James and John came to Jesus requesting that her sons be given places of prominence in the Kingdom, she is told that first they must follow his example of service to humanity and then leave the reward to the judgment of God. He then said: "And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant. Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." St. Matthew 20:27-28.

The man who did the pioneer work in X-ray, in this country, gave all of his spare time and money to carry out his early experiments. He received serious burns. And yet, when he was asked to go to France, during World War I, he went, against the advice of his closest friends. The best medical men in the world crowded around him, as he worked, drawing on his great knowledge and unfailing willingness to give of himself.

Humanity needs men who value honor, love mercy, are courageous in the face of sacrifice, and dare to speak the truth and act with charity. We first trust a man before we can have confidence in his service whatever his business or profession.

DOUG AYERST

BILL KNAPP

Two Scouts Paddle Their Way Peacefully Down Peace River

Undaunted by thoughts of snakes and alligators but hampered by insects, two Avon Park Boy Scouts last weekend paddled their way down the Peace River.

Doug Ayerst, 14, and Bill Knapp, 16, members of Troop 16, sponsored by the Avon Park Rotary Club, made the journey from Bartow to Arcadia, a distance of about 70 nautical miles in two days.

It was without mishap, a little rain and a couple of nights under an overcast sky which served both as transportation and cover. Cooking was out—out in the open but, both found it fairly easy, if not the best, better than nothing.

"Matches," said Doug when questioned how they started a fire for cooking. Nothing like paddling snakes to ignite tinder. These were modern Scouts.

"We saw five alligators," reported Doug when asked about what he sighted as they paddled peacefully down Arcadia way. Doug opined they were not so ferocious.

He did not think too much about the half dozen mosquitos he mentioned sighting.

"We saw them, though," he injected when he noting a quizzical glance in his direction. The intrepid navigators were hailed by Bartow's Peace River Park by Doug's uncle, David Hood, arriving there Thursday night about 11:30 p.m. They set up night camp immediately and were up at dawn to start "down the river," the fourth for Bill and third for Doug.

Those, in order, were, Fort Meade to Wauchula, Zolfo Springs to Brosville, Bartow to Wauchula, and then this last for Bill. Doug was with him on the first two and the last.

Then it took came proved a good method for travel, and as they paddled provided a floating platform for subsisting the wild of nature, they happily reported.

First night camp was made south of the Wauchula bridge shortly before dusk where they found a pest-free land fall.

But, it was not made before they respected prohibition along their water trail near Bowling Green. There they collected a handful of what they termed sharks' teeth. At least they were teeth from something large that had inched "Peace River."

Their arrival at Arcadia occurred about 5 p.m., Saturday, after an uneventful paddling and floating voyage through almost virgin scenery, at least what it is today.

Bill reported, when questioned if "they ever ran out of gas," that they did find hyacinths, a bother, and almost a block to their travel.

Were they working on a Scout badge, or on another Scout test, they were asked. "No," both bearded in Scouting honors replied, "we were making a weekend canoe trip down the Peace River."

They almost left the interview in peace until they saw what the photographer had done.

Doug had been strapped smiling. "Aw, I don't do that," the studious, chubby boy declared. And, he was serious, not smiling.

New horizons are ahead for the two traveling companions now, considering "what to do."

Avon Park Police Department is in need of two workers—employees, that is.

The situation was brought to the attention of the City Council Monday night by Councilman Clarence King who said the department has lost a dispatcher and patrolman.

Now, the city is hunting for two men qualified to be policemen in the City of Avon Park. There is one drawback for job hunters looking for something to do—that is the qualification standard.

We are glad to have Robert Elthorpe back with us again, and trust his stay will be as pleasant as in former years.

Art and Ida Baldwin left Tuesday for their Grand Rapids home, where Art keeps through the summer with his fruit orchard holdings.

Tuesday eve was an enjoyable one for our members, the Sengers entertaining with one of their popular color Tours. Subject "Holland Tulip Festival and Michigan Underground Forest."

Sunday visitors at the Wertbars were the Doug Millers of Petoskey, and the Leonard Gilmartins of Lansing, Mich. The Horace Coles, leaving soon for their Indiana home, stopped by Monday afternoon to bid goodbye to Sam and Rosa Walton.

Another good turnout at last week's Shuffle matches saw some new names to reach semifinals, namely: John Lasse and Rosa Walton vs. Ted Gould and Gonda Dan on west court, and Sherman Kolk and Taylia Wurster vs. Guy Detrick and Omer Snyder. Last mentioned taking the finals.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon See of Sarasota were overnight guests of J. and Hilda Lasse the past weekend. Lasse's son is married to the See's daughter. Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Peste of Dunedin spent a few days with Sam and Rosa Walton last week, also the J. C. O'Connors of Birmingham, Mich., were Monday callers.

Golfers Group Plans Election

The Florida State Golf Association, of which Ed Touchton of Avon Park is president, will hold its annual tournament at Port St. Lucie's two courses starting April 21.

The site is just north of Fort Pierce on the lower east coast.

More than 200 amateurs have signed for the 72-hole scramble for the title now held by Sonny Tinney of Cocoa. He won last year over the Harder Hall layout.

Annual meeting of the FSGA will be held during the tournament when officers will be elected for 1966-67.

GS Troop 117 Active Group

Girl Scout Troop 117 has been busy the last few weeks. They performed the Flag ceremony for the James Woman's Club. Girls participating were Mera Henry, Sue Ferguson, Barbara Fuley, Melody Taylor. The troop also has sold Girl Scout cookies and made a small profit.

Last Tuesday they invested Dane Matthews into the troop. Girls taking part were Winnie Davis, Melody Taylor, Donnell Brassell, Patty Chidress was caller, and Penny Carney presented Dane with her Girl Scout pin.

Others present: Janie Childers, Barbara Flowers, Linda Mercer, Gail Metherly, Mera Henry, Cathy James, Janet James, Becky Tomek, Sue Ferguson, Linda Marshall and Joan Lamar.

Don't laugh.

A Volkswagen police car may seem like a funny idea to you, but it makes a lot of sense to the city of Scottsboro, Alabama.

They wanted a car that could take Police Officer H. L. Wilkerson on parking meter patrol, all day, 6 days a week, in stop-and-go traffic. Without breaking down. And without breaking the taxpayers' backs.

So, in 1964, they bought Car 5-5, a VW with a dome light, siren, and 2-way radio.

That was the year of Scottsboro's only 12" snowfall. The other police cars were in trouble up to their hubcaps. But Car 5-5 was a credit to the Force. It went uphill. And downhill. And Officer Wilkerson never even put the chains on.

Officer Wilkerson isn't supposed to go after speedsters, for obvious reasons. But once in 1965 he chased one. And caught him. It's hard to say which man was more surprised.

Car 5-5 still averages 29 miles per gallon. It still doesn't need oil changes. And it's never had a breakdown. After a year and a half of continuous use, it had its clutch replaced, and its valves adjusted. That is all.

San Luis Obispo, Calif. police said four persons victimized the wrong man recently when they cut electric cable lines to a house trailer to steal the copper wiring. The trailer dweller, who ran out and caught them, was named James Bond.

Spice CABINET

MAYONNAISE
2 tablespoons salt
2 tablespoons powdered dry mustard
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
4 egg yolks (5-cup)
1 quart salad oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Combine salt, mustard and sugar. Add half the vinegar and the egg yolks. Beat well. Add oil a few drops at a time to the egg mixture, beating constantly until 1 cup has been used. Continue beating, adding oil in larger quantities. When the mayonnaise begins to thicken, add lemon juice and the rest of the vinegar, alternating with the remaining oil until all has been used. This is a thick mayonnaise; it may be thinned by adding cream or fruit juices. Yield: 1 quart.

KEEP CHILDREN FROM GETTING OVERWEIGHT:
SOME TIPS

Faulty eating habits in early childhood often are the cause of overweight adults in later life. All too many mothers—with the best of intentions—nag and wheedle their youngsters into eating more than they want to eat. The healthy, fat baby becomes less attractive as he grows older.

The physician—not the parent—should be the person to decide whether the child should lose weight. If it fits your doctor's counsel, here are some tips to help your youngster keep from gaining too much weight. —Weigh once a week and keep track of the weight. —It isn't necessary to cut out all desserts and snacks, as long as their calorie count is included in the daily total. Fresh fruits are good for snacks. —Keep a supply of raw carrots, radishes, celery sticks and pickles for more snacking. Tomato juice or clear bouillon can serve for drinks. —Use smaller plates in serving meals, so that portions look larger. Encourage slower eating. —Cut out rich salad dressings; instead use vinegar and lemon juice. —Trim fat from meat, take it easy on the butter and substitute skim milk for whole milk. Serve plenty of fruits and vegetables.

The most important factor in helping the obese child to reduce pounds is to handle it naturally. Don't make a point of telling the child he is on a reducing diet. Just serve the meals naturally and as a matter of course. Avoid nagging the child about his diet. It will only make him rebellious and more inclined to snack on the wrong things on the fly.
