Band Will Get New Uniforms This Year

The life of a band uniform is not an easy one. During its life expectancy of seven years, it will be sat, laid, stepped and spilled on; it will be mashed into a too-small transporting vehicle on at least 70 out of town trips; it will make approximately 63 trips to the dry cleaners to be chemically cleaned and steam ironed; it will have a series of seven owners, each of whom will wear it down or even tear it; it will be literally soaked in gallons of perspiration; its seams will be let out or taken in to meet the changing figure of its growing teen-aged owner.

No wonder our Red Devil Marching Band uniforms that look sharp at a distance of 50 feet, are a bitter disillusion at five feet.

This year the Avon Park Red Devil band has been invited to attend the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, D. C. in April. The invitation was extended with the understanding that all uniforms are to be in good condition. It was then that one of the band student swears he heard his uniform moan softly. "True, it is that we have seen 'better days' (A direct quote from Shakespeare's As You Like It) for those of you who have forgotten your High School literature).

At the last Band Parents Association meeting attended by more parents than any meeting on record, it was unanimously voted to purchase 65 uniforms for the marching band and 30 uniforms for the majorettes. Almost immediately 25 uniforms were donated by members and friends of the Band Parents Association (five were donated by the city council).

It is believed that the uniform chosen is one that will make Avon Park, a stand out everywhere they go. The reason is that while most high school bands wear the traditional military type uniform, the Avon Park Red Devils will soon sport original uniforms made especially for them, and as near as possible like those worn by the Buckingham Palace Guards.

Most Avon Park residents are aware that Avon Park was given its name by the first settlers, Mr. and Mrs. William King, who came from Stratford-On-Avon, Warwickshire, Shakespeare's home. Mr. and Mrs. King found a distinct similarity between the natural beauty of our town and the rustic beauty of their home in England.

The uniform has a red jacket, Shakespeare-Coat-of-Arms on the lapel and above Avon Park High School. Black pants which will make wear and tear much less obvious, black shoes, white belt, white gloves, white socks, white shoes, white spats to carry out the Avon Park School colors of red and white, all topped by a tall black Shako (hat) which will literally have the Red Devil Marching Band heads above all other groups.

The new uniforms cost slightly more than the old. A guaranteed price not to exceed $100 each, including blazers (sport coats) the students may wear for concerts.

Three thousand dollars is needed to purchase the balance of the uniforms. Through donations, civic clubs, "Funs

Christmas Cheer Help Requested By Red Cross

"It will soon be time once more to put something under the tree at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Key West, Fla., and we need your chapter's help to do the job again," this was the plea that the Highlands County Chapter of the American Red Cross received recently.

Mrs. Florence Peach, executive secretary, is asking any of the local clubs, church groups or community organizations to help the Highlands County Chapter make Christmas 1966, a happy time for those servicemen and women who must spend their holidays far from home and loved ones. This is a wonderful opportunity to serve those who are serving our country.

Our chapter has been requested for 10 men's gifts (not to exceed $1 each), 50 candy canes and two rolls of gift ties.

Action must be started on this project as soon as possible, since the Red Cross staff at the Naval Hospital must receive the materials by December 1, to prepare for the Christmas holiday distribution. We know that those of you who volunteer to supplies these items will experience that real warm glow of satisfaction that comes with helping others less fortunate enjoy a Merry Christmas. Call the Red Cross office now at EV 5-1143 and volunteer.

A Poppin' show, November 17 and 18, at the High School Auditorium, county fair booths, an auction in February or March the band will be made up of uniforms. Mr. Vic Mickunas believes in the new uniforms plan enough that he has donated the amount for one uniform.

Federal Grant Approved For AP Disposal Plant

A $55,020 grant was approved Tuesday by the Department of Interior's water pollution control administration, as announced by Senator Spencer Holland and George A. Smathers.

This represents the Federal Government's portion toward the $151,400 proposed sewage treatment facility for Avon Park.

The entire Red Devil varsity squad saw action last Friday night in the Devil's 26-0 win over the Hardee High Wildcats at Farr Field in Wauchula.

Devil coach Joe Franzia cleared the bench in the final quarter and gave the reserves a chance to show their abilities as Avon Park picked up its fourth straight victory of the 1966 season.

The Red Devils have another open date this Friday night and then will be at home for the following three weeks taking on undefeated Mount Dora, Naples with a 4-1 record and Okeechobee. The only out of town game left on the schedule is the home game with Hollywood's Chaminade Lions who are riding high again this year in Class A and AA categories.

County Plans Vision Screen For Students

Plans have been laid for a vision screening of all Highlands County school students before Christmas. Representatives of the Grey Lady organizations in Lake Placid, Avon Park and Sebring met Tuesday with Donald Hansen to complete the planning.

Hansen, who is coordinator of health, driver education and physical education for Highlands County schools, said a special three-day training course is to be given from November 16, 17 and 18 to prepare the Grey Ladies for their part in the screening program.

In a similar program conducted last summer, in connection with the Red Star program, approximately 20 percent of the children were found to be in need of professional examinations and possible corrective measures.

The screening now being planned is the first such program to include all the students in the county in grades 1 through 12.

Miss Priscilla Allen, vision screening consultant with the Florida Board of Health, will lead the training course in mid-November. She will be assisted by Hansen, Dr. William F. Hill, Jr., county health director; Sebring optometrist Dr. Fred Fields and Dr. M. E. Jordan.

Two Hour Parking Proposed For City

The Avon Park Chamber of Commerce and the City Council met last Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the chamber office to discuss a way of solving the critical parking situation here.

Spokesman for the chamber, George Haynie, opened the discussion with suggested proposals by the chamber parking committee.

Two-hour parking on Main Street, and a few adjacent streets was the first suggestion. Haynie offered to pay for the widening of Forest Avenue if the city will have the trees removed. This would accommodate an additional 20 autos.

Inter-County Telephone Co. is willing to cut a gate in their fence to make the Baptist Church parking lot more accessible.

The Congregational Church will permit general public parking if the city will pay for blacktopping the lot.

Ted Ward offered to lease a 130 ft. by 135 ft. lot on Pine Street for a period of two years at $125.00 per month, or sell the same to the city for $12,500. Some discussion ensued on the proposal, but no definite decision was reached.

The north end of Donaldson Park was another suggestion given by the chamber parking committee.

Haynie concluded his introductory remarks by stating that next year 100 more students are expected at South Florida Junior College, with approximately 50 the following year, so the present acute-ness will definitely worsen unless a remedy is soon forthcoming.

Among problems discussed by the Friday assembly, was the fact that both employers and employees of the downtown merchants, are utilizing the street parking areas to moderate the increase of business there.

A public parking lot, with unlimited time, may become a reality in the near future. Signs would be posted in appropriate places throughout the city to direct visitors and newcomers to such a project.

Jack Delaney, the chamber president, brought out that the city's only parking lot, Dr. Stallard, said he could not control the student parking on the streets.

An enforced two-hour parking limit was the highlight of the afternoon session. After some discussion as to the cost of enforcing the limit, it was decided to pass the merchants and have a report ready for another discussion by noon Monday.

The purpose of a quick reply on the merchants' choice of a one or two-hour parking limit was to be able to order the necessary signs for installation in the chosen areas. It was estimated that three weeks would have to be allowed for the signs to arrive after the order had been placed.

Monday's poll of the merchants revealed a preference for the two-hour limit. At the time of this writing, the signs had not been ordered, so approximately two or three weeks Main Street will be the scene of an enforced two-hour parking limit.

Haynie wishes to notify the city officials of the chamber's appreciation for their cooperation in helping to solve the parking problem.

County Commissioners Study Insurance Purchasing Methods

Bid versus contract method of purchasing the county's insurance was discussed at Highlands County commission meeting Tuesday, but no decision is readily forthcoming for sometime.

The county's present contract with Heacock Insurance Agency has two more years to run. Commissioner James Greel said that in his tenure the commissioners have used both methods, and there are fewer complaints now than we have ever had.

The Heacock agency submitted to the commissioners this week a list of 15 Highlands County agencies which are to share in the commissions from the county insurance in the past year.

In the short meeting Tuesday the commissioners voted to advertise for bids for five new writing machines to be purchased after November 1.

The commissioners accepted a bid from Rorer Machinery of Orlando and Tampa for a new grader sloper. With a tractor as trade-in cost to the county is $4,340.

The commissioners approved sending the Shrine Club for use as a polling place for the election in the chosen areas. (Continued on page 2)

Congressman James A. Haley Reports From Washington

WASHINGTON, D. C.—As I look at the turmoil in which the people of our country find themselves these days, turmoil stemming from many things and turmoil which breaks out on a new issue just as fast as turmoil on an older issue is quelled, I am deeply concerned that we face a new peril to our way of life.

It seems to me that we are confronted with a developing situation which could destroy the very fundamentals of our government—that the basic attitudes of those who create the turmoils in which we find ourselves pose a very real threat of the tyranny of the minority.

It must be becoming more apparent, perhaps readily apparent, to most thinking Americans that a new kind of disdain for law and order is growing up and mushrooming in our country. It is a disdain born in attitudes which appear to have little if anything to do with our traditional concept of democracy. And I think it is an inescapable fact that it is a disdain which is becoming so widespread that unless somehow checked, it inevitably must do serious harm to the rule of law which is fundamental in our way of life and government.

The criminal's contempt for the law is easy to define, easy to denounce. But it also is relatively easy to understand, and certainly we have ways of punishing and trying to rehabilitate the criminal.

But this new disdain for law is that represented by the widening civil disobedience associated originally with the civil rights movement and now with a growing number of other forms of social, economic, and political protest.

It may be argued that a group of people without the substance of freedom finds acceptance of freedom's slow and tedious processes difficult, and that their protest in rage because of belief that those processes are warped against the group is somehow justified.

But there is, unfortunately, rapid development of the idea that the law and the ordered processes of liberty are the enemies of almost any American who stands in almost any sort of a minority position—and that the violation of all laws should thus be justified and condoned in the name of the right to "protest."

These people—they may fairly be called the "unyielding minority"—do not really believe in majority rule. They see that rule only in favor of their own position, whatever it may be—as a product of weak-kneed compromise or of perverse conspiracy to hurt them.

But whether they be "peace-at-any-price" marchers, racial extremists of either color, far-out right-wingers, or far-out leftists, minorities which attempt to override the majority and its rule of law can succeed only in destroying the basis of our system.

These people are acting in the name of freedom. But freedom is not a permit to act solely upon one's own wishes, in defiance of law and disregard of concerns of all the people. That would be the tyranny of the minority—and the tyranny of the minority is the implacable and destructive enemy of ordered freedom.

After studying the autopsy report submitted to him by Dr. Henry Schmitz, Highlands General Hospital pathologist, the report has been passed on to law enforcement officials investigating the October 3 murder, the Courier said.

Courier Rehner, after making his initial investigation at the Maxey home on Sparta street, had reported "that appeared to be a bullet in the back of the head and four knife wounds in the back."

He said the autopsy report showed that "either the gun or knife wounds could have been fatal." He said the report did not show what caliber gun might have made the fatal wound.

The path of the bullet was through the head from a point close to the nose, just below the eye, to the back of the skull. Whether the bullet entrance was at the back or front, Judge Rehner was not able to say, and he said he did not have any information about possible powder burns.

The death certificate gives the date of burial at October 8. Maxey's funeral was held on October 7.

Robert Lindsay Chairman For Orlando Panel

A Highlands County teacher was one of the leaders for a panel at the semi-annual meeting of Florida Juvenile Court Administrators Association at Orlando last week.

Samuel E. Nixon Jr., principal for E. O. Douglas School, was a participant on a panel which discussed "Pitfalls and the Negro Offender."

Highlands County Juvenile Court Judge W. H. Robert Lindsay was chairman for the panel.

During the semi-annual meeting Lindsay was elected for his third term as secretary-treasurer of the juvenile court administrators.

Alton Murray of Palm Beach County was named president, and Edward H. High of Volusia County was elected vice president. Doyle McNeese of Broward, Clarence McGowan of Duval, and Fred Brinkhoff of St. Joseph, directors.

Lindsay said that at the three-day meeting in Orlando indicated that the new Florida after-care program for juveniles newly released from state training schools "is starting out very well."

Biblical Tours

Begin Oct. 22

C. Richard French, Bible teacher and director of Layman's activities of the Florida Conference, will direct 15 guided tours of the scriptures, October 22 through November 5 at 7:15 p.m. at the Avon Park Seventh-day Adventist Church. Specially prepared "four sheets" will be given away each evening.

A beautiful concordance teacher's Bible will be given to each one nightly, and as the tour texts are announced by page number, the entire congregation will look up the reference and underline with the colored pencil provided. The Bible printed in England, will be given to those who attend 12 nights.

Professor French will focus this tour series on the meaning of our times, with such topics as, "Can I Depend On Bible Prophecy?" "What Is Ahead—Chaos or Favorable World Development?" "What Happens at Death?" etc.

According to Pastor Robert H. Kerr, each evening at 7:15 p.m. there will be musical features or sound-color films on healthful living.

Large Turnout Expected For Halloween Parade October 29

As the date of the annual Halloween parade and carnival, sponsored each year by the local Junior Women's Club, draws near, children and adults alike are debating on costumes for this year's event of Saturday, Oct. 29. The traditional parade, headed by Mrs. J. E. Anderson, is set to begin at 4 p.m., then the carnival, headed by Mrs. J. E. Anderson, will be held at Donaldson Park immediately following and will be open until 9 p.m.

Instead of the usual games, fire truck rides, pony rides, etc., that the club has had at carnivals in the past, a new approach will be in effect this year. Fund Ways of Orlando, an organization which has helped in many such school events throughout the state, will supply the Junior Women's Club with gaily decorated booths and games in return for the club purchasing prizes from Fund Ways. All booths will be operated by members of the local club. The members elected to try this approach for many reasons, mainly because the prizes can be purchased on a consignment basis—that is to say, any prizes that are not used for the carnival may be returned to Fund Ways and the club is not charged for them. A complete listing of the booths and prices of each will be published next week's edition. Members are urged to get their costumes ready—its later than you think!

Active Meeting By Episcopal Churchwomen

The Church of the Redeemer branch of Episcopal Churchwomen met in their parish hall Wednesday morning, Oct. 12. Many attended the Holy Communion service in the church preceding the meeting. The healing service was omitted as Father Knapp had to hurry back to the clinic meeting at Camp Wingmann.

The hostesses, Mrs. Milton Stokely, Mrs. Sherman Francisco, and Mrs. Peter Watterson, Sr., served nut bread sandwiches and coffee which was enjoyed by the ladies as they chatted with their friends.

Mrs. Eugene Hise, president, called the meeting to order and called upon Mrs. C. Smith who led the devotion.

The business meeting was lively and productive. It was voted to have Mrs. Hise appoint a committee to secure information of various types of their robes available and also to give full authority to purchase the most desirable.

The buildings chairman, Mrs. Milton Stokely, was authorized to make certain renovations and to secure and present to the next meeting information on further improvements.

Notice was given that the date of the next meeting has been changed to Wednesday, Nov. 2, so the ladies will be able to attend the Deaneys meeting at Fort Meade to be held Wednesday, Nov. 9.

Mrs. Arthur Irwin, Christian Education Chairman, is trying to arrange to have the Lakeland Deaneys Director as the speaker for the November 2 meeting. If she is able to do this, it is hoped that many of the Sebring and Lake Placid ladies will join the Church of the Redeemer ladies at this meeting.

It was also announced that the scheduled date of the fall rummage sale has been changed to November 4 and 5. There will be someone at the former A & P Building on N. Lake Ave., couple of days before the sale to receive items, or they may be taken to the home of the chairman, Rena Smith, at 30 N. Butler Ave. at any time between the September 4 and November 4.

Everyone agreed that the Every-Member dinner and meeting held Sunday evening, Oct. 9, was excellent and they thanked the co-chairmen Mrs. Eugene Hise and Mrs. Edith Young for their help. Good food, a good program, and good fellowship—what more can one ask?

The program for the Wednesday meeting was "The Episcopalian." Mrs. Arthur Irwin, Christian Education chairman, explained (for those who did not already know) that The Episcopalian was an excellent church magazine, and she gave a few general facts regarding its contents.

She then introduced Mrs. Burton Ostling, Mrs. Karl Swanson, and Mrs. Edward Hall, who spoke on the article which had impressed them most in either the September or October issue.

Mrs. Swanson spoke on "The Trials of Axtell's Train." Mrs. Ostling chose "Why Clergy?"

Mrs. Hall talked on "What Is Happening in Idaho?" Mrs. Irwin then closed the program with a few more general facts and she hoped a number of the ladies would subscribe to it. She said she will have further information as to price, etc., in a few days.

Concert Drive For Members Great Success

Five hundred people purchased memberships in the Highlands Community Concert Association during the week long drive that ended Saturday, Oct. 15.

The residents of Highlands County are to be congratulated for their fine support of the concert association. The membership chairman, in each of the three communities had organized a drive of approximately 100 workers in the county to sell memberships.

The Highlands School for Girls purchased memberships for their entire student body. The executive board and the board of directors of the concert association will meet Oct. 20 in Sebring, to draw up the by-laws of the association. At this meeting the dates and places of the concerts will be decided.

A financial report will be made at this meeting to determine if the concert association will be able to present a fourth concert during the 1966-67 season.

The concert association has chosen the following artists for the coming season: Miss Helen Vanni, soprano, an extremely active member of the Metropolitan Opera. As a recitalist, Miss Vanni's recitals were exemplified by her Town Hall concert, which elicited the comment from the New York Tribune that "Helen Vanni sang what was surely one of the most stunning vocal events that any reviewer in this town is likely to encounter."

Salvatore Accardo, the first Italian violinist to come to the United States in many years, was hailed as a major violinist in debut performances with the Cincinnati, Los Angeles and Montreal symphonies last season. In the words of the critic of the Cincinnati Enquirer, "Salvatore Accardo's find: he can now be called the United States in his long list of triumphs."

Whittemore and Lowe, duopians, are a distinctive musical team, offering the most first-class performances to an eager public. At the highest point of development, duopianism is a most exacting musical expression, and there on the top you will find the Whittemore and Lowe flag proudly flying.

Funsapoppin
Planned For
November 17-18

By overwhelming popular request the great band benefit variety show, "Funsapoppin," will be staged in Avon Park again this year. The director, Rev. T. Albert Lawrence, says the dates for November 17 and 18.

Some of last year's cast will be in character and many new and unknown actors will assume comical roles.

This hilarious musical comedy was such a sell-out last year for a one night stand the opinion was this year would be an even larger extravaganza for those who had commitments one of the two nights to be able to make one performance.

Although there is an out of town football game Friday night, Nov. 18, the students can attend Thursday night. The Avon Park High School Auditorium will be the place. Band students will be selling tickets within a few weeks and tickets may be bought at the door.

Four Convicts Address Avon
Park High School Students

Steve Booth, president of the Student Council of Avon Park High School, presented four convicts to the student body, who related their individual experiences which led them down a mutual road to the maximum security division of the Raiford Penitentiary, Friday, Oct. 14, in the high school auditorium.

As the volunteers from the Florida State Prison at Raiford told these stories, a similarity was noted in them all. Each convict told of the heartaches of a convict and they asked the student body to think of their lives as they listened to theirs.

All of them felt persecuted in their youth, building up a feeling of resentment, hatred, and greed, leading them to alcohol, dope, violence, and finally a complete hatred toward themselves at the time they committed their criminal acts. All of them, at one time were in the armed forces. Three of the four were dishonorably discharged as undesirable.

The first to speak said he was an honor student in school but was bullied by larger boys and compelled to join the "crowd" for protection. He became a tough guy, a false big shot, became an alcoholic, ruined his daughter's life. His son followed in his step and is now serving time in prison. Twice a successful businessman never satisfied with success, between divorce, married and divorced five times, three murders because of hatred, he is now a "lone" serving a life sentence in Raiford.

In conclusion he said, "There is wood all around but the most explosive wood in the world is that chip on your shoulder."

The second spoke about resentment to his father at the age of 10, and to spit his father he started stealing and lying. After his father died he was free to do as he pleased. Out of his mother's control he started on the downward path, drinking, stealing, a series of thefts, in and out of jail, a dope fiend, all faith lost, even God, he hated himself. His whole life would have been different if he had tried and listened.

He said "the youth of today, is the hope for tomorrow, you can be a doctor, lawyer, teacher or a criminal."

The third, a good student, began stealing at the age of 10 and got away with it as his parents could not believe he could do such things. At 15, he considered himself a man. Parents tried to guide him but to no avail, he ran away from home to do the things he wanted to do. Lied about his age, he entered the armed forces at 18. He married a wonderful girl, but greed took command and during his robberies he turned to the gun and shot two policemen. He was sentenced to 32 years in prison and has now served 15 years. He said "the prison tells them everything to do, except breath, is this glamor, romance?"

The fourth introduced himself as an idiot who graduated from high school and 11 years later he entered the business world. He was a bookkeeper, and took care of the payroll checks. He started forging and cashing the checks, became an embezzler and robber. He ran from city to city, state to state. His last robbery cost him a threatening knife, he was captured seven minutes after the robbery. He married a girl from Arcadia and ruined her life. With hatred to himself he said that he had made a mess of his life. He said, "Is it too late to change?"

They were all fine looking able bodied men. They are

ON HOW TO SEE

"Blessed are your eyes for they see," St. Matthew 13:16.

The story is told that during a strike in New York an editorial writer for the New York Sun came into the office of Charles Dana and said: "The children are starving by hundreds in the families of the unemployed on the East Side." "What," said Mr. Dana, "is it as bad as that, John?" "Yes," continued John Swinton, "I counted seven dead babies myself just now in the gutters as I came through Rivington Street and East Broadway." Actually, of course, John Swinton had not seen any such thing. The idea of seven dead babies was necessary for him to have an adequate understanding of the suffering of the people.

We smile at that sort of thing. And, yet, we can recall times, when we were sure others were suffering from symbolic imagination, too. Someone says: "I saw you . . ." Your reply: "No, I wasn't there." Then comes the gasp of surprise and the admission: "Well, I would have sworn that you were." So often people have been falsely accused. There is the case of the man who was arrested for armed robbery of a chain store in a nearby city. He was tried and convicted on the testimony of a cashier who positively identified him. He was later released from prison, when another man confessed to the crime. We should be careful how we see!

"I see," says the blind man. We remark: "How futile and pitiful!" And, yet, the blind man does see; he sees with the eyes of discernment. In this use of the term, "to see" means "to perceive." That is the way that Jesus used it in St. Matthew 13:16. "Blessed are your eyes for they see." Prophets and righteous men had desired to see what the disciples were privileged to perceive, the coming of God's kingdom and the redemption of the earth.

Gerrit Beneker, American artist, has painted scenes of men and women in hard, dangerous types of work. He has managed to capture with his brush and palette the divine nobility of sacrifice. He was once painting a picture of a man engaged in testing the quality of the molten steel that was being out on a crane from a blast furnace. "The man stood at his work almost naked in the fierce heat, covered with sweat and grime." Another laborer came up and watched the painter as he interpreted the scene. He was so impressed that he called out to his companions: "I say, fellows, come here and see this. Here is the greatest painter that ever lived. He is painting God where nobody else can see Him." God was there all right but only for those who had eyes to see. "Blessed are your eyes," says Jesus "for they see."

We ought to live inwardly as the artist does and place value upon the things of the spirit. Only then can we understand what St. Paul meant, when he said: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Philippians 2:5.

When Holman Hunt told his friends that he was going to paint Christ, they scoffed saying, "You can paint only what you can see." "But I am going to see Him," he replied. "I will work by his side in the carpenter shop. I will walk with Him over the hills of Galilee. I will go with Him among the poor, the blind, the lame and the leprous. I will go to Gethsemane with Him. I will go with Him to Calvary and climb the Cross with Him, until I see Him, and then I will paint Him." Anyone who has stood before the painting "Light of the World" cannot help but feel that Holman Hunt did live with Christ until he saw him with eyes of wonder and joy. How wonderful it would be to seek the Christ as Holman Hunt did until we see him as the living Christ knocking at the door of the human heart, your heart and mine.

There is more reality in the world than is recorded by the retina of the human eye. While Matthew was looked upon by his contemporaries as a despised tax-collector, Jesus saw divine possibilities in him, the man after whom the first Gospel would be named.

"What does she see in him?" we often ask. While we only see the outward man who may show little promise, she looks upon the inward man with the eyes of love. The eyes of love sees things that others overlook.

In the volcanic ashes of Pompeii, a little invalid child was found with his mother's arms around him. The mother was of noble birth, we know that because of the ring that was on her finger. She had had ample time to escape and save her own life but she had turned back to help her boy. And so, through all the centuries that mother's arms have enfolded the child she sought to save.

The world of practical-minded men might ask: "Why did she endanger her life in an attempt to rescue a crippled child?" Any good mother has the answer to that question. She did so because she looked upon him with the eyes of love and understanding. He was her child.

There is not one of us without faults and we pray desperately that when others look upon us, that they will see with the eyes of Christian love and understanding.

And surely, the deepest desire of our hearts ought to be that the living, loving Christ can say to us, as we in turn look upon others: "Blessed are your eyes for they see with Christian love and understanding."

The G. F. Wards Leave For NARC In Kansas City

Mr. and Mrs. G. Franklin Ward left by plane Tuesday for Kansas City, Mo., to attend the 15th annual convention of the National Association for Retarded Children.

Mr. Ward is vice president for the National Association of NARC and Mrs. Ward is president of the Florida Association for Retarded Children. They will return Sunday.

Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, wife of the vice president, and Roger Stevens, Hollywood starlet, will be the honored guests and speakers at the convention.

Mrs. Humphrey is the grandmother of a retarded child and has been active in the work of the NARC. Mrs. Stevens was recently honored by the California Association for Retarded Children for her work publicizing the needs of the retarded.

Delegates from every part of the country, representing the 1,100 state and local units of the NARC will attend this convention.

Vital issues on the agenda is a change in the name of the National Association for Retarded Children. Since retarded children grow into retarded employable adults and NARC serves all of the mentally retarded, concern has grown that the name does not clearly reflect the basic purpose of the organization.

Research scientist in mental retardation from all parts of the United States will report on new means and methods of prevention and treatment.

"My Grandpa knows everything"

Grandpa Baxter and his grandson Bobby have spent many happy hours together. They like to talk things over, man to man. Sometimes it's just fun talk but a lot of times it's serious talk about Bobby's future.

Bobby isn't worried about his future yet but Grandpa Baxter knows the day will come when Bobby will need the financial advice and guidance that only a bank can offer.

Grandpa Baxter has enjoyed the convenience of checking and savings accounts, all kinds of loans, trust services, safe deposit boxes, investment services and other financial aids so necessary to a satisfying life. Only at a bank could Grandpa Baxter and Bobby enjoy the benefits of such complete financial service.

If you want this kind of complete service for your family... you'll find it at your bank. Yours for the asking.

People help banks grow.
Banks help people grow.

ON HOW TO SEE

"Blessed are your eyes for they see," St. Matthew 13:16.

The story is told that during a strike in New York an editorial writer for the New York Sun came into the office of Charles Dana and said: "The children are starving by hundreds in the families of the unemployed on the East Side." "What," said Mr. Dana, "is it as bad as that, John?" "Yes," continued John Swinton, "I counted seven dead babies myself just now in the gutters as I came through Rivington Street and East Broadway." Actually, of course, John Swinton had not seen any such thing. The idea of seven dead babies was necessary for him to have an adequate understanding of the suffering of the people.

We smile at that sort of thing. And, yet, we can recall times when we were sure others were suffering from symbolic imagination, too. Someone says: "I saw you..." Your reply: "No, I wasn't there." Then comes the gasp of surprise and the admission: "Well, I would have sworn that you were." So often people have been falsely accused. There is the case of the man who was arrested for armed robbery of a chain store in a nearby city. He was tried and convicted on the testimony of a cashier who positively identified him. He was later released from prison, when another man confessed to the crime. We should be careful how we see!

"I see," says the blind man. We remark: "How futile and pitiful!" And, yet, the blind man does see; he sees with the eyes of discernment. In this use of the term, "to see" means "to perceive." That is the way that Jesus used it in St. Matthew 13:16. "Blessed are your eyes for they see." Prophets and righteous men had desired to see what the disciples were privileged to perceive, the coming of God's kingdom and the redemption of the earth.

Gerritt Beneker, American artist, has painted scenes of men and women in hard, dangerous types of work. He has managed to capture with his brush and palette the divine nobility of sacrifice. He was once painting a picture of a man engaged in testing the quality of the molten steel that was swung out on a crane from a blast furnace. "The man stood at his work almost naked in the fierce heat, covered with sweat and grime." Another laborer came up and watched the painter as he interpreted the scene. He was so impressed that he called out to his companions: "I say, fellows, come here and see this. Here is the greatest painter that ever lived. He is painting God where nobody else can see Him." God was there all right but only for those who had eyes to see. "Blessed are your eyes," says Jesus "for they see."

We ought to live inwardly as the artist does and place value upon the things of the spirit. Only then can we understand what St. Paul meant, when he said: "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." Philippians 2:5.

When Holman Hunt told his friends that he was going to paint Christ, they scoffed saying, "You can paint only what you can see." "But I am going to see Him," he replied. "I will work by his side in the carpenter shop. I will walk with Him over the hills of Galilee. I will go with Him among the poor, the blind, the lame and the leprous. I will go to Gethsemane with Him. I will go with Him to Calvary and climb the Cross with Him, until I see Him, and then I will paint Him." Anyone who has stood before the painting "Light of the World" cannot help but feel that Holman Hunt did live with Christ until he saw him with eyes of wonder and joy. How wonderful it would be to seek the Christ as Holman Hunt did until we see him as the living Christ knocking at the door of the human heart, your heart and mine.

There is more reality in the world than is recorded by the retina of the human eye. While Matthew was looked upon by his contemporaries as a despised tax-collector, Jesus saw divine possibilities in him, the man after whom the first Gospel would be named.

"What does she see in him?" we often ask. While we only see the outward man who may show little promise, she looks upon the inward man with the eyes of love. The eyes of love sees things that others overlook.

In the volcanic ashes of Pompeii, a little invalid child was found with his mother's arms around him. The mother was of noble birth, we know that because of the ring that was on her finger. She had had ample time to escape and save her own life but she had turned back to help her boy. And so, through all the centuries that mother's arms have enfolded the child she sought to save.

The world of practical-minded men might ask: "Why did she endanger her life in an attempt to rescue a crippled child?" Any good mother has the answer to that question. She did so because she looked upon him with the eyes of love and understanding. He was her child.

There is not one of us without faults and we pray desperately that when others look upon us, that they will see with the eyes of Christian love and understanding.

And surely, the deepest desire of our hearts ought to be that the living, loving Christ can say to us, as we in turn look upon others: "Blessed are your eyes for they see with Christian love and understanding."
