

It's A Woman's World

You will soon find permanent care labels appearing on all articles of apparel. Effective July 3, 1972, each finished article of wearing apparel that requires care, must have a tag or label permanently affixed or attached by the person or the organization that directed or controlled the manufacture of the article. In addition, piece goods sold must be accompanied by a label or tag which clearly discloses the instructions for its care and maintenance.

Care labels may be woven or printed and may be mitered, rectangular or loop labels. The label material shall not unravel during laundering or dry cleaning and must remain legible for the reasonable life of the garment.

Manufacturers can determine the proper care procedure by pre-testing garments in plants or in a commercial laboratory. If the care instruction is obtained from a piece goods manufacturer, care must be taken to assure that all linings, trim and bindings are compatible with the prime fabric. The following list shows labels that will most commonly be used.

1. Machine Wash Hot
2. Machine Wash Separately Hot
3. Machine Wash Warm
4. Machine Wash Warm Lin e Dry
5. Machine Wash Warm Gentle
6. Machine Wash Separately

Warm
7. Machine Wash Separately Warm Line Dry
8. Machine Wash Separately Warm Gentle Tumble Dry Low
9. Hand Wash Line Dry
10. Hand Wash Dry Flat
11. Hand Wash Separately Line Dry
12. Hand Wash Separately Dry Flat
13. Dry Clean Only
14. Wipe With Cloth Only

The above labels will cover a majority of items sold. In some instances they will have to be supplemented with additional information such as "do not bleach," "do not twist or wring," "wash inside out," "use cool iron," or "remove tyrim."

In regard to the piece goods, each bolt, roll or piece of goods should bear care instructions by words or code number. The instruction in code number will be printed on board or roll ends, or attached to the piece goods in a secure fashion. The coded labels would then be stored at the point of sale, i.e. checkout register or cutting table. The consumer would then be handed the appropriate coded label along with the piece goods when her sale is completed.

This care labeling in a permanent form should certainly make it easier for us to care for a garment, or a piece of goods once it is made up into a garment.

Remember, It's A Woman's World!

Two Local Residents Attend Convention In Atlantic City

Ted J. Ward, Treasurer and Harold Nute, Secretary, both of Avon Park Kiwanis Club are attending the fifty-seventh Annual Convention of Kiwanis International in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Approximately 16,000 people - Kiwanians and their families are on hand for the event. They represent some 270,000 Kiwanians in 5,900 clubs in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Europe, Central and South America, the Caribbean, the Far East and the Southwest Pacific Area. This is the sixth time that Atlantic City has hosted the Kiwanis Convention.

During these three and one-half days of the convention, Kiwanians are hearing from top personalities: Wes H. Bartlett, President of Kiwanis International, Algona, Iowa, who is presiding; The Honorable William G. Davis, Premier, Province of Ontario, Canada; Dr. James W. Turpin, founder of PROJECT CONCERN;

Miss America 1972 - Laurie Lea Schaefer, Bexley, Ohio; Art Linkletter, celebrated broadcasting personality; and the leaders of the Kiwanis-sponsored youth organizations, Paul G. McDowell, President of Key Club International and Ralph W. Kalish, Jr., President of Circle K International.

Official business of the convention includes the election of a president, president-elect, two vice-presidents, a treasurer, and six trustees for 1972-73; recognition of the clubs and districts throughout the organization; and the adoption of amendments to the constitution and the passage of resolutions. The convention also features a President's Reception and Ball with Sammy Kaye and his orchestra; Kiwanis district banquets; entertainment by Anita Bryant and Dick Shawn.

Circus Clown Hitchhikes 90 Miles For Treatment

by Michael V. Bright

Education Editor

Far from the supports of his canvas palace, a man traced the teasing pavement in search of a solution to his problem. He sensed an irony to the situation. Those faces that traced along the highway, grinning at his attempts to seek help, were the same faces that bounced with laughter in his canvas palace. How could they now deny his wanting to overcome his dilemma?

I'm an entertainer. I like to make people laugh. Straight-world people don't know how to laugh. The things you people consider sacred - like having a family and raising children - I don't care for.

Being in the circus is having a family of a few hundred members. Our world can never mix with your world."

These were the comments of a man who left his circus world and walked over 60 miles in the straight world to seek help for his problem from straight-world people.

He claimed that his problem stemmed from his having to serve in the straight-world army. Therefore, he wanted the straight-world people to take back their problem.

His problem... he claimed that he was a drunkard. Somehow he had lost respect for the skills that he used to cause laughter in his canvas palace. He had been forced to hide from laughter. Alcohol had helped him silence their voices - and his future.

Upon being admitted to the Bureau of Alcoholism Rehabilitation in Avon Park, he was informed that he was not a drunkard. His problem was an illness known as alcoholism.

It was under the guidance of Mrs. Bernadine Curry, psychiatric social worker at the Bureau, that he began to discover that the illness alcoholism exists in all phases of life. He learned that using alcohol to fertilize problems only breeds alcoholism, not the solution to his problems.

He also learned a lot about straight-world people in the 28 days he shared at the Bureau. Soon he was causing those persons around him to laugh; and occasionally, he too found that he could laugh again. Prior to his release from the Bureau, he expressed a more positive attitude toward straight-world people:

"I don't know exactly what it is that I've learned here, but it has certainly added to my education. You might say that I've learned to develop a little compassion for other human beings."

Despite my having an honest desire to quit drinking for the first time, I'll have a difficult time when I leave here. Everyone will want me to drink with them. I may lose a few friends, but that will be TOO bad. I'm devoted to my work and that's in my favor."

Referring to his counselor, Mrs. Curry, he added "You know, I've been giving her a hard time since I've been here. But, now I feel I'm beginning to see things a little differently. She's helped me a lot - even though she is a straight-world lady - and I hope that she doesn't give up on me."

Pausing to take a deep breath, his chest muscles seemed to tighten as he forced air into his lungs. Then, very carefully, he spoke like a straight-world person, "I think I'll tell her how wonderful she has been before it's too late. She would want to know."

A week later he returned to his canvas palace because it was the only world he knew. But, now he can carry his burdens lighter. He had entered the Bureau as a drunkard, but left as an alcoholic. And there is a difference. A drunkard is not aware of the illness alcoholism, but an alcoholic has taken the first step toward recovery - being aware of one's condition and knowing how to attack the symptoms of alcoholism.

DOES THIS PICTURE make you laugh? It is only too serious as it tells the story of one alcoholic, who sought help for his problem at the Florida Bureau of Alcoholism Rehabilitation in Avon Park. (Picture by Carole Thiem)

THIS CAN WAS found on the shore of a lake in Avon Park. As you can see, it had been crushed and expected to sink to the bottom in deep water. Fishermen and other boaters don't realize that the cans and bottles thrown overboard are washed by currents to the lake shores. Many cans, even when crushed to sink in mid-lake, gradually drift to the sand and shallow water where children play. Each year some are injured. Boaters are asked to exercise care and carry their trash home or to proper receptacles. Let's protect our young people and our lakes. Photo by Sharpe

Independence Day

July 4, 1776

A Day To Be Proud Of . . .

How could anyone predict what that document being posted would mean to mankind? Since then, the Declaration of Independence has changed history for the better. For the message of that document was destined to enter the hearts and minds of freedom-loving men everywhere. Let us all, as Americans, pause today and be thankful for that declaration that allows us to live in a free nation. A happy Fourth of July!
