Drop Discards In Goodwill Box

Spring cleaning time is down on us: Time to clean up, clear out and call Goodwill. The old winter clothing cluttering the closets and causing the drawer blight make great donations to the non-profit agency.

The kid's outgrown clothes, that broken toaster or lamp, the drapes and easy chair you've been wanting to replace can all be put to good use in Goodwill's vocational training programs for the handicapped.

Good will has been recycling items for 75 years — long before the country became aware of environmental factors. Second-hand clothing and repairable household items are an essential part of Goodwill's efforts to train the handicapped in skills such as dry cleaning, cobbling, upholstery, furniture refinishing and the repair of mechanical and electrical appliances.

Seven thousand bags of clothing and items are needed each day to maintain a full work force in the rehabilitation operation. Nothing is wasted in the process. Clothing or textiles too worn or torn for resale is baled for salvage; mattresses are striped and box springs rebuilt; items unrepairable are used for parts. Goodwill's U-Fix-It Shop offers the spare-part enthusiasts a bonanza. The handicapped at Goodwill rely on a concerned community. One that remembers their needs at "spring cleaning time" — and all year long. Drop your donations in a local Goodwill box or call for a truck to pick up large or valuable items.

The Patriots Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution will hold its May meeting in the Parish Hall of the St. Agnes Episcopal Church, Sebring May 2nd at 12:30 p.m.

Please note change of place from that given in the yearbook.

Mrs. Andrew G. Daigle, Regent announced the following to serve as hostesses: Mrs. Alma Hill Harris, Mrs. John Smoak, Mrs. Ralph Koerber, Mrs. Lester Dean, Miss Frances Berry, Mrs. W. J. Scarborough, Mrs. Kim P. O'Connor, Mrs. Thelma L. Merrill, Mrs. John Owens and Mrs. J. D. Watson.

Controversy Over Landfill Fee Is Still Being Debated

The Highlands County Commission spent a great deal of time talking garbage Tuesday morning, in an attempt to work out an equitable solution to the problems of the county's "bulk haulers."

Last week a delegation of roofing contractors asked the board if there was a way that regular, large volume landfill users could be billed at the end of each month for the amount of garbage deposited at the DeSoto City site.

The roofers claimed it is a severe hardship to ensure that every truck driver has enough cash on hand to pay for dumping each time the truck goes through the landfill gate.

Tuesday, the commission voted to institute a monthly billing procedure, similar to one already used with the franchised garbage haulers.

County Engineer Gordon Hays Jr. first suggested that the regular haulers be able to supply the county with a cash sum equivalent to the amount which they normally spend at the dump in a month's time.

Then, each time one of the haulers' trucks came into the dump, the amount owed would be deducted. When the funds dwindled down, the hauler would be notified to bring his account back up.

Commissioners "Jug" Heston and Carl Arant Jr. were in favor of such a proposal, but "Buddy" Wise and Robert Skipper were dead set against it.

Heston and Arant contended that the system would not be "too much trouble," and that it would serve as a "county service to citizens."

Skipper maintained that it was not up to Highlands County to "keep these haulers' books for them," and Wise said that with the county's bookkeeping methods, it would be difficult to ascertain when a contractor had already used up the advance funds.

Arant moved to adopt the advance payment system, and Wise seconded, saying, "I don't like it, but I want to get it off the table."

John Gercken, director of Motor Vehicle Inspection, whose department is currently collecting the proceeds from the landfills, agreed with Wise, saying there would be no way to tell whether the hauler had used up his money.

"There is a tremendous amount of business going through there," said Gercken, "You would have to see the pile of receipts we collect every week to believe it."

He added that if the county were to bill the haulers at the end of the month, "It would not be that much of a problem. We do it now with the franchised haulers."

Arant then agreed to amend his motion, mandating that any large volume haulers who wish to be billed first put up a security deposit, which would be forfeited as soon as they do not pay their bills.

The amended motion passed, 4-1, with Heston casting the dissenting ballot.

In another matter related to the landfill, the commission decided it should not get into a "weighty business" with the DeSoto City truck scales.

Hays told the board that several requests had been received at the dump from cattlemen who wished to weigh an empty truck, and then weigh it full of animals to determine the cattle's total weight.

Hays wanted to know if the commission condoned this activity, and wondered how much he could charge for the service if they did.

"It has been pointed out to me that we would be in conflict with private enterprise if we did allow this," said Hays, "we several asphalt plants and other facilities already perform this service."

The commission agreed that it wanted no part of the weigh-in business.

The board also approved the submittal of a request from the sheriff's department for the state to supply $13,000 for construction of a microwave relay in the southern end of the county.

Chief Deputy Charles Seagrave said, "When we send a deputy down there, we often completely lose contact with him."

If the $13,000 grant were approved by the Law Enforcement Assistance Act board, the county would contribute $668.

The commission also agreed that the county should apply for a federal Redevelopment Authority grant which would give Highlands funds to supply jobs by building public works facilities.

County Attorney Robert Dunty, said the program was designed to provide aid to areas with high unemployment, and that Highlands has recently fallen into the category.

The board approved the placement of 17 CETA positions, as recommended by Administrative Assistant Charles Collins.

Receiving one worker each will be the County Agent's office, the Health Department, the animal control shelter, the "County Judge's office," the City of Avon Park, the Sebring Airport Authority, the Avon Park Housing Authority.

Censorship Claims Made By Local School Teacher

Charges of censorship and violation of constitutional rights between an Avon Park Middle School teacher and local school officials appear to have been settled, at least for the time being.

David Batty, a fifth and sixth grade science teacher at the Avon Park Middle School has filed two grievances with officials claiming that his rights to freedom of speech are being violated by a school policy that allegedly prevents teachers or other school employees from releasing information to the press without approval of administrators.

The grievances, filed on behalf of Batty by the Highlands County Education Association, bargaining unit for local teachers, have been denied, however, Middle School Principal Dan Kirkpatrick has indicated that the policy will be "reviewed" at the end of the school year.

Batty said that he felt that the administrators at the middle school have backed off on the issue regarding the rights of a teacher to make statements about school programs, practices or policies.

Dr. Don Davis, Highlands County Superintendent of Schools reported that the school board had no objections to Batty releasing any information to the public, as long as it was understood that the information represented only Batty's personal opinion and was not misrepresented as being an official school statement.

Kirkpatrick made similar statements, saying that the policy in question was adopted at the start of the 1975-76 school year to make sure that all information presented to the public from the school system was factual and correct.

"We don't mind if Batty makes any type of statement," said Davis, "as long as the public realizes that it is his

Apartment Complex May Be Refurbished

Although the Avon Park Sun reported in our second edition last week that the Craft Apartments were scheduled to be torn down, the Avon Park City Council this week granted the owners of the structure an additional 30 days to see if it could be sold.

City Clerk Malcolm Crews, who is also an officer of Heartland Federal Saving and Loan Association, owners of the property, reported to the council that a local contractor was interested in purchasing the condemned building. It was estimated that approximately $60,000 to $70,000 would be needed to refurbish the building and bring it up to minimum city standards. The facility currently has 8 apartments. "These would be fixed up and made into nice places to live," Crews said. He added that the apartments would probably be

Gas Leak On US 27 Halted

"I thought it was an earthquake," stated John Bradley, Lakeland when the front end loader jolted to a stop as the loader bucket ripped a hole in a secondary four inch gas line about a quarter mile north of the truck route (State Road 17) north of Avon Park about 3:10 p.m. last Thursday.

But when dirty, dried grass, sand and other debris showered over the loader, into the cab, Bradley smelled gas and saw white appearing fumes he hurriedly left the loader, to run back later and shut off the loader engine.

The four inch line, buried under approximately four feet of soil along the shoulder of U. S. 27, was punctured when Bradley was excavating for a drainage ditch along the highway, which had been resurfaced by Macasphalt Corporation.

In commenting about the gas line accident, C. V. Williams, construction superintendent for Macasphalt, stated there were no signs along the road to indicate a buried gas line. There is a pressure regulating station approximately three quarters of a mile south of the line puncture.

The local Florida Gas Company manager, Arnan Longoria, said that it was normal procedure for contractors to call all utilities about buried transmission lines and where they were located, along a highway. He said no calls had been received about the gas line. On the matter of signs, they are to receive them in the near future.

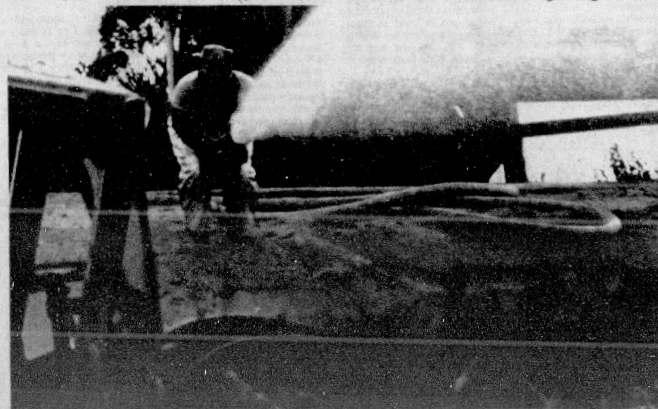

"You are trained for this type of emergency, but you hope it never happens," related Longoria in recalling the sequence of events. As many decisions had to be made, corporate headquarters in Winter Haven and his supervisors office in St. Petersburg were quickly notified.

The decision was made to keep the gas line operating, even though gas was escaping at the rate of 41 cubic feet per second, until such time as the emergency repair crew came from St. Petersburg, with a halt machine from hydraulically sealing the puncture hole.

The line was kept operating to serve several large users, including Macasphalt. It was later reported that one eating establishment had closed because of the gas line puncture, however, several others remained in operation throughout the evening.

With this large quantity of gas escaping into the atmosphere why didn't it burst into flame either at the time the line was punctured or later when traffic continued to move past the location? Arnan explained that the correct mixture of gas, plus air and a spark or

Lawmakers Fighting Over Bluegrass Title

State Representative Gene Ready (D-Lakeland), who represents the 51st District, has started a battle that he may wish to see ended soon. The fight is not over higher taxes, housing or inflation. It is over bluegrass music.

House Bill 1289 seemed to be a innocuous, parochial pat on the back that lawmakers are fond of submitting to please their constituents.

These measures usually pass without a word. Ready, however, has discovered that his measure was akin to swatting a hornet's nest.

The bill would declare the city of Auburndale in Polk County as the official championship-sanctioning agency for bluegrass music in Florida. Since this type of music is popular in the South, there should be little opposition, right? Wrong.

It seems that when fellow lawmakers from areas hosting other bluegrass festivals learned Ready was trying to appropriate a permanent state championship title for the small city (pop. 3,500) in Central Florida, they screamed like cats with their tails in a crack.

"I've taken lots and lots of heat over it," Ready said. "One anonymous caller even said it was a communistic plot."

The bill, reviewed by the House Agricultural and General Legislation Committee last week, contains flowery language about bluegrass music touching "the roots of traditional American culture" and representing a "portion of American thought which would otherwise be unexpressed." Ready noted that Auburndale held its first annual festival last year and billed it the Florida Bluegrass Championship so he thought he would make it official with a state proclamation.

Critics of the measure, however, claimed the bill had many imperfections. First, the mayor and commissioners, who would set the rules, might have "tin ears."

They also attacked the Auburndale festival's lack of longevity. "That's what got me," said Rep. Don Hazelton (D-West Palm Beach), whose district includes the annual Okeechobee Speckled Perch Festival, a folk event of some local note. "After only one little festival, they want this. It must have been better than Woodstock," he added.

House Speaker Donald Tucker (D-Tallahassee), where the annual Miller's Landing Bluegrass Festival is held, urged, "Don't get me into the middle of that one." A country and western fan whose favorite singer is Patsy Cline, Mel Tillis, he predicted "we'll have some with it on the floor." "It will probably end up being the most controversial bill of the session," he said tongue-in-cheek.

In committee, the bill got some flak from Reps. James "Trooper Jim" Foster (D-Tampa), a professional country singer himself and Wayne Hollingsworth (D-Lake City), whose constituency includes White Springs, site of a prominent yearly bluegrass festival.

Foster, whose big hit so far has been "Four On The Floor And A Fifth Under The Seat," succeeded in persuading Ready to amend the bill to designate Auburndale "a championship" festival instead of "the championship festival."

"Nothing should be exclusive," Foster said.

Rep. Frank Williams, (D-Starke), with two big festivals—Lawley and Clay Hill—in his district, had what he thought was a better idea. "I would suggest the Lawley and Clay Hill bluegrass folks come over and the Auburndale bluegrass folks come up here and we'll have a first."

Bluegrass Festival Is On Friday

While other cities seek fame for holding bluegrass festivals, the city of Avon Park will quietly host such an event this weekend at the Avon Square Shopping Center.

The festival, which is free, will be held Friday evening from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. in the shopping center's parking lot.

Featured will be the Sunny Bluegrass Boys, state champion bluegrass musicians. In addition to the free music, there will be square dancing starting at 10 p.m. The public is invited to attend the event.

The Energy Drian May Affect Diets

By LEW SCARR

Even as we motor to the store for groceries, we may be driving ourselves farther and farther away from a good diet.

That is to say, the more gasoline we put into our automobiles, the less chance there is for us to eat on the range.

Dr. Thomas J. Jukes believes that the growing energy shortages will force a change in the eating habits of many Americans.

First of all, we almost certainly will be eating more carbohydrates and fewer proteins and fats, he said, because it takes fewer cultivatable acres to produce carbohydrate grains than it does fat and protein meat.

But Jukes sees no danger at all in this, as long as a balanced diet is maintained. He said the average American's diet now contains a disproportionate 65 per cent of its calories in fats.

He said a higher carbohydrate diet would bring the fat share to a more acceptable 35 per cent.

Jukes is professor of medical physics and lecturer in nutritional sciences at the University of California at Berkeley's Space Sciences Laboratory.

In an interview, he discussed another diet change dwindling energy sources may dictate.

"Since California produces so much food for the rest of the country," he said, "we wind up using large amounts of petroleum just to ship fresh produce."

In other words, a lot of fuel is burned hauling water around the country.

"It would be better for us to package and ship more dried foods to bring the most out of fuel," Jukes said. "More dried food can be transported in the same amount of space."

But he doesn't see Americans giving up meat entirely, not even if it were a desirable thing to do.

The reason is that there are vast areas of the nation, and the world, for that matter, which can't produce food for humans but are quite suitable for cultivation of crops for animals.

Jukes does not see a need to turn to exotic sources such as algae and insects and plankton to augment the nation's food supplies.

And he thinks the oceans as a source have been overrated.

"Already there are many areas in the ocean which have been fished out," he said.

"The land can do the job provided water doesn't give out and fertilizer doesn't give out."

Promoters of organically grown food to the contrary, Jukes believes commercial fertilizers are just as effective as natural fertilizers.

"From the plant's point of view, it makes no difference where its food comes from," he said.

Jukes believes, too, that the fear of residues in foods is actually based on a state of mind, not on tangible evidence.

"Indeed," he said, "contaminants are residues of fertilizers, not known to have an injurious effect."

Wheel Spinners!

Congress is beginning a spring recess with most of the major issues before it still percolating through the system of studies, hearings and public chatter that stretches out the legislative process. Aside from passing an emergency natural gas bill under pressure of the winter fuel shortages, the House and Senate have produced little of importance except new codes of ethics for their own members.

Lacking the gumption to reject a $12,900 pay increase which a presidential commission recommended, senators and representatives felt compelled to go along with the commission's further recommendation that they put a limit on what they can earn in outside income. These were embarrassing days for the Congress, and it remained for Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee to point out to his colleagues that they had brought it all on themselves.

Sen. Baker, the Republican minority leader, offered the only fresh idea in a rather tiresome and at times hypocritical debate. He offered an amendment to the Senate ethics code providing that it would self-destruct in 1980. Between now and then, he proposed, Congress could deal with the real problem — its own presumptuous notion that adopting laws for the United States has to be a full-time job.

Why, he asked, shouldn't members of Congress spend only part of the year in Washington and the rest back home "in the mainstream of the country's life" earning a living in whatever occupation they originally pursued? They would no longer be cut off from the people. Their government pay could be much less, and they would be bound by the traditional rules of conflict of interest if a legislative issue touched on their personal business. Citizen-legislators of that type are what the Constitution envisioned, and Congress operated on that basis through most of American history.

Well, the answer coming back from indignant senators is the one we always hear in defense of full-time legislative bodies. The government has become "too complex" for part-time legislators. Nonsense, says Sen. Baker. Congress simply concerns itself too much with the administrative nuts and bolts of government. It could just as well limit its work to writing laws that establish policy, and let the Executive Department worry about the details.

The Baker amendment got only scattered support. Not many senators are willing to recognize the difference between a policy issue — which can be reduced to quite simple terms and the forest of minutiae they wander through 12 months of the year.

Maybe because Sen. Baker is on the minority side, his idea got no response from the White House, where it would seem to dovetail neatly with President Carter's view about big government. Mr. Carter wants to make the government more efficient and easier for people to understand and deal with.

That Congress might actually revert to part-time status is a farfetched proposition. We can still hope, however, that Sen. Baker's play will stir some congressional thought about how much time is wasted in the legislative process.

Trouble Spread By Cuba

By JAMES CARY

WASHINGTON — The United States is starting to clear a path to restoration of diplomatic relations with Cuba, the world's chief exporter of revolution.

So far that effort is limited to negotiations in New York on settling issues raised by the overlapping 200-mile fishing zones proclaimed by each nation.

But the State Department clearly hopes this will be followed by talks on renewing the 1973 anti-blackjack agreement between the two countries.

And, in a move to create a favorable climate for progress, the United States has lifted all restrictions on travel to Cuba and has canceled the ban on spending U.S. dollars there.

This effort to clear away 16 years of diplomatic debris, accumulated since relations were severed in 1961, will, if successful, lead to a much more serious stage in which each side will weigh the merits of remaining full ties.

When that time comes, Americans will have to judge the desirability of moving into such close contact with the world's No. 1 mischief-maker. For Cuba's global strategy of subversion wherever and whenever possible

There are also the accounts of Cuba's early penetration of Africa, climaxed by outright intervention in the Angolan civil war, and finally the training in Cuba of radical American students in guerrilla warfare tactics, including use of Molotov cocktails, grenades and propaganda.

Fidel Castro's intelligence network in the United States has waxed and waned during various periods, numbering as many as 2,000 agents in 1967 when he was raising funds in New York City, buying arms and having them shipped through Mexico and Tampa, Fla., to his guerrilla army then fighting in Cuba's Sierra Maestra mountains.

This was before the collapse of the Batista government.

Then there is the spy network Cuba has maintained within the United States, the training and dispatching of Cuban agents to Latin America to spur rebellion in Bolivia, Venezuela, Peru and to attempt to subvert Guatemala.

A number of members of the Cuban delegation to the United Nations also have from time to time been asked to leave the country on grounds they were involved in espionage.

Coffee Prices Are Past Any Return

By WILLIAM GIANDONI

CARTAGENA, Colombia — Someday, perhaps in the summer of 1978, coffee prices may start to drop.

But the day of dollar-a-pound or nickel-a-cup coffee is long since past, in the authoritative opinion of Arturo Gomez Jaramillo, Colombia's principal coffee expert.

Coffee will never again be cheap. Even the possibility of lower coffee prices around August, 1978, is cloudy.

Gomez Jaramillo is very cautious in his predictions. He is general manager of the National Federation of Coffee Growers of Colombia, the organization that represents the hundreds of thousands of mostly small farmers who cultivate the crop that earns Colombia most of its dollar income.

He says that the world coffee market may settle down if there are no natural or man-made disasters in coffee-producing regions this year or next.

If, for example, Brazil has no devastating freeze during its below-the-equator winter months from June to August, and there are no great political troubles in African coffee countries, prices could decline once reserve supplies are replenished.

Gomez Jaramillo, like most other coffee experts, blames the disastrous frost in Brazil in July, 1975, for triggering the rise in coffee prices.

For one thing, growing techniques are being improved. Thanks, in part, to the work that the coffee growers' federation does in Colombia, production per acre has increased three to five times.

However, Gomez Jaramillo warns that Colombia can no longer grow coffee at 1975 prices. Production costs have risen, the cost of living soared some 38 per cent in 1976, the organization of the manufacture and other goods that Colombia must import have gone up.

So what will coffee cost in the future? Gomez Jaramillo, who was briefing a group of U.S. and Latin American editors and publishers, would not say.

He did comment, though, that if coffee drops below a certain level, many countries would not survive the impact.

Beating Those Coffee Bill Blues

Nowadays the cost of coffee is apt to give you the jitters even before you consume enough caffeine to get on your nerves. Wholesale prices recently were hiked twice in one week.

If you've got a case of the coffee bill blues, cheer up. There may be some hidden benefits brewing. If the price hike perks up your interest in switching what you're sipping, you're in store for some health bargains. Nutritionally speaking, a number of beverages offer more food value than coffee does. They give your health a pick-me-up without picking your pocket.

You don't have to put your coffee pot in cold storage, either, unless you're boiling mad. Just sip less and try sampling some tasty alternatives.

Consider widening between-meal beverage choices. One "hot idea" is still more money. Make your own corn soup. Vegetable scrap, pulp, parings and cooking water can add a wealth of nutrients often wastefully tossed in the trash. Leftover bones or soup bones contribute minerals and gelatin. Consult a good cookbook for ideas.

Milk is an economical source of high-quality protein. Mix in a little carob powder if you're hungry for "hot chocolate." Skim and low fat are available for diet watchers. Nonfat dry milk is particularly easy on a limited budget. You can also mix up a quart of liquid from nonfat dry milk and combine it with fresh.

A cereal beverage or one of the many delightful herb teas is worth considering. Regular tea tends to be lower than coffee in cost and caffeine, though both can vary. Fixing tea from loose leaves or an instant mixture may save still more money. Make your own corn soup. Vegetable

Dodging Limousine Prohibition

By BENJAMIN SHORE

WASHINGTON — The big, beautiful, two-tone green Dodge pulled out of the Commerce Department courtyard the other morning, slipped into the rush-hour traffic and headed toward the White House two blocks away.

The proper black cap perched on the driver's head told observers he was a chauffeur, while the telephone he was talking into most likely meant he was on official business with his empty car.

The chauffeured limousine is a time-honored symbol of rank and privilege in this rank-conscious city, but President Carter, who rarely leaves the White House, wants to reduce its use for equally symbolic reasons.

He is finding little support among the Cabinet officers and their aides for the idea that they know their predecessors enjoyed all kinds of perquisites.

When the President suggested that the fleet of limousines be reduced drastically, there was widespread fear over the loss of visible rank and grumbling over the loss of convenience.

But someone quickly spotted the loophole: a literal definition of "limousine." It turns out there is only one brand of automobile in the government motor pool that meets the criteria of a limousine. This is the big, black Cadillac.

So there has been a slow but sure transfer of executive affection to big Mercurys, Chryslers and Dodges. The rules of status are adjusted and the convenience remains.

Just when the top bureaucrats thought the problem of perquisites was behind them, this was before the collapse of the Batista government.

A number of members of the Cuban delegation to the United Nations also have from time to time been asked to leave the country on grounds they were involved in espionage.

A tip to a newsmen from someone inside the Department of Health, Education and Welfare led to the revelation that Secretary Joseph Califano has hired himself a cook and tried to hide it from public view by a 402-word Civil Service job description that never mentioned cooking of food.

It subsequently was reported that Califano and Mr. Carter had "a little chat" about the matter, and soon the "chef" was released as "steward" — but stayed on the job.

We learned that nearly every other Cabinet officer has someone to prepare midday meals for the executives and their usually steady stream of guests who have working lunch. It's always been this way.

At first glance, the big cars and the cost-ward-charged seem terribly imperial at a time when the President is trying to knock down that image.

But most of these executives put in 12 to 15 hours a day, often six days a week. Most could drive themselves to work and carry a brown-bag lunch, but the demands of their jobs generally dictate the need for using commuting hours for reading and lunch hours for meetings.

The problem always has been — and still is — the top-ranking bureaucrat who abuses these perquisites and earns a headline. Mr. Carter's approach is to eliminate the possibility by eliminating the perks.

And when he continues to chip away at the "imperial presidency," he makes it difficult for his subordinates to justify their various privileges of rank.

Mr. Carter's decision the other day to get rid of the presidential yacht is one of those acts that makes his top executives squirm as they continue to employ drivers and cooks.

Although selling the yacht will bring in only $200,000 to $400,000 and save $100,000 a year in maintenance costs, it is a symbol that has great impact with the taxpaying public.

India-Now Without Indira

NEW YORK — India without Indira will seem to many Americans to be something like China without Mao Tse-tung.

Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, beaten in the largest democratic elections ever held anywhere, has not had as much impact on the lives of her people as the late Chairman Mao on the Chinese.

But for the American public, generally poorly informed about Asia, it is one more familiar name gone from the world scene.

ABC Television anchorperson Barbara Walters asked Indian Ambassador to the United States Dewshi Singh recently: "Can you imagine India without Indira Gandhi?"

Singh said, "The nation will march on, just as it did after the death of her father, Jawaharlal Nehru."

If most American knowledge about names of Indian politicians like Morarji Desai and Raj Narain is superficial or downright thin, there was one group meeting here in the Big Apple recently that comprises about the best expertise the United States has on Indian and South Asian affairs.

The attendance of Indian-born professors and Indian academicians and specialists in Indian studies was higher at the 20th annual meeting of the Association of Asian Studies held at the Waldorf-Astoria than at any similar meeting in recent memory.

Catalogs had been printed to far in advance that programs finalized too early for scheduling of seminars on recent developments on India.

But several special sessions were formed in which Indian scholars and specialists in Indian affairs held forth on the prospects for stability in that nation.

But the overwhelming consensus of Indian scholars in this country and among the Indian community in the United States seems to be in favor of the change.
