Hospital And Doctor Sued For $1 Million

A medical malpractice suit which has asked $1 million damages from Walker Memorial Hospital and Dr. Joong T. Kim has been in trial here since Monday, May 23.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Prescott Jr. of Avon Park brought the suit, claiming that Dr. Kim had used contaminated equipment in an operation performed on Prescott Feb. 24, 1975. They believed that use of a rusty needle resulted in Prescott's suffering a spinal infection.

Prescott, a 44-year-old painter, said he suffered back injuries when a step ladder he was using collapsed; he fell about six feet and landed on his seat. The date of that accident was set at July 24, 1974.

The family practice physician Prescott saw on Aug. 30 referred him to Dr. Kim, newly arrived in Highlands County after completing his residency in orthopedics at Orange Memorial Hospital in Orlando. Prescott was admitted to Walker on Sept. 3, 1974.

Medical records filed in the court records indicate that Prescott underwent different kinds of treatment, in and out of the hospital, until a discogram was performed at Walker in February. The records show hospitalization in Winter Haven March 23 to April 22, 1975; April 30 through May 5, 1975 and July 2 through July 11, 1975.

Trial of the malpractice suit opened here Monday and most of the day was needed to seat a six-person jury. Prospective jurors who said they knew

Dr. Kim — he practices at both Walker and Highlands General — were excused and the three sets of lawyers challenged many persons who were said they are acquainted with Walker Memorial.

At press time Dr. Kim and the hospital had not begun their defense, but court sources said attorneys had, before the trial opened, indicated that the case might be concluded within a three-day trial.

Whatever the outcome of the trial here, court orders may not be over for Dr. Kim. He and Okeechobee General Hospital were named defendants in a malpractice case pending in Okeechobee County.

Bad Food Denied

School Bureaucracy Is Discussed

Allegations of a small bureaucracy within the county school system, and a bad food supply surfaced Tuesday night during a special meeting of the Highlands County School Board.

The board was discussing the reappointment of non-instructional personnel for the upcoming school year when member John Wirick Jr. said he was concerned over the resignation of the Lake Placid Elementary School lunchroom manager Mrs. Gwen Ammons.

Wirick said he had contacted Mrs. Ammons when he heard that she did not re-apply to be hired for next year.

"She said the main reason she resigned was that she was having problems with one of the offices at the administration complex over getting silverware. That bothers me, and I don't think we should put someone through that type of hassle when she has been with us for many years and has always run her lunchroom in the black."

Wirick also said that Mrs. Ammons had charged that "Much of the produce she received was bad, and she was forced to throw a great deal of it away rather than use it."

School Superintendent Dan Davis said that he had traveled to Lake Placid several times in an effort to talk the manager out of resigning. "She just does not care to work any longer and I think the school board should accept her resignation at this time."

Wirick agreed that the resignation should be accepted, but said "I think we should do something about trying to correct these problems."

Dr. Davis said he had eaten at the school and, "I found the food to be quite good, and saw no evidence of spoilage." Wirick replied, "If we are getting bad food down there, we should act in all haste to correct the situation."

Recreation And Meal Program To Start In Avon Park On June First

Community services for the aging expand June 1 when the Highlands County Nutrition Program commences a meals and recreation program in Sebring and Avon Park.

Principal feature of the new service is a noon meal in Sebring served at First Christian Church and in Avon Park at the Recreation Center, 101 N. Verona Ave. Project Director Betty Upchurch said it is anticipated that 50 meals will be served the first day.

Special guests the opening day will be members of the board of directors for Seniors Over Sixty (SOS), the sponsoring organization for Highlands County Nutrition Program. Through the efforts of SOS and Rosemary Deck, director of HOPE of Highlands County, a grant was obtained to operate a meals and recreation program. Federal funds, provided under the Older Americans Act, account for 90 per cent of the costs. The other 10 per cent comes from local sources, government and private.

Persons over 60 years of age, living alone, are eligible to participate. Those who have low incomes are given high priority but high income persons are not barred.

The locations open well in advance of meal time. Clients arrive at 10 a.m. for a time of registration and classes. In Avon Park the meal will be served at 11:45 a.m. and in Sebring at 12:15 p.m. Monday through Friday of each week.

Interviewing prospective clients is now going on, Mrs. Upchurch said. The first client entered in the program called the program office, at First Christian Church in Sebring.

The 85-year-old woman said she and a neighbor wish to be enrolled. Since they live near the church they may walk, but transportation is provided for those who may have trouble reaching the sites, Mrs. Upchurch said.

The first Avon Park client is a 69-year-old widow who plans to be a volunteer leader in the recreation phase of the program.

In preparation for the June 1, opening the professional staff on May 25 attended an all-day workshop on nutrition, held at the Highlands Agri-Civic Center. Hardon Counties shared in this federal-state workshop.

City To Purchase Pumper With Federal Sharing Fund

The Ward-LeFranc Company of Bellevue, was the apparent low bidder to supply the city with a new mini-pumper fire truck.

The council opened bids for the vehicle Monday evening and turned them over to Fire Chief Mac Flowers for his study and recommendation. The winning bid was $20,300.

The new truck will be purchased with

ON HIS APPOINTMENT as the Avon Park District Fund raising chairman for the Salvation Army, Bob Leapheart said, The Salvation Army is "ready, willing and able to help anyone in need and it is the contributors who make the Army able." (Sunphoto by Lew Miller).

Leapheart Is Appointed To Head Fund Raiser

Last Thursday, Bob Leapheart of the Avon Citrus Bank, was appointed as chairman, the Avon Park District to raise funds for the Salvation Army.

County chairman, James Crawford, of the First National Bank in Sebring stated that the amount of $50,000 to be raised in Highlands County in 1977, would only be slightly larger than the minimum needed to carry on the work of the Salvation Army for the coming year in the County.

On his appointment, Leapheart said that he would have additional information at a later date on the procedures to be used to contact local residents in regard to fund raising efforts of the Salvation Army. He said, "There are people who give and would give to the Salvation Army."

The Salvation Army help to people covers wide range of services from youth to senior citizens, from maternity homes and hospitals to spiritual guidance and evangelism, from Red Shield Canteens for servicemen to family service bureaus and many more.

In regard to the Salvation Army, Leapheart said that it had been his experience that the Salvation Army would help anyone in need without any questions being asked. "They are ready, willing and able to help and it is the contributors who make them able."

Hospital Visited By Chopper

A Coast Guard Sikorsky-HH 3F helicopter from the U. S. Coast Guard Air Station, St. Petersburg-Clearwater International airport landed on the heli-pad last week at Walker Memorial Hospital last week in a get-acquainted visit.

Pilot LCDR Richard "Dick" Kaufman said the Coast Guard helicopter could take off fully loaded with a gross maximum weight of 22,000 pounds. It normally carries a flight crew of four plus medical attendants, which varies according to the patient or number of patients being transported to other hospitals.

The Coast Guards has four of these choppers. The St. Pete-Clearwater airport. One is on Bravo Zero or standing by ready for immediate use, while a second is on Bravo 2 or two hour call.

This Coast Guard vintage helicopter is powered by two 1800 horsepower General Electric jet engines and burns about 1000 to 2000 pounds of jet fuel per hour. The top rotor blades generate a down draft of about 75 miles per hour, while the aircraft has a speed of 142 knots per hour. The copter carries all-weather equipment plus radar, and has a maximum range of 600 miles. It takes 30 to 40 minutes to make the trip to Avon Park.

Kaufman, who has been flying for 22 years, reported that helicopter pilots attend a special school for seven weeks after they have attended one and a half years of Navy or Army flight schools. Pilots and crew are on call 24 hours a day and 7 days a week. The Coast Guard answers 400 to 500 calls per year where patients are taken to more specialized hospitals. Normally the hospital calls the MASS Coordinator at McChill Air Force Base in Tampa, who in turns calls the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard calls the hospital for final

Ski Mask Sentence Is Upheld By The Court

Second District Court of Appeal has upheld the conviction and sentencing of Lee O. Martin for a burglary and larceny at the Leslie Smith home near Avon Park.

Martin, along with Larry Marshall and Daniel M. Thomas, had been booked for crimes committed at the Smith home on Oct. 29, 1975. Defense attorneys won a change of venue because of pretrial publicity. The trial was held in Sarasota. On May 14, 1976, the five women and one man of the Sarasota jury, returned guilty verdicts on all three defendants; but some of the convictions were for lesser crimes than those in the original informations.

Martin was convicted of unarmed burglary and grand larceny; Marshall, unarmed burglary and grand larceny; Thomas, unarmed burglary and unarmed robbery. Judge Thomas Langston gave each of the convicted men the maximum penalties allowed for these crimes, for Martin and Marshall, 20 years each and for Thomas, 30 years.

Mayor Davis Hospitalized

Avon Park Mayor, Marshall Davis, 67, will undergo eye surgery this week at Walker Memorial Hospital.

Davis, who is currently serving his fourth year as Mayor, entered the hospital Thursday. He is expected to remain hospitalized for about a week.

Davis indicated that the surgery was to remove cataracts on his eyes.

Summit Calls For Nice Trick

President Carter's first trip to the "Trilateral" summit looks like a personal success. From what could be seen at the public level of the meetings in London, he injected himself smoothly into the circle of leadership with his counterparts from Western Europe and Japan.

He picked up support for some of his own ideas and won the praise of others at the table for his understanding of theirs. The spirit of cooperation which Mr. Carter hoped to encourage was much in evidence.

Acknowledging those outward signs of a successful mission by the new American President, we're left with a "Declaration on World Economic Prospects" as the tangible result of the summit, and it is a bit of a let-down.

"Our most urgent task is to create jobs while continuing to reduce inflation," says the key passage. "Inflation is not a remedy to unemployment but one of its major causes." In other words, the summiters came down firmly against sin. To create jobs and reduce inflation at the same time is the trick that is eluding most economists and statesmen and getting them into trouble when they try to pull it off.

Indeed, President Carter is finding that the economic policies of his predecessor, Gerald Ford, may have been closer to achieving that goal than the policies he himself espoused during his campaign. Liberal Democrats like Sen. George McGovern are accusing Mr. Carter of forgetting who won the election. They are pressuring him to ignore the storm signals of renewed inflation to press ahead with more direct economic stimulus for the sake of reducing unemployment.

There are the equivalents of Sen. McGovern in all the countries represented at London. The summit declaration left unresolved how they would be resisted as a political force — especially in Britain and Italy — to bring about compromises necessary for the simultaneous pursuit of employment and reduced inflation.

Mr. Carter's position in London may have been strengthened by the news that accompanied his trip. Unemployment in the United States had dropped last month to 7 per cent — the lowest rate in 29 months. Meanwhile, his anti-inflation program appeared to have borne some fruit in an early test. U.S. Steel Corp., after an urging from the White House, undercut price increases which had been announced by two other steel firms. "Jawboning" may yet have some success in discouraging excessive price increases.

If the United States, with the strongest economy of all, can keep the jobs-inflation scale in reasonable balance other countries will benefit both by the example and by the stability that would result. The nations at the London summit committed themselves to several new goals in managing their trade and monetary relations and in helping Third World countries deal with their economic problems. But the commitment to responsible fiscal policies — if that's what the lofty opening of the "Declarations" implies — is the most important of all.

The pressure to pretend that jobs and prosperity can be created by the wave of a government wand, without calling up the demon of inflation as well, is being felt by all the statesmen who met in London. For Jimmy Carter it comes from that corner of his own Congress where believers in magic still gather behind Sen. McGovern.

What Price Regulators?

What does it cost to keep the federal army of regulators maintained while they harass, intimidate and impede productive people in pursuit of their own well-being?

Just the direct cost has gone up 85 per cent since 1974 to a whopping $3.8 billion. In the energy and environmental fields the jump has gone to 185 per cent of $756 million.

And that is just the cost in dollars as it comes out of the federal Treasury. Untold billions are shelled out by individuals and business as they try to comply with regulations and controls. It is impossible to even estimate the total costs as the productive segment of our society bears the burden of busy bureaucrats always ready to throw a curve at any successful enterpriser.

Just at a time when those engaged in keeping vital energy sources flowing, the greatest interference ratio is being centered in the place least able to tolerate it.

Now that Congress will soon take up the energy matter we can only expect more interference. The politicians are sure to spur the bureaucracy on to greater strides in upsetting the market place in the energy field.

Just what real good can be obtained with a greater tax on gasoline? More tax dollars down the rat hole of federal spending is not going to help produce one pint of fuel. But that money siphoned off consumers and out of the economy will be a double-edged sword. It means less for business expansion and wages and more to fire up inflation.

To hear our leaders expound, one would think that the only answer to the energy problems is a larger dose of the political machinations which brought on the problems in the first place. We just cannot believe that there is no one in the Congress who does not know that the only real answer to this problem lies in complete deregulation. Are those in the know so afraid to give up a little power that they will not speak up?

At this point, the economy could probably afford to pay the politicians and bureaucrats to rake leaves from a hammock if we could just get them off the backs of our vital energy industry. But we cannot afford to pay them, let them proliferate and then pay the tremendous cost of their activities which hinder and impede every phase of energy industry expansion.

Military Progress Has To Continue

Aviation Week's exclusive story about Soviet development of a weapon that can destroy approaching missiles with a beam of charged particles has been denied by someone who should know as much about the subject as any American can — President Carter.

The President, who has access to any and all information gathered by our intelligence agencies, says the development of such a weapon is "many years away." There is no evidence that the Russians have made a major breakthrough in that kind of weapons research.

That's reassuring, but both the Aviation Week story and the President's comments should be regarded as blips on the radar screen warning of advancing technology. Adapting the principle of laser beams to warfare is known to be a subject of military research. The "breakthrough" may be many years away, but who will make it first?

We hope President Carter is lending an ear to Dr. Frank Press, his newly appointed science adviser, who has been expressing concern about the government's lagging investment in research and development. While R&D appropriations have risen by 50 per cent in the last decade, the amount in constant dollars actually has declined by one-third due to inflation. Moreover, Dr. Press recently expressed concern that the administration's drive to balance the budget in four years may frustrate efforts to increase the R&D budget in real terms.

A "laser gun" that could destroy missiles and observation satellites would be a jolt to the deterrent strategy which now is the basis of our strategic defense. With such esoteric weapons in the laboratory, this is the wrong time to be short-changing scientific and technological research.

Once In Office...

Daniel P. Moynihan, former ambassador to the U.N. and now Democratic senator from New York, made a perceptive capsule commentary the other day.

Asked if President Carter's defense of the Central Intelligence Agency in the matter of payments to foreign heads of states meant that he had forgotten his campaign promise to curb secrecy in government, Moynihan replied, "No. He's just learned that it's his CIA."

In other words, the view from the Oval Office is not the same as the view from the campaign stump. There is a world of difference between being a candidate for president and actually being president, between offering solutions and programs from outside the White House and actually sitting behind the desk where the buck stops.

Moynihan might well have said "He's just learned that it's his baby" — meaning the government as a whole.

Call it "the graying of the President."

As another example of good intentions grounded by reality, consider Mr. Carter's complaint that his Cabinet and staff are burying him in paperwork. According to his deputy press secretary the President told a Cabinet meeting that in one week he received 125 memos and additional national security papers totaling 800 pages, all of which he was supposed to study and digest in a day and a half.

So vast and complex has the government become that no one man can possibly comprehend it all, much less preside over its operations in every detail. Even lesser officials whose areas of responsibility are far smaller than those of the President are overwhelmed.

Mr. Carter has, in fact, revoked an order requiring all Cabinet officers personally to read each new regulation issued by their departments — after having achieved its objective to impress upon them the sheer volume and complexity of their departments' activities.

What is true of the President and the executive branch is equally true of the legislative and judicial branches.

Senators and representatives cannot absorb all the data, information and testimony amassed by congressional committees, or read and weigh each one of the thousands of bills dropped into the hopper each session. They often leave the final interpretation of the laws they pass up to the judges, who themselves are burdened by growing caseloads.

The obvious answer is to reduce the size and scope of government.

But that would dislodge some bureaucrats, wouldn't it?

Naturally Evil

The nature of government causes it to legalize looting (taxes, war, reparations, etc.), promote violence (war, capital punishment, etc.), and close its eyes to rape (under war conditions).

Yet good people still look to government for good ends.

Why? Don't they believe the evidence all around them?

Social Insurance

Years of congressional tinkering with Social Security pretty well drove it into the ground as an "insurance" or "pension" system. The administration plan to start springing it up with general tax revenues would plant a headstone over the grave.

Social Security checks no doubt will continue to await Americans in their retirement or as a benefit for disability, but the principle that we earn them as contributors to an insurance plan is now fully exposed as an illusion.

This is not the only epochal change which Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano, Jr. outlined recently on behalf of the absent President Carter. While heretofore employees and their employers have shared the Social Security payroll tax equally, it would now become a burden falling more heavily on employers.

Under the plan, workers would pay the 6.05 per cent Social Security tax on earnings up to $19,500 by 1979. That ceiling would continue to stand on what the worker pays. But there would be no ceiling on the employer's contribution. The 6.05 per cent tax would be applied across the board to all wages and salaries. The result would be an additional $30 billion in the tax burden on American business and industry over the next five years.

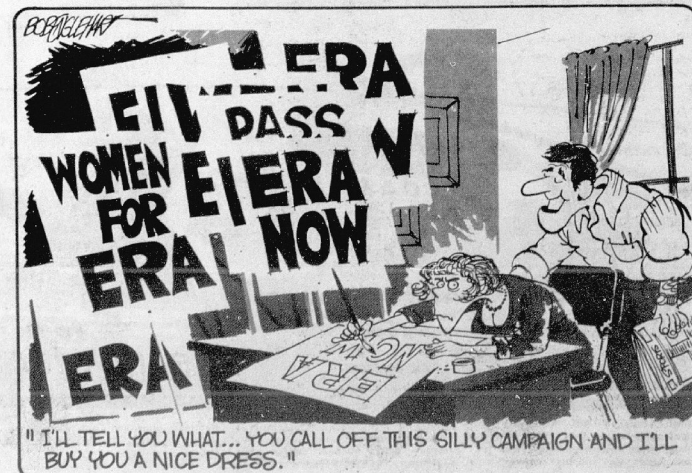

Mr. Califano says "there's plenty of money on the corporate side" to bear this new burden. This may be news not only to corporate treasurers but to members of Congress who are in the process of enacting tax incentives to business to encourage them to hire new employees. What's the point of that kind of "stimulus" for business firms when the government will be making it more expensive to hang on to the employees they already have?

Further, personal and corporate income taxes are going to be burdened with the $14.1 billion in revenue which the administration may have to take from the general fund over the next five years to keep Social Security from running out of money.

We are now getting a glimpse of what it is going to cost to keep feeding the Social Security system that began with such modest ambitions some 40 years ago. We doubt if there were any cheers in Congress when Mr. Carter's plan to rescue the system was delivered. The cheers are reserved for those moments when the eligibility for Social Security is broadened or the promise of future benefits is sweetened. There have been many of those occasions over the years.

What the administration is proposing is a whopping tax increase. We call say much for the equities of the plan, clinging as we do to the hope that Social Security might survive as something other than a government dole. But if Mr. Carter accomplishes nothing else he will have jarred Congress into confronting the piper waiting to be paid.

IT WAS REFRESHMENT time at the Kindergarten Open House at Hopewell Elementary School last Friday as the children received cookies and orange juice when arriving. Sunphoto by Lew Miller.

Approximately 125 children and parents, both mothers and fathers, attended the Kindergarten Open House at the Hopewell Elementary School last Friday afternoon for those youngsters who had previously registered for Kindergarten in April and for some who had not registered.

The children and parents were treated to homemade cookies and orange juice during the open house. In his remarks, Leon Garner, assistant principal, told the parents, "Bring your youngsters, don't send them by a neighbor." On the opening day of school the parents were told to take their child to the homeroom, but at other times to leave the child at the gate.

As her part of the open house program, Mary Ann Reddick told the group that she was very proud to have had some of the parents in her first grade classes. Mary Ann pointed out that coming to school was probably the most important adjustment that the kindergarten child would have to make.

"Every day in the school life of the child is special," Mary Ann told the parents and children, "every day some new skill is taught, or something is added to reinforce these new skills." Kindergarten school time is a crucial time in a child's life, as children without the kindergarten experiences don't keep up with the children who have had the opportunity to attend kindergarten and it is a most important time block in the life of a young child.

In a discussion of the Britannia Encyclopedia teaching material Helen Williamson reported that the program was the finest she had used. For the children it was a fun program, with the children eager to use it.

In closing, Mary Ann advised the parents to read to their children, as it was a way of getting them ready for reading in school. She also told the parents to hold conversations with their children, as another way of getting them ready for their life in school.

Her final admonition to the parents was, "Don't give us all of the blame, if your child goes wrong, You've already had them for five years."

CAROLYN McLEOD displays some of the beautiful pewter now available at Avon Park's newest business, "The pewter place". The firm is a division of Carver Plastics.

Business Offers Art Of Dazzling Pewter Pieces

There's a new addition to an already established business in Avon Park. Called "the pewter place", the new concern is a division of Carver Plastics and is located on U.S. 27 and Wolf Street North.

According to Carolyn McLeod, "Pewter reflects our heritage so well, yet it is so at home with today's style of living. It is both practical and decorative in any setting."

The business is now open and Ms. McLeod stressed that pewter sold at the firm is lead free and made from the highest quality metals. "It is safe for serving food and drink," she explained.

Pewter is an alloy of tin, antimony and copper and was one of the world's first metals. It was expertly worked into objects of art by the ancient Greeks, Romans and Chinese. After the restoration in England, pewter came into daily use, replacing the clumsy wooden utensils of that time. By 1750, the British began making a finer, bright finished pewter called "Britannia Ware".

When the first English settlers came to the "New World" they brought their pewter with them. America came into what was called the "pewter century" between 1750 and 1850.

Today, pewter is versatile in its uses for serving and decorating. Its possibilities are limited only by the imagination of the hostess.

The "Pewter place" offers a choice of bright finish or satin finish object. The objects that are reproductions from colonial Williamsburg are available in bright finish only, in the interest of authenticity.

Food For Thought

By Jane Nickerson

Chicken Perloo (After The Style of Monk Porter)

The seasonings and garnish are Jane Nickerson's additions rather than Monk's and may be omitted. This recipe turns out chicken that is tender but not, as in the tradition for perloo, overcooked. If you prefer the old-fashioned "falling-off-the-bones" chicken, combine all the pieces with the water and simmer 40 minutes before serving.

Registration Open At ASCS Office

Anyone who was a cattle producer during 1976 can register to vote at local Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service (ASCS) offices between June 8-17.

Only those who register can vote between July 5-15, at their local ASCS office.

For approval of the beef research and information order, at least 50 per cent of those who register must vote and two-thirds of them must vote in favor of the referendum for it to pass.

The order that beef producers will consider in the up-coming referendum would authorize a research and information program administered by a beef board of up to 68 producers. Board members would be appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture from nominations submitted by producer organizations.

Each state or geographic area would be represented in proportion to its cattle production.

The beef board could initiate a broad spectrum of projects to improve beef production, distribution, and marketing. Such a program could include consumer education and information, and research.

During the first three years of operation, the board could collect assessments of up to three-tenths of 1 per cent of the value of all cattle sold. After that, the rate of assessment could not exceed five-tenths of 1 per cent, the maximum amount permitted under the Beef Research Act.

The ASCS Office is located in the Highlands County Agricultural Center, U.S. 27 S. Telephone, 385-7833.

check point. (Sunphoto by Lew Miller)

Bike-A-Thon Riders Finish

Starting off at the Avon Park High School, 11 Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon riders started for Sebring, the turnaround check point at the Sebring High School, with 11 Sebring riders starting for Avon Park last Saturday morning.

Making the fastest time, Joe Willingham of the Avon Park Police Department covered the 21.8 mile roundtrip in one hour and twenty-nine minutes. He was also the oldest rider to take part in the Bike-A-Thon, with Steve Ebersbach, nine years of age being the youngest to ride and complete the course.

The last to finish the Bike-A-Thon round-trip was Henry Williams. Henry had bearing trouble on the front wheel of his bike and took out the broken bearing parts. After starting and finding the going a bit slow and tough, he borrowed a set of bearings. While he was 20 minutes behind in finishing the trip, he did finish.

The riders will have 10 days in from the Bike-A-Thon, in which to collect approximately $250 in pledges, stated Dennis Guenther, chairman. Prizes will go to those riders who collect the most pledges and every rider collecting over $25 will receive a Cystic Fibrosis T-shirt.

Guenther expressed his thanks and appreciation to the Highlands County Sheriff's Deputies and the Avon Park Police Department for their help in patrolling the route of the riders. He also expressed his thanks to the Sebring CB HELP Club for maintaining radio communication at the check points, along the route.

WHEN THE BEARINGS locked up on his bike before the Cystic Fibrosis Bike-A-Thon, Saturday, Henry Williams, took

Judge Orders Juveniles Be Picked Up

Two juveniles who failed to show up for their scheduled appearance in Highlands County Juvenile Court were ordered taken into custody. Juvenile Court Judge Clifton M. Kelly issued the order in cases which involved charges of possession of liquor by a minor and possession of controlled substance (the usual charge for marijuana possession).

A third youth who was booked for possession of liquor by a minor did come to court and the case against him was dismissed.

At the same session of court one youth faced six counts of criminal mischief. Adjudication was withheld, the youth placed on probation; ordered to make restitution for damages; ordered to study a booklet on criminal law.

One youth charged with grand larceny was adjudged delinquent and committed to Health and Rehabilitative Services for placement.

Disposition was deferred in a case involving a charge of battery. Judge Kelly ordered, background report by Children and Youth Services (CYS). A disorderly conduct charge against the same youth was not prosecuted by the state.

The court took under advisement a case of possession of stolen property. A battery case was dropped by the state. For unauthorized use of a motor vehicle a youth was placed on probation and ordered to study a criminal law booklet.

In one set of charges of burglary and petit larceny the state attorney nolle prossed the charges. In two petit larceny cases transferred here from Marion County, the youths were placed on probation, ordered to study the criminal law booklet and one was forbidden to associate with one certain companion.

A youth brought into court for trespass was placed on probation, ordered to attend group counseling and to study the criminal law booklet.

In a dependency case the child was declared no longer dependent, custody returned to the parents with CYS to supervise the family.

Increase Speaker Size For Better CB Radio

Considering installing an external speaker on your CB? Most CBs have an external speaker plug or jack, and the speaker in most CB radios often is too small. If you're installing an external speaker, this allows you to increase the size of the speaker, thus allowing better audio of the CB radio. External speakers don't cost too much and are very easy to hook up. Some speakers provide the necessary wire and some don't. Most speakers' input jacks are in the radio and are standard because of FCC regulations. So, all you need to do is to buy the plug, connect it to the speaker wire, plug the plug into the radio, hook the other end of the wire to the new external speaker and, presto, you've got a new speaker. Some radios have a switch on them which allows you to control the external speaker and some don't. Of course, the advantage of having the switch means you don't have to plug and unplug external speakers every time you just want to use the radio.

In some cases, this control may be necessary depending on what you are using the external speaker for. However, a lot of people don't feel they need to control the on and off of the speaker. They simply think looking it up and leaving it on is enough.

But there is one more advantage to having a switch that controls the external speaker.

For example, if you would like to use the external speaker or speakers in conjunction with a stereo or AM radio, you can do so simply by flipping a switch. The cost for this external speaker control switch is very little and well worth it if you are planning to hook up an external speaker.

Another tip when installing a CB external speaker is to use a thick speaker wire or even bell wire to prevent any degrading of the wire which could cause the speaker to short out.

Also make sure that all your connections are secure. This is very important because often the connections could be knocked off or loosened when the vehicle hits a bump. If possible, these connections should be soldered and bound with black electrical tape.

If the connections are screw-fastened, make sure the screws are very tight. It wouldn't hurt to put some glue or tape over them to prevent loosening.

Of course, all these added precautions are not needed while installing external speakers on your base because you don't have the same movement problem.

Dear Mike: I have enclosed some information about The North Stars CB club, of which I am a member, and about a benefit that our club is to have for crippled children. I hope you can mention it in your column. — Drucilla Pruitt, Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Drucilla: I received many flyers and letters about clubs holding ureaks and jamborees. I'm especially touched when they are helping the needy.

But since I receive so many, it is impossible to list all of them. I know millions of dollars have been raised by clubs and associations to help the needy. Keep up the good work.

I did give your flyer to The Cbers' News in Columbia, Mo., which has a special section for this type of event. If anyone else has information about fund-raising events, they'll be listed free. You can send them to The Cbers' News, "Jim & Jerry," Box 1702, Columbia, Mo. 65201.

If you have questions about CBs or Cbing, send them to Mike McCormack, Copley News Services, in care of this newspaper.

Our Children

Dad Says Typing Too Feminine For Son

By DR. WILLARD ABRAHAM

Today is "complaining wives' day," and they all seem to have a logical beef against their husbands. For example:

Q: Our high school son wants to learn to type and would like to register for typing at school, but my husband objects. He says, "Typing is too feminine, he says, and he absolutely refuses to listen to reason."

Our boy's handwriting is poor, and his grades reflect that deficiency.

How can I convince my husband how important it is that our son learn this skill?

A: He may not listen to me any more than he does to you, but many sports writers and he-man authors give the lie to his unwarranted conclusions.

Your husband appears to be way behind the times. Men have successfully invaded many presumably feminine fields without jeopardizing their masculinity. Gourmet cooking, nursing, and teaching are just a few of them.

He seems to be doing your son an injustice on two scores: Instilling false sex standards and obstructing the image a youngster needs of himself based on success and acceptance.

Q: It is really necessary to stick with a child's schedule, no matter what?

We have breakfast at 7:30, dinner at 6 and bedtime at 8:30 (our two children are young), but sometimes I think we should be a bit flexible. There may be a particularly good children's TV program or a game nearly finished. My husband is a stickler for a strict schedule, insisting that consistency on our part as parents is essential. No exceptions, he says.

What do you say?

A: Next time you get him a present it might be Rachel Carson's delightful book, "The Sense of Wonder."

In it she stresses the importance of parental flexibility and the need to see the world through children's eyes as much as we are able to.

One of the most important things children should learn is the need to adjust to different situations because our environment is constantly changing. Rigidity rather than flexibility is a sign of weakness.

Your husband obviously doesn't agree, but it really does take more strength to roll comfortably with the changing times than to stick stubbornly to the same old idea, whether they are part of daily schedules, jobs, marital demands or even religion.

The 21st Century will probably relate only vaguely to our present times. We can help our children get ready for it by nurturing their ability to adjust comfortably to change.

Nursery school, kindergarten — how to select, is your child ready? Send stamped return envelope to Dr. Abraham, P.O. Box 572, Scottsdale, Arizona 85252 for complete list.

Letters may be sent to Our Children, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column as space permits.

Beware Of Vacation Pitfalls

By MARION WELLS

What would you like to get out of this year's vacation? Re-creation or wreck-recreation? Fond memories of just disappointments and dirty clothes?

Experts say we often unknowingly booby trap our trips before we start out. Preventive planning may make yours less taxing and more relaxing.

Many a vacation might be saved if travel companions had compatible expectations as well as personalities. But while she's buying bikinis for that seaside holiday and picturing two weeks strolling in the sand, he may be polishing his rod and reel.

Inadequate communication is the stuff such broken dreams are often made of. Why not have each person list their hope for the holiday while there's time to talk out creative compromises?

Can you plan a trip that satisfies some of each person's desires? Or come up with a new choice all would enjoy? Or take turns catering to each other's wishes? Or travel with a different friend? Or send the kids to camp?

Vacations can give us a delightful change of place without providing change of pace we need. The rat race may simply move to a new locale.

One way to help avoid this trap is to keep down commitments with friends or business associates, notes Irvine H. Page, M.D., a past president of the American Heart Association. Your family will have more flexibility and you're more apt to avoid the "tonight-it's-our-turn-cocktail-party rat race."

Don't win the golf or tennis game at the expense of the vacation. Keep that "competitive spirit" within healthy limits. When you leave the playing field, forget the score.

You probably won't have time to do everything, so why not take enough time to enjoy what you do? A schedule more packed than your suitcase may send you home needing a rest.

Plan for escape hatches that offer the chance to do some things alone or with new found friends. Psychologists say the closest of traveling companions may need "rest periods" from each other. "Smoldering distrust and hostility can explode when families have been together too long, particularly in close quarters."

Other tension reducing

School bells have been ringing at the Highlands County Sheriff's Department, as Sheriff Joe Sheppard and six deputies have completed courses in various law enforcement areas.

The sheriff himself journeyed to the University of Southern California at Los Angeles for a two-week management program conducted by the National Sheriff's Institute.

Along with 43 other sheriffs from 23 states, Sheriff Sheppard spent more than 80 hours in the classroom participating in courses on super vision, leadership, motivation, communication, guidance, budgeting and fiscal control, administrative law, and other related subjects.

Closer to home, Investigator Robert Hopton recently completed two weeks of homicide seminars held in Orlando and Investigators Lamar Harrison and Len Askeland have finished a two-week seminar on drug enforcement held in Naples.

Jailers John King, Fred Fisher and Ray Watson are currently enrolled in a 40-hour breathalyzer class at the South Florida Junior College.

HOW LUCKY CAN WE BE

On January 20, 1977 was Inauguration Day in America, the power of a great country changed hands. One American from Michigan turned over the office of the President of the United States to another American from Georgia. This transition of power was accomplished with a hard shake, a Bible, and well wishes from one Great Man to another.

While babies in arms looked on, elderly citizens with hope in their hearts, a smile on their faces, Americans from all walks of life, Black Americans, Indians, Orientals, Chinese born or foreign born, American old, gave thanks for the privilege to live in this Great Land.

This would not have been the case in 75 per cent of the rest of the world. Other than free nations through out the world transfer power in a different way, they turn them in, for so-called crimes.

We in America still have freedom's light. We can travel unrestricted across city, county or state yes, and even our Country. We can still choose the job of our choice no one tells us what to do or when we may purchase our own home or car, to attend or when we may purchase our own car or car.

The only qualification to live in this Country is to be a law abiding citizen. We have such small amount to contribute, for such a large amount we receive, that we take it all for granted.

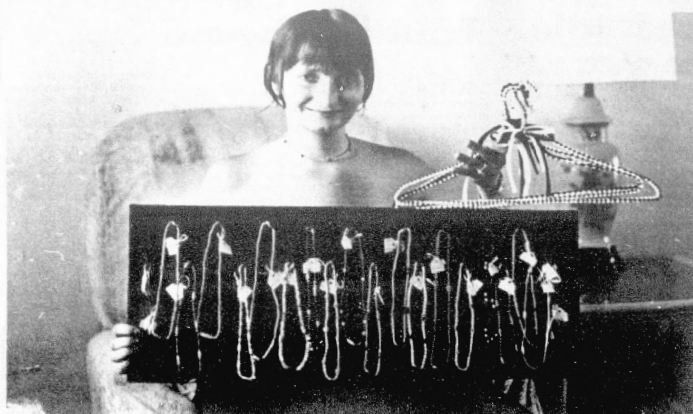

Yes, I believe we are a Chosen People who live in America, when you hear people condemn America down, remind them, how lucky they are to live in Beautiful America.

arrangements. In the case of pre-mature babies a self-contained power and oxygen incubator may be picked up at a federal revenue sharing funds.

In other action Monday, the council granted tentative permission to Ken Tate of Avon Park to host a state fast-pitch softball tournament here. The three day event will be held sometime this summer. In granting the request, the council stipulated that no ball games could be played on City property until after 12 p.m. on Sunday.

Fire Chief Mac Flowers submitted the only bid for the purchase of the 1964 model ambulance offered for sale by the city. Flowers' offer of $310 was accepted by the council.

The council decided not to install a flashing red light on a radio tower near the city airport at Avon Park's expenses, until after the exact height of the structure was determined.

The tower, owned by Stephens and Resting, reportedly falls just 16 inches short of the height that would require a warning beacon, as per FAA rules.

The council has been concerned over the tower, as they claim it is a danger to aviators if not marked. The city appears to be powerless to require that the tower be lighted, unless it exceeds the FAA minimum. The light would cost $350, plus maintenance each year.

City fathers discussed their concern over the operation of the new sewer plant, as they moved on to other business.

Reportedly, the new treatment plant is operating to within 50,000 gallons per day of maximum capacity with several thousand more customers connections still to be made.

Mike McWeeny, consulting engineer, told the council that he expected to let bids shortly for the rehabilitation work on the old plant, however, this would only have a capacity of 300,000 gallons per day.

The council said it appeared as if Avon Park growth would force another addition to the sewer system in a fairly short time.

Ski Mask Sentence Upheld

All three defendants sought appeals from sentences and sentences. In a decision announced this week the appeal of Martin was denied. The ruling came from Acting Chief Judge Joseph P. McNulty. Judges Stephen H. Grimes and T. Truett Ott.

A ruling on Thomas' appeal is pending. Marshall's case is somewhat more complicated.

Marshall early this year escaped from jail at Tavares. He was captured a short time later in Georgia. The state has charged that because of the escape Marshall has lost right to appeal. A decision on that point went to Florida Supreme Court. Records in the district court office show that the state's high court has not entered a ruling.

All these appeal procedures are related to the first of the long series of trials for members of the small group of terrorists tagged the Ski-Mask Gang.

Since the May '76 trial in Sarasota the gang members have been sentenced to hundreds of years in prison and Daniel M. Thomas has been sentenced to die in the electric chair. On Monday he went before a Volusia County jury to be tried for the murder of a DeLand man. Thomas is standing trial alone on charges of murder, kidnapping, robbery, assault with intent to murder, burglary, sexual battery and using a firearm in commission of a crime. All charges are based on events of Dec. 5, 1975. Kersey was slain at the young couple's rural home. Mrs. Kersey was kidnapped, thrown from a car into the St. John's River at Lake Monroe. Two fishermen in a boat under the Lake Monroe bridge rescued Mrs. Kersey.

Martin had been indicted along with Thomas but the state has dropped charges against him because of lack of evidence, the prosecutor said.

Man Found Dead In His Home

William Sztukowski, about 56, of 402 S. Central Ave., Avon Park, was discovered dead in his home by police Monday afternoon.

According to Cpt. Ron Smith, Sztukowski was last seen alive by neighbors on Friday. Being unable to get an answer to their calls, neighbors entered the home and reportedly discovered the man in his bathroom. Police said they felt that Sztukowski died of natural causes and had been dead for 24 to 48 hours. An autopsy has been ordered, however, and will be performed by the county medical examiner. Chief Robert Brooks, Patrolman Joe Willingham and Investigators Donnie Singletary and Cpt. Frank Cratty assisted in the investigation. Brooks indicated that there were no signs of violence.

Burned May Speak

It was announced tentatively that Representative Beverly Burned would be the program speaker at the noon Kiwanis meeting on Monday, June 6, with a report on the legislative action at Tallahassee. The program would be open to the public.

However, Mrs. Burned's report to the Kiwanis club may be delayed if the legislature does not adjourn as scheduled.

Local Women Charged

Two Avon Park women charged in a forgery case have been placed on probation. Sabrina Jean Blake, charged with forgery, and Cora Blake Rich, charged with uttering a forged instrument, were sentenced by Judge Clifton M. Kelly at a session of circuit court on May 20.

Attorney Proposes Divorce Insurance

When a couple takes out a marriage license, they should start considering divorce insurance, says Diana DuBroff, a New York attorney.

DuBroff, 68, who retired after 20 years as a public school teacher in New York, then turned to a new career in legal aid and finally her own legal practice, believes that such insurance "would ease the torture of the first several years of the divorce for people of the middle-income group."

"Very rich or poverty-level divorced persons don't notice the financial impact of divorce as much as the middle-income group, because they're in very much the same financial position before and after the divorce," DuBroff says. She is founder and president of a program called NOISE, the National Organization to Insure Support Enforcement.

Insurance companies are not responding too eagerly to her idea, DuBroff said, although she is working with one group she won't name on the possibility of such insurance.

Lloyd's of London also is interested, she added.

DuBroff had been a member of the New York Bar for nearly 40 years — although she did not practice there — when she retired from teaching and decided to go into legal aid work.

After working with thousands of divorced persons — she won't say whether or not she is divorced, but does say that she is a grandmother — DuBroff developed the idea of divorce insurance.

"A woman could be living in affluence in a suburban home one week, and then could be applying for welfare the next," she said. "And more than one person can suffer. Children suffer especially. There is a vast change in life-style after a divorce for which the divorced family has never been prepared by the legal system."

"In matrimonial law, you get paid to represent your client, but you should be representing all members of the family."

The concept of divorce insurance was not even mentioned five years ago, DuBroff said, but "there should be a little cushion to ease the torture of the first several years after a divorce. Payments for such insurance could be added on to the principal of a life insurance."

In her work, she tries to prepare her client for divorce "by play acting, by going through some of those lonely periods in divorce in advance. We're also noticing that we have a large group of elderly people being divorced now. It used to be that people didn't have that long a life span. These elderly people definitely need divorce insurance."

"It has been said that such insurance would cause divorce, but that's not true. Does everybody have an accident or go to the hospital when they take out health insurance?"

"Next to death, divorce is the highest degree of depression and emotional problems. I realize that divorce insurance is not a panacea for everything that happens after divorce, but I think of it as a contribution to make it easier for the divorced family."

"A divorce starts before you buy the marriage license," she believes. "You are marrying an individual you really don't see. A bad marriage can become a frustration, and people get divorced when they can't stand it anymore."

She believes that thinking about divorce insurance "has become a movement around the country."

"In 10 years, you will see divorce insurance becoming part of the Social Security system," DuBroff says. "I won't be here to see it, but I know it's coming."

"Mother" Advised To Voice Opinion

I am the mother of a grown and married daughter.

However, I got involved in a church program recently and became the "mother" of a 13-year-old girl from the church.

In other words, all the church girls — aged 13 through 15 — have an "additional mother" for guidance and input in their religious and social lives.

It's a fine program, but I have to keep my mouth shut.

On the very first meeting, I saw that 99 per cent of the girls were copying the Farrah Fawcett-Majors hair-do.

They all dressed alike and looked almost alike.

It's exasperating. How would one go about teaching a girl to be an individual, not just a member of the herd?

Additional Mother

Dear Additional:

Ridicule, I guess, as a starter.

Farrah Fawcett-Majors has a hairdo that is as weird as her name. That skinny actress (?) could survive several days in the desert without getting a suntan on her face.

Her hair is sloppy, messy, and your church daughter should hear that, loud and strong, from you.

She can take it or leave it.

You were put into the program to give the church daughter the benefit of your thinking, not merely go along with her. Give her regulation growls, as well as praises and gifts.

Dear John:

On Easter Sunday, I really got stoked on TV religious movies, but I think I lost my blessings before the day was over.

I watched Anthony Quinn play Barabas, the thief, in one televised movie.

Then, in another, he played a member of the holy crowd of the temple in Jerusalem, and someone else played the part of Barabas.

I got mixed up.

Then further mixed up, when my wife got out the Bible and interjected every time the movies varied from the King James version.

Yes, I'll admit that I had some un-Christian thoughts on my mind. What do you recommend?

Repenting

Do like your wife and read the Bible.

I saw the same movies. But, as always, I liked the Book better.
