

GEORGE WASHINGTON HAD SENSE OF HUMOR

Loved a Good Laugh and Joke and Gay
Conversation

As we approach the year 1932, when the nation will celebrate the Two Hundredth Anniversary of the birth of George Washington, America seems due to receive still another service from its greatest man. The year of commemoration has turned the thoughts of every American to the historic days when Washington lived. This new history lesson has given us all a sense of our heroic beginnings. It has turned our attention to George Washington as never before and has permitted a vast new outpouring of the facts concerning every phase of his character and his career.

The consequence is that we now see George Washington not as the cold and serious figure we had imagined him from sketchy history lessons in school, but as a warm, emotional, kindly, and even humorous human being that he really was.

In our change from the earlier view, we have come to realize that George Washington, like all of us, had a sense of humor, in that he wrote many a letter in slyly humorous vein, and that he may have been no great hand at cracking a joke, he could laugh heartily at the jokes and pranks of others.

James Madison, who was informed by the United States Congress, who saw much of Washington on intimate terms, has written, "The story of his never-ending laughter is wholly untrue; no man seemed more to enjoy gay conversation—He was particularly pleased with the jokes, good humor, and hilarity of his associates." Madison further told Jared Sparks, president of Harvard College, when the scholar was writing a life of Washington, that though Washington was not fluent nor ready in conversation, and was inclined to be taciturn in general society, yet "in the company of two or three intimate friends, he was talkative, and when a little excited was sometimes fluent and even eloquent."

While Washington was president, Bishop White of Pennsylvania was a guest at dinner with the Washingtons in Philadelphia, and records that "most hilarity prevailed." This of a presidential dinner during the administration of George Washington!

Nelly Custis, his wife, left as testimony to Washington's mirthfulness, "I have sometimes made him laugh most heartily from sympathy with my joyous and extravagant spirits."

As for George Washington himself, he was capable of provoking a smile in readers of his letters. "Foul Lickerer" Ford, in his "True George Washington," quotes several of Farmer Washington's letters to friends in which he has a high old time in commenting on the peculiar customs of a jackass sent him as a present by the King of Spain. Even in his otherwise businesslike Diaries, Washington here and there drops a line of dry humor, as when, in speaking of a certain lady workman, he records "Stephens hark at work with an as-very extraordinary this."

That he could be quite playful and sportive he used to tell more than one of his letters to the Marquis de Lafayette, but during the Revolution these occasional bursts of humor were apt to take a grim turn, as when he wrote of affairs at Morristown "The more I think of it, the more I am convinced that we are too few to fight and not enough to run away with."

Commenting on the wholesale desertions at Morristown, Washington exclaimed, "We shall soon be obliged to detach half the army to bring back the other."

The fact has been overlooked that the Revolutionary army suffered greater hardships in winter quarters at Morristown than at the more famous Valley Forge, yet under Washington's orders at Morristown the troops laid to and built a breast-work which they called Fort Nonsense—though they built it not so much for fun as to keep themselves warm and for exercise.

One of General Washington's most graceful bits of humor crops out in a letter he wrote in 1775, inviting several ladies to dine at his table. To prepare them for the Spartan fare they might have to face, he wrote:

"Since our arrival at this happy spot, we have had a great deal of times a shoulder of Bacon, to grace the head of the Table; a piece of roast Beef, adorned with a dish of beans, or greens, (almost imperceptible) decorated the center. When the center has a mind to cut a figure, which I presume will be the case tomorrow, we have two beef-steak pyramids or dishes of crabs, in addition, on each side of the center dish, dividing the space and reducing the distance between dish and dish to about 6 feet, which without them would be near 12 feet apart. Of late he has had the surprising sagacity to discover, that apples will make pyramids; and in a question, if, in the violence of his efforts, we do not get one of apples, instead of having both of Beef-steaks. If the ladies can put up with such entertainment, and will submit to partake of it in plates, once Tin but now Iron—(not become so by the labor of sowing), I shall be happy to see them."

RECIPES for LABOR DAY

By BETTY MARLEY

MANY families enjoy their last meal in the open for the year on Labor Day. Others prefer to have a family gathering at the old homestead. After the parade, the ball game, the athletic contests or the swim, adults and children sit down to the Labor Day picnic lunch or dinner with almost as much gusto as they do when they sit before the plump Thanksgiving goose or the mammoth Christmas turkey.

Labor Day meals should be held as well as ordinary meals. The more fruit, vegetables and milk consumed, the more likely food there is that the meal will be dietetically sound.

Here are a few recipes for those who are now contemplating what to serve on Labor Day. Will they find them delicious.

Orange Salmon Mould

(Serves 10)

2 tablespoons salt
1 1/2 cups boiling water
1 cup orange juice
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup flaked salmon
1/2 cups diced celery
2 tablespoons chopped pickle
Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Add boiling water, orange and lemon juice, sugar and salt. When beginning to stiff, add remaining ingredients. Harden in individual molds. Garnish with an olive and serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise. This makes an excellent picnic salad. Waxed paper cups may be used for molds for easier packing in the lunch basket.

Grape Lemonade

(Serves 10)

4 lemons
3/4 to 1 cup sugar
4 cups cold water
2 cups grape juice
1 cup orange juice
Lemon slices for garnish. Extract lemon juice, add sugar to taste and stir until dissolved. Add remaining ingredients and serve immediately, pouring into tall leaved glasses in which ice has been placed. Place a lemon slice over rim of each glass. Fresh grapes are now in season and may be used to make the grape juice.

Cake Pudding

1 package chocolate pudding
1 pint milk
Cut left-over cake in small cubes

Outdoor Coffee

Choose any or all of the three dainties above and then be sure that you have a steaming cup of coffee that is made properly. You can enjoy your coffee as strong and take it to the picnic in a thermos bottle or it is very easy to make good coffee over a fire in the open. Put the ground coffee into the water and bring to a boil. Immediately reduce the heat and let steep from three to five minutes. At home you can boil your coffee, percolate it or make it by the drip method. But use enough coffee so that there is a real flavor to the brew. Serve it piping hot and it will furnish a fitting climax to a pleasant meal on one of our real big days.

Shoppers Urged To Handle Hogs With Care, Avoid Loss

Handle hogs properly at shipping time and avoid losses from dead, crippled, and bruised animals, says W. J. Sheely, extension agent in animal husbandry, to Florida hog raisers who will soon begin marketing their pork. Each year farmers and shippers sustain considerable losses from dead, bruised, and crippled hogs, and practically all of this can be avoided if the hogs are handled carefully.

Overexertion is one of the chief causes of loss. It is estimated that from 60 to 65 percent of hogs arriving at destination dead have congested lungs due to overexertion, or to pneumonia following overexertion.

Before loading, see that the car is free of loose boards, protruding nails or bolts, and free of old or old bedding. Bedding of clean sand should be provided before the hogs are loaded, and in hot weather the sand should be wet down to cool the hogs. Do not load hogs in cars bedded with straw, cane pomace, or food bedding of any kind. Losses follow.

Following are some pointers he suggests for hog shippers: Avoid rough handling from farm to loading pen. Unload carefully, letting hogs walk down the chute. Grade and weigh carefully and avoid getting the hogs hot.

Before loading, see that the car is free of loose boards, protruding nails or bolts, and free of old or old bedding. Bedding of clean sand should be provided before the hogs are loaded, and in hot weather the sand should be wet down to cool the hogs. Do not load hogs in cars bedded with straw, cane pomace, or food bedding of any kind. Losses follow.

Overloading the car is one cause contributing to dead, crip, and bruised hogs. The packers are interested in having all hogs arrive at their plants on foot and in good condition. The railroads are desirous of cutting down losses. Co-operation of shippers will help greatly in reducing losses.

As a means of helping shippers check on all shipments of hogs, Southeastern packers have agreed to render to each cooperative shipping point a report of the condition of hogs on arrival. This report will show the grades and weights, shrinkage, dead, drowns, crip, and injured hogs. This service will reveal shippers whose hogs do not arrive on the market in good condition, and such shippers should by all means take steps to correct trouble.

Increased Plantings Vetch and Austrian Peas Will Be Made

Because corn following winter crops of vetch and peas has shown up so well this summer, the number of acres to be planted to hairy vetch and Austrian peas in Union and Bradford counties will be greatly increased this fall, reports County Agent L. T. Dyer. Both adult farmers and 4-H club members are planning to increase plantings of these winter crop for soil improvement.

Takes Up New Work

Karl Lehmann, secretary of the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce, will take up his new duties in October. During September he has been invited to arrange a series of meetings of business men, bankers, and citrus growers and shippers, in order that the full importance of the citrus industry to the financial stability of Florida may be better understood. The meetings will be handled by local committees; some of them already in touch with Mr. Lehmann. Speakers will be volunteers in the number. His headquarters for the next four weeks will be in Winter Haven.

Plant Board Will Continue To Protect Florida Agriculture

That the State Plant Board will continue to give the agricultural industries of Florida the best service and protection possible under the reduced appropriations made by the last legislature was indicated in a statement issued recently by Dr. Wilson Newell, Plant Commissioner for the Board. "The reduced appropriation," said Commissioner Newell, "renders necessary a curtailment of the Board's important work of protecting the state's agriculture against new and dangerous insects and plant diseases. However, to make possible continuance of the vital activities of pest quarantine, inspection, nursery inspection and grove inspection, drastic salary reductions have been made. In keeping with the intent of the legislature to curtail expenditures, these reductions have been accepted gracefully by the board's employees who will in the future, as in the past, continue to serve the state's interests loyally and efficiently in the handling of an ever-increasing burden."

Plenic and Barbecue Held at DeSoto City

The picnic grounds on Red Beach Lake at De Soto City were the scene of a delightful picnic and barbecue Friday afternoon. The occasion was the birthdays of Dr. E. J. Eberhardt and P. A. Correll and they provided the meats, beef and pork, that were consumed. About 125 attended the affair and enjoyed themselves to the limit. Parker Eberhardt and W. J. Leachhart proved themselves very efficient cooks.

Senator Pat Harrison To Speak Labor Day Celebration at Tampa

Tampa, Sept. 2.—Determined to make the big Labor Day celebration at Tampa next Monday the greatest event of its kind ever staged in Florida, officials in charge have arranged for just about every form of amusement and entertainment that one could possibly think of.

Organized labor from every section of Florida is expected to attend this all-day event, which will be held at Plant Park, Fair Grounds in Tampa.

The grounds will be opened at 9:30 a. m. and the first event will be a base ball game. Thrilling motorcycle races, automobile races, dancing, fireworks and other amusements will follow.

The speaker of the day will be Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi who will be introduced by Mayor McKay after his address of welcome.

Chambers of Commerce in many Florida cities are arranging motorcades which will bring thousands from every section of the state to enjoy Labor Day in Tampa.

Special low excursion rates have been made on all railroads and it is hoped that all who can possibly do so will attend.

The Experiment Station at Gainesville has a new bulletin on miscellaneous tropical and subtropical fruits of Florida which is proving of interest to many readers. Postal card requests will bring free copies.

A number of farm boys will enter the College of Agriculture at the university this fall, with part of their expenses paid by scholarships won in 4-H club work. Is your boy having the advantage of this club work?

If you expect to enter the pen of pullets in the Florida National Egg-Laying Contest at Chipley, there is no time to lose. Most of the space is already taken for next year.

EATING PEANUT PORK HELPS BOTH FARMERS AND CITY RESIDENTS

An article in the August 20 issue of Manufacturers Record tells of plans being made to popularize peanut pork. This is one place where his city brother can help the Florida farmer considerably, and at the same time treat himself to a delicious meat product.

Peanut pork is a product of Florida, since both hogs and peanuts were introduced to the North American continent through Florida by the Spaniards. However, it is only in relatively recent years that the hogs and peanuts have gotten together to form a farming combination. Now, however, many hundreds of acres of peanuts are harvested by hogs every year in Florida and other Southern states.

Those "in the know" have always contended that properly cured peanut pork was more delicious than corn-fed pork. However, the packers have paid higher prices for corn-fed pork, because it was hard and cured out firm. While the discrimination is not as great now as formerly, there is still a differential which should be removed. If anything, the peanut pork should bring the higher price.

Realizing this, the extension services and marketing agencies of Florida, Georgia, and Alabama have set about to popularize peanut pork in the consuming centers. The packers are now putting up this product in cellophane, so that the outline of the longer sausage and the package is attractive.

Strange to say, peanut pork seems to sell better on some of the large Eastern markets than it does right here at home. That is where the city man can do his farm brother a favor, and at the same time not be hurting himself. He can buy peanut pork, at least occasionally, and thus help build up the demand for this product. And he will, at the same time, be getting a delicious product in the properly cured peanut pork, at little if any greater expense than the corn-fed pork would be.

Senior home demonstration club members from the eastern part of Hillsborough county are making reports of the things they learned and heard at Farmer's Week at the College of Agriculture, according to Miss Hotelle Madole, home demonstration agent. While in Gainesville for Farmer's Week, the members of each club attended as many different programs as possible, and they are reporting on them at regular meetings of their clubs now.

I'm saying the city man, perhaps I should say the city woman, since she probably buys most of the meats for the household. Anyway, the opportunity exists, and city people should avail themselves of it.

THE POLK COUNTY BAKING CO.

WE DEPRESSIONS WORSE THAN THIS

By ROME C. STEPHENSON
President American Bankers Association

ONE of the most significant aspects of the present business period is that while we have a depression, we have not had a panic and while we have had a general economic breakdown yet we have not had any real semblance of a financial panic, such as occurred in 1907, and in other years when the credit and monetary machinery broke down and we had money panic, suspension of specie payments and kindred disasters.

None of these elements of a true financial panic has been present in this depression of the 1930's. At no time was the banking structure as a whole shaken, despite the unprecedented rate of small business failures that it had to absorb. At no time was the banking and credit machinery unable to extend support to the panic-stricken and broken stock markets and cooperation to all kinds of business and manufacturing. Anyone would have been a wise prophet who could have foretold that our banking and credit structure would stand up so well under conditions so bad.

Finance Taking Cuts

And banking and corporate finance in this period of depression are unflinchingly taking their portions of short rations and sacrifices. It is undeniable that the nation's need for readjustment demands. Interest rates on money, yields on securities and dividends on corporate stock have all dropped to levels that constitute drastic reductions in the compensation of capital. These are but part of the necessary economic readjustments that will place the country's working life must go through before a general revival of business activity can start.

"It is my belief—indeed it is my hope—that the tempo of the next cycle of prosperity will be somewhat more moderate than the mad whirl of just that brought the last one to a close. I think it would be agreed that the worst aspect of the collapse of that period of false prosperity is the condition of insecurity for employment which it caused. Unemployment is the greatest public problem today.

Unemployment is the worst wage out that the worker can suffer. It is the worst cause of stagnation that business has to strive against. The sooner we can get our masses of workers back into jobs on almost any terms the better it will be both for capital and labor.

TRUST BANKING SPREADING FAST

Government Official Shows That This Type of Financial Service is Enlarging Its Field.

SPECTACULAR growth of trust service in the banking field is reflected in the national banking system, Aubrey B. Carter, in charge of Trust department supervision in the office of Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, D. C., brings out in an article in the American Bankers Association Journal.

"At the close of the 1930, nearly three years there were 12,000 national banks with trust powers," he says. "Their banking resources aggregated $25,529,100,000, which represented 34 per cent of the number of banks and 80 per cent of the total banking resources of the 7,352 national banks. Trust departments had been established by 1,539 of these banks which had administered 79,950 individual trusts with trust assets aggregating $4,473,000,000, and in addition were administering 15,590 corporate trusts and acting as trustees for outstanding notes and bond issues aggregating $11,893,700,000.

These figures represent an increase during a four-year period of 46, or 22 per cent, in the number of national banks authorized to exercise trust powers; an increase of 724, or 68 per cent, in the number of banks actively administering trusts; an increase of 65,770, or 550 per cent, in the number of trusts being administered; an increase of $3,650,000,000, or 845 per cent, in the volume of individual trusts assets under administration; and an increase of $3,340,000,000, or 373 per cent, in the volume of bond issues outstanding for which these institutions were acting as trustees.

"These facts, he concludes, are a striking testimonial to the growing public recognition of the desirability of the corporate fiduciary in the settlement of estates and the administration of trusts."

JUDGING THE COSTUME

The selection of a beautiful and becoming costume is a challenge to any woman's art, ability, and sense of fitness. Dress should measure up to the accepted standards of health, modesty, and economy, should contain beauty in color and design, simplicity, suitability to the person and use, and genuineness.

Suit Personality

One must understand the relation of personality to clothes in order to appear well dressed. There is no style suitable to all types, but there are many adaptations from which to select. Is the wearer conservative or extremist? Is she of the athletic type, suggesting mannish style; or is she exceedingly feminine, calling to mind dainty ruffles and soft materials? Is she dashing and forceful, so that she is wearing striking designs and color, and still be a distinct personality beyond her clothes; or is she quiet and retiring? If she is very quiet she will be entirely eclipsed by clothes that are too striking, but she should wear some accent of color to add a little sparkle, which her personality lacks.

Just as there are designs for every type, there are colors which are particularly suited to brunettes, and others which are excellent for blondes.

Harmony Essential

Another requirement of good dress is that all the clothes which are worn at one time should appear to belong together. Frequently in an impulsive moment a woman will buy an attractive becoming hat. It may not look well with the other things that she has but she does not think of that. Next, a handsome pair of shoes is purchased. They are not quite right for anything in the wardrobe, but they are good looking. A dress is then selected on the same basis. The occasion soon comes when the short-sighted buyer needs to wear her new hat, shoes, and dress. She suddenly realizes that they cannot be worn together, and thus realize the first principle of good buying, and design; namely, things that are to be worn together must be harmonious.

Ruth Bryant Owen thinks unemployment will be the issue of next year's campaign, and "cannot see" prohibition as an issue. Ruth should consult an oculist. Prohibition will be the dominant issue in the next campaign, regardless of the earnest efforts of the politicians to duck it.

Promoters of the tung oil industry are optimistic, and a steady market at fair prices is predicted by those acquainted with conditions. The output of 2,000,000 tung oil trees could be absorbed at this time by domestic demands. Florida seems well on the way to leadership in this productive and prosperous industry.

Friends of Jack Worthington editor of the Lake Wales Highlander, are trying to draft him for service in the next legislature. We have no desire to "butt in" where Polk county politics are concerned, but the election of men like Jack Worthington to the legislature is a matter of interest to the whole state, for the whole state would benefit thereby.

We hear wonder expressed why good men do not offer for public office. Well, one reason is they are unwilling to put themselves in a position to be besmirched by abuse and slander. Tampa has just seen the close of a mayoralty campaign. Two men, both probably above the average in qualifications and character, have each been reviled in such manner that if half that was said about either were true neither would be fit to be dogcatcher, much less mayor. Such things furnish in part the answer to the question why the high type citizen so often is shy about becoming a candidate for public office.

Admirers of the nineteenth amendment to the Constitution celebrated the eleventh anniversary of that amendment a few days ago. We did not participate. We thought when it was being considered, and we are confirmed absolutely in the belief, after eleven years of its operation, that the nineteenth amendment is of questionable value. In fact, outside of the ten original amendments, and perhaps the thirteenth, none of the amendments has produced unimixed good, and some of them have done much more harm than good. We rather think we will be "agin" the next amendment proposed, whatever it is.

When you find yourself threatened with an acute attack of admiration for Russia, as the result of some clever propaganda, just remember these few undisputed facts: Russia has abolished religion; Russia seeks to abolish God; Russia abolishes the home; Russia recognizes no property rights. There are many other things in the Russian order just as abhorrent to all established ideas of right. Russia and communism are synonymous. An authoritative dictum of communists asserts: "The destruction of three-quarters of the people of the earth means nothing, provided the remaining one-quarter are communists." Beautiful, isn't it?

Why any woman should want to be a prohibition enforcement stool pigeon, or why any woman should want any other woman to be employed as such, is beyond us. Director Woodcock very properly issued a ruling forbidding the employment of women as decoys in seeking violators of the dry laws, and some women's organizations have protested it is "outrageous" to deprive women of these rather questionable jobs. Possibly there may be women who can do this kind of work and preserve their self-respect. We read in the news of one 19-year-old girl so employed, drinking herself into a state of degrading intoxication while getting "evidence" in a speakeasy; of another who drank for an hour in such a place, after which arrests were made for selling liquor to her. Elevating, what?

The public will be glad to have a rest in the Bishop Cannon matter. The good Bishop may be a victim of persecution, though we do not think his appeal to religious or, rather, denominational prejudices, greatly strengthens his case. But these two facts stand out in the controversy like a couple of black cats in a coal pit: If he had stuck to his Bible and the Bishop business, and let questionable politics alone, he would not have become involved in all this trouble; and granting he had done no wrong, if he had faced his accusers with the facts, instead of taking refuge behind technicalities and refusing to make a proper accounting, then much of his trouble could have been averted. We have an old-fashioned idea that anyone handling money for others should court an investigation rather than attempt to evade it.

We do not think lynchings are ever justifiable. No matter how heinous the crime, another great wrong added to it does not make a right. But we can understand that sometimes provocation is so great that men for a time lose their reason, and under such circumstances, while lynching may never be condoned, perhaps it should not be too violently condemned. The double lynching at Blountstown, however, was a cowardly, unwarranted deed, for which there is no excuse. The negroes had a dispute with a white man. The white man probably was as much to blame as the negroes. The negroes were arrested for "attacking" the white man—who it seems struck one of the negroes first—and were released on bond. After this a band of masked men shot them to death, a cruel and cowardly crime for which there can be no justification. Florida gets credit for two more lynchings, and the good name of the state is besmirched by a few worthless, lawless ruffians, to the shame and discredit of all the state's good and law-abiding citizens.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma

William Southern, Jr., publisher of the Independent (Mo.) Examiner, says:

"Did you ever stop to think that advertising is the telling of prospective customers that you have something for sale at an attractive price?"

"There are various simple methods by which you may carry this information to those whom you desire to reach. One is by going out yourself and visiting each prospective customer. This is the most expensive, even if it is the most effective in individual cases. Many object to house to house solicitation. It often offends and drives away customers. Another method is to write a letter to the person you desire to reach. Each letter costs at least seven cents, and to send a letter to twenty thousand persons would be a very expensive proposition."

"The method of advertising which is the most effective for the least cost is, of course, the newspaper, and that is why newspapers are published. The newspaper is possible only when a sufficient number of those whom it desires to serve make use of the opportunities offered."

"The newspaper takes the risk and provides a medium of contact between the merchant and the consumer. The man with something to sell may reach the subscribers of the newspaper with the advertising at a very low cost, many times lower than the cost of a personal visit to each buyer, and many times less than a personal letter. The messages of those who have things to sell are grouped together in the paper, and the reader may select intelligently from what may be offered."

"Success in business simply means intelligence and ingenuity enough to take advantage of the opportunities which offer. One might have the best stock of goods or the best automobile or the best flying machine or the best milk at the lowest price, but if nobody knew about it the most prosperous business would not continue to succeed. Here's where the newspaper comes in."

"NOW IS THE TIME TO ADVERTISE!"

TRUTH

By JUDGE JOHN W. DODGE

COMPLETELY PERFECT RELATIONSHIP.

"What is truth?" said Plato to the Master of men. Then, and now, this age old question is being asked. Men are still seeking for its answer.

May I give my answer? It is simple—it can be proved if applied—it is this:

Truth is a completely perfect relationship throughout all time. No single idea, thought, thing, or anything else, is in and of itself, separate and apart from all else, either of any value, weight, worthwhileness, or worth considering. It is necessary to have a relationship, of some kind or degree, before we can find either existence or value.

Whoever, or whatever, is a completely perfect relationship throughout all time that is TRUTH. The Master of men said "I AM THE TRUTH." He, and He alone, is all and the only completely perfect relationship throughout all time.

Ideas, thoughts, things, everything else, both mind, matter and spirit, unless and unless it is in a completely perfect relationship throughout all time with Him in error, and fails to be or become TRUTH. So in life, or what may be called more properly existence, all which fails to establish a completely perfect relationship throughout all time with all else, that does or may exist, such is not truth, and it can and does become truth only when it makes a completely perfect relationship with HIM.

More mortal man, ideas, thought, things, and all else, exist in relationship to Him, who was and is and ever will be, from the beginning to the end, throughout all time.

He always has been, is, and will be—all else exists in relationship to Him. He alone is TRUTH. We become, or may be, TRUTH when we are in a completely perfect relationship throughout all time to Him. He first, and always has, existed. All else is related, in relationship to Him. When in relation, as stated above, we have TRUTH.

Can you find as between other ideas, thoughts, things or anything, a completely perfect relationship throughout all time? No. Why? Because change occurs. The whole is not capable of being a completely perfect relationship. We relate parts—a very few parts—we lack complete knowledge. We can only approximate—we never secure an absolute.

But we must seek TRUTH—we must try to rightly relate all into the One who is TRUTH. The Master said: "I and My Father are one"—Here was His completely perfect relationship throughout all time—THIS WAS TRUTH. I am the Way, the Truth, the Light" said He. Benedictine Grace just missed Truth when he failed to see what Beauty was true when it became in completely perfect relationship to Him throughout all time.

Echoes of the State Press

NEWSPAPER NOT A PUBLIC UTILITY.

The supreme court of the United States has held in a case coming before it from Detroit that a newspaper is not required to sell space to all advertisers on equal terms. The issue arose when the referee of a bankrupt concern sought space in the Detroit Times and Detroit News and was refused admission until he had agreed to pay obligations incurred before the concern went into bankruptcy. An agreement was made. The trustee refused to pay the claims and the matter went to court.

Among the contentions was that a newspaper, like a railroad, warehouse and other utilities is clothed with a public interest making it subject to regulation. The supreme court's opinion, after citing numerous authorities, concludes "that a newspaper is not at common law a business clothed with a public interest. Objections to the referee's findings of fact and conclusions of law are overruled, and the report of the referee is confirmed."

The case is of interest not only to advertisers, but to the public in general. Occasionally a concern will present copy which the management of a newspaper considers highly objectionable and unfair. It does not have to be accepted—Lakeland Ledger.

CURBING STATE TAXES.

Following the lead of Indiana, a number of states have taken steps to limit tax levies through a constitutional tax commission. State officials of Indiana claim to have saved approximately $80,000,000 since the tax commission was established eight years ago. A similar organization has been recommended to the legislature of Oregon by Gov. Julius L. Meier, who believes that the excessive tax rate in his state is working real hardship among the people.

Taxation in Oregon is estimated to absorb 19.3 percent of the people's income. This heavy burden rests mainly on the shoulders of real estate owners. Indirect taxation on land is further increased by assessments for improvements. As a result more than 5,000,000 acres of the less productive lands are delinquent in taxes. Continual foreclosing on such land by counties has removed a large part of it from the tax rolls, with the result that the burden is increased upon those who manage to meet their obligations.

Wasteful methods of local and state government are largely responsible for the growth of budgets. Unrestricted by proper supervision, taxes have mounted to cover the extravagance of every department.

The Oregon tax commission is empowered to review the legality of tax levies, but can not probe into waste or prevent excessive levies. Any reductions, therefore, can be brought about only through voluntary organization among the taxpayers themselves. Governor Meier has urged the people, in view of this condition, to develop an unofficial organization of state-wide scope to perfect tax leagues in each county. These leagues would scrutinize every item entering the various local budgets, bringing pressure to bear for the elimination of all extravagance. County units would be affiliated with the tax commission of the whole state, which would be concerned with supervision of the local leagues as well as with matters of state-wide taxation.

Efforts which are being made throughout the states to institute more scientific government are resulting in marked improvement of local administration. Public officials who are endeavoring to establish taxpayers' leagues and commissions of experts detached from political affiliations are striking at the roots of excessive taxation.—Washington Post.

COMPETITION REGULAR MONOPOLY.

"Competition is the life of trade," has been an economic axiom for a great many years, notwithstanding the fact that at the same time it has been an anachronism and an economic fallacy. Because time has proven and is proving that free and untrammelled competition most certainly is the death of traders, no matter what it may or might be to trade. The United States, from its earliest history as a nation, has in its business affairs, its economic and financial fabric, had the questionable distinction of being the world's unregulated competition and in business and financial failures. No other nation operates its entire business with such a degree of unlimited competition, and no other shows year after year, such an imposing total of bank, industrial and commercial failures.

In the citrus industry of Florida we have a particularly brilliant example of the effects of such competition. On the one hand we have the Florida Citrus Exchange trying year after year to obtain such a degree of control as would enable it to function properly as a single dominant citrus co-operative, for the benefit of the whole body of growers in the state. On the other hand we have a host of little speculators, a swarm of speculators, paying as little as possible and heeding no law of supply and demand, having no plan or program of distribution, and wrecking the market year after year. Between these two factors comes the grower undecided which way to turn, undecided which method, misunderstanding, not knowing what it's all about, and winding up "in the red." What industry save agriculture and citrus production could stand such a condition year after year?

The Florida Citrus Exchange towers above the citrus horizon as the only sure agency for remedying the unfortunate condition of the growers and for saving the whole industry. Approved by the federal government as the only citrus co-operative in the state, which may receive financial aid and support from the Farm Board; already the recipient of upwards of $5,000,000 in loans and financing from that board, the Exchange is the recognized agency for handling our citrus fruits from grove to consumer. There should be no more financial difficulty in obtaining governmental approval and co-operation in establishing a benevolent citrus monopoly, functioning through the Exchange. With 75 or 90 percent control of the whole citrus industry, and by that is meant the whole citrus control, there could be no more reason for refusal of governmental approval of a citrus monopoly in favor of the growers than there exists for refusal of Farm Board aid to wheat growers through monopolistic, government sanctioned control.

Unlimited competition may appeal to some as the ideal condition, but to the individual who has to suffer the consequences of such competition it most seem that a better system could be and should be found. The kind of competition that destroys does not seem to be logical. The government won't stand for it in the case of the railroad; why should government or individual stand for it in the citrus industry?—Fort Pierce News-Tribune.

THE GAS TAX SQUIBBLE.

Probably if we lived in one of the so-called "big" counties, and the shoe was thus placed on the other foot, we would be able to see the middle over the distribution of the gasoline tax in a different light, but being a resident of a "small" county we just naturally cannot see why the legislature arranged for a division of the money is not fair to all concerned.

True, the big counties have been receiving the bulk of the money in past years, and that makes it all the harder to give it up now, but nevertheless, this fact does not argue for the fairness of it.

The gasoline tax is levied and collected by the state. It is a state fund. Most of it is used for state purposes. The fact that Hillsborough county, being the home of a large business center, collects more of the tax than DeSoto county, does not give it the right to have any more of the money. As a matter of fact, the plan offered in the legislature to distribute the tax money equally among the counties seems the fairest of all.

If the supreme court mixes an element of fairness with law and the constitution in reaching its decision, the small counties should come into their own.—Arcadia Aradian.

Fred Wetherbee Injured in Wreck

Fred Wetherbee suffered a broken collar bone and lacerations of the head as the result of an auto collision at the intersection of Florida avenue and Main street Thursday morning. Wetherbee was driving south on Florida avenue, had crossed the Main and was within a few feet of being clear of the intersection, when a car driven by a negro chauffeur for a Mrs. Brown of Frostproof struck the rear of his car and whirled it around, catapulting Wetherbee out on the pavement. He was knocked unconscious by the impact, the nature of his injuries indicating that he had hit on his head and shoulders. He was rushed to Dr. Touchton's hospital where examination revealed no skull fracture and he regained consciousness in a few minutes.

The Brown car was said to have been traveling at a high rate of speed by those who saw the car before the crash. The Wetherbee car was demolished. No arrests were made.

Mayor Donaldson Gets More Funds

Much improvement has been shown from the money derived from the charity baseball game which was played between Sebring and Avon Park recently. However, Mayor Donaldson employed by the day the money soon ran low and it was necessary that Mayor Donaldson should replenish it in some manner. Monday morning he made a trip to the city of Sebring and collected about a hundred dollars which will continue the work and at the same time be a means of livelihood for some of the needy of the town. "By doing this now we will not only get the town cleaned up for the winter season but we will provide work at a time when it is most needed," the mayor said.

Sunday School Lesson

FOR SEPTEMBER 6th, 1931.

SUBJECT: Turning to the Gentiles.
GOLDEN TEXT: "I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth." Acts 13:47.

LESSON TEXT: Acts 13: 19-32 (printed 42-52) Rom. 1: 14-16.
INTRODUCTION: In the synagogue at Antioch in Pisidia, Paul and Barnabas preached saying "men and brethren . . . The God of this people . . . exalted the people in Egypt . . . brought them out . . . forty years suffered he their manners in the wilderness . . . when he destroyed seven nations in Canaan he divided their land to them by lot . . . and gave them judges . . . four hundred years . . . until Samuel . . . afterward they desired a king and God gave them Saul . . . forty years and . . . raised up . . . David who was their king . . . a man after mine own heart. Of this man's seed hath God . . . raised unto Israel a Savior, Jesus.

"Men and brethren, children of the stock of Abraham, and whose ever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this salvation sent.

"For they that dwell at Jerusalem . . . because they knew him not . . . in condemning him . . . they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a sepulchre . . . But God raised him from the dead . . . He was seen many days of them which came up with him. We declare unto you that the promise . . . made to the fathers . . . hath fulfilled the same unto us.

"Be it known unto you therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveness of sins:

"And by him all that believe are justified from all things, from which ye could not be justified by the law of Moses."

This is the first of Paul's missionary sermons of which any extended account is given.

"And when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue, the Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath. And the next Sabbath Day came almost the whole city together to hear the word of God."

Paul's sermon was the message of salvation, always rejected by some and desired by others.

"But when the Jews saw the multitude, they were filled with envy, and spake against those things which were spoken by Paul, contradicting and blaspheming."

The jealous Jews denied the Messiahship and deity of Jesus, and ridiculed Paul's statement that Jesus died to provide a means of salvation.

"Then Paul and Barnabas . . . said, It was necessary that the word of God should first have been spoken to you; but seeing ye put it from you, and judge yourselves worthy of everlasting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles."

It is a serious thing to put from you the gospel, and thus become "unworthy of everlasting life."

"And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed."

This was the beginning of the free and full dispensation of the gospel of salvation to the Gentiles, and they were glad to know they were to be thus favored. The words "ordained to eternal life," are hard to understand. Pelagius says, "It is God's ordaining that those who believe on Christ shall have eternal life."

The opposite of eternal life is eternal death, which is the portion of those who do not believe on Jesus Christ, and so are not ordained to eternal life.

"And the word of the Lord was published throughout all the region."

The gospel was soon preached throughout southern Europe, including the cities of London, Corinth, Philippi, Rome, and as far as Spain.

"But the Jews stirred up the devout and honorable women, and the chief men of the city, and raised persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coats."

These "devout and honorable women" were probably proselytes to the Jewish religion. The disciples "shook off the dust of their feet against them." This was in accordance with the directions of Jesus. (Matt. 10:15).

"And the disciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghost." Hardship, poverty and even persecution cannot destroy the joy of trust in and service of Christ.

In his letter to the church at Rome, Paul said: "I am debtor both to the Greeks, and to the Barbarians; both to the wise and to the unwise."

Paul was "debtor" to the Gentiles as a trustee holds the trust property for the beneficiaries, as a guardian holds the estate for children.

"For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

Salvation is a free gift to those who will accept Christ as a Savior.

AVON AND LAKE WALES PLAY 11 INNING TIE

Score Stands at 4-4 As Dark- ness Ends Game at Lake Wales

Avon Park and Lake Wales played to a 4-4 tie Thursday afternoon in an eleven inning game that was called on account of darkness and a drizzling rain that had fallen on the greater part of the game.

The game was played under protest by Avon Park on account of the intelligibility of Caldar, Lake Wales hurler, who is not registered in the Orange Belt league. He has been pitching all season with Winter Haven in the South Florida league.

Bass for Avon Park held his own with Caldar throughout the eleven innings, and only for costly errors in the seventh when Wales tied the count, should have had a win.

Bass and Lawhorn were Avon Park's heavy hitters, each collecting a brace of hits, one of Bass's going for two bases. C. B. Martin's only hit went for three bases.

MacMillan for Lake Wales got a home run.

ther into this. I am about to cry now.

Most of you no doubt have a definite course of studies outlined preparatory for your future. But those of you who are going because you are forced to go should stop short and ask yourself a few questions. Ask anyone who didn't finish school and hear what he has to say in regard to an education. Never a day passes that I don't say, or hear someone else say, "If I only had my schooldays back again."

You boys and girls have before you now the golden opportunity you will probably never have again. So take advantage of it. Think of the sacrifices your mother and father are making in order to send you to school. Don't disappoint them. Most of all, don't disappoint yourself—for it's your funeral after all. Make your examinations a display of knowledge instead of a cheating contest, and you will come through with colors flying.

Birthday! Who Has a Birthday?

Don't give up having birthday cakes just because you're growing older! You're behind the times if you don't know that nowadays when we reach an age we like, we just stick to it! Those birthday cakes of "sweetness and light" which thrill every child are just as much fun for the older once she (or he, since men are also age-conscious!) realizes that a single delicious cake with use of a modern cooking oil or butter-substitute. You may use the all-purpose flour you keep in your kitchen cabinet, converting it into cake-flour simply by adding two tablespoons of cornstarch to each cup and a half of flour. This simple expedient counteracts the gluten content of bread flour, and not only gives the cake a fine, even texture, but one better suited to take the frosting.

If your family is small and will not consume the cake at one meal, make a moist fresh-keeping cake, a fruit or syrup cake. Corn syrup too, you will use in the frosting. If you want a creamy, smooth icing without a trace of "sugary-ness."

Use Your Imagination
Decorating the cake is the most fun! Arrange the candles in the shape of a question mark, cover the cake with colored coconut or chocolate "shells" or make designs of frosting squeezed through a pastry tube, tiny candies or candied now leaves. The children enjoy "Circus cakes" — animal crackers standing on green frosting on top of a chocolate cake. "Clown" cakes are cunning, too.

Cook's Nook Birthday Cake
1½ cups bread flour and 2 tps. cornstarch
3 tablespoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 eggs
½ cup cooking oil
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup milk or water

Shift flour baking powder and salt together. Break eggs into mixing bowl, beat slightly with egg beater and add cool corn oil, gradually, stirring constantly with beater. Stir in sugar and flavoring. Add one-fourth cup liquid and beat one minute. Add half dry ingredients or dry ingredients. Pour into two eight-inch oiled and floured layer cake pans, and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven (400 degrees F.). Turn out fire and let stand in oven five minutes. Remove from oven. Let stand two or three minutes before removing from pans.

Cream Filling
2 tablespoons cornstarch
2 eggs
1 cup scalded milk
1 teaspoon butter
½ teaspoon vanilla

Mix sugar, cornstarch, salt and beaten eggs; pour on gradually the scalded milk. Cook in double boiler until thick and smooth, stirring constantly. Add butter and flavoring.

Birthday Frosting
2½ cups sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup water
2 egg whites
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1½ cup shredded coconut

Cook together sugar, corn syrup and water until syrup spins a thread (248 degrees F.). Leave saucepan over the burner after fire has been turned out.

Beat egg whites quickly with Dover egg beater until stiff. Pour hot syrup slowly over beaten egg whites beating constantly with a wire whisk. Add vanilla and continue beating until mixture is almost cold and will hold its shape when spread on a cake. Sprinkle coconut generously over the surface of the frosting.

Crown Cakes
Use recipe for Cook's Nook Birthday Cake, baking in muffin or tea cake pans. When cold, frost. Just before serving, place cakes on individual serving plates, lay half of vanilla ice cream firmly on top for "face" of crown. Make eyes and nose with pitted dates, make hair with toasted coconut. Set a cone on top for "hat."

Pineapple Cake Filling
1 cup sugar
1 cup grated pineapple
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Dash of salt
1 cup boiling water
Moisten cornstarch with pineapple juice and make into a smooth paste. Cook ingredients together until quite thick (about 15 minutes). Cool before using.
