In addition to holding a large pastorate, Dr. McDill spends about three months each year in evangelistic work, and has held successful meetings in every state in the southeast.

Dr. McDill's services are also greatly in demand as a lecturer in Bible conferences and his home courses have covered many books of the Bible; also he has given courses in the practical work of the church, such as organization methods, organized men's movements, Sunday school, and Young People's Work. He has also given several courses in the Great Doctrines of the Bible.

In civic affairs, Dr. McDill is called on frequently to address his home county to address Kiwanis, Rotary, and other clubs, patriotic organizations and school organizations. He is said to have one of the best organized and working churches in the South. His church is in the city of Greenville in the week; and there is something doing in some departments of his church every day.

Government Recipe For Whitewash

In spring many farmers plan to renovate and whitewash their buildings and for their benefit the tested Government recipe for making whitewash is printed: Sack one-half bushel of lime, dissolve one peck of common salt and blend with one peck of water. It is a thick paste. Mix these together and add while the mixture is still hot one-half pound of plaster of paris and one pound of dissolved glue. Then add five gallons of water and let it stand for a few days. Apply hot to the building with smooth brushes. A quart of carbolic acid makes this mixture a good disinfectant.

To be adapted to the conditions of life is to be a woman who lives on it. We must come back to the earth and be conscious of it—L. H. Bailey.

CARY A. HARDEE

The Record One Has Made Is the Best Test of What He Is Likely to Do Again. The People's Interest Is the Chief Concern.

What He Did

He co-ordinated departments.

He found some of the departments heavily in debt and paid them out.

He created the Budget System and lived up to it.

He practiced real economy.

The State didn't owe a dollar when he left office.

Not a dollar had been borrowed by one Fund from another.

He gave the State the first System of Roads and the Road Department a Fiscal policy for raising funds to build roads.

On leaving office there was completed, with bridges and culverts, 862 miles of surfaced roads.

The next four years there was completed and surfaced 1040.

The Road System of his administration cost the tax payer $12,000,000.

The next four years cost the tax payers $44,000,000.

He left a large balance in every department and a 3 cent gas tax.

The entire cost of his administration to the tax payer was $55,000,000 (4 years).

The succeeding four years cost the tax payer $140,000,000.

We must have progress without extravagance.

What He Will Do

We must eliminate unnecessary expense.

Abolish every useless office. Stop the reckless creation of money-spending agencies.

Stop the practice of constantly enlarging governmental activities.

Make every dollar do its full duty. Save economy shall be his watchword.

We must have more equitable taxation methods.

Fairly distribute and not increase those tax burdens.

Restore values to homes, business houses and lands.

We must conserve our natural resources — Forest, Mining, Game.

Provide for those rightfully dependent on the State.

Support our common schools and institutions of higher learning to the limit of our financial ability.

Strengthen our Banking laws; restore confidence and protect depositors.

Think of the State as a whole.

Deal fairly between all sections and all interests.

He is not the candidate of any faction, men or set of men.

He will go into office without pledges or promises of appointment.

Only the best men shall receive appointments at his hands, and due consideration will be given to recommendations by duly elected Executive Committees.

Conditions are indeed distressing in this country when a first-class base ball player has to work for the same wages as a mere President of the United States.

That boy, Bill Murray, is the modest lad. He admits that he will name the next President. Why go to all the trouble and bother of a convention? Why not just let Bill do it?

"If the people would regain confidence in banks, business would improve by leaps and bounds," a big business man is quoted as saying. And if the banks would exhibit a little more confidence in the people, that might help some, too.

Roosevelt, Drane and Hardee. That was our ticket as early as these gentlemen were mentioned as candidates; and as the campaign progresses we grow stronger in the faith. Faith in their fitness; faith in their ability; faith in their success.

An Iowa farmer is kicking because a cow he bought twelve years ago for $125 brought him net returns from a commission house of only 86 cents. Sounds like a report of a citrus shipment. But then something ought to be allowed for depreciation after twelve years use of a cow.

A young white woman, a citizen of the United States, was abused and beaten by a Japanese soldier, and when this country complained the offender was punished by a jail sentence of fifteen days. We still think Uncle Sam should have insisted that the soldier should have been given a slap on the wrist.

Since the day of the pronouncement, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," man has sought to avoid the "curse" of labor. It required a time when the opportunity to labor is denied him for man to realize that work, instead of being a curse, is life's greatest blessing.

Thanks to an advertisement of Martin's candidacy for Governor we know what constitutes a "big man." Only big men can appreciate Mr. Martin, the advertisement informs us. Primary returns may show that big men are in the minority in Florida, and even some of the big ones may appear to Johnnie to be lacking in appreciation.

A Florida fact—at least, it is listed under the heading of "Florida Facts"—is that "the bees in Florida produce three times the honey gathered by the bees of any other State." Feb's Gulf Glean explains this by saying the Florida bee uses his head. Yet we met one that we could have sworn used his other end. Though perhaps he made no honey in that transaction.

As long as we had money to give away we are pretty sure we would not commit suicide. We can not imagine a greater thrill than to be able to lift up those who are cast down, to replace sorrow with happiness in the lives of others. And, say what you will, money and money alone, enables one to do these things. If Mr. Eastman had seen George Arliss in "The Man Who Played God", we are convinced that he would have found there was still something to live for.

The Florida Commission of the Century of Progress Exposition wants a Florida song that is a real knock-out. Probably it will not get what it wants. You can't order a song of that kind like you would a dime's worth of hamburger. But the Commission doubtless will be delighted with a flood of songs with an "Oh, Florida, my Florida" refrain, and some rhyming of "June" and "moon" and "breezes" and "treasures". We have seen lots of people with an irresistible urge to compose that kind of song.

Here's something for the Hoovers to chew upon who went over to the Republican party in 1928, "because it was dry". Ninety-seven Republicans voted for the amendment (that is, voted wet) as against 90 Democrats; whereas 114 Democrats voted against the amendment, (voting dry) as against 112 Republicans. In other words, there seems to be more Republicans in Congress who favor repeal or modification of the eighteenth amendment than there are Democrats. So those "dry" Democrats in Florida and elsewhere who left their party because it was wet actually voted with the party that has the most wet members in Congress.

Melvin A. Traylor, Chicago banker, who has been boomed by his native Kentucky for President, in a recent address declared that one of his hopes for the future is that we may "be nationally minded without being narrow minded." That's a thought that might be turned over in the minds of many. It is all right for us to have proper pride and appreciation for our own great nation, but these things should be tempered with a recognition of the greatness of other nations. Too much of what passes for nationalism is provincialism. We should broaden our view.

We are glad Mayor Key won out in the recall movement, which appears to us to savor of unjustified persecution prompted by fanaticism. And we will be glad if Mayor Porter, of Los Angeles, wins out in his recall fight, which will be decided May 2. Key's crime was saying that in his opinion prohibition in America was a failure, while Porter gave some offense because he would not drink wine at a banquet. This thing of a man not being able to say his soul is his own simply because he holds a public office is unfair and un-American, and should be rebuked just as it was in Atlanta, and as we hope it will be in Los Angeles.

In these days when many things we thought most sound have crashed, it is gratifying to observe that the great insurance companies have weathered the financial storms, and that none has failed. Confidence has been shaken in most institutions, and one would hesitate to endorse almost any kind of investment, but a policy in one of the recognized strong insurance companies seems to be about as safe and secure an asset as it is possible to obtain. Young people, in particular, should be interested in the features of investment and protection such a policy provides.

It is a bit pathetic to see the railroads coming around, hat in hand, asking for business, when one remembers how autocratic they once were. Still, railroads, with their ramifications through the mazes of many interests and enterprises, are of vital importance in our economic scheme, and are entitled to the thoughtful consideration of the public. Changes in our transportation methods are going forward with revolutionary rapidity; still, for a long time to come we shall look to the railroads for certain services that no other agency can provide. Because of the armies of workers they employ, the fact that their securities are owned by thousands, including vast holding insurance companies, through which other thousands are indirectly affected, radical treatment tending to affect them disastrously would almost certainly result in far-reaching calamity.

Financial Stagnation

By JUDGE JOHN W. DODGE

DISHONESTY CREATED HOARDING.

When all has been said by economists and financial writers, we are driven back to the age old maxim, "Honesty is the best policy" if we are to emerge from the prevailing depression, hoarding and stagnation gloom.

The well grounded psychological factor, fear, has been implanted deeply in the minds of both high and low, rich and poor—but, the reason, basis and cause of the fear was created in 1928 and 1929, (although then unperceived) and by false statements and deception it has been continued since 1929, almost down to date, by those high in power and office, that there is "nothing wrong" with this country except that the masses are foolishly fearful.

The masses are not "foolishly fearful." They have seen the frauds and deceptions—they were misled and lost their money and investments, and also their confidence in financiers, banks and bankers, because they have seen so much dishonesty. There are some honest ones of course. But, even the honest ones were also misled and lacked good judgment.

The Financial World of February 10th, 1932, contains a splendid article by Andrew A. Bock, Ph.D., of its Editorial Staff, in which he says: "The general price level is determined by the amount of goods available (Supply factor), the quantity of purchasing power (demand factor) and the willingness to use the purchasing power (attitudes, psychological factor)."

Neither honest bankers, nor thousands of individuals, in view of the past records of fraud and deceit upon the part of many, now possess "the willingness to use the purchasing power (psychological factor)" which they possess. Prior dishonesty, now known, has created hoarding.

When intelligence, integrity and honesty, in the minds of others prevail, then, and then only, will hoarding, credit, contraction, pent up purchasing power, depression, gloom, and stagnation begin to ease up. Known, or generally believed, dishonesty is the fundamental cause of stagnation, depression and hoarding.

2 or 3 Forgotten Features

It requires a combination of many things to give satisfaction to a grove owner. One of the outstanding features is

SERVICE

Many growers with whom we do business have so thoroughly acquired the habit of calling on and depending on GREGG MAXCY, Inc., for grove inspection and advice that this service is unconsciously taken for granted, but when someone from the "outside" makes them an offer for their fruit because of some real or fancied market improvement, immediately some of those same growers forget all about the YEAR-ROUND service and advice they have received from GREGG MAXCY, Inc., as

HOME FOLKS

Who will the grower have to advise him about his grove and fruit the coming summer when he may need advice? The "outsider" will have vanished, but GREGG MAXCY, Inc., are and can be depended upon to be available 12 MONTHS IN THE YEAR to talk and advise with them on any feature of their citrus problems.

Another point! Our growers know that when they want on which they can depend, it is at GREGG MAXCY'S for their asking—every market accurately, every day of the season.

The present market and the prospects for the balance of the season fully substantiate our past advice to growers this season to hold their fruit and let us get the benefit of the market for them. Notwithstanding this advice, some have sold, and at lower prices than we could now secure for them.

THINK IT OVER

Which is more valuable to you as a Grower and to the Community as a whole—the GREGG MAXCY, Inc., organization or the outside intermittent buyer who is here today and perhaps gone tomorrow?

WHY WORRY ABOUT AUTO TAG MONEY AND TAX MONEY?

THERE is a simple way and a very easy way to have this money in hand when you need it. Here's the plan: Consider your savings account as if it were the grocer, the clothier or any other party to whom you must pay regularly. Drive your auto tag and tax money by the number of pay-days you have and then systematically save this amount each pay-day. It has worked for thousands of others; it will work for you. The plan is worth trying. May we explain it to you?

Ten Calendar Home Orchards Started In Alachua County

Ten farm women in Alachua county have recently started calendar home orchards—orchards from which some fruit can be had every month—reports Mrs. Grace F. Warren, home demonstration agent.

Some are setting new orchards, while others have only to add fruits to their home plantings. Home demonstration club women in the county report that during the last year they have set more than 1,000 fruit and nut trees and about 30,000 blackberry and raspberry plants.

Most of the orchards are about a quarter of an acre, while quite a number of trees are planted around the house for shade and ornamentation. What is better than a grapevine to cover the porch, or what shrub will scent the atmosphere and trim the lawn better than such fruits as the loquat, pomegranate, kumquat, or guava? Mrs. Warren asks.

"In our orchard," reported Mrs. W. W. Ayers, "we have grapefruit, Satsuma, tangerine, and round oranges, kumquats, figs, guavas, peaches, plums, pears, Japanese persimmons, grapes, strawberries, blackberries, and blueberries. I will raspberries. When we spray, fertilize, and take proper care of our orchard we have fresh fruit every month in the year. Besides, we grow most of our home garden in between the trees."

"The home orchard is important to our live-at-home program," said Mrs. Henry Bethea. "During seasons of plenty we can and in other ways preserve fruits which help us plan economical, balanced diets throughout the year. We have fresh fruits on our table almost every day, but we find that the canned ones come in mighty handy."

Sunday School Lesson

FOR MARCH 27, 1932.

SUBJECT: Jesus rises from the dead. (Easter Lesson).
 GOLDEN TEXT: "But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the first fruit of them that slept." 1 Cor. 15:20.
 LESSON TEXT: John 20:11-20.
 TIME: April 9, A. D. 30.

Why did the first day of the week (Sunday) supersede the seventh day (the Jewish Sabbath) as the Christian day of worship and rest? Jesus was crucified the day before the Sabbath, and was buried. The next day (the Sabbath) he lay in tomb, and apparently their hope was gone. That Sabbath was probably the saddest of days for his followers. The next day he arose and appeared to them, and the first day of the week became known as the most joyous of all days. Jesus appeared to the disciples on the first day of the week and the Holy Spirit was given to them on that day when Peter preached a sermon and 3000 were added to them. It is said that for some time the disciples kept both days, but gradually the first day of the week was universally adopted.

"The chief priest (Matt. 27:62-66) came unto Pilate, saying: 'That deliverer said: * after three days I will rise again.' * command therefore that the sepulchre be made sure until the third day.' * Pilate said unto them, 'Ye have a watch; go your way, make it as sure as ye can. So they went and made the sepulchre sure, sealing the stone and setting a watch.' 'The stone' was the door to the tomb, and the 'Seal' was a piece of parchment to paste on this door and the adjoining wall so that to remove the door would tear away the parchment on which the Roman Seal was impressed. That was a crime, as was also the neglect or sleeping of a guard in such cases. How, then, did Jesus arise and come out of the tomb? Matthew 28:2, gives this account: 'And behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.'

Mark 16:1-6, says that early in the morning the first day of the week certain women (Christ's followers) came unto the tomb and found the stone door rolled away. Jesus gone, and a young man, or angel, sitting in the tomb, who announced that Jesus was risen.

In John 20, he tells of Mary Magdalene coming to the grave while it was yet dark, and finding the stone taken away from the sepulchre. Peter and John went to the tomb and found it open and the linen clothes. Then Peter and John returned to their home.

"But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping; and as she wept, she stooped down, and looked into the sepulchre. And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain. And they say unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? She saith unto them, Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." This "Mary" was the woman from whom Christ had cast the seven devils. Mary doubtless did not notice the man carefully, as is shown by the next verse, "Jesus saith unto her, Woman, why weepest thou? whom seekest thou? She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away."

But then "Jesus saith unto her, Mary. She turned herself, and saith unto him, Rabboni; which is to say, Master." Doubtless Jesus spoke her name in the sympathetic tone he had often used when he was teaching his followers. As a child will recognize its mother's voice in the dark, so Mary recognized Christ's voice and recognized him as the Lord.

In speaking of the word "Rabboni" a writer quotes an old Jewish commentary as saying, "Rab means Master, 'Rabboni' means My Master, 'Rabboni' means My dear Master."

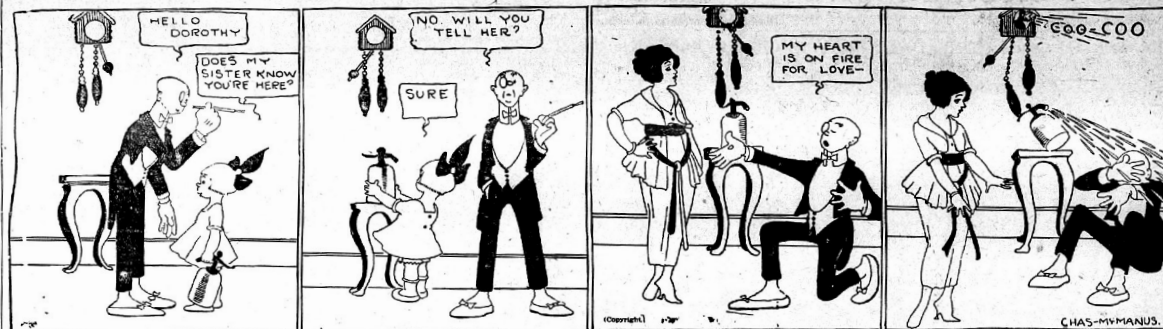

Jesus said to Mary, "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father." And he came to his disciples, "And saith unto them, Peace be unto you." And he showed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord. Then he said "As my Father hath said, the even so send I you." * Receive ye the Holy Ghost.

Most people believe the writers of the Gospel * Matthew, Mark, Luke, John, Peter and Paul, were honest and truthful. If they were then we can hardly doubt that Jesus was dead and became alive and rose from the dead. It seems that we should believe in the resurrection.

To Control That "Spread."
 A condition to which the buying public can point, is a demand for lower meat prices at the butcher shop or restaurant, was made plain in the talk of Chairman Stone of the Federal Farm Board at the annual meeting of the American National Livestock Association at San Antonio. Growers, he said, received 40 percent less for their livestock in 1931 than in 1929, while the consuming public for the same period, got a reduction of only 20 percent. It has been estimated, he said, that in 1931 the hog producer received for his pork and lard, 56 cents of the consumer's dollar, but in 1931 he received only 45 cents. More complete organization may be the producer's only way to control that "spread."

To Show Florida Sub-Tropicals

Over 73 Varieties Will Be On Exhibit at Chicago Next Year

Deland, March 23.—The Florida exhibit at the Century of Progress exposition at Chicago, next year, will feature all or nearly all of the so-called sub-tropical fruits grown in the state if present plans are carried out, and it is asserted that will be.

J. A. Mackintosh, of the department of agriculture, who has been in charge of the exhibits made at Florida at northern state fairs and at the international fair held at Toronto, Canada, for many years, and whose state display at Miami this winter has attracted more than 300,000 visitors, has been chosen, because of his vast experience, to superintend the Florida exhibit at Chicago.

The Miami district arranging for the most complete showing of sub-tropical fruits ever made anywhere outside the tropics.

Already an arrangement has been made with the University of Miami, to collect as many as possible of the 73 varieties of sub-tropical fruits, including citrus, for the opening of the World's fair, June 1, 1933, and to keep a constant supply of fresh specimens going by express to Chicago for daily replacements. H. B. Vivan, also of Miami, has been engaged to be in constant attendance at the sub-tropical fruit display in the Florida exhibit to explain to visitors all the fruits which will be shown. Mr. Vivan has promised that at that time, it is said, will be valuable man in the place for which he has been chosen.

In addition to the sub-tropical fruits shown, it is intended that there shall be a display of the tropical woods native to Florida in conjunction, and that exhibit will be in charge of Mr. Vivan, who already has a wonderful collection of the nearly 100 specimens of timber indigenous to tropical Florida.

Several Palms To Suit Any Location In Sunny Florida

In sunny Florida there is a choice of several palms for every location. Harold Mowry, associate horticulturist with the Florida Experiment Station, stated in a recent radio address.

Palms, the most truly tropical plant that we have, can be used more extensively than any other plants in our parks, and around our homes. It is doubtful if any other Florida ornamentals can make more lasting impression and more favorable comment than the palm. Palms are conspicuous on practically all pictures used to advertise Florida.

Of the 1400 species of palms in the world 14 or 15 are native to Florida, and less than 100 have been successfully introduced into the state, he said. Doubtless there are many others suited to Florida's temperature, rainfall, and soil. While a wider variety of palms may be grown in the southern portion of the state, such ones as the Washingtonia, Sabal, and Cordia, and the Australian tree, Chamaecyparis, and Phoenix canariensis, are hardly enough to be grown in the cooler sections.

There's a wide diversity of types of palms. Some are stemless and grow to only a few feet while others make magnificent trees. Some have single trunks, others have numerous trunks or stems. Some grow rigidly erect, others are leaning. Some are and a few have a more or less drooping habit while others are clothed with various growths. Classified according to type of leaf, there are those with pinnate or feather-like leaves and others with fan-shaped leaves. There's also a variation in the color of the leaves, including a light yellowish-green to a deep green and gray, and a reddish tint, some of dull and others glossy.

Mr. Mowry is the author of bulletin 228, "Native and Exotic Palms of Florida." Free copies may be obtained from the Florida Experiment Station, Gainesville.

Better Sirup.
Sugarcane sirup of greatly improved and more uniform quality can be produced in Florida and worked out by C. F. Walton, Jr., and E. K. Ventre, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, United States department of Agriculture, in experiments made in Florida and Mississippi. The method involves the addition of a small proportion of decolorizing carbon to the sugarcane juice in the farm evaporator.

It is estimated that nearly half the total production of both cane and sirup produced in the American farms is of inferior quality, selling at a price as low as 20 percent lower than the high-grade sirup, and that an increase in the price of such sirup would result from the application of the method described. On the basis of the present market, the wholesale price of low-grade sirup in Georgia, which was approximately 28 cents per gallon, the increase in price would amount to about seven cents.

Acting as a cut-worm, the first preference will nip off the tender buds of corn, peanuts, or tomatoes. During the shoots with lead arsenate, 1 pound to 10 pounds of hydrated or air-slaked lime.

When this gangster takes the name of the corn ear worm, poisoning is hardly practical. However a little lead arsenate on the silks may pay with sweet corn. It seems that the corn should be planted beyond the tip of the ears, and the grow off fast are not so susceptible.

Since this worm prefers to feed on the corn, and not on the tomato, the corn or tomato fruit, planning a little corn around in the field. When the worm is feeding on the small tomatoes, spraying with common Bordeaux will do the trick. It is effective, 50 gallons, is effective. Later on an important control measure is to pick up and destroy all wormy tomatoes.

One Insect With Many Names Does Damage To Crops

Among Florida's gangland of insects there is one little worm or caterpillar that goes by many names and damages many crops, explains J. K. Watson, entomologist with the Florida Experiment Station. This pest will soon be known as the corn ear worm, the corn ear worm, and finally the tomato fruit worm, and cotton boll worm.

It is merely a change of six or eight generations coming in one year, and finding preferred food anywhere they can. In most cases the insect will hide, and feed from the inside of the plant or fruit it attacks.

Acting as a cut-worm, the first preference will nip off the tender buds of corn, peanuts, or tomatoes. During the shoots with lead arsenate, 1 pound to 10 pounds of hydrated or air-slaked lime.

I am making the race solely on my record of public service to this County and I trust that my efforts have been such as to warrant your continued support and favor. In exchange for this support if elected I promise to continue to give you the very best service possible, and I will appreciate your vote.

CYRIL BALDWIN.

TO THE CITIZENS OF HIGHLANDS COUNTY.

If re-elected I shall continue to put forth every possible effort for the schools, to maintain a high degree of efficiency, to keep them in operation full time, and to continue to reduce taxation.

Florida Editors Hold 3-Day Meet

Elect Woman As President;
Meet in Avon Park
Next Spring

The editors of the Florida press concluded a very successful three day meeting at Live Oak last Saturday. They transacted some important business as well as enjoyed themselves. Live Oak citizens did their utmost in the hospitality line and the visitors left for their homes Saturday night a tired but happy gang. The Jacksonville Times Union of Sunday carried the following story under a Saturday date line:

The fifty-third annual convention of the Florida Press Association adjourned here shortly after noon today, concluding what members declared to have been one of the most enjoyable and largest attended meetings in the history of the organization.

Hollywood was selected this morning as the convention city for October of this year, winning out over Winter Park and Tallahassee. Avon Park was selected, without opposition, as the place for the annual meeting of next March.

The entire ballot of members was cast in favor of the slate presented by the nominations committee. Mrs. Marie Holderman of the Cocoa Tribune being selected as president, R. H. Berg of the Melbourne Times, first vice-president, and Gilbert Freeman of the Avon Park Sun, second vice-president. Russell Kay of Tampa was elected secretary, and I. M. McAlpin of the Plant City Courier, was elected treasurer.

Those speaking on this morning's program included: Mrs. Edna Fuller of Orlando, "The World's Fair"; Dr. P. Phillips of Orlando, "Proposed Organization of Tangarine Growers of Florida"; A. H. Andrews of Estero, "Finance"; and a discussion led by Nate Reece of Arcadia on "How to Cut Expenses." Reports of resolutions and other committees were read and adopted, after which the nominating committee, composed of Nate Reece, Lucille Smith and J. J. Schumann made its report.

W. Bob Holland of Miami presented the Herald silver trophy to I. M. McAlpin, whose Plant City Courier was judged the best weekly newspaper in the state in 1931, among the papers entered in the contest for places with less than 2,500 population. The East Lake Region and Titusville Star-Advocate won first prizes for the best editorial page, for large and small city weeklies, respectively. The Miami Riviera of Coral Gables and Titusville Star-Advocate were runners-up. The contest for prizes in the best front page contest, among those entered in the two classifications. The Miami Beach Tropics and Mount Dora Topic won first prizes in the newspaper production contest. The editorial written by J. W. Hanson in the Titusville Star-Advocate and entitled, "Only Better Laws Will Correct Bank Evils," won first prize in that contest.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank each and every one who contributed in any way or expressed their sympathy to us in our recent injuries and loss of home by storm. May the Lord bless you.

COL. JAMES WHITEHURST

Brookville, March 23.—Col. James Whitehurst of this city announced that he will be a candidate in the Democratic primary for the office of delegate-at-large to the national Democratic convention to be held in Chicago in June.

Colonel Whitehurst, a life-long democrat, states that if elected he will support the presidential candidate to be chosen by the preferential primary of June 7 and all the other nominees of the Democratic primary, and will also work for the measures that will benefit the party.

A native of south Georgia, Colonel Whitehurst received his law degree at Cumberland university in 1913 and has practiced law since that time. He has served as state's attorney for the fifth judicial circuit of Florida and is now chairman of the Hernando County Democratic Executive Committee.

The welfare of the farm business has become increasingly dependent upon influences quite beyond the control of the farmer. Agriculture is more vulnerable, economically speaking, than ever before in its existence. It is subject to the whims of the buyer, the state of the market, the activities of the statesmen, and the legislation of foreign governments. The American farmer today must adjust his activities to those of the consuming and farming classes of other lands.—Asher Hobson.

The Lewis State Bank, at Tallahassee, is the oldest bank in Florida. The Quincy State Bank, at Quincy, has Bank Charter Number One, but the Lewis institution as a banking house even antedates this.

To The Editor: The 666 Salve Contest recently conducted owes most of its success to newspaper advertising. No radio or bill boards were used in this campaign. This contest was of national scope and thousands of entries were received from every State in the Union. Monticello Drug Company.
