

WEST VIRGINIA PUTS BAN ON TRUCK LINES

Excessive Damage To Roads
Without Sufficient Compensation Is Cause

Following information relative to the West Virginia motor vehicle law is quoted from the Railway Age of recent date.

"Action under authority given by the motor vehicle law, the State Road Commission of West Virginia has decided not to permit trucks to haul freight for hire on public highways, over regular routes or between fixed termini where the same service is being adequately performed by other common carriers. As reported in the Railway Age of July 16, however, passenger buses will be permitted to carry passengers for hire, including newspapers, mail, and parcels, with a package limit of 50 pounds and load limits of 500 and 1,000 pounds, respectively, for small and large buses. The ruling of the commission will affect pending application for Class 1 truck licenses, and all common carrier passenger buses operating in West Virginia.

"Excessive damage to the public highway, without sufficient compensation, interference with other vehicles, and eventual necessity of higher railroad freight rates caused by smaller volume of business, are given as reasons contributing to a strict interpretation of the statute as to common carrier trucks. Public convenience is cited as the governing factor in the decision to let buses carry passengers.

Authority For Action
"Authority for the commission's action is contained in article 6, section 4, of the State motor vehicle law.

"The State Road Commission shall have the power to issue to any applicant a certificate of convenience, or to refuse to issue the same, or to issue it for the partial exercise only of the privilege sought, and may attach to the certificate the rights given by this certificate such items and conditions as in its judgment the public convenience and necessity may require. No such certificate of convenience shall be issued by the commission until it shall be established to the satisfaction of the commission, after a proper investigation, that the privilege sought by the applicant is necessary or convenient for the public and that the service so proposed to be rendered by the applicant is not being adequately performed at the time of such application by any other person, partnership, or corporation.

"In announcing the decision, Harold P. Tompkins, member of the commission in charge of motor vehicle activities, said in part: "Common carrier transportation on the highways requires the State Road Commission to consider the public, the passenger, and the applicant. The interests of the public as a whole must be placed first, but we have endeavored to deal justly with the existing carriers and the applicants for carrier privileges.

Other Permits To Be Given.

"At the present time we have only one Class 1 truck line, though there are some 75 applicants now pending for franchises to carry freight on the highways. Other permits to operate over non-competitive routes will be granted. Where railroad or other freight service is well established and adequate, we find no sufficient reason to grant Class 1 truck applications.

"To place truck lines on the highways in competition with adequate railroad service would mean damage to the public highways far in excess of the value of the public service rendered. It would also mean that by reason of smaller volume of business the railroads would soon be compelled to protect their investments in trucks and equipment by higher freight rates. The public would thus be forced to pay for excessive damage to the highways by the heavy trucks and at the same time pay the higher rates to the railroads, caused by the operations of the same trucks.

"Discussing further the damage caused by heavy trucks to the roads, for which the people must pay, Mr. Tompkins said: "It has been determined by the United States Bureau of Standards that roads designed to carry three-ton loads without undue deterioration would be satisfactory for about 95 percent of the vehicles in use today. To accommodate four of the remaining five per cent, it is found that roads of double this strength would be required, while to be correspondingly safe for the heaviest group, weighing up to 15 tons and contributing about 1 percent of the total, roads from three to five times as strong would be necessary.

Other Vehicles Burdened.
"The 5 percent of more than three tons total of vehicle and load cannot possibly pay through the license fees and gasoline taxes the excess cost required to build roads strong enough for them. To impose the enormous fees necessary to raise such sums, would automatically bar all such trucks from the highways. The other 95 percent of vehicles using the roads must therefore pay the greater part of the excessive cost necessary to construct roads substantial enough for the 5 percent or must pay the excessive damage done by the 5 percent to roads that would be substantial enough for the 95 percent.

"This additional cost to the public imposed by the heavy trucks can be justified only if it be compensated for by special public benefits conferred through the operation of such trucks over the highways. Undoubtedly, there has been some demand for large trucks, and while they operate, in my opinion they should pay more nearly in proportion to the additional cost of construction and upkeep of the roads used by them. Such vehicles carry the load of several small trucks at a lower cost per mile, and deliver some freight more conveniently than railroads.

"These benefits, however, are of a rather limited nature, applying to a comparatively small number of persons. The total public benefits conferred are not believed sufficient to compensate for the damage to the public-owned highways.

"The obstruction to other vehicles by large and slow moving trucks, while less serious from the financial standpoint, is nevertheless an annoyance and an inconvenience, and in many instances becomes a damage to life and property."

DAVE SHOLTZ STILL SAME PARTY NOMINEE

He Takes His Honors Modestly and Seriously and Sticks To Promises

Jacksonville, Oct. 5.—Dave Sholtz, the Democratic nominee for governor of Florida, is the same Dave Sholtz who won the primary campaign and thus became the standard bearer of the Democratic Party for the highest office within the gift of the people of this state.

He is the same genuine, sincere, modest and sympathetic Dave Sholtz who waged and won what probably was the most dramatic and colorful primary campaign in the history of Florida. Those who pinned their faith upon Dave Sholtz have realized the confidence they placed in the man.

One of the most pleasing and refreshing things about Dave Sholtz is that he takes his honors modestly and seriously.

His primary promises and pledges with reference to tax reduction and other governmental reforms with the view of lowering the cost of government are still the promises and pledges of his campaign as the Democratic nominee in the general election.

In his first public utterances, the general election campaign he again reiterates his position with reference to his conception of the duties of the highest office of government.

"I have no hesitancy," he says, "in saying to the people of Florida that I feel that the mandate of the people requires me in my official capacity to leave nothing undone that cannot be safely and properly done to lower the cost of government. I have no purpose or plan that will prostrate or seriously cripple the real and fundamentally necessary functions of state government, but as I have so often reiterated, I shall use the pruning knife on governmental expenses so far as is possible without crippling the fundamental activities of this great state."

In keeping with his primary campaign declaration, Sholtz again takes high ground when he says, "I have no ambitions to be the head of a political machine. I have no ambition other than to serve the people—the great masses of the people—as their governor, with all the ability that God has given me, to the end that I may, upon the expiration of my term of office, retire to private life with the consciousness that I have faithfully tried to serve."

As the Democratic nominee, Sholtz declares that "it is my belief that the Democratic party will be doing the greatest good to the greatest number by devoting its energies to the reduction of the cost of government as distinguished from the effort to find new sources of revenue with which to pay the present cost. Whether you call it the unnecessary cost of government or the cost of unnecessary government, it is probably immaterial. It is the result alone that I have in mind."

Drawing the deadly parallel between the Democratic and Republican parties, the Democratic nominee declares that the "tradition of the Democratic party—the open-thing above everything else that makes it the champion of real democracy—is that it must at all times espouse the principle of the 'greatest good for the greatest number.' This is the vital distinction between the Democratic and Republican parties. Say what you will; disguise thought with language as you will; substitute sophistry for fact as you can; it all leads back to the undeniable fact that the Republican party is and always has been the party of privilege."

And thus, he continues, "A 'flaming' courtship came to a close recently at Iowa City, Ia., when Margaret Smoke was married to David Ash."

Immediate reduction in their governmental bill.

Charging that his wife said she "married him just for spite," W. F. Hughes of Memphis filed suit for divorce.

The supply of hogs available for slaughter in the next seven months will be somewhat smaller than in the same period a year ago, but, because feed supplies for finishing hogs are more plentiful and more uniformly distributed than a year ago, producers may be expected to expand hog production considerably next year, says the Bureau of Agricultural Economics in a report issued on the hog outlook.

For each 1,000 square feet of lawn space one should sow about five pounds of rye grass and 10 pounds of some fertilizer like cottonseed meal. The lawn should be watered thoroughly after these are sown and then given frequent watering until the rye grass is well established, he added. If the rye grass is kept mowed and watered, Mr. Hume says there is no danger of its injuring the regular summer lawn. The rye grass will die out about May when the summer lawn grass comes on.

The movement is being sponsored by the local garden club and civic organizations and got underway with a recent mass meeting at the courthouse. It was emphasized that in beautifying one's own yard one is adding much to the beauty of the community, and that only through the co-operation of all can green lawns be made to impress the visitors of a city and of the State as a whole.

Rye Grass Sowed Soon Keeps Lawns Green All Winter

Gainesville, Fla., Oct. 5.—Lawns here will not turn brown with the coming of cold weather since an extensive plan for sowing Italian rye grass on them is well under way. A green lawn is the foundation for a good landscape, and the rye grass will keep the lawn lustroly green all winter, according to H. Harold Hume, assistant director of research at the Florida Experiment Station and College of Agriculture.

It will cost only about 50 to 75 cents to seed the average front yard to rye grass and give it an application of fertilizer, and an additional dollar or two will take care of the average backyard, he explained. "What better way could there be of advertising a city or town to winter visitors and getting a lot of personal enjoyment out of it?" he asks.

GRAMMAR SCHOOL OPENED FRIDAY A. M.

Col. Bailey Stresses Need of Co-operation Between Parents and Teachers

The 1932-33 session of the Lake Placid grammar school opened with appropriate exercises in the auditorium on Friday morning with Professor M. M. Ferguson, principal, in charge. The program opened with the singing of "America" by the audience, and Prof. Ferguson read a scripture lesson and Col. F. N. K. Bailey, county superintendent, led in prayer. Prof. Ferguson welcomed the patrons, pupils and teachers, pledging himself and his staff of teachers to do the best to give the children under their care the best training possible during this school term.

Col. Bailey gave a brief address in which he stressed the importance of getting started right in school. He stated the first year of a child's school life is the most important and the parents had a great part to play in getting the child properly started. The first responsibility of educating the child, rests with the parents in the home, who have been given a most sacred responsibility, in giving the child the proper training. The well behaved child, or the one that misbehaves in school reflect the training the child has received in the home. If a child is taught obedience, honesty, truthfulness and kindness in the home this child will have the same attributes in the school room, he said. In closing his remarks Col. Bailey requested the cooperation of the parents with the teachers showing how this cooperation would help the child.

Prof. Ferguson then introduced the faculty for this year as follows: George Kelsey, fifth and sixth grades; Mrs. Lee Crews, third and fourth grades and Mrs. J. T. Harrison, the elementary grades. Mrs. Harrison is a new teacher taking the place of Mrs. T. M. Johns who is employed as head matron of the Florida Baptist Orphanage in Arcadia.

Patrons and visitors present included: Mrs. C. A. Cass, Mrs. C. L. Jackson, Mrs. P. D. Moore, Mrs. F. W. Williams, Mrs. F. C. Payne, Mrs. Charlie Carney, Mrs. A. F. Rogers, Mrs. J. T. Harrison, Mrs. L. Henderson, Mrs. Fred Koetz, Mrs. C. T. Jackson, Mrs. R. F. Cody, Mrs. Winston Kelsey, Miss Joyce Hancock, Mrs. Frances Koetz and Mrs. J. W. Payne.

The Romantic Spanish people have established a new colony in the Lake Placid high school Spanish class. ## PAUPER LAW WAS INVOKED IN MAINE

Republicans Alleged To Have Dug Up Obsolete Statutes

Jacksonville, Oct. 5.—In the recent Maine election, the Republican organization in Lewiston is said to have invoked an obsolete pauper law to enable the Republican majority of the Board of Registration to strike from the polling lists approximately 1,000 unemployed voters who had been forced through necessity to accept municipal relief.

It seems that Maine, in common with a number of other states, has police and other voting qualifications which many unemployed cannot meet. In Maine the law is said to be apparently new, but it is said to be an old one, and the franchise to persons who are objects of governmental charity. Protesting against the action of the Lewiston registration board, Herbert E. Holmes, corporation counsel of that city, stated the incident there probably constituted the first step in a nation wide Republican campaign to disfranchise the unemployed and thus prevent them from voting in the general election.

Editorially commenting upon the Maine incident, the New York World-Telegram declares that "if political parties set about to practice the skillful use of the law to perpetrate their power, the jobless will be encouraged to use some other weapon than the ballot box."

Denouncing the Republican action in Maine, Democratic leaders in Florida declare it clearly shows the desperate straits of the Republican party and indicates that Republicans are desperate enough to use the law to keep the unemployed vote of the nation will be cast solidly against the Republican ticket. Estimated that the unemployed in American approximate 14,000,000, political observers are of the opinion that this tremendous vote probably will be the determining factor in deciding the election in favor of the Democratic ticket.

Florida Democrats also draw the parallel between the Republican action in Maine and the chiseling the unemployed for the purpose of weakening the Democratic opposition in Florida. The stable action—in the event they were ever successful in Florida—in invoking the fifteenth amendment of the federal constitution to increase their voting strength in this state.

It is pointed out that in both instances the motives are identical—the real sought being political power regardless of the methods used in its attainment.

RURAL COMMON SENSE

By Spuds Johnson

Florida is advertised to the world as one of the most desirable places for spending the winter. The State is pictured as having a warmer climate during the winter, and as a place where vast amounts of crops are grown and marketed during the winter. All of which is true.

But when the Northern visitor drives to Florida for the winter, he thinks it passing strange that he sees very little green stuff growing along the roadside. Not infrequently he comments on the fact. In some ways it seems unfortunate that the route for our principal highways follow the poorer upland instead of traveling the more fertile lowlands where a majority of the state's crops are grown.

Since we can't change the location of the highways, and since it is desirable to greet our visitors with green fields along the roadside, the next best thing is to grow some green crops in the fields along our highways. This plan was suggested by Gus Weeks the other day, and is particularly applicable to the Central, Northern and Western portions of the State.

In these sections, oats and rye will grow on most of the soils, and will provide green and growing crops for the winter. In addition, Austrian peas and which can be grown on those soils during the winter. In fact, these crops are grown on thousands of acres in the State every winter.

In addition to providing a pleasing landscape for the visiting tourist, these crops are quite worth while from the standpoint of the man who is growing them. The oats and rye help to prevent washing of the land, hold plant food that would be lost, and provide feed for the livestock. The peas and vetch are excellent crops to turn into the soil before summer crops, as corn and cotton, are planted, or they may be used to a certain extent as feed.

"A carpet of green" this winter will be an advantage to the farmer who grows the crops and an advertisement for the delicious climate of Florida. Our neighbors in town have pretty green lawns all winter, we can have green fields.

Three Florida Pens As Egg Contest Ends

Chipley, Oct. 5.—With three Florida pens among the leading five, the sixth Florida National Egg Laying Contest came to a close here near the end of September. The winning entry of 10 birds was owned by W. L. Pyles, Maryville, Ky. During the 357 days of the contest they received 2,631 points for nearly three months, according to E. F. Stanton, supervisor.

Second place was taken by Wm. G. Crosby, Tarpon Springs, who sent to W. A. Seidel, San Antonio, Texas, a Weisholek, Jacksonville, took fourth; and fifth was captured by Davidson's Poultry Farm, Eagle Lake.

The 480 birds in the contest averaged about 87 eggs each during the contest. The leading hen was owned by W. E. Pyles, and was credited with 82.115 points for 296 eggs, one owned by E. H. Rucker, Ottumwa, Iowa, third, and a bird entered by Pinecreek Poultry, Pea, Ga.

The seventh contest began Oct. 1 after the entire contest plan was given a thorough cleaning. The straw was removed from the houses, they were scrubbed with lye water, and then treated with a fire torch. Every precaution possible has been taken to prevent diseases or parasites from handicapping the birds.

State 4-H Pig Club Show To Be Staged In Early November

With two scholarships to the University of Florida College of Agriculture as grand prizes, the annual State Pig Club Show will be held at Tallahassee, November 2 and 3, according to an announcement by R. W. Blacklock, state boys' club agent.

The champion, following the champion breeding pigs will get a $150 scholarship and the one showing the champion farrow will get a $100 scholarship. These scholarships are given by Frank E. Dennis of Jacksonville. Close to 100 pigs will be shown by club boys from every section of the state. Ribbons will be given to the boys showing the best junior pigs and the best senior pigs in each of the breeds in the show.

The Thos. E. Wilson $50 gold watch which goes to the 4-H club boy in Florida who has been most outstanding during the last year in meat production will also be awarded at the show.

The Leon County Chamber of Commerce will have charge of the details of the show. The Leon County 4-H livestock show will be held in connection with the state show.

Found guilty of forgery, Lazor Sanalak of Boian, Canada, was let off with only a suspended sentence because he had suffered through the trial from a severe toothache.

NEW CITRUS SEASON TO START VERY SOON

Payrolls Expected To Average $225,000 Weekly For Entire Season

Tampa, Oct. 4.—When the citrus packing houses of Florida resume operations for the 1932-33 season, as most of them are expected to during October, employment will be given to over 15,000 people, with payrolls averaging around $225,000 weekly through a period of eight or nine months, aggregating $7,500,000 or more, according to information developed in a survey conducted by the Florida Grower, reported in the October number.

Importance of the citrus industry as an economic factor, strikingly illustrated in the foregoing figures, further is indicated by the fact that they include only the labor directly engaged in preparing fruit for market. Addition of the employees in canning mills, equipment houses, labor priories, packing plants, selling agencies, transportation service and other closely related activities, would greatly increase the aggregate of salaries and wages.

Data on which the estimates have been based were secured by the Florida Grower from representative growers associations affiliated with the Florida Citrus Exchange, the houses of which last year handled one-fourth of the state's output in grapefruit, oranges and tangerines. Managers of the houses furnished figures as to the anticipated number of employees during the season and concerning the average amount of the payrolls for their respective associations.

In some cases, the reporting houses will employ about the same number of workers as last season. Some reductions in the force are planned by 17 percent of the plants. Increased employment of labor probably will be found necessary by 12 percent of the associations.

Only in a very few instances, is it likely that help will need to be hired from outside of the immediate neighborhood—one sixth of the managers advise they may be required to do so in respect to from five to 25 percent of their force.

While the crop of fruit is unlikely to equal that of last season, tending to increase the per unit cost of packing operations, in none of the growers' associations heard from have higher charges been exacted in comparison with last year. On the other hand, a goodly proportion of the houses from which reports were received are preparing to pick, pack and pack fruit for less than they did in 1931-32. In a few cases and on some items the reductions will run as high as 25 percent. Cuts of from 20 to 10 percent have been more frequently made.

Association retains generally will remain the same in most instances, these intimates are related to the fixed charges. Included are provisions for the amortization payments on Federal Farm Board loans, if the organization took any of the funds furnished by that agency. Gains in the production of the community's production that will be marketed through the Exchange have been registered in something over 25 percent of the associations which supplied statistics on this subject, with losses in only four percent. Percentages run between a low of 15 and a high of 90, with an average factor of control of one percent more than for the last season.

General average quality of the citrus in the localities from which advices were forthcoming seems to be slightly better than in the preceding season. Of the association managers who responded to an inquiry on this point, one-fourth believe the conditions are relatively the same, one-half report improvement and one-fourth admit a falling off in quality. Less lemon scab, larger size, better appearance due to association-directed dusting and more satisfactory growing weather are assigned as reasons why fruit will be of an improved nature this winter. Lack of good maturity on early varieties, more melon and late, irregular bloom explained the less desirable type of output found in some other neighborhoods.

This is the record, to date, of the New Circle, "Sebring's Friendly Theatre" under the management of Charlie Morrison, and even one or two of these five played somebody, according to Charlie, who has adopted as his slogan, "The Public Pleaser."

Lupo Velez will hold forth next Tuesday and Wednesday in "KON-GA," said to contain more thrills than "Trader Horn" and "Tarnan" combined, at least that is claimed by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, makers of all three pictures. Next week will be concluded with one of the most beautiful pictures ever made, "Bird of Paradise" with Joel McCrea and Dolores Del Rio in the leads. Fine shorts subjects play an important part on each program. Some of the features soon to be shown at the New Circle include "Wild Girl" with Chas. Farrell and Joan Bennett; "Heritage of the Desert," Zane Grey's great story with Randolph Scott and Sally Blaine; "Rogue Venus" with Marlene Dietrich; "Westward Passage" with Ann Harding; "Hat Check Girl" with Sally Eilers; "Movie Crazy" with Harold Lloyd and many others too numerous to mention here. # AVON PARK High School News

Ideas

Certainly our school is a good school. We dare any one to deny it, but there are several things it needs.

One thing is a book exchange. This is needed very badly, especially at the beginning of each school term. It might be operated in connection with the library and the profits used to secure new library books. When the term starts, instead of worrying about disposing of your last year's books you turn your price on them, turn them over to the exchange. The exchange would dispose of them charging a ten per cent commission. Thus, there would be a triple benefit—to you, the purchaser and the exchange.

Another crying need is some sort of inter-class organization. There might be a President of the Student Body from one of the upper classes. The council would lead a student council composed of four persons, one from each of the upper classes. The council would be the leaders in school activities. They could be helpful to new students just entering this school by helping them arrange schedule and obtain books. They could aid in getting crowds to the games. And if they did their duty faithfully, they might be given a standing invitation to all school parties. This type of organization would promote better class spirit and could be highly beneficial to the entire school.

Here is something for you, cheer leaders. How about a cheering squad? Fifteen or twenty students dressed in red and white, carrying Avon Park banners would produce a big effect. All cheering together would produce a big noise. All working together would produce some grand pep! Why not try it? Other schools do it, so why can't we?

Pep Majestic

Oh I don't know, I don't know. The more I concentrate on a subject to write about, the less I know.

A most terrible incident occurred several days ago, which will make a chapter in my life history I guess. You see one afternoon our bull dog, whom everybody knows by the name of Jiggs, came home seriously ill. Dad gave him castor oil, etc., but it didn't improve any. My brother took him to Solaking to the Veterinarian and left him for about four days, but my dog died.

He was a pal, I mean. He was one of the best watch dogs I ever heard of. A dog like him isn't born every day I'm telling you. He used to play with all of us even when he was all of 5 years old when he died.

I'll tell you why he died too. Some one induced him to eat a mess of ground glass, (may the great spirit of all dogs pester his soul).

Enough of blues for today. Every student in Avon High has got his head up about as high as the law allows, because we've got a football game here Friday p.m. with Ft. Meade. That team has about as many green football players as we have and therefore it really should be a pretty good game. I'd really like to see all you gentle readers out. The admission will be only 10c for school children.

Sophomore

Here it is Tuesday again and I'm just getting started on the old news wagon.

I have decided each week to write a few lines on each individual in the class, starting with the first row.

We can imagine Carmen Booth as a dignified old maid teaching school with her glasses pushed away down over her nose.

Dorothy Hobbs as a "flippity" secretary in some large firm.

Irma Golf as a movie actress wearing beautiful clothes.

Lacy Mae Thom is a dress model in some nifty dress ad.

Myrtle Turner is a red headed woman, taking Jean Harlow's place, (the woman who wouldn't take no for an answer).

Zelma Langford as a famous chorus dancer, "glorifying the leg fight."

That's all for this week of idle day dreaming.

We have Jr. Schobine back with us for the year. We hope he will be extraordinary enough in football tactics and class to make the team and become valuable to the Red Devils.

Say, you know that picnic I told you about last week? Well, it's going to happen about Saturday morning. So, bring out your T-models and let's go.

Juniors

Monday was our monthly "red letter" day. There were some disappointments, of course, and also many happy faces as we filed down these halls at 3:15 with records of work well done or otherwise. Now that you've seen the editor of our books how well are you satisfied?

We tried to do our best and hope to do that and better this month. Our class meeting Tuesday morning was taken up with an answer of our Democratic and Republican elections. This time our office to be filled was that of class cheer leader. "Shorty" Lee was chosen for the position.

And who do you suppose you truly met the other morning going to school? The same old Robert Roberts and he's here for good. We're mighty glad to welcome him into our Junior Class and hope he's as well satisfied with us as we expect to be with him.

A certain little student wants to know if any one has ever taken Chemistry and lived. Speaks as his poison doesn't seem to be. It took him a while and some times it was rather bad but on the whole we consider it an awfully interesting subject.

Sounds like we "smell" a party—but that will all come out at its proper time.

A Junior says:

A Sophomore going A-La Red Headed Woman—

Several students studying and wondering if Monday's inevitable report card discussion was cause of this slight insanity on your part.

A "Dignified" Senior looking at the "where" in a magazine instead of studying.

A Junior with a new "permanent."

9th Grade

Well, boys and girls, how were the report cards? I wonder if all the other grades were as glad to get theirs as we were. That wouldn't be saying any too much any way. The teachers seemed to have given good grades the first, but will it last? Let's hope so.

Our monthly attendance for September was 98%. Surely you can't guess why it was so high. Well, I give you three guesses, but remember the first two don't count. No, you missed it. We were trying to win the P. T. A. prize.

The class voted upon a monthly fee of five cents per person. Come on, boys and girls, bring your nickels, and let's have a big party. The English Club elected Sara Trent as treasurer. Each pupil has been asked to tell one of O. Henry's short stories Wednesday.

Mr. Mummam has the announcement several days ago that he might have company soon. Does this mean poetry? Let's hope so. Just think! The Latin pupils have learned 63 Latin words, the whole first declension, and three tenses. Isn't that just grand?

8th Grade

Well, folks, some students may be dead hearted today, after receiving their report cards Monday. But we hope that none of the 8th graders failed on any thing.

Last Friday during play period, we chose sides. The captains are Hazel Reddick and Elizabeth Rawlins. Hazel Reddick's side is named the "Wild Cats" and Elizabeth's side is the "Tigers." We chose these two sides, so at play period we would have two sides already chosen and would not have to lose time in choosing up sides.

Today we have chapel in our room. This is a custom, to have chapel in our rooms every Tuesday. Hazel Reddick and Gladys Heins had charge of our chapel program today. We all wonder what surprise we will have this morning.

Johnnie Sargus
Hazel Reddick.

The Critic's Column.

My pen got started and I just did not try to stop it. I may not say much, but I will try to live up to the name of this column.

I think we should get a greater majority of the Avon Park people interested in football since the series is over.

Why don't some of these reporters try to get some "dope" on what other classes other than their particular ones are doing? We, the Public, want to know something about all of the classes in school. All of us are not interested in the same classes, but if all classes are covered, (as to progress), we will be more nearly satisfied.

Imagine a jokes editor writing a joke about himself.

Picture, if you may, a couple of Junior boys being interested in an

Senior News

Among the Seniors attending the little scrimmage in Lake Wales Friday night were Mary Turner and Robert Stewart, our whooping cheer leaders and Phil Lacey, Gladys Weir and Ethel Hixon. Senior boys in uniform were Albin Ebb, W. H. Prescott, Nelson Smith, Jack White, Lefroy DeLaney and Seward Johnston.

Our sponsor, Miss Bryant was along, too.

Some of these went by "Air." But we don't mind a little thing like that.

Our second game comes off here Friday with Ft. Meade. We're looking for a real game this time. Come on, boys! We're backing you to the limit!

Pauline has sufficiently recovered to be with us again. Jimmie is back, too. We're happy to have them with us.

Wednesday morning the Seniors put on the first chapel program of the season. We were determined to have something different and entertaining. The result was the Southern Melody Four, composed of four colored boys who are working their way through college. They sang a number of delightful spirituals and comics. One of the most amusing was the "Laughing Song." These boys are really good and deserve praise and encouragement.

Cornelia Reynolds, playing with the Town Diamond Ball Team, scored a home-run in the game with Lake Garfield Monday night. There's an athletic girl for you—and a good one, too.

Sport News

The game Friday night was won by Lake Wales by a score of 32-0. Their team was considerably heavier than ours and probably much more experienced, quite a number of our boys played for their first time Friday night. It was the first game of the year for the Red Devils, but they are not going to be discouraged by their defeat and are practicing harder than ever for the game to be played with Fort Meade here Friday afternoon. Last year we beat Fort Meade and expect to do so again this year.

We had three more players added to our team this week. Jimmie Roberts, who moved to Waukegan about a week ago, is back and Robert Roberts and Junior Stebbins are back from Georgia Military College.

Hollo News!

We'll see you again next week.

Pauline has sufficiently recovered to be with us again. Jimmie is back, too. We're happy to have them with us.

Wednesday morning the Seniors put on the first chapel program of the season.

We were determined to have something different and entertaining. The result was the Southern Melody Four, composed of four colored boys who are working their way through college.

They sang a number of delightful spirituals and comics. One of the most amusing was the "Laughing Song." These boys are really good and deserve praise and encouragement.

Cornelia Reynolds, playing with the Town Diamond Ball Team, scored a home-run in the game with Lake Garfield Monday night.

There's an athletic girl for you—and a good one, too.

The game Friday night was won by Lake Wales by a score of 32-0.

Their team was considerably heavier than ours and probably much more experienced, quite a number of our boys played for their first time Friday night.

It was the first game of the year for the Red Devils, but they are not going to be discouraged by their defeat and are practicing harder than ever for the game to be played with Fort Meade here Friday afternoon.

Last year we beat Fort Meade and expect to do so again this year.

We had three more players added to our team this week. Jimmie Roberts, who moved to Waukegan about a week ago, is back and Robert Roberts and Junior Stebbins are back from Georgia Military College.

Florida will lose more than two million dollars in revenue this year in the automobile field, due principally to excessive license and gasoline taxes.

When the average motorist is shut off from operating his car every branch of the automotive industry suffers. Such a condition prevails today in Florida.

It is estimated that a minimum of fifty thousand pieces of automotive equipment were withdrawn from service in Florida this year.

Florida furnishes raw supplies to the automotive industry in the form of cotton, lumber, turpentine and sugar cane.

HOWEY'S BLANK CHECKS (From Fort Myers News-Press)

(In a recent speech here, Mr. Howey made considerable ado over the questionnaire referred to in the following column, in which the News-Press editor gives a very clear and concise exposition of the whole matter. Inasmuch as the question has been raised in the campaign—and it is indeed a vital point of whether or not the Republican candidate could secure the support of the legislature in the very remote event of his election, we present the News-Press comment.)

In his speech here the other night W. J. Howey waxed wrathfully indignant because the Democratic State Campaign Committee had been checking up on some of his loose statements. Before coming here the timing here the Democratic candidate for governor had been going about the state proclaiming that he had promises from a majority of the members of the legislature to support "his program." The Democratic Committee doubted that statement. There was only one way to learn the truth and that was to ask the legislative candidates. So that was done. A questionnaire was sent out in which they were asked, among other things, to indicate whether they pledged themselves to support recommendations which Mr. Howey might make if elected governor.

There was no impropriety in that and no basis whatever for Mr. Howey's petulant complaint. In answering the questionnaire, candidates for the legislature will "attestify their manhood and prove themselves, traitors to the state of Florida. All they will do is settle the question of whether or not they have signed a blank check for Mr. Howey. If the replies deny that, he has been claiming the Republican candidate has no kick coming. He raised the point himself, the issue.

What's troubling the loose-tongued Mr. Howey is the common knowledge that the Democratic questionnaire will show conclusively that he has been talking through his hat. It will establish that very few, if any, legislative nominees have pledged him their support. Most of them will probably reply, as did William J. Wood, Democratic member of the legislature from Lee county, that they haven't promised to support any special program and a program will add that they are running on the Democratic state platform.

Mr. Wood, by the way, was among those who heard Mr. Howey's speech. He was amazed to learn that he had "attestified his manhood" by answering the questionnaire. He had thought he was simply making available to the voters, through the Democratic Committee, information to which they were entitled. Had he ignored the questionnaire he might have been suspected of being among those Howey claimed to have tied in his chariot. Mr. Wood can see nothing wrong in denying that. Neither can we. In fact, we think he would be pretty completely "attestified" if he didn't say yes or no to a question so correctly proper.

A good many will wonder how Howey got himself into such a jam. The explanation is easy. He is in the hands of a group of practical politicians, headed by the industrious Bob Pryor. These men have been going around asking nominees for the legislature if they would support "measures for the good of the state" which Howey would recommend if elected governor. That question has also been asked of several Democratic nominees, including this one. Without ifs or ands the answer is "yes." That is what Bill Wood would say. It is a far cry from agreeing to support as "good for the state" anything Howey might offer. Indeed, it would be impossible to conceive, even after hearing his speech, nobody knew, that he was going to offer. But we suspect that when word of these inquiries was carried back to Howey it was to the effect that Bill Wood and the News-Press and other legislative nominees were ready to back him up. So he made the mistake of relying on this information to the extent of claiming the support of a majority of the legislative nominees and thereby invited the rebuttal which he is now striving to discredit.

Howey has challenged the Democratic Committee to make public the replies received from the legislative candidates. That must be done and we have no doubt the news will be forthcoming in due course. The voters are entitled to it and it will be grateful to the Democratic committee for getting them the information.

SHOLTZ PROMISES LOWER TAXES AND BETTER CONDITIONS

Pleads Cause of "Common People" and a Chance for Them to Earn a Decent Living in Address Here

Flooding in the primaries that if they were nominated the Democratic candidate for governor, he would assume leadership of the party in Florida, Dave Sholtz told a crowd of thousands gathered in the main hall of the J. M. Lee hotel Thursday afternoon that he was "making good" on that promise and was here to help carry the cause of democracy to the people of Florida.

"When I spoke from this platform during the primaries, I made you people a promise. I said I would assume the leadership of the party in Florida. I said I was making good on that promise," he said. "They said to me after the primary, Dave, go on home, the election is over, but I am interested in the party and am out working for it harder than ever."

Sholtz, in opening, paid tribute to Jim Lee, Avon Park citizen, Democratic nominee for comptroller, and to the people of Highlands county for their support in the primary.

He struck at the whispering campaigns of past and present elections, starting from the days of Thomas Jefferson, Andrew Jackson and down to Wilson and Roosevelt, characterizing those who indulged in whispering campaigns as being of vicious natures and unsound minds.

"We have this year for the first time in fifty years a platform, and I am interested in building a strong and united Democratic party, not in building a machine for Dave Sholtz. Florida needs the Democratic party. All of us common people need a strong Democratic party. It is the party for the common people like you and I, and the only party through which we can hope to work out our program. We in Florida are having our struggles. We are losing our homes through high taxation. We are losing our business and investments. We are entitled to a living in Florida and to better conditions. We are going to fight for the common people and their right to make a decent living."

"I am from the common people—people just like you—and I am interested in making a good life for every body. It is time that we bring the government back to the common people where it belongs. I am not interested in new sources of revenue, but I expect to spend my time in Tallahassee finding ways to reduce the costs of government and to get tax reduction by cutting out bureau, commissions, boards and political jobs, and to make the government that we can live under and at the same time take care of our debts. You people know the money I make. I am a farmer. My platform is just the same now as then. I am going to fight so we can all have a future, your children and mine."

"Ten years ago a young fellow had a chance. He could start a store or barber shop or some other little business and have a chance to get some where. But what have you young fellows to look forward to? You will be lucky if you can find a job."

Sholtz then discussed the schools saying there were too many frills and not enough attention paid to reading, writing, arithmetic and spelling. He said school children and parents were writing him from all parts of the state asking him to get books for the kids going to school. He said he would make a fight on the school book trust and would reduce the cost of school to the children of this state.

"But there is one thing—I will not do a thing to impair the school system of this state. I want good schools for your children and mine, just like you do. The say Dave Sholtz is too radical. They say he is a dynamic—clinging the meeting all about time somebody came along and called a spade a spade. Some of the same people are calling me radicals, then I want to be a radical, too!"

"I am against convict labor on the roads. I believe that free

HIGHLANDS SHIPS FIRST CAR CITRUS

Maxey Sends First Car North From Avon Park House

The golden trickle of citrus fruit from Highlands county was begun early this week when a car of grapefruit, described as one of the finest shipments of early fruit ever to leave this section, was sent on its way northward by Gregg Maxey, Inc.

The fruit was packed at the G. J. Maxey house in Avon Park. According to officials of the Maxey organization, several other cars will be rolling within the next 10 days, as the fruit is beginning to "pass the test" and is being colored for shipment.

Club Thanks Participants In Baby Show

Mrs. W. T. Coates, chairman of the Ways and Means committee of the Woman's Club desires to express her appreciation to all who in any way assisted in making the baby show Saturday afternoon a successful one. It was, Special thanks are due Mrs. Garber and Mrs. Anderson for their arrangement of the show, Mr. Crafter for the use of the Jacaranda Hotel, Mrs. Covington for the decorations and Mrs. C. L. Johnson for making the posters.

White labor should have a chance to earn a living, and as government never went anywhere to work for me for wages so low that they cannot maintain themselves decently. I have made no promises to anybody. I am not bound or hindered. No big interests are behind me. The splendid vote that I received in the primary is evidence enough for anybody that the common people of Florida are behind me. I am just Dave Sholtz fighting for the common people."

"But I cannot do it all by myself. You people will have to help, too. I am just your hired man, your servant at Tallahassee, and you have got to stand behind me. It's your job, too. There are some Republicans in this audience. I invite you to come in with us. You need the Democratic party to help you. It's the only way you will ever get any relief. Let's get together on this thing and roll up the biggest Democratic victory this state has ever seen from president to constable."

J. M. Lee, democratic nominee for comptroller, was first to speak, stating that this was his first opportunity of talking to the children. He expressed his deep appreciation for the splendid vote and assistance rendered him by his friends and neighbors. Following his brief talk, he introduced Mr. Sholtz.

Judge Spessard L. Holland said he was glad to see the meeting and the party left for Sebring. For a meeting on the Circle.

RELIEF WORK GETS UNDER WAY FOR HIGHLANDS COUNTY

Committee Met In Sebring Monday: Approved Wage Scales and Other Regula- tions On Work.

Urging government funds received by the county unemployment relief committee, three projects were started in Avon Park this week which put a score or more men to work on street and road improvement.

A crew was put to work Wednesday on hard surfacing the alley back of the business houses on both sides of the Mall. The material was secured from the state highway, being the old rock bed which is being torn up to make way for the new state highway.

The second project put a number of men to work cleaning up the school grounds and parks. For the third project, a number of men were set to work cutting weeds and grass along county roads.

In Sebring, twenty-five or more men were set to work cleaning up the streets and parks.

Plans for getting relief work under way from funds received from Washington under the government relief program were made at a meeting Monday afternoon of the county committee, headed by E. G. Todd of Avon Park. Representatives from every district in the county met at the Highlands County Bank in Sebring, and approved a program including the scale of pay, methods of obtaining work and other rules and regulations.

The hours of work allowed each applicant will be based on the number in the family or the number of dependents. It was agreed that the work to be provided is only temporary and when other work opens up, such as fruit and packing house work, this will be discontinued. The foreman in charge of each project will work every day but the same rate as the others on the job which rate will be uniform all over the county.

The projects in each district will be outlined by the local members of the committee but must be approved by the county committee. At present the plans call for beautification work which could not be done without these funds, no other money being available.

Applications for work must be made on the forms provided which each applicant must sign after answering the necessary questions. These will be approved by the local committee members and then sent to the county headquarters at Sebring for approval by the social service chairman, T. V. Conaway, who has been designated for this under the supreme court. Avon Park has been named chairman of the county work committee.

The headquarters for the county will be maintained at Sebring and the Highlands County Bank has been designated as the depository with C. E. Lien as treasurer of the funds. Payment for work done will be made every Saturday and payrolls for the week must be in the central office early every Friday morning for the drafts to be issued for that week.

Supreme Court Hears The City Limits Case

The city limits case of Avon Park was heard before the supreme court last Thursday, and the possibilities are that an early decision will be rendered by the court. Oral argument in the case was made by Judge O. K. Reeves and G. Edwin Walker, representing the petitioners, and the city was represented by city attorney S. C. Pardee.

The suit, instituted by property owners of the outlying area alleging that the city was exceeding its limits to the original area.
