

Here and There About Avon Park

By W. M. Hetherington

Ott has a window card, "Bathing Suits 25% Off." This season's suits appear to be about 50% off.

HELLO, SUCKER!

Voters in Tuesday's city limits reduction election were mildly interested in a hand bill distributed on the streets by the "Tax Payers Alliance," whatever that last. The Alliance failed to have any of its officers sign the bill, for which breach they should be fined "one hamburger," as Z. Wellington Wimpy would put it. Here is the gem which the "suckers" failed to heed:

"Attention—Insiders. Don't be Suckers and vote your self into

HIGH TAXES. They say the increase will be

FOUR MILLS. Most likely it will be

FORTY MILLS. And then

SOME. Thousands in old debts will rest on the

REDUCED CITY. Your property will be taxed

TO PAY THESE TAXES. The other fellow will enjoy

WHAT YOU PAY FOR. Enlarging the city made possible

A HUGE PUBLIC DEBT. Will the reduced city

PAY THIS DEBT? If you want high taxes

VOTE FOR THE BILL. If you want low taxes

VOTE AGAINST THE BILL. TAXPAYERS ALLIANCE

But not on boundary lines that favor a FEW PARTIES. We want a decent shape for the city, and not the kind that cut out this man's and that man's property.

We want everyone treated right and not just a few rich fellows favored.

How much will home owners save? NOTHING.

TAXPAYERS ALLIANCE. If you have succeeded in keeping two leaps ahead of the sheriff just far this summer, but if the sheriff is gaining on you, just sit down and make yourself out a code, and go to the nearest telegraph office and wire—don't write—President Roosevelt that you are with him 100 percent.

When you get back to the store you will have a brand new one to spring on the next man, anyway.

Three elections in Avon Park this month indicate a decided drift in sentiment toward a new deal.

The recent election comes next—October 10th. Prohibition is doomed here and everywhere, and predictions are that repeal will carry in Avon Park by about 3 to 1.

Combined figures for the twenty states that have already voted show the sentiment thus far expressed to be about 4 to 1 for repeal. Florida as a whole will go stronger than that.

Verily, the old order changeth—for better or for worse. We believe for the better.

Let us hope, therefore, to name a new city administration for the next two years will be held in December. That there is room for needed improvement in the city set-up is a subject that we could write a book about.

The title would be, "A New Deal for Avon Park." Indications are that the change is on the way.

More Affidavits Are Filed In Skipper Case

Three affidavits were filed in the clerk's office at the court house late Wednesday evening, and it was intended to discredit the affidavit filed last week by H. J. Sadler, a member of the jury that convicted C. A. Skipper, made the statement that he hoped Skipper would get 20 years.

H. B. Wells of Avon Park, swears that it was he and not Sadler, that made the remark alluded to in Sadler's affidavit. Another affidavit alleges that Sadler was already in the court room during the trial and knew that Sadler was on the jury which is contrary to the affidavit filed by Sadler. The third affidavit was signed by Sadler, making a denial that he made any such statement as alleged by Sadler.

M. Solar and Norman Lane, who were members of the Grand Jury that indicted Skipper, presented the affidavits at the clerk's office for filing, it is stated.

TAX COLLECTOR SUES CLERK OF CIRCUIT COURT

Mrs. Hylton Files Friendly Action on Delinquent Tax Fees

W. Z. Carson, Clerk of the Circuit Court, is again the defendant in a law suit, but this time it is just a test case brought by Tax Collector Ruth Bass Hylton, to determine whether the fees for collecting delinquent taxes for the years 1929-30-31-32 are to be paid to the present tax collector or to D. F. Canfield, ex-tax collector.

It appears that several tax collectors over the state who were defeated in the last election joined together in a suit against the State Comptroller to force the collections of fees from the state that is due the tax collector on property redeemed through the clerk's office where the tax sales were held during their term of office. The supreme court ruled in favor of the ex-collectors.

The other side of the case is that in two instances in the state the new tax collector has brought a similar suit to the one being brought by Mrs. Hylton and in both cases the circuit court ruled that the fees go to the office and not to the collector after he is out of office. These two rulings agree with Attorney General Cary D. Landis' ruling in the matter.

As the case now stands it is alleged, three supreme court judges favored the old tax collectors while two favored the new and with the ruling of the attorney general and the findings of two circuit judges in favor of the new tax collectors, the outcome of the local case will be of considerable interest to all newly elected tax collectors.

Mrs. Hylton's petition as set forth in her bill of complaint, says: "Complainant would show to the Court that under the laws of the State of Florida, she, as tax collector of Highlands county, Florida, is entitled to have paid over to her the said funds on or before August 10th, 1933, and this court taking jurisdiction hereof, complainant would show that she is entitled to have an order of this court directing the said defendant to pay over the said funds to complainant, in her official capacity."

On being interviewed regarding the case Mr. Carson stated he does not know to whom the funds rightfully belong nor whom to pay same, but admits that he has stated that unless enjoined by the court he would pay over the funds to D. F. Canfield, former tax collector, on or before August 10th. He stated further that he has the funds in dispute in his possession and is ready and willing to pay them over to the person properly entitled thereto and is only awaiting an order from the court.

T. A. McNicholas is attorney for Mrs. Hylton.

ASK REMOVAL WELFARE HEAD

Many Citizens Sign Petition Asking Governor To Remove Social Worker

Considerable dissatisfaction in the appointment of Mrs. W. M. Williamson as head of the welfare work of the Highlands County Relief council was evidenced this week by the circulation of a petition addressed to Governor Sholtz, asking the chief objection to her appointment as it appears in the petition is that she is not a resident of the county, but there is also considerable criticism on the streets of the methods followed by Mrs. Williamson in conducting the relief work.

The increase in the office force is also coming in for considerable criticism as the office, as managed by T. V. Conway, appeared recently, was conducted with an office force of three while the staff now numbers five and it is reported that further additions to the office force are planned.

Alligators in Lake Verona to Be Protected

"You've gotta quit kicking my gators around" says Mayor Covington referring to the alligators he has placed in Lake Verona. These alligators were placed in the lake for the pleasure of the tourists and for the protection of the game fish, the mayor says. He quoted government authorities on the statement that alligators are among the best friends of the bass and similar fish as they prey on the turtles and predatory fish that live on the young bass. He further stated that the only alligators are absent are always poor fishing places.

Several small gators have been placed in Lake Verona by the mayor, but some of these have been caught and killed. The mayor asks fishermen to leave the small gators alone.

FUTCH BILL UP FOR DISCUSSION

Supreme Court Must Settle Controversy Regarding Payment Back Taxes

Tallahassee, July 26.—(FNS)—Governmental functioning, as related to several of the new laws passed by the 1933 legislature, is practically at a standstill while the validity of the laws are under advisement by the supreme court.

The new Futch delinquent tax law has been attacked by three cases, with the state keenly interested in the outcome. Controversial sections were taken apart and argued pro and con during a three hour oral battle, when the cases were presented. The general effect of the law is to grant a five to 20 year moratorium on payment of delinquent taxes and allow county and district back taxes to be paid with bonds.

Opponents of the act claimed it allows favoritism to delinquent taxpayers, thereby violating the constitutional requirement of equal and uniform taxation. A 20-year moratorium, opponents claimed, means no payment at all and the use of bonds in paying taxes means the favored class of delinquent taxpayers could secure for market value of the bonds, no matter how low, while prompt payers would have to pay in full.

Arguing that the law is constitutional, defenders of the measure led by Attorney General Cary D. Landis, claimed it will aid the delinquent taxpayer to keep his property by providing an easy payment plan over the proposed period of 20 years. Landis, and other debating attorneys, said that since the state tax has been raised, it has the power to adjust and compromise taxes as long as these within each class are treated alike. The law does not destroy the state's taxing power and therefore does not violate the constitution. If the state can cancel delinquent taxes, as it has done, it also has power to provide an easy way to clear up back taxes and protect the taxpayer from tax collector's speculation, defenders of the measure said.

On August 1 oral arguments will be heard in a test case brought by a Hillsborough county school teacher, to determine the validity of the 1933 legislation. The teacher maintains that she holds a life certificate entitling her to teach in the public schools of Florida, which is a contract the state is powerless to revoke under the constitution, even though she is related to a member of the school board.

The supreme court will also hear arguments on appeals in which the constitutionality of the no-fence laws of Hillsborough and Alachua counties are attacked.

TAXATION ACTS OF LEGISLATURE ARE ANALYZED

Digest of 1933 Session Reveals Many Local Bills Passed

By MAXWELL HUNTER, St. Petersburg, July 26.—The local bill industry as operated by what is generally described as a state legislature becomes as pronounced as an absecess tooth upon examination of the 1933 Legislative Digest just issued by the Florida News and Economic Service with headquarters at St. Petersburg.

According to Walter F. Fuller, manager of the service who compiled the digest, of the 922 bills passed at the recent session, 776 were local measures and consumed more than half the time that it took to enact the law, and will use up considerably more time than that in the courts, untangling the disconnected mass of legislation.

The digest deals primarily with laws having to do with taxation, debts and kindred economic subjects, analyzing and interpreting 414 of those passed. The majority of these, Fuller points out, are aimed at some sort of financial relief, conforming to local ideas of what can be accomplished by law.

"Much of the controversial legislation involving debts and taxation will be set aside by the courts," Fuller states in his introductory remarks.

The Futch bond swapping for taxes law, target for a convergence of legal actions in the state supreme court, the digest reveals, is bulwarmed by an even more liberal act, the Early law. This latter, digested by the service, is (Continued on page eight)

Adjustment Now Possible

(AN EDITORIAL)

By the device of a referendum, the property owners of Avon Park decided Tuesday to reduce the city limits, thereby establishing a definite basis upon which a future course of action may be taken for the collection of delinquent taxes and the settlement of the bonded debt. The success or failure of any plan will depend in large measure upon the willingness and ability on the part of the city and the owners of property on the outside area, to get together.

Granting that there is room for argument on both sides, it is hoped that the property owners affected will show a willingness to co-operate with the city in settling what has for a long time been a very disturbing situation in the taxation set-up of the city.

On the other hand it is up to the city to come forward with a proposition that will be acceptable to the outside area, to the end that both interests may meet on some common ground and settle their differences. To continue the wrangle is ruinous to the city's credit, an unnecessary expense, and demoralizing to the tax situation generally.

To be pig-headed is foolish either on the part of the city or the property owners. There should be no more suits filed against outside property owners until some plan of settlement out of court is first given a thorough try-out. The new deal on city limits opens up an entirely new angle on tax adjustments that has not heretofore been possible. To continue to sue just because the city has a legal department is not solving the problem. Past experiences in this direction have shown little or no satisfactory results.

A wise business man avoids law suits with his customers. He compromises where there is an honest difference of opinion, and he retains the good will of his customers, which he finds to be worth more than the prosecution of his claim, even though he may have "the law" on his side.

In the same spirit, the city should approach the outside property owner. He is a customer—a good customer—of this city. He trades with our merchants. He uses our bank. He goes to our churches. His children attend our schools. He donates to worthy causes. He is entitled to the same consideration that a business man gives his good customer.

The city should use its good offices in composing its differences with these people. Some of the larger property owners have indicated a willingness to assume their share of the bonded debt. It is believed that they will not fight the formation of a tax district to pay their portion of the bonds. It is further believed that they would settle their delinquent taxes without the necessity of a suit, if the money so collected were set aside by the city in a separate fund for the liquidation of their pro rata share of the bonded debt. These taxes could be settled without standing past due bonds, which are obtainable at a big discount, making the payment of these old taxes more attractive to the outside property owners, and at the same time hasten the retirement of the bonded debt, which is, after all, the ultimate goal in the collection of these taxes.

We believe if this plan were properly administered, a large majority of the outside owners would "come clean," with their part. We believe such a compromise would be a starter toward settlement, and it would certainly put these people in a much more friendly attitude toward the city than to slap them in the face with law suits.

Past experience with the courts has shown no definite gain by either side. After fighting for three years in the supreme court, the litigants were told that they must take their case to the lower court and start all over again. They were told this because the issue of taxes was raised, and that fact in the case would have to be settled in the circuit court before a jury.

They were also told that property on the outside area could not be taxed without benefit, and it is believed that this opinion—obiter dictum, or otherwise—will have a deterring effect on attempted collection of taxes through the courts. Should the city push tax collections by suit, as is indicated by letters sent out on election day by the city attorney, then each piece of property on the outside area could be reduced to the defense as suggested by the court. Because different properties would fall under classifications ranging all the way from "no benefits" whatever to varying degrees of benefits, it would seem that collection by suit on the part of the city would result in endless litigation, in which every piece of property in the outside area could stand suit, with more or less chance of beating the tax bill.

We believe this situation can be avoided, expensive court costs saved, and the good will of our citizens retained, which in the long run may amount to as much to the city as the money they owe. We do not believe the city should resort to the courts until other methods of adjustment have been given a fair trial.

VOTERS APPROVE REDUCTION CITY LIMITS 160-76

Decisive Action Taken By Freeholders Tuesday at Election

With the freeholders of Avon Park voting 160 to 76 for the reduction of the city limits, the question that has been causing considerable agitation for some time has apparently been settled. By the decisive majority the property owners decided to reduce the limits from 26 square miles to approximately 4.65 square miles, or about twice the area of the original limits. Voters both inside and outside the new limits supported the measure.

By their action the voters set the seal of approval on an act of the last session of the legislature by which the city limits are changed. The change becomes effective the first of the year at which time a new city council takes office.

Those who oppose the "outside" but are at present within the boundaries will be relieved of future city operating expense but will bear their proportionate share of the present bonded debt and some arrangement will be worked out to take care of this situation. One suggestion is that taxes on "outside" territory be used exclusively for the retirement of bonds as related to that territory. Although three elections have been held here this month, school trustees, Sunday movies and city limits, another looms for the near future. The future will change in the method of keeping the city assessment roll and due to being done by a special act of the legislature, a referendum vote of the citizens.

NEW RULES FOR SCHOOL BUSES

State Board of Education Lays Down New Rules on Student Transportation

Tallahassee, July 26.—Many new rules have been laid down by the state board of education regarding the transportation of students. Many of these rules will take effect on the first of September. The new rules require that all school buses be equipped with first aid kits, fire extinguishers, and other safety equipment. They also require that all bus drivers be licensed and have a minimum of 21 years of age. The rules also require that all buses be inspected regularly and that all students be properly supervised while on the bus.

The new requirements for school bus drivers are much stricter than heretofore. Each driver must have a complete physical examination before being awarded a contract. He has the same status as a teacher in his relation to the children he transports, but cannot punish them. Driver must not be under 18 years of age, have normal hearing and vision, good health, be able to control children on bus, make emergency repairs and drive skillfully to protect children from possible accidents.

Requirements for buses are just as strict as those for the drivers. Every bus must have a thorough mechanical inspection to make certain that the motor is good, steering gear reliable, brakes dependable, tire in good condition, standard proof glass only permitted, entrance door on left, emergency door at rear controlled from driver's seat and unlocked.

Lettering "School Bus" on each side and "Stop" and "Go" signs on rear. Bus must have inspection by approved mechanic and necessary repairs made at beginning of school year.

No Farmers' Week Program Scheduled In Economy Action

Gainesville, July 26.—Farmers' Week will not be held at the University of Florida College of Agriculture this summer, according to an announcement today by Dr. Wilmon Newell, dean of the College of Agriculture. This decision has been made in the interests of economy, and has been approved by President Tigert and the State Board of Control, Dean Newell said. "Officials of the College of Agriculture, together with hundreds of Florida farmers and farm women, regret exceedingly that this action has been found necessary," he said. "The decision to suspend Farmers' Week activities was made solely to decrease expenditures, and at the same time make the best possible use of available funds."

Dean Newell called attention to the fact that a reduction was made in the State appropriation for the Agricultural Extension Service, and that reductions in federal allotments for the same service are imminent. "It was felt that, under these circumstances, every dollar of available funds should be devoted to the work of the county and home demonstration agents in the counties, that the rural people of the State may receive the very maximum of assistance in dealing with their problems," he declared.

Farmers' Week has been an annual event in August at the College of Agriculture for 11 years, and various farmers' short courses were held annually for many years before that. Government officials of the Irish Free State declare that the new protective tariff already has resulted in the establishment of new auto body and shirt factories.

TOO MUCH work, too much mental strain, too much worry you awake nights! "NERVES" make you irritable, restless; give you Headache, Indigestion, "NERVES" make you look and feel old, weaken resistance and pave the way for serious nervous or organic trouble.

J. M. Foster, a druggist, suffered tortures from Over-wrought Nerves. He had dozens of so-called "Nerve Remedies" in his store. One by one he tried them without relief until... But let Mr. Foster tell his experience in his own words.

"I think Dr. Miles' Nerveine is the best nerve medicine made, and that a better one cannot be made. Dr. Miles' Nerveine was the only medicine on the shelf or in the prescription case that put me on my feet." J. M. Foster, Druggist, Marysville, Ohio

IN ANSWER TO A LADY'S LETTER

A lady writes to say that she does not understand why an 8-cylinder car does not cost more to run than a car with fewer cylinders. She refers to my statement that our Ford V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gas than any car we have made.

The use of 8-cylinders does not mean the addition of two or four extra fuel consumers. It is not, for example, a 4-cylinder engine multiplied by two. Our 8-cylinder engine takes the fuel supply of an ordinary 4-cylinder engine and divides it eight ways. And why?

By reducing four larger explosions into eight smaller ones, we get engine smoothness and quietness. Eight-cylinders indicate the way the gas is used, not the amount. It is just the difference between going upstairs in four long jumps or in eight ordinary steps.

Two things use up gas—bad engine design and useless car weight. Besides having an engine that gets a high percentage of power out of the fuel, the Ford V-8 has a light, strong body and chassis so that no power is wasted in moving excess weight.

The only extravagance about the new Ford V-8 engine is in the building of it. The extravagance is ours—the economy is yours.

The whole question of car economy needs clearing up. An economical car gives economy all round. Price, operation, upkeep, all play their part. If what you save on gas you lose elsewhere, that is not economy.

As to upkeep, our dealers say that in recent years the improved quality of Ford cars has cut down their repair business 50 per cent.

As to price with quality,—judge for yourself. As to economy, here is the record of a stock car three weeks out of shop in Oklahoma:

On a run of 10,054 miles at the rate of 1,000 miles a day—the Ford V-8 gave 18.8 miles per gallon of gas. Not a drop of water was added to the radiator. The oil was changed once in 1,000 miles.

That should answer a lot of questions.

FLORIDA AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

By RUSSELL KAY

Chicago, July 26.—Florida's exhibits at the Century of Progress are outstanding. Chicago newspapers have said, and truly, that Florida is "stealing the show." Certainly she is receiving a lion's share of attention.

Florida Hall occupies a strategic position, being the first exhibit on the right as visitors enter the Court of States. Arranged, Spanish fashion, with balconies around an exotic patio the exhibit creates an artistic tropical atmosphere. Typical of Florida atmosphere and the arrangement around the Court of States, are placed in the "exotic" such as the famous "Statue of Liberty" Tower, the Old City Gates of St. Augustine, Ringling's Gallery, a Polka Palace, a Min in operation, and a "Babe Holmes" of Arcadia, business visitor, returned here Saturday.

State Has $1,215,264 Fiscal Year Deficit

By RUSSELL KAY

Chicago, July 26.—The State of Florida has a fiscal year deficit of $1,215,264, according to figures released by the State Treasury.

W. A. Knott, for the Secretary of the State, said that the deficit was the result of a combination of factors, including a decrease in revenue and an increase in expenditures.

Expenditures for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1933, totaled $1,215,264, while revenue for the same period totaled $1,215,264.

Knott said that the deficit was the result of a combination of factors, including a decrease in revenue and an increase in expenditures.

You can hardly blame a lady with a name like Coggins for changing it to Roosevelt when she was given the chance.

One advantage of being a newspaper editor is that kidnappers do not pick upon him as a victim because of his wealth.

A day or two after taking to himself a bride, young Mr. Roosevelt declared, "I am not interested in anything." And what did young Mrs. Roosevelt say to that, you reckon?

We approve of every detail of the Governor's administration except the garb he appeared in at the Chicago Fair. A derby hat and heavy woolen suit are hardly typical or suggestive of Florida.

Returning Floridians report the Century of Progress as the greatest show on record, with the largest number of tired feet ever assembled. We Southern people ought to wear shoes at least every other day for a month before tackling the Chicago concrete.

It is a poor citizen who will not heartily cooperate with the President in the great recovery plan outlined by him in his radio address the other night. The success of that plan is the hope of the nation. Its acceptance or rejection by the individual is the test of that individual's patriotism.

A very sensible idea being considered by the administration would be to move reforestation camps to the South for the winter months. Any day in the year is a good day for such work in Florida, but camps located in many states could hardly be maintained during the winter season.

States that do not allow capital punishment might try the whipping post for kidnappers. That method has proven prompt and effective in determining various countries when applied to criminals who could not be controlled by ordinary methods of punishment. Perhaps—but the kidnaper is not entitled to humane treatment. His crime puts him outside the pale of humanity.

It is possible to make wines of a quality equal to the finest vintages from Florida grapefruit and oranges. That might be a means of helping the citrus industry if the idea is not adjudged too wicked. Reading a Florida newspaper printed some fifty years ago we came upon a recipe for making champagne from the sour orange, the product being described as of excellent flavor and profuse in sparkle and bubble.

This farming business is getting more attractive all the time. Note where North Florida growers are going to be paid some quarter of a million dollars for not planting cotton. Now that's a job that appeals to us strangely, for we can think of few things we would like to do more than not to plant cotton, and to get paid for it besides suggests a condition that would be wonderfully satisfactory. We are nothing if not patriotic, and we stand ready to enter into an agreement with the government not to plant cotton anywhere—pledging any desired area, no matter how great—and to accept such compensation for not doing so as would be consistent with the code.

Canals are being projected so thick and fast in South Florida that it now seems that in some instances they will have to be superimposed one above the other. The Alafia route, for instance, is to be used for a waterway project from the Gulf to Lakeland, and also for a similar project from Tampa to the East Coast. We presume there will be a double-decked construction perhaps as far as Lakeland, with the promoters who act with the most promptness building on the ground floor, the later comers taking the air, with a kind of elevated railway effect. It is all very interesting.

THE WEARY TRAVELER COMES TO A SIGN POST

There are few inventions that have brought more enjoyment to the world, or that could be made more useful, than the motion picture. A child may learn more geography in a quarter of an hour of screen entertainment than in a week of tedious class-room study. From the right kind of pictures great moral lessons may be inculcated when books or lectures would fail. The only trouble is that there are too few pictures of the right kind and too many that are harmful. If good people would interest themselves in bringing about the production of wholesome pictures on the screen—not striving to make them so goody-goody as to leave them dull and uninteresting, but eliminating the sexy, vicious features—they could accomplish more toward reforming the world than by hammering away at certain comparative trivialities that engage their energies. If national censorship—which has been a joke since it was first proposed—were actually enforced, then the state should step in with a board of liberal but decent-minded persons who would determine what pictures might be shown in the confines of that state. There are many fine, wholesome features shown, educational and beneficial in their effect; but unfortunately there are many others which possibly might not be harmful to those with mature minds, but which undoubtedly are demoralizing to impressionable adolescence. Local managers of theatres cannot control the situation; they have to show such pictures as the producers furnish. There should be either some real Federal censorship or the state should exercise a proper supervision.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY BY RUSSELL KAY

Until you have personally visited the World's Fair and with your own eyes witnessed the great throngs which daily make their way through the Florida exhibit, you cannot possibly appreciate what a marvelous thing it is that this state is so splendidly represented.

The extent to which Florida dominates the great exposition is nothing short of amazing. While other states have been contented to confine their exhibits to a location in the Hall of States, Florida has stepped out and presents the story of her charms and advantages throughout the grounds.

First the visitor encounters our bearing orange grove, a half acre or more of living trees, laden with fruit and believe-it-or-not, in blossom. Thousands never saw an orange tree, stand in a awe and admiration as the guide says: "This is a Florida orange grove—living, bearing trees."

In the Florida tropical gardens, which occupy a prominent location, one finds growing pineapples, sugar cane and a wide variety of native shrubs, trees, plants and flowers.

Two exhibits at widely separated locations come from Tarpon Springs. The sponge diving display and demonstration and an exhibit of queer fish, both serve to advertise Florida and create much interest.

The typical Florida home, complete in every detail is an outstanding attraction. A constant stream of visitors receive a delightful impression of the charms and comforts of a Florida home.

These individual exhibits all serve to supplement and complete the story of Florida told so effectively by our main exhibit in the Hall of States.

But Florida did not stop with her appeal to the eye alone. Every day one or more interesting radio programs, sponsored by the Florida Commission, carries the story of Florida to millions with a cordial invitation to come and visit our display.

On the midway Florida again is brought to mind in the colorful Seminole Indian Village and alligator wrestling concession. While visitors tour the grounds they constantly find the Salswade drink stands, where pretty girls in neat attire invite folks to refresh themselves with a glass of delicious pure orange juice, from tree-ripened Florida fruit.

What a show! What a break! The interest these exhibits are creating is very compelling. It will result in bringing visitors by the hundreds of thousands to Florida next winter. Many of them will come to stay, for while the floor of our exhibit hall is tile, those who make their way through its attractive corridors go away with "sand in their shoes."

Florida is still the "land of enchantment" and her appeal today is stronger than ever before. Millions throughout the nation are fed up on metropolitan life. They hunger for a little vine covered home, in a land where life is worth living.

People have learned through bitter experience that investments in stocks and bonds and even cash in banks is not the answer. They are beginning to earn again and the money they make now will be spent on travel and for the comforts of life. Florida beckons and our highways and transportation lines will be taxed this winter to accommodate all who will come.

Florida's participation in the Century of Progress is the greatest piece of advertising the state has ever done. It will result in increased removal of prohibition from the basic law of the land. It is now more or less generally conceded that the necessary thirty-six states will approve repeal by the end of this year, if sign thus far do not fail. Twenty states have thus far voted on the proposition and to a state have approved repeal. Oregon voted Thursday for repeal, bringing the total favoring it up to two scores. In Tennessee repeal had the hardest going, but carried the state.

It is with somewhat mingled emotions that those favoring the retention of prohibition in the federal constitution view this trend back to liquor days. But it is not that prohibition is itself is not so much favored, but that prohibition did not prohibit. Unfortunately for prohibition its enforcement proved a complete break-down in so far as actual prohibition was concerned. Human nature could not stand the possibility of graft, corruption, political pressure and all of the evils of organized society which were brought to bear to break down effective enforcement of the law. As a result the desultory enforcement of the law gradually disgusted the masses with an apparent vain effort to sustain prohibition as a law of the land.

Then too, the enforcement of prohibition found its testing time at a time when a great war had demoralized moral fiber, loosened public morals and caused a gradual disregard for all laws. The American public in general felt that it was not what you did but what you could get away with. Growing disrespect for all constitutional authority, for the courts and the law itself made difficult the enforcement of a law which was unpopular with a considerable percentage of the masses.

No one is particularly anxious to see the old saloon again make its appearance in the life of the nation, but most of those who vote cast for repeal constitute votes in protest to the manner in which the entire prohibition problem has been handled from an enforcement standpoint.

Few will deny that prohibition, if sustained in fact as well as theory, is far better than the free dispensing of hard liquor; but by the same token the majority appears opposed to a racket which not only keeps law and order but also puts generous profits from an illicit business into the hands of outlaws and racketeers.—Plant City Courier.

AL SMITH'S NEIGHBORS AND THE REST OF US

Alfred E. Smith writes entertainingly of "My 20,000 Neighbors" in the August American Magazine. The seven millions are, of course, Al's neighbors in New York City. Al makes a convincing case for the Gothamites and proves that they are the most fortunate creatures on earth for no other reason than that they are citizens of America's great metropolis. We wonder. We read the article with a fairly comprehensive understanding of Al's enthusiasm for New York and its culture, its opportunities and privileges, but naturally being a small town person we couldn't get a bit enthused over the prospect of ever joining the seven millions and becoming a fellow citizen of Al's. New York is a marvelous place to visit and even to live in for a time—but even New Yorkers have told us that it wasn't real living and that life for them began only when they retired from its hustle and bustle and moved into the suburbs or some place far distant from its turmoil and polyglot population and new America as it really is—and that is something quite different from the impression one gets in New York City. Yes, it's a great article by a great man—but we are willing to let Al have all of New York while we enjoy the choicest spot in incomparable Florida.—Winter Haven Chief.

IT MAY MEAN MORE COUNTIES.

According to editorials appearing in the Lake Wales Highlander and the Frostproof News, Polk county is to have only four months of school in the 1933-34 term. Polk county is one of the largest if not the largest county in the state which doesn't make such a good argument for those who are in favor of fewer and larger counties. Highlands county will probably have eight months of school.—Highlands County News.

You're right, Broking, the school situation is an argument in favor of small counties, and there are others. The distribution of the gas tax and race track money is a strong one, and if the small counties of the state who now hold the balance of power in the law making bodies continue to squeeze money from the large counties they are going to wake up some morning and find themselves deluged with so many small counties that their state revenue will be greatly reduced. Another case of the golden goose.—Frostproof News.

"AMERICA CAN RECOVER—IF IT WANTS TO"

In his address on Monday night, President Roosevelt told the one old Andy Jackson, "Old Hickory" as he was known to friend and foe. When Jackson died, someone asked, "do you think he went to heaven?" and a friend replied, "He did if he wanted to." Roosevelt used that illustration to drive home the truth that America could return to prosperity if it wanted to and would work with him to put over guaranteed reemployment for millions now out of work and boost wages and the prices of commodities to the point where everybody will make a "fair profit." The President doesn't claim that the plan is a cure-all, but he does maintain that the American people "can pull themselves out of this depression if they want to," and he feels this plan is the most logical one to attain that end. It's really up to the American people. Their attitude and their support will spell either success or failure. And it is inconceivable that Americans would do anything to block the return to prosperity for which the entire country has been hoping and praying for more than three years.—Winter Haven Chief.

Miami Daily News has found that Lake Placid is the biggest townsite in Florida and the sixth largest in area of all American municipalities. It is nine times as large as the Republic of Monaco, yet has little more than half the population of Hallendale, a suburb of Miami. There are approximately eight inhabitants to the square mile. This may explain why voters tied 55-55 the other day in an election to decide whether the area should be reduced from 72 to 12 square miles. Half of them wanted to retain the distinction of being the least populous big city in Florida and the other half wanted less space and more people, the News says.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

BY EDSON R. WAITE
Shawnee, Oklahoma

There is an age when a child begins to lose his beliefs and yet is eager to retain them. A lot of grown up folks are in the same fix today.

The actual fact of over production and poor distribution seems to be a bewildering business for Members of Congress who have gotten themselves thoroughly tangled up in their endeavor to explain to the folks at home just why there should be national wide unemployment and distress, to say nothing about millions of our citizens near actual starvation. While the way out becomes more and more involved as the professors present them with new ideas and plans, they seem to have lost their bearings and are wandering in circles.

Peace and security are very desirable, but we cannot have them if we are not in possession of means to enforce them.

The new roads which are to be built should be wide roads; wide enough to meet all likely needs for many years to come.

It is easy to see that those people who expected reduced taxes are doomed to disappointment.

The industrial picture in America is changing so rapidly that what may be true today will be outmoded tomorrow.

A city is the creation of all its inhabitants. Its growth, prosperity and betterment are in direct proportion to their co-operation, energy and loyalty.

Gasoline taxes are the backbone of a state's highway system and should not be used for any purpose other than road construction and maintenance.

Standard Oil Reduces Price of Ethyl Gasoline

Standard Oil dealers in Florida have today received instructions from the company's offices in Jacksonville and Tampa to reduce the differential in cost between Crown Ethyl gasoline and regular gasoline from 3c to 2c a gallon. This price change becomes effective on July 28th and the company gives as the reason therefor, improved manufacturing facilities, and desires to pass along to the motoring public this saving in their highest priced product.

Sebring Woman Music Chairman

To Head Committee of Judges In Musical Contest For Free Scholarship

Dr. William Edward Duckwitz, head of the music department of the John B. Stetson University announces that Miss Eliza McWhaine of Sebring has accepted the chairmanship of the committee of judges for the scholarship which the university will award to some student in Highlands county.

Buy Avon Park—Miss McWhaine will announce in the near future the names of the judges who will serve on her committee.

The trustees have authorized the university to give a $100.00 scholarship to some outstanding music student in each county in Florida, their scholarship being awarded by a committee of judges chosen from prominent musicians of that county.

Contests will be held in the various counties during the month of August. In addition to these county scholarships the music department is also offering another scholarship which will cover the entire amount of tuition. This contest will be held at Stetson University in Deland on September 6th. Contestants may compete for first awards in piano, voice, or orchestral instrument.

It is the aim of the university to create interest in music and to have every part of Florida represented in its music department. Through these efforts it is hoped that Florida may develop outstanding musicians, at the same time giving assistance to students who are unable to finance their education.

Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president of the university, is in accord with the leading educators in believing that music is the best mind trainer as well as the most valuable of cultural subjects. The present trend in education is to prepare the student for a richer and fuller use of his leisure hours as well as to train him for making a livelihood. Under this influence music has become an important part of the curriculum at all leading colleges and universities.

When the Midianites fled the remainder of Gideon's Army and the Israelites hidden in the mountain and caves came out and all joined in pursuit of their enemy and, it is said, slew 120,000 of them, and Israel had peace for 40 years. Experiment Station In Charge W. F. Ward Gets Federal Funds Brooksville, July 26.—(FNS)—Federal funds totaling $51,257 have been allocated for improvements at the Chesapeake Experiment Station, the 2,000 acre tract donated to the government a year ago by Col. and Mrs. Raymond Robbins.

The appropriation includes provisions for a water supply system, repair of buildings and painting, land clearing operations, drainage, fencing, road repairs, cattle houses, silos and other necessary equipment.

The government is planning to carry on a number of extensive experiments here to determine types of forage crops best suited to the raising of cattle in the State of Florida. The work is being conducted by W. F. Ward, former Sebring, who is now director of the station.

Nearly half the flying machines sold in England this year were bought on time payments.

Little Red Schoolhouse Invented Tooth and Sweet Sandwiches

Pennsylvania Schoolboy Out-does Bo Bo

LIKE Bo Bo, the Chinese boy who accidentally discovered roast pork by setting the house on fire on a Pennsylvania schoolboy discovered the little red schoolhouse, which by chance, the story, recently unearthed by a professor, tells that the farm children, finding their lunches frozen from the long walk to the little red schoolhouse, put them on the big round stove to thaw—and returned to find their sandwiches toasted and better than before.

The sweet sandwich, some say also owes its origin to the little red schoolhouse, being an offshoot of the proverbial after-school bread and jam. Others claim, however, that it began in the tropics, where the sweet fruits are used for every purpose.

Be that as it may, sweet sandwiches, toasted or not, have come to be very popular for summer eating, and for a multitude of good reasons. They are just the proper companion for the summer lemonade or punch; they can accompany the light salad to form an ideal summer lunch; if sweet enough, they may take the place of dessert, or even be served with fruit combinations.

Of all the sweet sandwiches those made of fruit lead the lists. Banana, fruit jams, and the preserved and candied fruits are popular. But most favored, especially by those who plan for children too, are the fillings made of healthful dates, for they provide sufficient nourishment in a cool-to-eat form and are rich in vitamins besides. The ready-pitted dates are easiest to use and the pasteurized dates, being always clean and pure, require no washing or other care.

Tropical Sandwiches.

- 1 cup nuts
- 1 pk. pasteurized dates, sliced
- 1 large banana
- 1 tsp. grated orange rind
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- Mix the sliced dates, nuts (chopped) and banana (mashed) together thoroughly, spread between slices of buttered bread or put between butter wafers or even chocolate wafers. Makes 12 large ones.
- Tutti Frutti Sandwiches.
- 1/2 cup crystallized ginger
- 1/2 cup (1 pk.) sliced orange peel
- 1/2 cup candied cherries
- 1/2 cup almonds
- 1 tsp. orange juice.

Chop peaches, cherries and blanched almonds fine. Mix with orange juice. Spread between slices of whole wheat bread. Makes 6 large sandwiches. Use the ready-packaged orange peel and canned orange juice for convenience.

Colgate Sandwiches.
Spread one slice of lightly buttered bread with peanut butter. Cover with a layer of chopped pasteurized dates. Spread a second slice of buttered bread with currant or cranberry jelly. Put slices together in pairs. 1/2 cup peanut butter, 1/2 pk. dates and 1/2 cup jelly is enough for 1 doz. sandwiches.

Cream Cheese-Citron Sandwiches.
1 pk. (4 oz.) cream cheese
1/2 cup (3 oz.) citron
Mash cream cheese with a fork adding a little cream or salad dressing if too firm. Stir in a package of sliced candied citron, and spread.

Dessert Sandwiches.
1/2 pk. coconut
1/2 pk. pasteurized dates
1/2 cup figs
1/2 cup nuts
1/2 cup boiling water
1/2 oz. chocolate
1/2 cup sugar.

Cut figs and dates into small pieces. Add shredded fresh-keeping coconut (1/2 cup), chocolate which has been melted, sugar and water. Cook over hot water for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from fire, beat thoroughly. Add finely chopped nuts. Cool and spread.

Peanut Butter Fruit Bread.

- 1 1/2 cups whole wheat flour
- 6 tps. baking powder
- 1 1/2 tps. salt
- 1 1/2 cups graham flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup nutmeal
- 1 1/2 cup orange peel
- 1 egg
- 1 1/2 cups milk.

Sift white flour, baking powder, and salt together. Add graham flour and sugar, and stir in coarsely chopped nutmeats. Separate pieces of sliced candied peel, and measure by dropping them loosely into standard measuring cup. Mix peel through flour with finger tips. Beat egg; add milk and stir liquid into dry ingredients. Beat the batter thoroughly. Pour mixture into a well-oiled loaf pan. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for 1 hour.

PEACH RECIPES

Peach Butter.
Use 4 quarts ripe peaches, sugar, and juice of 1/2 lemon.

Dip the peaches first in boiling water, then in cold water and slip off the skins. Cut in pieces and cook until very soft. Press through a colander and measure; to each pint of pulp allow 1 cupful sugar. Mix peach pulp, sugar and lemon juice and cook until of the consistency of marmalade. Pour into sterilized jars and seal at once. Or, wash thoroughly nice, ripe peaches; cut and remove pits; if free stones. Cook in their own juices until soft enough to put through drier to remove skins and pits; if clings; measure pulp; allow half as much sugar as pulp. When pulp is laid, add sugar and cook until clear and of the desired consistency. Pour in hot sterile jars. Seal and process immediately.

Peach Ice Cream.

Use 2 cupfuls milk, 2 cupfuls cream or evaporated milk, 3 cupfuls peach pulp, 2 1/2 cupfuls sugar, 1 tablespoonful lemon juice. Peel ripe peaches and put through a coarse sieve. Add sugar and lemon juice, stir well and allow to stand while preparing the cream. Add milk and cream gradually to peach pulp and freeze.

Peach Cake.

Cut top off a loaf of sponge or good plain cake and remove center, leaving a shell about 1/2 inch thick. Mix together 3 tablespoons sugar and boiling water and boil 3 minutes. Add enough powdered sugar to make an icing that can be easily spread. Cover rim and sides of cake with icing and sprinkle thickly with chopped pecans or shredded coconut. Fill center with sliced sugared peaches, heating them up. Serve with plain cream.

Sweet Spiced Peaches.

Put in kettle 3 1/2 pounds of sugar, 1 pint vinegar, 1 pint of water, ginger root 1/2 ounce, whole cloves 1/2 ounce, stick cinnamon 1/2 ounce. Bring mixture to boil. Let stand over night to absorb spice flavor. Strain and add boiling hot to jar or can; or preferably, pour over prepared peaches and let stand over night. Then drain off, boil again and add to peaches that have been packed in jar. Process 12 to 16 minutes.

Growing Pulletts Need Clean Range, Shelter Feed and Pure Water

Gainesville, July 26.—Range for growing pullets should be selected with care, says N. R. Mehner, poultryman with the Florida Agricultural Extension Service. When land is plentiful, generally it is better to raise pullets on the range rather than in confinement.

One of the first things to keep in mind in selecting the range is sanitation, he says. Land on which no chickens have ranged for one or two years is desirable, since it will be free of parasites and contamination. If a long-time rotation is not possible, cultivating the range will help to keep it clean.

Some form of shade is desirable on the summer range. If none is provided naturally, artificial shade should be constructed. This need not be elaborate or expensive. Tall growing crops can be used for the purpose. Summer poultry houses built on skids, and consequently movable, are used by some poultrymen, and are quite satisfactory. They should be kept clean.

Green stuff should be provided for the pullets during the summer. Cows have been found quite satisfactory for this purpose at the Florida National Egg-Laying Contest. Millet can be grown with the cowpeas.

Plenty of pure water and good feed, with grit, shell and charcoal, should be provided. The water should be high in protein, which will induce growth.

Vaccinating the birds against chickenpox is inexpensive, and is good protection.

The pullets should be placed in permanent laying quarters four or five weeks before laying starts, and should be given a laying ration.

EFFECTIVE WORK ON

FARM OFTEN DEPENDS ON DIRECTED ENERGY

"Make your licks count, son," said my father when I, as a boy, was learning something of the art of farm blacksmithing. It is a good idea for farmers (and other people as well) to make whatever they do, count. Some farmers seem to work twice as hard as others, and yet are not as efficient—they just don't accomplish as much as some of the others who do not work so hard.

The difference is that the one failed to make his licks count for as much as the other.

Right now seems to be an especially propitious time for farmers to strike telling blows. Those who take advantage of the turn of the tide come out ahead in the race. While no one can say for certain that the tide of business has turned, every indication points to the fact that it has. At least, prices for farm products are rising. We should continue to keep our production costs as low as possible, and thus be able to cash in on the rising tide of prices for our products.

Misdirected energy can be almost as futile as no energy. Doing what ought to be done at the time when it ought to be done is a knack that should be cultivated. It is valuable. The editor of Southern Agricultural says that no other education is quite so important as that training in work habits which enables a farmer to make his work really effective. This is valuable training for boys, to be carried over into their later lives.

Someone has said that there is a habit of success in farming. Some farmers just seem to make a little money every year, and good money some years. They take advantage of desirable opportunities to add value to their investments, eliminate waste, keep everything in good repair, improve their soils, care for their stock, and otherwise do the things that should be done. This is a good habit to cultivate.
