Supreme Court Takes Up Gold Clause Abrogation Case—Senate Committee Favors World Court Adherence—Congress Gets the Budget.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HAVING given the New Deal a slight sent by holding the treason court feature of the NIRA unconstitutional, the Supreme Court moved rapidly to ward a judgment as to the legality of the abrogation of gold payments. Several cases challenging this act were lumped and oral argument was heard. This being a matter of vital importance, involving $100,000,000, Attorney General Cummings, General Henry C. Cummings himself appeared to present the case for the government. Mr. Cummings is an excellent lawyer, but not much can be said in praise of the legal ability of the men whom the exigencies of politics have shoved into his office in Washington. So probably he was wise to handle this matter himself.

Cummings defended the constitutional authority of the President and Congress to adjust the present monetary policy as inherently the right of the government to preserve itself.

In an argument distinguished for oratorical display as well as for its legal aspects, Cummings said an inverse decision by the court would:

1. Increase the public and national debt of the nation by $20,000,000,000.
2. Create a special class that would be beyond the pale of the general financial system, composed of those holding bonds demanding payment in gold.
3. Reduce the balance in the United States treasury $2,500,000,000.
4. Add $17,000,000,000 to the public debt and increase the interest charges on this debt alone by $2,500,000,000 a year.

The latter sum alone, Cummings said, is equal to twice the value of the 1934 wheat and cotton crop.

The attorney general referred to the troubled state of the country in the spring of 1933 and said that content and shall show that the Congress and the President of the United States acted reasonably in a period of very great difficulties and that their acts were not the product of caprice.

From the questions asked by the justices, observers gained the impression that there was a sharp division of opinion among them.

SENATOR JOSEPH T. ROBINSON, majority leader of the senate, being informed that the foreign relations committee had voted 14 to 7 in favor of the project for American adherence to the World Court, said he would bring the resolution up on the floor of the senate as soon as possible. However he recognized the sentiment against it, the committee had not predicted the outcome of the fight.

The new resolution as approved by the committee is slightly altered to meet the objections of nations to what is known as reservation five. Mr. Robinson said: "The real import and effect of reservation five has been preserved in full. It is provided that discussions may take place under the Root protocol, but if the end of the life of the right to liberty and pursuit of happiness and at the same time to combat the growth of bureaucracy, the spread of crime, the socialization of industry, and the regimentation of American life."

Invasion of the law making and law interpreting functions by New Deal administrators was also rapped by the league in promising to uphold the American principle that laws be made only by the direct representatives of the people in the congress, and that the $2,500,000,000 be interpreted only by the courts.

Other points in the 10-point declaration of policy pledged the league to fight for government economy, sound federal fiscal policy, a stable currency, protection for investors, and individual liberties.

PETROLEUM court provisions of the national industrial recovery act, held by the Supreme Court for the United States to be invalid as unconstitutional abdication of legislative power to the President. Eight of the justices united in rendering this decision, Justice Cardozo alone dissenting, and it was read by Chief Justice Hughes.

This section declared void authorized the President to have interstate shipment of "hot" oil—that is, oil produced in excess of state quotas.

While the opinion did not deal with the question of whether the act, it aroused widespread speculation as to disposition of other cases. This was the first major "New Deal" case to come before the court.

BALANCE work relief must be carried out by the federal budget will not be balanced for the coming fiscal year, and probably not for the year after.

In presenting the budget to Congress, President Roosevelt admitted this, but without explanation. He estimated that the federal budget for the 1935 fiscal year beginning July 1 next, would be $3,581,000,000.

He also stated that the federal budget for the current year, partly estimated, are $3,581,000,000.

If one wishes to know how much of these figures are to be obtained from these figures showing the estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1935:

1. Legislative, judicial and executive	24,595,000
2. Civilian departments and agencies	188,557,140
3. National defense	102,142,240
4. Veterans' benefits and allowances	704,885,540
5. Interest	872,000,000
6. Refunds	614,240,250
7. Recovery and relief	4,382,911,470
8. Supplemental appropriations for various groups	41,200,000
9. Miscellaneous	41,200,000
Total expenditures	$5,526,413,490

Total receipts for the same period are put at $2,945,413,490. The estimated deficit will be $425,000,000.

The recovery and relief fund the President asked for $1,000,000,000 be placed at his disposal to be allocated by him "principally for giving work to those unemployed on the relief rolls."

There are some other vital things disclosed by the message:

The national debt will increase from $31,000,000,000 at the close of this fiscal year to $34,250,000,000. No new debt is to be incurred. Congress is asked to continue the so-called income taxes which expire soon and the 3-cent stamp tax.

A total of 137,154 federal requests for $800,000,000—the greatest in the history of the country—is requested. A total of 137,154 federal requests are to be dismissed.

The $2,811,000,000 gold profit has not been distributed.

Veterans' pensions in 1935 will reach the staggering total of $704,000,000.

The accumulated New Deal deficit for three years on June 30, 1936, will total $11,700,000,000.

While the trend of recovery and relief expenditures is downward, regular federal expenses will increase. This is due to a 5 per cent pay restoration for federal workers which involves $65,000,000.

IN THE highly dramatized trial of Bruno Hauptmann for the kidnapping and murder of the Lindbergh baby, the state continued to weave a strong net of circumstantial evidence around the defendant. Lindbergh first identified his voice as that of the man who revived the ransom; next was Amanda Hauptmann, eighty-seven-year-old woman who told of seeing Hauptmann driving a "dirty-green" car with a ladder in it into the Lindbergh home March 1, 1932, the day of the kidnapping. Then John Persoe, Bronx taxi driver, identified him as the man who paid him $1 to deliver a suitcase to "Jafie."

"Jafie," otherwise Dr. John Condon, the aged Bronx educator who undertook the negotiations with the kidnaper, next went on the stand and in his garbled way identified Bruno as the man with whom he dealt and to whom he handed the $20,000 ransom money. His long and somewhat rambling story was bitterly assailed in cross examination by E. J. Kelly, chief defense counsel, but seemingly the great value of his evidence was not much shaken.

Detective Arthur Johnson of New York was on his way home from Europe bringing relatives of the Lindbergh family to New York for the state. Hauptmann claimed in his defense that the ransom money found in his possession was given to him by a business associate in New York. Fisch later returned to his home in Germany, where he died.

AN APOLOGY to the Canadian government and payments of $500,000 damages is the penalty imposed on the United States for taking the run running schooner "I'm Alone" in the Gulf of Mexico in March of 1933. This decision was announced by William C. Clegg, associate justice of the United States Supreme court, and Sir Lyman Duff, chief justice.

Canada, who were the claimants of arbitration under the ship liquor treaty of 1924 between the United States and Canada for controlling liquor smuggling.

Of the damages awarded, $25,000 is to be paid as compensation to the Canadian government, $25,000 to the master and members of the crew of the "I'm Alone" or their families. Included in the $25,000 is $10,000 to be paid to the widow and children of Leon Miquelon, a French citizen of St. Pierre, Miquelon, who was killed when the schooner was sunk by the coast guard.

The commissioners found that the master and members of the crew were not parties to a liquor smuggling conspiracy.

THERE were huge steps of Europe in the chancelleries of Europe, where the success of the negotiations in Rome between Foreign Minister Pierson and French Minister Laval, and Premier Mussolini.

France was announced in London. The two statesmen discussed the points at issue, their nations and conditions in general in contrast to the European situation.

Emerging from the last of their meetings, Laval, smiling broadly, said to a group of French and Italian journalists:

"I am glad to tell you that Premier Mussolini and I are now in complete agreement. There would be no danger in spending $100,000,000 to buy peace in a pistol, rifle or steel saw."

To comfort those appropriating money for the relief of the money fighting the depression it can be said, quite reasonably, that there would be no danger in spending $100,000,000 to buy peace in a pistol, rifle or steel saw.

The normal income of the United States, in reality good times, is about $100,000,000,000. If a man spent one cent of his income to settle all his troubles, you think the price reasonable.

It would, of course, be a new record to issue the $100,000,000,000 in bonds and pay out another $100,000,000,000 for interest, unnecessary, to be said and will be said quite often.

To read that Harry MacCracken, a seventy-five-year-old retired car painter, jumped up when a band told him to sit still, and "drilled" the band through the shoulder, is mildly interesting. It is more interesting to read that it happened in a "backhanded hand store" of Colorado, where MacCracken spent his time sitting by the stove, "telling" to sit, whittling by a liquor store, and a strange accident occurred. He was a man who, who knows that time is whittling away his few remaining days.

The AAA asks congress for complete authority over all crops, all farm activities, and for $400,000,000 to pay farmers to plow poor farms to better farms.

Congress will give President Roosevelt a lump sum, a considerable sum, from the treasury, $100,000,000, to let pay rolls contribute to the cost of insurance and pensions. This might work well with normal pay rolls.

You hope that the President, in his wisdom, will include in any "security" program security for the nation, in addition to security for individuals, old or out of a job.

Unemployment insurance and old age pensions would do little good if the thousands of people coming from Europe or Asia to loath some cities and spray them with poison gas. If they come now, they could no longer be of any use.

Frank Hauptmann's misadventure in the vagaries were interrupted by a strange offer from Mr. Standish Hartmann, who owns the "I'm Alone" schooner, manufacturing tomatoes, just opposite the Hauptmann family.

Hauptmann was told, "If you are sent to the electric chair I will let you pick out your last minute minutes since the birth of Christ and, therefore, the federal government will give you a lump sum of about twelve dollars to the public debt for each of the minutes since Christ came on earth."

It should take years to devise a timetable that would be so prompt to "have" if he got it after being executed for murder.

A day is coming when no man will do any work harder than pressing a button and silence, indifference, and a light and innocent fat "trust" was searched. A small metal shoebox was found in his home.

IS IT A RACKET?

Judge M. C. Whitehurst brought up a vital question at the meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday when he told of the assistance of the H. & W. B. Drew Co. representative to get orders for county supplies. It appears that a new and uniform system of accounting is being installed in all county offices in the state. A uniform system is all right but why should Drew have the monopoly of supplying the necessary forms. The sheriff's office has been supplied with their's and a superficial examination of the forms and the prices charged looks like the prices are exorbitant and out of all reason.

Circuit Court Clerk W. Z. Carson also brought out a good point that if the new system were installed in his office all at once it would cost the taxpayers plenty of money. Present forms and books would be useless and have to be cast aside at a great loss.

We heard some time ago that a new system was in prospect with the idea of saving taxpayers money but if the present method of installing is adopted, the taxpayers will pay and pay plenty.

We believe with county attorney M. R. McDonald that the whole idea is unconstitutional, there is no law to support it and it tends to create a monopoly.

A COUNTY HOSPITAL

We have heard suggestions in some quarters that a county hospital be built and that now is the time to do it with so much government money available. We have not gone into the idea very thoroughly but on the surface it would appear to have considerable merit.

Hardee county is having plans prepared for a hospital to be built at Zolfo and the same plan might be carried out in Highlands county. Suitable ground would be donated, it is understood and there might be other contributions both of cash and materials. Let's have some discussion of the proposition and see what can be worked out.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

This is the time of year when, if I had a mind to lose, I'd sure lose it. If I could just press a button or rub a lamp or something, and wish myself triplets, I'd sure do it.

Here I am all snarled up and back-bashed with the Florida Fair and at the same time I'm supposed to cook up a Press Breakfast, assist George Hays with the doggone queen contest, dish up a radio talk for the National Farm and Home program at the Florida Orange Festival and on top of all that, write this column.

Then to cap the climax, Phil Barney drops in the office and asks if I'm behaving myself. Why I won't even had time to think about sin, much less get mixed up with it, but just wait until these mad festivities are over and then try and find me.

Speakin' of the Florida Fair, the 1935 show is the one Radio crooners are all singin' about, "It's the TOP." Each year I think sure we've reached the limit and just couldn't produce a better one. Then Manager Strieder starts chawin' his cigar and askin' me plans and by the time another year rolls around we've got another Fair that is better and bigger and no foolin'.

For one thing they have been workin' on the grounds ever since last year and they've never looked as well as they do right now. All the new exposition buildings have been completed. For the past few weeks painters have been runnin' hog-wild all over the place until they've got it lookin' like Joseph's coat. The new entrance is a wow. It makes the Arc de Triomphe look like a last year's pool post.

The famous Florida Exhibit from the Century of Progress has been moved to Tampa and when they get through settin' it up, I'm telling you it will look better than it did in Chicago.

Another feature you can't afford to miss this year are the wonderful foreign exhibits. Mrs. Dorothy Goddard went down to Central and South America last summer and vamped about half of the Latin American Countries into sending exhibits to Tampa and you ought to see the stuff they have here.

I was afraid when that cold snap hit us that the counties would have a tough time gettin' up their displays but these county agents and exhibitors are wizards and when they get through with their marvelous exhibits of fruit and vegetables you'll swear we haven't had a freeze in Florida for fifty years.

The grandstand and biplane acts are better this year than ever. For one thing they've duplicated the famous fireworks program that was used at the Century of Progress. There will be two days of automobile racing, a great night pageant and about 40 headline acts.

Every foot of space in the twenty exposition buildings has been taken. The way commercial exhibitors are spending money on their booths makes one wonder what has happened to the so-called depression. Scenic artists, painters, carpenters and decorators are crawling over each other for jobs and the displays they're preparing are knockouts.

They tell me the Gasparilla Parade this year will be by far the best ever staged. In spite of the fact that it costs plenty of Jack to belong to the Krewes, the membership has been full for weeks and a lot of folks have been runnin' around in circles and chewin' their nails because they couldn't get in.

The Pirates are just naturally gonna tear off the lid this year. Their pet is full of gold and when they capture the city on February 4, they'll do it in first class business style.

Whatever you do, don't miss the 1935 Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival - America's greatest Mid-winter show.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

Irving S. Florsheim, President of the Florsheim Shoe Company, says:

"It has always been our conviction that we should tell the public of the outstanding merit of our merchandise through advertising. To do otherwise is to deny a business one of the strongest and surest selling forces. Experience has proven, beyond doubt, the wisdom of publicizing products that people may know of them and their value and worth.

"In the process of advertising, the newspaper has been an invaluable ally of business. As a purveyor of news, local, national and international, the leading newspapers lend themselves ideally as a carrier of advertising, the news of products and merchandise.

"Important also in a valuation of newspaper advertising is the fact that the press circulates deeply into the community it serves. In each issue of a paper are items so varied in appeal that everyone can find something of interest. As a result, everyone, to all practical purposes, reads a paper and, consequently, is exposed to the advertising published in it.

"No institution can afford to ignore its operating costs, of which advertising is one. To find that fine distinction between extravagance and unwise economy is no small responsibility. It is worthy of more than passing comment, therefore, to realize that newspaper advertising, by and large, is one of the most economical of mediums.

"My words should not be construed as a defense of newspapers or newspaper advertising. Neither needs defense - neither is on trial. Instead, I am only expressing our opinion of both and our policy in regard to them.

"We and our thousands of dealers are large users of newspaper space. For years we both have consistently told the public of the quality and features of our merchandise, believing that advertising in the press, backed by a product that lives up to every claim made for it and that is painstakingly manufactured and fairly priced, is a substantial factor in building our business to the position of the largest manufacturer in the world making fine shoes exclusively."

LIFT THE SMOKE SCREEN

For the past six or seven years, there has been a political campaign waged against the electric power industry, the like of which has never been witnessed in this country because never before has there been organized political effort backed by public funds to apply the socialistic theory to any branch of American industry.

Both the Republican and Democratic Socialists have used the speculative era as the excuse for attacking this privately owned industry, claiming that it was over-capitalized and, therefore, overcharging the people. Seizing upon this as an opportunity, they have claimed that the only remedy was government ownership. During the period of depression and hard times, they have rung the changes on this situation and made great headway in destroying the investments and earnings on savings of millions of American citizens.

The fact that electric power is the most important thing they can talk about, in the hard-pressed family budget, has been sidetracked. It has been good political thunder to rave about an alleged "power trust." It has also been good politics to hide the point that if the home owner were given his electric light and power for nothing, the saving would not feed on house a hungry family for 24 hours. In other words, the power issue has been magnified out of all proportion to its importance and has been a smoke screen to divert attention from much more important subjects.

The crusade against power has been the most vicious and unrelenting that any industry has ever experienced. In fact, the forces behind it have carried their campaign to such an extent that they are at least frightening other business. They are awakening millions of investors in the power industry to the fact that their savings of a lifetime are in jeopardy and that the earnings from these savings, on which they have been depending for part of their living, are being wiped out, with great loss to themselves as well as to the public treasuries.

Other industries begin to see that if the power industry is socialized by government subsidy through the use of tax funds, it is only a question of time when a similar attack will be made upon them. The result seems to be an awakening on the part of reasonable-minded political leaders, as well as industrial leaders.

Press dispatches in the newspapers of recent date have reported that President Roosevelt has been meeting with utility executives to promote amity between the industry and the Administration with a lower scale as one of the objectives of the deliberations. The President is reported as considering the subject of power rates to be largely a question of facts, and that facts relate to the amount of capital that is necessary to procure for the generation of electricity, its transmission and distribution; that when it is possible to agree on these figures it will be a simple thing to see what rates should be charged to provide reasonable net earnings on invested capital. It is a hopeful sign that the President and industrial leaders are discussing this situation.

In getting the true facts on public and private operation, it is absolutely essential that politics be eliminated from the picture.

Millions of investors whose savings are now in jeopardy, will devoutly hope that the nation can be given all the facts, not only about their own companies, but about the handicaps that are granted tax-exempt government-financed projects which compete with the highly-taxed private enterprise. SATTERFIELD
DANCE DOWN S.S.

Powell and Keeler In "Flirtation Walk" At Avon Sun-Moon.

After all the years that the Luau has eluded the cameras, Hollywood has caught up with it. Bobby Connolly, conscripted from the New York stage after a score of successes as a dance director, is responsible for the filming of the Hawaiian traditional ceremonial dance.

The Luau is a Hawaiian feast in honor of a native deity who is the goddess of love. In "Flirtation Walk," the First National production at the Avon Theatre, Sunday and Monday, is an authentic reproduction of the feast of love, with Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler watching it from the hills above a beautiful lagoon.

The rhythm of the dance is set by gourd drums and the "steps" are not steps at all, but a series of postures, undulations and graceful postures. The strange routine of this ceremony has been handed down to a chosen few of each new generation for centuries. Only the natives seem able to master its intricate forms.

Sixty dancers were imported by Connolly for this unusual spectacle. In some of its mass formations, Bobby used about forty trained specialty dancers who worked for him in Broadway musicals.

In "Flirtation Walk," the dance is given in a special set that required the entire space of the largest stage on the First National lot. Here a coconut grove was built, against a background of overhanging rocks that edge a beautiful lagoon.

The lagoon was large enough to accommodate a fleet of Kanaka Torch or fishing smacks.

This kind of fishing is common only in the islands of the Pacific archipelago. The fishermen, stripped to the waist, carry tanks on their backs and from these, curve the long torches, fed by the oil from the tanks. The flickering illumination is sufficient for the

A membership of the association consists of citrus growers who borrowed from the association last year for production purposes, each borrower having been required to take out Class B stock in the amount of $5 for each $100 or fraction thereof borrowed. The Class B stock of this association, of One 31st was valued at $5.47.

The Bartow Citrus Production Credit Association makes loans for agricultural purposes. The interest is 6 percent per year at present, payable when the loan matures; interest being charged only for the time the money is used. Members of the association expect the volume of business to be greatly increased this year as the growers become better acquainted with the service it offers.

form nocturnally. Fulfies has played great ball in the major leagues, and even though he slumped somewhat last year, it is hard to see how he was allowed to get away from the big show. A speed merchant, Chuck can also shellack the apple. He is counted upon to fill the shoes of Terry Moore in centerfield for the Flock in great style.

As a climax to the great deeds of the past few weeks, the Birds announced a few days ago, the purchase for an unannounced sum of cash, from the Chicago Cubs of first-baseman Don Hurst, who, until cut down by illness two years ago, was one of the greatest custodians of the initial sack the major leagues.

Hurst, a left-handed hitter and thrower, should be just what the doctor ordered, and while he probably won't like the demotion to the minor leagues very much, he'll take the shift to Columbus more gracefully than he would to almost any other team.

Don is a former Ohio State student, and when he played on the freshman football and baseball squads at the Buckeye institution some 12 years ago, his coach was none other than George Trautman, who will now be his prey. In fact, Trautman had much to do with Hurst getting his start in professional baseball.

Things have been quiet, basically speaking, for the past week in Columbus, mainly due to the fact that Trautman has been engaged on the committee which is staging the inaugural ball for Ohio's new governor, Martin L. Davey, in the next few days. He has promised more interesting developments as soon as all of that fold-de-roll is out of the way.

Musical Program At Congregational

The music will be given a prominent place in the morning service at the Congregational church Sunday at 11 o'clock, with a full choir leading. The sermon theme will be "A sense of what is vital." You are asked to bring your friends with you to Sunday school at 9:45, in cooperation with the effort throughout the community to increase the influence and benefit of Bible study. Evening service at 7:30.

PATTERN 9195

Little Miss Molly here can hardly wait to see outside to show her brother Tommy that even though she is "only a girl," she has pockets, too. And she thinks they're nice, too. She's also more than proud of the way she manages to dress herself in this pretty blumner frock. Three front buttons to fasten—there, it's all done! And her mother likes those cunning puffed sleeves and the long inverted pleat, back and front. For those who prefer them, simple cap sleeves like those in the smaller sizes may be made by omitting the lower part of the sleeve.

Pattern 9195 may be ordered only in sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 6 requires 2 1/2 yards 38 inch fabric. Send FIFTY CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STREET, NUMBER and SIZE. Complete, diagrammed Sew Chart included in your order. Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth Street, New York, N. Y.

NEWS and VIEWS ON ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

Ask a dozen economists this question: "How great a debt can the federal credit stand?" The chances are that you will get a dozen different and opposed answers.

Not so many years ago financial authorities fearfully forecast that the national debt would soon reach the $10,000,000,000 mark, and that this would mean the beginning of a collapse in the nation's credit. Today the debt has passed $30,000,000,000, and some authorities believe that it will reach $50,000,000,000 before many more years have passed. Yet little fear is now expressed as to solvency of our government. Treasury officials say that $50,000,000,000 would not be an excessive debt for so rich a country.

The President's budget message was predicated upon the theory that it will be possible to achieve a smaller deficit in the 1935 fiscal year than in the 1934. Federal bookkeeping today is done under a sort of dual system. One set of books takes care of the regular budget. Another involves emergency expenditures which, in the view of the Administration, are much like war expenditures, so cannot be carried on the books as normal spending. This system has led to considerable confusion of the public which has been on the one hand, that the government is cutting costs, while on the other hand, it sees the deficit and taxes constantly rising.

Estimated receipts for the 1935 fiscal year regular budget total $3,422,000,000—an advance of $290,000,000 over 1934. Estimated expenses are $3,202,000,000 a rise of $551,000,000. This leaves an encouraging estimated surplus, so far as regular income and spending is concerned, of $120,000,000. The next step, however, concerns the emergency budget. The Administration plans to spend some $1,032,000,000 for extraordinary purposes, as opposed to an income of $570,000,000 which will come from various AAA activities. This leaves a deficit of $4,612,000,000.

As a result, total expenditures for "regular" and "extraordinary" budgets will be $7,834,000,000, a drop of $124,000,000 from 1934. Total receipts from all sources will be $3,992,000,000, a rise of $280,000,000 from the preceding fiscal year. The total net deficit will thus be $3,892,000,000 ($404,000,000 less than the 1934 deficit) which must be added to the soaring national debt, bringing it close to the $35,000,000,000 mark.

There is the budget situation in a nut shell. Great as the deficit is, the President and many financial experts say it is "well within the nation's resources." It remains a fact, however, that the national debt must eventually be paid—and that in the meantime hundreds of millions a year must be spent for interest. All of this money has to be raised by taxation, and the greater the debt, the greater the burden on industry—and the less money it has for other purposes. Nineteen-thirty-six interest expenditures, for example, will come to the neat sum of $875,000,000, a jump of $40,000,000 over the 1935 fiscal year.

To get away from the economic aspects of the budget one of its most interesting phases is the proposed expenditure of $900,000,000 for national defense. If Congress authorizes this expenditure, as it probably will, 1936 will witness the greatest "peace-time war expenses" in the nation's history. The President announced these figures without comment—it is obvious, however, that they are principally made necessary by Japan's absorption of the $600,000,000.

Two years from now, when the treaty expires, Japan will start to build naval craft on a grand scale, and the United States must keep up with her. At the present time, our naval strength is well below our treaty limit. This tonnage deficit will be made up, for the most part, within the next two years.

Business is quiet since the holiday lull and reports are neither encouraging nor discouraging. There have been a few small advances in various lines, while no industry has fallen back. Steel output recently registered a gain, with the outlook good for increased demand. Trade has been improving, and a late week showed a 16 percent advance in bank deposits outside of New York City. Electric Power shows a slight gain and trends steadily upward. Business activity as a whole is getting better.

Big industries, in company with government, are anxiously awaiting the Supreme Court's decision on the gold forfeiture cases, which will be handed down early in February. If the court decides that holders of gold bonds and gold certificates must be paid on the basis of the old 100-cent dollar, as specified in the bonds held by individuals who loaned their money to the government and many industries, instead of the present 59.34 cent, the nation's public and private debts will show a paper rise of more than $60,000,000,000. Attitude of the Justices, during the argument of the cases, frankly worried Administration officials.

CAPT. SALISBURY GIVES LECTURE WEDNESDAY

Noted Explorer Talks On Life Of Cannibals

Lee—Lee

All classes of the High School in Avon Park, Fla., were in the Edward Salisbury lecture hall on Wednesday morning to hear a talk about the life of the cannibals of the South Sea Islands. Capt. Salisbury, who has sailed around the world seven times during his life and is the only living man who has gone through these places successfully, Capt. Salisbury was born in Nebraska in 1865, which makes him seventy years old. He lived when the Indians were still wild and were very good. There were five other boys besides him and each had to work for his food. He had to go barefooted all summer of the year and his clothing was poor. He possessed his first pair of shoes when he was twelve years of age. Capt. Salisbury had an uncle who owned a large store. One day his uncle came to see him and he asked to take one of the boys with him on this trip. It was decided that Edward was to go. This was the first time that a pair of shoes and first suit of clothes.

Some of the places they visited were India, Australia, and Europe. They finished their voyage in nineteen months. When he came back he saw what a great opportunity the Americans had over other countries. He decided to go to school. He finished the little school near his home and then went to Okeechobee and worked his way through high school. All this time Edward's ambition was to be a Captain in the United States Navy, and when he finished high school with good marks this was discussed with the higher officials of the Union and later in his life he succeeded in being a Captain.

The experiences Capt. Salisbury told were very interesting and exciting. He left the U. S. and went to Panama and then on to the South Sea Islands. He said there were many tribes of natives in these islands and the characteristics of one or more of them were: black, blue, brown or gray eyes and the features were like the features of the cannibals he had seen.

These tribes, he said, live off the products of the islands, the main one being breadfruit. These breadfruit trees are important because they serve as food and clothing. They found with instruments, they have, and make a cloth which is called "tappa cloth." This cloth is made of the inner bark of the tree and is very strong and tough. He said that they were mostly natives and when he and his crew arrived they gave them cloth of the Americans and some of the natives died because of the heat.

Another interesting characteristic of this certain tribe, Capt. Salisbury said, was that they can die whenever they wish. He told of a native boy about 18 when they got to work for them and he wanted to go with them and he sent to let him. The boy asked his mother only to come back with a long face. Capt. Salisbury asked the mother of the mother and he said that his mother was going to die the day after he sailed and he wanted to stay and help out in the good food which was to help carry out the occasion. Capt. Salisbury, being interested in seeing this woman die, of course, she died. There was much celebration and when time came for the woman to die she died.

Thoughts while thinking—Wonder if our history exams will be exceedingly hard—To hear the students yell about it you'd think perhaps there was a murder committed—Wonder if Henna will have to guard in our Okeechobee game? You should see the "Chokee" forward play, and it takes a girl like Henna to keep her thinking! I heard something about the Juniors giving "Huckleberry" and not their class play this year. I'm wondering about this, Juniors—Joe Patterson seems to be well equipped trying to keep his book spinning around on top of his pencil—Is this all you have to do, Joe? I'd surely like to know who were the critics about our school news and published it in the "Herald." I have my head, Critic, and will you enlighten me by telling me how to improve our column? Typing seems to be getting harder and harder, and we can get a copy without an error—It's funny by thinking that each student will be quite successful on their exams.

Capt. Salisbury said that there were many excellent divers who were in the water and he went down 100 to 150 feet in three and a half to four minutes.

He told us of the Cannibal tribe found in these islands and he said that the Cannibals spoke several languages and had several odd customs. He said that he was asked if he had a gun he was killed but if he didn't his life was spared. When he came into this tribe of cannibals he smelled a sweet smelling odor and knew that they were cooking someone. He said that he was the chef and his cousin who had been wounded and they thought he would die so they killed and ate him. Captain Salisbury said that he was asked to do this and he replied, "Why not? He tastes like anyone else!"

He said that he was surprised to find that the cannibals had given him his trinkets away. He discovered that he shouldn't have done this for the Big Chief came and after all they just had to give him the trinkets away. Capt. Salisbury told us of "Gow" and that he was the only white man

This week I have a suggestion to offer to the high school group. It is to go through the same procedure week in, and week out with nothing to look forward to. We all sincerely enjoy having a speaker every now and then, of course, but I think if each class could arrange a short chapel program about once a month it would be greatly appreciated by all, and would give everyone something to look forward to. I'm sure the Juniors are willing to do their part, and after all, this school has a lot of hidden talent. I think each of us should have a chance to demonstrate that talent which will be enjoyed by the group who sees by the program.

Next week I would like to get some commits on this subject from each group.

How about these basketball games? That seems to be just about the biggest rage about the school especially this week. It seems we are all interested, and the Juniors are certainly "letting on you—Gang."

This week seems to be getting most all the High School students. All I can say in the halls are the saddened, wistful looks of most all the students. Really it is quite funny, but of course, we can't understand it is the week of exams. That has had lots to do with most of all. I certainly hope every body passes everything. Come on, pals, let's get that old look off, and freshen up with the usual old smile that looks so very much becoming than those morose looks. Let the teachers know "we can take it."

Oh, that makes me think, I am supposed to have my nose in a shorthand book right now! Excuse me, folks, I must close this column now.

7-A NEWS

Well, readers, exams are almost here. Some of us are wearing our hearts in our toes. With I could get out of the lucky clasp who get out of everything.

So far our class has beaten the other classes in our Sunday school attendance. We have 75% the first time and 81% last Sunday; but we have two more Sundays yet. So we all of us in Miss Pearson's room get the highest.

who had made friends with him. He told us of Gow's fight for his daughter and that he consented for Capt. Salisbury to go with him because he thought that his moving picture camera was so important. When Gow came he killed all the savages but the boys between 6 and 12 whom he took back with him. He carried the bodies back of the ones who were killed and dedicated it to his God. The boys he used to kill when he saw evil signs.

There were many other things that Capt. Salisbury said and did. He said that he was the only white man

Editorial

Come, now one and all, and get up your school spirit for you'll surely need it for the basketball games. Don't fail to come and see the games and fall to yell for dear old Avon Park High. We'll begin to have cheer practice Tuesday morning in chapel, and all are invited to come down and help us. Get up your old school enthusiasms, and make your voices ring once more. You might not realize it, but this helps you players, but if you'll talk with one, you'll know. You'll have never yelled before, and fight for your team so that Avon High will come out victorious.

8-A NEWS

Goodness! This is examination week! Don't you pity us? Almost one half of our class will have to take all of their examinations because of their department grades. We are trying to quit talking so much.

Our attendance has been rather bad for the last month or two. We have selected new captains for play periods. The new captains are: first Biggie and Hattie Lee Delaney. We have decided upon names for the two top line Biggie has 2 points and Hattie Lee has one point. Quite a few of us have been taking tumblers during our play periods. Margaret Townsend sprained her foot and quite a few of us have skinned knees and elbows.

Isn't Betty Sherman getting industrious lately? She sits and crochets for forty-five minutes during our study hall periods. We wonder what she is making.

We are all looking forward for the basketball games. When will they be played? The next game is between the Red and White. We are trying to get everyone in our room to go to Sunday school. The first week we had fifty-one people in our room. The second week we had fifty-two per cent to go.

We are all planning to a nice time Friday night. It will be a holiday because we will have no examinations on that day.

After examinations, most of us are planning to go to Tampa to the Fair. Here's hoping that we all can go.

Supreme Court Rules on Local Option Elections

Tallahassee, Jan. 24 (Special)—With the Supreme Court's decision Saturday afternoon that local option liquor laws held Nov. 6th were legal and that Florida does have five governing the sale of liquor, Comptroller J. M. Lee dispatched copies of the Court's opinion to all Tax Collectors and is instructing them to collect and remit the license.

"The few who have paid their licenses should be protected against the sale of liquor without a license," he stated.

Copies of the opinion were rushed to Collectors so that all had it on their desks Monday morning.

"The highest Court in the State has spoken in plain English," the Comptroller stated. "It has told us we have the same liquor laws as we had December 1, 1919, with such additional wet territory as was voted Nov. 6, 1934. It is up to the County Officials to collect the license or close the dealers and so it promptly."

Copies were also sent the Sheriffs and Clerks following a conference with Governor Sholtz, who stated: "Action and cooperation on the part of every official of the State and Counties will be expected in administering this law."

"President Vanishes" Extra Gives Avon Park Scare Tuesday

Telephone jangled and police and editors were busy with questions Tuesday when Manager H. M. Johnson of the Avon Theatre distributed a tawdry extra of "The President Vanishes," a motion picture coming to the Avon Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

So sensational and realistic was the extra that local residents became thoroughly alarmed and rushed home to listen in on radios and make further inquiries, anxious for more news before the hoax was discovered.

The woman's guild of the Episcopal church are sponsoring the local showings of this picture which is said to be the most sensational picture ever produced. The picture was produced by Walter Wanger who produced "Gabriel Over the White House" a year or so ago. It is released by Paramount Pictures.

Public Libraries Aid Greatly In Knowing Florida

In many Florida public libraries there is a section devoted to "Floridians." Statistical material and those who devote on matters historical never tire of digging deeply into these books and pamphlets of Florida life, and it's never tires to cross verbal swords with half a dozen or so persons in any Florida town, about the glories and advantages of the Peninsula State, unless you know "your Florida."

Sensational business men and women often doubt the value of research of this character until they come face to face with an inquiring tourist or business prospector. These inquiring souls will not be put off with half an answer, and may a half-truth about Florida, however sincerely advanced, has driven several persons and favored section of the Union, and to Florida's disadvantage.

It was one of the latter fact that the Florida State Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with local organizations throughout the state several years ago developed what might be called a "week of inquiry."

"Know Florida Better Week," therefore, has been instrumental in doing a vast amount of good, and has brought many new residents to the state and, certainly, many millions of dollars, simply because the occasion has brought into being more "Florida salesmen" armed with facts.

This year the "Know Florida Better Week" will be celebrated during the week of February 17-23, and associated with it will be another celebration of equal importance, that of "Outdoor Florida Week," the latter a movement fostered by the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

Schools, commercial-civic organizations, luncheon clubs, women's clubs and various Florida groups will, this year, again unite in a common effort to learn more of their state and, at the same time enjoy more of its outdoor blessings.

Flaming Arrow Council Boy Scouts Elected Officers

Dr. James R. Goulware, Jr., Lakeland, was elected president of the Flaming Arrow Council, Boy Scouts of America, at the annual meeting of the organization held Thursday night (last week) at Pippin Hall, Lakeland.

Fifty-nine men were present at this meeting, representing the following communities: Lakeland, Avon Park, Sebring, Lake Alfred, Wauchula, Sebring, Lake Alfred, Lake Hamilton, Winter Haven and Lake Wales. The purpose of this meeting was to hear the reports of the past year and make plans for 1935. The other officers elected for the Flaming Arrow Council are as follows: Vice president, Judge Chester Wiggins, vice president, W. J. Barker, vice president, Col. L. Grady Barker, treasurer, John R. Wright, National Scout representative, Burdett Loomis, Scout commissioner, Richard M. Naylor, and the district chairman, elected Avon Park, E. G. Todd, Winter Haven, Powell Ott, Bartow, W. F. Eger, Wauchula, Ed Posey, Lake Wales, C. H. Matthews, Lennard Caldwell, and Frostproof, Dr. H. B. Coates.

The meeting was presided over by J. Allen Barnett, Council President. Major William Steig made a talk and discussed the plans for participation in the January 21-23, 1935, in Washington, August 21-30, 1935.

Frank Dix discussed the annual Region Convention to be held in Miami on January 21-23, 1935. The Scoutmaster's Key, and award given for five years Scoutmaster's Key, was presented to Richard M. Naylor by Reverend Charles A. Raymond, Chairman of the Court of Honor.

The Weatherman Guessed Wrong

The weatherman guessed wrong, for which everyone is thankful. The freezing weather predicted for Wednesday and Thursday nights failed to materialize although it did get a little crisper around the edges.

There was a little frost on the roofs and grass in some exposed places but no damage has been reported to either truck crops or citrus. Growers took precautions and were ready to fire their groves and tender crops and vegetables were protected as much as possible. Garden lovers covered their flowers and ornamental shrubbery, taking no chances.

Governor Sholtz Now In Washington

Tallahassee, Jan. 24.—(FNS)—Governor Dave Sholtz is spending this week in Washington on official business. One of his main objects is to secure federal funds for a state building program believed to approximate $10,000,000. This sum would finance an expansion program designed to meet the needs of the state for the next 10 years.

The governor has been in constant touch with the Public Works Administration, the FEPA Administration, the President, and other government agencies for many months.

Florida's constitution prohibits the lending of money and the Governor's mission in Washington is believed to be largely the negotiation of ways and means whereby the state can participate in the public buildings program without violating the letter or spirit of the law.

While in Washington Governor Sholtz will endeavor to arrange for the President to receive three Spanish senators from Tampa in connection with Tampa's Golden Jubilee of the cigar industry in mid-February.

Know Florida Better Week To Aid Citizens And Visitors Alike

"If Florida were better known to her citizens, if the healthful value of the Peninsula State's outdoor life were appreciated as much locally as it is by the hundreds of thousands of visitors who annually join in the nation's parade to Florida there would be more civic unity in this state," according to Dr. W. A. Davidson, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

"This is a statement of fact and I say it without trying to start a controversy," continued Dr. Davidson.

"An opportunity for all of us to get better acquainted with our state and to know more of the advantages of her outdoor life is given us annually by scores of commercial and civic groups. If we should participate in some way or other in this movement, and should bear in mind that each of us can make a definite contribution to the state's well-being by so doing."

Dr. Davidson was referring to the "Know Florida Better Week" which is to be celebrated generally throughout the state during the week of February 17-23, inclusive. "Outdoor Florida Week" is "part and parcel" of the event, the two movements this year having been merged into Florida's calendar by agreement on the part of their sponsors, Florida State Chamber of Commerce and the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs.

Both organizations are now state-wide in their plans to whip up a view of getting one hundred percent cooperation on the part of local groups throughout the state, during the designated week.

A number of Avon Park civic groups are expected to put on "Know Florida Better" and "Outdoor Florida Week" programs during the designated week.

Dr. Perry Named On Pulp From Southern Pines For Newspapers

Dr. D. G. Perry, local aviation enthusiast, has been named vice chairman for this community of the State Aviation Coordinating Committee. This body has been formed to encourage flying and is engaged in educational work including the formation of model airplane clubs.

John L. Rhodes, aviation field inspector with the state road department, was in Avon Park last week and conferred with Dr. Perry and the local aviation enthusiasts. He will be one of the finest in the state. He also stated that all towns and villages with a post office will be marked for air traffic, either on some suitable roof or on the streets.

Hawk Delivers Fish To Capt. Maynard

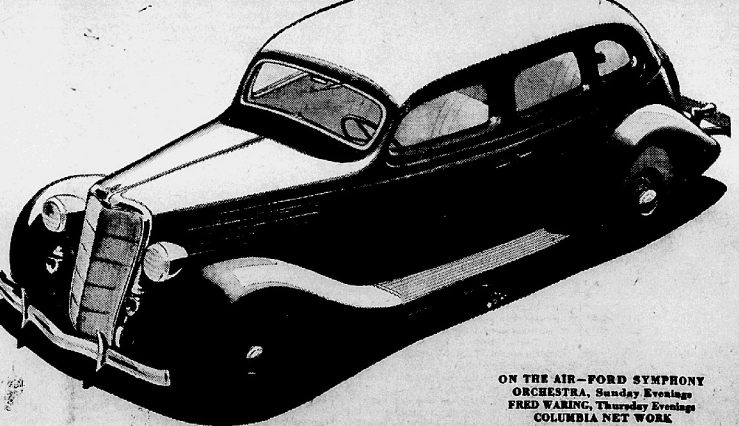

Capt. W. R. Maynard, who operates a dairy near Lake Istokopga, was treated to a nice fish dinner last Monday in a unique way, the fish being delivered by air similar to the feeding of Moses by the ravens. In this instance, however, a fight between a fish hawk and an eagle was responsible for the special delivery of the fish, an eight inch speckled perch. The eagle attacked the hawk as it was flying over Capt. Maynard's home causing it to drop the fish which was still alive when it was picked up by the captain's granddaughters.

Young Democrats of State Organizing

Orlando, Jan. 24.—(FNS)—The Young Democrats of Florida have organized clubs in 51 counties of the state and are fast becoming a factor to be reckoned with in state politics. The organization now has more than 6,000 members. About one-fourth of this number are young women.

A bi-annual meeting of the Young Democratic state organization will be held in Tampa in mid-February. A drive is being conducted to have all counties organized by that time.

V-8 POWER • FORD ECONOMY • AND NOW Comfort Zone Riding

ON THE AIR—FORD SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA, Sunday Evening, FRED WALKER, Thursday Evening, COLUMBIA NET WORK

IT MAKES no difference where you sit in the new Ford V-8. Even back seat passengers enjoy "the comfort of a front seat ride."

It took a major engineering development to make this possible—the Full-floating Springbase with Comfort Zone Seating. Notice how the springs are mounted beyond the axles... how the seats are cradled in the easy-riding zone between the springs. Notice what a difference this makes—in everyone's comfort!

But Comfort Zone Riding is only one reason why you'll want a Ford V-8 in 1935. You'll want it for its V-8 power—for the beauty of its streamlined body and interior appointments—for its new roominess—its new easy-pressure brakes and clutch—its new, larger tires—the safety of its welded, all-steel body and safety glass all around (at no extra cost)!

Low in first cost... more economical to operate than any other Ford ever built... the 1935 Ford V-8 is, at the same time, designed to meet the needs of everyone. It's a new automobile value. See it today.

Careful Training Is Essential In Aircraft Industry

Many thousands of our young men desire employment in the aircraft industry. The importance of organized vocational training for such prospective workers is emphasized in a report by Mr. R. W. Hambrook of the Federal Office of Education. This industry, which in 1933 employed over 5,000 persons in the production and transportation fields as compared with 462 in 1927, operated 526 plants with a value of $12,000,000 in 1929, the peak year of prosperity, as against 128 valued at $1,835,492 in 1927.

The necessity for trained workers in the aircraft industry is readily perceived. Fortunately the industry, since it can absorb only a limited number each year, is in a position to insist upon highly intelligent workmen in both aircraft plants and the operation of planes. To enter the industry an individual must either have been trained and have experience in a type of work common to both the aircraft and another industry, or he must have been trained for specific work in the aircraft industry itself, the report points out.
