

LAKE BYRD LODGE OPENS AS YOUNG WOMAN'S CAMP

Will Be Operated For Eight Weeks Under National Youth Administration

Lake Byrd Lodge opened Wednesday as a camp for unemployed girls between the ages of 16 and 25. This camp is one of three in the state, two white and one colored, and will last for eight weeks. It is the nature of an experiment and if found successful is expected to be made a permanent institution. The camp is part of a national youth movement sponsored by the National Youth Administration. It is financed by the FERA and is under the supervision and jurisdiction of the educational department of the WPA.

Mrs. Mariell Wilson of Jacksonville is the director in charge. Mrs. Wilson was one of two from the state of Florida who represented the General Federation of the Women's Clubs and comprised a national unit in France during the World War. She has been connected with women's projects in Miami under the FERA.

In an interview Wednesday, Mrs. Wilson stressed the fact that it is workers camp for unemployed women, to develop their initiative and assist in rehabilitating themselves as far as possible. Various forms of indirect methods of education will be used in discussion classes of 15 each.

The program to be used was partially outlined by Dean Riley of the University of Florida. Mrs. Wilson said and it is sponsored by W. R. Bridgeman, regional director of the Youth Administration. The subjects offered include: household mathematics, civics, arts and crafts, nature studies, home economics and home and personal hygiene.

Those on the staff of instructors and their subjects are: Mrs. John Dickens, state corresponding secretary of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, in charge of mathematics; Mrs. Dr. McNeill, former member of the staff of the State College for Women, head of education; Mrs. Mitchell, loaned by the Extension Department of the University of Florida, arts and crafts; Miss Peterson, former member of the Extension Department of the University of Florida and a graduate of the University of Indiana, home economics.

While Ann Livingston of Crescent City, music and recreation. Miss Lura Bradshaw of Tallahassee and Gainesville, assistant in Ryan in physical education. Miss Eunice Swartz of Tallahassee and Bowling Green University, Ky., business instructor and secretary.

Miss Marion Jessie Harrison, educational secretary. Mrs. James Stewart is in charge of housing.

"Miss Ellen Shupp, nurse connected with the State Board of Health will have charge of hygiene. Mrs. Wilson was loud in her praise of the location and thought it ideal for the purpose. She also expressed her appreciation of C. H. Walker for his cooperation in donating the building for the camp.

Seek Organization Of Civitan Club For Avon Park

Plans for the formation of a Civitan Club in Avon Park were discussed at a meeting of representatives businessmen at the Jacaranda Hotel Tuesday noon. Frank E. Laubs of Miami, vice president of Civitan International, explained the policy of the club which was organized 15 years ago at Birmingham, Alabama and was the outgrowth of a local war organization. Most of the local clubs are in the south, he said although they are scattered all over the Union. There are no paid organizers and 600 members were added last year and the international convention was held in Miami this year.

There are nine clubs at present in Florida who are pledged to service to the community. New clubs are being organized and Mr. Laubs thought Avon Park a logical place for one of them. Twenty members are required for a charter and the clubs are conducted on similar lines to Rotary but with more liberal attendance and classification requirements.

There were about 12 present at the meeting adjourned to meet again next Tuesday to discuss further plans.

GROWERS WILL STUDY CITRUS EXPERIMENTS

Prof. DeBusek of University of Florida Coming Here October 10

A grower tour of the citrus soil amendment demonstration plots will be held next Thursday morning, October 10th at 9:30 a. m. The tour will start at the Earl Hart grove at Lakemont, after seeing the plots in that grove the growers will go to the A. V. Anderson and Avon Florida Citrus Corporation groves at Avon Park, where additional plots are located. This tour will be conducted by County Agent Louis H. Alsmeyer and Prof. E. P. DeBusek, Extension Citrus Cultivist of the University of Florida.

Work in these demonstration plots has been conducted by these gentlemen in cooperation with the growers during the past three years and present some interesting observations. Materials which were used in the plots that grove the growers of these groves include Ocala limestone, dolomite limestone, ground phosphate rock, colloidal phosphate, and other sources of phosphate. The continued applications of each of the above materials to the respective plots for three successive years should show some interesting results.

At the A. V. Anderson grove growers will also see the grove fertilized with phosphate and the growers during the past three years and present some interesting observations. NEWARK BALL CLUB TO TRAIN IN SEBRING

International League Team Will Arrive Here About March 1

The Sebring chamber of commerce has at last been successful in securing a big league ball team to train in Sebring. The official announcement was made in Newark, N. J., Monday, according to telegrams received there, stating the Newark Bears will train there next spring.

The Bears are owned by Jacob Rupert, owner of the New York Yankees, and have trained in Clearwater for the past two years.

It will be necessary to fence Freeman's Field and build additional grandstands before March 1, when the team is scheduled to arrive here.

Season's tickets for the 19 or more games to be played there during the training season with other leagues training in Florida, can be purchased at the Sebring chamber of commerce or from members of the fire department. J. C. Neen, scout for the Yankees and stars in Sebring several days ago and inspected the local ball park. He expressed himself as being well pleased with it and that he was contemplating additional additions to the facilities the field would be satisfactory.

The Hotel Sebring will be the headquarters for the team which will train here for about six weeks. There will be about 50 people in the party consisting of officials and newspaper men and the players.

It has been reported that the project for the construction of the stand, fence and other additions that are to be made to the field has been put in Washington and construction should start within the next 60 days.

No Large Hydro- Electric Project Planned For Canal

Rumors were current in Avon Park last week that a hydro-electric project is to be built on the cross state canal of southern Florida to supply the whole of south Florida with electrical energy. In order to get the truth of the matter, The Times contacted with Col. C. Broten Somerville, engineer in charge of the construction work, and the following reply was received:

Mr. W. C. Beckett, Engineer, Avon Park Times, Avon Park, Florida. Dear Mr. Beckett: This will acknowledge your letter of September 25, in regard to proposed hydro-electric developments in connection with the Atlantic Gulf Ship Canal.

As presently contemplated, two hydro-electric plants will be installed, one at Silver Springs Run and the other at Blue Springs. Both are expected to develop a total of two thousand horsepower each.

It is probable that practically all of the electrical energy developed will be utilized in the operation of the Canal, such as lighting for houses, administration buildings and shops.

Any rumor such as you have mentioned, which refers to a "hydro-electric project to generate enough power to supply the whole of south Florida," is, of course, utterly without foundation.

Your interest in bringing the report to our attention is very much appreciated.

Yours Very Truly, Brebnon Somerville, Lt. Col., Corps of Engineers, District Engineer.

Candidate WPA WORKERS STRIKE; WANT CHECKS OR FOOD

Several Men Said To Have Been Without Food For 24 Hours

Wednesday afternoon 69 WPA workers at the Sebring airport, 38 of whom stated they had been without food for nearly 24 hours, went to work and presented themselves at the storeroom of FERA surplus foods, demanding their checks or something to eat.

The men have worked over these weeks without pay, their checks being held up in Jacksonville, it has been said. Mayor Crawford called the district office in Jacksonville Wednesday afternoon but the telephone girl in the office stated that no one was in. It is supposed that the employees are desperate and were out listening to bail men returns.

The local relief officials tried to contact the superiors but with very little success. When the men were crowded around the door of the commissary, which is in charge of T. V. Conway, they became disorderly and a man picked up a box of tinners beef and shoved it over the counter to one of the other men who shoved it back and suggested that he "eat it easy," no threats were made and the men stated they did not wish to make trouble, but just wanted to get their checks or food for their families.

The chief store spot with some of the workers is that men who have been assigned to WPA and are receiving groceries and other surplus commodities in excess of the amount that would be paid by the workers with their pay if and when they get it.

Mr. Conway explained to the men that he could not give out the food that he understood Mr. Conway's position and the men did not wish to do anything that would cause him trouble but it was important for their families get something to eat.

It is said that the same conditions have existed elsewhere in the state and that the situation is either inefficiency in the Jacksonville office or elsewhere in the state organization. There are about 50 men employed on the Sebring airport who have also been working for over three weeks without receiving any pay and they quit this morning, requesting their pay.

CITY ATTORNEY REPORTS ON TRIP TO WASHINGTON

Believes Light Plant Project Is Ready For Final Approval

At the city council meeting Tuesday night City Attorney S. C. Pardee reported on his recent trip to Washington, D. C. in the interest of a municipal light and water plant and also commented on the news report in the Tuesday issue of the Tampa "Tribune" that the Avon Park water work and sewer project had been approved. He said the power plant project had been approved also by the different committee it had to pass and now awaited final signature which he thought would be forthcoming soon. He said the only objections raised were as to the time work could be started and if there were sufficient unemployed here to do the work. He added that J. P. Wheeler of Sebring, district manager of the Federal Employment Bureau, had wired Washington there are 800 unemployed registered here and that overcame one objection.

Pardee said the water and sewer projects which are reported approved contain provisions for a lighting plant to supply the lighting of the Mall and other street lights. He predicted considerable saving to the city on fire hydrant and sewer costs.

Mrs. C. N. Ott entered a complaint against the assessment of the stock in her store. She said it is too high when compared with other stores of a similar nature. Council continued this to a special meeting to be held Thursday evening to consider assessment complaints.

A letter from Highlands Post of the American Legion was read asking for a settlement of the taxes on the new Legion home property. The letter stated the American Legion home has been sold and is now on the tax roll and that the

Four Projects Are Reported Approved

Besides the water and sewer projects under WPA reported approved at Washington, City Clerk Francis Shockley reports four projects under WPA have been approved according to advice from Washington. They are the rebuilding of Highlands Avenue, the armory, the airport and the beautification of the airport.

The recreational project for Donaldson Park has been lost some where the city clerk says, but district engineer is being made for this morning from an extended visit with relatives at Columbus, Ind.

Highland Lakes Hotel To Have New Management

Mr. Woodbury has been long associated with southern hospitality through twenty two years of management of the Ridgewood hotel at Daytona Beach, until its destruction by fire two years ago. Mr. Woodbury, in returning to Florida, will be in a familiar field.

Highland Lakes Hotel is maintaining its own eighteen-holes golf course. Its neighbors to Bok Sing Tower and Highland Hammock, both of them wonderful scenic developments, being pointed out to the clientele established by Mr. Woodbury through twenty years of serving winter guests in Florida.

NEW TOMATO VARIETY BEING INTRODUCED

Commercial Growers May Get Seed From County Agent Alsmeyer

The new Glove variety of tomatoes will be tried out in this county this fall and winter. This variety which was recently developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Florida, has superior qualities to several of the varieties now being used. County Agent Alsmeyer stated that he has secured some of this seed and will have some of the plants which he can give to commercial growers to try out in comparison to the variety of tomatoes which they are growing in adjacent plots.

Growers desiring some of these plants should contact him in person. The introduction of the new varieties developed and introduced as above in the past several years has been an important bearing in this county, Mr. Alsmeyer stated. Seed was secured for the Marglobe tomato when it was first released as well as the cotataria interspersed cotataria spectabilis, and the Savanewa copena. The latter variety was introduced last spring and 32 growers tried same under their conditions. Only three have reported that it was not better than other varieties of copena which they were growing and indications point to the planting of a considerable amount of Savanewa copena in Highlands county in 1936.

The county agent states that the new Glove tomato as well as other varieties being tried out will be grown at the county convict camp on the north shore of Bonnet lake.

ROTARIANS HEAR ABOUT NATIONAL PLAN FOR YOUTH

District Official Tells How Youth of America Will Be Helped

An outline of the origin and the plans of the Federal Youth Administration was presented to the Avon Park Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon Wednesday at the Jacaranda Hotel. The speaker was W. C. Sherrill, district representative of the National Youth Administration and who has headquarters of working for the southern section of Florida.

The youth movement started five or six years ago, the speaker said, when it was realized there was an economic crisis among young people. A program was presented to Washington with the result that $50,000,000 was appropriated this year for the work. Youth is up against a blank wall along many lines, and he said many had never held a job in their life. He asked that the young people register at the national re-employment office.

Mr. Sherrill named five objectives of the movement: 1. Aid in education in order to give the youth of America a chance to work out their own salvation.

2. Placing 150,000 youths on work projects of permanent benefit to themselves. The projects will be of recreational and educational types.

3. Placing 150,000 youth in private employment in commercial, professional and governmental fields and not in competition with organized labor. It is the aim to train a new type of man for service in the office, he said.

4. To take care of youth in leisure time activities as an insurance against crime. He cited statistics that it cost the state of Florida $12,000,000 a year to combat crime.

5. To coordinate the work of private, public and civic organizations in aiding young men.

The speaker said there has been some misunderstanding about the functions of the movement and he asserted it is not a youth movement from a political standpoint, similar to ones in European countries.

In enlarging on the first objective, the speaker said 120,000 college youths will be aided to the extent of $15.00 per month for which they will work. This is one thing in every college, he added. Between four and five thousand will be aided in post-graduate work, receiving up to $40 per month. About 120,000 high school students will receive $6.00 per month for lunches and car fares. There will be vocational and educational centers for others in order that they may obtain a good job.

Mr. Sherrill mentioned the camp opening in Lake Byrd Lodge for unemployed women from 16 to 25 years of age. There will be 85 women in the camp and the instruction will run for 15 days. He commented very highly on the cooperation of C. H. Walker in allowing the use of the lodge for the purpose. He said the camp may be permanent if found successful.

The program had been arranged by J. Paul Garber who introduced the speaker. Another interesting feature was a negro quartette whose offerings were well received.

A letter from Rotary International was read and which commended the Avon Park club very highly for their activities and work of the committee. The classification committee of which Col. Chas. R. Head is chairman, came in for special commendation.

Mr. J. B. McDowell, president of the American Fruit Growers, was introduced as a new member. Visitors were G. E. Sebring of Sebring, J. B. McClelland and Willis Cole of Frostproof, F. E. Laubs of Miami, G. L. Ash of Jacksonville and C. H. Walker and W. C. Beckett of Avon Park.

Terse and Timely Thoughts

by Senex.

Backbone Decay: Relief has come to mean something very different from the old days when "the good news was a great relief" or "if you need relief, see the doctor."

Relief now means something different. It has come to mean getting something, yet doing nothing in return. There is any moral good to the donor. There are thousands of doctors on payrolls up here in Washington, many who draw salaries and only go through the motions of paying back to society in worthwhile services. Taking leaves from one side of the street to another is almost highly productive in contrast with the divided forms of duties that permit hundreds to receive pay for doing next to nothing that is valuable and that would be intolerable in a business office.

For instance, a project going through the W. P. A. in one division alone, takes the following journey and ultimately arrives in 21 different files: Control Unit; Visible Index File; Tabulating Machine Unit; Statistical Unit; Project Information Section; and four personal desks.

This is not to be blamed on our humanitarian president but on a desire to make as many jobs as possible about the "relief" level; since to get on relief a man has actually to prove his own pauperism. But good or bad, the relief is working in Highlands county has these people riding on his neck while their own backbones decay.

Moral Laws: An amusing competition is being carried forward by the Washington Herald (and possibly elsewhere in the Hearst string of papers), entitled, "There Ought to be a Law." All sorts of humorous suggestions are being made. Seriously, "there ought to be a law" against so many laws. We are suffocated with tens of thousands, and young lawyers are themselves almost ruined by getting a working library. It is not an original slogan but "Fewer laws and better laws" might properly be the demand of the people living in Highlands county.

Serious Conditions: In the Gulf States there were on September 3rd of this year 31,500,000 acres that had not been able to bear and pay taxes for three or more years preceding 1934. This means that over 45,000 square miles of land not yet belong to the state nor yet to a second purchaser but lie useless and unproductive, chiefly because the system of taxation against the land prior to the harvesting of a lumber crop compelled the owner to make a clean sweep, even down to the stump, to make no more than a 2x4. One mill that I knew in Florida had rigged up special machinery to handle such spoiled stuff and boasted of it. There are poor systems of taxation in many states. All of them should be directed at making it easy to hold the land down on our property—a property stake makes for an enduring state.

Ship Cannon: Speaking of Florida reminds me that under the guise of a public good a cross-section canal in that State has been authorized that will cost nearly $100,000,000. The man who sat on a limb and sawed it off under him, the canal is a classical example of unnecessary risk. The greatest single national gift to south Florida is arid water flowing southward underground in various limestone strata. The proposed canal is an unwise venture unless or until a boring to point 50 feet below sea-level is made at practically every fifty feet on the entire route across the state. The reason is this: porous limestone underlies much of Florida; through that limestone are forever flowing great and little streams coming from above the Georgia line and carrying water in limestone solution; all over Florida are sinks and circular lakes that have arisen from the collapse of the weakened limestone roof. Silver Springs, near the line of the projected canal is estimated to carry away several hundred tons of limestone in solution every day. Consequently, there is no safety in constructing such a canal until all the underground streams are shown to be below a danger line for the next fifty years. Two results may be anticipated from such streams if penetrated by the canal: an upward rush of water, robbing wells farther south, or a downward rush of salt water by reason of the canal bottom dropping out. I know Brisbane raises the canal, but he does not know Florida underground.

Think It Over: I have from time to time in the past touched rather heavily on other men's convictions. Now let me give one of my own. The greatest historic benefit that can be conferred on future generations by this generation would be to combine the discoveries in the non-corrodible alloys, in sheet form, with the advances in electrochemical photography, so as to preserve documents, formulas, maps, charts, etc., in a condition that would not be changed for 1,000 years at least. Nearly all our knowledge of the things of 2,000 years ago is legendary. No newspaper of the present day is good for one hundred years except possibly the linen edition of the New York Times. No archival resources can generate the knowledge of today and past knowledge fresh and get-at-able by the keen intellects of 1935. It can be done. We merely stagger in the presence of their thanks but we know how we should feel if we knew by actual records the lost arts of the past, and the words of statesmen, what and where and when that a good reporter goes out to get.

Mania of Greatness: "Mein Fuehrer" is our gate to immortality. He is a man who has lived before 800,000 people in Nurnberg, September 14th. These words of adulation for Hitler would be the young men of the Highlands county stop and look and listen, as if they were at a dangerous crossing. Dictators are endangering the world.

Desperate dictators must drive their nations to desperate ventures in order to divert attention from themselves as mere mortals, fewer than two minutes removed from death at any time. Fortunately few of them die peacefully in bed.

Mussolini, the dictator, thinks he must dare the world, even if he lights a fiery furnace that will destroy races in a conflict of races that cannot be confined to Africa. Behind the Ethiopian issue lies the largest web of relations between races of differing colors. His dream of a new Roman empire must set the Italian cradle on fire with productive war. His must boot the world or the Italian boot will boot him.

Stalin, the living emblem of an entirely new theory of government that allows no private rights, must crush out every individual who resists the collective opinion of a group of rulers who were not set up by the will of the people. He and those of his school invade against all religion and then make a religion of the state. Stalin, the villain, must thrall his worshippers until the heavens are deafened by the screams of devotees, absolutely indifferent to death, like the Hindus who threw themselves under the car of Juggernaut. His power will slip away unless he ever sets before them some new national horizon. Mahomet was like him in raising religious hopes that led to a war of conquest in the name of Allah.

Our American Principles! These recent personal outpourings of a man who has led a war against the people of Highlands county that they should give to us to scrutinize what they really believe and what they are ready to live for. . . die for if necessary.

One hundred and forty-eight years ago a still small voice spoke out from the thunder of human passion had spent themselves on the shores of North America. It said, in effect, in the great document that Madison had so much to do with: "No mortal man of all the billions who have lived and died were born with a divine right to rule alone. We denounce all seizure of power by any mortal in this new country. If we choose to place power in the hands of selected representatives, they are to be our servants and not our masters. Americans cannot be 'subjects' if they are to be self-governing citizens."

Our principal of government is hostile to all dictators, hush and abroad. It can give peace on earth by leaving each man undisturbed in gathering grapes from his own vine and resting beneath the fig-tree of his own simple life, free from grabbing and from being grabbed. Back to that ideal we must go, it seems to me, or we shall differ in name only but not in type from the wild incursions that are setting Europe and Asia and Africa on fire.

It is the people of rural counties not to nature and adding no special favors, nor ruthless snatching from others, who can do most to lift the nation to a higher sense of the real place of things in the world. Happy Animals: Mrs. Mann, author of "Friendly Animals" says "Animals are really happier cared for than they are at large." How she can know what an animal thinks of happiness, if it thinks? "Carry" Mrs. Mann's dictum to its logical conclusion: all animals would be happier caged. Therefore all animals should be caged.

One can be any judge of nature, the best specimens of animal life, those outside of cages. As the law of nature is balance, the law of the human mind is balance, self-reliant and defensive, either by fighting or running away. A glance at the degraded, limping, and the grotesque in zoos, shows the deterioration from zoo.

There are those among us, chiefly the professional group, who believe that all of us would be better off if our lives were managed by superior beings so that we had nice places to sleep, plenty to eat and medical attention.

Life gives the lie to such delusion. Struggle gives strength. Uncertainty prompts invention. Government is alone needed that the game of life be played fairly; but that is a long way from the shallow reasoning that we cannot have it all. The world provides for all of our needs. It means caging us to make us happy. A Nickel or a Dime: Any manufacturer in Highlands county who is considering the introduction to the market of any new industrial product should send 5-cents to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce and ask for a copy of "Market Research, Series No. 6." It will provide him with a check list of all the questions that should be answered before he launches his new business. It means the difference between success and a failure as well as a dream-slip down the ways.

Another nickel will bring him a "Market Research Series No. 7." That gives him a check sheet on what consumers may like or demand.

Assured Roman Belief: Romans believed that the souls of people in the depths of Africa who had no noses, and others without tongues.

THE MENACE OF THE LOBBY

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman, Senate of the Republic

Congress, as this is written, is plunging into a probe of lobbies and their influence upon national legislation.

Not a bad idea—except though it may prove a two-edged sword, slashing at pressure politics from within as well as from without. But whenever it may wound the investigation will serve a worthy purpose if it brings forward the growing evil of rule by organized groups—whether of public officials or of private citizens. For it is through the power of lobbies and of pressure politics that such forces seek to utilize Congress as a lever to loosen the foundations on which rest our American form of government.

The American people must realize that if economic theorists can, by Federal law, prohibit or utterly curtail the organization of business, big and little. . . . If of those who work, by Federal law, control the birth, the rearing, and the governing of all children. . . . If the educational zealots can, by Federal law, control all education and eliminate the private and the church schools and colleges. . . . If the zealots in the arts and crafts and unions can, by Federal law, control the methods, the technique, and the volume of all production.

If every other group devoted to some moral or economic theory can force it on the people through pressure on our national legislature. . . . Then the republican form of government, under which the United States became great and its people free and happy, will be supplanted by a tyranny depriving citizens of liberty of mind, of body and of all that makes life worth living.

Only when the system of pressure politics—from within or without—has been finally broken down, the great body of unorganized, unrepresented American citizens, who constitute the backbone of our nation, come into its own.

Plant Display Man Tours S. Florida

DeLand, Oct. 2.—(FNS)—Foster L. Barnes, who will be master of the display of growing tropical trees, plants and shrubs to be shown on the people through the Pavilion and Exotic Gardens of the Florida Exhibit in Rockefeller Center this winter, is now touring South Florida. He is gathering the finest specimens obtainable and making them ready for shipment to Rockefeller City as soon as the exhibit is opened. He says they are ready for the installation of exhibits.

It will be the first time in the history of even New York that tropical gardens of such extent will have been shown and it should prove an irresistible attraction to the hundreds of thousands from all sections of the country who may visit the crowd of sightseers visiting New York City's greatest show place—Rockefeller Center.

Quint Farrow: Jud Tomkins says he sometimes wishes he were back in the old days, when a man could get a reputation as a second-rate partying in a saloon at a county fair and coming down in pink tights with a parachute.

Washington Paper Features Florida Diorama Exhibits

DeLand, Fla., Oct. 3.—The Washington Star, of Sunday, Sept. 15, devoted a whole page to illustrations and text descriptive of the dioramas which were such a marked feature of Florida's exhibits at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933-34, with a sketch of the career of Charles E. Plastow, the DeLand and Winter Park artist who conceived and executed them. Mention is also made of the fact that Plastow's aid was being sought by the management of Florida National Exhibits in the designing of the ultra dioramas which will feature the Florida show to be staged in Radio City, New York during the coming winter.

Crossed with it which illustrates the Star's full page story, depict the hunting dioramas which attracted so much attention at the Chicago fair, and which portrayed so graphically the commercial fishing industry of the state, the scene being laid at Fort Pierce. Other dioramas shown at the fair, and another studio scene. Plastow, whose dioramas shown at Chicago made him the outstanding delineator of third dimension art in the United States, if not of the world, has been given three months leave of absence by Secretary of the Department of the Interior, in order to make the dioramas which will be featured in the Florida show to be held in Radio City, New York, during the months of December, January and February, as follow-up of the good work begun in Chicago in 1933 and 1934. He is expected to exhibit his studies in DeLand during the coming week. He will bring his entire Department of Interior staff with him.

JUNIORS

Well! Here we are the juniors of '35 and '36 ready for work, and play and anything else that comes our way.

We have twenty-five in our class this year. That is just enough and not too many. We have some that were not here last year and some that have been here all the time but anyway we are all here.

We had a class meeting last week and elected officers, they are: President, J. L. Green, Vice President, Edwin Connell, Secretary, Thelma Perry, Treasurer, Helen Canton, Chairman of entertainment committee, Chester Gibbons, Newspaper reporter, Martha Mae Harris.

I think all of these are just the ones to hold these offices, and we are expecting great things from them.

We will have to watch Chester he might try to entertain us too much and J. L. we are a little afraid about him. He might let being president go to his head. But maybe with our help they will pull through. We hope so anyway.

By the way, we are all trying to get lined up to sing a little in the Glee Club. I am afraid Mr. Roberts won't pick his star pupils from the eleven of us. Because we can't guarantee ourselves to be the best. But anyway if you hear anyone going around making odd noises, don't get excited, because it will only be a junior exercising their vocal cords.

We are studying "The Tempest," now in Literature and really we are so interested in it we would not be surprised much if Ariel came floating in some day or Caliban, but we can get along with only Ariel, because we like them tall, dark and handsome. He may be tall and he may be dark, but he is not handsome.

Well folks, we will try to have something more interesting to tell you next time. Don't be surprised.

FOURTH GRADE

The first meeting of our club was held on September 18th. The following officers were elected: Hetherington, Vice President, Judge Pilcher, Secretary and Patti Rounds, Treasurer.

The President chose Ralph Gerard chairman of the program for our next meeting. The dues were decided to be one penny a week.

As there was no more business, the meeting closed.

The second meeting of our club was held on September 20th. The President called the meeting to order. The treasurer reported 41 cents.

The name of our club was decided to be "Good Citizen Club." The motto was decided to be "Do Your Duty." The colors chosen were Red, White and Blue. The flower for our club was decided to be a rose.

The club agreed to use part of the dues for supplies for the room.

The program was: A song by the grade, a poem by Peggy Joe Smith, a story by Barbara Ann MacLiff, a story by Patti Rounds, a story by Miss Harrell, song, America, Lords Prayer and the flag salute.

This was the end of our meeting.

Girls Athletic Association Meets

The first meeting of the Girl's Athletic Association was held for the purpose of electing officers, the following girls were elected: Bessie Garrett, President, Barbara Betts, Secretary, Blanche McCord, Treasurer.

Swimming has been the main event of this month because of the unhealthily hot weather. Miss Hicks, the coach, has been giving swimming tests for the girls to get them into the water. The report is that over ten have passed their tests and nearly thirty are expected to pass.

The third meeting was held to discuss the ways in which the girls may get their points for the letters. There are twelve different sports that the girls in high school may enter and fourteen for the junior high. Miss Hicks has made the girls very enthusiastic and we are sure this will be the last year for sports the girls have had.

7-A NEWS

Last week we elected officers, Alberta Garrett is reporter, Malcom Cowley, President, Harry Elwell, Vice President, and Felton Causey, Secretary.

We have settled down to our studies at last. We have a study that we didn't have last year. Literature takes the place of reading.

In Grammar school the teachers moved between classes but now we have a total of twenty-three in our rooms, eight girls and fifteen boys. One of the girls in our room moved away and we were sorry to see her move.

Some of the girls have been going to Lake Byrd for the last week or two where Miss Hicks has been coaching their swimming.

Let me tell you that it is not so easy as one may think.

Home Ec

Believe me, we girls in Home Ec will know how to save and spend our money more wisely, since we have been studying budgets for the past two weeks, we have been studying, earning and saving of our family income.

We thoroughly enjoyed Prof. Fairley's talk last Friday morning on expense accounts. We are hoping he will talk to us again soon.

We discussed allowance and while only five girls had them, practically all wish for one. Those of you remember the pretty silver shown at our exhibit, last year will be interested in knowing we have again organized teams in collecting Octagon soap wrappers. The members are Betty Sherman and Macell Reid. If you should have any stray soap wrappers, please notify one of our captains as we are hoping to get now and jobs this year.

Mrs. Wilma Peden is the Senior class sponsor this year. The class is very glad to have Mrs. Peden and will enjoy being with her in school as well as in social activities.

We are sorry that Earl Barwick, a former member of this class, is unable to be with us this year because of illness. He is missed very much by his friends in school. Hoping that he will soon recover and join the class.

Wild Duck Census. Reveals Largest Crop In Six Years

New York, Oct. 3.—The greatest numerical flight of wild ducks in six years estimated to number 40,000,000 birds, is expected to sweep down from their most important nesting areas in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta this Fall, according to results of the first international waterfowl census being compiled by the M. O. R. Game Birds Foundation.

A prolonged drought in the region, which brought forth claims that America's waterfowl population were in danger of "immediate extinction," and which just recently contributed to the proclamation by President Roosevelt of new restrictions on waterfowl hunting has been broken.

The wild ducks are not going to "follow the dodo." This is shown by reports of hundreds of volunteer observers, and supervising Foundation field men, who covered, by foot, automobile and airplane major portions of the prairie states and provinces and the remote Northwest Territories of Canada in the first international waterfowl investigation of its kind.

The aerial duck inventory, in which five airplanes were utilized, encompassed over 12,000 miles of flying, including flights as far north as Great Slave Lake, in the shadow of the Arctic Circle. Hitherto little known nesting areas, comprising thousands of square miles of self plains near the S. M. H. Northwest Territories, practically inaccessible except by the air—were found to be the most productive duck nurseries.

A total of 250,000 wild ducks was estimated to populate one small section of this fertile waterfowl paradise, which represented not more than five per cent of the total area of this isolated region. So remote from civilization are these small plains that in some places still roam the marshy terrain as in pioneer days, according to John C. Huntington, Foundation official, who supervised the aerial census work.

That the drought which parched millions of acres of marshes has been definitely broken is amply revealed in the report of M. B. Barry, Foundation field man supervising the census in Alberta. "At the settlement of Peace River," he states, "our postmen reported a plane was brought down and made fast for the night to a telegraph pole on the flooded main street." Rain-wracked rivers in specially selected section of the provinces were the most serious obstacles encountered in carrying out the field work, started in July and just completed.

The southern portions of the great mid-continental duck nesting areas, which extend from Nebraska north through the Dakotas and Minnesota, were revealed as the least productive of the territory covered in the census. These states, however, once the greatest waterfowl producing areas within the United States, showed a remarkable recovery from the drought.

Minnesota, expected to make the poorest showing, due to widespread drying up of marshes in western portions of the state, has shown a numerical increase in 1935 over 1934. In 1935 there was a numerical increase in total number of breeding ducks, states Wallace E. Granger, of Sturgeon Bay, Wisconsin, who headed the census work in that state.

In South Dakota, according to Chandler Young, of Rapid City, census reports of hundreds of ducks were counted by enumerators in a limited coverage. S. R. Livergood, of Wilton, North Dakota, submitted figures showing a reduction of 57,829 in the state with other census returns still to come.

Seeking not only an actual duck count of Mr. and Mrs. Wild Duck and their families, the census also sought to ascertain reasons for duck losses—hereafter thought to be an important factor in the duck decline. According to hundreds of answers received over 5,000 census forms distributed, crows, which followed the ducks north to their nesting grounds in millions, destroy more of the waterfowl by eating enormous quantities of their eggs than all other natural enemies.

Most serious of all factors responsible for the decline of waterfowl on their nesting areas, were the drying up of water during the successive droughts, supplemented by drainage, agricultural development and the encroachment of civilization. With the breaking of the drought however, thousands of small prairie ponds once again are flooded and the status of North America's waterfowl in their nesting areas, far from bordering upon extinction, is riding an abrupt upswing curve, according to the census.

Co-operating with the Foundation in gathering a vast amount of data were the provincial game authorities, local and provincial, in the United States, state game officials of Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota, United States Forest Service officials, CCC units, the Agricultural Extension Service, wildlife conservation organizations and a scores of other sources participated. The Foundation sponsored the

Cornmeal Mush

Let one quart of milk come to a boil. Have ready, one pint of cornmeal, one teaspoon of salt, thinned with one pint of cold water, and stir into the boiling milk and cook slowly for about one hour. Let it stand over night in a wet bread pan. Dip the slices of mush in flour or egg and crack crumbs. Fry in hot butter.

All-Florida Adv. Campaign Growing

Tallahassee, Fla., Oct. 3.—With more than $60,000 raised in the Governor's All-Florida Advertising campaign, plans were laid at headquarters here to step up drive activities in order to wind up the fund-campaign not later than November 1.

Governor Dave Sholtz, promoter of the state-wide advertising program, pointed out the necessity for mapping an advertising campaign in northern publications early in November if the State was to receive the benefits this season.

In keeping with the original policy of eliminating all promotional expenditure in connection with the drive, it was decided to allow the various district chairman full initiative in conducting campaigns in their various sections.

The state is divided into 21 districts, each territory having two chairmen. These committees will determine the method of handling the fund appeal in their respective areas to reach hotels, real estate operators, transportation companies, banks, other business institutions and individual contributors.

Governor Sholtz announced he would meet with the committee the first week in October at some city

American Invention Probably Will Be Adopted Abroad

It is possible that, within a short time, American tourists in Berlin or Munich will be drinking good German beer put up in cans which are an American invention. Inquiries about the newly invented beer cans which have a lining in them to do the same work as that of a brewer's wooden keg, have been received by the manufacturers of these keg-lined cans from all over the world, including such metropolitan centers as Berlin, London, Paris, Dublin, Amsterdam and Hong Kong.

The use of this can was first introduced in Richmond, Va., only last January, but it is now available in a growing number of communities, including such big centers as Chicago, and is spreading like wild-fire through this country. The demand for it in the places where it is now available far exceeds the supply and it is expected by the first part of next year, beer in these cans will be available practically everywhere, as the product of them by then will have caught up with the demand.

Native Dogs of U. S.

The bureau of animal industry says that in the United States proper three distinct breeds of dogs have been developed—the Boston terrier, American foxhound and the Chesapeake bay dog. Considering North America, a fourth might be added to this list—the Newfoundland breed. The Mexican Chihuahua dog might also be added.

Hobo, Tramp, Bum— They Are Different

Very Distinct Class Lines
Drawn Among These Groups.

To the average man the words hobo, tramp and bum are synonymous terms, used to designate a type of foot-loose, homeless, apocryphal of the genus hobo. They are terms of derogation and opprobrium. Not so! Before calling a hobo a tramp, or either man a bum, be sure you say it with a smile. For there are very distinct class lines drawn among these groups of unskilled and itinerant workers.

A hobo is a hard worker of the migratory type. He is possessed of a keen sense of his own importance and value to the world. He would suffer without his services. The wheat fields of the Southwest, the timberlands in the Northwest, the fruit lands in various parts of the country could not show a profit without the presence of the hobo at strategic moments. To displace him in the economic scheme of things would be to keep on hand well fed and employed the whole year around, thousands of men whose services are only required a few weeks or months a year. Another distinction: The hobo travels on wheels without the ticket office is not always a part of his traveling experience.

The tramp, on the other hand, migrates according to whim or chance. And he walks, always having nowhere in mind to get, he goes there at his leisure. If he works, as he does now and then, it is because of necessity and not through any sense of personal responsibility to society at large. In the mind of the self-respecting hobo, the tramp is distinctly an inferior.

The bum is looked down upon and despised, both by the hobo and tramp. The bum travels nowhere doing nothing and is nobody. He is a parasite of the city, begging, borrowing, stealing, loafing.

Clip this out and paste it in your book of etiquette. You may need it sometimes to save yourself from one of these embarrassing moments, warns the Kitchener-Press.

Indian Summer

Indian summer usually begins some time in October, but it may not begin until November. According to the United States weather bureau it is not a definite period occurring regularly each autumn, and is not based on accurate meteorological data. Indian summer varies greatly in duration. It may occur once or several times during the fall and early winter, or it may not occur at all, and if it does it may last a day or two or several weeks. And in some years there are more than one of these periods of hazy, tranquil days.

Floyd Gibbons ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, Everybody!

"Nearly the Last Round-Up"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

A VAST there, mates! I mean "Hold 'em, cowboy!"

Gosh, I don't know what kind of lingo a sea-cowboy uses, but I know the kind I would have used if I'd been aboard the cattleboat, S. S. Winefredian, in mid-Atlantic, that wild March night with Peter Mullan and 700 head of plunging, terrified cattle.

Pete came so close to going on the Last Round-Up or to Davy Jones' locker that it wasn't funny. Incidentally the S. S. Winefredian has since slipped quietly down the stairs to Davy Jones' locker, so maybe she was just playing a rehearsal for Pete.

Cattleboats, Pete says, are not exactly floating palaces. In fact, they're generally made-over tubs.

The Winefredian was no exception to the rule. Her under-decks were just a mass of cattle stalls with a narrow passage—just wide enough to allow a man to pass—running the length of the ship.

Pete, two other greenhorn cattlemen and an underforeman were squeezed to the stern on the ship, and this last shot a bad way to earn a trip to Europe—unless you hit a bad storm. And then it's awful.

Old Ship Groans Under Waves.

The storm hit the cattleboat when she was out in the middle of the Atlantic ocean, and the old ship groaned, plunged and rolled on her beam ends at a alarming angle.

The crowded cattle—seasick and mad with terror—shrieked and kicked at every pitch of the ship, and Pete says it was plain bedlam between decks. But, storm or no storm, the helpless beasts had to be taken care of and Pete and his shipmates were right down among them doing the best they could.

Monster waves plunged in through the open upper-deck hatch and the men and cattle crashed around knee-deep in sea water.

Now if you've never been on a cattleboat you are probably wondering why they didn't close the hatch and keep the water out, but the trouble with that is that it also keeps the air out, and if you've ever been on one of those loaded beef ferries you know what that means.

The stench and heat from the tightly packed steers would kill a man with a gas-mask on!

Giant Wave Threatens Death to All.

So the hatch was left open and the water poured in and the good ship wallowed in the high seas like a ham-strung calf at a rodeo. It was four o'clock in the morning, Pete says, when the crisis came. The men were lading out fresh water to the frantic cattle when a moonster wave slapped the weary side of the ship and Pete thought it was all over.

A Stampede at Sea Is Really Something.

Pete was standing in the narrow passage-way with his mates when that wave struck. The ship heeled over to a 45-degree angle and flung the cattle in heaps to the port side of their stalls. She canted there as though trying to decide whether or not to turn bottom side up, and then righted herself and dipped almost as far on the starboard side!

Wham! Those tons of living steaks shot-the-shoots across their stalls and hit the detaining bars with a deafening crash. Some of the stalls held, but some of them didn't, and when Pete got to his feet and looked around him he forgot all about the storm, for coming right at him along the narrow passage-way WAS CERTAIN DEATH!

Now a stampede on dry land is about as dangerous a thing as you can find, and I for one don't want any part of it, but a stampede at sea—in a storm—is really something to write home about.

Pete says it was a sight he will never forget. The maddened steers—insane with terror—came splashing along the passage-way at amazing speed—tongues hanging out of their open mouths and eyes starting out at their heads.

Men and Cattle Caught in Death-Trap.

One of the leaders fell, but the rest never paused as they trampled him to death in the foam beneath their pounding hoofs.

Pete let out a yell and tried to get out of the way, but the foreman was in front of him, and the foreman was a fat man and his slow-moving bulk completely filled the passage-way.

Pete says he felt like a rat in a trap—those few seconds that he stood there unable to move one way or the other.

The foreman was an old-timer and when he hurdled over a barrier into a stall he saved not only his own life but Pete's, because as he jumped he felt the hot breath of the leading steer on his cheek.

Well, sir, jumping into one of those narrow stalls with a frantic steer for a cabin mate was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire. Every time the boat rocked the steer would go careening dangerously around—smashing against one side and then the other—with Pete doing his best to keep his feet.

One false step on that slippery floor and this story would never have been told.

Luckily for Pete and his shipmates not as many of the cattle had escaped as it seemed.

Sea Was Singing "Last Round-Up."

The following procession down the passage-way was only about ten strong, and when it passed the men all jumped out of the stalls and waded after their charges.

That chase rambled all over the ship, and if you want some exciting meat, Pete says, try rounding up cattle on a ship at sea.

Every time the cowboys would corner one of the critters, why that floating pasture would turn on end and men and cattle would slide kicking into the scupper. These big waves, Pete says, were named to be singing "The Last Round-Up" for him.

But the storm finally eased up and the cattle were rounded up and led back to their repaired stalls with no serious casualties to the men. There were a lot of broken legs, however, among the steers. The animals were destroyed to end their suffering, and as the good ship heeled on her path they were buried at sea.

And so, boys and girls, ends the saga.

Meaning of "Van" in Names

Van in German family names was originally merely a preposition literally meaning of or from. It corresponds to van in Dutch and de in French names. Paul von Hindenburg, means Paul of or from Hindenburg. Likewise Maria Van Buren—literally means Maria of Buren; and Louis de Rozen, means Louis of Roer. These particles are now regarded as component parts of surnames and have little significance, unless they suggest that the bearer of the such names may be descended from families which in the distant past belonged to the class called aristocracy.

OF COURSE - WE MAKE LOANS!

This Bank is part of the community and our interests are mutual. We are compensated many times the market rate for a loan. We do not mean to be rude or "hard boiled" - there is no need in our opinion to offend any such applicant. We have always endeavored to give a clear reason as to why a loan could not be made. This reason, of course, has not always been satisfactory to the applicant at the time, but we have had many applicants return to the bank and thank us for our attitude because eventually they saw what we saw, and realized the bank acted wisely. If you do not understand the loaning policy of a bank, ask an officer to explain it to you fully. This is your privilege.

NEWS AND VIEWS ON ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

The thing a great nation dreads most of all is "loss of face." Once it has embarked on a course, however unwise subsequent events may make it seem, a nation often goes to the end, no matter how great the price. The national honor is involved, the national prestige abroad, and these principles it will battle for.

That psychological fact explains as much as anything can, the reason why the dispute between Ethiopia and Italy has now broadened into the peace of Europe—and perhaps the peace of the entire world—is in grave danger. Italy began her Ethiopian campaign in the apparent belief that it would entail her relatively little trouble; that Italy would take over the black empire, establish a protectorate of some kind, and reap the rewards of Ethiopia's great oil and mineral resources—resources which Italy vitally needs, inasmuch as at the present time she must import almost all of her natural products from other countries.

Apparently, if Duce did not force Britain's reaction to his course, England possesses the greatest of all empires, and not the least important phase of it is her African holdings. When the British lion saw that another country was about to embark on an African adventure, he awoke. When he came to believe that this adventure if carried to its conclusion, would go ahead and conquer the English diplomats naturally claim that England is taking her present part in the dispute for purely diplomatic and peace-loving reasons—but most expert observers are of the opinion that England would be much more aloof if she did not feel her own Empire in danger.

England's answer to Italy's threat was largely a repetition of these vivid days of 1914 when the prelude to the World War. The greatest battle fleet in the world got up steam. Ships moved out of home ports, and admiralty officials were extremely vague as to their destination. Eventually they showed up at the Suez Canal, Gibraltar, Malta, and at Gibraltar—all points in the Empire set-up. War-time secrecy veiled ships' movements as well as the movements of fleets of fighting planes which went along as an adjunct to the Lion's sea power.

England then intimated that if Italy insisted on colonizing Ethiopia with the aid of force, she would call for League of Nations "sanctions." These sanctions are the last resort and they have not been put into play since the League was inaugurated. They can take two forms. One would consist of an economic embargo whereby all League signatories would refuse to ship goods of any kind to a belligerent nation. The second, which would follow if the first failed, would consist of armed action, under which all League members would attempt to put the offending nation in its place by military means.

The League does not want to apply sanctions—Mussolini has said that it would mean war to death. So, in one of its myriad attempts to solve the Italo-Ethiopian difficulty peacefully, it made a proposal whereby Italy would be given certain concessions in the African country. Italy's answer was "No" with a capital "N." She phrased it politely, but she made it clear that such concessions were not enough—that she wanted all or nothing, and was still bent on going after it.

Nothing's result of this was further division of Europe into factions. Allies are getting together—and the precise set-up is still vague. However, in now seems certain that France and Russia are prepared to go along with England in any policy she may think necessary. Germany, with Hitler hating France, seems to be an Italian ally, as do Austria and Hungary. Poland, with the largest standing army in the world, hates and fears Russia, and will usually take sides against the Bear. Spain, a lesser power militarily speaking, thus makes the odds others, is rumored to have signed an agreement with England whereby she will harass Italy if and when war breaks out in the Mediterranean.

Most dramatic recent event is the announcement that Italy is to mobilize 10,000,000 men as a tire fighting force. This is, of course, simply a gesture—but it is the kind of gesture which contributes nothing to the cause of peace, and much to the cause of war.

The American State department is still taking no sides—it is apparently determined that, if possible, the resources of America will not be employed to put foreign chestnuts out of the fire.

The assassination of Senator Huey Long is having expected results—what, Time characterizes as the "highest, most profitable political dominion that the nation has ever known" seems to be rapidly breaking up, as lesser men fight

Marine Corps Has Courses of Study For Willing Youths

Depression times have left a large number of high school graduates among the persons who are flocking in a sea of economic uncertainty, according to Major Clarence Nutting, who interviews every applicant to the Marine Corps at his office in the New Post Office Building, Savannah, Ga.

Many of these young men are ready for the battle of life, but they find the door of opportunity closed to them. Naturally they are puzzled by the turn of affairs in a changing world, which apparently have robbed them of their foothold on the ladder which leads to success, Major Nutting says.

The U. S. Marine Corps, however, has provided a loophole for the ambitious young man who is not content to mark time while the country is working its way out of the current depression. It has established an educational system that is sure-fire for any worthwhile youth who is determined to go ahead, and which has proved itself to be as nearly perfect as human ingenuity can make it.

Fortunately the system is so arranged that the basic education of the student, whether it be high school or college, leaving no limit to the heights which may be reached, and as the only practical method anyone may receive instruction with decided profit to himself.

Starting about fifteen years ago when the Marine Corps received diplomas in the arts, trades or science. With its units scattered all over the globe from Panama to Peiping, the correspondence method was adopted as the only practicable method. It has worked perfectly. From the school at Washington, diplomas often go to men who have made good in China, in the Philippines, Hawaii and elsewhere.

We believe that our Institute has more than fulfilled its plans to produce the best educated military service in the world, and it is helping to solve many a young man's problem.

High school graduates from Virginia, North and South Carolina, Florida and South Georgia are now being accepted for service in the Marines at the Marine Recruiting Station, Post Office Building, Savannah, Ga. Applications will be mailed upon request.

Federal Dicks Fights Crooks In Thrill Film

"Men Without Names," the Paramount picture of the exploits of the Department of Justice men, comes Wednesday and Thursday to the Avon Theatre, presents the heroic crime-fighters as men who take measure and charge in their stride with equal calm and efficiency.

Featuring Fred MacMurray, the handsome star of "The Gilded Lily," Madge Evans, the picture shows how the famous "D.J." men use science, skill and bravery in America's war on gangdom.

Catching the gang guilty of a brutal armored truck robbery, is the task assigned to MacMurray, as the department agent in this film.

Tracing them through the money passed, MacMurray follows the gang to a small Kansas town, where he poses as an aviation expert in an ally suspicion.

When he meets Madge Evans, his task is made more difficult however. He falls in love with the girl and doesn't care to divulge his real identity.

Lynne Overman, another agent, comes to his aid. Between them they trace the mobsters to their hiding place, but Overman becomes overzealous and is killed.

How MacMurray exacts revenge for his friend's murder, rounds up the gang and wins the girl is revealed in the rapid fire events that close the picture.

In the supporting cast of "Men Without Names" are David Holt, the new child prodigy, J. C. Nugent, Leslie Fenton and Herbert Rawlinson. Ralph Murphy directed the picture.

Ford Sponsors World Series Broadcast

The World Series is being given again this year over a nation-wide hookup of all stations of both the Columbia and NBC networks by the Ford Motor Company, whose sponsoring of this important sporting event was one of the big radio events of 1934. Ford dealers in Florida have invited the public to hear the broadcast at their showrooms each day of the series. Many dealers are giving showroom parties with comfortable seating arrangements for their guests.

Truman Bradley, announcer of the World Series Evening Hour Broadcast from Orchestra Hall, Detroit, is handling the "color" descriptions for Columbia Broadcasting System. Frank Laux, sports announcer for KMOX, St. Louis, and Jack Graney, former baseball player and Cleveland radio baseball reporter, are giving play-by-play descriptions over this network.

Graham McNamee, veteran sports reporter, visualizes the World Series crowds for National Broadcasting System. Ty Tyson, popular sports reporter for WWJ, Detroit, and Hal Totten of SCFL, Chicago, reports the games.

post had never asked for interest on the old account giving by the city and which was settled in the trade for the new home. Council decided to accept all bonds in settlement of the delinquent taxes.

At the suggestion of the city attorney council ordered the assessment of the "outside" territory for the past two years. This territory has been excluded from the city limits but the city attorney said he believed it would have to bear its share of the bond debt. Council ordered the hiring of extra help for the work at the rate of $3.00 per day.

The budget was discussed and the city attorney suggested the making of two separate levies as the said W. H. Davies and Mrs. W. H. The leaves of Turkish tobaccos are strong one by one like beads (see how it is done in the picture). After the leaves are strong they are packed in bales (see picture)—sometimes as many as 80,000 leaves to the bale.

We have on hand at all times for CHESTERFIELD cigarettes upwards of 350,000 bales of Turkish tobacco...

The pleasing aroma and flavor of Turkish tobacco is almost necessary if you want a good cigarette.

Turkish tobacco is more costly when you take into account that you have to pay 35c a pound duty, but we have to have it to blend with our mild ripe home-grown tobaccos.

It helps make Chesterfields milder, it helps give them better taste. Just try them.
