African Dancers

Rival Astaire, Says Scientist

Life Is Song and Dance on Ivory Coast

WASHINGTON—The popular Fred Astaire has new rivals for dancing fame—in far-off Africa.

"Baule dancers of the Ivory coast can well hold their own against, say, Fred Astaire," declared Dr. Hans Himmelfeber, German anthropologist now in this country. "Their dancing is unbelievable."

Dr. Himmelfeber, who went to French West Africa last year expressly to study this little-known tribe, gives a glowing report of native life on the Ivory coast.

These Are Party Folks.

"Pleasure is the true purpose of life with these people. There is much dancing and singing, but no bell-ringing. I saw only one drunk person among them," he told the Anthropological society of Washington.

A chief's program for an afternoon may have for its chief feature "dancing off" the anthropologist found. That is, the chief promises in all the glory he can manage. Good manners and beauty are more admired than cleverness among these people. They shun gaudy colors, and like sober and modest effects in their much-cultivated arts.

Hairdressers are important aids to self-decoration, and female men and women expect their "hairstyler" operators to create strikingly new hair styles constantly.

Homes Are Bright, Too.

In their homes, these natives like pretty things around them, they told the German scientist. Their carved wood spoons, boxes, hooks, and other everyday possessions are lovingly displayed to the civilized world as fine art.

The picture of the arts in Africa has been distorted, declared Dr. Himmelfeber, because it is not nearly so easy to convey the quality of African music and dancing in it to show the sculptures and recite the poetry. Yet musical arts are advanced.

New Treatment Saves Drunks From Dangerous Comatose Condition

CHICAGO.—For drunks who have reached a state of coma, medical science has discovered an emergency treatment. The new treatment, which brings them speedily out of the dangerous state of paralytic alcoholism which sometimes leads to death.

Dr. Louis J. Robinson and Dr. Sydney Selenick of Boston City hospital report results of the treatment.

Now Cases Are Treated.

These cases of acute alcoholism are brought immediately to the hospital and are allowed to breathe a mixture of 10 per cent carbon dioxide and 90 per cent oxygen for an hour or longer. This, in the words of the Boston physicians, is what happens:

"In every case of unreasonably alcoholic coma, with slow, jerky, shallow respirations and cyanosis, carbon dioxide-oxygen inhalation caused the respirations to become deep and regular almost at once."

The doctors emphasize that this is an emergency treatment and is not indicated in the moderate degrees of intoxication so frequently encountered.

Take Pint for Coma.

By comparing man with animals, these doctors believe that it would require about a pint of whisky taken at once to cause coma in man.

In coma, accompanied by troubled breathing, paralysis and blindness of the skin, constitutes a medical emergency. Death may be definitely prevented and recovery hastened by the inhalation of this mixture.

'Human Echo' Puzzles Physicians in England

LONDON.—Medical scientists here are puzzled over a strange case of a seven-year-old boy who produces an echo in his sleep. The boy, a sort of human echo, has been observed by Dr. W. E. Allen, medical practitioner of Haverhill, Lancashire, and other witnesses.

They report that when the lad is asleep, he can be seen to be working in response to similar notes produced accidentally or purposely in his vicinity.

Glasses Which Fit Eyeballs Appeared 100 Years Ago

Why They Cannot Be Generally Used Now

CONTACT eye-glasses—those shells made to fit inconspicuously between eyelids and eyeball—have been hailed with considerable publicity. The general impression seems to be that they are the latest thing in cosmetics, something for the person who must wear glasses and finds the ordinary shell or metal frames uncomfortable or unbecoming.

They have aroused "vain hopes" and patients ask about them, "stated Dr. H. K. Dally of Houston, Texas, at the St. Louis meeting of the Southern Medical association. When they are necessary, when they may be used, and why they cannot be generally used at present was told by Doctor Dally.

They are really not very new, for Doctor Dally points out that "experiments with contact glasses have been made for almost one hundred years."

Meet Technical Difficulties.

The chief deterrent to their use was, at first, the technical difficulty of manufacturing them, even for use in the eye condition for which they are particularly helpful and for which they were originally designed.

These technical difficulties have been overcome, but they are still very expensive. Doctor Dally does not feel they can be generally included in the outfit of the eye specialist until they have been greatly reduced in price and made accessible to the large mass of people.

There are no conditions for which contact glasses are definitely unsuitable, Doctor Dally said. One authority finds that persons with inflamed eyelids or eyes sensitive to smoke cannot wear them.

Where They Are Used.

Chief indication for their use is the eye condition known as keratoconus, said Doctor Dally. This is a cone-shaped deformity of the cornea of the eye, the condition for which contact glasses were originally devised and for which they do the most good. Vision is improved, the condition is kept from getting worse, and in some cases is actually improved, it appears from Doctor Dally's discussion. Fortunately, persons suffering from this condition have eyes very tolerant of contact glasses.

The glasses may be used for the more common conditions such as far-sightedness, near-sightedness, and astigmatism, in which the images are not brought to a proper focus on the retina. Properly fitted and ground contact glasses are more helpful than ordinary glasses in these conditions, according to the eminent authority, quoted by Doctor Dally. Because the contact glasses enlarge the field of vision, they are particularly helpful to drivers, pilots, sportsmen, swimmers and the like. Doctor Dally pointed out, even though they are not a necessity for the average person with ordinary eye defects. Their inconspicuousness, of course, gives them particular appeal for artists and actors.

Herdlicka Says Alaska Had Brain Surgeons 2,000 Years Back

WASHINGTON.—Older Indians in Alaska 2,000 years ago had brain surgeons available. They needed them, too, who with battles in those days being fought with slingshots and clubs.

A specimen of this ancient surgery, the first unearthed in Alaska, is the discovery announced by Dr. Ales Hrdlicka of the Smithsonian Institution. Digging on Kodiak Island, he found the skull of a man who had a cavity about two inches long and half an inch wide scraped in his skull down to a thin film of bone left over the brain. The wound healed perfectly, showing that the Indian brain doctor knew his business.

Indian Art to Enliven Boulder Power House

WASHINGTON.—Old and new America will combine at Boulder Dam, when artists get to work with Indian designs and gay paint.

In the control room, where workmen regulate tremendous forces of electricity and huge bodies of water, the expanses of gray wall are to be enlivened with the Indian's jagged ideas of lightning flashes, and Indian symbols of clouds and falling rain.

Consulting Artist Allen Tupper True, of the bureau of reclamation, has been studying Indian pottery designs, basketry patterns and paintings to adapt Indian symbols that represented natural forces.

Indian motifs, he declares, offer possibilities superior to the classic Greek and Egyptian patterns, and, and other background patterns.

Avon Park Teachers Attend F. E. A. Meet

Mr. R. T. Fairley, Mrs. Alice Sherman, Mr. E. S. Funderburk, Mr. E. L. Roberts, Mrs. Sadie Myers Brown, Mrs. Wilma Peden, Miss Eleanor Bryant and Miss Mildred Myers, of the Avon Park Schools, attended the fifth annual convention of the Florida Educational Association in Orlando, January 2, 3 and 4.

An address by Senator Gerald P. Nye on "War and Profits" was one of the principle features of the convention. The delegates heard Senator Nye denounce the manufacture and sale of munitions as a "rotten international racket" and made a plea for a stronger neutrality law. Senator Nye scoffed at the idea that there was danger of war with Japan. He heavily scored the administration for its increased military expenditures.

Frank Graham, President of the University of North Carolina, addressed the classroom teachers. Mr. Graham spoke of the necessity of cooperation of all civic groups in support of the public school system. He urged that the public schools be definitely assured of adequate financial support, and that the schools be considered equal to other departments of the state government.

On Friday night Governor David Sholtz appeared before the convention. He assured the assembled teachers that at least $9,000,000 would be provided for the schools and stated that there was a possibility that $10,500,000 might be secured. Governor Sholtz indicated his interest in making permanent improvements in the method of financing the public schools of Florida. To that end, he announced the appointment of a committee, including a member of the State Board of Education, the President of the F. E. A., the President of the University of Florida, the President of the Florida State College for Women, the President of the Parent-Teachers Congress, the state Commander of the American Legion, and the head of the Legion Auxiliary to make a study of the problem and recommend a policy to be followed.

Juniors And Seniors Study Supreme Court Decision On AAA

A study of the Supreme Court decision declaring the AAA unconstitutional features the work of the Junior and Senior history classes this week.

On Monday, January 6, the AAA, which is one of the most important parts of the farm program, was declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. The court held that the federal regulation of agricultural production was unconstitutional. It declared that the AAA invaded the rights of the states in seeking to control farm production. This will be final, because the Supreme Court is the highest court of the land.

Certain recent decisions of the Supreme Court, no doubt, have been very displeasing to the president, but the authority of the court has not been questioned to a great extent. It has been argued, however, that the will of the people has been thwarted by the absolute veto power of the Supreme Court. It has been charged that the final authority should not be entrusted to a group of nine men, because the exact meaning of certain parts of the constitution is not clear, and because different interpretations have been given by men who are equally informed.

Important decisions have been handed down by a majority of one vote, indicating that even the members of the court can interpret the constitution differently. On the other hand, it is pointed out that a final authority is necessary to protect the liberties and interests of the people. The constitution itself declares that if the majority of the people want to make any changes in the document, they may do so by amendments.

This is a great problem and, it will, perhaps, be an important issue in the coming presidential campaign.

History Professor Interviews Sen. Nye

While Mr. R. S. Funderburk, history instructor in the Avon Park High School, was in Orlando attending the teachers convention he secured a personal interview with Senator Gerald P. Nye.

Last fall Mr. Funderburk's history classes studied the neutrality bill. When asked about the neutrality bill, Senator Nye, who is the author of the bill, said that it will be made much stronger. Senator Nye stated that he wants a mandatory law, not a discretionary law. Such a law would instruct the President what to do. Senator Nye is also the author of the war profits bill which will be introduced at this session of Congress. This law, in case the United States should go into war, would put a tax of ninety-eight percent on all incomes above ten thousand dollars. There are two reasons for this tax. First, to pay for the war as we fight it. Second, to prevent the war from making great profits from the sale of war materials to the government.

When asked about the bonus bill, Senator Nye said the bonus would most certainly be passed, over the President's veto if necessary. He stated, however, that that Patman bill which provides for cash payment in greenbacks, and which he favors, will hardly get through Congress. Instead, a compromise bill will be passed.

According to Senator Nye, it is probable that bills designed to curb the absolute veto power of the Supreme Court will be introduced at this session of Congress, but it is not likely that any such bill will be passed. In the opinion of Senator Nye, it is a good idea to have a group of impartial men with the authority to determine the constitutionality of laws.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho is regarded by Senator Nye as the most available man for the Republican presidential nomination this year. Mr. Nye stated that should Mr. Hoover be nominated he would be beaten worse than he was three years ago.

New Students In High School

The Christmas holidays seemed to bring in new students, for several new faces have been seen in the halls this week.

The Sophomore class has a new member, Harold Cooley, from North Adams, Michigan. Roy Cole, of Avon Park, is the new student in the Freshman class. Mr. Blaser's eighth grade class has a new member, Jack Griffin, from Sebring.

"Posture Week" Program Features Chapel Exercises

Climaxing the "Posture Week," which was sponsored by the eighth grade boys and girls of the Avon Park High School, Miss Dorothy Hicks, instructor, gave a practical explanation of all phases of posture in chapel this morning, illustrated by various students from the audience.

The illustrations included: the causes and effect of poor posture; explanation of the posture triple test, shoes and feet, clothing; personality, and the value of exercise. The value of exercise was illustrated by simple exercises given by Calvin Bryant, Donald Holton, George Ellwell, Henry Wild, and E. Z. Nicholson.

Miss Dickinson read "An Ode to Posture." Mr. E. L. Roberts, music instructor, led the student body in the singing of a posture song.

The "Posture Week" started Monday morning with question marks on all the blackboards. Tuesday was Slogan Day. Some of the slogans were: "Posture is a virtue," "Do you duck waddles?" "Do you belong to the hump family?" "Ima Hump, Ura Hump, They call me Hump, Sheena Hump? How is your corn?"

Wednesday was Foot Day. Mirrors were placed in the halls, labeled with correct and incorrect ways of standing. The mirrors were donated by Ott and Son's Store, Davis Five and a Ten Cent Store, Davids, Pines, and a Methodist church Sunday, December 22.

Thursday was the day for correct school clothing to be worn for the best effect on correct posture. Clothes for the school were furnished by Ott and Son's and Wolf's Store. Thursday was also Tag Day. Posture figures - "A," good posture; "B," poor posture; "C," forward neck; "D," forward neck; "E," extreme round shoulders.

History Students Study Pension Plan

The Sophomore History class is this week making a study of the Townsend pension plan.

Senators and Representatives now back in Washington are worried about the Townsend plan. They have been getting letters from friends of the plan asking how they felt about it. If the Townsends make a show of much power, Congressmen may fear to offend them, since many of the Congressmen will be seeking re-election this year.

The Townsend plan is a scheme to take care of the old people by means of a pension. It is of thirty-five to eighty-five dollars per month already by every citizen over sixty not having a criminal record or a large private income.

Persons receiving this money must promise to give up their jobs if they have jobs, and they must also promise to spend the whole amount in the United States before the end of the month. This would leave the jobs open for the younger persons, and it is also argued that the increased spending would speed up business and bring back prosperity.

According to Dr. Townsend, the money necessary to finance the plan would be raised by a two percent tax on all business transactions.

Financial experts object to this part of the plan. They say that the tax would raise the cost of living fifty per cent.

Marvin Reddick Wins Notice As An Artist

The football players owe the beauty of the Red Devil on the back of their jerseys to Marvin Reddick. Several students submitted drawings of the Red Devil, but the players chose Marvin's in preference to the others. The Devil stands with one leg bent and in advance of the other. He grasps with both hands a red fork with a black handle. He wears white tights and a strip of white in the shape of a "V" around his neck. So life-like is the Devil that one would think he is going to pounce on some unsuspecting school and give them one grand scare.

Marvin has never taken art lessons, but he spends much of his leisure time drawing.

Plans are being made by Mr. E. L. Roberts, school band director, for band concerts every two weeks on the upper porch of the Jacksonville Hotel.

Mr. Roberts says, "with the cooperation I have been getting from the band members, we'll be able to do some good work for the rest of the school year."

If the plans work as he hopes, the members of the band will gain experience as well as provide entertainment for the general public.

Progress Report Of School Glee Club

After an interview with Mr. E. L. Roberts, director, the following resume has been prepared on the progress of the Avon Park High School Glee Club this semester.

The testing of voices for the glee club began two weeks after school opened. Voice tests were given to 125 students. These came from the seventh through twelfth grades. However, since this number of voices was too large for choral work, the seventh and eighth grades were omitted. Only about 60 were available to the glee club, 15 of whom were boys.

Chapel song books were used until funds could be collected to buy glee club music. A vote was taken and it was agreed that each member should bring 50 cents to meet the music fund.

The glee club has the following selections: "Goin' Home," by Antonio Davis (New World Symphony); "Were You There," H. T. Burleigh; "Deep River," H. T. Burleigh; "Kentucky Babe," Adam List (Liebestraum).

The entire club has taken part in several chapel programs and parts of it have sung on other occasions. At the Senior class play the girls' quartet consisting of Myrtle Payne and Dorothy Weisheir, sopranos, and Barbara Betts and Evelyn Martin, altos, gave several selections. A chorus of 30 voices had charge of the music at the union church service held at the Methodist church Sunday, December 22.

As the glee club stands, it is too large for group work, therefore, it is a director contemplates cutting it down to about one-half its present number.

The officers of the glee club are as follows: Harold McClelland, president; Virginia Gough, secretary and treasurer and Jimmie Skipper, librarian.

Students To Debate Bonus Question

A debate on the question, "Resolved: That Congress should provide for immediate cash payment of the bonus," will be the feature of the regular weekly assembly of the Avon Park High School, Friday, January 17.

Four debaters have been chosen from the Sophomore, Junior and Senior history classes. Billie Martin and Jean Correll will take the affirmative side of the question. They will be opposed by Charles Peters and John Villalita. Each speaker will be allowed five minutes, but he may not have a rebuttal.

high school girl. On Wednesday of this week, the class prepared a meal in casseroles, cole slaw with cooked dressing, and brown betty with caramel sauce.

An exposition building 40x200 feet was erected of logs last year. It is the largest log structure in the south.

This is the original strawberry festival, the first one on record being held in the streets of Bowling Green in 1930 for two days only.

Admission to the grounds will be 10c for adults only. Children will be admitted free to the grounds at all times.

Students Debate Bonus Question In Chapel Friday

A debate on the question, "Resolved that Congress should provide for the immediate cash payment of the Bonus," was the chief feature of the regular weekly assembly of the Avon Park High School, Friday, January 17. Billie Martin and Jean Correll upheld the affirmative side and Carrie Pearson and John Villalita, the negative.

Billie explained what the Bonus is and Jean advanced arguments in favor of immediate payment of the Bonus. Carrie charged that politics is influencing the Bonus Legislation. The Bonus is not due until 1945 and should not be paid until then. John stressed the fact that the government is not in a position to assume the financial burden which payment of the Bonus would cause.

This is the first in a series of debates on current questions.

Dan Chappell Is In Governor's Race

Yesterday Dan Chappell of Miami announced that he is offering himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the office of governor.

Mr. Chappell who has served in the legislature as a representative from Dade county, was educated in Georgia, attending Georgia Tech and Emory University. He served in the World War, moving to Florida after its close. He has practiced law at Miami since.

In a statement given to the press Mr. Chappell predicted no candidate for Governor who had or shared in any way been aligned with or shared in the "spoils of Socialism" would be accepted by the people. He said he was convinced the people will demand a change of pace at Tallahassee that will give back to the legislature its full independence and freedom of action, and also make impossible further employment by the Governor of members of the legislature to control the passage or defeat of legislation.

"Among other things," Chappell said, "my platform, soon to be published, will deal in favor of reducing the exorbitant seven cents per gallon gas tax, the exemption of motor boats and farm tractors from gas tax, and the reduction of license tags to $5 and $5."

"Here Comes Cookie" Failed To Get Here

The picture "Here Comes Cookie," billed to show here at the Park Theatre Tuesday evening, failed to put in an appearance, evidently being lost in transit. Apparently the picture was telegraphed everywhere trying to obtain another print, but could not make contact with the distributor. Mr. Deland found the film had already been shipped back to the exchange. Mr. Deland regrets the show was "dark" Tuesday night but he did everything he could to get the picture here and asks that the show-going people will forgive him for what happened as he could not help it.

Special Subject At Congregational

At the Sunday morning service of the Congregational Church, A. P. Vangin by request will discuss "The Good Neighbor Plan," a very timely and pertinent subject. The service will be held at 11 o'clock and will be held at the usual time.

FLORIDA FRUIT GAINS FAVOR WITH BUYERS

Northern Market Said To Be Switching From California To Florida

By FLORIDA NEWS SERVICE.
Northern buyers are switching from California fruit to Florida citrus, largely because of the comparatively poor appearance of California oranges recently, and prospects for somewhat better prices on Florida's fruit during the coming week are seen by Lawrence Gentile, general manager of Tree-Gold Cooperative Growers, in the weekly market news summary issued from state headquarters at Orlando.

Advances can be expected, however, only in case shipments are kept "fairly light" in volume, it is stated.
Prices on Florida oranges for the week ending Jan. 11 were 7c lower than the previous week at auction. The orange market was 20¢ heavier, totalling 563 cars at $2.88 average. Grapefruit gained 2¢ per box on 206 cars sold, which was an increase of 10¢ over the return being $2.63. Tangerines led 15¢ per 4/5 bushel box and 21¢ cars were auctioned at $3.49 average. This was 32 more cars of tangerines than the previous week.

Shipments of fruit to market were irregular, which contributed to the unavailability of oranges on citrus. For instance, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday shipments were light, but the tide turned and a heavy movement of fruit occurred on the last three days. The first half of the weekly period saw 85 to 150 cars shipped daily, but after Thursday around 200 cars rolled each day, resulting in an over-supply of fruit at all markets.

The f. o. b. demand on grapefruit was slightly better than at any time in the last month. Tangerines went to still lower levels because heavy shipments on several days recently to leading market centers and there has been no chance for markets to react.

Markets did not show any improvement as there was a sharp decline at some auctions, particularly at Cleveland and Cincinnati where prices were off as much as 10¢ per box of oranges. There was too much fruit offered for sale. Chicago and Detroit proved most satisfactory markets on Florida citrus during the week, both in the case of oranges and grapefruit.

Indications for the coming week were that the possible reaction to ward more satisfactory prices. Florida citrus would materialize, provided the daily movement of oranges does not exceed 125 cars, grapefruit 50 cars and tangerines 25 cars. Anything heavier than that, probably would keep prices down and prevent growers from being on an even keel of the switching of the trade from California to Florida fruit.

California oranges averaged below 8¢ per car for several weeks, ending Jan. 11 for the first time in long while, for the reason that the poor appearance of the fruit met with little favor from buyers. The California orange average on 263 cars was only $2.97 per box, compared with $3.16 the week before on 184 cars. The reason for the drop in price was the reduction of license tags to $5 and $5."

Indications are that increasing amounts of Florida fruit destined for the eastern seaboard markets are moving by all-rail rather than by steamer, as a result of the slashes in all-rail rates, now effective which the railroads made to meet steamship competition.

Florida oranges are now entering Canada duty free and this condition will continue in effect through April. Growers are seeing much more fruit sold in Canada this season than in several years. Under the Canadian citrus duties to meet of fruit from Florida to Canada declined steadily, year by year. The duty on grapefruit entering Canada has been cut in two and now runs approximately 4¢ per box, comparing with about 9¢ previously.

BOY SOPRANO, NOW FAMOUS TENOR WILL SING AT METHODIST CHURCH

George Stump, who sings in the First Methodist Church of Avon Park, Thursday, January 23rd at 7:45 o'clock, began his career as a boy soprano singing in churches in New York and Chicago. He has probably sung in more churches than any other artist in concert today. He is American born and American trained. He is a Proschowski, the well known opera coach, declares him the greatest truly American tenor of today.

The program to be given here is of semi-serious nature and consists of songs found most popular with audiences everywhere. The sacred numbers used are not denominational in character and have been chosen for their popular appeal. Numbers by modern composers as well as familiar favorites will be heard. Reports from other Florida cities who have heard George Stump this season, are most complimentary and a real treat is in store for all who attend.

A dividend of three percent was paid on January 2 for the half of 1935, making a total of five percent for the year.

Belin K. O.'s Howze In Amateur Fights Here Last Night

Bud Belin, 158, of Avon Park, found the west spot of one M. R. "Red" Howze of Sebring, weighing at 151, early in the main go of the night fight held under the auspices of the Hq. 27th, 56th F. A. Brigade, at the armory.

Belin, young hopeful of the ring, sent his opponent to the canvas in the first round. After the second try to the respite, Belin was in complete charge of the affair.

Howze, hardly able to answer the bell for the fourth, found it tough going after kissing the floor another couple of times. Mid-way in the fourth, Belin sent a hard right to the head of his foe that sent him to the showers. The fight was scheduled for 8 rounds.

In the semi-final, Bud Clark, 175, of Avon Park and "Big Six," 175, of Wauchula, billed for four rounds, went the limit with "Big Six" emerging with a close judges' decision.

The preliminaries provided plenty of action and plenty of falls. Henry Wild, 160, of Avon Park, took the measure of "Georgia Boy," Bill Brough, 160, early in the second round of their fight, which was slated for 3. Wild, taking the brunt of punishment "disbed out" in the first, came back in the second and sent his opponent to the floor three times. Not satisfied with this, he rocked him into bed mid-way in the second with a back kick to the head.

James Ward, 134, of Avon Park, and Ellis Elder, 134, also of Avon Park, went three fast and fairly close rounds, Elder being awarded a close decision.

"Kid" Adams, 150, of Georgia, dropped a decision to Clarence Wild, 160, of Avon Park in their third round scrap which was full of action and hugging.

A crowd estimated at approximately 300 people attended the fights, which were promoted by Bailey Barlow and which is a regular event twice a month.

Caldwell Is Again In Governor's Race

Tuesday of this week Stafford Caldwell announced that he would again be a candidate for the nomination in the Democratic primary next June for the office of Governor of Florida.

Mr. Caldwell was a candidate in 1932 and received a good vote but failed to get into second primary, and in his announcement, states: "For a number of years, the solidarity of the State of Florida has been shaken by sectional rivalries and factional antagonisms, so that this native State of mine, in which my parents were born and in which my whole life has been spent, is threatened by internal differences and agitation for division to the extent that the progress of the State is actually being impeded and its glorious destiny delayed of achievement."

One of the men who was born and reared in North and West Florida, and as one who joined in the pioneering and development of South Florida, I feel that the State needs, more than ever before, an administration that will accentuate an All-Florida solidarity and cooperative program, so that all sections will be for the State and the State will be for all sections, through which unity of effort will be accomplished."

Public Service Co. Employees Enjoyed Bird Supper Friday

Following the banquet a safety meeting was held and afterwards cards and dancing were enjoyed by those present.

FLORIDA NEEDS NO NEW TAXES SAYS COMP. LEE

Enlightening Figures Given
In Speech at Miami Before
Winter Residents

M I A M I, Jan. 15.—(FNS)—"Florida needs no new sources of revenue and the present sources are ample to take care of every need of state government," State Comptroller J. M. Lee told the Committee of 100, an organization of winter residents of Florida at a meeting at their clubhouse on Miami Beach last night when taxation was the principle topic of a half dozen prominent authorities invited to address the gathering.

The state comptroller cited figures to back up the assertion and showed by up-to-minute statistics of tax revenues that Florida's income tax sources are ample to take care of every need of state government. He said that the state's tax revenues have been growing by leaps and bounds and that efficient administration of the tax laws, aggressive enforcement of the laws and a fair deal for all taxpayers, large and small alike, is producing several million dollars more revenue per year than was produced during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935 when the then new comptroller found the state with $307,447 in the general treasury of the state and unpaid bills, notes and other obligations totaling more than $1,000,000.

An outstanding feature of Comptroller Lee's figures cited to the gathering was the fact that the state's Confederate pension fund now has a balance on hand of $1,047,000. This is an increasing income every month sufficient to pile up a surplus by next June 30, sufficiently large to permit the state to reduce the state millage by at least approximately three mills, or more than half.

Colonel Lee's qualification for his declaration that no new taxes were necessary was the present state of the state's revenue. "Unless it is found advisable to change the entire system of state finance," that is to say any measures should be as substitutes for present sources of revenue.

The comptroller's solution for the problem of paying the state's way with existing sources of revenue is... is addition to continue efficient administration of collections, more a question of modernizing the system of appropriating, spending and disbursing. "Why the present system is so old and antiquated that we sometimes have to dig far back into history to find out just how to spend some of the money that is collected from the heavily burdened taxpayers."

Going into the figures Comptroller Lee said the pension fund balance June 30, 1935 was $120,000 and on December 31, 1935 it was $1,047,000 and the following sources show comparative collections for the 1932-33 and 1934-35 fiscal years were:

General Revenue	$ 5,876,856	$ 6,935,328
Utility Tax (1932 & 1935 figures)	120,816	490,120
Documentary Taxes	251,858	397,231
General Licenses	297,393	559,971
Gasoline Taxes	14,137,059	17,246,748
Intangible Tax Levies	51,985	246,912
Estate Taxes	357,723	1,067,237
General Inspection Fund	49,447	691,769
Bus and Truck Mileage	125,062	139,095
Building Commission	763,259	1,403,826

"In the face of such a showing does Florida need more sources of revenue? No! A thousand times No! A thousand times No! Comptroller Lee declared. "What Florida needs more than anything else is a few hours of concentrated, sober thought on the part of every citizen and especially the business men. Hours of thought of a such duration and sincerity as will produce the future legislation a guarantee of one hundred percent collections from all alike upon some fair and equitable basis and give us an entirely new sound and safe system of expenditure of such revenue."

"Why the present system is so old and antiquated that we sometimes have to dig far back into history to find out just how to spend some of the money that is produced."

"What Florida needs is the repeal of all continuing appropriations." (Continued on page 10)

AAA Is No More
Who Will Pay Now?
Only 11 Can Run Fast
The State of the Union

The Supreme Court decision rejecting AAA, the "agricultural adjustment act," effecting a very American directly, issued just as the President announced his program to balance the national budget within one thousand million dollars, the decision upsets that administration program.

Men with large incomes, of whom few survive, may worry, for the decision takes from the government some hundred million a year of processing taxes that will have to be made good elsewhere. The manufacturers', on processing, tax, however, is the little people, was, in reality, a sales tax on life's necessities—cotton cloth, flour and meat.

The question is, Who will provide cash promised the farmers, since the Supreme Court has disallowed the sales tax, disguised as a "processing" tax?

Whence will come the hundreds of millions the government owes to farmers under its AAA program and has not yet paid? The farmers did their part, the government could hardly fail to do its part by paying.

International News Service reports department show that out of about 1,800,000 human beings on earth only 11 are known that can run a mile at record high speed. Of these not more than three have any chance of beating an individual named Glenn Cunningham of Kansas.

You would think that the billion unknown uncultivated men of the so-called "backward races," many with native energy, force of civilization's handicaps, could easily be trained to beat the 11 fast ones, but it is not probable.

The President's address "on the state of the Union" was, like nearly all Presidential speeches, an address to the state of the administration. Discussing domestic affairs, he said that "85 or 90 per cent of all the people in the world are content with the territorial limits of their respective nations."

Lloyd George, playing a little politics with his friend Prime Minister Baldwin, results in the noble moralizing of the world, the terrible, immoral plan to divide Ethiopia and placate Italy something without precedent.

Where England is concerned, "it is not necessary to eat spinach unless you like it. Other vegetables take the place of spinach with a menacing person called 'Red Eye'."

The Methodist Episcopal church is proud to announce that in Nashville, Tenn., that it began 1935 with 2,783,200 regularly enrolled members, an increase over the preceding year of 31,200, while 100,000 infants not included. This is the reply of the Methodist Episcopalians to the "high church" Episcopalians of the English church, who suggest giving up Protestantism altogether as a failure.

Children will learn with pleasure that it is not necessary to eat spinach unless you like it. Other vegetables take the place of spinach with a menacing person called "Red Eye."

The government, through WPA, will print a book on how to eat and how to eat it. One well known New York physician ventures the opinion that spinach contains an objectionable amount of "vegetable acid."

A twenty-year-old Poughkeepsie girl "from the other side of the track," working for $6 a week, was invited by a young man to get into his automobile, "Want to go somewhere for a drink, baby?" was the invitation formula. In the morning the unfortunate girl was found in the man's car in a garage, dead, a horribly miserable end, but the death. The excuse for mentioning so dreadful a crime is that it could be a warning to young women to accept invitations from unknown men.

New Jersey says the execution of Hauptmann, close at hand, will be no theatrical show. No woman reporter will be allowed to witness Hauptmann's death, although some young ladies will not think so. AAA Is Killed by Decision of the Supreme Court

SUPREMACY of the United States Supreme Court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjustment Act. The act, which had been passed by Congress in 1933, was designed to help farmers by paying them for processing their crops. The Supreme Court, in a 5-4 decision, ruled that the act was unconstitutional because it gave the government too much power over the economy.

Chief Justice Hughes, in his opinion, said that the act was a "regulation of commerce" and that the government had no authority to regulate the production of crops. He said that the act was "a direct interference with the right of private property" and that it was "a violation of the Fifth Amendment."

The dissenting opinion, written by Justice Brandeis, said that the act was a "regulation of commerce" and that the government had the authority to regulate the production of crops. He said that the act was "a direct interference with the right of private property" and that it was "a violation of the Fifth Amendment."

Latest Returns in the Literary Digest Poll
NEW DEALERS speak scornfully of the Literary Digest poll, but every one is eager to see what it reveals. The latest returns show a still further decline in New Deal popularity. Out of a total of 1,770,774 votes received, 828,600 answered negatively the question, "Do you now approve the acts and policies of the Roosevelt New Deal to date?" This brought the negative percentage to the new high figure of 60.47 per cent. The last preceding percentage was 58.3.

Eleven of the thirteen southern states continued solidly New Deal. Only Florida and Oklahoma voted against it. The twelve Middle West farm states continued balloting more than 3 to 2 against the administration.

One passage in the message was interpreted by some as a threat to close the lower courts to suits brought by the highest tribunal, and the Federalists' cry that the act was "a direct interference with the right of private property" and that it was "a violation of the Fifth Amendment."

Washington—President Roosevelt has told congress that he wants it to adjourn in short order. He has figured that about three months ought to give the members sufficient time to front them and that they then should return to their several homes. But the President's doom to disappointment if he sincerely believes that he can get congress out of the Capitol by the end of March. The last great right now that congress will be in session at least four months and it is well within the range of possibilities that it will remain in session almost the time of the national convention.

There are a number of factors that make realization of the President's early adjournment wish impossible. First, the House of Representatives is not yet organized. Second, the Senate is not yet organized. Third, the President's own schedule is not yet set.

Skeletons in Armor Suits
Are Found on Battle Site

Skeletons fully arrayed in medieval armor have been found in excavations in the vicinity of Venice, all in a perfect state of preservation. Were excavated on excavations for the new great canal which is under construction in the picturesque district surrounding St. Mark's square, undoubtedly must have been the scene of a great battle in the days of the ancient Venetian republic.

Such a condition means, as it has been found, that there are many others who think that Senator Vandenberg is hoping that, in case of a congressional stalemate, the assembled delegates may riot and turn to him as the nominee.

Children will learn with pleasure that it is not necessary to eat spinach unless you like it. Other vegetables take the place of spinach with a menacing person called "Red Eye."

The government, through WPA, will print a book on how to eat and how to eat it. One well known New York physician ventures the opinion that spinach contains an objectionable amount of "vegetable acid."

A twenty-year-old Poughkeepsie girl "from the other side of the track," working for $6 a week, was invited by a young man to get into his automobile, "Want to go somewhere for a drink, baby?" was the invitation formula. Washington—President Roosevelt has told congress that he wants it to adjourn in short order. He has figured that about three months ought to give the members sufficient time to front them and that they then should return to their several homes. But the President's doom to disappointment if he sincerely believes that he can get congress out of the Capitol by the end of March. The last great right now that congress will be in session at least four months and it is well within the range of possibilities that it will remain in session almost the time of the national convention.

There are a number of factors that make realization of the President's early adjournment wish impossible. First, the House of Representatives is not yet organized. Second, the Senate is not yet organized. Third, the President's own schedule is not yet set.

The dissenting opinion, written by Justice Brandeis, said that the act was a "regulation of commerce" and that the government had the authority to regulate the production of crops. He said that the act was "a direct interference with the right of private property" and that it was "a violation of the Fifth Amendment."

The President's address "on the state of the Union" was, like nearly all Presidential speeches, an address to the state of the administration. Discussing domestic affairs, he said that "85 or 90 per cent of all the people in the world are content with the territorial limits of their respective nations."

Lloyd George, playing a little politics with his friend Prime Minister Baldwin, results in the noble moralizing of the world, the terrible, immoral plan to divide Ethiopia and placate Italy something without precedent.
