

Round About Avon Park

by W. C. Beckett

Chamber of Commerce.

Judging by the inquiries which are being received by the Avon Park chamber of commerce, there will be a big demand for furnished houses and apartments this winter. The chamber of commerce is making the suggestion that those who have houses, apartments or a single room for rent, list same with some real estate agent or advertise the fact in the local papers. The chamber of commerce will be glad to refer inquiries to those who wish to avail themselves of this service.

The board of directors of the Avon Park chamber of commerce meets every Monday night in the Jacaranda Hotel parlors. A portion of each meeting is being devoted to hearing any ideas or plans which may be advanced for the betterment of Avon Park. If you have any suggestions to make which you think may be of value the directors will be glad to receive them. These may be submitted either in writing or in person at the regular weekly meeting.

Trade at Home.

The Barnett National Bank has issued an attractive folder on trading at home and boosting community interests. The folder is a pity and to the point and should be seriously studied by everyone having the best interests of Avon Park in mind. The folder says: "Think first of your own interests. Boost your own interests by boosting community interests." Those who have not received a copy should get in touch with Mr. Coates at the bank.

The Election.

The election is now past history. The ballots have been counted and the results announced. The voters have spoken and in no uncertain terms. They have said what they prefer in the way of an administration, both local, state and national. This being a Democracy, what the majority says goes and it is up to everybody to get behind the leaders and support. Give them your support and this nation will go forward. Differences of opinion should be forgotten and everyone work for the betterment of Avon Park, Highlands county, Florida and the U. S. A.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE FOR LOCAL RED CROSS

Intensive Campaign To Be Made Beginning
November 11

The annual membership drive for the Red Cross will begin Nov. 11 and continue through to Nov. 23. The quota for this year has been placed at a low figure, and it is hoped that Highlands county will cooperate with the chairman appointed in the different communities, and will do all that they can to bring the membership of the organization far above the quota.

At the beginning of 1931, when family resources were ebbing and there was a wide spread need and want, the Highlands County Chapter of the Red Cross met this emergency by furnishing food and clothing to the needy families of Highlands county. Through the Highlands County Chapter, four cotton, blankets, clothing and other relief commodities were obtained from the National Red Cross and emergency relief was rendered to 750 families.

The local chapter distributed the following: 1245 barrels (132 tons) of flour; 10,100 yards (5 1/2 miles) of cotton cloth; 480 blankets and comforters; 6700 cotton garments; 645 sweaters.

Figuring this on present day prices, the value of the above, amounted to over $10,000.00. During the same period some hundreds in the Red Cross from this county have amounted to less than $1,000.00.

The Highlands County Chapter has also organized first aid classes throughout the county and have sponsored and held classes on home hygiene and care for the sick.

Motherless Babe Home.

Minnie Lee, the month old motherless daughter of C. E. Cochran was returned to her home here in Weeki Wachee. The little baby was born in a Sebring hospital, her mother passing away the next day. Mrs. Cochran's mother, Mrs. O. D. Cochran is caring for Minnie Lee.

GLEE CLUB SANG AT ROTARY MEET- ON WEDNESDAY

Prof. Roberts Gave Talk on Value of Music in Public Schools

Appealing to both the eye and the ear was the Rotary Club program at the Jacaranda Hotel Wednesday noon. The Avon Park High School Glee Club was featured and they sang numerous songs very effectively and received much applause. The singers were arranged around the piano in three groups, two of girls and one of boys and they clearly showed the efficient training they have received from Prof. E. L. Roberts who directed them. Miss Barbara Betts accompanied at the piano.

The program had been arranged by R. S. Funderburk who introduced Prof. Roberts and the singers. Following the singing Prof. Roberts spoke on the musical work being done in the schools. He compared the present day status with that of the past and said there is now being made visible efforts to get music in the public schools. He said that Prof. P. J. Gustaf of Sebring had made a fine showing but has been awarded the state prize when he took over the Avon Park school band several years ago.

Music in some form is now taught in every grade from 1 to 12 in the Avon Park schools, he said and is very important. The grade work is not showy like the band and glee club but is excellent for training the mind. Little help can be obtained from the state as there is no provision made for music nor for athletics or art.

Prof. Roberts told of the formation of the glee club and said the original tests had brought the number of singers down to 28 or 30 voices. Providing music had proved difficult, said he, and a member contributing $10.00 had been raised and two pieces of music bought. There are now 48 members of the club but lack of material, music, etc. is proving a handicap as there was little money available. Tag days and other methods have raised about $65.00 and no music has been ordered, Prof. Roberts said.

The band was then touched on briefly by the speaker. There are two bands, the rookies and the seniors, the latter having much better instrumentation than last year. He commented on the fine showing made at the music festival at Tampa last year and said that with only 25 instruments they had won second place in class B. Fort Pierce with 72 instruments placing first. Avon Park's score was 92 1/2 percent.

Band music is also lacking and new pieces are needed to sustain interest among the players, Prof. Roberts said. He suggested the Rotary Club sponsor the band and he thanked the club for the cooperation given already. He said he knew of a complete musical library which could be obtained for $150 and would like to get this if possible.

To aid along these lines, President Ellwell named a committee consisting of J. E. Francis, J. M. McCord and Prof. Stanley E. Reeves. Prof. Reeves, supervising principal, stated that Avon Park pupils can now get four credits for music in the schools.

The only visitor at the luncheon was Phil Abrams. It was voted to dispense with the meeting next Wednesday, it being Armistice Day. The meeting on Wednesday, November 18, will be held in the Central District. Governor Millard Davidson of Maryland will be an honor guest for the occasion.

Palmetto and Brush Cutting Exhibition

For the purpose of advocating better pasturage for cattle a demonstration of palmetto and brush cutting machinery was held on Thursday of last week at the Mark Godwin place on the Arbuckle Creek road near Sebring. The meeting was sponsored by the Highlands County Cattleman's Association and there were over 200 cattlemen and grow owners present. A barbecue lunch was served at noon and speakers from the Highlands County Cattleman's Association addressed the crowd in the afternoon. The demonstration showed how much more work could be done with the improved and a large number of cattle pastured to the acre.

BRISBANE
THIS WEEK

24,720 Miles in 18 Days
Some Ladies' Hats
Gen. Butler's Peace Plan
12 Ladies Good and True

H. R. Ekins, first-class newspaper man, has gone around the globe by air plane, covering 24,720 miles in 18 days, 14 hours, 56 minutes and 5 seconds. His trip seems wonderfully fast now. Soon it will seem wonderfully slow. Air progress is rapid. Be-cause it was done scientifically, by machinery, the eighteen-day trip seems romantic rather than the Nelly Bly version. "Around the World in Eighty Days." Nelly Bly, clever newspaper woman, knew how to make it interesting. She was the first of her way to travel by elephant, camel, jackass, etc. Flying around the world costs about $5,000.

Some day some woman, let us hope, will balance her fashion budget, decide just what she wants to wear, and then wear it, as men have done, but the day is far away. There are some of the hats from which your wife, daughter, sister will choose this season.

Hats shaped like East Indian war shields; hats heavy in gold embroidery; flat pillbox turbans, gold braided; Russian hats with fur face, with tall tulle fronts; hats of Persian lamb and embroidered felt; small toques, dipped down front and back, covered with soft feathers, "the military touch predominating."

Why, do you suppose, do women take so much trouble with their hats and heads naturally beautiful? It cannot all be the fault of hat-makers.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, retired fighting major general of the United States marines, asks the Women's Christian Temperance Union to start a campaign against drunken automobile drivers, and also help peace by working for a constitutional amendment forbidding the President or congress to send troops out of the country.

You cannot change men by legislation, as was discovered in our prohibition mistake; you must change the men from the inside.

For the first time in history, New Jersey, selecting a jury all women, has surprised some, annoyed others. Why? For ages women have been judged and sentenced by male juries, men or groups of men. They have been ducked, branded with hot iron, put in the stocks, beheaded, hanged, burned alive.

Is there injustice in turning the thing around for a change; at least no twelve women would burn or duck anybody.

Lloyd's, British insurance concern, will insure you against anything happening, if it "guesses" that it will not happen; it usually guesses correctly. It refuses to insure against war suffering England, although until lately the charge for that insurance was only one-fifth of one cent; 200 pounds for 100,000 pounds insurance.

Somebody in Lloyd's possesses intelligence. The big organization does not like to think of war with airplanes added.

News from the East interests Americans. It is said that the bill, Japan and Russia, submitted recently to be on the verge of war, are said to have an understanding about things in the east that would involve depriving the British of profitable locations and rights. This does not please Britain, but that is the business of Japan, Russia and England.

Interesting fact item: Russia on order in Baltimore a passenger "clipper" plane, to cost $1,000,000 and carry forty-four passengers, besides a crew of six.

The plane, very fast, can go 4,000 miles without taking on fuel, a range that would bring it across the Atlantic slowly, if they were wanted to come back with a load of explosives instead of passengers.

The Irish Catholic hierarchy, sitting at Maynooth College, Cardinal Macarty presiding, denounces communism and persecution of the Catholic church in Spain, "in defiance of Spain's kindness to our ancestors." On October 23 all Catholics in Ireland were urged to "send in collections" for the relief of Spanish Catholics. "Mexico, once as 'Catholics' as Ireland or any nation, sends from its Chamber of Deputies, a message of sympathy to the Spanish government at Madrid."

England and France no longer guarantee any protection for Belgium in case of war, so the new French League, says all allies are at war with France, England and everybody else.

Adventurers' Club

Hello Everybody!

"The Spark of Life"

By FLOYD GIBBONS,
Famous Headline Hunter

HERE'S Distinguished Adventurer Howard Hartling of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his yarn starts out like this:

"Up on the surface we sat smoking. 'One of the smokers asked me for matches and I passed my box to him. When he returned I put it back in my pocket without looking at it. A match was never so much used to me UNTIL MY LIFE DEPENDS ON HALF OF ONE.'"

Remember that Canadian mine disaster that happened up in Nova Scotia and took up so much space in the newspapers a while ago? Well, Howard Hartling is going to tell us the story of a similar misfortune that took place in the same mining district in August, 1900. As a young lad, Howard worked in the Famous gold mines in Halifax county, Nova Scotia. His job was on the 300-foot level where they were digging a new tunnel—a tunnel that was being dug around a deep pit filled with water so that the company could tap the gold vein that lay on the other side.

Smokers Borrowed His Matches.

Howard's adventure took place in that tunnel—but as Howard himself points out, it started up at the top of the shaft where a bunch of men sat around smoking and borrowing his matches.

Just about the time Howard's match box was handed back to him, the whistle blew and the men went down in the "cage" to the 300-foot level. They went to work and the afternoon wore on. The distant sounds of dynamiting reminded Howard that it was almost time to knock off, and he started for the mouth of the tunnel. As the sounds of exploding dynamite came nearer, he hurried his steps. He was turning into a cross tunnel leading to the shaft landing when the candle by which he was lighting his way flickered and went out.

Only a little thing, the blowing out of that candle, but it left Howard in darkness, and darkness is one of the things a miner fears most. Once he took a wrong turning he might get into the old abandoned workings. As the sounds of exploding dynamite came nearer, he hurried his steps. He was turning into a cross tunnel leading to the shaft landing when the candle by which he was lighting his way flickered and went out.

They were catching my throat. Breathing was becoming more difficult. The walls were wet and mucky with slime that had been formed millions of years before. It oozed from the rock crevices and dripped down on the floor of the passage. I crawled along till I realized I had gone many yards and should be seeing the lights of the shaft landing. Then something inside of me seemed to stop! I obeyed the impulse!

A Hundred Feet of Ice Water Was Waiting.

dynamiting took on a new and terrifying significance. THE MATCH BOX WAS EMPTY—CLEANED OUT BY THE SMOKERS AT NOON! "It was a little more than 300 yards to the landing," says Howard, "but that thousand feet had to be covered in pitch black darkness, and feeling my way along the foot-wall of the tunnel. There was no one near to get a light from. All the miners had gone out as their tasks were completed and before the blasting began for the day. Those explosions were coming nearer. I could smell the heavy, choking nitro-glycerine smoke. I crept on slowly, but the fumes of the burning dynamite were getting more dense every minute.

more difficult. The walls were wet and mucky with slime that had been formed millions of years before. It oozed from the rock crevices and dripped down on the floor of the passage. I crawled along till I realized I had gone many yards and should be seeing the lights of the shaft landing. Then something inside of me seemed to stop! I obeyed the impulse!

Lost in the Abandoned Workings.

"Underfoot the floor of the tunnel seemed unfamiliar. It dawned on me then that I had taken the wrong turning at a right-angle tunnel. I had entered the old abandoned workings. I WAS LOST!"

In his left hand, Howard still gripped his unlit candle. If only he had another match. Again, something inside him began to prompt him to urge him to make another search of his pocket. "Carefully," he said, "I wiped my muddy right hand on my coat and opened my pocket. Carefully—very carefully—I made my search. In the upper right pocket I found my only candle. I held it, but I held the candle over the shelter of my open coat. Where, in that damp tunnel, could I find a place to scratch this precious half of a match? Howard scratched that piece of match—and it lit! Quickly he guided it to the candle. The wick sprang to life!—TUT TUT! Howard breathed a prayer of thanks. Then, with a light to see by, he began looking around him.

On the Brink of Water-Filled Pit.

Says he: "I held that candle aloft and let my gaze wander. I was in the old tunnel. Not 30 feet ahead was the old, abandoned, water-filled pit. A hundred feet of icy water was waiting for me. Another minute and I would have plunged to my death. A GRAVE 400 FEET UNDERGROUND! I almost collapsed at the thought!"

But suddenly, Howard was on his toes again. A new blast, so close that it deafened him, reminded him that he still was not out of danger. "I dared not hurry," he says, "as my light might not go out again, and this light I wouldn't have even half a match. Another blast and water would have been on my head. Then, at last, the lights at the holding shaft came into view through the murky smoke. A hoarse voice, choked from the fumes, bawled out, 'Pete! Pete! Pete! Pete! We're holding the cage. Where in hell were you? You look white as a ghost.'"

"And," says Howard, "I would have been one—only for half a match!"

Discovery of the Yuma. It is not definitely known just when the tomato was found to be non-poisonous and edible or how the discovery came about, says Frederick M. Maguire. But tradition has it that it was a New England man who, despite the warnings and dire predictions of his friends, tried the "love apple" in his country. This fearless fellow is said to have been Michele Fieschi, an artist who was born in 1612. And there stands in a cemetery at Genoa, R. I., a tombstone for Michele Fieschi, the man who took a chance and thereby performed a great service to mankind.

The Young Man's Measurements. The Society of Directors of Physical Education at the following standard of measurements of the physically ideal American student of 21. With a height of 5 feet 10 inches, he carries a weight of 151 pounds. The girth of his neck, knee and calf are the same, with the upper arm 15 inches, the lower arm 14 inches, the girth of his thigh is one-half inch less than that of his head. His chest, measured at 40 inches, the girth of his waist 30 inches less, his girth almost the same as his unexpanded chest, while the breadth of his waist barely exceeds the breadth of his foot, and the stretch of his arms measures two inches more than his height.

HISTORIC MURDER

ONE hundred and ten years ago, a man was murdered and as a direct result of that crime we now have, every four years, national conventions of delegates from every state and territory in the Union to nominate candidates for President and vice-president. Here's how it came about:

In 1828 William Morgan of Batavia, N. Y., published a book which purported to reveal the secrets of Freemasonry. Soon afterwards he disappeared and the Masons were not only accused of having murdered him but also of blocking a proper investigation of his disappearance. From that time on New York, opposed to the Masons spread to other states and several democratic young politicians among them, began to agitate for the removal of William M. Seward of New York and Theodore Stevens of Pennsylvania, seized upon the movement to promote their own ambitions.

The result was the organization of the Anti-Masonic party and in September, 1830, the first Anti-Masonic convention, the first national convention of any party, was held in Philadelphia. It elected 96 delegates from ten states. It was decided to hold another convention the next year to nominate candidates for President and vice-president and this meeting was to be held in the city of New York. Delegates from each state and territory were represented in both houses of congress.

Accordingly in September, 1831, the convention was held in Baltimore and it nominated for President William W. Van Buren of New York and for vice-president Amos Ellmaker of Vermont. Later this party was absorbed by the Whigs and lost its identity, except in Pennsylvania where it elected a governor in 1833 and continued as a separate party for a few years.

But during the Anti-Masonic party's short existence it had pointed the way for others to follow in the footsteps of choosing candidates. It gave them the national nominating convention and while convention procedure has changed in many ways, from that day to this the fundamental principle upon which it was based has remained unchanged—the representation of the party constituency.

KANSAS CAMPAIGNER

The state of Kansas in the first half of this year because for the first time in history a nominee of one of the major parties comes from the state. Kansas has two candidates for the presidency—Gov. A. L. Landon leading the Republican ticket and Earl K. Long leading the Democratic ticket.

This is not the first time, however, that Kansas has been a nominee. Back in 1864 there was another. He was John Pierce St. John, a native of Indiana, an adventurer in California in the gold rush days, a lawyer in Illinois and a soldier in the Civil war, rising to the rank of major general in an Illinois volunteer regiment. After the war he practiced law for a number of years in St. Louis.

He served in the state senate in 1874 but declined re-election and in 1878 was elected governor by the Republican party. Re-elected in 1880, he won the Republican nomination for a third term in 1882 but was defeated in the election.

Always a pronounced enemy of the liquor traffic, St. John was nominated for President on the Prohibition ticket in 1888 and polled a total of 151,000 votes. This was 20,000 more than the vote for Butler, the candidate of the "Greenbackers," so that he was the "runner-up" in the race between Cleveland and Blaine.

During his term as governor, St. John traveled extensively over the United States making speeches in behalf of the "dry" cause. In fact, his name became a household word in the land of public life. He is said to have turned up a record of travel exceeded by few candidates for office. He traveled more than 50,000 miles by rail during which time he covered an accident rate of one day and made a total of 1,600 speeches, making but four engagements in all that time.

World Conditions

Washington—I have been wondering whether the rank and file of the American citizens have been able to grasp the meaning of the distressing conditions that exist throughout the world. It is to be recognized, of course, that when a man like Dictator Stalin of Russia makes a statement that war in Europe is just ahead, it awakens the people to a realization of the danger that is before them. There is much more about European political conditions than is disclosed in the Stalin declaration. The thing that students and observers of European affairs can see in conditions that exist, as they view them in the light of our own State Department's information, is that a gigantic battle is on between two schools of thought. On the one hand is communism. On the other hand, and just as firmly entrenched and deeply determined, is fascism. Followers of these two lines of thought are both literally and figuratively at each other's throat, and the picture when pieced together can lead to no other conclusion than that which Stalin foresees, namely, war.

I have lately heard some observers make the statement that the Spanish rebellion is the crux of the problem. I cannot agree with that. Spain and her revolution may prove to be the spark that ignites the European powder keg, but it is not her revolution alone that brings us to the developments that are originally from the overthrow of the Czar's government in Russia. The establishment for the first time of a commune of the proletariat in the Versailles treaty had to take shape as it did. The Versailles treaty subjugated Germany beyond all reason. It was not to be accepted by all. It was not to be accepted by the most violent partisans of the late President Wilson. It seems to me, however, that the Versailles treaty was the crux of the problem. It was the Versailles treaty that led to the chain of circumstances that led to Mussolini in Italy, Hitler in Germany, and the Russian revolution in Russia. Any analysis of that chain of circumstances leads to the conclusion that the effect the Versailles treaty had upon European conditions. In some ways it was a disaster. It was a disaster, it is indirect, and the full import of the treaty provisions were not evident until eight or ten years after the fact. There were no great powers had made that treaty effective and, they believed, effectively disarmed and bottled up Germany.

After many conversations with diplomats, foreign students and Washington government officials, I believe too much importance cannot be attached to the attempt made by the Versailles treaty to break up political independence. The treaty will be remembered, created a vast number of insignificant and rather helpless states in Europe. They were supposed to serve as a buffer between the larger nations and prevent marauding and making faces to the eastward. They were engaged in the last war. The effect, it has now been proved, is exactly the opposite.

Throughout Europe, according to the official and unofficial word of the Versailles treaty, there is a new kind of hatred among the nations of France and Germany under Kaiser Wilhelm. It is a hatred not between the states of the various countries, but among the rank and file of the people. That is to say, it is a widespread feeling and when that is understood, it is not difficult to realize how vicious the undercurrent of relations is from Russia on the north to the Straits of Gibraltar, or even into Africa on the south.

To bring this condition into today's light, one hardly need look further than the various cables dispatched from European capitals, each telling a story how the respective governments are working for the revolution. Again, the Russian Stalin puts the "thing into a spectacular relief. It reports can be accredited, and official information indicates that they can be regarded as having a basis of fact. Stalin is ready to declare war on the so-called loyal armies in Spain.

Now the loyal armies, representing the government that is barely holding on by the skin of its teeth, are wholly communistic. Hence, Stalin's interest.

But the Russian dictator might be regarded as having in a more than does not concern his nation, except for another of the most important reasons. He is not in a position to offer information, not officially confirmed but generally believed, is to the effect that Stalin's Mussolini has a finger in the pie on the fascist side of the Spanish revolution. The rebel armies in Spain are fascists. Hence it is quite conceivable that the Italian dictator may be mixed up in promoting, even extending military assistance, to the rebel Span-

There are many other types of this propaganda under way. Propaganda is being spread by every means. A text book on government a few years ago and he has succeeded in getting that volume into the special list of books for Delaware schools. It contains declarations definitely opposed to the American form of government.

It is necessary to point out more of these things. The point is quite definite and clear. The movement toward communism in this country is proceeding slowly, cautiously, because the communists know that the American government must be changed slowly, but the silly head of the snake is being cut out of the water and it will be a matter of time if we become involved in the European struggle. Communists would make of us an American citizen as well as one a communist and would throw us into the world struggle on the side of communism and against the

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

LAFAYETTE is so far ahead of the rest of the East in football squabbling that another athletic shakeup is predicted at Eastern during the winter. . . . After a summer of left-handed home-run hitting Mel Ott will devote the next several months to improving his right-handed golf. . . . Jack Carter has it all figured out that the average top night wrestler travel 150,000 miles a year. . . . During the last five years of sports writing Frank Menke has ghost written (penned stories under the signatures of the celebrities) but 12 famous athletes. . . . Granville definitely will not be shipped abroad to join Omaha. . . .

Golf pros would rather have a handful of $12,000 to $15,000 a year than as members of their clubs than all the 50 G, 100 G and over lads you can pack into a locker room. They say they have so many ways of obtaining diversion that golf is just a minor thing for them. They say a middle three golf balls around to one of the big boys considers that he has made a big deal. Whereas the $12,000 golf makes golf a hobby and really puts out for lessons and new equipment. . . . Pat Stewart, Seattle, the 123 famous athlete, perfect games during his thirty-five years of bowling. . . . Maryland develops all-around regulars. . . . The football regulars also play baseball letter men at the Old Line university. . . . If you want to complete the football regulars who pitch. Balsamo Rated Tops by First Class Hitters

Young Otto, who stiffened sixteen fighters in a total of sixteen rounds during his days as a great right-hand puncher, thinks that Harry Balsamo is the greatest boxer ever has seen. As other testimonial to Balsamo's greatness, a boy comes from that tireless press agent, Maurie Waxman, that the football regulars had just emerged from Harry Balsamo's knockdown and . . .

Paul Pirone, a famed dynamite who once battered Mickey Walker for the full count. One of the seconds who had been in the ring with the other corner announced that Pirone finally had been revived. "Gee, to knock him out," said Mr. Balsamo, "I thought I'd killed the bum." . . . Mr. Balsamo, incidentally, is called tops by Erle Seelig whom he recently put to sleep. . . . Max (Boo Boo) Hoff, the celebrated Philadelphia night promoter, wears size four shoes and gets so embarrassed about it that he wears 16.000 clerks in the boy's departments he's shopping for his kid. . . . In addition to being one of Ridgewood's leading butchers Pete Wagner is manager of the German-Hungarian A. C. and one of the top officials in the German-American Football (soccer) association. . . . Aside from putting the okay on Di Maggio, Crockett, Lazzari and other famous Yankees, Joe Devlin, the Pacific Coast scout, has something else that he can tell his children. He once boxed four rounds with the late Stanley Ketchel. Recalling When Frisch Outsmarted Himself

One of Frankie Frisch's most painful recollections is the day when he outsmarted himself, while trying to equal Wilbert Robinson's record of seven hits in a game. . . . The pitcher was a bad fielder and so, on the seventh time out, Frisch was to bunt and beat out the hit. He bunted, the ball bounded to the right of a pebble, popped in to the pitcher's glove and he was an easy out. . . . Keep an eye on that Junior quarterback, Di Natale, of Boston college. He is a smashing tackler, a good runner, exceptional punter and a better than ordinary passer. . . .

Racing officials, who take photos even when it is evident a horse has been hit by a car, have a reason. It is to discourage those critics who hunt the outside horse always in favor when it is shot. The same reason also prevents them (the racing officials) from mentioning that when an inside horse wins by half a length it only shows up a head in the photo, anyhow. . . . Mel Ott and Joe Mauer are the two most talented football players in the Glens. . . . Little Eddie Farrell, who played for the Glens, Farrell, Ochs and a few other teams after graduating from Penn State, is one of New Jersey's most enterprising gamblers. . . . Even though his Hippodrome was once the center of the Glens as a light arena, Little Farrell is feeling well pleased with his new venture. The reason is that the sports which are at the center of his $1,400 a year business. . . .

The world's largest athletic event, according to Francis Abernethy, died last night. The reason is that interest in the proposition, is the World's Bowling Championships. There are now 100,000 people's eyes turned to this event held for New York next spring. . . . Critics who claim Jimmy Hoot is not really a great jockey golf tournament. . . . Curiosities Americana

By Elmo Scott Watson

"Lord, Dexter" BOTH tradition and the Constitution of the United States prevent official titles of nobility in this country but the fact remains that we once had an American "Lord." True, he conferred the title of nobility on Newburyport, Mass., confirmed it by calling him "Lord Dexter." . . .

He started as plain Timothy Dexter and published a book, "A Pickle for the Knowing Ones" to establish his claim in print. In it he said: "Time the first Lord in the United States of America Newburyport it is the voice of the people and I can't help it." . . .

Because his book was criticized for not having any punctuation, he issued a second edition. At the end of it were page after page of commas, periods, colons, and in the meantime arming themselves for conflict. Hatred and suspicion are rife, and as long as no rule makes it clear that they may paper and soil as they please. . . .

Truly Representative ONLY two Americans have ever had the distinction of representing three different states in the national congress. Neither was a native of the United States. Ireland was the homeland of both. Matthew Lyon, born in County Wicklow in 1746, emigrated to this country in 1782, settled in Vermont and served in the Revolution. He became editor of an anti-Federalist newspaper and was elected to congress. He died however in 1826. . . .

After serving his second term he moved to Kentucky where he was elected to congress, serving from 1802 to 1811. In 1820 he removed to Arkansas territory and was elected its first delegate to congress. He died however in August 1, 1822, before he could take office. James E. Shields, born in County Tyrone in 1810, came to America in 1826 and became a lawyer in Illinois. He was commissioned brigadier-general of Illinois volunteers in 1847 and served in the Mexican war. Mustered out of the service in 1848 he was appointed territorial governor of Oregon but resigned when he was elected United States senator from Illinois. He served in the senate from 1849 to 1855, then moved to Minnesota. . . .

When the state government was organized there, he was again sent to the United States senate, where he served from 1856 to 1859. He next moved to California but returned to Washington at the outbreak of the Civil war when he was again commissioned a brigadier-general of volunteers. He signed from the army in 1862 and returned to California but, having lost his lands, moved to Missouri. In 1872 he was elected to the senate from this state and held that position until his death on June 1, 1879, at Ottumwa, Iowa. . . .

WE MOURN Lord Nelson THE next time you see on the street a sailor from the United States navy, on shore leave, take a second look at his costume. Those three white bands on the collar of his blue jacket uniform are not just for decorative purposes. They were originally adopted by the British navy to commemorate the three victories of Lord Nelson: Trafalgar, Copenhagen and Aboukir. Having gained our heritage of the sea from England, we have adopted some of her traditions. Hence the honor to Lord Nelson. Our American sailors also join with their British cousins in perpetual mourning for Nelson. For that black neckerchief is a badge of mourning for him. And for the same reason officers adopted the black necktie as a part of both the service and the dress uniform. . . .

COFFEE DRUG Coach Howard Jones admits that Davey Davis, who sparked Southern Illinois to a victory over Illinois, is the best triple threat quarterback he has had. . . . That's a high tribute, considering the Jones has coached Cotton Burleson, Russell Saunders, Roy Mahler, and others who were national champions. The coach of the Minnesota eleven, served as teacher for the Young People's League last summer and was in charge of the young people's advisory work coaching him graduation. . . .

NEBRASKA'S 1935 ones, Chick Shedd and Bill Johnson, used to play in the high school and college. They were left and stomachs during the week day practices. . . . These were removed from the game and they were left as a feather in the breeze. . . . Helen Hicks shot a 78 in the first round of the South American golf tournament. . . . Wives, Know Yourselves!

Accurate Analysis Will Do Much to Overcome Difficulty in Wedded Life

SPEAKING on the question of trial marriage, a well known writer said, "There should be no need for trial when two people know their own abilities and have measured themselves accurately. Two people who understand themselves will never, I believe, have any difficulty living happily together after marriage. . . .

That is a neat slant on the question of success in marriage, supplants a woman's writer of national fame. Not "Know thy husband" or "wife," but "know thyself!" . . . And, come to think of it, isn't most of the discontent and dissatisfaction in marriage traceable to ideas of ourselves that may be misconceptions, no less than our illusions about the other person? . . .

How many women's discontent with the role of wife and mother springs from the thought of how much more fascinating pastimes they might have had if they had followed men not want war between the peoples of the earth. But there is one warfare that we do look to and win. As long as we encourage it, and as Christians make a holy resolve to battle to the end. That is the warfare against Satan and his hosts. As long as he rules in the hearts of men, and sin and wickedness are here, we say, "Fight on, my good soul." . . .

DRIVE SAFELY.

The following appeared in the Florida Times Union on October 29, 1936:

"A court of appeals in Georgia has handed down a ruling in an automobile injury lawsuit that might well stand as a warning to all motorists. In this case a driver was going along a street near a school. A child darted out between two parked cars and the car couldn't stop in time to save the child from injury. A suit was filed in behalf of the child and the lower court threw it out, claiming 'unavoidable accident,' and holding that it was the child's own negligence that caused the accident. Now the court of appeals has ordered the case reinstated and set for trial. In setting a new trial the court ruled that it is up to the motorist to take special care when driving on a street where there are many children and around schools. The motorist ought to know that a child is liable to pop out on the street at any time, the court ruled."

State Safety Director Asher Frank in Jacksonville today appealed to Floridians to declare an armistice on the "terrible daily slaughter of innocents on the streets and highways of our state through motor accidents."

All over the world November 11, people will be celebrating and commemorating an Armistice that was signed years ago. A war had been fought to end wars.

Let us pause now and declare an armistice on the terrible daily slaughter of innocents on the streets and highways of our state through motor vehicle accidents. Let us truly dedicate ourselves to end this slaughter. God giving you wisdom to drive an automobile, certainly did not intend that it should be used as an instrument of death.

While we pause and meditate over the thousands who have given their lives so that we may enjoy peace on earth, let us so drive our cars that the right and liberties given us will not be abused. Let us not have an accident this week-end.

Lanier Left For Detroit

Attending Meeting of Ford Dealers; Will See New 1937 Ford Models

C. E. Lanier of the Avon Park Motor Company, local Ford dealer, left for Detroit Wednesday with some 160 Ford dealers from Florida and South Georgia, who with 7,000 others from all sections of the United States, will move into Detroit by special trains this week-end for a two-day gathering at the Ford Motor Company's factory, the first assembly of its kind in the history of the Ford organization, for a display of the forthcoming year's models of the Ford V-8. They will be guests of the Ford Motor Company while in Detroit.

Wives and members of the families will travel with the Ford dealers in this spectacular gathering at Detroit, which will last through today and Saturday, bringing every dealer in the country into personal contact with Henry Ford, creator of the gigantic industry that bears his name, and Edsel Ford, his son, who is President of The Ford Motor Company.

The high note of today's program will be the first view of the 1937 model of the Ford V-8. The dealers and their guests will be taken through the Rouge and Lincoln plants of the Ford Motor Company for their first view of the car that will be offered to the public shortly.

This is the first time that Ford dealers have gathered at Detroit for an inspection of a new model. In the past the custom has been to assemble the dealers at the branch headquarters in the region where they operate, but this year the Ford Motor Company has had them assemble at Detroit where Mr. Ford can deliver a personal message that will outline his views on the business that is gathering top-notch speed. Outstanding in the ceremonies today, the opening day of the meeting, will be the presentation to Henry Ford of a huge Cape Cod windmill, the gift of all the dealers in the United States.

The windmill has been standing on Cape Cod for generations but is still in an excellent state of preservation. It has been placed in Greenfield Village, the small city of original American buildings and homes that Henry Ford has bought and preserved as a means of preserving living chapters out of old American history. The purchase, dismantling, moving and reconstruction of the windmill was made possible by contributions from the dealers and it will be an engaging addition to the scenes in Greenfield Village.

Ford dealers in the territory covered by the Jacksonville Branch assembled in Jacksonville Wednesday, boarding a special train which left for Detroit at six P. M. on that day. They are scheduled to arrive in Detroit for breakfast this morning.

The meeting will open officially at the Coliseum on the State Fair Grounds in Detroit, this morning at 9 o'clock E. S. T. The morning program will consist of the presentation of the new models and a general get-together meeting. From 12:30 until 2 p. m. there will be a luncheon, at which the windmill will be formally presented to Mr. Ford. The luncheon will be followed by a tour through Greenfield Village. Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, the dealers will visit the Rouge and Lincoln plants.

R. L. Allen, manager of the Jacksonville Branch of the Ford Motor Company, and T. E. McDonald, Assistant Manager, were in special train that left this section and saw that all dealers make the trip in solid comfort.

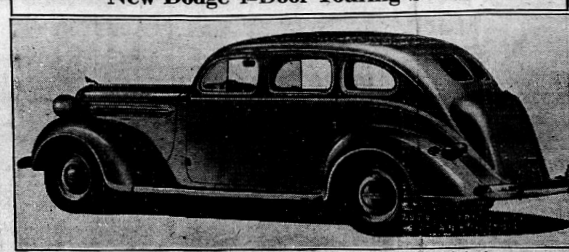

Fire Chief Urges Clean Up of Fire Hazards At Once

With the close of the rainy season Fire Chief W. H. McCarthy urges everyone to clean up around their homes and buildings in order to prevent the starting and spread of fires. The fire department had two calls to woods and grass fires Monday, the first in the east part of town and the other west of town. When the grass and vegetation is dry a carelessly thrown match or cigarette might cause fire and do untold damage. Clean up, the fire chief says.

U. S. Army Needs Recruits In South

Recruiting will be continued through November in the eight states of the Fourth Corps Area to build the United States Army up to full authorized strength, it was announced today by General George Van Horn Moseley, commanding general of the Fourth Corps Area.

Already hundreds of young men have been accepted throughout the south in the first large scale recruiting drive by the Army in several years, but openings are still available for service in Panama, New York, New Jersey and the New England States and at various posts through the southeast.

In addition to a full time job which includes food, shelter, clothing and medical care, in addition to the regular pay for privates, recruits are given opportunities to travel and to study for a vocation. The Army offers an unusual field to young men who can qualify.

The first contingent of more than 500 recruits will leave for Panama November 14. Others are being sent to fill vacancies in various Army organizations throughout New York, New England and the Southeast, with better opportunity than ever before for rapid advancement and training.

Since the southeastern states have been given quotas for other organizations outside the Fourth Corps Area, more than the usual number of openings are available to southern.

Detailed information is available upon application in person or by writing the Recruiting Officers located at Jacksonville.

Snake Falls on Truck Driver

A truck driver, J. T. Brown, in the Choctawhatchee National Forest, while driving alone through a thicket had the harrowing experience of a coonshoop snake about five feet long fall from the branch above on to his shoulders. Instant upon his driving in rather a difficult place, he paid little attention to it at first, thinking it was his log sack stick that had fallen from the top of the cab. He tried to shake it off but failed. At that instant he discovered it was a snake. Just what happened next he is not able to tell coherently but he quickly got the reptile off of his shoulders and later out of the cab. It took some time before he could collect his composure sufficiently to drive on.

REFLECTIONS In Life's Mirror

By...The Old Counselor

WHY DO I COMPLAIN?

It's only human nature to complain—never to be satisfied. True enough, we should never be entirely content with our own accomplishments, for such a state of mind arrests achievement and kills initiative.

Yes, we all have burdens to carry; responsibilities to shoulder; crosses to bear—yes, even a crown of thorns may adorn our sincerest efforts. The Saviour did not complain while carrying the cross upon which He was crucified!

We who are blessed with health, a sane and cheerful mind and body, with precious loved ones; with friends; with food and shelter and freedom; should thank our God, for we are fortunate indeed.

Recently, as I walked the busy city street, I observed a crippled beggar; deformed, gaunt of body—blind! Yet, from a shabby violin there came music, and somehow I detected a harmony of happiness as he drew the bow across the strings, a note of thankfulness when a coin fell in his cup.

I stood there transfixed in shame—wondering, why do I complain? Surely, life's problems and perplexities weigh heavily at times, but my difficulties are but trifles, comparatively, for I am still possessed with health and the five human senses—seeing, hearing, feeling, smelling and tasting.

Those of us who are so blessed, are capable of withstanding any test and should never feel life is vain; but it's true that we do, and I wonder—why do I complain?

SAV ORANGE PRORATE PROBABLY NECESSARY

Rapid Ripening of Fruit May Cause Market To Be Flooded

By Florida News Service.
Several chilly nights in succession last week matured thousands of boxes of Florida oranges and makes a prorated sale as possible essential, said Lawrence Gentle, general manager of Tree-Gold Co-operative Growers, Orlando, in his weekly report to growers.

Practically all varieties of mid-season oranges will be able to pass the juice and maturity test now, he said.

Prices were off last week in every market where any appreciable amount of Florida oranges were offered.

With 116 cars leaving the state Thursday by boat alone, prospects were for heavy arrivals and lower prices. In the New York auction 67 cars are expected Monday morning. The election closed all auctions Tuesday and so Wednesday was another day of extra heavy arrivals.

The New York auction averages prices on Florida oranges were off cents $2.48 last week. Other auctions showing declines were Philadelphia, $2.80, off 13 cents; Boston, $2.75, off 13 cents; Chicago, $3.15, off 6 cents; Detroit, $2.75, off 20 cents and Baltimore, $2.57, off 23 cents.

The Cleveland auction averages on oranges stayed at exactly the same level, $3.25.

Prices were up in Pittsburgh 22 cents at $3.19; St. Louis, 22 cents at $3.15. It was in these markets that Little Florida fruit was offered.

Good prices for Marsh Seedless and Indian River grapefruit helped the averages in the New York auction advance 11 cents to $2.39. Sales of Duncan variety were off considerably however.

Every grapefruit auction showed the result of too heavy shipments although prices were better at Boston, Detroit and Pittsburgh in addition to New York. Again however, it was Indian River and Marsh Seedless prices that drew the averages up. Pittsburgh showed a $2.20 average, up 12 cents while the Boston average was $2.38, an increase of 21 cents. Detroit was up 4 cents better at $1.85.

Averages were off 18 cents in Philadelphia at $1.99; 45 cents in Cleveland at $2.16; 27 cents in Chicago at $2.26; 77 cents in St. Louis at $1.78; 44 cents in Cincinnati at $2.26; and 7 cents in Baltimore at $2.24.

Killing of Deer Is Disapproved

Orlando, Nov. 5.—The move to kill off Florida deer in certain areas, because it is said the deer are carriers of cattle ticks, has met with disapproval from the Florida Sportsman Association, with headquarters here, according to an announcement from Capt. Merrill Mitchell, its president, who states that the deer killing plan "bears all the earmarks of another Mediterranean fruit fly campaign."

"I do not have to enlarge on this statement," Capt. Mitchell, a former Army officer, told a reported here who cross-questioned him, "for the reason that any one studying my brief statement will see clearly what I mean."

PEPPER INTERESTED IN CITRUS PROBLEMS

Inspects Citrus Production Station and Laboratories At Winter Haven

Winter Haven, Nov. 4.—(FNS)—Detailed inspection of the United States Department of Agriculture's $15,000 citrus production station and laboratories here was requested by Claude Pepper, nominee to the United States Senate, as a part of his swing through the ridge section during a series of field rallies conducted throughout the state.

Expressing an interest in one of the government's latest agencies for development of the Florida citrus industry, and a greater profit for growers, Mr. Pepper asked numerous questions which will enable him better to serve the interests of the Florida citrus belt during his term in Washington.

Chief Chemist Harry W. von Loesecke explained that the purpose of the station is to discover new and profitable uses for citrus marketable due to size or coloring. Development of new by-products from citrus material formerly wasted in packing and canning was indicated as another result of experiments. Forty-five products from essential oils and flavorings to soap and rubber substitute, were shown as proof that valuable commercial by-products can be developed.

A number of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages developed by the laboratory, including wines, cordials, and brandies, were offered as samples of quality and market appeal.

In the processing plant of the station, Chemist von Loesecke demonstrated methods which have increased the market for these products by enabling the industry to produce a more perfect product. Efforts ranging from fruit and de-aerating of juice were explained as laboratory methods expanded to a commercial scale for preserving flavor, maintaining color and minimizing loss of vitamin content in the canning of oranges and grapefruit juices. A flash-sterilizing process developed at the station to replace steam boxes in the industry was also shown and demonstrated. It was explained that the new method will enable the industry to produce a more perfect product and is being adopted by numbers of canneries through the state due to improvement of the product, less expense of operation, reduced cost of equipment and a saving of space for canning plants. Various types of distillers, canners and bottlers likewise were shown.

Mr. von Loesecke explained that while the work of the station deals primarily with citrus, their work includes experiments on honey, sugar cane, numerous vegetables and other Florida products. The station and laboratories are always available for any experiment desired by canning and packing interests of the state and will both co-operate and assist in commercialization of desirable results obtained. Additions to the work-room and provision of three other laboratories are to be made for expansion of the work of the station's staff of four men. Data was presented showing how several industries valued at $1,000,000 a year had developed from work in similar laboratories von Loesecke stated that the government is holding the valuable formulas and processes developed at the station in readiness for individuals or concerns wanting to establish similar industries in Florida.

What Luck the Lady Did Not Have Quinsy

It was the evening of an interesting family event, and the master of the house, who hoped it would be a son, had been pacing the floor, anxiously awaiting the doctor. When the physician entered the room the father seized him by the arm and demanded: "Is it a boy or a girl?" "Tr-tr-tr—" gasped the doctor, who stuttered rather badly. "Triplets!" "Qu-qu-qu—" stammered the doctor. "Triplets! Man alive! What is it you say?" "No-no. Tr-tr-try to take it qu-qu-quietly. It's a girl."

FRIENDLY SPIRIT SHOWN

Gone is the Avon Park-Sebring football game, and gone with it is a lot of spirit.

At no time during the history of the Avon Park and Sebring high schools has there been as much spirit shown as in the past week.

Not only have the high school students shown spirit, but also the townspeople, who take interest in their boys, and support them in a "big way."

Many persons will agree that sportsmanship was shown by both teams on the field.

It has been customary for the two teams to show their spirit before by visiting the other town before the game.

Every year some accident has occurred.

It is all right to show spirit and pep, but do it in a safe way.

Last Thursday night before the game a group of Sebring students motored to Avon Park to show their enthusiasm by giving a few yellies. On Friday afternoon the whole of Avon Park returned the compliment.

It is estimated that approximately 100 cars took part in the motorcade.

Before the game a few accidents occurred because some students became intoxicated with spirit and became too reckless.

Although a few oranges were tossed around no serious injury occurred, but a few dents appeared in the fenders of a few cars and one or two boys had blue paint smeared on them.

More sportsmanship was shown at the past game than at any other time.

Both teams showed plenty of fight, but showed it in a clean way, and after the game both teams were seen congratulating each other and many jokes were passed among the players in the dressing room.

Maybe it was best that the game turned out to be a tie because otherwise there might have been a brawl.

In the future contests let's make it our business to see that no accidents occur; have pep but in a safe way; and make these games the greatest of the season.

COACH HESSETT ASKS DONATION OF ROOMS TO BELTON GRIDDERS

During the past two weeks Coach Herbert Hissett has been asking for donations of rooms and board for the boys who are coming down from South Carolina to play the Red Devils one week from today.

The football team has set the pace for the rest of the pupils and also the citizens. The boys have donated rooms and board to 15 members of the team to be cared for by the team's supporters.

"If you can keep one or more of these boys," says Coach Hissett, "please let me know if you find it impossible to keep them in your home and would like to help, I believe if you see we can make arrangements."

"We, the members of the team and coaching staff, wish to thank all of those who have cooperated with us."

Those who have contributed rooms and board are as follows: Odell Skipper, Earle Lynn, Chas. Sherman, Cecil Clements, Jimmy Heim, Eugene Martin, Junior Reynolds, Harold McClelland, John Wilkitt, Bud Trent, Clarence and Henry Wild, Peyton Covington, Morris McCord, Mr. Chester Yates and Coach Hissett who is entertaining the coaches and their wives.

AVON PARK HIGH SCHOOL, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1936

Strange Spectacle Presented On Grid Field During Half

It is the end of the first half of the Sebring-Avon Park game. The football players leave the field the lights dim and go out. What is wrong? There certainly is not an electrical storm tonight or is there? All is still and silent. There is a smell of smoke in the air. A flash of light and white scarlet. A strange spectacle is approaching the field. Something fantastic as if from the pages "Dante Inferno." Perhaps the people don't believe in the devil any more, but here comes not only one but 23.

In a serpentine line lighted by their blazing torches they approach the field, they do not stop at the edge of field, as if they had come to see a football game. They march out to the center of the field and form a large "A."

They give a cheer one for Sebring and one for Avon Park. A wave of pleasant surprise runs through the crowd. It is the witnessing of the first appearance of the first Avon Park high school pep squad.

As the squad marches out in front of the band stand forms a circle, and sings "Cheer for The Red and White." Everyone is wondering who is responsible for this colorful innovation.

Lauretta Reed suggested that the boys and girls sweet shirts and pants and red and white scarlet fingers be used to create one score and three red devils.

Jane Hart was head of the squad. It was her duty to see that everyone had a costume and knew what to do. All the girls cooperated fully to make a success of Avon Park's first pep squad.

Perhaps the squad not altogether original as different phrases of the drill were taken from other pep squads but it is certain there never was a pep squad composed of devil heads.

Evelyn Martin, head cheer leader, led the band of scarlet devils through their intricate maneuvers and spritful cheers.

ARMISTICE DAY NOVEMBER 11th

On November 11, 1918, the deep boom of the cannons ceased, airplanes stopped zooming overhead, all became quiet and peace once more reigned the world.

Now 18 years later unrest, suspicion and greed have been replaced by peace and good will, and navies and armies have been built and trivial incidents assume world wide significance.

There is a civil war in Spain. Other countries are acting suspiciously. Did those four terrible years, 18 years ago, go for nothing? No, for those who helped to bring such destruction to the world should remember that dark days. That is why Armistice day is such a glorious day.

It released the world from a dark cloud and brought it into the bright sunshine again. After all the noise and activity that was caused by such a war it caused the people to realize just how horrible war is.

That Armistice day in Europe everything became quiet; in America the people went frantic with joy—bells clanged, whistles blew, and a general holiday was proclaimed.

November 11 has been held as a holiday in America not only to rejoice that a horrible war is over, but to help school children and young people to realize the horrors of war.

Armistice day is truly a great day. There is much more to its meaning than that seen in the past. It is a day when the people realize that a meaning that is undefinable.

There should be a feeling of peace and security on this day. It is a day when the people realize that there always should be as voiced by the thinking American people.

At first his condition was serious, as he was paralyzed from his waist down, but careful attention and special treatments were given to him and he is recuperating satisfactorily.

If he continues to improve he will be able to come home from the hospital in about one week.

Some of the girls say that the Nelson boys will get room.

RED DEVILS AND BLUE STREAKS FIGHT TO DRAW

Playing a game which was not as spectacular as it might have been, the Red Devils of Avon Park and the Blue Streaks of Sebring clashed at Head Field last Friday night for the annual grid game.

Albritton passed with a 15 yard gain. Cholliet punted to the 45. On the third down Albritton threw a pass. Waldron intercepted and ran 30 yards. Belin was sent in for Howell. On which was written to the song of the Navy's "Anchor Away."

The idea originated when several boys came home from Bolles Military Academy with words for the song which was written to the song of the Navy's "Anchor Away."

"Cheer, Cheer, For Avon High," which is the name of the new song has been sung in chapel and received a large amount of applause from the student body. Mr. E. L. Roberts urged Tuten to write more verses, and add to the length of the song. If more people would take time and use nice soothing warm water which inspires thinking, the school might have more new school songs, more pep, more interest, more support and a better team as a whole.

Junior has been a student for the past eleven years and will long be remembered for his service, and his witty remarks.

Many a sore boy will hold Junior in memory as his sympathizing football manager this year. He also has started out in his club this year.

The words of the song are:
"Cheer, cheer for Avon High,
We'll win this month's prize.
On to the goal we'll fight our way to victory.
Fight, fight, fight,
For the red and white,
We'll hold that line.
When we get the ball again,
We'll have another goal another time."

JOHN TUTEN COMPOSES
PEPPY SCHOOL SONG
WHILE TAKING BATH

When did composers get the idea of writing songs in a bathtub?

It seems that our new school song was born in a bathtub while J. W. Tuten Jr. was washing up. It could be said that the song is all wet, but not according to the way the students "swim" it.

The idea originated when several boys came home from Bolles Military Academy with words for the song which was written to the song of the Navy's "Anchor Away."

"Cheer, Cheer, For Avon High," which is the name of the new song has been sung in chapel and received a large amount of applause from the student body. Mr. E. L. STUDENTS ELECT FIRST COUNCIL FOR FISCAL YEAR

Thirteen representatives were elected yesterday afternoon to form the first student council of Avon Park high school.

Each class had a definite quota. Each class above the tenth grade was allowed two representatives, for each class below the tenth grade was allowed only one representative.

The first meeting took place Thursday afternoon after school. The purpose of this initial meeting was to acquaint council members of their duties.

There were several rules governing the selection of these representatives. These are:

(1) There will be only one representative from each of the home rooms of the 7th, 8th and 9th grades. (2) There will be two representatives from the 10th, 11th and 12th.

No member of this governing council shall hold any other major office. Some of these major offices are in the class, president, vice president, and secretary and treasurer. Red Devils Clash With FMI Tonight To Prove Strength

Avon Park "Red Devils" will clash with Florida Military Institute of Haines City tonight at Head Field at 8 o'clock.

The Red Devils will be "blood thirsty" after trying Sebring last Friday. F. M. I. had better be on their toes or the cadets will be defeated as they are in the game with Tampa College high. The score was 40 to 2 in favor of Tampa College High.

Avon Park lost to Tampa 7-6 which makes it look as though F. M. I. will have a hard battle on hand to score against the Red Devils.

The Red Devils are out to win the rest of the games this year because they have a good chance to be "Ridge Champions."

F. M. I. line up for tonight will be: Johnson, Brown, ends; Aljib, Dehle, tackles; Nettler, Silva; guards; Seidmayer, quarter back; Price, Hoffman, halfbacks; Thomas fullback.

DANCE TO BE GIVEN
HONORING VISITORS FROM SOUTH CAROLINA

Plans for a dance on November 13th are being made by the Junior and senior classes and the social club. The object of the dance is to provide entertainment for the South Carolina boys who will play football here on that date.

An orchestra will be secured from Lakeland, everyone in school is cooperating to make this dance a success because, sources of amusement are very few around here.

Members of both football squads will not be charged admission to the dance.

Next year when Avon Park goes to Belton, the boys will be entertained by the Carolina boys. We hope that the visitors will enjoy the hospitality, which we are offering," admit the upperclassmen.

LITERATURE STUDIED IN ENGLISH CLASSES

Literature is being studied extensively in Miss Pearson's English classes this month.

"Macbeth," one of Shakespeare's tragedies, is being studied by the seniors.

The juniors are making a study of early American writers, and the sophomores are immersed in the study of the "Ancient Mariner," that lackluster individual who had a curse put upon his head.

Will Villitti try to "imitate President Roosevelt?"
