Building Furnace Fire Is Easy Operation When You Follow Few Simple Rules

It's really no trick to build a good furnace fire quickly and easily.

Leave a layer of ashes about two inches deep spread on the grate. Spread about two inches of coal over this layer of ashes. Over the coal, place a generous amount of kindling—newspapers and light, dry wood.

The turn damper in the smoke pipe and the ashpit damper should be open wide. If the ashpit damper on your furnace is in back, open it and also the ashpit door in front. This assures maximum draft and quick ignition.

When the kindling is burning well, add fresh coal gradually. In this way you get a deep fire in little time—the kindling burning the coal beneath it, and the fire, in turn, lighting the coal above it. From time to time, add additional fuel until you have a solid, deep fire. When this is done, check your dampers and close the ashpit door.

Should the kindling while igniting smoke a bit through the furnace door crevices, it is due to the chimney being cold and not providing enough draft to carry off the smoke. This is easily overcome by wadding a bit of newspaper, lighting it, and inserting it into the check damper. This heats the air, creating a draft in the flue pipe and chimney and carries the smoke away.

"Escaped Ax-Murderer"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY: This adventure yarn just proves, once more, that you don't have to prowling around the African jungles to find thrills. No, sir, you don't have to be a big game hunter, either, to run across tough spots where you have to do hair-trigger thinking.

Why, if Jimmy Hagle, who lives in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, never sees a jungle, well—he will have plenty of adventure to look back upon. Hold on to your chairs, boys and girls.

Jimmy Hagle—it's James Ruthven Hagle now—was twelve years old in 1917, when America jumped into the World war. Frances—that's his sister—was eighteen. Both went to the same schoolhouse. Thanksgiving rolled around and school was dismissed at noon the day before, for the holidays.

Jimmy and his schoolmates were leap-frogging home, snowballing and whetting up their Turkey Day appetites.

Siren Meant Convict Had Escaped.

Right then, from over those snow-covered, vacant lots, came a low moan. It sharpened in the crackly air until it became a shriek. That meant just one thing to kids and grown-ups in Fort Leavenworth. There were three prisons around that town and when a siren groaned it meant that one or more convicts had escaped. It meant terror to women at home alone.

Jimmy and the boys were too busy with Thanksgiving plans to worry much about the siren's wail. Escaped convicts wouldn't bother kids. So they all shivered a little, started snowballing again and romped home. Jimmy neared his house. A strange, black tumbled scurried out of the open gate. Jimmy leaped a snowball at it and ran into the kitchen to sniff of Thanksgiving preparation. Mother and Dad were all dressed up. Big affair up in Kansas City they had to attend. Mother would be back bright and early to fix that turkey. Jimmy and Frances had been tentatively planted with the neighbors for the night.

"Nix," said Jimmy. "We'll stay here. Think we're afraid!" Well, they did stay. Alone for the first time, the house seemed dark and sinister. The light snow turned into a Kansas blizzard. Rattled doors and windows and howled around the corners.

Lights out and twelve-year-old Jimmy lay sleepless, listening to noises of the storm. Memory of that wailing siren came back. Memory, also, of his father's comment on newspaper articles. Dad had read aloud, before he left, that five convicts—four of them convicted murderers—had escaped. One was a maniac murderer, guilty of a triple slaying—battering of three persons with a knife and ax.

Jimmy tried to think of Thanksgiving. Troubled sleep came at last.

He was being shaken. His eyes tensed. Then, a voice called, "Buddy, I hear a noise in the basement. What do you suppose it is?" Jimmy put on a brave air. "It's that cat I saw running out. He must have come back through the coal chute."

Giant Negro With a Knife.

Frances went back to her room. Jimmy's mind turned again to the siren—the escaped murderers.

Ten—often minutes passed. The unmistakable rattle of sliding coal. Clump clump, clump. Footsteps down there, surely. Frances was at his bedside again—trembling. "I can't sleep. You must go down and put that cat out."

Jimmy wasn't sure at all that it was a cat. Cats don't clump, clump over concrete. But he couldn't back down before his older sister.

Both Jimmy and Frances tiptoed down the cellar steps, turning on the lights. Jimmy first opened the door to the food-storage room. In the dim light he saw nothing unusual. Then he threw back the door to the furnace room and entered. He glanced backward to see whether Frances was following him. She was. But behind her, at the door, was a sight that froze the blood of that twelve-year-old lad.

A giant negro—bared teeth and bloodshot eyes—was pressing the door shut with his powerful back. His right hand was on the knob. His left held a long-bladed knife—a butcher knife.

It was the escaped ax-murderer—insane—desperate. He was mumbling—gripping the knife convulsively.

Jimmy and Frances screamed in chorus. Jimmy thrust his sister behind him. They retreated toward the wall. A twelve-year-old boy facing an armed maniac who had fought off armed posers of grim men for days—overpowered prison keepers and escaped.

The murderer was weaving stealthily forward, muttering. The knife was bobbing for a thrust. His words were intelligible, now. "They'll never get me. They'll never get me," he repeated.

Jimmy's arms stretched backward to protect his sister. His hands touched something.

Dad's tool bench!

Good Hammer Throw by Jimmy.

The smooth hickory handle of a riveting hammer was in Jimmy's fingers. Instinctively they closed upon it. The convict was still advancing.

Hardly aiming, Jimmy flung the hammer with his good right baseball arm at the leering face less than six feet away.

Blood spurted. The heavy hammer had struck the murderer squarely across the bridge of the nose. He sank to his knees, scrambled for a few dazed seconds—daggered to his feet.

Frances raced for the dark stairway. A black hand seized her flowing nightgown. Jimmy seized her, literally tore her free. She plunged up the stairway. She fell. Jimmy fell across her. Up again. Into the kitchen. The stairs shook with the heavy tread of the killer behind them.

They were crossing the dining room—the front door their goal.

A thud on the floor. The butcher knife, buried by the convict, quivered in the floor beside Jimmy's foot. Blood spurted high, but brother and sister plunged on.

Frances flung open the door. Out into the blizzard, screams rising over the howl of the storm.

Lights flashed on. Jimmy and Frances felt exhausted upon a neighbor's porch. Police found marks of the struggle, and giant footprints leading from the Hagles' front porch. The convict had disappeared in the blizzard.

A few nights later, the killer prowled again. He was captured after a desperate battle. Today he is serving, in solitary confinement, the remainder of his life sentence in the Kansas State prison.

Scouting Hounds

Bloodhounds, otterhounds, beagles and all the long-eared steady-running trailers, hunters and bayers are scouting hounds. The lion hunting dog of old Assyria comes with the greyhound for antiquity, and his descendants include the mastiff, Great Dane, St. Bernard, bulldog, pointer, Dalmatian and Boston terrier. Even the pug and pekingese belong to the mastiff group.

Meaning of Quips

Quips is a system of writing and record keeping used by the Incas in which they used knotted cords called quips. Small cords with knots in them were attached to a main cord; the color of the cord, its place, size, and the number of knots were all of significance to the record or the message. The quips had to be made up and deciphered by specially trained persons. The method of deciphering is not known.

"SOFT" PEOPLE

Following the world was a bunch of racketeers and hoodlums armed with "Tommy" guns took the law of the country in their own hands and started to pillage society. For years they got away with it while the country tipped around and everybody was literally afraid to say his soul was his own. Men who had been robbed, their business places bombed and even members of their families killed were afraid to testify against the mob lest they be its next victim.

Then came the G-men with orders to shoot to kill and explain nothing. A few feeble-minded nincompoops raised protests that the G-men were too rough but they swept on until the "pry rats" were either in Alcatraz or the grave.

Now the government can get victims to testify and assist in the fight against crime. We're a feeble race and we would rather sacrifice our right to liberty than to sacrifice a profit.

Foreign governments taking a tip from the racketeers, have set up similar rings. They arm hoodlums and, depending on the cowardice of the profit-loving nations, they expect to drive pretty stiff bargains for loot. Germany, Italy and Japan want more room, just as the racketeers wanted more room, just as the racketeers wanted more money. And just so long as the rest of the world acts like this country did, while the racketeers were running things, just so long will there be wars in Africa, in Asia and in Europe. Having won their goals there, the greedy powers will start in Mexico and South America and then the western world will be in constant turmoil.

We need some international G-men who will talk as straight as President Roosevelt talked recently and who will shoot to kill. Then we'll have international peace. It took drastic steps to stop the racketeers in this country. It will take drastic steps to do it in foreign countries.—Winter Haven Herald.

A TICKLEJOB

Mainly the most important thing for Uncle Sam to do just now is not to be caught so far out on an international limb that some gleeful foreign government can saw it off. Everybody has one guess as to which government would delight in doing that and there are some others that would be delighted to help.

A majority of the powerful nations and nearly all of the smaller ones seem to be with us in an earnest desire to stop the slide of world civilization toward barbarism, and to start a new swing toward international decency. They know, as we know, that it will be hell on earth if there are to be gangster nations imitating our individual gangsters and growing in numbers and violence.

Human society generally wants decency just as the smaller and weaker groups do. Those who want to observe the laws of decency are in the majority if they want to work together.

It is well, therefore, for Americans privately and publicly to do what we can to strengthen this moral sentiment and make it effective. But the job demands caution and concerted action. We must hang together or we will hang separately.

This fact seems to be recognized in the Washington attitude toward a meeting of the nations that signed the Nine Power Treaty which Japan is regarded as having broken. Such a meeting is desirable, but should be held in some other country, preferably some small country not rated among the military powers.

Uncle Sam, in a delicate matter like this, can probably do more good by going along with the other peace-seeking powers than trying to lead them. And certainly more than by adopting a hands-off attitude when all the world is about ready to burn into flame.—Winter Haven Herald.

"THE FORGOTTEN MAN"

(By GEORGE L. BURR, SR.)

I am one of the consumers, and I tell you it's no joke. That's the class at which the others all delight to take a poke. We get all the tariff gouges, all the hidden taxes pay; Almost everybody hates us and soaks us night and day.

Without our cash no trains could run, no mill could turn a wheel, No government could function, whether old or new the deal; We are the boys who pay the freight, Jones is our middle name. Pile on your load. We'll carry it. We're goofy, but we're game.

It's our job to pay the piper and to do it with a smile. To double-disturbance every chap who makes us walk a mile. We should, when smitten, demonstrate we are kind and meek—When batted blue upon one side, just turn the other cheek.

"Planned agriculture" cops our coat and "strikers" sneak the vest, "Trust profits" take our good warm cloak, "high wages" all the rest. Naked we came into this world, this world of toil and sin, Naked must we go forth from it, and so with a grin.

No law requires that we shall eat if bakers want more dough. We can quit living when we like, if rows are hard to hoe. Beef, milk and eggs are going up; all prices, mighty high—Perhaps we, too, might seek and find some mansion in the sky.

If you're only a consumer you are anybody's goat—An unorganized consumer, and no man fears your vote. You're fair game for every hunter, you're protected by no "plan"—You're the tag end of creation—you are the Forgotten Man.

—From the Winter Haven Herald

CROSSING.

(Sarasota Herald)

Two more lives sacrificed at a grade crossing. The tragedy is the more cruel as the victims, with their companions, were pleasure-bent, bound for a football game. Rounding a curve at Branford, their automobile plunged into a locomotive, and the daughter of Senator Tillman of Tampa, Sara Tillman, and the daughter of Postmaster Blount of Chattahoochee, Carolyn Blount, went to their death because the highway crosses the railroad at the same level, without guard or gate to warn them of their danger.

Two more graves opened, two more families broken, because a known hazard is allowed to remain.

How long is Florida, that boasts of progress and modernism, going to endanger the lives of its citizens and its visitors at grade crossings? Can it be argued that the cost of over or under passes is too great for either the railroads or the state? Is the money involved to be compared with loss of lives? Perhaps the railroads believe it is. Perhaps the state authorities agree with the railroads. But what about the households of these two girls who were killed at Branford? What about the other homes which have been made to mourn the sacrifice of loved ones at grade crossings? Can they measure their grief by the dollars saved through non-investment in safe crossings, or shall these two deaths, and the others that preceded them—and the others that may follow—merely be marked up as evidence of the transitoriness of mortal life?

MISUSE

(Bradenton Herald)

Another "local law" to put statewide tax funds to purely local county use is an act which Jefferson County has passed at the 1937 session allowing that county's School Board to use $25,000 of the fund given by the state for support of its public schools to retire time warrants issued for general school purposes.

State Superintendent Colin English has turned thumbs down on the proposition, and he is right.

Under the state law making provision for state participation in support of the schools, the counties get $800 per year for each teacher unit. The law requires that this money shall be used only to pay teachers and bus drivers. In some of the counties the average salary paid the teachers is less than $800 per term, and these thirty divisions of the commonwealth have been planning to use such surplus for other purposes than the law allowed. Last spring, Jefferson county found itself with an accumulated surplus of $41,572 under the teacher unit plan. Passage of the local law above referred to followed. Mr. English got wind of it and has acted.

It is currently rumored that some of the smaller counties have used such surplus money for other purposes than the law allows. A checking up is likely to come soon and there may be some scalp-taking.

ROAD TO LOWER TAXES

Holding back of the State's gasoline tax money from some of the small counties and some of the large counties indicates that the (Comptroller Jim Lee) believes that racket should end.

Gasoline tax money was levied for the building and maintenance of roads. Then the seven cents tax was split, three cents to roads (State Road Department), one cent to the general fund (later split between the general fund and schools) and three cents to the counties for paying off bonded indebtedness (or a part of the road bonds—after which it was supposed to go to the State Road Department to build roads in the individual counties).

The smaller counties, getting back many times more than they paid in, began to use the gasoline tax money for political ploys. They diverted it to whatever purpose they saw fit. Lee stopped such usage, and the war was on.

And, despite the fact that he was right, some there are, even those in high power, who bellyache because the racket got a blow in the head.

Perhaps we are on the road to lower taxes, although no miracles are expected. If so, Colonel Lee is entitled to a bow.—Miami Friday Night.

Haines City To Have Bigger Armistice Day Celebration Thurs.

Haines City, Nov. 4.—At five o'clock on the morning of November 11, 1918, the town of Haines City will observe the day to the memory of the great World's war. Since that time Armistice Day has become one of the greatest and most venerable in American history and in the history of the world.

On the morning of November 11th "Taps" will be sounded in Haines City in honor of those who died to end violence and strife. Polk county legionnaires annually pour their efforts to make the county-wide celebration a success.

Haines City will be the host this year. Plans have been made to accommodate and entertain thousands of legionnaires and Polk county residents.

At a meeting of the celebration executive committee the chairman of each of the events announced that all was in readiness for a day of outstanding events. Starting with a parade in the morning at 10:30 the different events will take place until late in the evening.

The importance of the celebration has been increased by the acceptance from what will probably be the biggest gathering of national and state notables in this section of the state.

Among the events to take place will be an address by Congressman J. Hardin Petersen. The uniformed bodies of the Tampa Shrine will give a colorful demonstration by their drill team, the drums and bugle corps and other units they will have with them.

In the afternoon there will be a demonstration by the various Polk county drum and bugle corps. Later a football game will be played by the fast improving Haines City Hornets and the strong Lakeland Destroyers.

A mid-way called "Gay-Pare" will be in full swing throughout the day. In the evening a boxing card has been prepared that will be fast and exciting. Later, Phil Munaf's Top Hatters will close the celebration at the Armistice Day Ball to be held at the Army. Many of the outstanding events of the day will be broadcast by radio station WLAK.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH SERVICE

Telephone wires in the Sunshine State, placed end to end, would reach approximately 700,000 miles, more than the distance around the world at the Equator, the State Chamber of Commerce has figured.

Florida has 170,000 telephones which operate through 144 exchanges, says the Florida State Chamber of Commerce.

Kosin and Turpin get their names of "naval stores" from their early importance in the construction of wooden ships, points out the State Chamber.

POSTPONE P. T. A. MEETING

The regular P. T. A. meeting on November 11 will be postponed until the following Thursday, this month, in order that it will not conflict with the Armistice day celebration.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

There May Be Many Reasons for Making Quilted Chair Pads.

IF ALL the reasons for quilted chair pads were lined up in order of their importance the most intangible reason of all might head the list. Yes, it is quite likely that any decorator, amateur or professional would place atmosphere at the top. But then it is also possible that first rating might be given to the reason that the pressure of slats across the backs of chairs is softened by quilted pads. Then, though it might not be mentioned, it is a known fact that worn out cane seats are sometimes replaced with inexpensive composition seats which may be disguised by gay quilted pads.

Chintz, calico or gingham chair pads are in fact one of the simplest and most inexpensive ways of adding color and charm as well as comfort to a room. Such pads are often used on the backs of chairs and not on the seats, and especially for side chairs, the seat pads are used without any back covering. In making such small things as these it is quite easy to do the quilting on the machine.

Or, if you wish to take the other point of view about it, the work of quilting them by hand would not consume an unreasonable amount of time. There is no doubt that handwork has a certain quaintness that machine work lacks.

The pads shown here are made with one layer of sheet wadding between the two layers of the chintz. The edge bindings and ties are made of bias tape. Cut the three layers of the pad material exactly the size and shape you want them to be when finished. Place the sheet wadding between the two layers of covering material as shown here at A. Either pin or baste in this position, and then quilt as shown here at B. Make the ties by stitching the lengthwise edges of the bias tape together, and then tack them to the corners of the pad as at C before it is bound. Now, bind the edges, sewing the ties right in with the binding as shown here at D.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

OF INTEREST TO THE HOUSEWIFE

When to Add Salt.—Salt will curdle new milk. In preparing porridge, gravies, etc., salt should not be added until the dish is prepared.

For Tight-Fitting Lid.—To remove a tight-fitting lid from a coffee can, wrap a light wire around the can below the lid, insert a stick and twist it up tight.

Save Stale Bread Crumbs.—Bread that has become hard and stale can be ground into crumbs, browned in the oven, and used for improving the flavor and appearance of many dishes. Store in an airtight tin.

Filling for Tea Biscuits.—Sardines mixed with salad dressing and a few drops of lemon juice make excellent filling for tiny tea biscuits.

Keeping Boards From Warping.—Warping of long boards can be prevented to a considerable extent by standing them on end or on one edge so both sides are equally exposed to the weather.

Cooking Doughnuts.—Doughnuts will crack and brown before they are thoroughly cooked inside if they contain too much flour or if the fat in which they are fried is not hot enough.

Towel Holders.—Either a spring-type clothespin, or the paper clamp from a loose-leaf notebook, properly nailed to the wall makes a satisfactory towel hanger for the bathroom.

Tomato Marmalade.—Half cup vinegar, one cup sugar, one quart chopped tomatoes, one teaspoon mixed spices, one teaspoon salt. Cook together until thoroughly dissolved. Pour into shallow pan and cook in slow oven for one and a quarter hours. Turn into sterilized jars and cover with paraffin while hot.

Friendly Talk

BUT after all, the very best thing in good talk and the thing that helps it most is friendship. How it dissolves the barriers that divide us, and loosens all constraint—this feeling that we understand and trust each other, and wish each other heartily well. Everything into which it really comes is good. It transforms letter-writing from a task into a pleasure. It makes music a thousand times more sweet. The people who play and sing not at us, but to us—how delightful it is to listen by standing on end or on one edge so both sides are equally exposed to the weather.

Walking Liver

Johnny, who had been to the circus, was telling his teacher about the wonderful things he had seen. "An', teacher," he cried, "they had one big animal they called the hippo." "Hippopotamus, dear," prompted the teacher. "I can't just say its name," exclaimed Johnny, "but it looks just like 8,000 pounds of liver."

WHOM? Well, yes—and so. The arithmetic of your school days taught that "5 Minus 2 equals 3." Well, yes, but in the real world of the home, 5 Minus 2 leaves 4. But that is mathematics—not shopping! In managing a home, a good housewife must always be ready to subtract the dollars of extra value from the dollars of extra value. Take five dollars to town and get much more for the money spent. Fortunately, there are ever-willing good men at hand—the advertisers in this newspaper. Advertiser's merchandise is often exceptional value merchandise. It makes dollars 5-7-8-9-10.

RESPECT THE FLOWERS

Different kinds of flowers and shrubbery are being planted around the school under the direction of a beautification committee appointed by the Student Council.

It takes a great deal of work and trouble on the part of those persons who are helping to plant these flowers and shrubs. It is not just as simple as going out digging a hole, and throwing in a plant. The ground first has to be prepared, which is a tremendous job within itself. All students helping in the report are showing an enormous amount of school spirit and cooperation.

A school with a showing such as it will make when the beautification project is finished is bound to become a drawing place for visitors, and at the same time make us extremely proud of it.

Last year a small amount of trouble was had because some pupils insisted upon uprooting small cuttings which had been placed around the side of the school.

We are sure that this occurrence will not be repeated again in any way because of the fact that the students have enough school pride and spirit so as to make them not want to do such a thing.

In view of the great amount of work which we find that the flowers will do for the school in the future they will be allowed to grow and blossom without any kind of hindrance.

DON'T SKIP CHAPEL

Home room teachers found when they checked up in chapel last Friday that some of the students had been skipping that period.

This check-up was ordered by Stanley N. Reeves, principal, after he had discovered that some of the students had been cutting assemblies period.

Poor school spirit, we believe, is shown by those students who do not come to chapel on Wednesday and Friday.

If a student does not have enough interest in his school to attend chapel, which is really designed for his own entertainment and benefit, he should bow his head in shame.

It should not be necessary to take compulsory measures to make students attend chapel.

Let's all show a fine spirit by trying our places in the auditorium promptly at 10 o'clock.

During the reading of the Bible Wednesday morning of last week, an unnecessary clamor in the form of talking caused Dr. Reeves to stop and give certain classes reprimanding. It seems that students of any age and grade have more reverence for the Deity and all that concerns Him.

Come on, everybody, let's stop this talking in chapel.

Brewster is now the only undefeated team in the ridge conference. The only hope for Avon Park Red Devils to get in running for the ridge championship is for Sebring to beat Brewster Friday afternoon.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

Covering over a thousand miles of the Iberian peninsula on foot and going twice that distance by third class rail provides many interesting events and adventures accounts which may be yours by simply reading "Four Months Afoot in Spain."

Mingling with the masses and joking with individuals will enchant and prove to be a never ending source of delight to you in the same manner it was to Harry A. Franck, author of the book.

Do you think that $172.00 would last you for four months in Spain? It probably would not, but the author took the same amount and traveled extensively for one hundred and twenty days through the land of beautiful seascapes and beauties.

Four months afoot in Spain is written in an exceedingly humorous style, known only to Harry A. Franck and critics say that it must be an unusually poor natured person that would not enjoy this book to the utmost.

Student Council Reports Work To Rotary Club

Clubs Talk Of Plans In Joint Meeting At Jacarana

At a joint meeting of the student council and Avon Park Rotary Club held last week at the Jacarana hotel, President Charles Sherman presented reports of the various committees which compose the organization.

Following a discussion of the reports, it was decided that the junior and senior classes may receive help from other classes in the selling of tickets for the W. P. A. plays. Minerva Perry then took charge and discussed the point system.

The reports presented early in the meeting were as follows:

School History (Minerva Perry)

Last year, I was appointed to compile a history of our school as far back as it was possible to obtain records.

I, with Betty Touchton, my assistant, and Miss Key, a faculty aid, visited to Sebring to get any data which we could find in the records there. We found the enrollment records, and names of teachers and principals, as far back as 1922. This was all the information that could be found down there.

I saw Reverend Gross and he gave me information about the school from 1914-1917. He gave me the location of the school and spirit so as to make them not want to do such a thing.

Many of the people about town have given me pictures of various classes and other groups taken before 1936.

Pictures of all groups in our school were taken last year and filed.

Provision has been made for records to be made and filed in the coming years.

I plan to go to Arcadia to get all the information there is to be obtained there.

This check-up was ordered by Stanley N. Reeves, principal, after he had discovered that some of the students had been cutting assemblies period.

DEVILS' GRID SQUAD INVITED TO CHURCH

The Red Devil Football Squad received an invitation to attend the First Baptist church last Sunday night as guests of honor at a sermon being preached on football by Rev. J. P. Dalton.

The title of the sermon was "Feet" but evidently the boys had wandering feet; anyway they didn't turn out in full.

After looking over the crop, Rev. Dalton said to Coach Wagner, "I hope your football team has more representatives in Heaven than on earth."

Cockey Devils Lose By Mere Margin Of 7 to 6

The Red Devils lost one of their major grid conference games last Friday night to the Haines City Hornets by a margin of 7-6.

A leading score was lost in the first quarter when the Red Devils lost the ball over their own yard line of goal, Haines City took it down in scoring position in the first quarter and scored in the first of the second quarter.

Avon Park blocked a kick on the Haines City ten yard line in the last three minutes of play and with their same old driving power, they took the ball over their own yard line. The try-point failed on a long end run.

Speech Class Gives Three-Minute Talks

The speech class was thrown into a world of woe Thursday when the subject was announced that each pupil must have a three-minute speech prepared by class period Monday.

The students after racking their brains for three or four days, talked to class with their talks based on unusual experiences, such as "My Visit Through the Virginia Mountains," "A Delightful Week," "A Horrible Fright," and "A Trip to a Riding Academy."

Those participating were: Dorothy Hughes, Jane Hart, Evelyn Martin, Frances Browne, Blanche McDord, Dorothy McNicholas, Jean Correll, Charles Martineau, Loomis, Harriet Sherertz, Margaret Townsend, Josephine Brooker.

Dolly Brown, Louise Rogers, Elmeria Sadler, and test. Miss Errest Arant told the girls they were to receive $200.00 from the community chest.

FIFTH GRADERS HAVE MARIONETTE SHOW

A marionette show is the latest creation in Miss Iva Phillips' fifth grade room and it is arousing a great deal of interest among the pupils.

The boys have made a stage with draw curtains in the front and fringed curtains at the top. Christmas lights are being used around the stage and as footlights.

The puppets are made of golf balls and broom sticks and are dressed to represent various characters.

They are now working on some pilgrim characters to be used in a Thanksgiving play. They are also working on a group of pirates.

The most interesting thing about their dress is the hat, which is made of a thimble as the crown and a little brim made of paper.

Bill Hood and David Lanier have done most of the work toward this puppet project.

KEYBOARD KNOWN BY 59 TYPING STUDENTS

Since school started 59 typing students have learned the keyboard from a to z.

Of course they still have a great deal to accomplish," says Mrs. Wilma Peden, typing instructor, "but these students have certainly made a good start."

Some of the more ambitious pupils are already inquiring about speed tests, but they have been told that rhythm and accuracy must be acquired before speed can be had.

Reporters Get Unbiased Opinion on W. P. A. Plays

Most people like to know what other people think about things. Here is an unsecured check up on the opinions of some of the students and faculty on the advantages to be gained by viewing the five forthcoming W. P. A. theatre project plays.

Ray Garrett, 11th grade—"I think that every pupil should go to them because they will give them the benefit of seeing some of the best plays ever written."

Miss Betty Smith, Librarian, believes that "These plays will bring a type of drama that is rarely seen. One usually sees only scattered plays of different types, but these plays are to be a sequence of drama and comedies and should give the students a broader understanding of drama and the history of drama."

Calvin Bryant, 10th grade—"Three of the dramas are of olden times; therefore, they should be of particular interest to history pupils. The plays will give us a better understanding of life as it used to be."

Reba Mathis, 11th grade—"These plays will give the pupils a better understanding of the history of drama."

Charles Moffett, 11th grade, quotes in a deep professional voice—"The plays undoubtedly will give the students who see them a better understanding of plays both ancient and modern."

Elsie Visel, 10th grade—"I think that these dramas will give the school a reputation for having good entertainment in our high school."

Mr. Mumma's 9th grade class enacted a one act tragedy entitled "Hallowe'en Murder" in chapel this morning.

The action of the play takes place in the living room of Benjamin Redfield's country home.

Laura lives with her uncle Benjamin in the country. Her lover comes to see her, and she immediately tells him she should not have come because her uncle objects very much to her going with him.

The lovers have been going together for two years and they wish very much to get married but the uncle objects because he has been in jail.

The lover, Harry, plots to get rid of his sweetheart's uncle by putting a sweetheart with a revolver hidden in a box on the window. The sick tick worried the uncle and he goes out to remove the tick-tack but as he goes outside he sees a man hanging around whom he knows is not supposed to be there.

The man begins to run but the lover grabs him and pushes him up against the window to see who he is. The awful tragedy ends with the lover getting killed.

The characters taking part are: Laura Redfield, Inette Hawkins; Benjamin Redfield, (Laura's uncle) Herbert Todd; Harry Carson (Laura's lover) Felton Causey.

Home Ec. Classes Doing Good Work

Much work, such as refinishing machines, painting lockers, tables, and stools is being done by the home economics classes.

The students are now at work refinishing the machines in the department. They have been equipped and are going to be varnished and waxed.

Some of the other projects that will be completed are: The cleaning of the lockers in dark green; a three cabinet wardrobe which will be situated by the woodwork class and finished by the home economics classes. This will be used to keep the clothes in which they will make after their start sewing.

A little later a part of the room is to be made "home-like." A drop leaf table and chairs and an easy chair will be needed for this purpose. They plan to get a new bulletin board also.

In the kitchen the stores have been worked over and are now going to be painted when they will be ready for cooking. Also the tops of the tables will be repainted.

Boys Scouts Practice For Big State Camp

The Boy Scouts under the leadership of their scoutmaster, Johnnie Rohr, left this afternoon after school for Lake Bonnet and Letta where they will camp for the night. At "is camp they will practice for their state camp which will be held in Frostproof."

They discussed and planned this camp at their meeting Monday night. They are planning to put their regular meeting place and they also practiced signaling.

Tommy Bryant explains the wind as "the whistling of the sky." Alta Prizell pictures a flower put in a vase and bit "violet" while Lillian Kelly defines a flower garden as a bee's paradise.

Perry Mandis' description of stars of the sun on a black velvet background.

Dorothy Held describes a brilliant sunset as red paint spilled in the heart of heaven.

The mountains are "historic skyscrapers," according to Sanford Hart, and moss is "gray hair hanging from a tree," says Mary McElchelle.

Students Discover Poetry Writing Is "Heap Much Fun"

Pupils in the eighth grade are giving their imaginations a little exercise. They are discovering that some of them are "poets and did not know it."

Last week Miss Sara Rutledge put a long series of words in common usage on the board and they tried to think of poetic pictures making expressions to take the place of the words.

In the opinion of some older students many of the expressions were very good indeed for boys and girls their age.

O. L. Barnes says that stars are the "angel's candles" and a storm is a "wailing, deafening cry."

Mary Carroll describes a tree as "a giant in a green velvet cloak."

Alta Prizell pictures a flower put in a vase and bit "violet" while Lillian Kelly defines a flower garden as a bee's paradise.

Seniors Will Give Armistice Program

Featured on the Armistice program to be given by the Senior class next Friday morning in chapel is a speech on "Youth, the Worlds Hope for Peace," to be given by a senior girl who will be chosen from results of a contest.

Speech on the "Utility of War" will be given by Charles Sherman president of the student council.

"The purpose of the program," states Mr. Chester Yates, senior sponsor, "will be to demonstrate the utility of war."

It will be a varied program consisting of poems, readings and original speeches.

The purpose of the program will be given at the Rotary club next Wednesday as the program to be presented is "Youth and International Understanding."

On Hallowe'en night in spite of all the efforts and warnings made by Mayor A. E. Covington and Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, war stems and tires were cut and mutilated.

Utmost expense and trouble was caused by the uncalculated and unnecessary misdeeds.

Certainly no one appreciates having their tires and tubes cut, but the person who is feeling for the other person has disappeared.

Come on, everybody, let's have more respect for the other fellow's tires, is enough the town.

Football Team Goes to Belton To Play Today

Red Devils Hope To Hang Up Scals Of Warriors

On Wednesday of this week, the Avon Park Red Devils left for Belton, South Carolina to play the Golden Warriors of that city.

Last season the Red Devils defeated the visitors by a score of 13 to 0. This year it may be just the other way around since the Devils will be in strange territory and the weather conditions will be unusual for the local boys.

According to word received from Belton, the Warriors have lost only one game this season and are now making a strong bid for the state championship.

Coach Wagner says that he will take 18 or 20 boys with him to South Carolina. He adds that he would like to take all the boys with him but the situation clearly indicates that the "B" string will get their chance next year.

Paper Received

A Belton paper has been received from one of their players which contained a boastful item about their team. Whether the Warriors accomplish what they say they will or not depends upon just how the Red Devils feel about it. Since the Belton team is expected to be a hurricane from Florida, the local team may surprise them by blowing their chances away with them burning them up with Red Devil fire.

Several local fans left with the team for Belton.

Those boys making the trip were: James Ford, Frank Crumley, Clarence Wild, C. W. McWhorter, Marion Foster, Sylvester Hartzog, Odell Skipper, James Williams, and a senior, Ed Davis. Ed Touchton, Edgar Bradbury, Early Lynn, Bud Belin, Donald Todd, Ray Mathis, Henry Wild, Eugene Martin, and Jimmie Heim, J. W. Tuten, and Billy Meriwether.

Twelfth Grade Dramatizes Play

The twelfth grade, having completed the Shakespearean play, "The Tragedy of Macbeth," concluded the unit by dramatizing the four most important scenes of the play.

Four captains were selected by Mr. Chester Yates to choose the scenes to be dramatized. The captains were: Carrie Pearson, Marvin Reddick, Mary Lydia Stebbins and Early Lynn.

Carrie Pearson selected the banquet scene. The characters for the scene are: Lady Macbeth, Hilda Reddick; Macbeth, Elsie Dickinson; Lennox, Lucille Bishop; Ross, Josephine Brooker and Murdoch, J. C. Still.

Marvin Reddick chose one of the witches scenes. The characters are: Bethel, Cleland Belin; first witch, Mary Lydia Stebbins; second witch, Cyril Baldwin, third witch, Bud Trent, first apparition, Evelyn Martin, second apparition, Dorothy McNicholas, third apparition, Fayre Gordon and Recato, Mary McCarthy.

Early Lynn selected the sleep walking scene. The characters are: Lady Macbeth, Early Lynn; Doctor Ed. Touchton; Gentlewoman, Ray Mathis.

Mary Lydia Stebbins chose the scene of Macbeth talking to Lady Macbeth about the murder of Banquo. The characters are: Lady Macbeth, Ed Touchton; Macbeth, Jane Hart.

The two outstanding authors that the eleventh and twelfth grades are studying this six-week period are Poe and Shakespeare. The students' grade will largely be based on a "term paper" which will be written on the part that Poe plays in American literature and the part that Shakespeare plays in English literature.

Students to Debate

"Resolved: that war debts between allied countries should be cancelled for the subject of a debate to be given by students next Thursday at P. T. A. meeting."

The team is composed of James Ford, Ed Touchton, Ed Davis, Ed Touchton, and James Bailey, and Edgar Smith on the negative.

Mr. Chester Yates, speech instructor, is coaching the team.
