"What's in a Name?"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

YOU know, boys and girls, when old Bill Shakespeare asked, "What's in a name?" he didn't seem to think that names made very much difference. But I guess Bill could find plenty of people to give him an argument on that subject. One of them is John T. Smith of Ozone Park, N. Y. John Smith isn't such an unusual name, when you come to think of it. Nor was John such an unusual sort of fellow. At the time this story opens—around April 1, 1935—he was working as a plumber's helper for a large concern.

One day, while threading a piece of pipe, John cut his finger. That isn't an unusual occurrence, either. But add these things all up together, and they'll give you the strangest degree predicament that ever a man got into.

John paid no attention to his cut finger, but two or three days later it had begun to swell up a bit. His foreman took a look at it and told him he'd better report it to the company doctor.

The doctor was pretty busy. He looked at John's finger, asked him his name, and told him to get the necessary papers from his boss and report at the hospital. "I'll notify the hospital you're coming," he told John. "Be there at eleven o'clock."

Sent to Hospital for Small Operation.

John got the necessary papers from his boss and showed up at the hospital on the day of eleven. He had his infected finger before, and knew pretty well what was done about it. They froze the finger, slit it open with a lance, banded it and sent you on home. But it seemed to John that this hospital took a lot more trouble over a sore finger.

A nurse took John's name and said, "Oh yes, we're expecting you." She told him to take a seat in the waiting room, and there John waited for an hour. Then the nurse came back and took him upstairs, opened for a door and led him into a room. A few minutes later another nurse came in with a bed jacket. "Take your clothes off and get into bed," she told him.

Well sir, it began to look to John as if someone had made a mistake. "Do you know what's the matter with me?" he asked the nurse. "Of course we do," the nurse replied. "Well then, what's all this fuss about?" John wanted to know. "Oh, we do things right in this hospital," she said. And with that she left the room.

John was ready to agree with the nurse. Here was a big, luxurious, private room, a swell looking nurse, and all kinds of service, over nothing but a sore finger. Do things right in that hospital! You're degenerate tootin' they did. John undressed and got into bed. By that time it was three o'clock, and the boss would be wondering where he was. When the nurse came in again he asked her how long he'd be kept there. "Why," said the nurse, "YOU'RE GOING TO STAY HERE OVER NIGHT."

They Wouldn't Listen to John.

"I thought she was kidding me," says John, "but I found out different. In a few minutes a nurse came with a third nurse. The nurse jabbed a needle into one of John's fingers, but it wasn't the sore finger. John tried to tell her she had the wrong one, but she snapped, 'I know what I'm doing,' and John shut up. After a while he said, 'Say, do you know what's the matter with me?' The doctor said, 'The nurse paid no attention at all. She thrust another needle into his arm and shot in some sort of drug. The drug made John feel tired. He wanted to go to sleep, but by that time he was pretty sure something was wrong. He was beginning to get scared.

The drug dulled John's brain, but he fought off the drowsiness that was coming over him. Two more nurses came in with an orderly who was pushing a table on wheels. They put John on the table and wheeled him off to an operating room. John roused himself from the stupor the drug had put him and once more he asked, 'Are you sure you know what's the matter with me?'

"But my voice was weak," John says, "and they paid no attention to me. I began to feel sick as well as weak. I could see all sorts of instruments laid out on the tables around me. The orderly wheeled my table under a big flood light. The nurses began getting ready a lot of bandages. Then I knew something was wrong. They were going to perform some sort of a BIG OPERATION."

And Did the Doctor Laugh Then!

"I looked for the doctors. There were three of them, talking together in a corner. That was where I made my last desperate effort. I was almost passing out from the effect of the drugs I had been given, but I managed to raise one arm and motion one of the doctors over.

"That doctor was the only one who would listen to me, and thank God he did, for another nurse was coming over with the ether and in another minute I would have been unconscious. I said, 'Doctor, are you sure you know what's the matter with me? Are you sure you've got the right man? What's all this fuss about? Anyways! All I've got is an infected finger.'"

Well sir, the doctor lifted the sheet that they'd thrown over John and took a good look at him. Then he started to laugh. But it wasn't any laughing matter to John. He had almost gone through an operation he didn't need!

John never did find out what they were going to do to him. Maybe they were only going to take an arm or a leg off. Then, on the other hand, they might have been going to do something really serious. But what he does know is that his name got him into that jam. There are just too degenerate many John Smiths in the world, and our John Smith had almost got himself cut open on account of another John Smith's ailment.

When the doctors got through laughing they told one of the nurses to dress John's finger. Then they put him back to bed. They told him he'd have to stay there all night because of the drug they'd shot into his arm. But as soon as the nurse was out of the room, John put on his clothes and beat it out of the hospital.

There were too many John Smiths in the world to take any chances. Any minute they might bring another one in, and then they were liable to have John down in the operating room again, sharpening up the knives and breaking out the ether. —WNU Service.

Eagle Feavored Salt Beef

While washing her clothes at the side of a river in Amassia, South Antolia, a woman was horrified to see her mouth-old baby snatched from the river bank by an eagle, which carried the child to a neighboring hill. Hearing the mother's screams villagers climbed the hill and found the tot unharmed. Apparently the huge bird had spared the child's life because it preferred a favorite Turkish delicacy, salt beef with a generous dash of garlic, which the mother was wrapped in the little one's clothing.

Danish Lottery

The Danish Legislature says that Det Kiongløse Klasselotteri (the Royal Class Lottery) was founded in 1723. It is a Government institution and the profit of it enters the exchequer like the other government revenues. Controlled by the state are Landbrugslotteriet, founded by royal concession in 1807, and Almindeligt Dansk Væge-og Industri- (the Danish Weighing and Industrial Lottery), founded by royal concession in 1884. The profit of the latter is distributed among certain institutions and associations with humanitarian and cultural objects.

Western Farm Sinks 200 Feet Into the Earth

H. A. Robertson is shown viewing the destruction wrought on the land he is farming near Buhl, Idaho, by the sinking of thousands of square feet of rich soil into the bowels of the earth. More than five acres has already sunk 125 to 200 feet below its normal level, forming a canyon. This phenomenon of nature, experts say, is due to a great fissure beneath much of southern Idaho and may doom a considerable area.

Devout Immersed in Mass Baptism

By ones, twos, threes—even by entire families—87 believers were baptized in a mass immersion at the non-denominational Immortal temple at Los Angeles. An elderly convert, wringing wet but happy in her religious fervor, is pictured above. The believers were baptized by Rev. A. Earl Lee (right), pastor of the church.

ASTOR KIN BANKRUPT

Francis Ormond French, father-in-law of John Jacob Astor III, one of the liabilities was a bill to a Chinese laundryman totaling $14.88. Mr. French refused an offer of his daughter, Ellen Tuck French, to get him out of his financial difficulties, saying: "I'll always stand on my own feet."

Royal Family Visits Crathie Church

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, with their two daughters, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret Rose, are shown in a carriage drawn by the famous Windsor grays on their way to attend services in the Crathie church in Aberdeenshire, Scotland.

This Unique Bridge Has World's Shortest Life

Swinging a steel beam into place to close the last gap in one of the most unique bridges ever built. Three thousand feet long, one hundred seventy-five feet high, this half-million dollar structure will be swallowed in six months by the rising concrete of Grand Coulee dam, being built by the bureau of reclamation on the Columbia river in Washington. The bridge was constructed as the most economical means of moving concrete from two great mixing plants, one at either side of the river, over the foundation area of the dam, 368 feet wide by 3,000 feet long. A part of the west section of the dam can be seen in the background.

Prints Tune to School Girl Needs

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MYRIADS of gay little print designs wending their way schoolward in the picture fashion is flashing on the screens for fall. There is really no danger of overdoing the print collection for little daughter, for there are so many varieties of textures and design in the realm of washable prints this season mothers can assemble a wardrobe of prints running from playtime and classroom frocks to pretty-party party dresses, and then to have too many for occasions that may arise.

From mother's standpoint the new print collections should and will prove all that they should be in supplying fabrics which will insure her child the joy of being well-dressed whatsoever the occasion, under cottons and rayons and linens that have the "look" of choicest challis and fine crepes.

The thing that intrigues the little folk in regard to prints is that many of the nicest, prettiest prints have been especially designed for them with pictorial motifs that make direct appeal to childhood. Not only are the patterns charming to behold but they are in many instances instructive and entertaining as well. For smaller children there are prints with the letters of the alphabet scattered designfully in all-over patterning. Mother Goose figures too, and boats and ships and birds and animals, fruits and flowers done in a way to capture the fancy of a child.

The washable prints developed this season are unique and lovely. It's a series of perfectly charming prints that we have in mind—artistic creations each of which has been inspired by a song. There are fifteen designs in this collection any of which have been adapted to cotton fabric and are in a way to capture the fancy of a child.

CASUAL COSTUMES SLATED FOR FALL

"Look casual," is the latest slogan being broadcast to women who are pre-occupied with the question of what to wear for early fall. Although both tailored tweeds and softly-feminine garments will continue to be style-right for particular occasions, it's the casual costume that is slated for high-style acceptance.

Suits are always an early-fall favorite but they were never better calculated to make women want to add aside their summer clothes. Already the shops are beginning to display scores of casually cut models ranging from classic two-piece ensembles complete with blouse and topcoat or fur cape.

College Girls in Favor of Low-Heeled Daytime Shoes

Increased interest in sports is given as the chief factor in the college girl's inclination toward lower heel heights on daytime shoes but her inclinations are also influenced by other considerations such as comfort and the suitability of low-heeled footwear to sports clothes.

The prevalence of "girls of more than average height" was one of the reasons advanced for the increased popularity of low and medium-heeled evening shoes.

Shaded Stockings Boon to Woman With Bulky Calves

The woman with overzealous calves can buy shaded stockings which gradually darken in color at the largest part of the leg and thus have very slenderizing effect. These stockings shade from a light tan at the foot and ankle to a dark brown at the calf and upper leg. For summer legs, there are stockings of sun-tan color with feet of dark brown.

PLAID TAILLEUR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Plaid's the thing for your new fall suit if you are seeking the smartest. The one pictured is of heavy plaid linen. It's a real Scotch tartan plaid done in green, dark blue lined with white, red and yellow. Black velvet binds the edges, pocket flaps and cuffs. This makes a stunning costume for early fall and later on you will be wanting to copy it in plaid wool. We are quite sure you will for these stunning plaid jacket suits are the "last word" in chic.

THE NEW CARPETBAGGERY

By DR. THORNWELL JACOBS,

President Oglethorpe University.

The inevitable has happened at last. Old-line Democrats are forsaking the New Deal. Especially have they been unwilling to follow the President in his court-reorganization plan and in his wages-and-hours bill. The chain between the Socialism of the New Deal and the old-line Democracy of former days widens steadily. It is interesting to do a little serious thinking by way of discovering the reasons why this is the case.

The New Deal inverts the pyramids of society. The world is so put together that, while everything on earth is like everything else, there is nothing on earth that is exactly like anything else. This is particularly true of human beings. Not only are they not all created equal, but there are no two of them in existence who are equal. This applies physically, mentally and morally—totally. There are two nations where this truth is most clearly exemplified politically. One is South Africa, where two or three million white men live side by side with ten times as many negroes. The other is the Southern part of the United States, where the same conditions prevail, although only in a few sections of a few states are the whites actually outnumbered. Citizens of South Africa know that they can depend upon Great Britain for the preservation and protection of their interests. Citizens of the Southern part of the United States know that they have only themselves and Almighty God to depend on for the preservation of their rights.

Consider, now, the application of various types of government to such social structures as we have in Georgia. Broadly speaking, there are four such types. There is, first of all, government by the "best" man in the land. They used to call him the King, the man from whom they called him the Caesar, the Kaiser, the Czar and nowadays the Duce, the Fuehrer. In all cases he is the Dictator, and eventually becomes the Tyrant, whether his name is Augustus or Louis or Charles or Stalin or Hitler or Mussolini.

The second type of government is the government by an aristocracy of a few of the "best." One of the finest illustrations of such a government is that of Japan, where, in spite of an apparently democratic substructure, the final say rests with a small group of generals and ministers close to the Mikado. Perhaps a still finer illustration of it is ancient Rome, where the patricians, through a still smaller group, the Senate, ruled the "republic."

The third type of government is found where the pyramid is inverted and the lower half takes charge. We had this during the South during the "carpetbagger" days. France and Russia both had it during their revolutions.

The fourth type of government is the republic, or control by the upper half, the intelligent half, the efficient half, the industrious half of the people. That is the type of government that was founded in the United States in the late years of the Eighteenth Century. It has been steadily undermined by the growth of democracy, which has tended to emphasize the power and influence of the less industrious, the less efficient, the less capable and the less intelligent half of the nation.

When the New Deal inverted the pyramid and put the lower half on top, from the point of view of the consideration of the South during the "carpetbagger" days, France and Russia both had it during their revolutions.

Government, instead of being an agency for the administration of justice and the protection of persons and properties, becomes an agency for the support of such of its people as clamor loudly enough for it.

Second, this support must be given in the American way, not by the dole, but by furnishing honorable work to its recipients.

Third, this work must be furnished at a "living" wage.

Fourth, the amount of this "living" wage is set by Congress under pressure of organized labor.

Fifth, and at wages higher than, and under living conditions easier than those which can be furnished by private industry.

Sixth, money to finance such wages and conditions must be obtained by super-taxation upon the very persons and industries which are unable to pay such prices or offer such conditions to their own employees.

Seventh, inevitably, therefore, whenever and wherever government goes into any kind of business, or offers any kind of work in any sphere of activity it finds itself in competition with its own citizens, destroying their business, driving them from the field.

Lastly—and in particular so far as the South is concerned—we find that the industries and manufacturing plants of the South are subject to the orders of committees appointed by a Congress and President who may, at any time, destroy them by subjecting them to rules and regulations which they are unable to endure.

It is a wise old saying that one dreads a tyrant, not for what he does, but for what he could do. The Southern people have known intimately one system of "carpetbaggering." They do not want another. They have been dragged to Washington for trial; they have been at the mercy of foreign judges sent into their communities to wreak vengeance; they have seen the ignorant and worthless scum of their states sit as Senators and legislators and Governors under the dictation and with the favor of Washington authorities.

They do not want this done again. That is the crux of the whole matter. That is what the Southern Senators and Congressmen believe to be once more on the horizon—government by commissions of foreigners whose purpose is to discriminate against and ultimately destroy the social and economic fabric of the renaissance South.

But whether that is their purpose or not, it would be their privilege, if they so desire. Such a state of affairs may appeal to some sections of our country, but it will be many centuries before it will appeal to the Southern states.—Atlanta Georgian.

MR. FORD'S SUGGESTIONS

Henry Ford, one of the outstanding industrial leaders of all time, has given the people of America a new and startling statement in his statement to the Country Home Magazine that washed out land and farmed out land are a reflection on the quality of the schools. It is not to be expected, of course, that his views will meet with general agreement. Both teachers and parents in large numbers will question the accuracy of his opinion.

The name is true with reference to his further statement that "if you are interested in solving the farm problem, go first to your common schools. Demand that they be made practical." Instantly, the teachers be experienced in the ways of jobs of life.

Nevertheless, there is value in the opinions of one who holds the high position in the industrial world that is occupied by the Dearborn automobile manufacturer. Mr. Ford is not without experience in self in farming operations; at least, from the standpoint of owner and director. His experience certainly is such as to prompt him to view the farm problem from the practical angle. He sees the farm as the raw material that is awaiting utilization and he sees the growing generations as those who either will use that material to advantage, or disadvantage, as the case may be. The schools he sees as the training grounds for the workers.

Being the successful industrialist that he is, employing many thousands of workers who daily are turning raw materials into finished products, Mr. Ford is impatient when he sees all around him the greatest natural asset, the soils, abused and allowed to go to waste and ruin. He is in a position to speak boldly on the subject, and does so. He sees a weakness in the system of farming and couples it up with what to him appears to be a weakness in the system of education.

Is his opinion worthy of consideration? It is worthy of analysis to determine how far he has missed the mark; to see if his thoughts are not worthy of incorporation in the program of rural education. Open minded educators will answer affirmatively. They will weigh his words as expressing the thoughts of a man who has the best interest of his fellow man in mind, and who attends to his own business, and expects similar conduct from the other man. In other words, they will understand that Mr. Ford did not make the statement merely to be talking; he is not of that nature.

That there is substance in the utterances of the automobile manufacturer may be taken as admitted by the program of vocational education already under way throughout the States of the Union. This program, made possible by a so-called Smith-Hughes Act, which provides Federal funds to match money put up by the States to train young people for vocations, including farming. Many of the country's most progressive farmers of the present age are the product of this program.

An interesting commentary on the statement of Mr. Ford is that of Prof. H. H. London, chairman of the division of arts at the South Georgia Teachers College. He is quoted simultaneously by the Savannah News with the Ford statement, declaring that such a statement from a traditional educator is a course and teach those things that are useful in life as it is lived today and tomorrow.

What Georgia needs, says Professor London, "is workers trained in mechanics and sciences, and the country needs draftsmen and designers, skilled mechanics and tradesmen, ceramic artists and experts in soil, forestry, crops and animal husbandry."

But let enough of the academic subjects be included along with those mentioned by Professor London to give the student an understanding of the theory as well as the practice. Teach him both to work and to think. Is not that the great end to be desired, if man is to get the most out of life?—Jacksonville Times Union.

EDUCATIONAL DICTATORSHIP

From the time of the establishment of public schools—which, incidentally, was not very early—a certain liberality in teaching was regarded as essential. To be sure, fixed rules concerning such matters as the three R's were taught and the liberties were taken with mathematics, but in the realms of thought flexibility obtained. On the one hand, the parochial schools were freely tolerated; on the other, Ralph Waldo Emerson's Concord School was founded.

School teachers were felt to have a calling in the same manner, or much the same, as ministers of the Gospel and the teachers, not the state, were in charge of education.

Today there is a different approach. There has been a gradual Russionizing and Hitlerizing of the schools, in that political authorities and political bodies have increasingly dictated what must and what must not be taught. It is generally conceded that the move to govern the minds of the youth through the schools have been based on sincere motives but, according to many educators, the tendency is toward driving pupils through a strait gate and along a narrow way. The phenomenon is far from new in this or any other country. There always has been the parent intent upon making his son a minister or a lawyer, regardless of that son's aptitude for such a calling. The result of such a policy frequently is the approximate ruin of the life of the son, unless he has a large capacity for revolt.—Tampa Tribune.

FLORIDA SETS NEW RECORD IN CITRUS

Last Year's Crops Were Largest Harvested In This State

Lakeland, Aug. 28.—Florida's 1936-37 citrus crop was 15 percent larger than that of any preceding season, establishing an all-time record of 45,451,231 boxes. The previous largest production was in 1930-31, when 39,320,000 boxes were harvested.

Basing its report on Florida Citrus Council Committee records, the Commission gave the first breakdown between the major classifications of grapefruit and oranges. Production of early and mid-season oranges was placed at 12,010,231 boxes; Valencia and other late oranges, 7,609,209 boxes; Duncan and other seeded grapefruit, 12,845,449 boxes, and seedless grapefruit, 8,585,733 boxes. The tangerine harvest totaled 9,016,841 boxes.

Of the total grapefruit, orange and tangerine crops, packers handled 28,847,865 boxes, or 71 percent, in interstate shipments, while the remainder, 16,603,366 boxes, were shipped out of state. The state used 7,305,512 field boxes, mostly seeded grapefruit. Federal government purchases for its relief agencies totaled 124,632 boxes, all grapefruit, while express shipments accounted for 571,960 boxes, of all varieties.

Out-of-state processing plants took 38,064 boxes, and export shipments totaled 56,771 boxes. There were sold in Florida through commercial channels 787,339 boxes, while 2,010,000 more boxes are estimated to have been consumed within the state, without going through packing plants or other commercial channels of record.

Each of the three fruits—grapefruit, oranges and tangerines—established production records during the past season. Of the total orange crop, the Commission reported that 16,603,366 boxes were shipped out of the state by rail, boat and truck. A smaller proportion of the grapefruit crop was moved in this manner, 9,330,733 boxes out of a total of 17,905,182 boxes being shipped interstate as fresh fruit. The disposition of the crop, by varieties, follows:

Early and midseason oranges—12,010,231 boxes; express, 1,240,490; interstate by products, 10,840; export, 8,272; intrastate commercial, 259,263; total, 12,010,231 boxes. Valencia and other late oranges—7,609,209 boxes; interstate commercial, 108,575; intrastate non-commercial, 200,000—total, 7,809,209 boxes.

Duncan and other seeded grapefruit—12,845,449 boxes; express, 1,633,735; express, 1,410; export, 8,272; intrastate commercial, 259,263; total, 12,845,449 boxes. Seedless grapefruit—8,585,733 boxes; express, 1,633,735; express, 1,410; export, 8,272; intrastate commercial, 259,263; total, 8,585,733 boxes.

Tangerines—Interstate fresh fruit shipments, 3,698,998 boxes; express, 61,500; export, 1,410; intrastate commercial, 259,263; total, 3,698,998 boxes. Duncan and other seeded grapefruit—12,845,449 boxes; express, 1,633,735; express, 1,410; export, 8,272; intrastate commercial, 259,263; total, 12,845,449 boxes.

While estimates of the volume of Florida's 1937-38 citrus production will not be available for another month, the figures of the Commission indicate that the total crop during the coming season will be smaller than that of last season.

helped kill the wages and hour bill which he said was designed so that there would be less work for the people. He said he would help long life and also put more men to work. "You are now on your own," he said "and must help yourself."

Pardee paid tribute to what President Roosevelt has done and said that communism is not wanted and that Roosevelt has saved this country from that menace as it cannot thrive when people are well fed and happy.

He questioned whether Lewis is a communist and asked that he be done justice. He is the greatest labor organizer that ever lived, he said and resigned from the A. F. of L. when he could not agree with President William Green. "Hold your judgment on the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. but join the U. C. W. which will admit only Americans and is not communist," Pardee urged.

The fact was recognized by the speakers that the growers and packers must make money in order to pay better wages and that everyone connected with the citrus industry must work together and each is dependent on the other. As Pardee put it, "We are all partners in life."

No definite action was taken towards forming a local but 20 men gave their names as being willing to join. Another open meeting is being held tonight at the Brickell Hall to which everyone connected with the citrus industry is invited. Growers and packers are especially urged to attend and voice their ideas expressed.

It was stated that 25 members are necessary to obtain a charter and the dues would be 50 cents a month.

Employers' Report Deadline Extended

Tallahassee.—The deadline for employer liability reports under the unemployment compensation law has been moved up to September 15. Harold C. Wall, director of the unemployment compensation division of the Florida industrial commission announced today.

"This deadline was moved up because of the fact that many people over the State are away on vacation and it was necessary to give them more time to get their reports in the first mailing. Also many have not sent in this report due to misunderstanding," Wall explained.

"Many people thought that if they did not have eight or more employees they would not have to file a report with this division. Such is not the case, however, for every individual or firm who hired anyone during either 1936 or 1937 are required to file this report with the unemployment compensation division to complete the legal record, even though they do not have to pay taxes. This includes every type of business from boardwalk to farmer, dairy, sawmill, dentist, doctor, lawyer, retailer, wholesaler, hotel or any other type of business. The only requirement is that the individual or firm must have hired one person during either 1936 or 1937."

"In filing the reports, many firms are not including the officers of the firms, either through misunderstanding or through an attempt to evade the law. Mr. Wall also does not understand that they have to include in their report workers on a commission basis as well as the workers who are hired by the employees of the company to do work for the company. It is also required to complete both sides of the report."

Wall warned, "Many companies have started a movement to evade the law by not including the fact that they had eight or more workers for 20 or more weeks in 1936 this company is liable for taxes in 1937 on their 1937 payroll. If they have the required number of workers in 1937 they will be liable in 1938. The law works in two year cycles in this respect."

"The law will be no further extension at the end of this 15 days," Wall stated. "Contributions become due and payable on or before August 15 and if it is imperative that our liability file be completed at once."

Scout News

The making last time was devoted mostly to drilling, preparing for the next Court of Honor, which will be Monday night at the Episcopal Parish House at 7:30 p.m. Upon questioning the Scoutmaster about our new building he said that all work is being continued until the committee starts helping us some more.

All boys interested in Scouting and who would like to join the troop get in touch with some scout and he will be glad to help you get started.

WASHINGTON NEWS

FROM CONGRESSMAN J. HARDIN PETERSON

HOME AGAIN—I arrived home Friday night after leaving Washington at 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon. I stayed over a few days to prove up Florida projects and to move my office from Room 1616 to Room 1504, a larger office formerly occupied by Representative Payson of New York. My Lakeland office is now open.

I plan to go into every county in the District as rapidly as possible, and I am sure glad to be back home to the best looking country I have seen.

FLORIDA COMMITTEE ASSIGNMENTS.—We have been working from time to time as to the assignments of Florida Representatives and Senators, so for the information of the public the Senate committee assignments are listed as follows:

Senator Andrews: Immigration, Interstate Commerce, Naval Affairs, Public Buildings and Surveys.
Senator Pepper: Commerce, Education and Labor, Inter-Continental Canals, Foreign Relations.
In next week's column I will give the assignments of the members of the House.

SHARK OIL AND TUNG OIL

In view of the abundance of fish in the Gulf Coast and the development of the tung oil industry, Florida readers will doubtless be interested to know that the producers of tung oil in the Yamacraw River Valley endeavored to get as much oil as possible through Hankow with the result that 23,656 tons came to the American market in June and July.

Shark oil has been invented a process by which shark oil is used as a lubricant for airplane motors and other motors with temperatures as low as 45 degrees below zero. High grade shark oil is also used in the hardening of steel and the tanning of leather with low grade oil, after being hydrated, is used in the manufacture of hardened oils.

PAN AMERICAN EXPOSITION BILL.—The Pan American Exposition bill is now a law, the President having signed it. Conferences with the Department of Commerce which will have charge of the American participation indicate the enthusiastic cooperation of the Department. This bill was on the consent calendar, and was passed in the final hours of the first session.

INCREASED COMPENSATION TO VETERANS' DEPENDENTS

General Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans' affairs, announced today that the first regulation under the new law increasing death benefits to widows and dependent parents of deceased veterans will be in effect. These regulations, a dependent parent now receiving $15 per month will receive $20; a widow now receiving $15 will receive $20; a widow now receiving $15 will receive $20; a widow now receiving $15 will receive $20.

A dependent parent now receiving $15 compensation and less than $10 insurance will be increased to the difference between $25 and the rate of insurance. For instance where a parent is now receiving $5.75 on insurance, and $15 on compensation, the latter will be increased to $19.25 to make a total of $25. A dependent parent now receiving $15 compensation and $10 insurance will not be increased. This same policy will apply where a dependent parent is receiving $20 and less than $25 insurance, and the compensation will be increased so the total of the insurance and compensation will be $45. Where the parent is now receiving $20 compensation and $25 or more insurance, there will be no increase. The effective date of these increases will be August 16, 1937.

FLORIDA PROJECTS APPROVED.—Included in projects approved for last week were road projects, county reindexing projects, archeological projects, age and grading school projects, new star routes, etc.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

"Man" is the subject of the lesson-lesson in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, September 5.

The Golden Text is from Genesis 1:27, "God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-lesson is the following from the Bible: "Do all things without murmuring and disputing; that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world" (Phil. 2:14, 15).

The lesson-lesson also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Man, in the likeness of his Maker, reflects the central light of being, the invisible God. As there is no corporeality in the mirrored form, which is but a reflection, so man, like all things real, reflects God, his divine Principle, not in a mortal body" (p. 308).

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Jack P. Dalton, Pastor

The First Baptist church will start their two weeks revival Sunday morning, September 5, with the Rev. Jack P. Dalton preaching the sermons. The subject of the Sunday morning sermon is "A Man Who Wrought Great Things." All revival sermons will start at eight o'clock. Harold McClelland will lead the singing.

During the revival there will be special nights, with the sermon Monday night for the Ladies Missionary Society, the subject is "God's Recipe." Other special nights will be announced later. We invited everyone one to come out and enjoy this revival with us.

HOW TO USE ELECTRICITY

Efficiently

Don't waste your electric service. Get your full money's worth for every kilowatt hour. By checking up on your lamps and appliances, from time to time, you can assure yourself of efficient use of electric service.

How old are your lamp bulbs? A lamp bulb begins to use more electricity as it gets old. Bulbs that are used regularly, such as kitchen, dining and living room lamps, should be replaced every six months. Bulbs that are turning gray are current thieves. They are stealing current and not giving a full quota of light.

Inefficient lamps designed more for decoration than for reading are not giving you your money's worth. Development of the science of lighting in the last few years has produced a lamp that gives a maximum light at a minimum cost.

High speed electric motors such as vacuum cleaner motors should be cleaned and inspected from time to time, especially if they heat excessively.

Check up on your light bulbs and appliances. It will save you money.

THE FAMILY ALBUM—BONE WORK

They're Cinches to Sew

YES, the sewing bug will get you, if you don't watch out, young lady! And when it does there will be a hum in your life (and we don't mean head noises). Right now is the time to begin; right here is the place to get your inspiration. So all together, girls: it's sew, sew, sew-your-own!

Inspiration Number 1. The vivacious model at the left is the number 1 piece for your new autumn advance. It calls for taffeta, embellished, as you might expect, with grosgrain. You may use vivid colors too. Mildly, for Fashion has gone color mad this fall. Reds of every hue, bright blues, lavender, warm browns, all are being featured in smart evening shops along the Rue de la Paix.

Morning Frock. For most of us, each day demands that a little work be done. Sew-Your-Own appreciates this and the need for frocks that are practical, pretty, and easy to keep that way, hence the new utility frock in the center. Five pieces are its sum and total; seven mornings a week its cycle. Any tubwell fabric will do nicely as the material—try one version in printed rayon.

Tailored Charm. The waistcoat used to be a gentleman's identification, but, alas, like many another smart idea, womanhood has copied it. Here you see an attractive example of this modern contraband. Not only does it have suavity, but it is entirely feminine, as well. The exquisite waist line, sweet little collar, and puff sleeves, make this a number you can't afford to pass up.

The Patterns. Pattern 1363 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 40 bust). Size 14 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material, plus 1½ yards of ribbon for trimming, as pictured. Pattern 1354 is designed for sizes 14 to 40. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 35-inch material. Pattern 1252 is designed for sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material.

STOP THOSE CHILLS AND FEVER! Take a Proven Medicine for Malaria. Don't suffer like a dog! The minute you feel a chill or fever coming on, start taking Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. This good, old medicine will soon fix you up.

A Good Laxative The bad feelings and dullness often attending constipation take the joy out of life. Try a dose of Black-Draught at the first sign of constipation and see how much better it is to check the trouble before it gets a hold on you. Black-Draught is purely vegetable and is so prompt and reliable, it requires relief from constipation by taking purely vegetable.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND? YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unappreciative, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

Favorite Recipe of the Week PREPARE apple sauce by your favorite method and then try this delicious summer recipe. Frozen Apple Pudding. 2 cups unsweetened apple sauce 4 tablespoons sugar 1 cup orange marmalade. 1 cup cream, whipped. Combine apple sauce, sugar and marmalade. If apple sauce has already been sweetened, omit sugar. Fold in whipped cream. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and freeze without stirring until firm (about 2 hours), using low cold control for freezing. Yield: 1½ pints or 6 servings.

Dr. Brewster Named State Surgeon Of Mayflower Society

The National Society of Mayflower Descendants granted a charter to the State of Florida on August 7th, and a State meeting was called at Daytona Beach for the purpose of organization.

Governor General Burnham Standish Colburn of Biltmore Forest, Asheville, North Carolina presided at the meeting and presented the charter to the State Society.

The Governor General opened the meeting by reading the Mayflower Compact and then appointed a temporary chairman and secretary during the election of officers.

Mr. Edward B. Ailing, President of the First State Bank of Deland was elected State Governor and Dr. Guy Ott Brewster of Avon Park was elected State Surgeon of the Society. Dr. Brewster was a member of the New York State Society of Mayflower Descendants and a delegate to the last National Congress at Plymouth.

The offices of Deputy Governor, Secretary, Treasurer, Historian and Board of Assistants were chosen from members residing in widely separated sections of the State, as local interest in the Society had been aroused by the selection of eligible Descendants in Miami, Palm Beach, Orlando, Daytona Beach, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg.

The Charter Meeting was held at the Perrydell, and the annual meeting was appointed for November at the Mayflower Hotel in Jacksonville.

As Florida is now the 29th State in the National organization, it arouses an especial historical interest among members of all State Societies of Mayflower Descendants.

The special historical interest taken by members of other State Societies of Mayflower Descendants.

stant is due to their knowledge that Elder William Brewster preferred Florida as the site for the Pilgrim colony instead of cold New England.

The Pilgrims were at that time exiled in Holland and fear of Spanish persecution and the dread shadow of the Armada still hovering over them caused abandonment of the plan.

It is of interest to all Americans to contemplate the developmental changes that might have occurred in the United States, if the Pilgrims had colonized Florida instead of Massachusetts.

Florida's excellent climate might have saved many of those who died that first terrible winter in New England, and Florida might have been the Empire State, instead of New York.

Three hundred and seventeen years have passed since the Mayflower sailed from England. Twelve generations of Mayflower Descendants have been born and great nations have developed, but the dream of Elder William Brewster has at last come true, and the Mayflower has reached her port in Florida. Bergamot Mint Scent Strong Months citrus, the Bergamot mint, has a strongly lemonlike scent combined with distinct mintiness. Probably it would not go well in juice, but it is an excellent plant to have growing not too near and not too far from the evening area of repose. The scent seems stronger and more penetrating than most mints.

The Cuban car ferry from Port Everglades recently carried one of the largest single shipments of American-made automobiles ever to leave the United States—about $600,000 worth of modern autos, according to the State Chamber of Commerce.
