

Round About Avon Park

by W. C. Beckett

The Baulhina.

We, like the majority of the local citizens are prone to ignore, or just not notice, the many beautiful flowers with which we are blessed. His Honor, Mayor M. E. Covington, has called our attention to the beauties of the Baulhina trees which abound here. They are sometimes called the butterfly or orchid tree and are now in full bloom.

Mayor Covington says that he and his wife planted over 100 several years ago on every street running north and south from the Mall, from Verona avenue to the railroad but only nine lived, three on Lake avenue three on Forrest and three on Butler avenue.

The mayor offers free seed, either of the white or purple variety, to anyone who wants them. They must be planted immediately, he says, and with care will be up in a week's time.

Along this line and very much to the point, the following letter has been received:

Mr. Editor:

Sitting with a group of winter visitors recently, I heard one man remark, "I don't believe the inhabitants of Avon Park realize their opportunities. They have their beautiful Mall which only needs the color so easily procurable in Baulhina or orchid trees, to make it the most exquisite thing in this section."

"I walked around Lake Verona and down around Pine to the south end of the park and saw the delicate color and fragrance of those orchid tinted and white trees and I wondered why every owner in the town did not plant one or more in his yard along his sidewalk."

The speaker was a man who had traveled and seen much of the world and is enjoying his stay in Avon Park.

His hearers agreed with him entirely. They hope that some future winter the Baulhina trees will glorify this highland town and make it celebrated for its beauty.

Your mayor, anxious to see this work undertaken, will be glad to furnish free seeds of both varieties which must be planted as soon as seeds have ripened, which will be in about three weeks and will bloom in two years.

An admiring winter visitor, SOPHIE G. WOODSON, February 23, 1938.

"Orange Suckers"

Another idea from the mayor. He would make us a nation of orange suckers, as evidenced from the following letter which speaks for itself.

Feb. 21, 1938

Dear Sir:

The "Cracker" Way.

Once, coming down on the bus from St. Augustine, a lady sitting next to me, attempted to eat an orange. Of course the juice not only squirted all over her but her neighbors as well.

I took an orange and peeled it down about one third of the way from the blossom end and sticking a hole through the rind, I squeezed a few drops of juice into the hole and the juice extracted by sucking. Every person on the bus immediately tried to do the same and I believe their thirst with comfort.

I would suggest that this idea be used in advertising Florida oranges, which being very heavy with sugar and juice and having thin skins are not easily peeled with the exception of those of the "Temple" variety. Children taking them to school to add to their lunches could have them peeled this way at home.

The rag holding them firm and being easily punctured with a needle when ready to be sucked. This would also be a convenience for families, lunches and other gatherings, eaten as the "Florida" suckers do, it is not only the neatest method but the most wholesome.

If this practice was understood and made general every child in the country would demand Florida oranges, because the California ones are a skin to tick and brittle when ready to be sucked. Another way to popularize this method would be to offer a prize knife to a child who could cut a piece of orange away from turning in a clean orange wrapper.

Yours very truly,

M. E. COVINGTON, Mayor.

P. S. The rag referred to in the letter is a skin between the peel and the orange meat.

At the regular February meeting of Leigh chapter, O. E. S. Mrs. May McInnis, visiting Eastern members were special guests. An interesting and entertaining program was presented by the officers and members. After a social hour, the meeting adjourned.

Maple Leafs To Have 30 Players in Training Here

When the Toronto Maple Leafs report for Spring training at Avon Park in Florida about the middle of March, Manager Howie will have about 30 players in camp, including the three Ontario amateurs who have been selected for the trip.

In contrast to last year, the Leafs will have capable players for every position. Present indications are that the greatest battle for regular berths will be waged among the infielders. Recent deals made by Howie have strengthened the inner defenses of the team and increased the competition for each post. Joe Gantenbein will have to contend with Bill Urbanski and Don Ross for the shortstop job providing Ross does not make the grade with the Detroit Tigers. It is manager Howie's intention to give Ross a chance at the shortstop berth because of his great "knowing" ability. Gantenbein and "Flea" Clifton will have to battle it out for third base job in that event.

position with which both players are familiar. There is the chance, also, that Urbanski will prove to be the best man for the job despite his lay-off last season.

There will be grim contention for the second base position, too, and don't be surprised if Al. Smith emerges from the battle with a strangle hold on the keystone sack. Howie thinks highly of Smith and it will be no surprise to him if the strong, rangy youth from Wilmar, California, proves the logical choice for the job. Smith batted .321 for Smith's Fall in 105 games last season, and fielded .948. He figured in 59 double plays. He has plenty of natural ability together with a throwing arm that is above the ordinary. Smith is the determined fighting type of ball player that Howie loves. He is likely to give Ross a chance at the shortstop position from Clifton, who is a fine fielder, but just a fair hitter judging from his .253 average for 107 for third base job in that event.

Principals and Coaches Gather To Plan Cage Tourney Here

Principals and coaches of the high schools in the sixth district gathered here Saturday to plan the basketball tournament which will be staged here in the Armory on March 3, 4 and 5. The meeting was preceded by a luncheon at the Jacaranda Hotel. Those present were: Arthur Wagner, Coach, Avon Park; Stanley M. Reeves, Principal, Avon Park; R. D. Mitchell, Principal, Fort Meade; James L. Webb, Coach, Fort Meade; W. D. Cole, Coach, Titusville; Ed. Crews, Coach, Auburndale; Burch Cornelius, Coach, Haines City; F. M. Wild, Asst. Coach, Sebring; John Sellers, Vero Beach; "Swede" Phillips, Coach, Vero Beach; Ross M. Croley, Asst. Coach, Vero Beach; Marwood Stark, Coach, Mulberry; W. H. Purcell, Principal, Mulberry; James Davis, Coach, Frostproof; Crockett Farnell, Coach, Haines City; Jim Melton, Coach, Sebring; A. L. Entr, Asst. Coach, Brewster; M. E. Wooten, Principal, Sebring; M. Ferguson, Principal, Sebring; E. Alban, Principal, Bartow; Bob Pitman, Coach, Bartow; V. E. Dozier, Principal, Bartow; Chester Viles, Avon Park; I. W. Brank, Coach, Cocoa.

Times Installs New Engraving Plant and Photographic Dept.

Keeping up with the trend of the times and in order to give its host of readers the latest and best, The Avon Park Times has just installed a complete photo engraving plant and a photographic department. Complete and modern in every respect, this new equipment will enable the Times to publish many local pictures in the future. Some can be seen in the paper this morning. The new equipment was installed in the Times building on Saturday.

The "front office" has been remodeled to accommodate the new room, necessary for this kind of work and the plant is in full operation.

Besides being used for news pictures, engravings can be made for advertisers and job printing customers, two types of "screen" being available, taking care of all kinds of work.

Visitors are invited and will be welcomed at any time.

Interesting Quiz On Rotary Program Wednesday Noon

With Prof. Stanley N. Reeves in charge of the program of the Rotary Club Wednesday noon at the Jacaranda Hotel an interesting "quiz" contest was staged between the old and new teams, the visitors also participating. The contest was a very interesting one, with a variety of general knowledge questions were asked and proved stumbling blocks for a number of the members present. A. McKee, Elmer and Rev. A. C. Elliott acted as the judges.

Included on the program were two French horn solos by Charles Sherman. He was accompanied on the piano by Miss Barbara Betts. Visitors for the occasion were: Cliff Harper of Bartow, C. G. Gibson of West Liberty, La., Rudolph Fried of Bailey Hall, Ross McGregory of Swiswille, Pa., W. H. Kempton of Avon Park, T. E. Todd Jr. of Baltimore, Md. and John A. Harbort of Sullivan, Ind.

W. W. Lunsford Died Tuesday Evening

W. W. Lunsford, 70, died Tuesday night after a long illness. Interment was Thursday afternoon at Laurel. He had been a resident of Avon Park for the past 10 years, coming here from Alabama.

He is survived by two sons, W. C. Lunsford and A. A. Lunsford and two daughters, one of whom lives here and the other in Mulberry.

LIKE AVON PARK

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb Lampkin of Athens, Ga. are guests at the Jacaranda Hotel. Mr. Lampkin is a retired businessman, 55 years of age and is much pleased with the hospitality accorded them in Avon Park. He also commented on the cleanliness of the city. They have as their guests for a few days, Mrs. Bordenleith and two daughters, Mrs. Rhodes and Mrs. Williams, also of Athens.

Championship Games Being Played At Haines City

This Week

(By W.A.S.)

At a meeting of coaches immediately following a luncheon at the Jacaranda hotel, Saturday afternoon, details and seeding of teams were worked out for the Ridge Conference Basketball Tournament to be held at Haines City, Thursday and Friday, February 24th and 25th of this week. The Mulberry Panthers were seeded for the number one position, while Avon Park took second position. Haines City and Sebring were the winners of third and fourth positions.

There will be about twelve teams represented at the Ridge Conference Basketball Tournament this year, all striving to take the championship title from Avon Park who won top honors last year. The first game of the tournament will start at 2:30 P. M. Thursday afternoon between F. M. I. of Haines City and Ft. Meade. This game will be a toss-up as both teams or about equally matched. There will be two championship games this year one for the boys and one for the girls. The girls championship will be played off between Ft. Meade and Mulberry, preceding the boys final.

The pairing and schedule of all games are as follows:

Friday Games

2:30 P. M.—Frostproof vs. Lake Wales

7:00 P. M.—Sebring vs. winner of F. M. I. and Ft. Meade game

8:00 P. M.—Brewster vs. Mulberry

9:00 P. M.—Avon Park vs. winner of Frostproof and Lake Wales game

10:00 P. M.—Auburndale vs. Haines City

Semi-Finals

7:00 P. M.—Consolation game

8:00 P. M.—Championship game between Ft. Meade and Mulberry

9:00 P. M.—Finals for the boys Ridge Conference Basketball championship.

JUDGE SIGNED BOND REFUND VALIDATION

Mandamus Filed; F. H. A. Says Bond Refunding Required Before Can Act

Judge W. J. Barker signed the validation decree Tuesday on the Avon Park refunding bonds, clearing the way for the refunding program to go forward.

An alias peremptory writ of mandamus was filed in Federal court at Tampa this week by attorneys for L. W. Rittenhouse who is asking mileage to pay indebtedness of the city of Avon Park amounting to $72,084.10, evidence of which he claims he owns in the form of bonds, coupons and other securities. The mayor and members of the city council have been served with copies of the bill of complaint which will come up for hearing next week.

In connection with the bond refunding program the following letter has been received by a local citizen from M. M. Parrish, state director of the Federal Housing Administration. The letter reads:

"The new literature covering the 1938 Amendments to the National Housing Act has not yet been received from the printers. Therefore, I cannot comply with the request received today from the Housing Administration to send you full information on the new Housing program."

"The difficulty that we have had at Avon Park is the past, and which still exists, is the condition of the bonded debt of the city and the county. It is very necessary for the Housing program to be carried through, but he could not give me any idea as to the length of time it would take before this would be done."

"The National Housing Act charges the Federal Housing Administration with the duty of insuring only economically sound mortgages, so I am going to suggest that you take this matter up with the authorities in your city and lend every possible effort to the working out of their bond debt situation in both the city and county, as this will be necessary before the program of the Federal Housing Administration can be of any service to Avon Park."

This letter was dated February 15, 1938 and Mr. Parrish had apparently not been informed that the county refunding program had been started and is functioning nearly 100 percent.

With the signing of the validation decree, Barker it is hoped that Avon Park's refunding program will progress rapidly and that the "hold-out" bond holders like the Red Devils and Roger Babson will fall in line and work with the R. E. Crummer Co. on the refunding program.

Babson is quoted as saying he will refuse to cooperate and intends to get every penny coming to him under the judgement he has against the city.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"The Murdering Horde"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Reader

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Here, boys and girls, is one of the strangest yarns I have seen in a long time—sent to me by Edward E. Kaplan of New York City. It is a story that takes us to India, the land of oddity and mystery—to the year 1928 when, as Ed says, wild animal films were coining money for their producers.

Ed is a movie cameraman, and that's how he happened to be in India with a crew that was taking animal pictures. They were in the Rajmahal hills, near Karharbari, in Behar province—quartered at the edge of the jungle, not far from the tents of a semi-savage native tribe. The natives were friendly. Somebody had once built a mud and plaster house up there. So the movie crew moved into it.

Says Ed: "One of my first acts was to take out my girl's picture and nail it on the wall. A native boy frowned as I started, but I ignored his warning. As I drove in the first nail the plaster crumbled, leaving an inch wide hole. The boy drew back, and I soon knew why.

Black Bugs Came Out of the Hole.

"An ugly black bug came out of the hole—and dozens and scores more followed the first. I couldn't stop them until the boy brought a piece of wet paper to plug the hole and killed all those crawling around us. Then I understood why the natives lived in tents. Hordes of insects hollowed the walls of every house built in that locality."

Now let's leave those strange bugs till later. On the twelfth day, Ed came down with fever, and the crew went off leaving him behind. Ed tossed feverishly on his cot all day. In the evening they still hadn't returned, so Ed spent that first dreadful night alone.

At dawn, though, he was awakened by loud cries from the native tents. He lay still for a while, wondering what was wrong, for he felt too weak to get up and investigate. By raising himself on his elbows, though, he could see through the open doorway. The sun beat down with a bright, powerful heat, and the ground shimmered like lacquer. Then, strangely, a shadow—no shadow—an immense black one, where no shadow should have been.

Still They Came Mounting Up and Up.

It was a long time before he realized what that shadow was. Then, suddenly, he saw them. They came in a great wave. Ed had seen these ants in small groups. They were long, and black, with vicious biting fangs. He had heard that they came in a great seasonal drive and that then they devoured everything that was before them.

Nothing Could Stop the Ant Horde.

The natives said they could kill a trapped elephant. No matter how you fought them they came on and on—millions of them to replace all that could be slain.

"My cot," says Ed, "offered me no safety from that oncoming horde. I was too weak to run. There was a half-barrel of boiled, purified water in one corner of the room. Also there were several film cans. I dragged myself over to them.

"The leading corners of the ant pack were on the door sill as I filled four of the film cans with water and dragged them over to the table. In a few minutes I had each table leg resting in a can full of water. When I had finished, several ants were climbing my ankles. I staggered to my feet and crawled up on the table."

Ed had no sooner gotten himself set on that table than the ants began coming in droves. The floor became black—solid black—every inch of it. And still hordes of the insects came crawling on. They poured into a mouse hole in the wall. They scoured nests of other insects looking for eggs. They swarmed over the movie crew's food supply like one great black blanket. An army of them tried to reach Ed. As fast as they mounted the water cans to reach the table legs, they drowned.

"But," says Ed, "the army didn't stop. The live ones began crawling across over their bodies. They got to the table legs. I smashed them as fast as I could, but one table leg was covered with them, and still they came, mounting up and up."

They Fled From the Dreadful Bugs.

Ed began to think he was done for just about then—began to think he had come all the way to India just to furnish a meal to a flock of scavenger ants. But suddenly there was a crash. A wall, undermined by the ants, collapsed. Plaster fell all around. Then followed a strange spectacle.

"Out of the wall," says Ed, "came a shower of the ugly black bugs that I had seen the day before when I tried to tack up my girl's photo. At the sight of these bugs, the ants turned to flee. The black bugs went crawling after them. Dead fought death!"

"The ants outnumbered the bugs, thousands to one. They could have slaughtered them easily. But they fled before the bugs as though they dreaded their very sight. Sicker than ever, I watched the shadowy wave move on. In half an hour not a single ant was in sight but I stayed on the table until late that evening when the members of my party returned. If they hadn't taken my camera along with them what a picture I could have filmed. And all they got was a 'shot' of a swinging monkey!"

Dutch Cityscapes

Dutch cityscapes, or etched raised doughnuts, were made with great ceremony. The yeast was set to lighten a little ahead of time. Just before serving this was made into a rich dough by the addition of many eggs, much butter, and nutmeg flavoring. At bedtime the dough was kneaded. Next morning it was shaped into balls, each stuffed with a mixture of chopped apples, raisins, and candied peel. These were left to rise until after dinner, when they were cooked in hot fat and then rolled generously in sugar.

Guns Painting

Though practiced in early art, as Pompeian frescoes show, and in the Middle Ages, gun painting was not recognized independently until the sixteenth century in Flanders, where it was popularized by Pieter Bruegel. It reached its heyday in Holland in the seventeenth century with Gerard Dou, the Dutch, Meuse, De Hooch, Vermeer and others of note and extended to France, England in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Among its exponents were Watteau, Chardin, Boucher, Vibert, Boucher and Wilkie.

Tars Training for Battle

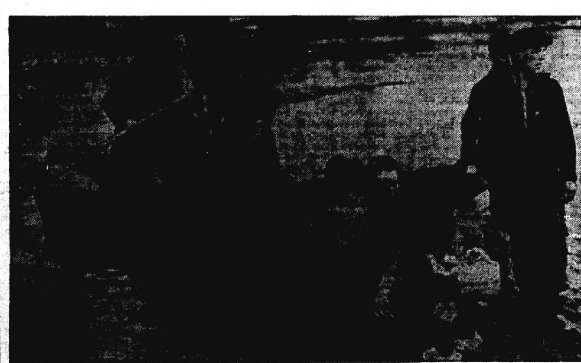

Gas-masked pupils shown during a six-day gun drill aboard H. M. S. Calcutta at Chatham as part of the training of Britain's newly recruited naval personnel. Shortage of shore training establishments because of the size of the rearmament, have made it necessary to use ships at sea for training British tars instead of the customary land stations. With the construction of new battleships, cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers, the personnel of the British navy has been considerably increased, putting a strain on the facilities for training the new recruits.

TEA TESTER

Among the many tea testers assembled by Uncle Sam in New York was Robert Lewis, Mr. Lewis sampled many brands of tea which will determine the standards for 20,000,000 cups of the beverage to be consumed by Americans in 1938. One of them, at least, didn't make a hit with Mr. Lewis. It's the one he is shown holding—and disliking.

JUDY GARLAND, Fanny Brice and Allan Jones, those persistent favorites of the "Good News" radio hour threaten to become top-ranking stars in motion pictures, too, as soon as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer releases "Everybody Sings."

Unlike recent screen musicals that buried their stories under ponderous sets and armies of dancers, this one makes the story all important and just introduces song numbers and gaudy sets incidentally.

It is a story that is so timely. Papa is Reginald Owen, an excitable playwright; mama is Billie Burke, a stage star given to fits of weeping; Judy Garland the awing-singing daughter, Fanny Brice the maid, and Jones, the chef. With the aid of the maid and chef, Judy tries to bring some order into the chaotic household.

Waiters at the Arrowhead Lake lodge where many Paramount companies go on location think that no-top picture acting and strange tastes in food go together. Fred MacMurray demanded maple syrup on his cottage cheese. John Barrymore puts pepper on his oatmeal. Gladys Swarthout whips cream on boiled cabbage, a peasant dish she learned to eat as a vocal student in Hungary.

Because Carole Lombard does not like turkey and cannot eat it without an expression of disgust, a property man on the "Fools for Scandal" set had to fix up something that looked like a turkey leg, but wasn't, for a scene of hers. He just stripped a turkey leg, wrapped it with roast beef, and Carole was able to play the scene with required enthusiasm.

Hollywood players, equally wary of crowds, are joining a back-to-the-farm movement. For some time Barbara Stanwyck has lived on a ranch quite remote from Hollywood and recently the hinterlands have claimed Norma Lov, Charles Winninger, Kay Francis, Clark Gable, Robert Taylor and Carole Lombard.

There is no unemployment problem these days among the Hollywood studio hairdressers. Extras appearing with Norma Shearer in "Marie Antoinette" require the daily services of one hundred and fifteen hairdressers, who draw a total wage of two thousand dollars.

Rumor has it that several of Ray Bolger's best scenes were cut out of "Boswell," but he does not care any more because he is to be rewarded with stardom in "Sou'wester." Audiences at the preview of the "Goldwyn Follies" were so enthusiastic over Phil Baker that Sam Goldwyn ordered his salary doubled on his next picture. Third of the trio on whom good luck smiled this week is Frances Dee. Paramount was impressed by her work in "Wells Fargo" and her current "Marching Heralds" that they have given her a glamorous role opposite George Raft in "Racing Form."

ODDS AND ENDS—Don Wilson, Jack Benny's announcer, plays himself in "Radio City Revue." Fred Astaire and Gene Kelly are inseparable pals in "The Gay Divorcée." Ever since Cary Grant's old days as a hoofer in "Something to Sings About" he has been dance man. Henry Youngman long on the Kate Smith hour made a tremendous hit in a Hollywood night club with the result that you will be seeing him in motion pictures soon. Dick Powell is dissatisfied with his radio program "Dick's Picks" and is looking for a new one. He gives no more authority over what he plans than a Western Newspaper Union.

Applique Swans Lend Fresh Note to Linens

State Press Comment

THINGS ONE REMEMBERS.

A free, uncensored and unlicensed press is the greatest safeguard of the rights and liberty of American citizens. Never was proof of this more apparent than today, when the editors in every part of the nation are discussing the value of the press as public servants, from the President down. In the majority of cases they are doing this from a non-partisan angle and purely for what they believe to be the best interests of the nation.

An example of this is an editorial by Roy H. Johnson, editor of the Washington Post, W. Va. Tribune, a column and a half he comments on the general smear campaign that has been underway against so-called big business to try to divert public attention from underlying causes of the present business depression. He takes for his text the inflammatory statement that 60 families control the nation. He then points out that his section of Virginia has become highly industrialized and that its industries are backed by some of the big businesses condemned by politicians, including members of the "60 families." He says the local people can personally check up on industrial conditions in his territory, as to working conditions, living conditions and general treatment accorded to employees.

He asks why the defamers of big business don't name the industries to which they refer, instead of trying to inflame the public against big business. He says he cannot get the view point of the politicians who make blanket accusations against industries whose investments and activities have brought progress, made it possible to build paved roads, improve and broaden the educational system, first through direct taxes and second through wages and taxes that flow from wages. He points out that following such progressive modern industries, have come medical and social services previously unknown to many of the people in his section of the country. In concluding his editorial, he says, as to these slandering-back attacks against big business: "If there is a financial leader or a corporation in this nation who is exploiting any human being, that individual or that corporation should be forever held up to scorn. . . But what we want to know—who are these people who are these businesses? Let's get down to specific names, and lift the stigma of public attack from those who are innocent."—Editorial by R. M. Hofer.

OH! WE SUCKERS!

We have about come to the conclusion that the average county newspaper man is the biggest sucker around. Run through the columns of the average office and you will find columns after columns of advertising matter run as news, costing the management hundreds of dollars, for which they receive not a thin dime.

The governments, at Washington and every state capital, are among the most flagrant "suckers." Notwithstanding the fact that much is done by them to make the life of the average editor anything but a bed of roses, managers of bureaus and departments seem to maintain a gang of propaganda specialists to clutter up the mail of the newspaper man with political and party advertising disguised as intelligence of the Fourth Estate, much of it finds its way into the printed page instead of the wastebasket where it belongs. It is a sick, smooth way the politicians have of blowing the trumpet and fooling their voters, and the dumbhead who plays the printer and stand-off the paper bills fall for it nine times out of every dozen. Yes we do it, myself, yes we have a half barrel wastebasket right at our left hand. The trouble is we are either too darned lazy to read and select interesting matter of which there is an abundance, or else we haven't the intestinal to stand up to these grafters and give them a kick in the pants. We just gobble the bait; hook, bob and sinker, like the rest of you suckers.

Our prayer and the prayer of the average editor should be: Oh, God, give me just a few brains and stamina enough to make the political parasites pay for their advertising or else make them resort to posters, their yearbooks and the Congressional Record.—Winter Haven Chief.

JOE CRAIN SAYS IN THE JACKSONVILLE AMERICAN.

Newspapers throughout the state seem to have remembered, collectively, the hidden "big stick" in the General Appropriations bill passed by the last state legislature, and are calling upon Governor Cone to wield it. The "big stick," of course, is that now widely publicized section 9 of the measure, which gives the governor authority to order costs out of any department and, if the order isn't obeyed, to cut them himself. When the legislature passed the appropriations bill with that rider attached, it must have done so with its tongue in its cheek. The lawmakers must have known they were, in approving recommended appropriations, laying out a course which might lead the ship of state upon the financial shoals before they convened again. And so, with the Cone pledges of economy still in mind, they handed him the axe with which to trim the ship's ballast.

From surface indications the state seems to be getting mighty out of control, financially. A general fund deficit, and mounting piles of unpaid bills, seems to the layman more than sufficient excuse for any expense-paring Governor Cone might indulge in, through the exercise of his power. The only thing, in particular, should demand immediate action, since the thousands of dollars in discounts being lost through the delayed payments could more than run a few state departments that are now going further and further into the red.

Governor Cone, Floridians have learned, is not a man who can be stampeded into a rash act by the pressure of mounting newspaper paragraphs. Rather, he determines his course and then how to the line, being the chips fall where they may. It is not possible that he has forgotten the power vested in him by the 1937 legislature. . . And few of the taxpayers who expect to claim about fifty million dollars to the state treasury during this year will be surprised to see Governor Cone suddenly exercising his power, and by executive order demanding that his department heads carry out his campaign platform of economy in government.

TWO COUNTIES ADMIT THAT THEIR GRABS ARE ILLEGAL

(Tampa Daily Times)

Two Florida counties, Wakulla and Okaloosa, have admitted the unconstitutionality of their gasoline tax laws applying to them, but 22 other counties are still involved in a circuit court injunction upholding Controller Lee in his refusal to pay out gasoline tax money under special acts which he believes to be unconstitutional.

The special acts were the devices used by many counties to evade the act which gave the State gasoline tax receipts even after the State roads in these counties had long been paid for. It has been brought out that some counties have been using these taxes paid by motorists for purposes far removed from the question back to circuit courts.

When Controller Lee first declined to continue these handouts, the counties concerned, including Wakulla and Okaloosa, fought vigorously to defend the special acts but every court decision thus far has been against them, with the exception of a three-to-two decision of the State Supreme Court which passed the question back to circuit courts.

Now, however, Wakulla and Okaloosa attorneys have admitted the unconstitutionality of the special acts in order to clear the way for payment of gasoline tax funds which are rightfully due them. A similar admission by the other 22 counties involved might clear the court controversy but the special acts ought to be definitely thrown out.

Then it will be up to the next Legislature to bring some order into the chaotic conditions under which the $22,000,000 annually collected from motorists is distributed and spent. There are heartening indications that the public will put this question squarely up to the next Legislature and demand more road building and less treasury-raiding.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

I've been hitch hikin' around the state for the past two weeks in company with "Red" Edgerton of the Western Newspaper Union. It's about the only chance I have to get out and visit with the newspaper boys.

While the 90-mile an hour pace that "Red" maintains between towns is more or less detrimental to a guy's nerves and heart, the pleasant hours spent in company with members of the Fourth Estate at each stop more than make up for the long haul.

Starting with a swing through the Pinellas Peninsula and up as far as New Port Richey, we then turned south covering all coast towns as far as Fort Myers, then east for a quick trip around the Lake Wales Mountains turning north to catch the ridge and interior towns.

While the weather (and we've had a mighty nice brand of it lately) is still an excellent topic, "politics" is always something to talk about in the average newspaper office, and I find that the information a fellow picks up in the newspaper man is usually pretty authentic as far as the local situation is concerned, for no one has a better knowledge of the thoughts and reactions of fellow-townsmen than the local editor.

Interest, such as has been shown so far, centers on the political race, but for the most part it isn't very keen as yet. In the area covered, Pepper was looked upon as the leading candidate, with little if any opposition. Wilcox, next in line, was expected to show increasing strength, particularly in the section for Dave Shott, but many report him as a campaigner and believe he will show up better when he begins actively campaigning.

Finley Moore and Curry Merchant are practically unknown in the territory covered and the average person seems to discount them entirely at this time. It is far too early to form any definite opinions, however, and most folks are waiting for the fireworks to start before attempting to decide which pyrotechnical display appeals the most.

At Fort Myers we enjoyed a visit to the Lee county fair and was impressed with the improvement since I last attended one several years ago. Also as the guest of Louis Almyer was given a personally conducted tour of the Highlands County Fair at Sebring. Both events were attracting good crowds and were very creditable shows.

At Winter Haven found editor George Burr, Jr. directing plans for a gala Mardi Gras from his sick bed, where he is confined with a combination attack of malaria and arthritis. The Mardi Gras promises to be quite an event and is scheduled for the night of March 18, with a gigantic parade, pageant and revue.

Guy Ruhl was at the Rotary Club singing about the "Little Prairie Flower" when we arrived in Frostproof, but we caught up with him later and he took me around to see a sort of citrus Simon Legree: fellow named Major Keenan, who seems to have the faculty of makin' citrus trees that have been injured "dead" sit up and bark.

Keenan operates what he calls a Soil Laboratory and folks with sick or sorry citrus trees call on him to look them over and prescribe a remedy. First thing he does is make a careful analysis of the soil and he usually finds that the trees are "off their feed". He recommends a special diet designed to give them a balanced ration.

So successfully has the Major been that growers are singing his praises all over the state. He has taken non-productive groves and made them produce bumper crops with as high as 90 percent first grade fruit at a cost of around 15c a box.

Like a doctor examining a patient, Mr. Keenan goes down a grove and takes samples of the soil. Sometimes a year, analyzes it to determine just what kind of food the trees have been getting then writes a prescription adding this or that element, cutting down on others, and the results have been truly miraculous.

We Have With Us In Avon Park.

Introducing Walter Warder and wife of Cairo, Ill. who are spending the winter months at the Jacaranda Hotel.

Mr. Warder is a son of an old Southern family who settled at Cairo, where he practiced law for 55 years. During that time he held many offices in the state including that of states attorney of Alexander county and later was appointed master in chancery, which office he held for 45 years, retiring in 1930.

He was active in politics and in 1891 was elected to represent the 40th Senatorial District in the lower house of the Illinois legislature and was re-elected in 1893 and 1895.

In 1896 he was elected to the state senate in which he served for four years. During that time he was elected president pro-tem of the senate and was acting governor of Illinois for two months in 1899-1900 when Gov. Tanner was absent.

In 1904 Senator Warder was appointed commissioner from Illinois to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis and Mrs. Warder served as an official hostess for the Illinois building.

The Senator in 1898 was commissioned a major in a regiment of Illinois volunteers for the Spanish

ODE TO AVON PARK.

Oh! Avon Park, Oh! Avon Park.

Your name will not miscall.

For in the South you stand content.

The Queen amongst them all.

Your lakes are very beautiful.

Their waters pure and clear

And when you look around you

You see beauty everywhere.

Rich fruited orchards give their 'round

And margin with gold they lovely show,

I learn to love these more and more.

Thy skies are always bright and fair.

When sky and lake in beauty meet you,

As you tread your pathway there.

On every side new beauties greet you.

Youth and beauty here hold sway.

And speed with joy each passing day.

Wisdom and age here come together.

Play bridge and talk about the weather.

The tired spirit here finds rest.

Of all God's gifts the very best;

And midst these peaceful scenes you find

Health of body and peace of mind.

Oh! Avon Park, your joys I'll ne'er forget.

And I will leave you with sorrow and regret;

When other rival spots have been forgot,

You still will be Florida's Beauty Spot.

HON. WALTER WARDER

The Gold Machine

ALCHENY, the professed art of transmuting base metals into gold, has been one of man's dreams for ages. But it remained for a Connecticut Yankee to give it a practical application which, metaphorically speaking, lined his pockets with $200,000 worth of gold obtained from credulous investors in his "gold accumulator."

This was the invention of Prescott Ford Jerneen, once a minister of Middletown, Conn., who interested Arthur W. Ryan, a jeweler, in his plan for extracting gold from sea water. In February, 1897, Jerneen lowered into Narragansett bay in Rhode Island, his "gold accumulator," a flat box containing a small battery, quicksilver and other chemicals and constructed so that the sea water flowed over the quicksilver. When the box was raised 24 hours later what appeared to be gold was discovered in place of the quicksilver and the jeweler's tests proved to his satisfaction that it was real gold—$2 worth.

So he joined with Jerneen in forming a company and selling $500,000 in stock. A stock market built at Lubec, Maine, and the two "accumulators" began bringing up increasing amounts of gold. This went on for more than a year. Then in July, 1898, Jerneen went to Europe and at the same time an employee named Charles E. Fisher disappeared. The "accumulators" ceased to produce gold, for the very good reason that Fisher, who was a professional diver, had been placing the precious metal in them before they were brought to the surface.

When the fraud was exposed, the directors of the company, who had been made victims of the fake, gave back the profits they had made and eventually the stockholders recovered about 35 percent of their investment. There was some talk of trying to extradite Jerneen from Europe, where he was living off the $200,000 he had obtained from investors, but nothing ever came of it.

Nature Faker Par Excellence

THE modern champion of all writers of nature fakes was undoubtedly "Lester Green," of Prospect, Conn. No matter how posthumous his yarns, which several metropolitan newspapers printed for the amusement of their readers, there have always been some people who have believed them.

When he told how a setting of hen's eggs, which he had found in a block of ice taken from a flooded meadow, hatched out chickens covered with fur instead of feathers, a Connecticut farmer wrote to him and wanted to buy some.

When he declared he had discovered the fluid responsible for the curl in pigs' tails and his wife had obtained beautiful permanent waves by rubbing it on her hair, "Mrs. Green" was flooded with requests from women for samples of this magic fluid.

When he told of spraying his apple trees with glue, which not only prevented the apples from falling but also protected them in a fresh condition on the trees throughout the winter, both American and Canadian glue manufacturers wrote to ask what kind of glue he used, hoping to get a good "testimonial."

And there are only a very few of the marvelous achievements of "Lester Green" who was, by the way, the brain child of C. Louis Mortison, Prospect correspondent for the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican-American.

Spectrist Poetry

DURING the second decade of the present century there was a sudden growth of new "schools" of poetry and art, among them such cults as Futurism, Vorticism, Cubism, Dadaism and Phosphoric Prose.

So in 1918 when the publication of "Spectra: a Book of Poetic Experiments" was announced, it was hailed with delight by the "emancipated soul" who were struggling for new methods of self-expression. The authors of this volume were "Anne Knish" and "Emanuel Morgan" and immediately they had a host of imitators who wrote the new Spectrist poetry. Nobody could understand it, of course, but that made it seem all the more important.

Then the whole movement was revealed as a hoax which had been fathered by two authentic poets, Witter Bynner and Arthur Davidson Ficke, who used this method to satirize the current fad in new poetic cults. But, in a sense, the joke was on them. For those who had been duped and had become devotees of "Spectrism" insisted upon continuing to write their verses in that form and to perpetuate the new "movement," which still flourished among some of America's intellectuals.

Favorite Recipe of the Week

For Winter Meals.

SCALLOPED dishes are favorites for cold weather because it is a pleasure to use the oven and because the blended flavor of foods makes such delicious finished products. The tartness of tomatoes complements most any meat that is being served, and while there are almost unlimited ways of making the dish, you may enjoy trying the following recipe:

Scalloped Tomatoes.

1 No. 2 1/2 can 1 tsp. sugar
2 cups bread crumbs
1 tsp. minced onion 4 tsp. butter
1 tsp. salt

Combine the tomatoes with the onion and arrange a layer in a baking dish. Mix the salt and sugar with the bread crumbs and blend with melted butter. Place a layer of crumbs over the tomatoes, add another layer of tomatoes, crumbs, and so on until the dish is filled and ingredients used. Leave crumbs on top. Bake about 30 minutes in a moderate oven (350 degrees).

If you happen to have some sweet cucumber pickles on hand, slice two or three and add them to the above ingredients.

Bejeweled Paints

Several oil painters in the Orient waiting their pictures to glow and scintillate for hundreds of years, use special paint whose pigments are made from the powder of precious stones and minerals. In this point, which retails for about $40 a tube, ground coral is used for various shades of pink, lapis lazuli for the different blues, crystal for shining silver and jade for green.—Silver's Weekly.

The Florida State Art collection will be exhibited here March 10th. L. H. Park is chairman of arrangements.

Federal Theatre
Play Here Mar. 10

Jacksonville—According to the Jacksonville, Fla. director of woman's work and of art and professional projects of the Works Progress Administration, more people have seen the 32 performances of the Federal Theatre's Jacksonville touring company this season than saw 122 productions by the same company a year ago. This astonishing record, which included hanging out the "standing room only" sign on several occasions, the attributes to choice of plays, improved acting and production technique, and to "putting the theatre on wheels"—or taking the theatre on wheels.

Simultaneous with announcement that Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" will be presented by this company at the Avon Park high school auditorium on Thursday evening, March 10th at 8:15, Mrs. Southworth further explained the outstanding success of this company throughout the state as being possible only through the courage and energy of the local sponsors such as Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, principal, who have made possible the presentation of these plays for the residents and visitors in Florida.

But the audience themselves, according to the sponsors' reports, have been responsible for the increases in audiences for the successive productions in Florida Federal Theatre's "animated history of the drama" series, in which "She Stoops to Conquer" is the fourth to be given. Full credit, Mrs. Southworth also pointed out early in an interview this week, should be given the newspapers of Florida who have generously printed advance news stories and reviews of each play.

New York—In keeping with the theme of the New York World's Fair to "Build the World of Tomorrow," the Y. M. C. A. Building on the Fair grounds will be entirely modernistic.

Shake - Up In Scout Troops

The scout troops were rearranged last Monday into three patrols. When the scout master came out with a long slip of paper in his hand, we knew something was up. He started out by naming Junior McConnell leader of Patrol One with Walter Mandis as his assistant. Others in Patrol One are Warren Fields, and Paul Viskakis. Bill Heim was appointed leader of Patrol Two with Charles Lawhon as his assistant. Others in the Patrol are Jack Head and Arthur Crews. Sanford Hartt was appointed leader of the Third Patrol with Earle Palmer as his assistant. Others in this patrol are Franklin Lyle, Tommy Bryant and Bud Johnson, a prospective scout.

Other changes were as follows: Herbert Todd was promoted to Senior Patrol Leader, Calvin Bryant was promoted to Troop Scribe and he also holds the position of bugler. It is expected that Calvin will have his hands full. Jimmie Heim now holds the position of Junior Assistant Scout Master and will be directly in charge when the Scout Master is not present.

The Patrols under their new leaders completed a knot tying contest with Billy Heim's patrol taking first place, followed by Junior McConnell's patrol. Next week there will be a patrol contest for signalling championship. The meeting closed by the Scout benediction.

The new leaders held a short session after the regular meeting. Sanford Hartt, Reporter

Postponed Highlands Hammock Concert Scheduled for Sunday
