

NEW SYSTEM OF STATE AUDITING SOON EFFECTIVE

State Auditor Says Is No Reflection On State and County Officials

Tallahassee, Nov. 10.—(FNS)—The startling lack of the application of ordinary business principles prevailing at the time Governor Clegg took office in the matter of auditing of the accounts of county and state officials and state institutions, many of whom handle several millions of dollars each year, was revealed last week by State Auditor W. M. Wainwright.

"When we started checking up on the last audits made of state and county officials and state institutions," Wainwright said, "we discovered that the accounts of many of them had not been audited in the past five or six years. This was due to no fault of the officials and is no reflection upon their honesty or efficiency, but resulted from the failure of the state auditing department to follow the law which requires an annual audit of these officials. As a matter of fact," he said, "the failure of the state auditing department to audit the accounts of officials as required by law often causes embarrassment, and many of them send in written requests that audits be made. Many times changes in laws affecting their duties are unknown or not clearly understood by them, and regular annual audits gives them the assurance that their accounts are in order or enables them to correct errors made. No private business enterprise would think of permitting any department handling the large sums these officials handle to go without an audit for five or six years."

Among the examples cited by Wainwright was the office of the tax collector of Hillsborough county which collects over a million dollars each year. No audit of this office has been made since December, 1931. The records show that no audit has been made of the accounts of the University of Florida since 1932, and no audit of the numerous departments of the State Controller's office has been made by the state auditor since 1933; during that time the controller's office has disbursed in the neighborhood of two hundred million dollars.

The anxiety of many officials to have regular audits is shown by the action taken by the board of county commissioners of Pinellas county on November 1, when a resolution was passed providing for the payment of the salary of county funds of an assistant state auditor to be assigned to spend his full time auditing the accounts of the officials of that county. Dade county is now paying the salaries of three assistant state auditors who spend their full time checking the accounts of officials of that county.

Operating under the limitations of a reduced appropriation, State Auditor Wainwright has revised the system used by his department with the result that speedier, more economical and efficient audits can be made, and he expects to have completed the auditing of all the accounts of state and county officials and state institutions within the next year.

Fla. Public Service To Again Install Holiday Lighting

R. R. Brown, District Superintendent, has received word from the Orlando office that he should order at once all material necessary to install the usual Holiday Lighting. Mr. Brown says his company is planning to do quite a lot of the year in Christmas lighting, which adds much to the appearance of the community. The lights will be installed and ready to turn on Wednesday, November 24th, and will burn each night until January 3rd, 1938.

Sherman Hurt Art Club Gives In Auto Wreck Merit Awards

Gets Broken Jaw While State Art Club Official Returning From Belton Game

Charles Sherman is in the University Hospital, Augusta, Ga., suffering with a broken jaw resulting from an automobile wreck about six o'clock Saturday morning. Sherman was one of the members of the Avon Park Red Devils who played the Belton high school football team Friday afternoon and was returning from the game.

Others in the car and their injuries were: Eugene Jordan, driver, minor cuts; Bud Ball, had cut in forehead; Edgar Bradbury, bruised right hip and Ray Mathis, facial bruises. Sherman was riding in the front seat with Jordan at the time. The car was completely wrecked.

An unmarked S curve and a slippery pavement were apparent by the cause of the accident. The car negotiated the first part of the curve but Jordan was not expecting the last part and the car got out of control on the slick road, left the road and hit a tree. The boys were taken to a doctor's office at Greenwood, S. C. for treatment and Sherman later taken to Augusta by Edgar Smith who was following two hours later. Smith looked after the boys and some of them stayed with his aunt in Augusta. Smith, who was one of the football party, was delayed in leaving Belton due to minor car trouble.

The principal of the Belton high school and other citizens of the town went to the scene of the accident and rendered all assistance they could, including loaning money for them to return home on.

Program for P.T.A. Is Announced

The P. T. A. program for the next meeting, Thursday, November 18 will feature men and boys. J. C. Still will be program chairman for the day. The devotion will be led by Dr. A. C. Elliott, pastor of the Congregational church. Trumpet solo by Herbert Todd. An interesting debate has been arranged by Chester Yates. Resolved that the War debts of the United States be cancelled. Those on the affirmative will be Charles Moffett and Edgar Smith. Those on the negative side will be James Jordan and Max Mathis. A business session will follow. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

Devils Silence Bull Pups Vap

With First String Men Out With Injuries Make 14 - 0 Score

(By W. A. S.) Coach Wagner's Avon Park Red Devils motored to Frostproof yesterday afternoon, and downed the "Bulldogs" 14 to 0 in their fourth conference game of the season. This game boasted Avon Park's scoring average up to 85 for the season while their opponents have gathered a total of 62 points. After their outstanding defeat from the Belton Warriors the Avon Park team was a little handicapped from the beginning of the game with four of their first string players out on the account of injuries; nevertheless coming through with flying colors, if they were the same as Frostproof.

Avon Park out played the heavy Frostproof team during the entire game, netting ten first downs to the Bulldogs four. During the second quarter, Meriwether, after a 22 yard gain by Touchton, Avon Parks left end on a pass, hit the line for the touchdown and the extra point was made by Touchton on a pass from Meriwether. The team making any further threats during the first half, leaving the ball in Avon Parks possession as the whistle sounded.

Lynn, Avon Park quarterback, who played a neat game of offensive ball and accounting for five of the first downs of the Devils, made the second touchdown in the third quarter when Avon Park kicked to the Bulldogs' 15 yard line and Story, Frostproof's safety man, fumbled after a gain of about 25 yards, Martin recovering for the Devils, after which Lynn crossed the goal line standing up on a long right end run. The extra point was made by Tuten from a place-kick position, leaving the score 14 to 0 for the rest of the game. Smith, Frostproof back, caught a pass in the closing minutes of the quarter and carried it to the Devils 5 yard line where the Bulldogs were held for four downs. This being the only serious threat for the Bulldogs during the entire game. The game ended in a drizzling rain, neither team making any serious gain.

The Line-up is as follows: Avon Park—Touchton, lb; Helm, lg; Martin, rb; Todd, c; Carney, rg; Ward, rw; Wilf, lt; Tuten, qb; Foster, lb; Meriwether, fb; Lynn, qb; Frostproof—M. Edwards, lg; H. Sullivan, lt; N. McLeod, lg; T. Smith, c; Lamb, rg; B. McLean, rg; T. Edwards, rb; backfield men were, Smith, E. Parker, Thompson, and Story.

Haines City Game Decision Will Be Protested by Coach

Claiming wrong interpretation of the rules and biased officials, Coach Arthur Wagner has entered protest against the Haines City game which the Avon Park Red Devils lost by the score of 7 to 6 on October 29. Coach Wagner has written both the State High School Athletic Association at Gainesville and the President of the Ridge Conference at Fort Meade setting forth his objections to the rulings by the referee and umpire of the game.

Coach Wagner asks either that the Avon Park high school be declared the winner or that the game be declared "No contest" in conference standings. He claims that a touchdown made by Avon Park was not allowed in their ruling and quotes the rules to support his contention. He further claims that an official of the game was not in the Haines City players and also to the athletic director and that a second official was a resident of Haines City, none of which complied with conference rules. Wagner further states: "That the attitude of the Referee was so overwhelmingly in favor of the Haines City team, that the morale of the Avon Park team was broken and impaired and their opportunity of conducting a victorious fight lost."

The How and Why of the National Unemployment Census

A nation-wide census of all unemployed and partially unemployed persons in the United States will be taken between the dates of November 16 to 20, by act of Congress, and at the direction of President Roosevelt. Here, in question-and-answer form, is the information you need to know about this plan.

1. WHAT IS PURPOSE OF THE UNEMPLOYMENT CENSUS? To get an accurate count of the unemployed and partly unemployed.
2. TO WHOM WILL CARDS BE SENT? To every family in the United States.
3. UNDER WHOSE AUSPICES IS THE CENSUS BEING TAKEN? Congress has decreed, and the President has directed, that it be taken.
4. IS THE CENSUS COMPULSORY? No, but every unemployed or partly unemployed person is urged to fill out the card.
5. HOW WILL THE CENSUS BE CONDUCTED? Through the facilities of the Post Office Department. Report Cards will be delivered to every family. Cards are to be returned by mail to Washington for tabulation and analysis.
6. WHEN WILL THE CENSUS BE TAKEN? Cards will be delivered on November 16 and must be returned by MIDNIGHT NOVEMBER 20. They are already addressed and no postage is required.
7. WHO SHOULD FILL AND RETURN CARDS? Every person who is unemployed or partly unemployed who is able to work and wants work.
8. WHAT AGE LIMITS APPLY? There are no age limits except existing State regulations concerning working ages.
9. SHOULD MORE THAN ONE UNEMPLOYED PERSON IN A FAMILY RETURN A CARD? Yes. Every unemployed member of a family should fill out and return a card, if able to work or seeking work.
10. WHERE MAY ADDITIONAL CARDS BE OBTAINED? At any post office or from your postman.
11. WHERE CAN INFORMATION BE SECURED IN FILLING OUT CARDS? At your post office or from your postman.
12. IS THIS CENSUS CONFINED TO AMERICAN CITIZENS? No. All permanent residents of the United States are included.
13. IS THE INFORMATION GIVEN ON THE CARDS TO BE CONSIDERED CONFIDENTIAL? Yes. This information will be used for unemployment statistics only.
14. SHOULD EVERY QUESTION OF THE CENSUS CARD BE ANSWERED? Yes. To obtain the most accurate information possible, the President asks that each question be answered. Numbers 9 and 10 are particularly important. However, failure to answer some of the questions will not invalidate the card.
15. WHO IS AN "UNEMPLOYED" PERSON? A person of either sex or any color who is not working and is able to work and seeking work.
16. WHO IS A "PARTLY UNEMPLOYED" PERSON? A person who is not working full time but is able to do more work and is looking for more work.
17. ARE PERSONS ON EMERGENCY WORK PROJECTS INCLUDED? Yes. They should register as unemployed. A specific question, Number 12, is provided on the Report Card for persons working on a W.P.A., N.Y.A., C.C.C., or other emergency work project which is supported by public funds.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The White House Washington

TO EVERY WORKER:

If you are unemployed or partly unemployed and are able to work and are seeking work, please fill out this report card and send it to me before midnight, Saturday, November 20, 1937. No postage stamp is needed.

The Congress directed me to take this census. It is important to the unemployed and to the nation that the census be complete, honest, and accurate. If you give me the facts, I shall try to use them for the benefit of all who need and want work and do not now have it.

Community Chest Drive Starts Soon

Following discussion at a meeting of directors of the Avon Park Community Chest held Monday night at the Jacaranda Hotel it was decided to get out another letter to the citizens of the community explaining in detail the aims and objects of the chest movement. The statement was made that several hundreds of dollars have already been pledged and that after the letter has been mailed a concerted solicitation of funds will be made. The letter will go out into detail at a meeting of the community which is being held at the Avon Park Community Chest on Monday night. The letter will endeavor to explain matters fully and clear up any misapprehension there may be in some minds.

Alleged Game Law Violators Arrested

Game Warden H. C. Townsend arrested George Whittier and Griggs Bigby Saturday and charged them with having quail in their possession and clear up any misapprehension there may be in some minds. The two men were arrested before Judge Selwyn Ives and the case against Whittier was dismissed on the payment of the costs.

Red Cross Drive To Start Monday

The Annual Red Cross drive will start Monday, November 15. The drive will be made by members of the P. T. A., Mrs. Stanley N. Reeves, chairman, Mrs. H. E. Godwin in general chairman for Avon Park. A meeting was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. E. Godwin. The town was divided into sections and workers assigned to each one. The Roll Call is the annual appeal for public support of the regular Red Cross program and one-half of every dollar given for this cause will be spent in Avon Park. One half of the proceeds of the drive will be given to the P. T. A. for their work with underprivileged children. Official workers are, Mrs. T. H. Hughes, Mrs. Ted Ward, Mrs. Walter Betts, Mrs. Mel Bass, Mrs. C. E. Crabtree, Mrs. Neal Trent, Mrs. Francis Shockley, Mrs. R. I. Brown, Mrs. A. M. Morgan, Mrs. Georgia Voorhees, Mrs. C. E. Leaser, Mrs. Stanley Reeves, Mrs. Paul Garber, Mrs. E. G. Todd, Mrs. Jack Head and Mrs. Parker Anderson.

Mrs. Verma Morris of Macon, Ga. has arrived in Avon Park to spend the winter with her brother H. W. Reddick and family. Mrs. Lena Blumenthal, Sidney Blumenthal and Miss Sylvia Bellman of Cleveland, Ohio arrived Thursday and will spend the winter at their home here.

STUDENTS GIVE IDEAS ON PEACE TO ROTARY CLUB

Four High School Girls On Luncheon Program Wednesday Noon

"This was one of the finest programs presented at the present administration" was the way President Paul Garber described the program at the Rotary Club luncheon Wednesday noon at the Jacaranda Hotel. The program was in charge of Chester Yates who introduced four members of his high school class to present a program devoted to world peace and the part youth plays in international understanding.

The four students were, Blanche McCord, Evelyn Martin, Eloise Dickinson and Jane Hart. "Youth, the world's hope for peace" was the subject Blanche McCord spoke on and she said: "Our only hope for world peace is to educate our youth to the horrors of war and the duties of the world are doing great things to promote the unity of friendship among the nations. The American Youth Union Conference was organized in 1934 for the purpose of bringing the boys and girls of the two nations closer together has met every year since then. It has really accomplished a lot. The Boy Scout Jamboree help to bring the boys of the nations of the world closer together. Instead of sending battleships all over the world, why could not the nations send thousands of their young boys and girls on adventures of friendship and understanding to other lands. Thus we could develop among the young people of the world a solid basis for amicable relations in the future. Such a program would not cost half as much as the maintenance of one warship. It would plant the seeds of future peace among nations. To understand each other we must know each other."

Some of you men here today know more about the horrors of war than can ever be properly described by any human tongue. Must our YOUTH OF TODAY be up into womanhood and manhood and have their lives ruined; men who came back from our wars maimed, blind, deaf, dumb, by shell shock, blindness, deafness. Must our youths, the blooming flower of man, be forced to such sheltered life before the nations of the world would be discarded forever. General Sherman expressed himself as "WAR IS HELL."

Species of Candidates.
SANTA MONICA, CALIF.
It takes all kinds of candidates to make up this world. Maybe that's why the world seems so overcrowded.

There's the candidate who belongs to all the secret orders; if he left off his emblems, he'd catch cold; knows every grand hall sign there is; hasn't missed a lodge brother's funeral in years; can hardly wait for the next one to die. No campaign complete without him.

Candidate specializing in the hearty handshake, the shrill der-ap, the bear-hug, the gift of remembering every voter by his first name, and the affectionate inquiry regarding the wife and kiddies. When he kisses a baby, it sounds like somebody taking off a pair of wet overshoes. Usually has a well-beaten wife needing a new hat.

Strutty candidate who's constantly leading an imaginary parade of 50,000 faithful followers. Loves to poke his chest away out and then follows it majestically down the street. A common or standardized species.

Biblical Wisdom.
Chapter II, I came upon this verse: "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall go one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like terrors; they shall run like the lightnings."

Those Old Testament prophets certainly peered a long way into the future. Because I traveled by train through a main thoroughfare leading from Los Angeles to the sea and vice versa, and I knew what Nahum was describing.

Not even an inspired seer of the Bible could imagine a record of traffic mortality so ghastly as the one we've already compiled in this year of grace 1937 A. D. (automobile destruction)—or a people so speed-mad.

How to Fight Japs.
WHENEVER we have a Japanese war scare, I think of Uncle Lum Whittemore, back in west Kentucky, who loved to dispense wisdom as he hitched one practiced instep on a brass rail and with his free hand fought the resident flies for the tidbit of free lunch which he held in his grip.

One day a fellow asked Uncle Lum, who had served gallantly in the Southern Confederacy until a very hard rainstorm came up, what he'd do if the yellow perill boys invaded America.

"I'd hunt me a hollow tree in the deep woods," he said. "Yen, son, the owls would have to fetch me my mail. I been residin' up on them Japs. They're fatalists."

"What's a fatalist?" demanded someone.

"Near ez I kin make out," stated the veteran, "a fatalist is a party that thinks you're doin' him a deep personal favor when you kill him."

Hollywood Fashions.
SOME envious style expert says Hollywood fashions are too garish. If he's talking about Hollywood males, I say they're just garish enough. If they were any more garish than they are, visitors would have to wear blinders, and if they were any less garish, Italian sunsets would stand a chance in the competition. And I want the championship to stay in America.

Billy Gaxton picks out something suitable for a vest to be worn to a fancy dress party and then has a whole suit made out of it. Bob Montgomery's ties are the kind that I buy in moments of weakness and then keep in a bureau drawer because I can't stand those sudden dazzling glares. And Bing Crosby is either color-blind or thinks everybody else is. But his crooning is mighty soothing. And so it goes—red, pink, green, purple, orange, sky-blue and here and there a dash of lavender.

Our local boys gladden the landscape with the sort of clothes I'd wear, too—only my wife won't let me. Stop, look, listen! That's our sartorial motto, and these jealous designers back east can kindly go jump in a dyke.

San Marino

Legend says San Marino, on the eastern shore of upper Italy, was founded in the Fourth century by St. Marinus of Dalmatia. Its total area is 36 square miles. Its known history begins in 1663 A. D. By the Twentieth century San Marino had launched its republic. The Montefalco family and the papacy presided over it. Once it was captured by Caesar Borgia, but soon regained freedom. Napoleon recognized its independence. Garibaldi, great Italian patriot, led to San Marino his last retreat and there disbanded his army.

What Will It Hatch?

Washington.—The old mother hen, congress, has settled down, prepared to hatch something from the nest of crop control eggs. At this stage of the proceeding, no one can make a guess as to the brood that congress will produce any better than a farmer's wife can tell what will be hatched by a real hen in her chicken house.

About all that can be said for sure is that President Roosevelt called congress into special session to enact crop control legislation and, therefore, there is likely to be crop control legislation of some kind. It may not be hatched in the special session, the chances are that the many differences of opinion and the many demands cannot be reconciled in the six weeks which the special session may occupy before the regular session of congress convenes in January.

In addition to the lack of time in which to maturely examine crop control questions, a rivalry has developed between the house and the senate over the honor of drafting and putting through the law which will tell the farmers what they can and what they cannot do as farmers. Let me say just here that such a rivalry may work to the benefit of agriculture because it is bound to mean a compromise between the house and senate on the legislation that finally is enacted. In other words, extremists, for and against any proposal, will have to yield and this may possibly result in some workable program for crop control.

The main question before congress is the type of crop control law to be enacted. There are two kinds. Control may be compulsory or it may be voluntary. Most of the powers that be in the Department of Agriculture seem to favor the compulsory kind—a law that will tell the farmers they can or cannot do certain things and if they violate the decree, they can be punished. Many groups of farmers, however, do not want that sort of thing. In consequence we find congress now proposing the rule that a quota of production should be imposed upon every farmer and that he must pay 45¢ per bushel above the value of his potatoes for every bushel produced above his quota. These growers will remember also the agricultural adjustment administration requirement that all potatoes sold must be packed in a certain way that was prescribed for the grower by the AAA. In this connection it will be recalled how there was a penalty in addition for those who failed to properly package the potatoes they sold.

Beyond these requirements, there was also a penalty prescribed to be invoked against any person who did not properly package his potatoes and place a government stamp thereon. Besides all this, there was an "information" section in the potato control law. It provided something of a bounty for any person who relayed to the authorities any information he had respecting failure of any farmer to comply with the law and the regulations issued thereunder. It was reminiscent of prohibition days when informers were paid to equal on bootleggers.

Now, in addition to these propositions, Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, is promoting what he calls his "ever normal granary" plan. This is to serve as supplemental to the crop control on the production side. The secretary has an idea that the federal government can take the surplus of good years off of the hands of farmers and hold them through the lean years when poor crops have failed to produce the amount required for American home consumption.

The secretary's "ever normal granary" plan is a red hot poker and there will be plenty of sparks flying off of the handle as well as the hot end when this thing is debated in congress. Opponents of the secretary's scheme contend that this program is straight out regimentation and that it goes as far in this effect as anything done by either the Fascist Mussolini or the Communist Stalin. It takes no stretch of the imagination, therefore, to see what is just ahead in the matter of a controversy for crop legislation for the reason that each of the programs has been thus far advanced contains political dynamite.

Chairman Jones of the house agricultural committee began work on drafts of bills for crop control long before the session convened. Several weeks prior to the opening day of the special session, Mr. Jones appointed six sub-committees; each was charged with drafting legislation applicable to a specific commodity. In doing this, Jones threw the door wide open. He included six farm crops to share the alleged benefits of crop control legislation, including the "ever normal granary" surplus control program. The sub-committees were directed to work out legislation covering cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco, rice and dairy products. Inclusion of rice and dairy products came as a surprise. Heretofore, there had been little talk about including rice and none about dairy products. The information that filters into Washington is that a majority of the dairy people have no particular hankering for government dictation in their business. Chairman Smith of the senate agricultural committee likewise has been busy. Throughout the summer he has been attempting to get a line on farmer sentiment by a number of hearings in various parts of the country. From all indications, Chairman Smith, who comes from South Carolina and is a farmer in his own right, is not enthusiastic about too much government dictation in the field of agriculture.

Over on the house side of the Capitol, Secretary Wallace has many followers. Obviously, he will cooperate with them very closely. Indeed, some of the house members who do not like Mr. Wallace or his "ever normal granary" scheme are referring to the Wallace supporters in the house as "Henry Wallace's Phlegm." This indicator better than anything I can say how deep-seated the feelings are.

To add to the complexity of the job facing congress, President Roosevelt has said definitely that if there are subsidies paid to farmers in connection with crop control legislation that legislation must carry additional taxes to take care of the bounty payments authorized. Simmered down, therefore, what Mr. Roosevelt has said is that if the farmers want that kind of crop control legislation, they and all congress must pay for it with added taxes.

I have heard general commendation of the President's position. It surely represents a straightforward policy by the Chief Executive in this regard. He has told the country now that he is willing to support agricultural subsidies through control of the crops if the whole country which has to pay the bill is willing to bear the extra taxes that are required.

Having presented the picture as I see it, it seems almost unnecessary to add any more. There will be two big enormous lobbies bearing down on congress in the special session as well as probably in the regular session that convenes in January. I think I foresee now how Secretary Wallace and those who believe with him are going to operate both with and without the administration. That is to say, there will be administration pressure and when anyone says that there is administration pressure, they are saying nothing more or less than that the administration is lobbying. It has always been that way and it is no exception that the Roosevelt administration does the same sort of thing.

The other lobby will embrace a considerable representation of farmers or sentiment that is opposed to Washington dictation and which feels that additional taxes will have to be absorbed in part at least by agriculture. This happened in the case of a processing tax which was thrown out as unconstitutional. It will happen in every case for the reason that no one is going to absorb taxes when they are passed on. When they are passed on to the farmers, that is the end because the farmer has no place to send them. The consumer is in the same fix.

In addition to this farm sentiment, the lobby in opposition to the Wallace program will include certain other industry aligned with it. It will in all probability be a certain share or segment of the consumer opposition because the consumers will have to pay in higher prices.

30 MINUTES AFTER Eating-Drinking ALKALIZE

AFTER A HEAVY MEAL...

The fastest way to "alkalize" is to carry your alkaliizer with you. That's what thousands do now that genuine Phillips' comes in tiny, peppermint flavored tablets—in a flat tin for pocket or purse. Then you are always ready. Use it this way: Take 2 Phillips' tablets—equal in "alkalizing" effect to 2 teaspoonfuls of liquid alkali from the bottle. At once you feel "gas," nausea, "over-crowding" from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid breath," "acid stomach," "over-acid stomach" are corrected at the source. This is the quick way to ease your own distress—avoid offense to others.

Too often the honeymoon is spoiled by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The whole world knows that the woman who never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "amlin' through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature take up the system. It lessens the discomforts from a spot disorder which women must endure in the three or four days of the month. It is the only "mild" medicine. Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "amlin' through."

Truth is Inevitable
Truth is as impossible to be soiled by any outward touch as the sunbeam.—Milton.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

The momentum of the canoe died away. It heaved, hanging stationary in the current; then, turning about lazily, it began slipping backward with the stream's flow, one end raised high by the weight falling into the other.

From his security in the grasses, Mongazit watched. The craft sped slowly, end for end, as it drifted into the rip of the current. It was set in against the bank below him and the Indian rose, peering down.

Shaw's cheek was pressed to the bottom. His mouth was open, his eyes closed. His hands had given up a sickly paller. He did not move, made no sound. A stain was spreading over the back of his shirt, and blood dribbled to the canoe bottom to form a growing pool, as vivid in color as the berry berries on which his briars stalks overhung him.

Mongazit waited until the craft, lightly touching a snag, wheeled itself free and went on. Then, silently, swiftly, he plunged into the forest. The canoe would be found; three packs of beaver would be his; two men had died at his hand, now, but he might live.

And, about that time, Burke Rickman landed at the point where walling went on, giving the lie to the rumor that he had been driven from his fort by the little trader, somberly making his way to the shore, death of Flat Mouth's son, glaring coldly at the confused Basile when he came with his men who bore a newly made coffin.

He had no fear of Shaw's men, had Rickman; he feared only Shaw. And Shaw was gone, following the scent he himself had broadcast; gone to nose his way into that dead fall so adroitly arranged . . .

He had seen Capes draped at dawn and had bitten his lip in rage, suspecting that even while he warned him to go gently Annette had known the other would not permit him to.

Well, she had frightened him by that strategy last night, but the fright had not been without purpose. It had rendered from his temple the plan which was now nearing fruition. Shaw would be gone, his native friends would not suspect him and the girl was still here.

The girl was still here! Even from the medicine ground he could see fresh smoke rising above her encampment fire. He would attend her. When he had opportunity to let his thoughts settling in, he would attend her. . . . Capes was on his way. Her boatmen would be no deterring influence for him. When he felt ready, now, he'd pull the kitten's claws!

Little Duck chewed the scorched deer meat as the reports of two shots reached her ancient ear. She sat blinking at the fire, at the beginning, gave the sounds no heed. The little trader has passed this way, his gun across the canoe race before him, ready for use. Probably he had fired at game. No matter; she did not care what the little trader did.

She stirred and clamped her jaw on the shred of meat and jerked with both hands to tear off a chunk and her watery eyes glittered balefully. They had left her behind while they attended the grand medicine.

It was not good to be left behind at such a time, when whiskey was in prospect.

She mumbled through the food and stared upstream. As good to put the blame on this trader as on any. If she blamed her daughters, they would only storm at her the harder. One could blame the trader and get into a great rage at him and have no blows nor be chased into the lodge or out of the lodge . . .

She stirred a great rage for him, paddling up the river, here, and shooting at whatever it might have been.

She stopped chewing after a time and sat very still, ruminating. But there had been two shots, close together. A man does not load his gun so quickly as that. Two shots there had been, but only one man had gone up the river and the canoe was empty of people, gone to the medicine . . .

She grunted. It was beyond explaining. The thing troubled her and about which something could be done was wood and she dragged her lagging leg on behind the lodge and began breaking more branches from the dead top of a maple that furnished her fuel.

The canoe, curiously up-ended, swung from bend to bend. Now and then it beached slightly and hung it so, at times for many moments. Then the working of its high end or the undermining action of the current on the sand beneath the bottom would effect liberation. Here and there overhanging brush caught and delayed it, until it was rested against a snag for many minutes, the high bow weaving and bobbing as the current threatened to tow the upstream rail under and left it

Shaw had not moved until then. The stain of red had drenched his shirt. The pool about his cheek had grown large and then lost brightness as blood ceased flowing. His face was white, eyes closed. But the mouth was closed now, too, and he seemed lightly, a bubbling sound.

Mongazit's weapon had been a trade musket and the sight was coarse.

The canoe beneath him listed and bobbed, tethered by a mere touch. A splash of water ran over the rail wetting his knees, sloshing about the one wrist. It was cool; it laved the pulse. The dip which let the water in liberated the craft and it floated on down the current. After it passed the third bend the hand spread lazily on the bottom closed slowly, as though with great effort, and the man moaned again.

He tried to move. He drew the hand up and pushed with it. He stirred one knee, straining to shove his hips upward; then slumped back while the canoe rocked alarmingly.

The shift raised the end still higher. The tops of the trees were bowing to a steady breeze, now, but he might live.

And, about that time, Burke Rickman landed at the point where walling went on, giving the lie to the rumor that he had been driven from his fort by the little trader, somberly making his way to the shore, death of Flat Mouth's son, glaring coldly at the confused Basile when he came with his men who bore a newly made coffin.

heap, with his feet across the rail, head and shoulders in the grass. She let the canoe down again and his feet fell with a heavy splash into the river. She lay there, face to the sun, eyes closed. He looked dead . . .

Zheabeheze tickled her lips with her tongue. Her eyes were bright as she took hold of the withered foot, after many grunts, inside. She fell into the canoe after the foot and it rocked violently but did not tip her out. She got onto the middle cross piece and picked up the paddle. Her breath was quick, and her eyes bright at trader's buttons.

She had a canoe and a fair wind down the lake. They had left her behind, but she had a canoe now! The trader was dead but that did not matter. She had a canoe and whiskey was down there at the medicine lodge . . .

An odd sort of consciousness came at that buzzing loud out yonder to Rodney Shaw. It was a throbbing, coming-and-going recognition of heat and cold and pain, surging forward, swinging backward, coming again; a rhythm of agony . . .

He moaned from the torment of the sun in his half closed eyes. He could not bring the lids together. The glaring light beat into his brain to stir agonies and mingle them with old agonies already there. He rallied all his strength and will in an attempt to shut those eyes wholly and fast. He knew, then, that he must turn his head.

Memorable task! He tried to think steadily about it, but could not; the burning all about him was too great a thought. He braced himself, finally, and tried. The effort made him pant and moan, but he achieved.

The sun no longer beat into his brain. Instead of torturing him, it was comforting with its warmth. His back, his shoulder, one whole half of his torso burned and drenched and stung. His throat was dry and clogged. His head seemed pressed about with a metal band, drawn tight against the skull, and his feet ached with cold. In truth, they did not feel like feet at all; they seemed to be nothing . . .

another end of existence, the pole of cold as against the pole of heat. A realization that half of him lay in water beat its way through the confused roaring that had been only a buzz. He tried to shove himself to a sitting posture and could not. He coughed and moaned from the coughing. He felt his breast with one hand, worked it through the front of his shirt and started to tear the leather away from where he stuck to the flesh, but that was such exquisite agony that the fingers went limp, as did the rest of him. Quickly, consciousness faded.

The sea was lowered when he returned to that surging-retrailing rhythm. He was cold, trembling. He rolled his eyes to see all that was possible: A lodge, a clearing in birches.

"Zheabeheze!" he gasped, remembering the old woman. "Zhe—" But his voice failed.

He tried to concern himself with wonder as to what had happened, why he was here. But it was difficult to concentrate on wonder. What had happened did not matter so much, anyhow. Nothing mattered but the far with the withered leg, or she would have followed by land. But there was a canoe, a gift from Gitchi Manidou!

The lodge pole, though it was dry and light, was a burden for her, especially when she tried to extend it far. But she got the large end against her and grasped it at arm's length and waded into the stream and let it drop across the canoe. She drew the craft in and, panting, grasped its rail, letting the pole go.

She did not look closely at Shaw still she had the canoe safely grounded in the shallows. Then she stooped and peered at him and asked:

"What is done to you?"

He did not answer and she leaned lower, touching his cheek. She began to nod. The flesh was cold; his shirt was punctured; blood was over it and in the canoe bottom. He had been shot. He was dead.

Well, death does not matter. She had seen much of death; it had come close to her many times, but one does not wait for a trader who measures his liquor by the drop. One thinks only of the rum and that there is a canoe.

The moved around the end of the craft to be outside and began lifting at it.

Little Duck rocked the canoe many times, but could not turn it over. She dragged it aloft, moved it a short distance downstream and tried again. The bottom was rocking easier. The log was close to shore, not an arm's length away. She rocked and rocked, rolling the beam in wider areas and, finally, putting all her strength into one great shove, she had it on its beam's end.

The trader rolled out, all in a tance which came close and pressed about him . . .

The burial of a chief's son swung into its full ceremony.

The rough coffin which Basile had constructed was daubed with vermilion and on either side, done crudely in black, was a figure of a crane, the Flat Mouth totem.

The youth's body lay in its finest clothing: soft yellow dokesin, embroidered with beads and quills. About the throat was a necklace of bear claws and the head rested on his medicine sack. Beside him reposed gun, powder and shot and new mitts. Eagle feathers had been placed upon his breast and at his feet were six beaver traps.

Wailing was unbroken, even while old men made talks. Many had spoken high praise for the departed minor and now a young man, a friend of Flat Mouth, stood beside the bier and recounted the virtues of the dead and lauded his own breast with his knife to make known how deep was his grief.

And so, in the midst of all this intense centering about the painted box none noticed the canoe that came down the lake, bearing a single, slight figure who paddled first on this side, then on that, risking disaster in the growing seas, but keeping on, eyes avid and mouth open in expectation.

The ceremony was down wind; Little Duck could not hear the wailing, but she could see the canoe and went the faster as she drew near.

However, it was with amazement that she glimpsed up the beach, leaving the canoe broadside to the breaking seas, and saw what she saw.

"Where is rum?" she asked a man who passed her.

"Flat Mouth's son is dead," was his response.

Little Duck took a long moment of the fire of avidity died in her eyes. No whiskey? Too.

Her lips moved as she mumbled. She hitched the dragged blanket about her wither neck with an angered grip of one arm. No whiskey! She had come this way for her old voice lifted in one trisyllabic imprecation on the evil Manitou which had not let the trader be slain sooner and then, eyes bright with a new fire, turned to the trampled beach. She bent over and with scrawny hands raked up a mound of mud. She lifted it, smeared her head with it; rubbed her palms on a charred stick and daubed her face with black. Then, tearing at the strands of her stringy hair, hobbling hastily, chin held high as she began her wailing, she joined the circle. Whiskey was gone, but mourning was to be done. An hour afterward it was, like her eldest daughter confronted Little Duck.

"Who brought you?" she demanded, sharply.

"I came. Old, I may be, many winters old. But my hands can still yield the paddle. Come! I will show you the canoe that I paddled myself!"

Others were listening and looking on, and, proudly, living at last another moment as a center of attention, Little Duck led them to the beach, chattering and pointing to the canoe.

Her daughter's husband grunted: "Whose blood?"

She did not reply; she gabbled more shrilly.

The man who had questioned Little Duck's blood. He grasped his wife's mother by the arm and wrenched her about, cutting off her cackling.

"Make your tongue silent!" he said severely. "How comes blood in the little trader's canoe? Where is the little trader?"

The old woman glared at him. (TO BE CONTINUED)

A Darning Ball.—A discarded electric light bulb makes a good darning ball.

Save Table Surface.—If you will place a folded cloth under a dish which contains foods to be beaten you'll find the table surface will be saved many marks and the dish will be kept steady.

Whipping of Cream.—If whipped cream will not stand up, it is often due to the fact that the cream is not sufficiently chilled. It is important, too, to have a heavy cream of the right butter fat (35 to 38 per cent) and 12 to 24 hours old. The cream must be cold, and is best beaten in a cold container.

Inexpensive Stew.—Chop two onions and a large carrot finely, and cut a pound of neck lamb into small pieces. Put into a saucepan with one cup macaroni broken into small lengths, cover with water to the top, and let it simmer gently for one and a half hours.

Removing Blueing Spots.—Blueing spots on white clothing can be removed by boiling in clear water.

Shoes Must Have Air.—Do not keep your shoes in the boxes in which they were delivered. Shoes require air to preserve them and they should never be kept in an airtight box. Keep them in a shoe bag.

Serving Omelets.—Omelets should be placed on hot platters to keep them from falling.

Yes, Constipation Is Serious But It Can't Poison You!

Say Doctors

Modern doctors now say that the old idea of poison being in the bowels from constipation is BUNK. They claim that constipation serves up the bowels nothing but a nuisance in the digestive tract. This serves present in what causes frequent constipation, distention, headache, upset stomach, full, lumpy feeling, nervous nights, constipated, indigestion and loss of appetite. But, either here or one day later than necessary, you must GET THAT PILE OUT OF THE BOWELS TO GET RELIEF. From the intestinal system. When offensive wastes are gone the bowels return to normal, and you feel better. YOU! As soon as you feel nervously distressed, that is why you should insist on Adolox. This efficient intestinal evacuant contains BUTYRACETIC and cathartic ingredients. Adolox acts on the stomach as well as the entire intestinal tract. Adolox relieves stomach GAS, as does all other evacuant, bowel congestion in half an hour. No violent action, no after effects, just QUICK results. Pride in Perfection

A GREAT deal of the joy of life consists in doing perfectly, or at least to the best of one's ability, everything which he attempts to do.

There is a sense of satisfaction, a pride in surveying such a work—a work which is rounded, full, exact, complete in all its parts—which the superficial man, who leaves his work in a slovenly, slipshod, half-finished condition, can never know.

It is this conscientious completeness which turns work into art. The smallest thing, be it well done, becomes artistic.—William Matthews.

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now by using Cromolium. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Cromolium, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged. Try Cromolium. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Cromolium is one word—two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, so that the name on the bottle is Cromolium, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Advt.)

Red Devils Lose To Belton 38-7

Were Outweighed and Out-Played in South Carolina Game

Avon Park's Red Devils went to Belton, South Carolina, last week-end and came home on the short end of a 38 to 7 score.

According to the Red Devils, there are certain impossibilities, and under the circumstances which they encountered in Belton, this game was one of those impossibilities.

Although the Red Devils were out-weighted approximately 250 pounds to the man, they played on even terms with the Belton team during most of the first half.

With the acquisition of a few new players and added weight over last years team, Belton put a team on the field that could be out-played by very few high school teams anywhere.

On very few occasions were the Red Devils able to gain yardage through the heavy, alert Belton line. Time after time the ball carriers were thrown for several yards by the hard charging "Warrior" forward wall.

With only a few minutes left to play in the first half, Wright Horton, Belton's safety man, returned one of Meriwether's long punts approximately 60 yards to set off the fire works.

After this run, Belton could not be stopped, and after a few plays pushed over the first score of the game.

Phillam Horton added the extra point by kicking the ball squarely between the goal posts with his educated toe.

The Belton boys then started some of the drive that has enabled them to have one of the best records in the state and soon they again crossed the Devil's goal line. Horton then missed the try for the extra point by only a few inches.

Then the Red Devils came to life and with only 20 seconds left to play in the first half, Meriwether tossed a long pass to Ed Touchton who ran about 15 yards before he was tackled, as he was falling he tossed a beautiful lateral into the waiting arms of Jim Bailey, who in turn out distanced two would-be tacklers for 40 yards to score Avon Park's lone touchdown of the game.

Avon Park added the extra point by faking a kick placement and tussling a pass to Touchton in the end zone. The half ended with the ball in Avon Park possession.

At the beginning of the third quarter, Belton kicked off to Avon Park and recovered a fumble on the Devils 20 yard line. Then after a few thrusts at the line, Bel-

The Chamber of Commerce is loaning all its facilities to the Government to assist in the census of the unemployed.

At the request of John D. Biggers, Administrator, Mayor Covington has appointed citizens committees to cooperate with the post master in the enrollment which will take place from November 16th to 20th, inc.

The committee is as follows: O. R. Perry, Holland Stobbins, Harry Dilley, Rev. Jack Dalton, M. J. Lee, Howard Maddox, Demos Mandia, Norton T. Smith, chairman.

This committee will meet at the office of the chamber of commerce, Saturday, November 13th at 3 p.m. for consultation.

Anyone wanting help or information about this census is urged to use this office freely for that purpose.

Proclamation

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has called upon all the people to assist in the Census of the Unemployed November 16th to 20th inclusive, that there may be a true and accurate count of all these wanting work.

Therefore I, as Mayor, sincerely ask that you make it your business to see that all within the circle of your acquaintance that are able to work, want work, and have not got a steady job, are properly enrolled in this census.

ton went around end for the third score and Horton again added the extra point.

Throughout the entire second half the game was played in a drizzling rain, which made it hard for the Red Devils.

The Belton boys did not slow up one minute and before the third quarter had ended they had crossed the Devil's goal twice more.

In the final period it was simply a "try as you can" game with the Devils holding the "Warriors" to one touchdown. The game ended with the ball in Avon Park's possession and the weather getting colder all the time.

THE ORANGE BLOSSOM TRAIL AND BEAUTIFUL CYPRESS GARDENS

Rolling down the Orange Blossom Trail, that famous scenic drive through the central part of Florida from Lake City to Miami, the visitor travels through a corridor of citrus groves and lakes, and has the opportunity of visiting places of interest and beauty, which rank with the splendor of the nation. Famous Silver Springs, beautiful Florida Cypress Gardens, the Singing Tower, and Highlands Hammock are all on this road which winds through rolling country of oranges, flowers and lakes. By following this trail southward, one can conveniently and comfortably include these representative places in even the briefest of southern trips. By bus, all may be reached by regular lines except Highlands Hammock.

Silver Springs, located at Ocala, is unique among nature's varied wonders. Known by the Indians as the Spaniards and the early settlers, a visitor's list would include some of the famous in our country for more than thirty years. This spring is actually a subterranean river springing from the earth through a vast cavern. It spreads in a broad basin, with a flow sufficient to supply the City of New York and forms the source of the Silver River. This empties into the Ocklawaha, and joins the St. Johns on its way to the Atlantic. This is the water way by which the central and west coast sections of Florida were reached until the latter part of the last century, and has the distinction of being one of the few streams to carry freight and passengers to its very head.

Glass bottom boats provide a point from which one may view the water pouring from the cavern fifty feet below. Striking rock formations, beautiful in color, present a scene after scene of underwater beauty all clearly seen. Water bubbles from innumerable crevices at depths of from thirty to eighty feet. Subaqueous plants bend and sway as though in a strong wind. Fish swim about as though through the air, darting about the rocks or hovering like flocks of butterflies.

Farther south is Orlando, city of beautiful homes and lakes. A favorite with winter visitors, it provides the atmosphere of a real winter home. It is well provided with modern hotels and apartments and its central location makes it a desirable point from which to visit the rest of the state. Orlando people are proud of their city and the well kept buildings, comfortable homes and beautifully planted grounds attest their interest in its progress and beautification. There are fine churches, schools and theatres. Sunshine Park is the headquarters for outdoor sports, horse shoe pitching, tennis, shuffleboard, and lawn bowling may be enjoyed and provision is also made for those who wish to enjoy cards, chess and other favorite games.

South of Orlando is Kissimmee, in a country famous for its citrus groves, farms and cattle. Here the visitor often sees herds grazing on the prairies. Many show the humped shoulder, a sign of the Brahman strain which has recently been introduced into Florida. Picturesque cow punchers, wearing broadbrimmed hats and with blackmake whips looped on their saddle horns are still to be seen. Well kept farms and large citrus groves surround the town and tourist homes and camps, as well as comfortable furnished cottages and apartments provide for the winter visitors.

Driving on down through the heartlands of Florida the road is bordered with groves of oranges, grapefruit and tangerines. Like globes on Christmas trees, these fruit may be seen in the winter. In February the trees are covered with waxy bloom, snowy white against the dark green of the foliage, and frequently contrasted with the color of still hanging fruit. Famous for centuries for their exquisite odor, these flowers spread their perfume with every breeze and the traveler seems to be floating through clouds of fragrance.

The natural background is of lofty cypress which tower from buttressed bases and whose moss-hung branches and feathery foliage produce a constant play of sunlight and shadow upon the paths and underground.

Brilliant masses of azaleas bloom, and are reflected in the dark waters of pools and lagoons. Giant elephant ears, huge jungle creepers, and many huge foliage plants delight the visitor with their leaves of fantastic forms and colors. Stately camellias against a background of moss-draped live oaks present a picture of the south, and the extensive plantings of gardenias fill the air with fragrances during their heaviest blooming periods in early spring.

Electric boats are available for those who wish to take advantage of them. Silently gliding in and out among the column-like cypresses, one can enjoy to the fullest the bird songs, the warmth of the sun and the lapping of the water on the boat's sides. The "Knee" boats follow jungle waterways, bordered with ferns and overhanging by palms, bananas, tropical grasses and exotic flowers.

Representative of lands beyond the seas, plants and flowers and fruits are here from such imagination stirring places as Peru, Madagascar, South Africa, the Solomon Islands, Malaya, Egypt, and the Orient.

Onward down the Trail, through some of Florida's largest and finest citrus groves, one reaches the Singing Tower. On the highest spot in the state of Florida, the Tower may be seen for miles around, and from its beautifully landscaped grounds may be viewed mile after mile of green groves with the sparkling blue waters of lakes extending far into the distance.

The bells are played according to a season schedule and attended by thousands from all over the states.

The Mall, a mile long drive bordered by rare shrubbery and cacti, the envy of plant collectors, is a well liked spot as one drives down through Avon Park. Here the Jacaranda or Fern Tree, a native of Brazil, blooms in a cloud of orchid glory. Even without flowers, the rows of trees with their fine fern-like foliage are a glorious sight.

Highlands Hammock is a 3,000 acre tract of natural Florida woodland, now made accessible to visitors. Because of their rich soil, the beautiful subtropical growth on Florida Hammock land is fast being cleared off for the sober task of truck farming. But here, just south of Sebring, native ferns, palms, trees and wild life are being gathered and protected.

Onward again, and the traveler reaches Lake Placid and the Everglades where he may turn to either the east or west coast to reach the city of Miami.

Traffic Fatalities In State Increase 70% Over Last Year

Tampa, Nov. 10.—(FNS)—Florida traffic fatalities showed an increase of 70 percent as compared with October, 1936. It was announced by Asher Frank, secretary of the State Safety Council, this week. The total for October this year being 52 deaths from highway accidents against 30 for the same month last year. Figures were compiled by the Safety Council from press clippings gathered regularly from the Florida Press Clipping Service.

WPA Will Present Two Christmas plays In Avon Park Soon

Soon throughout the twenty-seven states of the Union having Federal Theatre projects, with Florida listed among the leaders, in churches, schools and theatres will be presented plays of deep religious significance. Each production, under the plan of Mrs. Halle Flanagan, National Director, is to serve the needs and desires of as many sections as possible.

Fittingly naturally into the "living history of the drama" series of plays now being presented under the sponsorship of several enterprising high schools throughout Florida, State Director Dorothea Thomas Lynch, educator, actress and daughter of a clergyman, has chosen for statewide tour two famous medieval classics, to be presented on the same bill Thursday evening, December 16th at 8:15 under the sponsorship of Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, principal, for the benefit of the Music Association of the Avon Park high school.

The two plays to be presented are the "Chester Christmas Play" and "Everyman." Through the professional projects division of the Works Progress Administration this section of Florida will have the opportunity of seeing these simple but beautiful, powerful plays, with appropriate music as part of a national audience of more than half a million. The natural background is of lofty cypress which tower from buttressed bases and whose moss-hung branches and feathery foliage produce a constant play of sunlight and shadow upon the paths and underground.

out against the approaching winter, without employment, and without the prospect of it.

In France, the political cauldron of war and bubbles with uncertainty. Russia hangs, as usual, like a cloud upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies and resources of the British Empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely in coping with the vast and deadly insurrection, and with its disturbed relations with China.

It is a solemn moment, and no one can feel an indifference—yet, mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and with painful poverty be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honour, of faith, of sympathy, and of charity, no man need seriously despair.

And yet, the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this wide-spread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

These are the things that make the profound interest of the moment, beside others, whose roots are spreading underground, out of sight. It is no time for idling or trifling, for forgetfulness or selfishness. The complexion of every country and of the world, rests at last upon the character of individuals. Extravagance, vanity, the lust of luxury, are crimes in the men of today. At home, we shall have direct appeals to our sympathy, in the swarms of honest laborers, for whom there is no work. Abroad, the appeal will be more indirect, in the extremity of a friend and ally.

Good friends! let our conduct prove that the call comes to men who have large hearts, however narrow their homes may be; who have open hands, however empty their purses.

In times of peril, we have nothing but manhood, strong in its faith in God, to rely upon, and who ever shows himself a truly God-fearing man but by helping wherever, and however he can, will be as blessed as beloved as the great light in darkness.

What is it to be wise? 'Tis but to know how little can be known to see all others' faults and feel our own.—Pope.

If materialistic knowledge is power, it is not wisdom. It is but a blind force. Man has "sought out many inventions," but he has not yet found it true that knowledge can save him from the dire effects of knowledge. The power of mortal mind over its own body is little understood.—Mary Baker Eddy.

Farmers Market At Wauchula Is Paying Farmers $5,000 Daily

Wauchula, Nov. 10.—(FNS)—Wauchula's Farmers State Market, getting under way for its second season, brought vegetable growers in this section from $3,000 to $5,000 a day for the past two weeks, according to market manager James McGee.

Prices are holding up well and the volume of produce is steadily increasing. Recent cooler weather has helped local crops and receipts show better color and firmness. Cucumbers are bringing from $2.50 to $3.00; eggplant, $2.85 to $3.80; peppers, $1.50 to $2.30; yellow and white squash, $1.50 to $2.00; green beans, $2.00 to $3.00; hamper, okra, $2.60 to $3.25 a bushel; tomatoes, field run, $2.70 to $3.25.

No action will be considered blameless, unless the will was so, for by the will the act was dictated.

PARTY TREASON

For the head of the Democratic party in Florida to abuse the President of the United States, J. B. Hodges has done indicates either personal spite or frustrated ambition, or both.

It has been known for a long time that the state chairman and the head of the Democratic party nationally have not seen eye to eye on such matters as the regulation of utility companies, for which the state chairman is a lobbyist. Neither has Mr. Hodges been given that recognition in the distribution of patronage to which he thinks his office entitles him. The state chairman was unable to get the national government to expand the sugar quota as much as Florida producers wanted, which is another matter of discouragement to the chairman. All in all, the clients of the Lake City lawyer have not been treated any too kindly at the hands of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration.

For all practical purpose, Chairman Hodges has broken with the President, by virtue of his scathing editorial letter recently published in The New York Herald-Tribune. Hodges thereby renounced his right as leader of the party in this state, for certainly the Democrats of Florida have given no sign that they will ratify what the state chairman has done.

The proper thing for him to do, therefore, is to resign as chairman of the state Democratic executive committee and make way for someone whose Democracy is more staunch. In fact, it was just as well that Chairman Hodges by his retirement should open the way for a chairman whose Democracy is a great deal less commercial than his has been.

Theoretically the chairmanship of the state Democratic committee is a position of honor. Like all political posts, the incumbent is allowed a certain leeway in acquiring prerequisites by reason of such public service. But it has shocked the sensibilities of even the most complacent politician to watch the chairman for several years past prostitute the office to service of his paying clients, and thereby make a mockery of the title "public servant."

We have no way of knowing why the chairman should have crossed the Rubicon as he did, virtually fleeing to the arms of the Republicans. But whatever the motive, the act is conclusive. In all conscience he cannot longer retain the title of chairman while openly practicing treason against his party.—Miami Herald.

PERTINENT FACTS

duPont Plant Spray No. 2 and Fruit Drop

The hot, humid and rainy weather which has been prevalent during the past 10 days has been especially conducive to dropping of fruit in groves—this is new news to you.

Some of this fruit drop has been due to splitting—in which case blue mold infection follows.

Much of the drop has been caused by stem end infection, (that is, infection under the button) by such organisms as Diplodia, Anthracnose and Melanose. This is not news but established facts.

It is also an established fact that the troubles mentioned continue with the loss of fruit in packing houses and transit (due to rot) also stems where fruit was attached become infected leaving a continual source of additional infection in the tree.

duPont Plant Spray No. 2 is a definite control measure for these troubles.

It will pay for itself in any one of three ways especially in old groves by:

- (1)—Preventing lateral drooping.
- (2)—Preventing additional infection in trees and general clean-up of scale and other insects and sooty fungus.
- (3)—Preventing rots in packing house and transit.

Use recommended dilution, 1 gallon of spray to 60 gallons of water, NOW!

Dilley Home Scene Of Lovely Party

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dilley on Lake Letta was the scene of a lovely affair on Tuesday evening when they entertained the members of their bridge club and additional guests. A Thanksgiving motif was used in all decorations, large bouquets of chrysanthemums decked the living room where tables for bridge were placed. The mantel was banked with autumn leaves and large papier-mache turkeys were placed at each end. In the dining room autumn leaves banked the buffet, the table was over laid with a lace in yellow colophane paper and cloth and centered with a mound of colorful fruits and vegetables flanked by lighted candles in crystal holders. A crystal punch bowl was placed at one end. In the bridge games, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wells held high score for club members and received a double deck of cards. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Keller were high for guests and received a silver serving fork and Lester Armstrong won the spicing prize, hot dish mats. Punch was served during the evening and the hostess served mince meat pie, cheese pumpkins and candies with coffee after the games. Guests attending were, Mr. and Mrs. John Hood, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Milford Dilley, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ware, Mrs. C. H. Moffatt, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Keller, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Sunday School Class "Progressive Party"

The Champion Sunday School class of the Congregational church was entertained at a "progressive party" last Sunday by their teacher, Mrs. B. T. Cox. The affair was planned in honor of William Rutherford, Buddy Johnson, Dick Stodden, Bill Hood and Jack Head, Jr. all of whom have a birthday in November or December, and was a surprise to them.

The boys met at the Atlantic Coast Line depot after church and found a note directing them to the home of Clara Vandewend, where they enjoyed a lunch under the trees. After which they went to the home of Dick Stodden where all enjoyed a slice of the beautiful birthday cake and each honoree received a flash light.

Games were played and Mrs. Daily Ten Eyck told them a football story. Members present were Carl Vial, Henry Kipp, William Rutherford, Bill Hood, Bud Johnson, Dick Stodden and Jack Head, Jr.

LETTERS OF INTEREST
FROM OVER-SEAS
WIN PRAISE

A friendship league has been formed by correspondence between Miss Rosaline Clausen's fourth grade section and the children of other countries. The members of the league are the one to whom they are writing: Fred Montedecco to Einar Svend Jensen, Copenhagen, Denmark; Jeanine Grews to Mary Dunsund Sorensen, Copenhagen, Denmark; Leslie Laflam to Bruce Mayers, Ennisville, Northern Ireland; Thomas Evans to Meta Dalton, Ennisville, Northern Ireland; James Marr to Francis Davis, Glamorgan, Wales; Charlotte Orr to Clara Eyrhara, Territory of Hawaii; Tabbly Brown to T. H. Kanawha, Territory of Hawaii; Harzall Peterson to Phillipine Islands; Marie Basemore to Gladys Burbage, Nottingham, England.

Barbara Lawhorn to Marjorie Duncliffe, Nottingham, England; Burl Cox to Horace Readman, Nottingham, England; Helen Holton to Audrey Tomalin, Nottingham, England; Ivan Brown to George McCamley, Newtonards, Ireland; Emogene McCuller to Doreen Walker, Nottingham, England.

The following letter has been received by Marie Basemore from Gladys Burbage, Nottingham, England:

Dear Marie:
I am very pleased to receive a letter from an American girl friend. It must be very nice to live in an orange grove on a lake. My father who visited the U. S. at Cleveland and Chicago, U. S. A. before the Great War as a salesman tells me that your lakes are very big, and to live near one is like being at the seaside.

I live in a busy part of Nottingham called Snotington. Nottingham is often called "the city of the Midlands" because of its nice rivers, parks, rock gardens and cleanliness. I am sending some photo cards of Nottingham which I have written on.

I have one sister and three brothers. Their names are Irene, Peter, Joseph Alan and John Douglas. I now attend St. Patrick's school. My head teacher's name is Miss Smith. She is very nice.

We are now having a lot of fog and rain.

Please give my best wishes to your girl friends.

Your English friend,
Gladys Burbage

P. S. I will send you some coronation cards in my next letter.

ROTARY CLUB MEMBERS
CHAPERONED SCOUTS

The boy scouts went on a camp last week end to Morgan's Hall, being chaperoned by members of the Rotary Club.

This camp was required by the state department. They went on a camp the week end of gum drops, they did not abide by the rules, so they had to have another one.

The scouts are going to have a state scout camp in Frostproof soon.

Nutz Brothers Team
Organized By Players

J. W. Tuten has organized a four man football team which he has christened the "Nutz Brothers," and during the first few minutes of the regular football practice he practices razzle dazzle plays which he makes up as he goes. May his plays don't comply with the rules but he really got something there.

Girl's Internurals
Begin Monday

The whistle blows! Once again the old basketball bounces on the armory floor. Cheers of gladness are heard as the girls swing into their first days of practice. Tuesday marked the beginning of practice for this season.

Inter-school basketball games will be started Monday afternoon. There will be two games, one between 9th and 10th and the other between 11th and 12th. The winners of these games will play Wednesday afternoon. These games are to determine which eighteen girls will compose the high school team this year.

Dr. Stanley N. Reeves and Coach D. D. Smith are to be the coaches this year. Dr. Reeves put the girls through a very stiff workout Tuesday. Wednesday morning the girls were seen slowly but painfully coming to school.

The girls' team for basketball tryouts are: Helen Delaney, Nancy Betts, Mary Jane Sunstrom, Marion Weaver, Winifred Boseman, Edna Wilson, Barbara Smith, Ruth Wiles, Sibyl Bigbie, Lillian Bennett.

Elmeria Sadler, Vera Mae Inman, Harriet Sheraz, Jean Correll, Reba Mathis, Claire Vanderwende, Jane Hartt and Mary Lydia Stebbins.

Third P.T.A. Program

A well conducted program led by J. C. Still, program chairman, was presented Thursday at the third meeting of the P. T. A. The meeting was opened as usual by Mrs. C. E. Lanier, president. Following this Dr. A. C. Elliott, minister of the Congregational church, read the devotional exercises. Herbert Todd played a trumpet solo and a well conducted debate arranged by Mr. Chester Yates took place.

"That the war debt to the United States should be canceled." On the affirmative side, Charles Moffett and Louis Wills provided opposition to James Jordan and Max Mathis, who were on the negative.

347 new books have been ordered for the school library and 61 new shelves have been made to accommodate these books.

Two strips of shelves have been made—12 inches ones to accommodate over size books, and some 10-inch ones for regular size books. $275.00 worth of books have been ordered. The Leavensworth Co. and one other book agent is making bids on this $275.00 worth of books. A 20 to 25 percent discount is given the library on all the books.

Columbus Took A Chance;
So Does the Junior Class

Columbus or someone, said to Cleopatra or someone that a person's character is revealed in his actions. We say that it is highly amusing, yes, even hilarious to watch the actions of some people.

New, upon recovering from a severe pain in the neck after watching the candy stand upstairs we are prepared to give you the results of our vigil.

The first student we noticed craving to have his sweet tooth satisfied was a seventh grader. He dashed madly up to the counter and in no uncertain tones demanded one penny worth of silver beads and two cents worth of gum drops. After getting this enormous amount of candy, two of his fellow students decided that all this was too much for the worthy purchaser to eat, therefore they set upon him with cries of "Gimme! Gimme!" and in the ensuing scuffle the luckless purchaser in disposing of his candy ate paper, tin foil and all.

Presently two of our worthy football players, J. W. Tuten and James Bailey came ambling down the hall stopping Sebring in their football. As they drew abreast of the canteen, they fixed the show case with longing stares, then, resolutely facing forward, they proceeded doggedly down the hall.

Girl's Health Class
To Have Tournament

A volleyball tournament will be held next week between four teams into which the seventh and eighth grade girls have been divided.

Girl's health classes in seventh and eighth grades have been learning a game new to this school called handball. Handball, the way it is played here, is much like tennis, but it's played on the sidewalk. Four squares are used to play the game. Two squares are used for each court. The girls are played with a large rubber ball. The score is counted just like the score in tennis.

For several weeks the girls' in the seventh and eighth grades have been playing volleyball ball.

The eighth grade is divided into two teams. Charlotte Atkins is captain of the Lions, and Lillian Kelley has been elected captain of the Indian Squads.

The seventh grade teams have chosen the names Wolves and Foxes. Mildred Barnard, captain of the former, and Marjorie Wells has been chosen captain of the latter.

Juniors Reopen
Commissary Room

The junior "Jook" on the second floor was reopened Monday under a new business manager, Walter Sherritt, who was elected by the junior class last week.

The junior class in an effort to make money for other outside activities are continuing the sale of candy and note-book paper.

The candy-room was closed the previous Wednesday because profits that should have been made, were not being shown.

A committee has been appointed by Walter to make plans and draw up rules pertaining to the candy department. The committee is comprised of Edna Wills, president, Mary Louise Stewart, Charles Moffett and James Jordan.

"I will do all in my power," states Walter, "to make the sale of candy a profit making organization for the junior class, and hope everyone will cooperate with me in doing so."

Devils To Play
Panther Eleven

Tonight at 8 o'clock on Head Field, the Avon Park Red Devils will attempt to take the growl out of the Mulberry Panthers in their first meeting in the last five years.

In their last meeting, the Panthers defeated the Red Devils by a score of 15 to 0, which ended in a "freaky crowd" on the field.

This year the Red Devils are favored to avenge that defeat by sending the Mulberry boys home on the small end of the score.

In games so far this season the Panthers have lost all except one game, that being a tie with the Lake Wales Highlanders.

The Devils have won six of their eight starts this season.

The probable starting lineup for the Devils is: Touchton, left; Marjorie Hein, center; Todd, right; Carey, right; C. Wild, right; Ward, right; Lynn, right; Bailey, right; Foster, right; Meriwether, right.

9th and 10th Grades
Study Short Stories

Miss Pearson's section of the ninth and tenth grades are studying short stories which include magic, common place things, and most of all are adventures.

Some of the places these adventures have their setting in are: San Francisco Bay, mining district of New York City, rural section of America and England, India and a medieval castle in Germany.

They have solved mysteries, studied clues and how the sleuth solves a mystery.

Encouraged to do outside reading by the same authors, some pupils have read collections of stories.

EDITORIAL

BOOK OF THE WEEK
By Dorothy Hughes

"Gone With the Wind" by Margaret Mitchell—Mc Millan and Co. 1034 p. $3.50.

"Gone With the Wind" is a book about life in the South during the Civil War and most of the action takes place in and near Atlanta, Ga. Included in these 1034 pages is the story of hardship and romance during the Civil War.

"Gone With the Wind" deals with the life of a charming, and striking, though not beautiful, southern belle, Scarlett O'Hara. Miss Mitchell begins the story when Scarlett is a young girl living with her wealthy parents in Tara before the war. Typical southern life is described—the beautiful plantations, the balls, the manner of dress. As the story continues, one learns about the romances of Scarlett and later about her hardships and bravery during the war. Scarlett, once a conceited, self-centered girl, was greatly changed by the war and this change is made quite clear by Miss Mitchell.

Although "Gone With the Wind" does not contain any illustrations, the word pictures make up for their absence.

AMERICAN FLAG ABUSED

Last year some person, or persons, threw ink on the American flag which adorns the wall of the 8th grade home room.

By doing such a thing as this that person demonstrated a lack of national pride and patriotism.

Two years ago most of students in high school learned the American Creed. The first clause in this Creed is: "Americanism is an unswerving love of country." It is evident that this creed was not instilled deeply enough in the mind of the person who committed this act of defacing the American flag.

Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, principal, has promised that he will try to obtain a new flag for the room.

A flag such as this is something greater than just a flag; it is an American flag and stands for all of the ideals of 130 million people.

LET'S STOP THE FEUD

During the past it has been the custom of Avon Park and Sebring students to take it upon themselves to become angry with each other because of the annual "grudge game" between the football teams of the two schools.

Although there has been no permanent harm done to either side during the games, or after the games, the fact still remains that these controversies have caused many hard feelings.

Numerous times arguments are started about decisions of the referees. We believe that referees usually endeavor to referee a fair decision. Even if a referee does make a decision that seems to be unjust, it is not a spectator's place to try to change that decision.

The usual things that happen during and after the games with

8th Grade Girls Give
New Entertainment

Today in chapel Miss Jean Craig's eighth grade home room gave the students something new in the line of entertainment by presenting a Book Week program.

Six different skits were presented before the students and the audience was given a chance to guess which book the skit represented.

Solomon Abrams and Jack Williams were dressed as a horse to represent "Black Beauty".

"Tom Sawyer" was imitated by Albert Wester and Powell Skipper. Jack Witt gave a recitation from "Hawthorne" and Tommy Bryant, Sanford Hartt and a few members of the gleeb club gave "Green Pastures".

"Little Women" was given by Betty Touchton, Louise Bishop, Mary Carrott, Lillian Kelley and Dorothy Welch.

Leon "Ducky" Shoemaker and Earl Paber imitated "Robinson Crusoe".

The scripture was read by Martha McNicholas.

Federal Theatre
Players Dec. 16

Turning from the high comedy of their first state-wide tour, to religious mysteries and a grippingly powerful serious play in their next offering, the Federal Theatre Players of Jacksonville will present two short plays in one evening's entertainment starting at 8:15 P. M., Thursday, December 16 under the sponsorship of Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, Principal.

Representing the middle centuries of drama history when all plays were presented by the church to illustrate episodes in the life of Christ or the Saints, the first play (in two acts or cycles) will be from the old "Chester Mystery Cycle": The Shepherds' Play, and the Adoration of the Magi (Wisdom). According to assistant director Nina Probert (experienced actress and community drama director) "These plays have a universal appeal for young and old and should be instructive to church and Sunday school leaders, missionary societies, and a special inspiration to all who may at any time direct religious plays or pageants."

Works Progress Administration officials and the local sponsors hope that church people throughout this entire section of Florida will plan in advance to keep open the date of December 16 and plan now to see this Avon Park production.

On the same evening will be presented by the Federal Players, a beautiful and powerful production of the medieval morality play "Everyman", personifying every man's and woman's problem when seriously seeking to attain to Heaven. The play will be colorfully costumed, professionally acted and directed, presented with stirring old Christmas chants and carols.

The sponsors, who announce popular admission prices with special low prices for children, promise a memorable evening of unusual religious entertainment.

Will the game with Mulberry end as it did four or five years ago?

Sebring are the tearing down of goal posts and the throwing of rocks and bricks. It is easy for a sharp rock or some other missile to hit someone in the eye, perhaps injuring him for life.

Avon Park Wins In School Page Contest

At the annual meeting of the Florida State Press Association held last week at Tallahassee, the Avon Park Times was awarded first prize in the school page contest among the different weekly papers of the state.

A handsome cup has been received by the Times and when suitably engraved will be on exhibition in the trophy case at the high school.

Frogs and Jelly Fish
Visit Biology Class

Members of the biology class are getting sick and turning up their noses because they are studying toad frogs. They are discussing the life history and habits of the frog. They are getting most of their information from the city library.

Dr. Stanley Reeves has set aside a portion of the glass case in the hall to the biology class for them to put their biological displays in. The display will be changed every two or three days. If you are interested in this display be sure and watch the glass case.

Dole Perry brought to class several fresh water jelly fish which he captured in Lake Verona.

The jelly fish is a transparent animal with tentacles on its body. It has the shape of an umbrella and moves by drawing in the parts of its body.

Ralph and Ray Barrett have complete charge of identifying and mounting the butterflies in a x-mas display. They have found one butterfly which ranges in the extreme southern region of Florida.

Clean-up Campaign
Started in Home Ec.

A clean up project has been started by the home economics class.

The girls have been sandpapering the sewing machines and repairing the same. They are also repairing the same by hand.

They have dressed the lockers up in a new dress of green which is the center of attraction in the home ec. room.

The class has been studying art along with their painting. They visited the art exhibit to see what the people in Avon Park are doing in the line of art.

Fifth Grade Pupils
Identify 63 Shells

Sixty-three Florida shells have been identified by Mrs. Charles E. Yates' fifth grade pupils during the last few weeks.

The most lovely one is the corolla. It is a very light purple on the top and a pearl on the bottom. The scallops also are very pretty.

The shells have been put in boxes and labeled on the blackboard with each name placed underneath.

We are calling for help from the students of Sebring as well as those from here because the cooperation of them both is required for a completely satisfactory football game.

Devils Lose
To Sebring B
Team by 12-7

DEVILS DEFEATED
IN CLOSE BATTLE WITH SEBRING

Again the Sebring "B" team eked out a win over the young Devils by a score of 12 to 7 at Head Field Tuesday night. Both teams played the entire game at a torrid pace. The Devils were outweighed 16 pounds to the man.

First Quarter
The Devils chose to receive and the Blue Strucks kicked to the Avon Park's eight yard line. There Mathis, led by good interference, brought the ball back to the 20 yard line.

The next three plays netted about four yards and Davis punted the pigskin down to the 40 yard stripe. There Sebring took it and on several line plunges carried it to the Devils 3 yard line.

The Devils' line made a stubborn defense and on three consecutive line plunges the Blue Strucks were nullified in their tracks. On the fourth they made a wide end sweep and were thrown for five yards loss by Mathis and Davis.

The Devils took the ball on a wide end sweep Mathis picking up approximately 25 yards.

Second Quarter
Line plunges failed to net the Devils any yardage, and the Strucks took the ball on downs. On 3 first downs they carried the ball over for the score. The try point failed and the score stood 6 to 0.

The young Devils received and the ball was carried to the 40. The next play was a pass from Davis to Williams, which netted 15 yards. Just as Williams was tackled, Mathis pulled up from behind just in time for Williams to drop a lateral pass into his arms. With excellent blocking by young Meriwether, Mathis galloped for 45 yards to make the score.

Davis' terrific line plunge made the score stand 7 to 6 as the half ended.

Third Quarter
The Devils came back with renewed line power and all during the third quarter the ball was played in the Blue Strucks' territory. One team showing very little advantage over the other.

Fourth Quarter
The Devils took two line plunges for five yards and then came a pass from Davis to Mathis. The ball was fumbled and Gene Sebring pulled the ball out of the air and ran 55 yards for a touchdown to make the score stand 12 to 7. Their extra point failed them.

The game ended with the ball in Sebring's possession on the Devil's 35 yard line.

The "Red and White" are proud of their editors who yesterday pointed out their duties as editors to the senior English class.

Did the boys really get all those black eyes in the wreck?

Devils: On to victory and the Ridge Conference Championship.

"Worse Than Drowning"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Charles Quinones of Bronx, N. Y., sends in a yarn that sets a new high for horror. Charley Quinones had a mighty queer adventure. It was one that gave him a choice between two deaths. One of them was drowning—and that's no fun. But horrible as drowning was, it wasn't half as bad as that other horror—the one that was waiting for him up above.

Charley is a Porto Rican who has come to the States to finish his education. It's a tale about his native land that he's going to tell us today. A good many years ago—on April 9, 1927, to be exact—Charley and a bunch of other lads about his own age, started out to do some dynamite fishing.

They all lived in the town of Jajardo, on the northeast tip of Porto Rico, and the sea was not far away. They chose a spot called El Faro because of a lighthouse that stood on the hill above it. El Faro was on the shores of a tidewater lagoon where the fish, at high tide, were large and numerous. Charley and his friends took along food, a pan to fry fish in—and several sticks of dynamite to catch the fish.

Fishing With Dynamite.

The tide came through the lagoon at El Faro at a pretty rapid clip. It was at the time when tide was just turning that dynamite fishing was best, for if they waited while the tide ebbed, the fish would go out with it. They attached fuses to their dynamite and one of the boys threw it into the water. There was a momentary hush, followed by an explosion. The water heaved and trembled. A great wave shot up from below the surface, and with it came fish—hundreds of them—of all sizes, species and colors.

They had to act quickly after that. If they didn't get those fish immediately the swift-moving tide would carry them away. Half a dozen of them dove into the water and began gathering up the ones on the surface.

Charley Quinones followed them—but instead of going after the fish on the surface he took a long, deep dive toward the bottom of the lagoon.

Between the Devil and the Deep.

The little fish came to the top after an explosion, but the bigger ones sank to the bottom—and it was the big ones that Charley was after.

Charley had made a good dive, but there was no time to lose. The current was even swifter down near the bottom than it had been on the surface. He saw a big fish—and another—and half a dozen more. "I tried to take two," he says, "but they were too slippery. I took the largest one within reach and turned my head toward the surface. But at that moment I saw something that made me change my mind."

It was a ghastly sight that Charley saw up there above him. Up near the surface, directly over his head, he saw something white swimming back and forth. A second look told him what it was—and his whole body began fairly crawling with horror. That white thing up there was a SHARK!

Huge Shark Was Terrifying.

Says Charley: "The sight of it almost made me faint, and there aren't enough words in any language to describe how terrified I felt. The monster was swimming close to the surface and he seemed to be eating the dead fish that our explosion had brought up to the top of the lagoon. He was huge—one of the biggest sharks I had ever seen, and from where I was I could see his great mouth with its rows of horrible sharp teeth."

Charley saw and thought all those things in a fraction of a second. He knew he couldn't swim upward. That shark would have eaten him alive in less than a minute. But he couldn't stay down there under the water long, either. He had to have air. Already his lungs were beginning to ache from the strain of holding his breath—already his head was spinning round giddily for want of oxygen in his lungs.

Never in his life had Charley been in a worse spot. "What I suffered in those moments of cruel apprehension," he says, "seems incredible now. I never thought the human body and the human mind were capable of standing so much torture. My ears were ringing madly. My lungs felt as though they were about to burst. My heart was beating violently. I wanted to cry, but I couldn't."

"The water down there at the bottom was dark and gloomy. Up on the surface, a dim figure, now, in my harring eyes, the monster still hovered. It seemed that he was waiting patiently for me to come up. Many times I had heard the expression, 'Between the Devil and the Deep,' and there I was in literally that same predicament."

Desperate Push to the Surface.

"And what made matters worse was the fact that no one could help me out of it. I was alone—more alone than anyone has ever been before, I believe. I couldn't hold my breath any longer, and I took a last desperate chance. Pushing madly with my feet, swimming with all the strength that was left in me, I shot toward the surface. It was hardly possible that I could get out of the water before the shark got me. But I had no other choice."

"Up I went. Then, suddenly I heard a splash—felt a violent blow from a huge body—and lost consciousness."

When Charley came to he was lying on the beach, his friends all grouped around him. They had seen the shark swimming around on the surface, and they knew Charley was at the bottom. They thought sure Charley was a goner, but they did what they could. One of the boys got a huge piece of driftwood from the beach, floated it out on the water and struck at the shark—just as Charley was coming to the surface. The shark turned to swim away, and in doing so had run smack into Charley—and nobody has figured out yet who was the most frightened by that collision—the shark or Charley.

The other young fellows had dragged Charley, half drowned, to the beach, and Charley says that's the last time he's been swimming in anything bigger than a bathtub.

International Boundary Markings

The land part of the international boundary between the United States and Canada, which is about 1,740 miles in length, is marked variously with monuments of iron, aluminum-bronze set on concrete, stone calms and concrete, placed at points ranging from two and a half to four miles apart. A vista has been cut through the trees where the line runs over wooded areas. The water part of the boundary is defined by courses and distances between turning points that are marked by buoys, houses or markers of metal or concrete on the shores of lakes and banks of streams.

Softening Water

The water is so hard in some parts of the country that softening forms a part of the purification processes. Often, the saving in depreciation of water pipes and in the purchase of soap counter-balance the cost of softening. Usually lime water is mixed with the water in a settling basin and after 12 or 14 hours subsidence, the water is drawn off from the precipitated salts. When the hardness is the result of sulphates of lime or magnesium, which causes the water to be "permanently" hard, sodium carbonate, or washing soda is used to soften the water.

In Case of an Aircraft Raid

Shown after its recent completion at Corning, N. Y., is the giant electric light bulb which will surmount the $100,000 memorial tower to Thomas Alva Edison at Menlo Park, N. J., where Edison invented the first incandescent electric light. The bulb, 14 feet high, contains 566 electric lights with a 24-inch reflector to be utilized as an airplane beacon.

Prospective customers listen with interest while a street salesman in Geneva, Switzerland, demonstrates special lamp shades for use in time of an air raid. Many devices such as these are now on sale in European cities as preparations for giant air-raid drills.

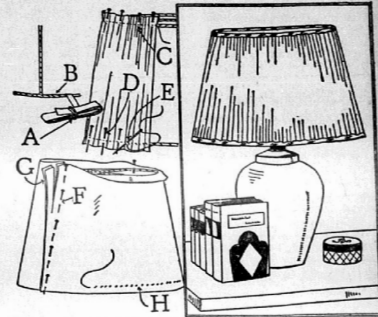

Japan Demonstrates Man Power in China

When heavy rains make roads impassable in North China for Japan's highly mechanized artillery and commissary units, the Japanese warriors simply lay aside their weapons and supply the motive power as shown here. These men are hauling a supply wagon over terrain where anything but man power might succumb to the mud.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Silk Shades Give a Soft Glow

HERE is subtlety in the light that glows through a silk shade, and many decorators are using them for the room that needs the softness of plaited folds and the mellowness obtained by placing two tones of fabric one over the other.

Two tones of China silk, one to be used for a plain lining and the other for a gathered outside covering will make an attractive shade. Before you buy the material it is best to experiment with samples one over the other trying them both in daylight and over an artificial light. You will also need a roll of silk binding tape matching the top color of the shade. This tape is to wrap the wire frame. And fancy braid either in gold, silver or a harmonizing tone of silk is used to bind the top and bottom of the shade. Use cotton thread to match the outside tone of the silk.

Slip the binding tape off the roll and wrap a rubber band around it as shown here at A. Working from the inside end of the tape wrap the frame as shown at B. The outside layer of silk is put on next. This is gathered both top and bottom and pinned to the wire covering as at C and D so that it is stretched quite tight. Joinings in the outside covering need not be sewed but may be hidden under the folds. This material is sewed in place as at E.

Next, cut a straight strip for the lining and fit it around the outside of the frame as shown here at F. Trim the joining allowing a seam as shown at G. Sew to the frame at the bottom as at H. Trim quite close at the bottom. Turn lining to inside as at I. Slip stitch the joining. Turn in raw edges at top and whip around top of frame. Pin the binding around and then sew it with stitches buried in the mesh of the braid.

Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' new book, SEWING. Forty-eight pages of step-by-step directions for making slipcovers and dressing tables; restoring and upholstering chairs, couches; making curtains for every type of room and purpose. Making lampshades, rugs, ottomans and other useful articles for the home. Readers wishing a copy should send name and address, enclosing 25 cents, to Mrs. Spears, 210 South Desplaines St., Chicago, Illinois.

Don't Neglect Your Child's Cold

Don't let chest colds or croupy coughs go untreated. Rub Children's Mucilene on child's throat and chest at once. This milder form of regular Mucilene penetrates, warms, and stimulates local circulation. Floods the bronchial tubes with its soothing, relieving vapors. Mucilene brings relief naturally because it's a "Non-irritant"—NOT just a salve. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

Anger Is Like Rain

Anger is like rain which breaks itself wherever it falls.—Seneca.

Uncle Phil Says:

The Old Boy Knows It

When your dog rests his muzzle on your knee and looks up at you sideways, that is one of his innumerable appeals you can't resist.

Good cooks in the home get mountains of praise—and that's their chief recompense.

Experience is profitable, but it frequently leaves scars.

Don't mention your friend's first gray hairs unless your friend does.

We do not want any more things that are a trouble to look after—and a steam yacht is one of them.

Ideals Are Our Rudders

"A rudder," explained the boy who knew his boats, "is a stern necessity."

People with short tempers have to go through life "being forgiven."

Fond mothers scarcely ever want their sons to be President. They want them to be what they are best able to be.

His Inspiration

We prefer, perhaps, our imaginary picture of our friend, rather than the real one. He, in his affection, tries to live up to it.

"Protecting" wild animals merely to slaughter them doesn't seem to be the ideal ideal.

It doesn't matter so much if a very young man loses his heart and his head at the same time. It is expected of him.

Constipated?

Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: Wastes build up the bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. This nerve pressure causes headache, a dull, heavy feeling, hiccups, loss of appetite and dizziness. SECOND: Fully digested food starts to decay (forming GAS), and warms, stimulates local circulation. Floods the bronchial tubes with its soothing, relieving vapors. Mucilene brings relief naturally because it's a "Non-irritant"—NOT just a salve. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. Three strengths: Regular, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

Sit in Your Chair at Home . . . and Shop

The things you want to buy . . . at the time you want to buy them . . . at the price you want to pay. You can find these right in the paper. Your newspaper advertisements make it possible to do your "looking around" right at home . . . and then go downtown to do your buying . . . saving you time and energy.

Rare Book

There are estimated to be only about 45 Gutenberg Bibles in the world and in 1894 one sold for $15,000. At that time, many of the books were privately owned. Today, with most of the Bibles permanently retired to museums and thus off the market, the price should be higher.

The Gutenberg Bible is valuable not for its scarcity alone. It is a curiosity, because authorities aren't even sure Johann Gutenberg printed it. In fact, some experts claim the Fifteenth Century German wasn't a printer at all—Washington Post.

CARDUI

In this modern time something wonderfully worth while can be done for practically every woman who suffers from functional pains of menstruation. Certain cases can be relieved by taking Cardui. Others may need a physician's treatment. Cardui has two widely demonstrated uses: (1) To ease the moderate pain and nervousness of the monthly period; and (2) to aid in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from their food.

Purposful Day

A single day in the life of a learned man is worth more than the lifetime of a fool.—Posidonius.

Still Coughing?

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Cromolium. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Cromolium, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and soothes and soothes and soothes the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the irritating phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, Cromolium will cure you. Your doctor is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the results obtained from the very first bottle. Cromolium is one word—just two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Cromolium, and you get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

BLACK FEATHER

By HAROLD TITUS

She had run along the lake shore and insisted on being brought here to serve Shaw when, the last time he had seen her, she was lavishing her arms and lips on Burke Rickman. It was too much for the old fellow to fathom, and he did not have in him the impulse to ask her the questions which would relieve his perplexity. So long as the war of aid to Shaw, he was satisfied.

She sent him into the forest searching for the herbs his midwife aunt had used. Leaves and stalks to be cooked to pulp and bandaged over the gaping wounds in Shaw's flesh.

Quietly, he lay there. Now and again, at first, he moaned. Occasionally his eyes would open and his brows gather as though he struggled with some complicated problem. He licked water, dropped from a cup to his lips, with growing greediness, and that was his first word.

"Water!" faintly, but with desperate need.

"Fever!" Annette moaned, looking hard at Basile and helpless appeal was in her eyes.

"Fever follows wounds," the man said and shrugged sloppily, in something of a shudder. "It's upon Rickman one would wish to fall."

"Rickman!" The name, repeated in that strained echo of Shaw's voice, was startling.

His eyes were open, he frowned upward blankly and his fingers worked.

"Rickman!" he said in a high pitched monotone. "They're my hunters, it's my trade. You can't have any of them, any of it, Rickman! You're a braggart, Rickman, but you're parts. You're no fool, you've eyes and ears and will. But . . ."

But . . . "saying as how, arms about him, strove to prevent the struggle which set him panting. "But it was a . . . vixen, behind you!" he screamed. "I told my secrets to her and she told . . . I tell you . . . Let go. Let me go, Rickman, or I'll send your heart smothered and cured, back to Astor himself!"

"Water from the spring!" Annette said to Basile.

She stroked Rodney's brow soothingly and he smiled, closing his eyes.

eyes. The fevered face was gone. "Basile!" he whispered, and smiled. He closed his eyes and sighed deeply in relief. "After all these . . . these dreams!" he said and feebly groped for the man's hand. "Good Basile . . . My friend, Basile!"

Annette had not moved, except to work the fingers in their tight clasp against her breast. Hope rode with the achievement in her eyes and her breath was quick. She had brought him back from death, this man she had loved and wronged and lived to save.

"I must've been here . . . for long," he whispered, looking again into Basile's face. "I . . . I remember Little Duck and . . . and being cold . . . and hot . . . and face clouding—I've had dreams, my friend . . . Terrible dreams."

Still Shaw had not looked at Annette.

"Those dreams. Must . . . I've been fever . . . I dreamed that damned vixen was here, Basile."

"Partridge were dressed and from the breasts she made a broth, cooked slowly, with the support of succulent flesh. When Shaw roused she heard and gave Basile a job of the broth in a cup to carry to him."

Shaw slept quietly most of the day, rousing three for more doses of nourishment and the morning found him with renewed vigor, but before he drank broth again he asked the question that had been on his mind.

"Basile, is she . . . is the man's sell still in camp?"

"Yes, she stays."

Shaw's men, went about rousing no suspicion, keeping safe for long hours in his concealment across the river from where Annette made her fight for Rodney's life, and the nightingale to Rickman what transpired.

He came this evening. "The little trader will live," he said and shifted his gaze from Rickman's face. "The white woman speaks it. I heard her words."

Heavy drinking, then, in the trader's quarters; mutterings and mummings, and Rickman passed the room like a wolf dragging an iron trap, back and forth, up and down.

Once, stopping, he snatched the girl's cloak from the peg where it had hung this fortnight, and ripped the fabric to shreds, silently, more terrible in his silence than he would have been shouting threats.

Annette did not again enter Shaw's tent. Another, which she could occupy, now that delirium was gone, was at a little distance. She lay there sleepless that night, and, at dawn, was up.

Partridge were dressed and from the breasts she made a broth, cooked slowly, with the support of succulent flesh. When Shaw roused she heard and gave Basile a job of the broth in a cup to carry to him."

"Yes, she stays."

"Basile, is she . . . is the man's sell still in camp?"

"But you came from there!"

"But I cannot return there, Basile." His fingers fumbled at his lips, wondering at her manner, so low spirited and hopeful. "May I. Would it not . . . Could one stop at Fort Shaw and prepare for the homeward journey?"

Yes, she could. Indeed, she could! Shaw would not need to know and she would be out of this entanglement, with the trader threatening to fall into heavy sickness again at thought of her presence. Within the hour he would take her there.

Within the hour, then, she gave Basile minute directions for the preparation of other foods, naming the days when Rodney might taste the flesh of fowl and have fish. She told him what to expect by way of good sign and bad in his condition.

"I will be near for a few days," she said. "I'd be should not grow steadily strong . . . She did not finish that. Her lips trembled and she turned away.

She embarked, with Jacques and another in the canoe but as they prepared to shove off Basile ran back and whispered a delaying word.

"But wait!" . . . Here, mademoiselle! This was found in his blanket. It was yours. I saw you give it to him to quiet his fever."

Strange creatures, women. She'd taken the remnant of a black ostrich plume from her bosom and pressed it into Rodney's hand. It must be something of value, to be carried so.

It had served its purpose. It was returned to her. Annette took it with an odd smile and turned her face away. The canoe slid into the current . . .

Shaw roused and drank a more generous portion of broth and smiled at Basile.

"What happened?" he asked.

"The other told, placing the tale together as well as he could from the time she was summoned to Rickman's flight to Black Beaver was spread until they found him there."

The mademoiselle took command, Basile said gravely. "She gave the orders: she . . ."

He stepped as Shaw turned his face away.

"Has she gone?" he asked.

"Yes. While you slept. She went."

"Then she is wholly gone. We will not even speak again of her."

And so at Fort Shaw a woman slept in the trader's bed, slept long and heavily and awoke still weary. Her bosom was swathed in a great and heavy bandage. "Get her away, Basile. Get her away I say!" and he closed his eyes wearily.

To Basile, the trader's death, without her we would have been helpless. She . . . she cheated death of you, master."

"Errand of mercy, eh?" Shaw asked bitterly. "She'd do that for a . . . dog. A dog . . . or her sweetheart's rival. He . . ."

"Get her away, Basile. Get her away I say!" and he closed his eyes wearily.

To Basile, the trader's death, without her we would have been helpless. She . . . she cheated death of you, master."

Alsmeyer Calls Meeting to Elect Co. Committee

An election of the county committee for the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program will be held Tuesday, Nov. 30, at 7:30 p. m. in the court room, according to a notice sent out from the office of Louis Alsmeyer, county agent.

A committee of three members and one alternate will be elected at that time, and he urges that all who have the right to vote be present at this meeting.

Brief announcements will be made concerning the 1938 program, and there will be an opportunity for all to call at his office after the meeting to check on the performance of the 1937 program.

Field crews are now checking on cover crop acreage, materials applied, and crops produced, and it is expected that there will be applications for grants ready for signing at that time.

The office of the county agent will be open from 9:30 a. m. till noon daily, and the election will admit all members to call and make reports or transact any business pertinent to the program as outlined.

Up to about three years ago, Jacksonville was the world's leading mail store exporter, being succeeded by Savannah in 1934-35, according to the Florida Chamber of Commerce.

WASHINGTON NEWS

CONGRESS SLOW IN GETTING UNDERWAY—With none of the administration bills ready at the convening of congress, at the time of this writing on Monday, November 22, the House has been practically marking time. Many of the members are anxious to get underway, but the leadership is endeavoring to get the administration program before them before other things come up. There is a general sentiment for aid to small businesses and amendments to the tax act allowing for a cushion of reserves against lean periods. The Senate has been tied up in a filibuster on the anti-lynching bill, both Senators Pepper and Andrews of Florida taking part in the filibuster.

CHAPLAIN'S PRAYER—Thinking it might be of interest, I submit below the prayer offered in the Senate on the first day of the special session by the chaplain, the Rev. Phillips, D. D.

"Father of Life, who gavest to our dust the breath of being, whose love sustains us through each passing hour; Grant, we beseech Thee, that as again we meet in this our corporate task, we may be found worthy of Thy manifold blessing, while, in the shew of this moment, we dedicate anew all that is best in us to the service of our country and our God. Let Thy blessing rest upon our Nation, upon our President, our Vice President, the Members of the Congress, and all who bear the responsibility of Government, that they may be clothed with beauty of character and dignity of purpose, which are the panoply of wisdom.

"Gracious Father, lead the nations of the world into the way of justice and truth, that peace, which is the fruit of righteousness, may be established in the earth; and Thou remove from us all clouds that have been woven out of the warp and woof of poverty and misfortune, that our people may abundantly live and win by the love of Him who, when He walked among men, touched poverty and clothed it with power, and made work and wages sacraments of human fellowship; even Jesus Christ, Thy Son, our Lord, Amen."

VISITORS—Among the Washington visitors this past week were Mayor R. E. L. Chaney of Tampa, who was attending the conference of mayors, and Commissioner Nathan Mayo, who was attending the convention of secretaries, commissioners and directors of agriculture for a short time. Commissioner Mayo stands well in this organization.

EFFECT ON FLORIDA OF RECENT HOUSE VACANCIES—Seven recent vacancies in the House had this effect on the Florida delegation. Assignments of offices, committee assignments, etc., are arranged by seniority. On the death of Rep. Peyer of New York, I filed on his office and was assigned to it. I advised Rep. Hendricks of Florida of my intention and he filed on my old office, thus moved from the Old to the New House Office Building. Rep. Stubbs of California was just above me on the Committee on Public Lands, and on his death I advised, and with nearer the chairmanship, Rep. Millard, one of those who objected to the Medley bill, has resigned from the House to take another public office. So three of the seven vacancies had a direct bearing on Florida matters.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMINATIONS—Examinations called during the week included principal specialist, senior specialist, assistant and association in material and child health, with salaries ranging from $5,600 to $3,200. The Navy Yard at Charleston is still seeking an angelfish (other fish) which pays from $6.62 to $7.58 per day.

FARM TENANT PROGRAM—With $5,600,000 available, the Farm Security Administration will enter shortly its program for the purchase of farms for tenants under the act passed last July. This program will develop slowly in Florida, where the tenant problem is not as serious as in some other Southern states. Details have not been worked out, but only 2,000 to 2,500 loans will be made throughout the country during the coming year, and will be concentrated in about 300 counties.

Three Grand Stars Share Film Honors

One of the year's really exceptional motion pictures, "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," sparkling Tuesday, Nov. 23, at 7:30 p. m. starring Loretta Young, Warner Baxter and Virginia Bruce, which opens Thursday at the Park Theatre, required stars in the important leading roles whose performances would lead the unusual story in reflecting the mood of today.

Such an assignment necessitated capable stars to portray the important characters.

Because of her past successes, Loretta Young was chosen for the role of the wife, a woman with modern ideas, but not modern enough to share her husband. Her selection was a tribute to her acting ability and her tremendous popularity.

Warner Baxter, whose record of achievement in several past hits is unparalleled, was the logical choice for the part of the doctor who loves his wife but also needs his nurse. A favorite of theatregoers everywhere because of his versatile talent, Baxter deserved the important assignment.

To share starring honors with Miss Young and Baxter, blonde, beautiful and gifted Virginia Bruce was cast in the role of the nurse whose valuable assistance is so intimately a part of the doctor's life.

Featured in the strong supporting cast are Jane Darwell, Sidney Blackmer, Maurice Cass, Minna Gombell, and Mary Gordon. Darryl F. Zanuck, Twentieth Century-Fox production chief, selected Walter Lang to direct with Raymond Griffith as associate producer. The combined talents of Kathryn Scala, Darrell Farrow and Lamar Trotti were responsible for the brilliant screen play.

State Aid Blanks Ready For Blind

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 24 (Special)—Application blanks, to be used by the blind and near-sightless who will apply for state assistance, were mailed out into the twelve welfare districts of the state last week, according to an announcement here by Clayton C. Cordington, state welfare commissioner.

The aid was taken in anticipation that the aid to the blind plan now before the Social Security Board at Washington, will be approved within a short delay. It was sent to the national capital, being sanctioned by the State Welfare Board.

District directors have been instructed, Cordington said, to begin the enrolling of applicants as soon as the blanks are received, and to follow through as rapidly as possible after the formal O. I. is obtained. It is hoped that all the blind will receive checks in time for Christmas spending, if not before.

The sum of $200,000 has been allocated for the payment of grants to the blind and near-blind, estimated to number 1,250 in Florida. The state social security act provides for monthly assistance of not exceeding $20 to all blind who have been residents of Florida for 5 years of the past 9 years and who have resided within the state for the past year; who have not sufficient income or other resources to provide reasonably consistent with decency or health; who are not inmates of any public institution at the time of receiving assistance; who have not made a transfer of property for the purpose of rendering themselves eligible; who are not receiving old age assistance.

An eligible is defined in the plan as "a blind or near-blind person whose central visual acuity is 20/200 or less in the better eye, with correcting glasses or who has a disqualifying field defect in which the peripheral field has contracted to such an extent that the widest diameter of visual field extends an angular distance no greater than 20 degrees."

All applications will be considered in the chronological order in which they are received. The eye examination, provided for in the plan, will be the responsibility of an ophthalmologist and the social and financial investigation the responsibility of a state welfare worker.

Department of Commerce advises. The sugar cane pulp is obtained from Vera Cruz sugar mills at a reported cost of approximately $2.50 a metric ton.

VICE-PRESIDENT'S HAT—J. Garner's big white "ten gallon" hat was used a few days ago to hold numbers representing all postal routes in the country, and the vice-president drew the numbers of the routes on which checks will be made to determine the efficiency of the unemployment census. All patrons along the routes selected will be required to see just how effectively they cooperated in the census, and thus an idea will be obtained of the prospective efficiency of the census.

John B. Biers, administering the census, says the census must be within 7% right or he will consider it a " flop."

Tax Revision League Condemns Stand of Jacksonville Mayor

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 24 (Special)—The Florida Tax Revision League said here today: "The taxpayers of the State are opposed to the recommendations of George Blume, Mayor of Jacksonville, that property tax assessments be raised to 100% of value, which is regarded as a subterfuge to further attempt to nullify Homestead Exemption."

Mayor Blume recently recommended that assessments be raised to 100% in order to reduce the millage rates as an inducement to prospective manufacturers and investors.

The League said: "Prospective manufacturers and investors cannot be hoodwinked by such a subterfuge for economical government. On the other hand, property owners know that if the millage rates are increased 100% to 400%, millage rates will not be reduced in the same proportion, therefore the final result would be higher taxes."

"We suspect, however," said the League, "that the real motive behind Mayor Blume's statement is another scheme in the persistent attempt to nullify Homestead Exemption, which has been fought constantly by this League. Ever since the amendment was adopted by a 3-1 referendum vote, the officials have been cooking up schemes to nullify the benefits to the homeowner by deception."

"If Mayor Blume really desires to appeal to the manufacturers and investors," says the League, "He should cooperate in the state-wide movement to abolish our antiquated and inequitable ad valorem method of taxation, and replace it with an equitable, economical, fair and workable system."

Florida Forest and Park Service Has Many Seedlings

Acting District Forester Guy H. Wesley of the Florida Forest and Park Service located in Lakeland has announced that the 1937-38 planting season is almost upon us and urges all interested in setting aside unproductive areas in forest growth to communicate with him in the near future. The Florida Forest and Park Service maintains and operates a nursery located near Ocala, where seedlings are raised for reforestation purposes. Seedlings are sold to interested parties at cost and sent by express C.O.D. to all parts of the state.

Seedlings are sold at the rate of $2.00 per thousand and only in lots of 1000 or more. They have been obtained for ornamental or beautification purposes as the state does not wish to compete with private nurseries. The planting season begins around the first of December and extends through February. However, past experience indicates that early planting results in a better survival.

Anyone interested or desiring further information are requested to write the Florida Forest and Park Service, Box 53, Lakeland, Florida, or call at the District Office in the basement of the City Hall.

TWO FEDERAL PLAYS HERE DECEMBER 16

Familiar Christmas carols and other religious music, including "Gounod's Mass" and "Missa in Eccelesie," the Doxology and selected hymns—all played on a pipeless electric organ—are interwoven with the better plays of religious Nativity and Adoration cycle of the Chester Religious Mystery dramas and the morality play of subtle dramatic setting, "Everyman," both of which have been announced for presentation by the professional Florida Federal Theatre Players at the high school auditorium in Avon Park on Thursday evening, December 16th at 8:15 p. m.

"Both plays, constituting together an evening's entertainment, have been played for hundreds of years and are noted not only as the finest, but as the best of the religious plays ever produced," according to Mrs. Dorothea Thomas Lynch, State Director of the Works Progress Administration, who is employing professional actors, actresses, scenery and costume designers and makers, and other theatre artists and artists in production of the Christmas dramas, to be presented in Avon Park under the sponsorship of Dr. S. N. Reeves, principal and the English faculty, has been planned for nearly two years. It is part of an "animated history of the drama" series for the enjoyment of old and young throughout every section of Florida. The plays announced for December presentation represent the drama of the middle centuries, of medieval period, when the first drama was conducted in or by the churches; and to make the plays available to all, the local sponsors have set admission at a popular level, with special low prices for children.

Clint Frank Rams

Leading Performers in Football World

SOME day I am going to learn to say "No" in the manner of those big personality boys who, square chin and all, add the success. As I mean while it looks as though I am hooked again. On the other hand, the regular weekly assistant to various committees to name the sports greats of the last eleven months.

Obviously, such a task should only be undertaken by those supremely confident that they are divinely guided. With millions of boys and girls straining muscles daily for the sake of Alma Mater, or merely for the fun of it, I have made it my business for thinking he has a chance to guess right.

Nevertheless, having always been a pushover for guessing games, I have been devoting the last two and three-quarter minutes to the requests. Herewith are the answers: Best football player of the year—Clint Frank of Yale.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE!

COMMANDER ARNOLD McFALL, graduate manager of the team at Annapolis, thinks the present Bill Ingram is the greatest of all that famous Navy family so far as all-around athletic ability is concerned. Bill's a baseball slugger as well as a smooth basketball guard and almost everybody knows that he can do on a football field—Now that King Klay has retired Aural Jellies holds the Naval Hockey League continuous season with his starting sixteenth season with Lee Canadians—Among other very good reasons why Helen Williams will not turn pro is the fact that tennis promoters will not offer enough money. What on Cobb Thinks about Sports Broadcaster.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

—Somebody said that there were always two big sporting events—the one Graham McNamee saw and the one that actually took place.

But, alongside the present sports broadsheet, Graham's widest flight would sound like the dulcet twitters of a timid love bird as compared with the last ravings of John McCullough.

Coaches grip in the midst of the lower percentage of serious football accidents. This time, this fall, but oh, think of the radio description.

EDITORIAL

Congratulations, All!

In spite of the usual differences between the students of Avon Park and Sebring before and after the football game, nothing really serious happened to any of the students last week.

We know that red and blue paint flowed about freely but that within itself is not so serious. We are glad that no one was injured by flying missiles, as a few unfortunate ones were.

Also it has been noticed that there were no accidents. In days of yore, the boys used to tear each other's hair out, and do similar barbaric things. We believe that students are beginning to realize more and more that school spirit should not be expressed by attempting to injure someone or something.

Compliments to you, Sebring and you, Avon Park, for exhibiting such courtesy and sportsmanship!

DESKS ARE ABUSED

(By Christine Lofton)

The mis-use of our school room desks is a disgrace! Visitors who come to our school must think we are very untidy boys and girls. We who are students this year may not be responsible for the autographs, comic cartoons, fancy designs, etc., carved on the desks, but surely the trash crammed in the desks was not left by students of the past. There were no trash baskets available there might be an excuse for such conduct, but in each room there is a basket for all sorts of trash. Nothing can be done to remedy this situation if only two or three stand together. The school as a whole must work together to clean up the reputation of our school.

BOOK OF THE WEEK

(By Marvin Reddick)

In "Men Against the Sea," a sequel to "Mutiny on the Bounty," the pitiful struggle of eighteen men against the raging sea and other forces of nature is vividly pictured in burning words by the co-authors of the book. The dominating will and resolution of Captain Bligh becomes a part of the reader as the unbelievable hunger, thirst, and hardships increase and some of the hands of men begin to turn away from the Captain, finally succumb to the sun and sea, and momentarily lose sanity and attack members of the crew.

The readers' heart will fill with pity as he reads of Captain Bligh and other members of the crew eating the very head and feet of a bird for want of other food. A slow smile will fill across his face as he reads of the courage and sacrifice of an old man who asks that his share of the food be given to some of the younger members of the crew that they might live.

Gasp of horror and involuntary cry of fear run from you as the narrow escapes of the seamen unfold before your anxious eyes.

Last but not least the feeling of elation that is felt when the half dead party ships the Dutch outpost island and raises a feeble cheer for the safety that is at last theirs.

This book is highly recommended by the critics and should prove to be the kind of book that can't be laid down.

Red Devil Escapes

Sebring's blue paint

The Red Devil was not painted blue last week, although hearsay has it that Sebring received a few dabs from a brush of dripping vermilion.

On the nights immediately before the game the students of the high school gathered at the school buildings and searched for the red devil.

Some of the Sebring boys came to Avon Park, painting the devil blue but success slipped through their fingers, with their courage, when the students stop the building peppered the Sebring line with grapefruit, rocks, and what have you.

One-Act Play Presented By Tenth Grade

HEIM AND ROSEMAN LEADING CAST

CHAPEL FRIDAY

Miss Pearson's section of the tenth grade presented a one-act play, "Leave It To Phyllis," in chapel this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Greenleigh have been married two weeks and are starting their married career. Mrs. Greenleigh declares that she is going to be an economical housewife. She plans to use a budget so that she will know just how much money she can spend and so she will be a thrifty housewife too.

She tells her husband that she will not buy anything from an agent. He decides to play a good joke on her. He sends his neighbors to the house pretending to be agents selling rat traps, flavoring, books, etc. and they pay for the goods.

Also she finally buys from them. When Mr. Greenleigh returns his wife tells him all about her buying from these agents and he figures it up and it will take ten years to pay for these articles with a small deposit of twenty-five cents a week for ten years.

The friends return to tell Mrs. Greenleigh they were their wedding presents. He then tells her he played a joke on her and these people were his friends. She immediately declares that the joke is on him too because she has no dinner cooked, and that he will have to take them out to lunch.

The characters included: Mr. Greenleigh, Jimmy Heim; Mrs. Greenleigh, Winifred Roseman; Mr. Seller, George Edwards; Miss Smoothie, Dolly Brown; Romanian, Nancy Betts; Mr. Fresh, Calvin Bryant; Mr. Spieler, Tillman Crosby; neighbor, Mary Edwards; C. C. Davis, president, read the announcements. Lillian Best read the scripture.

SEBRING WINNERS OF RIDGE CONFERENCE

Lakeland, Nov. 29.—By virtue of a 12 to 0 defeat of Avon Park last Friday, Sebring has been named the champion of the Ridge Conference. The Blue Devils held the loop leadership with Ft. Meade in games won and lost, but according to the Dickinson System, Coach Jim Melton's team is the winner on points. Both Sebring and Fort Meade have a record of five games won and one defeat.

All teams in the conference have completed their schedule excepting Avon Park and Lake Wales, who meet non-conference foes this week. The Red Devils play Blue Devils in a benefit game and the Highlanders face Winter Haven.

The final standings with games won, lost and tied, points by the Dickinson System, points scored in all games and points scored by the opposition:

	W.	L.	T.	P.S.	P.O.
Sebring	5	1	0	102	27
Fort Meade	5	1	0	86	151
Brewster	4	2	1	144	64
Avon Park	2	4	1	139	64
Haines City	4	2	0	115	101
Lake Wales	3	3	1	118	104
Mulberry	1	5	0	99	188
Fort Meade	2	4	0	115	101

Alburndale dropped out of the loop after losing five games.

Miss Erress Arant Visits Sugar Mill At Clewiston

One of the interesting things discussed in biology class this week was an interesting trip taken by Miss Erress Arant, Sunday around Lake Okechobee.

"For miles and miles sugar cane is all you can see," says Miss Arant. "Three thousand negroes work in the mills during the harvesting of the sugar cane. They use large knives, called 'machetes' to cut it down and top it. By using this knife it does not take the men long to cut down the cane. The stripped stalks are placed in a pile from which they are loaded on wagons equipped with crawler-tracks.

When the wagons are filled they are placed in a 'train' and hauled by a crawler-type tractor to the 'loading hoist'. The grab lines of the 'loading hoist' leave the entire load at one time and while transferring the cane to the railroad car it is also accurately weighed. Several times a day locomotives make the rounds of all loading hoists, dropping off empty cars and picking up the loaded cars for transportation to the sugar house.

The cane-receiving pit is where the cars are tilted to unload. The

MARY KEY RESIGNS AS JUNIOR SPONSOR

Miss Mary Key resigned as sponsor of the junior class at a class meeting held Monday.

Miss Key is a junior high teacher and needs to spend the greater part of her time with those pupils; therefore she feels that she could not give the junior class all the cooperation that it needed from her. The junior class regrets losing Miss Key, for her fine spirit did much to boost them.

The junior class voted Coach Wagner to succeed Miss Key as sponsor, but was again disappointed. Coach Wagner had too many other responsibilities that would take his time. The junior class is receiving fine cooperation from Dr. Stanley F. Reeves, principal, who said he would sponsor the juniors if they couldn't find some one else to sponsor them—and they are hoping they can't.

Librarian Receives New Music Books

The Avon Park high school library received in the last shipment some new and very interesting books, on music.

Among the books is Richard Wagner's autobiography. It is a secret for more than a quarter of a century after Wagner's death.

There are three fine biographies among this new lot: one of Beethoven, by Schaffner; one of Paderewski, by Landau; and one of Gilbert and Sullivan by Isaac Goldberg.

Four other books which came with the collection are: "Music on the Air," by Hazel Kinsella; "The Book of Musical Instruments," by Arthur Elson; "So This Is Jazz," by Henry O. Gosword; and "The Hand on Parade," by Raymond.

Ninth Grade Girls Ready For Game

The 9th grade girls are getting up a volleyball team. They will play the 8th grade Monday afternoon after school since the 8th grade won over the 7th. The 9th grade girls practice during the period when there is no assembly.

Following are the girls playing for the 9th grade: Lillian Bennett, June Gough, Lucie Willis, Ludeen Peters, and Vanderwerf. Albert Garrett, Louis Shumaker, Vera Mae Imman, Cynthia Kolburne, Bessie Mae Hartzog and Margaret Smith.

Junior To Operate Basketball Canteen

The senior class has given the right of operating the drink and candy stand at the basketball games to the junior class. The seniors operated the stand during the football season, making a net profit of $87.35; a third of this was given to the athletic association leaving the seniors $28.22.

As a reason for giving the seniors say that they will be able to make enough money otherwise to carry the W. P. A. plays for the year; but it seems that the juniors will not have enough money to give the seniors the kind of a banquet as they expect unless they use this money.

Blue Streaks Defeat Devils 12-0 In Rain

The Blue Streaks of Sebring cashed in on the breaks afforded them, defeated Avon Park 12-0, and won the Ridge conference championship.

The game was scheduled for Thanksgiving but due to the rain, athletic director, Jim Melton, of Sebring called it off until Friday night.

When the teams took the field it was still raining and throughout the game there was a steady down-pour that cut the attendance to 500, who faithfully looked on as the two bitter rivals battled on the gridiron.

Avon Park boys received the opening kickoff deep in their own territory and for the remainder of the first half the boys were always in the hole. Near the end of the opening quarter Leonard Chollet, Sebring fullback, raced 75 yards around the end crossed the Avon Park goal line standing up. The try for extra point failed. The entire second quarter saw little more than a punting duel between Meriwether of Avon Park and Albert of Sebring. The half ended with the Devils on the short end of a 6-0 score.

A rejuvenated Red Devil team took the field to start the second half. Lynn kicked off for Avon Park and the Blue Streaks took on their own 20 yards and brought it back 20 yards to the Sebring 40. After a series of plays Sebring punted to the Avon Park 15. The Devils' only first down of the game midway in the third quarter. After several attempts to gain yardage the Sebring line Meriwether dropped back to kick, but the line did not hold and Sebring blocked the kick and recovered on the Avon Park 15. The Blue Streaks made it a first down on the 8. Albritton then crashed off tackle and fell over the goal line for a touchdown. The remainder of the game was fought almost entirely in Avon Park territory. The Devils were not able to get further than the Sebring 30. The Blue Streaks threatened the Devils goal line in the last quarter but lost the ball on down yard 2 and line Chollie Albritton, Bates, McDonald and Butler stood off for Sebring. While the Wild Boys, Touchton, Meriwether, and played good ball for Avon Park.

Juniors Think Of Ways To Make $'s

The bust-brain juniors have made new plans to raise money for the annual junior and senior banquet.

At the last junior meeting the list was pulled out of the treasury and to the astonishment of all it contained one hundred and eighty four times the amount expected. It totaled $1,844.40.

The new plans made by the juniors under the leadership of president, Marion Foster, are as follows:

(1) To swap treasures with the senior class.

(2) Have the senior class sell to carry the W. P. A. plays for the juniors.

(3) Take the senior class sponsor, Chester Yates. (Unless these plans are carried out successfully the seniors are going to give one of Whimpy's duck dinners.)

The seniors have been bringing to the juniors about their money power and all the montanzas they have in their coffers. The juniors aren't that sure. They aren't even bragging about the fact that they are to crown Elizabeth Hetherington football queen.

Rainy Weather Ruins Student's Holidays

Damp, wet weather ruined the Thanksgiving holidays for the 10 college students who were home.

Most of them were home to get something good to eat and to see the Avon Park-Sebring game. The ones that did not go to the game, went back to school with great disappointment.

Those students who were home are: Patay Loomis, Morris McCord, Gary Dean, J. J. Bledsoe, and University, Billy Martin and Harold McClelland of University of Tampa; Carmen Booth of Southern College; G. D. D. Macdonald, Covington, Johnny Vilkaldis of University of Florida.

Fish Has Only One Cost

Many animals and birds periodically have a new coat. Some of the fur or feathers drop out and are replaced by fresh. A fish, however, only has one coat of scales. As it grows so the scales grow, in proportion. The scales are really very thin, bony plates, and are attached to the scales on a bone top—Parses's Winkles.

SENIORS GET '37-38 RINGS WEDNESDAY

The seniors got their class rings Wednesday. For the past 3 years each senior class ordered rings alike, but a new ring was selected for the senior class of '38.

Instead of a Red Devil on the ring, as was on the ring of the past 3 years, the symbol of the school flag is on it. This symbol was adopted by the school last year.

Twenty-two rings made up the order sent to Hoff-Jones Co. near 2 months ago. Only 5 of these were rings for boys; the other 17 were for girls. At the time the order was made up a deposit of $2.00 was made by each senior depending for a ring. Wednesday when the students obtained their rings the girls paid a balance of $6.25 and the boys a balance of $6.65, thus making the rings cost the boys $8.65 and the girls $8.25.

TWO Students Go To Stetson

Mr. E. L. Roberts, music director of Avon Park high music department, took with him Friday to the State Band Clinic at Stetson University two members of the band, Nancy Bledsoe, flute, and Charles Shepherd, flute. An invitation was extended to the whole band but only two were able to go.

Twenty-eight high schools were represented in bands at Stetson. These bands were combined into one 127 piece band. This band was rehearsed at one o'clock on Friday and played until five o'clock with only one twenty minute break. At seven o'clock they started to practice again and played until nine thirty. Saturday morning practice began at nine o'clock and lasted until ten o'clock. At ten o'clock the band played a broadcast over WDBO which lasted thirty minutes. Then they rehearsed until eleven thirty o'clock. In the afternoon a concert was given in the park.

The National Contest numbers were played at this clinic. Each director represented directed one number each. The contest numbers were:

Class "A"—Final to Fort Smyth, by Tachikowsky.

Class "B"—Stadella Overture, by Tachikowsky.

Class "C"—The Witch of Endor, Overture, by Hindlith.

Class "D"—Gallantry Overture, by Shepard.

At the state contest each band will be required to play the number in his class, also a number selected by the conductor of the band in that class. There will also be a warm up march and last, each band will be required to play a reading number entirely unfamiliar to the students.

Boys Will Clash In Annual Tournaments

The junior and senior boys will clash next week in the annual intramural basketball tournament, at the New Armory, after receiving a few days practice.

There are a few leftwingers left in the senior class and this leads them to believe they will be champions of Avon Park high school, played in the Avon Park high school and senior years; Charles Sherman has been three years regular playing; and Bud Belin played in Avon Park high school and senior years; but was kept out of his senior year by a bad heart.

J. S. C. Hamburger Fry On Friday night

Members of the Avon Park Junior Social Club will have a hamburger fry and dance tonight at Heart's Desire immediately following the football game with Wauchula and Avon Park.

Only members who have paid their dues for the month of November will get something to eat.

"Vote" Is Cry Of Students Around School

"Vote, vote, everybody, vote." These are the words that every student has heard around the school since last Tuesday.

Each home room from the ninth through the twelfth inclusive elected a candidate to represent their room to fill the queen's chair Friday night at the football field during the halves of the game.

The girls who will represent each room are as follows: June Gough, ninth grade; Nancy Betts, sophomore; Elizabeth Hetherington, eleventh grade; Mary Lydia Stebbins, senior.

Here is the way to vote: Pay a penny to any of the students who are campaigning for your favorite queen to ride upon the football queen and each cent counts one vote.

Besides seeing the queen of the football there will be a beautifully decorated float for the queen to ride upon the field. The queen's candidates will be the Queen's attendants.

The football boys have chosen Ed Touchton to place the crown upon the Queen's head.

"If everybody gets behind this thing with full force," states Coach Wagner, "it will be real success for the help it will give to the football association to pay off the heavy debts that were made in the Belton, South Carolina game." This is the first time in the school's history that such an event has taken place and the Queen's name will go down as the first for the success of the Avon Park high school.

"Eat-um No Sweets" Say-um de Coach

Wednesday afternoon just before Thanksgiving, the football squad walked very briskly and happily into the club house talking about the kicking they were going to give Sebring.

"Alright, boys, have a seat before you take a shower. I have very good news for you," stated Coach Wagner, "Tomorrow, you all know as well as I, is the biggest game of the year—and for 'digestion's sake' stay away from too much turkey, pie, cake and ice cream."

Coach Wagner went on to tell them that if they eat a yell that almost lifted the roof off the building. They were all together in hollering, "Aw, Coach."

The boys walked grumbling in to the showers, dressed, and slowly stalked out of the club house talking about what they were going to do with Sebring.

Four Seniors End Football Careers

Four seniors, two regular players and two in a wreck, which kept him from playing in the last four games, and the other manager, will end their football careers in most of Avon Park high school with the last game this week.

Earlie Lynn played his junior and senior years on the Red Devils. He played in the Avon Park high school and senior years; Charles Sherman has been three years regular playing; and Bud Belin played in Avon Park high school and senior years; but was kept out of his senior year by a bad heart.

Benefit Game To Be Played Here Tonight

QUEEN TO BE CROWNED BETWEEN H A L V E S BY CAPTAIN

Tonight at 8 o'clock the Avon Red Devils will attempt to pull the Wauchula Wildcats' tails without getting hit.

In their last meeting, the Wildcats defeated the Devils by a score of 19 to 0, but conditions have changed since then and this year the teams are evenly matched, judging from their records so far this season.

Neither team has been successful in capturing their respective conference titles but each was a threat and ended up close to the top.

Last week the Wildcats defeated the Arcadia team by the same score as did the Devils several weeks earlier.

After going down at the hands of the Sebring Blue Streaks last week, the Red Devils are anxious to stage a come back by handing the Wildcats a second trouncing.

In the game last week end the Red Devils received several painful bruises but with these weeks drills behind them, they are now in tip-top condition.

Wauchula will present a team well drilled and one that will show plenty of fight.

Since both teams use razzle-dazzle plays, this game will provide plenty of thrills for the fans.

The probable lineup for Avon Park will be: Touchton, H. Wild; Jimmie Heim, J. Ward, R. C. Wild, Jr.; Bradbury, R. Todd; C. F. Bailey, J. B. Meriwether, Jr.; Lynn, qb.

"One Brand New Suit"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO EVERYBODY:
Take it from me, boys and girls, you can't take it from Bob Kaiser. That is, you may take it from him, but you won't keep it. It's been tried before and it just didn't work.

It all sounds mysterious but it's as simple as A B C. As a matter of fact, it's the tale of today's adventure story—the stirring tale of how Bob Kaiser of New York city got mad about having a brand new suit ruined and faced the guy that ruined it with both hands tied behind his back. Today Bob works for the New York Steam company, but on June 7, 1925, he was a sales manager for the United Cigar Stores, running a shop located at Broadway and Thirty-first street, New York. It was on a Sunday, and things were quiet along that section of Broadway. There weren't half a dozen people in sight on the street, and there hadn't been a customer in the store for half an hour.

These Customers Were Bandits.

Then, about noon, a customer came in. He asked for a package of cigarettes and Bob turned to get them from the rack. And as he turned he heard a low, grating voice say: "Don't move—or I'll blow your brains out!"

Bob didn't move, but out of the corner of his eye he could see the man holding a thirty-eight caliber revolver on him. "It was a hot day," says Bob, "but the sweat that broke out on my forehead just then was cold—ice cold."

The man came behind the counter and ordered Bob to sit down on the floor. That's where Bob began to get mad. He had on a nice new suit that day and the floor had been freshly oiled. The porter had oiled it the day before, and he had given it an extra heavy dose. If Bob sat down on that greasy floor—well—his suit wasn't going to look so new any more.

Bob got mad about it, but he didn't lose his head. He took another look at that thirty-eight and decided that maybe the gangster was right. He sat down on the floor. And about that time, a second gangster, who had been watching outside, came in to help the first.

Ruined Suit Made Bob Angry.

They told Bob to open the safe, and he opened it. The company's instructions, in case of a hold-up, were to give the bandits the money without any argument. The gangsters took four hundred dollars of the company's money and it made Bob mad to see them get it that easily. Likewise, he was still mad about his ruined suit.

When the bandits had the money they tied Bob's hands behind his back, put a gag in his mouth and pushed him down to the floor. A friend of Bob's came into the store and bought some tobacco. The bandits waited on him. When they asked where Bob was they told him he was out to lunch. After Bob's friend had gone the bandits told Bob not to move for five minutes, and left themselves.

But Bob didn't wait even five seconds after those thugs went out the door. With his hands tied behind his back and a gag in his mouth, he leaped up and ran in pursuit of the bandits. He trailed him to the street he saw the thugs walking toward Sixth avenue. He tried to yell, but the gag in his mouth was so tight that he couldn't utter a sound. So he started across Thirty-first street after those crooks.

He followed those birds to Sixth avenue and Thirty-second street and there the bandits split up and went in different directions. Bob lost sight of one man but he continued to follow the other. He trailed him to Thirty-second street and Seventh avenue, and there the fellow turned around and caught sight of Bob, gag still in his mouth, hands tied behind him, trailing along in his wake. At that the guy turned and bolted.

He Literally Fell on the Thug.

The thug ran across the street toward Pennsylvania station, dashed into the Thirty-second street entrance and bolted down the stairs toward the concourse. Bob lit out after him.

Running as fast as he could with his hands tied, Bob dashed down through the main corridor and down the slippery marble stairs. At the bottom of the stairs, right in front of the ticket windows, he caught up with the thug and there a strange battle took place—probably the strangest scrap in all history. Bob fell on the crook, and when I say "fell," I mean that literally. With his hands tied behind his back, there just wasn't anything else Bob could do.

He gave a leap and landed on the crook. And the crook went down. Bob, gagged as he was, couldn't yell to attract attention but the spectacle of a bound and gagged man, legs flailing in the air, rolling on the floor and all over the top of another man attracted plenty of attention as it was. People began to yell and run to the spot. Tom Eagan of the station police came running up with the crowd and grabbed the bandit. That bandit was out of breath and pretty badly frightened by his strange experience. He was still wondering what landed on him as they led him away to the calaboose.

Bob got his hands untied then, took the gag out of his mouth, and went back to his store. He had left the door open and a big crowd had gathered about the place. He did a record business that day, selling stuff to people who wanted to hear his story of the hold-up.

The third Bob caught squealed on his partner, and both of them got seven-year sentences. And the company gave Bob a $500 bonus, a raise and a vacation.

The Final Dm

Old-time dms are curiosities. Here is a copy of a dming notice 150 years ago. "Take Notice, Debtors—This is the last time of asking in this way; all those who settle their accounts by the 15th of June instant, will have the thanks of their humble servant; and those that neglect, will find their accounts in the hands of some person who will collect them in a more fashionable way, but more expensive."

Rifles Used in Civil War

A great variety of arms were in use during the Civil War. The percussion principle was applied to many of the flintlocks in the possession of the government, and the muskets and rifles made in the government armories were adapted to that style of ignition. Breach-loading rifles, carbines, several types of repeating arms and foreign weapons were also used.

Oath Taken by Justice

The oath taken by a justice of the United States Supreme court is as follows: "I do solemnly swear that I will administer justice without respect to persons, and do equal right to the poor and to the rich; and that I will faithfully discharge all the duties incumbent on me as judge, according to the best of my abilities and understanding, agreeably to the Constitution and laws of the United States."

Albino Dingo Not Popular

The albino dingo (wild dog) of Australia is not popular among his own kind. This was proved some years ago when the first pure white dingo ever seen in Queensland was captured alive. The animal was placed in a cage with other dingoes that were in captivity. On the following morning the albino animal was found dead, having been torn to pieces.

TELLS ABOUT RELIEF

It's Popular at Northwestern

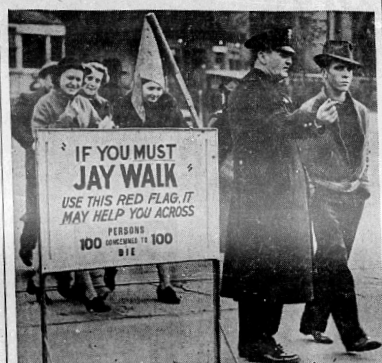

Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, as he addressed the recent mayors' conference at Boston, Mass.

His subject was "The National Program." Mayors from leading cities throughout the United States were in attendance. Their verdict was that the relief burden in big cities would be increased rather than lowered this winter.

Here's Safe Way to Jaywalk

Jaywalkers on the public square in Cleveland were politely reminded by police that using a red flag placed there for their convenience "might" help them in darting across the streets when the traffic lights were against them. It was all part of a traffic safety campaign to reduce the number of motor fatalities that have been mounting rapidly.

Now They're Putting Specs on Chickens

Hen spectacles are really for chickens and they make the fowls as wise as they look. This educated hen is wearing the new specs which are made of metal and instead of improving the chicken's eyesight, they provide a blind spot, which prevents bullies in the flock from picking feathers from the more timid.

Cow and Quadruplet Calves Visit the Big City

"Mrs. Cow" and her quadruplet calves which were brought to Chicago by Hiram W. Long (left) of Avery, Okla., were greeted by Dr. Herman Sundness (second from left), president of the board of health, and Alderman Thomas J. Terrell. This unusual barnyard family was a feature of the celebration of National Milk week.

In Step With Santa Claus

KEEPING up with the Joneses is easy—it's keeping up with Santa Claus that has Sew-Your-Own in stitches currently. We got a peek at his wares, though, and frankly we copied some of his artistry. (You can see for yourself there's a "Christmasy look" about today's trio of fashions.) And happily you can do more than look and wish—you can make them realities the easy way: just sew, sew, Sew-Your-Own!

Cute and Cozy.
Look your prettiest in leisure or on the job in the luxuriously feminine house jacket (young sister to the house coat) above, left. Santa Claus has ordered thousands of these for feminine friends in his good graces and you know S. C. usually shows impeccable taste in gifts. In handsome silk crepe or very lightweight corduroy it is as cozy as a love seat before an open fire. Make it either in the short length (see inset) or regular dress length.

Feminine Flattery.
Polish yourself off in a brilliantly styled new frock for the holidays just ahead. Sew-Your-Own's newest success (above center) will be your success once you wear it in the public eye. It is most gifted in its distinctive design, below-waist slimmness, and all-of-a-piece simplicity. Make your version of the very essence of chic in sheer wool or satin, in your most flattering color.

A Blouse or Two.
Tops in the fashion picture just now is that friendly little item—the blouse. A completely engaging one is shown here for women who sew. Wear it tucked in or

The Musk Ox
Able to exist farther north than any other hoofed mammal, the musk ox is a really a goat which tried to become an ox, but stopped halfway between, and is therefore neither. It is found only in the barren lands of northern Canada and Greenland. The rigorous climate of the Arctic does not bother the musk ox because it has two coats of hair. One is long, thick and brown. The other is a thick, soft under-fur, which is shed in summer. If it were not shed, the musk ox might almost smother to death.

peplum style. And here's a practical idea: you have a choice in sleeve lengths. For variety's sake, why not make the long sleeved model in silk crepe for dress; the short sleeved one in jersey for sports and all occasion wear?

The Patterns.
Pattern 1412 is designed for sizes 32 to 42. Size 34 requires 4 1/2 yards of 30-inch material and 1/4 yard for contrast. Short length requires 4 1/4 yards.

Pattern 1394 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 5 1/2 yards of 54-inch fabric.

Pattern 1417 is designed for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 5 1/2 yards of 54-inch fabric.

EASE YOUR CHILD'S CHEST COLD TONIGHT

Tonight, at bedtime, rub his little chest with stainless, snow-white Penetro. Penetro is the only salve that has a base of old-fashioned mutton suet together with 119% to 22% more moderation than any other nationally sold cold salve. Creates thorough counter-irritant action that increases blood flow, stimulates body heat to ease the tightness and pressure. Vaporizing action helps to "open up" stuffy nasal passages. 25c jar contains twice the size. Ask for Penetro.

A Mother Speaks

"I hold aloft the torch and set it farther on.
"I have gone down to the brink of dark waters and from the cold shadows brought back warm and precious life.
"I am an inspiration and a victim."

"I have known reverence and ingratitude, adoration and neglect.
"I have drunk of joys that Heaven will not make sweeter.
"I have felt griefs that endless torment could not make more keen."

"I have been borne aloft on wings softer than those of angels.
"I have seen in loving eyes the light that never was on sea or land."

"I have known the callous cruelty of indifference, the pain of being left behind on the path of life, the agony of 'superiority'."

"I have known the joy of being told that my white hairs are the beauty of undying youth."

"I have known the anguish of being told that I was never young.
"I have known the gladness of sacrifice and its sweet appreciation."

"I have known the happiness of remorse for unmeaning indifference, of regret that 'they did not realize'."

"I have slept on pillows softer than down, in which no untalented hand had ever placed a thorn."

"I have received tributes, nobler than any paid to kings and warriors, from those who testified that what they did and were they owed to me."

"I have seen stalwart sons grow into the likeness of him I loved, and sweet daughters become what I longed to be."

"I have known the glory of fulfillment, the fame of contented obscurity, the humble renown of a completed mission, the overflowing enjoyment for having given myself."

"I AM A MOTHER."—Frank A. Marshall.

And Yonder Lay the Tenth Bairn

A divinity professor was asked to preside at the baptism of the latest-arrived infant in the already crowded home of the minister of the parish in Scotland.

The professor gave out one of the paraphrases often used on such occasions.

"Let us," he said, "sing from the second verse, 'An sparks in close succession rise.'"

To his consternation he observed that the congregation seemed unable to represent a single spark.

Afterwards, asking the minister's man what had been wrong, he received the reply, "You see, the minister's name is Sparks."

Gift of Humor

I HAD rather be strong, affectionate, loyal, a noble minded, than be the best humorist in the world, yet if the gift of humor be added to these graces, you have a combination that is absolutely irresistible, because you have a perfect sense of proportion that never allows emotion to degenerate into gush or virtue into rigidity.

Thus I say that humor is a kind of divine and crowning grace in a character, because it means an artistic sense of proportion, a true and vital tolerance, a power of infinite forgiveness.—Arthur Benson.

THE WORLD AT ITS WORST

By GLUYAS WILLIAMS

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Improving Vegetables.—Sugar, added in the proportion of a fourth of a teaspoon to two cups of vegetables, will improve the flavor of cooked corn, beets, peas and lima beans.

Manipulating Velvet.—The usual method of pressing seams, especially in velvet, is to get a second person to hold one end of the material while you hold the other. Flatten out the two sides of the seam, then pass the iron along on the wrong side.

Kidneys With Apple Rings.—Cut three sheep kidneys in halves and skin. Fry lightly in 2 ounces of butter. Fry also as many small rounds of bread as there are half-kidneys, and a large cooking apple peeled, cored, and cut into rings. Place the rings on a hot dish, with a piece of fried bread and a half-kidney on each. Season and sprinkle with lemon juice. Put a scrap of butter on each and serve immediately.

Vegetable Water Sauce.—Two tablespoonsful butter, two tablespoonsful flour, salt and pepper to taste, one cup vegetable water or half cup milk and half cup vegetable water. Melt butter in a saucepan, stir the flour and seasonings into it, and stir over the fire until frothy. Add vegetable water gradually and stir constantly over the fire until it boils and thickens.

When Mending Gloves.—Slip a thimble on your finger when mending gloves and the darn can be made very easily.

Increased by Advertising

In 1899 the per unit of population value of manufactured products in America amounted to $10.60. For the year 1929 the per unit of population value of manufactured products had increased to a total of $59.70. Advertising created the demand that called for the employment of three to four times the number of workers and reduced the cost of products to consumers.

Two Federal Plays Coming

Double Bill Will Be Given At Auditorium On December 16

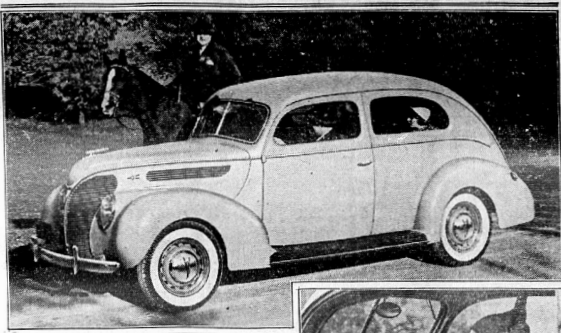

"Florida audiences who saw the Federal Theatre Players in a Roman comedy on statewide tour recently, will be interested in comparing the roles played by individual actors then and those portrayed in the Christmas-season plays to be presented by the same organization during December," according to Miss Nina Prohette, assistant director of the productions.

The plays to be presented are from the "Chester Christmas Cycle" and "Everyman," famous morality drama, as previously announced by Dr. Stanley N. Reeves, Principal, for the benefit of the High School Music Association, sponsor for the evening's entertainment to be presented at the Avon Park High School auditorium, 8:15 P. M. Thursday, December 16.

Comparison of the casts announced for the Chester Plays and Everyman on the coming bill and the Roman comedy, "Miles Gloriosus," previously produced, shows the following:

Scott Roberts McLean, who played the boastful Roman soldier, now plays the First Shepherd and the character, Fellowship; Wm. Orison, who played the dull slave, Squatty, now takes the leading part and title role in "Everyman" and, earlier, Mary's husband, Joseph. Miss Sybil Mercer, who formerly portrayed the coquettish "Roulette," in both Christmas dramas is a beautiful angel and also plays the part of Cousin. The lively, laugh-provoking slave, Twist, was played by Tyler Carpenter, who, in Everyman, portrays the ominous figure of Death and, in the Chester play, the young shepherd.

Two 1938 Ford V-8 Cars Displayed

Two distinct lines of Ford V-8 cars are now being displayed in dealer showrooms. One is a newly-styled standard Ford line in three body types, the other a de luxe Ford line in eight body types. The de luxe Tudor sedan is pictured above. The de luxe sedans are larger in appearance, with longer hood and sweeping lines. The de luxe cars are powered with the 85 horsepower V-8 engine, the standard cars with either 55 or the 60 horsepower engines. Newly-styled interiors are pictured at right. New instrument panel has instrument group in front of driver, grille for radio speaker installation in center, flanked by engine controls and cigar lighter, and glove compartment at right. In the de luxe car, the compartment locks, and a clock is recessed in the compartment door. A headlight beam control is fitted on the toe-board, a tell-tale light on instrument panel indicates whether the headlight beams are raised or depressed.

The jovial Goodfellow of the Roman comedy, Marcus Smith, now becomes successively the Third Shepherd and the incarnation of Discretion. Cense Galetti, who played the weeping heroine in the comedy, portrays Mary and Knowledge in the plays now coming; Marydella Green, a worldly woman before, now will appear as Good-

Others who made the first state tour will also appear in new roles and several new faces also are to be seen in the next cast. Among the newcomers are Miss Ruth Clark, Paul Landrum and Robert Folsom.

Highlands County Benefits By State Welfare Program

Highlands county is benefitting financially in at least four ways from the State Welfare Program, according to a statement released today in Jacksonville from the office of the State Welfare Board.

Dollar and cents benefits came from old age assistance, CCC payrolls, free distribution of surplus commodities and WPA employment. A fifth county income, assistance for the blind, is next on the program and is expected to become effective by Christmas Day. Statistics, compiled for October, show that this county had 79 persons receiving old age assistance grants totaling $1,247.00 for the month; that it had 12 enrolled in the CCC camps, all enrollees being required to remit $25 per month to dependents; that surplus commodities were distributed to 120 residents of the county; that WPA employment, distributed among 114 persons totalled $2,419.00 for the month.

In addition, the welfare program includes NYA certification, child welfare, investigations for NYA scholarships, for crippled children's commission, services to county agencies, out of town inquiries and other welfare activities.

"While the State Welfare Board is a direct administrative agency for old age assistance, aid to the blind and aid to dependent children it is also charged with the certification of persons seeking WPA employment, CCC and NYA enrollment, and with the distribution of surplus commodities," Clayton C. Codrington, state welfare commissioner, commented at Jacksonville. "It is the agency through which the federal government clears the majority of its welfare activities. The value of the program can be computed by adding up the practical benefits, such as those enumerated above."

Elmer Bryant Has Finished Electric Course In Chicago

Information was received here Thursday that Elmer Bryant, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Bryant of this city, has completed a practical course of training in the Chicago training shops of the Coyne Electrical School. It is said he made a good record while attending this course which has very rigid requirements. His plans for the future have not been made known as yet.

Wilcox Introduces Bill To Help The Building Industry

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Prediction that the statement of President Green of the American Federation of Labor, withdrawing the support of organized labor from the Black-Connery wages and hour bill will kill the measure in its present form, was made here today by Congressman J. Mark Wilcox of Florida.

Wilcox, who for some months past has been pointing out the dangers involved in the bill, said Green's statement should have a "very sobering effect upon Congress" and predicted that it would postpone action on the wages and hours legislation at least for the present special session.

Always Ready to Serve ELECTRIC SERVICE

YOU have often heard the phrase "interconnected power system." Pictured here is a typical interconnected power system, similar to the one serving you.

What does an interconnected power system mean to this community? It means that teamed up to serve you are several power plants—each one itself nearly capable of carrying the load alone.

This may seem like more than ample power. True, you might "get by" with less, but sometime a day of reckoning would come—a storm—putting some plants out of commission. At such a time when the need for service is vital—reserve power steps in—picks up the load dropped by the crippled plants and carries on. An interconnected power system also means: a reserve of men and equipment.

Central Florida is an important and growing area. Central Florida has its eye on the future—it will become increasingly important in the development of Florida. This section cannot afford to get along with less in the way of electric power resources.

"Fireside Chat" At Rotary Club

Former Dist. Governor Tells Avon Park Rotarians Of Obligations

Irving Holmes of Fort Myers, past district governor of Florida, was the speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon Wednesday noon at the Jacaranda Hotel. He characterized his talk as a "Fireside Chat" and congratulated the club on its membership and attendance record as well as the "News Flash," club publication edited by "Mac" Elwell.

He told of the value of Rotary to its members, the meeting of people at the luncheons, the fellowship, the relaxation and the singing. He told of the comment created by George Bernard Shaw when he asked the question, "Where is Rotary going?" and answered it himself with "It's going to lunch."

Mr. Holmes stressed the many advantages of Rotary as well as the obligations owed by the members. The privileges of Rotary are personal, business, civic and miscellaneous. All Rotarians exert considerable influence by trying to live up to their ideals and he urged building for a better city, a better country and a better world. There was much satisfaction in doing a job right he said.

Telling of the advantages of visiting other clubs he recounted his impressions of a city in Ohio. He formerly had a poor opinion of this city but changed his idea considerably after visiting the Rotary Club there on a recent trip north, he said.

Visitors were Tom Wilson of Frostproof, W. O. Kinnerey of Tampa, the guest of Charles Mason of Clearwater and Norton Smith of Avon Park.

Woman's Club Will Sponsor Christmas Tree Illumination

Mrs. M. E. Covington, president, announced this week that the Woman's Club is again sponsoring the lighting of outdoor Christmas trees and urges everyone to compete and add to the spirit of civic pride.

The prizes will be donated by the Florida Public Service Co. If there are 10 entries or more the prize will be a handsome floor lamp and if there are less than that number a smaller lamp will be given.

All entries must be in by December 20 and those competing are asked to notify Mrs. Georgia Voorhees or Mrs. Covington. The names of the judges have not been announced as yet. The judging will be done on Christmas Eve. Although they are decorating, Mayor and Mrs. Covington are not competing this year, having won prizes in the past.

The Citrus Shop Opens For Business

Miss Stella Mitchell announces The Citrus Shop is now open for business on state road eight, south, in the new building she has recently completed. Miss Mitchell will make a specialty of serving fresh fruit juices and fruit, in bags or baskets, for local home use or for shipment.

Fancy mixed boxes of fruits will also be available for those who desire them and jellies and marmalades will be available on order. A large assortment of unique Florida gifts and cards will also be on display.

Ford Exhibit And Dance Big Success Saturday Evening

One of the highlights of last week was the formal showing of the new Ford 1938 cars by the Avon Park Motor Co. and the dance given by them Saturday evening at their show rooms. It is estimated over 1,000 people were present viewing the new models and enjoying the square dances, both as participants and spectators.

A very enjoyable evening was had and many favorable comments were heard on the new cars as well as the seasonal decoration, the palms and the Christmas lights.

Prize winners for the evening were: Mrs. Arthur Williams, first of $10.00 and S. M. Woodard, second, $5.00. The high school junior class sold hamburgers, coffee and soft drinks and cleared a nice sum through their efforts.

President Charlie Lanier was much pleased with the results and says he is planning more entertainments and picture shows from time to time through 1938.

Five Exhibits On Florida To Be Held During The Winter

DeLand, Fla., Dec. 9.—"Five exhibits depicting Florida's charm as a winter resort as well as her agricultural and industrial possibilities will be held this winter," it was announced this week by Earl W. Brown, Manager of the Florida National Exhibits.

From December 20 through March an exhibit will be held in Philadelphia in the new $60,000, 500,000 Pennsylvania station on 30th street," said the Exhibits executive. "While during these same winter months another Florida exhibit will be going on in the Pennsylvania railway station in New York. It is estimated that 150,000 people a day pass through these two stations."

A third northern exhibit will be a glimpse of Florida as a sportsman's paradise staged at the National Sportsmen's Show in the Grand Central Palace, New York City, February 18 to 26. Then, to show our winter visitors that all parts of the state have their attractions, two all-Florida exhibits will be held in the state, one at the Tampa Fair, January 25-February 5 and the other at the Central Florida Exposition in Orlando February 14 to 19.

"All these exhibits, while important in keeping interest in Florida kindled, are merely steps toward Florida's participation in the New York World's Fair of 1939 for which 110,000 square feet of space have been contracted."

Bad Weather Keeps Cub Convoys Away

Due to very inclement weather the Cub Convoys of 100 planes failed to arrive in Avon Park Monday as expected. Four planes arrived but the pilots reported bad flying conditions. Eighty-eight of the planes left Miami in the morning but failed to get further north than Palm Beach.

The city council met for a short session Thursday night and canvassed the results of Tuesday's election and certified the successful candidates. Other routine business was transacted. No meeting was held Tuesday on account of the election.

89 IN COUNTY RECEIVE OLD AGE ASSISTANCE

$1,409.00 Paid To Aged of Highlands County During November

Jacksonville, Dec. 7.—(Special)—Highlands county's old age assistance payroll for November was $1,409.00, according to announcement here from the headquarters of the State Welfare Board.

The number of residents of the county receiving assistance was given as 89 and the average grant for the county as $15.83.

Figures for the previous month were: Number on rolls, 79; payroll for county, $1,247.00; average grant, $15.78.

With all of the 12 welfare districts of the state now fully staffed, those entitled to old age assistance are being rapidly enrolled, according to announcement of Clayton C. Codrington, state welfare commissioner. The number of grantees has increased from 10,888 in July to 22,214 in November, the total payroll from $125,240.74 in July to $223,003 in November, and the average grant from $11.56 in July to $15.58 in November, Codrington said.

Application blanks for aid to the blind have been mailed to all districts of the state and are being filled out and filed in the order of their receipt, Codrington further said. As soon as the plan submitted by the State Welfare Board to the Social Security Board at Washington is approved, district boards will begin to pass upon these applications. Indications are that some of the sightless and near-sightless may receive their first checks by Christmas.

Old age assistance payrolls for December are being mailed out at state headquarters as rapidly as possible and will be forwarded to the office of the state controller with the request that checks be mailed in time for holiday shopping.

Mrs. Stewart Now At Jacaranda Hotel

Mrs. N. E. Stewart of Lake Wales is now connected with the Jacaranda Hotel, Manager Crabtree advised this morning. For the past 15 years Mrs. Stewart has been the owner of The Stewart at Lake Wales and has been in the hotel business for 18 years. She has entertained people in many parts of the country and has a number of reservations at the Jacaranda.

Mrs. Stewart will have charge of the main dining room when it opens about January 1 and will also act as hostess.

TOY MATINEE SATURDAY

Sponsored by the chamber of commerce and the Woman's Club and through the courtesy of the management a toy matinee will be given at the Park Theatre on Saturday afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. The admission charge will be a toy and the audience will not be confined to children. The toys received will help to make some of the more unfortunate children happy this Christmas. Mrs. W. W. Cloud is general chairman for the occasion.

LOWEST FIRE LOSS

Due to the efficiency of the fire department, the fire loss in Avon Park for the year just closing is the lowest in the last 14 years, it was reported this week.

COUNTY REFUNDING PLAN PROGRESSING

More Than Half of County's Wide Bonds Have Been Exchanged

Rapid progress is being made on the Highlands County refunding program, according to a letter from the First National Bank of Chicago which was read at the regular meeting of the board of county commissioners Tuesday.

The letter stated that the bank was shipping $457,500 in bonds to the county, which have been refunded. R. E. Crummer & Co. are handling the refund of $608,000 of county-wide bonds and $130,000 of road and bridge district No. 1 bonds. The commissioners voted to pay Crummer $6,290, which is half of their commission on the refund.

The board also voted to buy $2,000 in county bonds under the Kanar act for $1,620. The purchase will save the county $1,020 on principal and interest.

A letter from the Municipal Record, calling attention to a half page advertisement of Highlands County in their publication, was read. The letter stated that the advertisement was paid for by the Florida Public Service Company.

The board passed a resolution of appreciation, thanking the publishers and the Florida Public Service Company for the publicity.

County Agent Louis Almsayer filed his weekly report with the board and called its attention to the fact that since the filing of his last report over 5,000 acres of improved pasture have been planted by cattlemen in the county.

The board passed a resolution calling for bids on a crawler type Diesel tractor for use on building and repaving county roads.

Seaboard Railway Changes Train Time

Changes in the time of the Seaboard Air Line Railway trains at Avon Park were announced this week with the inauguration of the Orange Blossom Special for the winter season. The Special, southbound, will arrive at 1:53 p. m. The Southern States Special, southbound, arrives at 2:26 p. m. and northbound at 12:33 p. m. The New York-Florida Limited will reach Avon Park, southbound, at 2:55 a. m. and northbound at 2:04 a. m.

Beginning next week the Florida Sunbeam will go into service from the middle west. It is due in Avon Park, southbound at 7:28 a. m. and northbound at 10:57 p. m.

Coast Line Starts Winter Service

Beginning today, the Atlantic Coast Line places in service the Gulf Coast Limited from the north to the ridge section with through Pullman cars. This train will arrive at Avon Park from the north at 4:45 p. m. and will leave for the north at 12:28 p. m. This train formally opens the winter season for the Coast Line in this section of Florida.

Little Damage From Cold Here

Relative little damage to citrus fruit was reported in this section due to the abnormal cold spell this week. Some fruit in low spots was slightly frozen but as a whole the cold aided in maturing and coloring the fruit, local growers stated.

D. G. Perry Named County Chairman For Birthday Party

New York, December 6.—Keith Morgan, Chairman of the Committee for the Celebration of the President's Birthday today announced appointment of a number of additional County Chairmen in Florida for this year's "Fight Infantile Paralysis" campaign. These Chairmen will have charge of the organization of their respective counties, both for the founding of the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and also the multitude of benefit entertainments to be held Saturday, January 29th, in celebration of President Roosevelt's Birthday.

The Chairmen appointed follow: D. G. Perry, Avon Park (Highlands County); G. A. Wells, Blountstown (Calhoun County); C. Laviere, Fernandina (Nassau County); E. D. Patterson, (Gadsden County); Graceville (Gadsden County); Leesburg, (Lake County); L. Grady Burton, Wauchula (Hardee County).

Independents Win Election

Four New Men Will Take Council Seats in New Year

In a hard fought contest four members of the "Independent" ticket were elected to the city council Tuesday, the "Pandes" ticket going down to defeat with only one of the present council members retaining his seat. This was R. F. Sappington who led the ticket and for whom both sides cast numbers of votes. Besides Sappington, those who will take office the first of the new year are: Will Bennett, A. McKee Elwell, E. W. Hart and L. D. McGiboney.

One "Independent" candidate suffered defeat, Albert Garrett. Others who failed to receive the necessary number of votes were: J. D. Delaney, R. X. Drell, W. T. Hall and S. J. Fendleton. The last two, together with Garrett, are serving on the council at the present time.

Mayor M. E. Covington was unopposed on the ballot although a number of names were "written in" for this office by numerous voters. Included in the names written in were Charlie McCarthy and Grace Allen. Covington polled 669 votes.

The votes given the other candidates were: Bennett 535, Delaney 491, Drell 471, Elwell 522, Garrett 496, Hall 481, Hart 508, McGiboney 425, Fendleton 473 and Sappington 573.

A total of 1042 votes were cast during the day. There were 28 absentee ballots of which three were thrown out on technical grounds. Six other ballots were thrown out as the voters had marked more than the required number of candidates.

There was a steady stream of voters during the entire day, starting when the polls opened at 8 a.m. and ending just before the close at sundown. A large crowd was present during the counting of the ballots and remained until the totals were announced at 2 a.m. Wednesday morning.

In a statement Thursday morning, A. McKee Elwell, speaking for the elected candidates, said he could not say what changes would be made in the personnel of the appointive offices. "We stand for civic betterment and material progress and are under obligation to no man. We have no other motive than to serve the best interests of the people. We plan to administer the affairs of the city fairly and impartially and in a business like manner for the best interests and welfare of all the people," Elwell said.

Christmas Lighting Urged By Mayor

The beautiful Christmas lighting which has been installed in the Mall by the Florida Public Service Company and the lights along Main Street in the business section have done much to enkindle a happy holiday spirit in Avon Park.

This holiday illumination should extend to the residential districts as well and I am calling upon the people of Avon Park to decorate their homes with outdoor lights and other ornaments through the holiday season.

Following an annual custom prizes will be given for the most outstanding decorations. Inasmuch as I have been asked to serve as one of the judges in this contest, I will not be eligible for a prize. I hope that the Christmas decorations made here will surpass all previous efforts.

M. E. COVINGTON, Mayor.
