

FROM CONGRESSMAN
J. HARDIN PETERSON

OLD ARMY GAME—Recently the Army standardized on a smart new blue dress uniform. Officers are required to outfit themselves with one of these new uniforms, although no specific time had been set. Then there was a sudden buying wave which the Army decided to investigate. They found that an unnamed tailoring firm spread a rumor that an inspection of the new uniforms might come unexpectedly. The officers naturally didn't want to be caught without one. The Army branded the rumor as false and said it had been spread presumably to promote the sale of uniforms and was "wholly without foundation."

"DEATH SENTENCE" USED—Millions of persons wrote their congressmen and senators about the utility holding company bill when it was before congress. One of the parts of that bill was known as the "death sentence" clause, requiring the breaking up of unworkable capital structures which controlled immense holdings of public utilities. This clause is now being used for the first time by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which recently started hearings on formal proceedings against the Utilities Power and Light Corporation, a $200,000,000 concern. The commission is seeking a plan to simplify the sprawling power empire into a compact utility unit. The corporation now operates around two dozen subsidiaries in twelve states. Months probably will be required to complete the public hearings, and this first application of the much-discussed "death sentence" clause will be watched with a great deal of interest.

PROSPERITY—Newspapers, analysts, commentators and others are beginning to spread the belief that business actually is definitely on the upgrade. The current improvement is gradual, according to Secretary Roper of the commerce department, but should increase materially with fall and winter buying. A fresh impetus came with the reopening of the schools and the Christmas trade will provide another vigorous push. Secretary Roper said the national income increased for the first time since Aug. of last year. It went to 79.1 in July, from 78.3 in June, while June a year ago it stood at 88.6. Another factor which is encouraging is that payrolls declined less in July than in seasonal for this month and also inventories are low.

ADVERTISING SCRUTINIZED—One large oleomargarine manufacturer has just been severely chastised by the Federal Trade Commission for making certain statements in its advertising which the commission does not believe was exactly truthful, or at least which might be somewhat misconstrued by the buying public. The complaint charged that the company published illustrations of its product colored yellow in imitation of butter and advertised the product as "burned in fresh pasteurized milk." This later expression, the commission said, implies and is (Continued on page four)

AID TO AGED IN COUNTY UPPEDApproximately 38,000 Aged
In Florida Now On State Rolls

Jacksonville, Sept. 15 (Special)—Florida's potential case load in the Old Age Assistance category is approximately 38,000 persons, according to "Public Assistance Statistics," a monthly publication issued by the statistical department of the State Welfare Board.

The estimate was made on the basis of the August case load and the present rate of approximately 25 percent.

"During the month," the report reads, "the Old Age Assistance rolls reached the figure of 30,292 persons. This figure is far in excess of the total number of eligible aged as shown in original estimates. Despite the fact that the rolls at the present time largely exceed these earlier estimates, there are still 12,210 applications pending."

With the potential case load for August fixed at 42,502 and with petitions averaging one out of four applications, the number of eligibles is estimated at 38,000. It is probable that next legislative appropriations will be intended to meet the needs of this number of persons 65 years of age or more.

Applications are denied, it was stated, because of age requirements, residence requirements, citizenship requirements, resources, unwillingness to comply with property requirements, eligibility for another form of assistance, inability to obtain proof of age. Disposed of for other reasons are those who died prior to approval of applications, those receiving institutional care at the time of approval, those admitted to institutions prior to approval, those who withdrew applications and those who moved out of the country or district prior to approval of application.

During August 28 applications for Old Age Assistance were pending in Highlands County, 9 were received, 4 were acted upon, 3 were approved, and 1 was disposed of for other reasons.

O. B. TRAIL BODY
ADV. CAMPAIGNBillboards, Folders and Maps
Will Tell Visitors of Central Florida

Orlando—The most extensive advertising campaign ever undertaken to promote travel over the Orange Blossom Trail in the Central part of the Florida peninsula will begin September 22nd. A. C. Slaughter of the Trail Association announced this week.

It will be the sixth consecutive campaign in which a score of cities along the scenic route have co-operated in inviting motorists to travel through their section.

Two hundred billboard posters, placed at strategic points along highways leading into the State; 75,000 illustrated folders; and 100,000 detail strip maps will be used as foundation of the campaign, Mr. Slaughter said.

The booklets are now being printed and as soon as they are delivered will be distributed to 200 travel and resort bureaus operated in the north and middle west, by bus lines, automobile associations, newspapers, chambers of commerce and steamship companies.

"Last year we used 52 national travel bureaus in addition to 50 offices of the 'A. K. M. Foster Service,'" Mr. Slaughter explained. "It is our intention to double this number this year."

As for billboard posters he pointed out that the Trail benefited from the use of 112 posters last year and that this year the number will be increased to 200 twenty-four sheet posters.

The illustrated folders will be similar to those used in 1937-38, but the quantity has been increased by 25,000.

The strip maps, of which 100,000 have been ordered, will be distributed by filling stations. They show the Trail routing in detail, giving road markings, points of interest and the names of the cities and towns.

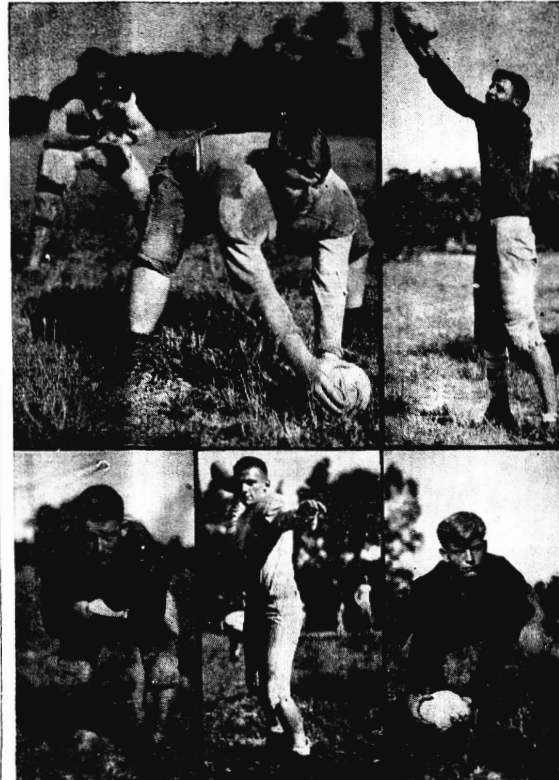

"From past experience we have found that any enlargement of our advertising and promotional activities brings an increase in travel along the Trail," Mr. Slaughter said. "In undertaking our largest advertising campaign we believe that our scenic route will be more extensively used this year than during any past season."

Operations of the Orange Blossom Trail Association are financed through a cooperative program in which cities, hotels, restaurants, filling stations and Chambers of Commerce participate. The route begins at the Georgia line on U. S. 41 and runs south through Jennings, Jasper, Lake City, High Springs, Gainesville, Ocala, Leesburg, Eustis, Mt. Dora, Orlando, Kissimmee, Haines City, Waverly, Lake Wales, Sebring and Avon Park.

A dollar membership drive is now in progress having started Monday at Lake City and will continue down to Lake Placid, taking in every city on the Trail. The directors hope everyone possible will join and help along the work to advertise the advantages of Central Florida.

W. M. S. Will Meet Monday
The Woman's Missionary Society of the Baptist church will meet Monday night at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. S. J. Pendleton.

Avon Hi. Gridders Making Good Progress

Henry Wild, 195 pounds of brawn and a tackle in 1937, is being tried out as a ball carrier, and if he improves his blocking he will see service as a blocking back and line snapper this season.

Malcolm Crews, 206 pounds, out for football for his first time and Frank Carney, 125 pounds letterman of '37, are trying for center, and if Crews keeps improving he may become a regular. If this happens, Carney will be shifted to a tackle position.

James Bailey, 140 pound back, will draw some of the passing and probably some of the kicking as well. Bailey lettered for his first time in '37.

Ray Mathis, 155, half back, shown receiving Crews' center, will carry the pigskin for the Red Devils.

James Ward, shown receiving a pass, is a deadly pass snapper and a sure blocker, and will see action at end.

The Avon Park gridders entered their second week of training with rough practice, blocking and tackling is the main at present. The boys are giving their everything to practice and if the good work is continued they will be hard to handle by any opponent.

Blocking and tackling seems much further advanced now than this time last year. Plays are being given out and the squad is divided up into teams for drilling.

No positions are definitely fixed as yet, said Coach Wagner. Various shifts and combinations are being tried. Much the same snap-up system of plays will be used as last season. There will be passes, laterals, reverses, double reverses, and a few line plays with big Henry on the plowing end.

The high school eleven goes to Palatka on September 30 to open their 1938 season.

A "B" team will be organized and "B" games scheduled. Many of last year's "B" team will regulars this year and their past experience is now showing up to an advantage.

ROTARIANS ARE BADLY FOOLEDMagician Shows How Tricks
Are Performed And Then He Doesn't

Avon Park Rotarians were fooled and fooled plenty Wednesday noon when Caton the Magician entertained at the regular weekly luncheon at the Jacaranda Hotel. There were two of the Caton boys, Frank and Bob, the former being the magical mystifier, Bob is the business manager and helped out on the side.

Various Rotarians and visitors helped out in the demonstration of "Josh" Pendleton added to the merriment when Caton "read his mind" with the aid of O. C. Wilkes. Rotarians thought they had been told how to do the handkerchief and egg trick and then found they had been "had," Norton Smith found he had more coin in his hand than he thought he had and a dollar bill loaned by T. C. Thomas of Cleveland, O., he had almost lost and increased into a whole family of bills. Yes, Thomas put his own back in good shape. Any way, he said it was his.

Dr. M. E. Jordan's exact birth-date appeared on a magic date and a yellow tie underwent an appearance and was then restored to perfect health.

When he started Caton told his audience "When a magician performs you expect to be fooled and if you're NOT fooled, then you're fooled, sure enough" and he added that he came to prove "That Darwin was wrong and Hamam was right."

These Caton boys have been in the business for a number of years, served in the army during the World War and helped to entertain in the camps with their acts. They have played in 37 states of the Union and also appeared in four foreign countries. They say they hope to return to Avon Park at a future date and show other stunts they don't have up their sleeves. At present they are making their home in Orlando.

Visitors at the luncheon were T. C. Thomas of Cleveland, O., Charles Metcalf of Bartow, V. G. Waters of Sebring and T. A. McNicholas and Norton Smith of Avon Park.

Special Election
Officials Named
By Commissioners

At their regular meeting held Tuesday morning at the county court house, the county commissioners appointed the officials to act at the special primary election to be held in District 5 to nominate a candidate, to succeed Fred Koetz, deceased, for the office of county commissioner for that district.

The inspectors of Lake Placid Precinct 4 are: Harvey G. Roberts, Mrs. Edith Lewis and C. T. Jackson; clerk, Francis G. Baldus, For Brighton, precinct 5, the inspectors appointed are: Mrs. Claudia L. Hottle, Mrs. Flaudy Trogen and Allen Thomas Proctor, with D. S. Hinklebach, as clerk.

The special primary will be held October 4 and if a second one is necessary, it will be held October 11.

Because of the two special primaries in the county, the next regular meeting of the commissioners will be held Sept. 19 instead of the 20th and the following meeting October 2 instead of 4. This was deemed necessary in order that ballot boxes may be prepared for each of the elections.

Lively Ball Held Cause Of Dead Arms

BY GEORGE A. BARCLAY

SOKE arms have the baseball world worried.

Frenzies have been lost in the big leagues this year and are still in the hands of the players because of an epidemic of chopped elbows, pulled tendons, and strained muscles without precedent in the history of the game.

Scan the list of pitchers involved in arm trouble and you'll see why worried managers are shaking their heads.

Well, there's Carl Hubbell and Hal Schumacher of the New York Giants. They are the most recent victims and their absence from the lineup down the home stretch may well have cost the Giants the National League pennant. Lefty Grove's arm went dead a short time after he pitched in the All-Star game. Old age, you might say. But informed baseball men will tell you the Boston Red Sox veteran was good for several years yet.

Sad Case of Diz

Dizzy Dean's arm is apparently gone. He can't throw a ball overhand without wincing and his speed is only a memory. He has been of practically no use to the Chicago Cubs this year. Rest may eventually restore some of the cunning, but meanwhile Owner Wrigley can ruminate about the $185,000 he paid St. Louis for Dean.

Bill Dietrich, who pitched a no-hit game for the Chicago White Sox last year and his colleague Chick Brewer, who specializes in side relief pitching, have been out of uniform since early in the season because of arm trouble.

Bobby Feller, Monte Stratton, Tex Carleton, Johnny Allen, Van Lingle Mungo and Charley Ruffing are other mound notables who have been plagued off and on by sore arms. Down in the minors Paul Dean and Schoolboy Rowe— youngsters burned out long before their time—are trying a pitching comeback that is still a big question mark.

What is the reason for this pitching situation?

There are a variety of answers, but if you sum them all up, you'll find the trouble is due to an accumulation of restrictions that have stacked the cards against the pitchers. It all goes back to the days when Babe Ruth started making home runs stylish and the game was remade into a slugger's free-for-all.

First there was the lively ball. Baseball bigwigs introduced it to encourage hitting. Then they began to put on restrictions after another on pitchers. They prohibited the spitball that had brought immortality to such old-timers as Ed Walsh, Red Faber, Urban Shocker and Burleigh Grimes. They made other tricks deliveries illegal.

In the old days an entire ball game would be played with as few as half a dozen balls. Now it takes at least 50. Now balls are always in play and because of their shiny smoothness they are hard for pitchers to put any stuff on. Formerly if a ball was slightly scuffed, it wasn't thrown out of play. This gave a pitcher a chance to get by.

Modern training trip schemes now work an unnecessary hardship on the pitcher. Years ago big league teams didn't meet until the season opened. The exhibition games were played solely against other league outfits and pitchers could take their time retooling before the season. Now there are exhibition games between major league teams almost as soon as the training season opens. Pitchers have to face tough battles right away. Their arms aren't ready and endurance can easily dwindle. They want to win and they have down before they should. It is quite possible that pitchers that pay up early during the regular season have their arms in just such games.

When the National League announced last winter that it had adopted a double ball for the 1938 season many fans hailed it as the beginning of a new era. It was a return to a normal ball. But somewhere along the line there was a hitch. The experiment of the season has indicated that the new National League ball is probably the same as the one formerly used. At least such a conclusion is suggested by the hitting in the two leagues and hitting is the only basis for comparison.

Bonus Ball Players

A BAD case of "every man for himself" aggravated by the much-discussed bonus system is being blamed for the pathetic collapse of the Cleveland Indians in the drive for the American League pennant. Insiders say that most of the players were slumped to concede this year calling for bonus contracts on players reaching stipulated hitting averages, or pitchers winning a certain number of games.

The arrangement, on the story goes, tended to make the players too individualistic and ruined unified team play. Oscar Vitt, the new manager, complained about this system when he took charge. He insisted early in the season that all the team knew was "slug."

How much of a difference the bonus system made is difficult to tell. The probabilities are that the Indians could not have continued to lead the league as they did in the first half of the season. But contracts without bonus provisions might have had a tendency to make the Indians more of a team.

Most managers disapprove of the bonus system. It was tried with rather discouraging results by the Chicago Cubs a couple of seasons back.

One of the most outspoken critics of the system is Burleigh Grimes, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

"Suppose," says Burleigh, "that a player signs a contract giving him $1,000 or $2,000 more if he hits .300 for the season. Well, he might be going along at .310 pace until the last month of the season and then start to protect that average. He might complain about a charity horse and have his leg lapped up and stay out of the lineup for a few weeks."

"Or the same fellow might do things that conflicted with his manager's strategy, such as missing a signal to sacrifice when he thinks he can hit."

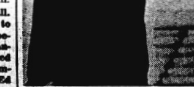

Burleigh's contentions, however, are purely hypothetical.

600 Stalwarts

TRAINING camp technique which to some extent resembled the spring training system of the major league baseball clubs has prepared the teams in the National Football League for its seventh season.

Six hundred brassy young stalwarts—candidates for places on various teams—labored under a hot midsummer sun in training camps from the Atlantic seaboard to the Middle West to condition themselves for a strenuous season.

The champion Washington Redskins, including the brilliant "Slingshot" Baugh who met the College All Stars selected in a nationwide poll in a pre-season tilt won in Soldier field, Chicago, did their ball conditioning at the Ballston baseball park at Arlington, Va. The Pittsburgh Pirates, rated as the team to beat in this year's race since they acquired Byron "Whizzer" White and the Cleveland Rams designated as the most improved team in the league did their training in their respective cities.

The Brooklyn Dodgers pitched camp at the New York Agricultural college, Farmingdale, N. Y., while the Detroit Tigers trained at Bloomfield, Mich. The New York Giants trained at the Rye Hills Country club in Orangeburg, N. Y.; the Green Bay Packers at Green Bay, Wis.; the Chicago Bears at DeKalb, Ill.; and the Chicago Cardinals at Morgan Park, Ill.

Heading toward its majority, professional football is now definitely grown up and would like to forget its barn-storming, one-night stand origins of the early twenties. Nearly 2,000,000 people attended pro games in nine different cities last year. Promoters are looking for an even bigger attendance this year.

Here and There

GERMANY has 14,000 soccer clubs with 1,500,000 playing members. During interwar years the immense Olympic stadium in Berlin is jammed with 150,000 spectators. Tickets for big matches are frequently sold out six months in advance. . . . Bernie Moore, football coach of Louisiana State, says Booth will be the best blocking back in the country this year. . . . Nine members of the French national club played in the big league this season. . . . The average double play, he says, requires 4.6 seconds from the time the ball leaves the bat until it lands in the first baseman's mitt.

Your drawings are so easy to follow that I have made slipcovers and even upholstered a wing chair. I never knew there were so many good ideas for curtains and bedspreads. "All my friends admire those I have made. I am now planning to make some new sheets and pillow cases. I like to buy sheeting and pillow case tubing by the yard and fit different beds. Can you suggest some kind of trimming? I want something that will wash well and that I can make quickly on the machine. Sincerely, T. S." I wonder if "T. Make your own cardboard pattern for the scallops by drawing part way around a small plate or saucer. Use this pattern to mark and cut the scallops. After the scallops are cut, turn the raw edge over the cardboard pattern and with a warm iron as shown.

With business conditions throughout the nation showing definite improvement, all indications point to another great tourist season for Florida. Right now is a mighty good time for us to get our heads together and decide where we will put our guests when they do arrive, how we will entertain them, and make plans for their proper reception.

In another month or so southern highways will be loaded with countless cars and trailers, Florida bound. They will carry people from all walks of life. New improved air-conditioned streamlined buses will pour a never ending stream of visitors into the state. Railroads, operating crack trains and running them in several sections to care for the increased traffic, add their share to the tourist harvest. Airways and steamship lines with improved facilities and faster service will play their part and all contemplate a record breaking season.

Many of these visitors will be making their first trip to Florida and their impression and experience on this trip will largely determine whether or not they will return.

Floridians, whose business or interests are not directly concerned with tourist trade or activity, may figure that the matter of receiving and entertaining tourists is not their problem but rather that it is a task for the Chamber of Commerce, the hotels, restaurants and resorts.

Directly or indirectly, every man, woman and child in the state receives benefits in many ways from the winter visitors. If tourist travel to the state was suddenly cut off and no visitor from some other section entered Florida for a period of a year, we would all learn what these guests really mean to us. You and I contend that we are citizens and taxpayers and are inclined to look on the tourist as an outsider, losing sight of the fact that each year these visitors leave millions of tax dollars in the state. If it were possible to suddenly remove from the state those improvements and facilities, or such portions of them as were made possible with the use of tourist contributed tax money, we would find ourselves minus many miles of paved highways; schools and other public buildings would stand with gaping holes represented by tourist dollars. Hundreds of state employees would be called upon to refund all or a considerable part of their salaries.

Every Florida county and city reaps a rich annual crop of tourist dollars that would be sorely missed if it were withdrawn even for a brief period. In view of this fact, every Floridian should appoint him or her-self a committee of one to help promote and keep this vital and profitable source of revenue. Nature has been exceedingly kind in providing us with an enviable climate, bright sunny skies, cooling sea breezes, a wealth of natural beauty, lakes, streams and rivers, a glorious coastal and ocean shore, game and fish a-plenty—attractions that bring countless thousands to us every year. But these are not enough.

You and I and all other Floridians are charged with the responsibility of presenting these charms and advantages in their best light. After all, WE are FLORIDA, and it is our combined personalities that go to make up the personality of the state as a whole.

If our greeting is warm and friendly, if we are kind and courteous, if we are helpful and considerate, we glorify and magnify our natural attractions, whereas if we are sullen, ungracious, disinterested and rude, we destroy good will and only embitter the guest.

We should remember that a tourist is nothing in the world but an average citizen. AWAY FROM HOME. Big or little, rich or poor, he is a human being whose reactions and impressions are gained the same as yours and mine. Make him like you and he will like Florida.

Peace officers, in dealing with tourists, should be kindly and courteous. Clerks in stores, shops and offices should be interested and helpful. Be patient with seemingly "foolish questions." Explain confusing traffic regulations. Be friendly and do your part to cultivate Florida's greatest money crop.

Children Should Be Seen and Not Hurt

Tampa, Sept. 15 (FNS)—The realization that 400,000 children started to school this month has awakened and aroused the people of Florida to safety protective measures so that no child shall be hurt during the term, is well illustrated in the many protective measures now being carried on in practically every community in the state, said Asner Frank, Director of the Florida Safety Council, this week.

Practically every group is interested. The sheriffs of Tampa, St. Bell has charge of the safety school patrol. In Jacksonville it is Chief Doney and Sgt. Gordon, and in Miami it is Capt. Lennon. In Pensacola, Panama City and in fact in every section of Florida, enforcement officials, the American Legion and others are doing their part to make Florida a safer state in which to live, concluded Frank.

Safety material is furnished free by the Council.

THE OFFICE OF COUNTY JUDGE involves many duties needing a trained legal mind. A COUNTY JUDGE has to be a trial judge, act as a committing magistrate, handle cases of lunacy and the rights of minors and their protection.

Some of the most technical aspects of the office cover the probating of wills and administration of estates and many laws, both of Florida and other states, have to be known thoroughly in order to handle this important part of the office.

McNicholas has practiced law for the past 25 years. He began earning his own living at the age of 13 when he was left an orphan. He worked his way through college and was admitted to the bar when 17 years old, the youngest lawyer in the United States.

He is fully qualified and will fill the office of county judge, efficiently and impartially.

A kitchen putterer from "way back, Gravel's role in "Fools for Scandal" required him to prepare food to delight a gourmet. His knowledge of cookery made it possible for him to prepare "Chicken a la Rene," a dish supposedly invented by himself in the film, a special sauce, Bearnaise, a salad of ambrosian proportions, crepes suzettes incomparable.

The star's cooking sequences in the picture are actual. The dishes are prepared before the eyes of the camera and the cast.

understood by a substantial portion of the purchasing public to mean that the product is made from whole milk, that is milk from which no part of the cream or butterfat content has been removed.

The product is not made from whole milk, the commission charged, but made in part from skimmed milk and does not contain butterfat extracted from whole milk or cream by the churning process which is used in butter making. The commission also took exception to representations that "oleomargarine is a fit food for children" and that "wholesome margarine and butter are equally delicious and nutritious" claiming that these statements were not exactly true unless vitamin A is added to the product in sufficient quantity.

NAVY PROGRAM SPEEDED UP—Plans are being rushed in connection with the huge naval building program of the United States, caused in large part by the jittery feeling concerning conditions abroad. Eighteen new warships, including two battleships, probably of 45,000 tons, are expected to be constructed under next year's expansion program. Funds for these will be requested in the 1939-40 budget. The Navy Department is now working on its new budget, but no details can be given until the annual budget message of the President early in January. The last congress laid out quite definitely the building program for next year. This new law authorizes a flat 20% increase in naval tonnage over the strength authorized the American navy, the London naval treaty, now a dead document. The program calls for a 10-year expansion in all categories, including auxiliaries at an approximate cost of $1,200,000,000. Next year's construction in addition to two new battleships probably will include four new cruisers, six destroyers and six submarines.

Sings and Dances and What's More

—He Can Cook!

"Fools for Scandal" will be at the Park Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, September 19 and 20.

Fernand Gravel didn't know it but his entire life to date was preparation for his recently-completed role as the romantic chef opposite Carole Lombard in "Fools for Scandal."

Gravel not only learned to sing and dance at an early age but the star, whose professional career will be started this picture included no chef roles, romantic or otherwise, is an epicure by training, a gourmet by habit and a chef in the arts of Continental catering, especially in Paris, the Franco-Belgian star learned about unusual foods from the best chefs around.

Miss Griffin, Nelson Smith Wed in Church

Miss Elsie Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Griffin, of 1008 East Idlewild avenue and Nelson Smith, of Avon Park, were married in an impressive ceremony yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Seminole Heights Presbyterian church. The Rev. Byron Conley, of the Nebraska Avenue church of Christ, officiated in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

Many graduated area palms were arranged as a background for four tall flower baskets of white gladioli, placed near the front of the chancel, which was lighted by the soft glow of white tapers in cathedral candelabra.

A program of nuptial music was presented before and during the ceremony. Miss Edith McLeod sang "A Sweet Mystery of Life" (Hartford), and "Because" (D'Hardelot); Miss Marie Sanford, pianist, and Marion Lee, violinist, played several selections.

"Story Ever Told" (Stamps); "L'Amour, Tejoir L'Amour" (Frim); "For You Alone" (Guhl) and the traditional wedding march, "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell), was played softly during the ceremony.

Wears White Satin

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a sheath-like wedding gown of white slipper satin with a gracefully draped train. Tiny covered buttons fastened the bodice and trimmed the long low collar. Her hair was styled in a cascade, surrounded by seed pearls and an heirloom in the bridegroom's family, was worn at her throat.

Her veil of illusion fell over a coronet of net and seed pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Isabel McNeill, maid-of-honor, a cousin of the bride, was given in permanent blue lace gown a periwinkle taffeta foundation. A Queen Anne collar finished the bodice, which was trimmed with tiny covered buttons. Her turban, from which a short veil hung, was of the same color as her gown and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Miss Mattie Pearl Spier, of Ft. Meade; Miss Faye Milner, of Fort Myers; Mrs. J. W. Godwin of Jacksonville and Miss Mabry Summer were bridesmaids. Their gowns, which were fashioned similarly to that of the maid-of-honor, were of Biscay blue silk over cornflower blue slips, and their veil trimmed turbans matched their feet. They carried arm bouquets of pink roses. All the women attendants wore cameos, the gifts of the bride.

Patricia Ann Smith, junior bridesmaid and sister of the bridegroom, was gown in powder blue and carried a nosegay of pink roses.

Bridegroom's Attendants

Watson Touchton, Jr., of Avon Park was best man, and groomsmen were Robert J. Schwind of Mount Plymouth, Ross Swartzel, of Wauchoula; Parks Anderson, of Avon Park, and Charles Benfro.

Mrs. Griffin, mother of the bride, chose a margo ice blue gown with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. F. M. Smith of Avon Park mother of the bridegroom, wore a cell blue lace gown with black accessories. Her corsage was also of pink roses.

A reception was held after the ceremony at the Griffin home. The bride's table was overlaid with an ecrú lace cloth and centered with a two-tiered wedding cake, showered with white satin ribbons, to which were attached the traditional wedding symbols. Crystal candelabra bearing tall white tapers were placed at the ends of the table. Pink roses were used in the decoration of the other reception rooms. Those serving were the Misses Barbara Betts of Avon Park, Jessie Mae Bravo and Louise Griffin.

During the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for a wedding trip to Franklin model of copper colored light wool with brown velvet trimming. Her accessories were copper colored.—Tampa Tribune.
