The Trustee Election

This is just a reminder to property owners and taxpayers not to forget the school trustee and millage election to be held next Tuesday. Some people may pay it little thought but it is a vital one for everyone qualified to vote to do so on that day and see the supervision of the schools is placed in capable hands.

There are five candidates in Avon Park and three of them are to be elected for a term of two years. The candidates are: F. N. K. Bailey, I. H. Ford, W. W. McFarland, Mrs. Winifred Todd, and T. J. Ward. There are four men and one woman, all good and true with the best interests of the schools at heart. So now it is up to the voters to pick the three they believe are the best.

With regard to the millage, County Superintendent F. N. K. Bailey has asked that the full 10 mills be approved in order that the schools may be run efficiently for the full term. We believe he is right in this but it remains for the voters to either say yes or set the millage they believe will be required.

Halloween

Halloween has come and gone for another year and it passed off with lots of fun and little damage, thanks to Mayor Covington's methods and ideas. This year saw a novelty in the soap drawing contest which brought forth some hidden talent and gave the youngsters an outlet for their enthusiasm in a constructive manner. And thanks to the Proctor and Gamble Co. they were well paid for their efforts.

Armistice Day

There will be the Parade, Saturday afternoon but the fun and frolic will start Friday afternoon with the parade on Lake Verona. Big Parade Will Feature Armistice Day Celebration

A parade sponsored by the American Legion will feature the Armistice Day celebration here on Saturday, November 11. Following the parade there will be a dancing in Donaldson Park with State Sen. Spearhead Holland of Bartow scheduled to make the principle address.

A two day carnival will be held jointly with the chamber of commerce and this will open Friday afternoon with kiosk and a parade on Lake Verona. The carnival will be held that night and Saturday night with plenty of entertainment for everybody.

According to program worked out Wednesday night there will be all kinds of games, music, hamburgers and other refreshments, stands, dancing and many other outstanding features. All together there will be two big gala days of fun and frolic for everybody.

Plans call for the Saturday feature parade to include the Highlands Post of the American Legion and the Auxiliary, school children, the Boy Scouts, members of the National Guard and the high school band. Other civic organizations have also been invited to participate.

R. R. Brown is general chairman of the joint carnival and Earl W. Hartt general chairman of the parade and ceremonies commencing November 11. In order the Festival day possible may take part in the parade and following ceremonies.

BAILEY SPOKE TO ROTARIANS ON WEDNESDAY

Called For More Moral and Cultural Training In The School

Col. F. N. K. Bailey, county superintendent of public instruction, told Avon Park Rotarians Wednesday of the need of moral and cultural instruction in the public schools as well as intellectual training. He quoted a Dr. Kelley in a speech several years ago as saying, "The reason this country came to the front was due to the fact it was founded by a high class of people who came here from other countries to escape religious persecution."

Formerly all teachers were orthodox rotarians as the parents would not trust their children to any layman, he said. The older universities were founded by Christians and up to 35 to 40 years ago, all educational institutions realized the need of character building and its importance.

How is today? Col. Bailey asked. And added there are many evil influences in colleges and universities. He said that the parents are similar people on the faculties, he said and considered it far more important to train morally than intellectually in the schools. The need of teaching more patriotism in the schools.

He cited Germany as an example where intellectual training failed. Formerly that country was high in cultural aims but when they turned to the other way and their environment intellectual side they came to defeat in the World War and he predicted the defeat in the present war. Other nations which neglected moral training have also gone down, he said.

Col. Bailey warned there is a movement on foot to scoff at religion and morality and he asked his hearers to have the proper conception of what education really should do.

The young folks of today are no worse than in former years, he thought but if they are worse, he said it was due to lack of duty on the part of their parents and teachers. The boys and girls are what their parents and their environment make them. If they go wrong they have not had a well rounded education. Lack of proper environment also contributed to delinquency. But, he added, Avon Park is doing very well along that line.

The schools in Highlands county are progressing, Col. Bailey said and added that 15 years ago only college teachers in the county were college graduates and now most of them are. The buildings are better and the high schools are accredited.

Col. Bailey asked the Rotarians to remember the trustee election next Tuesday. He also asked that the schools might be run on the full term. This is important, he said as if it is not done it will be two years before a change can be made.

M. V. Fletcher called attention to the pastures this week and asked that everyone who could to join the tour through the county on Thursday. He also asked for help on the clean-up program being sponsored by the community service committee and headed by E. H. Ware and J. L. Wells, who he said are doing fine work.

Stanley N. Reeves said the Boy Scout court of honor would be held next Tuesday night at the court house at Sebring and asked as many to attend as possible. Two Avon Park scouts are candidates for their Eagle rank, he said.

Besides Col. Bailey, other visitors were: J. O. Zipperer of Ft. Myers and O. Y. Elder and Maj. Edward Keenan of Lake Wales.

GROWERS BACK WASH SHED LAW

Will Support New Law If Taken To Courts For Test

LAKE WALES, Nov. 2—Rumors that action would shortly be taken to test the citrus "wash shed" law in the courts inspired L. H. Kramer, president of Florida Citrus Growers, Inc., to reiterate here today declaration of aggressive support of this law by the grower organization.

The "wash shed law" provides for processing plants, some to be located in farmers' markets, others in separate buildings through-out the citrus belt, and three on trunk highways on the northern edge of the citrus area in which a grower may have his fruit, washed, graded, inspected and stamped. This avoids the practical necessity of a grower having this done in a packing house. The charge for this service in the "wash sheds" is actual cost plus one cent per box to retire cost of equipment. It is planned to have ten to fifteen of these plants in operation this season under direction of W. L. Wilson, director of state markets.

Mr. Kramer said the law providing for these plants was sponsored by the recent legislature by the grower organization; that its purpose was to give small growers, who, especially in surplus years, find it difficult to get no special privileges as to inspection or other regulations, but that the sheds be permitted under the same conditions that like services are given in packing houses, he said.

"The benefit of the law cannot accurately be judged beforehand," Mr. Kramer said. "Also, its effect upon packing houses, if any, cannot be judged now. It is reasonable to expect that the sheds will be of great value to growers and that they will not affect the packers at all. I am sure that it would be a serious blow to law and order in the citrus industry if shippers are successful in upsetting this law before it is tried, and the grower organization will strongly oppose such a move."

"The growers, and I understand the Citrus Commission also, intend that these plants get no special privileges as to inspection or other regulations, but that the sheds be permitted under the same conditions that like services are given in packing houses," he said.

Library Committee of Woman's Club Calls Attention to National Book Week November 11th to November 18th

Please note the posters and streamers in various places in the city. Some of these will also be placed in many of the school rooms and copies of the little paper "Magic Carpet" will be available there and at the local library during the week. Quite a good number of our citizens avail themselves of the use of the Library in our city at the City Hall, but many others should have the benefit and privilege of more good reading. There is no fee for library cards and they may be used whenever desired. There is a fine of two cents a day when books are kept over the allotted time and there is a record at the library of a few who have been delinquent in the payment of these fines. During Book Week this year the amounts due will be reduced one-half on all delinquent fees. It is desired that all in this class would pay up this week and start a clean slate. If you have not used the library, this is a good time to start and also we shall depend on you to let winter guests know that we keep our library as up to date as our funds will allow. To the Boys and Girls of Avon Park

Greetings:

In behalf of the business interests and many other citizens of Avon Park, I want to thank you for the good sportsmanship and spirit of fair play you have shown through the Halloween season of 1939.

You may not realize it but you boys and girls of Avon Park are probably the most talked of in the United States today. Editorials and articles on the orderly way in which our boys and girls observe Halloween have appeared in most of Florida's more important newspapers and this has spread to favorable mention in papers widely scattered over the United States.

You Avon Park boys and girls are on THE SPOT, you are in the NATIONAL LIMELIGHT. Older citizens will cooperate to keep you there. By your help in such things as this you are doing YOUR BIT, and a big one, to make our fine city A GREATER AVON PARK.

SCHOOL LEADERS DISCUSS FUTURE SCHOOL PROGRAM

Highlands County Principals Attend Arcadia Meeting Last Tuesday

ARCADIA, Oct. 31—Fifty school principals from five counties attended a district conference here today called by State Superintendent Colin English.

Definite plans were laid for initiating a long-time program for improvement of instruction in the counties represented at the meeting. All school faculties were urged to organize into study groups. These groups would survey the resources of the community, determine the real life needs of their pupils, decide how well the needs are now being met by the school, and establish definite school objectives for the future.

Members of the State Department staff outlined methods by which the faculty and principal, working together in such a study for one year, will then be in position to revise the school's program of instruction to meet the real needs of the community and the pupils.

Highlands county was represented at the conference by T. V. Covington, county board chairman, Col. F. N. K. Bailey, county superintendent, and the following school principals: Stanley N. Reeves, Avon Park; M. Mitchell Ferguson, Sebring; and A. B. Whitte, Lake Placid.

The State Department was represented by M. L. Stone, director of instruction; Dr. W. T. Edwards, curriculum specialist; Paul Eddy, supervisor of school accreditation; Joe Hall, health and physical education; and Dr. A. R. Mead of the University of Florida.

ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF

"The Babe in the Blazing House"

HELLO EVERYBODY:
These adventures provide a cross-section of life, and if they didn't show its grimmer side occasionally, they wouldn't show a faithful picture. That's why I chose for this time a story I found unusually gripping because it demonstrates so clearly how close we may be at any time to tragedy. Mary Ann Grob of New York City who tells this adventure, was only a child of nine when it happened, and this, for me, added particular poignancy to the tale.

Imagine running back into a blazing house to rescue your eight-months-old baby brother only to find the smoke so dense you couldn't see what you were doing.

That's what happened to Mary. The time was the fall of 1921, around September, and at that time Mary's father and mother and Mary's three brothers lived in Thayer, a small mining town in the lower part of West Virginia.

Thayer is a valley, situated between two large hills. To get out of the valley, Mary tells us, you had to ride on a sort of incline. It was a box-shaped affair, the car, let up and down the side of the hill by means of a cable.

On this fateful morning Mary's mother and dad had to go to town, where mother was going to have her teeth fixed. Before she left she called Mary, who was the eldest child, aside and warned her to watch the three younger children, her brothers, while her parents were away. Mary had occasion later, as you will see, to recall that warning.

Of the three dinner clothes that mother had, she gave the youngest-old Pete, and last of all Little Eddie, who could show only a scant eight months. Mary had her hands full keeping them all out of mischief, and when night began to fall she began to glance nervously out the window, wondering why mother and dad didn't come. The younger children grew frightened with the approach of darkness, and at their urging, not to mention her own uneasiness, Mary finally bolted all the doors and windows.

Children Were Locked Inside House.

To set the scene for this story it is necessary to explain that next to the house they had a little wash-house, where Mary's dad used to wash when he came home from work. This wash-house had a little coal stove in it. On this particular afternoon the stove was lighted and the children were locked inside the house there was no one to tend it or check the dampers.

And so it came to pass that as the children sat huddled in the darkness, queer red shadows, ghostly and lengthening, began to dance on the walls of the children's room. Alarmed and terrified, they began to cry, and at length, unable to stand the strain any longer, Mary went to the window and looked out to see what was causing the strange play of lights on the wall. Then she understood—the wash-house was on fire! Remember, this was no grown-up. This was a nine-year-old child with the care and responsibility of three younger brothers on her shoulders. And now, as the fire spread to the main house, lighting the old wood like tinder, the children fled from the blazing wall into the open air, Mary as scared as any.

This will explain, perhaps, how it happened that on looking around, they discovered that eight-months-old Eddie was missing. Mary, who was frantic by this time, began to look for leaving the baby behind, as she had understood he had taken Eddie from his crib while she was looking after getting Pete out. But John pointed that he had thought Mary was taking Eddie, and so hadn't bothered to go after him.

Meanwhile, inside the burning house, Little Eddie lay asleep in his crib. The thought of her beloved little brother in that blazing inferno was too much for Mary. With no sager heads to dissuade her, she rushed back inside the burning house, groped her way through dark, smoke-filled halls to the room where the baby lay asleep.

Smoke Was So Thick She Could Hardly See.
By this time, Mary, the smoke was getting so thick that she could hardly see. Reaching the bedroom she found herself in the center of a dense, rolling fog, choking her, blinding her so that she could not see her hand before her face. Heat seared her eyeballs, tore at her air-famished lungs. But the nine-year-old girl had made a promise—a promise to a mother who trusted her to care for the younger ones. Mary could hear her mother's last words echoing in her ears as she groped her way to where she thought the crib should be. "Look after them while I'm gone, Mary. I'm trusting you."

The flames were searing hot now, but Mary had but one thought: She must get Eddie out. In the black pall she stumbled against something—"the crib"—she thought. Hurriedly she reached down, grabbed what she thought to be Eddie and almost delirious now with the desire to escape from those hungry flames she rushed out of the house into the open air.

Outside, safe under the open sky again, she thought of the bundle in her arms. In the smoke-filled house, Mary says, "I did not know for sure whether I had him or not." Now, released by the breath of fresh air, she knew that she had and she did not get into words, she forced herself to look down.

When you contemplate how easy it would be for a nearly hysterical child of Mary's age to mistake her greivous burden in a fog of rolling smoke, you will understand how close it is to the line between happiness and tragedy. For had Mary's eyes met, not what they did see, but something else, this story would not have the happy ending it now has. Yes, it was Eddie, crying for all he was worth, and Mary glad! You cannot tell me she went so on to add that when Mary's mother and dad got home all that was left of the house was the standing chimney. (Continued by Western Newspaper Union.)

Arctic Natives Learn Jitterbug Dances

Up under the northern lights in the railway town of Churchill, medicine men of Eskimo tribes are in a rage, and waiting for a return to old traditions. The ancient ceremonial dances are giving way to the antics of the modern jitterbug.

The annual summer dance this year at the Hudson bay port saw scores of Eskimo eagerly learning the latest jitterbug moves. The Eskimo of this tribe are the Eskimo of the Arctic, and they are the most primitive of the Eskimo.

Attending were to American tourists, some from as far as Texas and southern California.

Make Everything of Chic Wool: Hats, Bags, Evening Clothes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

DAYTIME suits, dresses and coats made of handsome wool fabric are taken for granted, but hats, handbags, gloves and even footwear fashioned of intriguing wool materials are real news. Shoes with plaid wool spate tops is the school girl's pride this season.

Then there is this matter of evening clothes, the swank idea is to make the long evening coat of handsome wool. Young girls adore the floor-length coats tailored of bright red or dusty, quite unturned but fastening with jewel or military brass buttons. Coats and capes of handsome tweed in rich blackberry tones make appeal to the more mature.

A dinner gown of a luxurious wool is considered "tops." See the stunning dinner costume in the picture. It is fashioned of red wool in that the vogue for red is outstanding this season. The dress has an enormously full skirt with front shirring, slit pockets and a gold kid belt. The short smock jacket has unusual buttons of colored glass beads with chain attachment. A two-strand gold bead necklace, gold earrings and bracelets are smart jewel accessories.

The sophisticated young woman to the right in the group is obviously very wool-conscious in that her swank jacket, blouse and skirt, her hat and her handbag are made of high-style wool weaves. Her stylish hat is of fine wool jersey. It has the very new full draped nose. The over-arm bag has a strap and trimming of wool felt appliqued with multicolored wool dices. Novelty of wool such as ensemble in this costume, made of gay wools are everywhere present in the style parade.

One of America's foremost mill-

Town Coat

Your black town coat, it trimmed with brown fur, will credit you as among the best dressed. The type pictured has a detachable fur collar with soft flaring revers of the brown fur. It goes without saying that with this smart black-town coat there must be a pleasurable gleaming of gold jewelry.

Linen Blouses Are Latest for Autumn

Linen is the news in the blouse department this season. Some of the best custom designers have experimented very successfully with the heavy, rougher linens in rich colors. If you want a linen blouse, chances are you'll find it has made up, because you won't find many well-tailored plain ones of linen on the market.

Gloves for the dressier styles should be three-quarter length. And unless you plan to put a lot of money into gloves you'll match your suit rather than your blouse or hat. If they're in a contrasting color.

Fair for Fringe Is Style Message

Again a revival of fringe is foreseen. Very new evening dresses are enhanced with rows of fringe detailing sleeves and neckline. Also smart slacks have fringe on both blouses and jackets that make fringe the theme.

Long fringe tassels end finish off the streamer ends of the girdle. With evening fringe-covered jackets they must also fringe-covered to be carried.

Simple Styles in Shoes Is Favored

Now that designers of shoes have turned their thoughts in the direction of simplicity in styling and are working out the idea of lower heels, there is prospect of wearied women enjoying style plus comfort in the new footwear. The outlook is for some very intriguing shoe fashions that make the approach to low heels in strikingly clever ways.

Hurry-Up Meals

What a feeling of satisfaction it creates to be able to confront the family with an attractive and substantial meal, even after a long afternoon of shopping or of bridge. It takes a bit of planning to accomplish that!

A selection of "Hurry-Up-Menus," planned to economize on time, without sacrificing quality, is the answer to this problem. Chow foods which can be prepared for cooking several hours in advance. A casserole dish requiring little cooking is a wise selection for the main dish of your meal; or, if you like, plan a broiler dinner or "grill" which can be cooked in little more time than it takes to set the table.

Appetite teasing meals, and meals that can be put together in only a few minutes' time, can be built around these popular and satisfying main dishes. In most instances all that is required to complete them is bread, a beverage, and a simple fresh fruit dessert.

Hasty Oven Baked Beans.

1 large can baked beans
1/2 pound bacon
2 cups light brown sugar
2 tablespoons tomato catsup
Four 1/4 can of baked beans in greased baking casserole. Dice 1/2 slice bacon, and then cover with remainder of baked beans. Sprinkle with brown sugar, and top with bacon strips. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees) for 30 minutes. Serve on platter.

Hasty Noodles.

1 package noodles
2 slices bacon
2 eggs (well beaten)
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon pepper
Cook the noodles in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain, and place in a slow oven to keep warm. Pan fry the bacon until crisp, and remove from drippings, and cut into small pieces. Drain off all but two tablespoons of the bacon fat, then place the bacon and noodles in the frying pan. Add well-beaten eggs and seasoning, and cook, folding gently, over a low fire for about 10 minutes, or until the eggs are set. Serve very hot. A crisp salad makes an excellent accompaniment for this meal.

Corn and Mushroom Omelet.

(Serves 2)
1 No. 2 can corn
3 eggs
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
2 tablespoons diced green pepper
1 can button mushrooms
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon butter
Drain the corn. Separate eggs. Add salt to egg yolks and beat until very thick. Add baking powder to egg whites and beat until stiff. Fold egg whites into the egg yolk mixture. Add corn and mushrooms, and mix lightly. Pour into a hot buttered frying pan and cook slowly until omelet is browned and thoroughly cooked through. Dry lightly in warm oven (300 degrees). Drain mushrooms and dredge with flour. Sauté in melted butter, and place on hot platter. Serve immediately.

Mixed Grill.

1/2 pound sliced bacon
1 pound pork sausages
8 fresh tomatoes
2 No. 2 can French lima beans
1 No. 2 can pineapple rings
Broil bacon and sausages. Hollow out tomatoes and fill with French lima beans. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake until tomato shells are tender but still hold their shape. Fry pineapple rings in butter. Serve as mixed grill and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

All-in-One Dinner.

(Serves 6)
6 link sausages
1 large onion (chopped fine)
2 tablespoons green pepper (minced)
1/2 pound ground beef
1 No. 2 can tomatoes

What is the first thought that comes to your mind when you think of "entertaining"? Hard work? Expense? Formality? It should mean none of these! Rather, that word "entertaining" stands for friendliness, and warmth, and sociability. Eleanor Howe will tell you next week how to make entertaining easy. LIBERTY IS THREATENED

Fifty-one new bureaus and commissions have been created at Washington by the Roosevelt New Deal government since it came into authority. Only eleven new bureaus were created during the 139 years between 1790 and 1929, during the administrations of Washington, Adams, Jackson, Polk, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan, Lincoln, Grant, Hayes, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Taft, and Wilson.

The Roosevelt party started with securing more and more control and direction from Washington. The multiplicity of bureaus has become a threat for definite surrender of the rights of the American people to dictation by Washington in every phase of life. In the Texas Weekly recently both Mooney gave interesting information regarding the growth of the bureau and the setting up practically of a Federal bureaucracy in place of government by the people. Mr. Mooney declared that a plank of the platform adopted at the Democratic National Convention in 1932, at which Mr. Roosevelt was nominated for the presidency, called for "an immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices, consolidating departments and bureaus, and eliminating extravagance. This procedure, the platform—which Mr. Roosevelt endorsed "one hundred per cent" he declared, on flying to Chicago to accept the nomination that the procedure indicated would "accomplish a saving of not less than 25 per cent in the cost of the government." Of course everyone knows that the platform and endorsement were forgotten, apparently, by Mr. Roosevelt as soon as he was inaugurated.

Both Mooney said in the Weekly, "It is no secret that, in spite of the platform pledge and in spite of solemn warnings that democracy itself is menaced by the centralization of power in Washington bureaucracy, there are more Federal bureaus and commissions now than ever before. Eleven such agencies were created during the years between 1790 and 1929. . . . But 51 bureaus and commissions have been created during the six and a half years of the New Deal."

Mr. Mooney indicates that much of the responsibility for the tenth year of deficit financing rests upon the Washington bureaucracy, adding: "The most menacing evil presented by this ever-growing bureaucracy is not to be found, however, in the manner in which it complicates the business of government or even in its expenditures of tax money," he says. "The greatest evil to be found in the fact that these newly-created bureaus and commissions administered by men not responsible to the people but only to the man who appointed them are given what amounts to blank-check grants of power."

"There is no more dangerous combination than irresponsibility and power, and that is the combination that exists here," Mr. Mooney adds. "The bureaus and commissions of the Federal Government supervise, regulate and control. They make sweeping regulations for the conduct of business and industry and agriculture. They say how many acres of land shall be planted in cotton, and they prescribe wages for various classes of workers, they lay down rules of operation for business. . . ."

Mr. Mooney concludes that "decidedly the cause of freedom has not been helped by the creation in six and one-half years of more than 50 Federal bureaus and commissions. The bureaucracy must go if freedom is to remain. Liberty and bureaucratic centralism cannot exist side by side."

"Through the creation of many bureaus and commissions by the President, to whom these governmental agencies are responsible, state rights have been practically ceased, been annulled, abolished, done away with. The trend of the government has been for six and a half years towards a dictatorship—the president having steadily moved to secure authority to make, define and enforce the law, reaching out for the power which is not given by the constitution to dictate to Congress and the people, and actually trying to remake the Supreme Court by packing it with his partisans."—JACKSONVILLE TIMES-UNION.

WHAT IS THE MOTIVE?

The advocates of the tax-subsidized, special privileged Federal electric plants which now dot the country have invariably argued that their construction was necessary to expand industry, and thus encourage investment and employment. Charges that the real purpose behind the program was the socialization of the electric industry, have been vehemently denied.

The great Federal project on the Columbia River at Bonneville Dam is among the most conspicuous of the tax-subsidized plants. A number of private businesses, including local power companies, have offered to purchase substantial blocks of its power. But for some reason conclusion of such contracts is delayed while Bonneville officials dash about seeking to persuade the legislature to approve tax-exempt bonds to create publicly owned utility districts to distribute the juice.

Here is what the Vancouver, Washington, Columbian, a paper in a city but a few miles from Bonneville, has to say: "In one year there has been sold $120,000 of Bonneville power, which is not enough to pay administrative costs, much less pay any interest on the $60,000,000 investment."

"Yet there is a market for Bonneville power, a vast market, which is being ignored by the Administration. The Bonneville Administration seems to regard Bonneville power as . . . something which should not be turned over to private industry. . . . This is a section which is dependent on private industry for its growth, for its economic well-being. One would almost be forced to the conclusion that the administration is conscious in its ideas, that the profit system is to be abolished in America, that there shall be no development of industry except through governmental agencies.

"If Federal administration of Bonneville power is to be so unbusinesslike, so unprofitable, what may be expected from the administration of the public utility districts, which, all in all throughout this state, have thus far done nothing more than to levy added taxes and spend the people's money. . . ."

Bonneville is offering nothing new to the Northwest. It is simply trying to occupy a field long supplied by existing companies.

The cat seems to be out of the bag at last—the clear implication is that the socialists are working on a "to the devil with business—we want to swallow the private electric industry," basis. The people are not yet fully awake to the dangers inherent in the extension of bureaucracy in our country by such methods.—INDUSTRIAL NEWS REVIEW.

"The writer's household ate its first Florida grapefruit Tuesday of this week. The 'look' and 'smell' was with her first try that we have been eating grapefruit twice a day ever since. This has never happened before. There has always been a long, long gap between the experimental first and the almost equally experimental second. Now ours is an average household, though of course we would never concede that our loss was only an average household. But it is a loss that took place in our own average household has taken place in thousands of other average households. And that is all to the good of Florida citrus and those responsible for delivering the succulent of the stuff until it is fit to eat."—THE PHOENIX GUARDIAN.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

When Judge Alexander Akerman announced his decision to retire, he tossed a beautiful monkey wrench into the Florida political picture. This has caused a "slow down" strike in both the senatorial and gubernatorial campaigns—to say nothing of providing both our senior and junior United States Senators with ample material for a series of first class headaches.

To the ordinary run-of-the-mill Floridian—the farmer in his field, the grocery clerk, the mill hand, the shop-keeper—the resignation of a Federal Judge and the appointment of a successor doesn't appear as anything to get all hot and bothered about, and a large portion of our population is totally unaware of the fact that such a problem even exists.

Politicians and politically minded, however, are all a-twitter. They have been running round in circles for days, pulling wires and coat-tails, writing letters, sending telegrams, holding conferences and carrying on as if a flock of hens watched a hawk do a power dive.

You find them blocking the traffic on street corners, in a huddle at the courthouse square. Rumor and gossip runs riot. A lot of folks who don't really know any more about it than Adam's off-ox will grab you by the lapel and EXPLAIN the situation in detail.

These master minds and dopesters are having a regular Roman Holiday. They lead you over in a corner and whisper in your ear: "It's in the bag, I tell you. It's over the size limit and besides he don't want it. Jim Clements is the boy. Pepper's gotta take care of him—he can't do anything else."

So you forget about Mr. Hitler and Mr. Chamberlain for a minute and ponder over this startling local news. "Maibee so," you say—and then along comes another wise guy who informs you that Mr. Clements is out. He's over the size limit and besides he don't want it. Jim Clements is the boy. Pepper's gotta take care of him—he can't do anything else."

So you bite your finger nails and scratch your head and wonder some more. Then along comes somebody else with the REAL lowdown: "Clements is out—it's positively 'no dice' for Jim Fume Steed is the boy. He'll get it, you wait and see—swell guy—make a good judge, too."

The next guy you meet claims he has been Father Confessor to Andrews for years and while it's not of course, you can go ahead and by all your chips on John Cone of Tampa. An hour later at the Rotary Club you learn that Doyle Carlton is the fair-haired boy. The fuller brush man tells you that Judge Wood Trammell of Miami will be the next Federal Judge Tony Pepper, and the next guy gives you a wink as he wraps up a slab of mullet and says: "Whatta you tink, Mayor Chaney he's a gonna be boss man United States. I hear pretty soon—Senator Pepper, he's a fix."

AND SO IT GOES. The more you hear the less you know. It's like "Who sank the Athenia?" or "How high is UP?" A grand and glorious political tangle in a tangle. As this is written, the beautiful plum is out—it's positively "no dice" for Jim Fume Steed is the boy. He'll get it, you wait and see—swell guy—make a good judge, too."

The thing that the politicians, big and little, seem to overlook is the fact that the post of Federal Judge is not the personal and private property of this or that senator or any group or clique. To consider such an appointment as an opportunity to pay a political debt, favor a henchman, influence voters, or for any other selfish purpose, is little short of criminal. The people of Florida are concerned only with the appointment of a man fully qualified for the job; the best man that can be found, be he Democrat or Republican or Independent; a Judge well versed in the law; an honest, upright, honorable man, fair in his judgment, unbiased, fearless and able.

Those who put Senators Andrews and Pepper in office authorized these men to think, act and vote for them on just such problems as this. It is a matter that vitally affects the welfare of all the people. It takes courage to forget self and think of others at such a time. The people of Florida look to Andrews and Pepper to do just that.

Who Are These? Can You Make Them Out?

Here is another "Who is it" picture. Taken some years ago, it shows two prominent Avon Park businessmen in their early boyhood. They are brothers and now well known in Avon Park business, church and social affairs. This picture was made from an old time negative which was handy.

Fisherman Finds Watch Inside Bass

ST. CLOUD, Nov. 2.—(FNS)—If your hobby is collecting queer or unusual fish stories, here's one for your scrapbook: Claude Padgett of St. Cloud recently caught a three-pound black bass and found a woman's gold 15-jewel wrist watch in its stomach. Padgett says when the watch was removed and shaken it began to tick.

An Associated Press story of the find brought an inquiry from a lady in Rahway, N. J., requesting a list of dealers of the watch. She believed she may have lost it when touring the state.

Activities Of The Chamber Of Commerce

By The Publicity Committee

Avon Park Chamber of Commerce

Elsewhere in this issue you will read in detail about the Window Show Drawing Contest. This report is simply to call attention to the value of any community organizing for definite accomplishment. The favorable publicity Avon Park has received from the press is worth thousands of dollars. Avon Park is now firmly established in the public mind, not only in the State of Florida but over a wide additional area, as being an orderly town as well as a constructive one. It will always be the aim of the chamber of commerce to participate in any move for the good of the community. Many thanks are due to Mayor M. E. Covington who originated this idea and aided so materially in making it a success. Much of the favorable publicity received is due to his ability to say and do the right thing at the proper time.

The chamber of commerce plans to make this an annual event, and the convenience gained this year will be put to good service in arranging next year's program.

The chamber of commerce wishes to thank Dr. Reeves, the superintendent of our schools, the teachers of the various classes and the pupils themselves for their splendid cooperation in helping to make the Ivory Soap Window Drawing Contest such a pronounced success.

A. W. Forbes, an annual visitor is very much pleased with the work of the chamber of commerce and expressed his appreciation about the town during the summer. He endorses the Trailer Park movement. Some of our Avon Park winter visitors returned from various parts of the North report a tremendous movement of winter visitors to Florida this year. It is the hope of the chamber of commerce to direct the attention of as many of these people to Avon Park as possible.

Christmas Seal Chairman Named

S. F. Longbottom has accepted the honor of chairmanship of the 1939 Christmas Seal sale. It was announced today by Mrs. Georgia Voorhees, President of the Highlands County Tuberculosis Association. This will be the thirty-third consecutive year that the nationwide educational campaign against tuberculosis has been carried on by tuberculosis associations both state and local.

"Protect Your Home from Tuberculosis is the slogan of the campaign," said Chairman Longbottom. "No home is safe from this disease until all homes are safe. Tuberculosis is still the leading cause of death in the age group from 15 to 45. This group includes our young people, and men and women in the most productive years of their lives."

The Christmas Seal campaign will open on Thanksgiving Day and will continue through Christmas. Chairman Longbottom announced.

"The purchase of these gay stamps makes possible a continuous flow of resources which are bringing about the gradual eradication of the disease. I am sure we can count on the people of Avon Park to make this year's campaign a successful one," he said.

Domestic Trouble

Gertrude Dear: The affair last night was a "knockout" and I had a wonderful time. You know, November 2 means and always will mean much to me, for it was on this day just 14 years ago that you said "I do" and I was yours.

Am sorry that you seem to think I was too attentive to H. N. I tried to get away from her several times but she seemed to enjoy dancing with me and there was nothing else I could do.

Since you weren't fully pleased with your anniversary gift, I made arrangements to buy you one of those beautiful, small size, ladies Westfield yellow gold wrist watches that Mr. Jordan is selling for only $19.75. Mr. Jordan has told me that this is a guaranteed watch and a nationally known Westfield movement. I have made arrangements to pay him a small down payment and balance in small weekly payments.

Since I won't be in town Saturday, go by Jordons and select your watch. Believe me to be yours, Always JOE.

Touchton Has Opened State Headquarters

DADE CITY, Nov. 2 (FNS)—"Touchton For Governor" state headquarters were opened in Dade City this past week in support of Fred L. Touchton, an avowed candidate.

Touchton has not as yet made his official announcement, but is quoted by the Dade City Banner as stating: "When I make official announcement and officially qualify for the Governorship by paying the starting fee, I will at the same time withdraw from private business and devote my full time to the campaign, visiting every corner in the state and practically every precinct in each county."

Reeves will give the main talk on the subject of "Education in a Democracy." Chester Yates will have four high school students to talk on the same subject from different angles. Woman's Center will have the subject, "Education for One's Work." Mrs. Mathis, "Education for Citizenship," Mrs. Pate, "Education for the Home Maker," and Claire Vandewater, "Education for Leisure Time." Special musical numbers have been arranged for the Glee Club by Director E. L. Roberts.

More Buildings For Avon Park Schools

According to J. P. Garber, Avon Park member of the county board of public instruction, an addition to be known as the finishing room is being made to the vocational building of the schools here. The cost is $400 and the work is being done by Bob Adams.

The local trustees and the county board have approved a music building for the schools here to cost approximately $6,000. The money for this is on deposit in the bank and work is expected to start immediately.

This music room will be built on the west side of the auditorium, according to the plans being prepared by W. J. Hein. It will contain two piano rooms, a bandmaster's room and two dressing rooms as well as the large practice room for the band as a whole.

As soon as the plans are complete for this and a similar building at Sebring, bids will be called for, Mr. Garber says.

As this new building will curtail the present playground space, lots owned by the school board adjacent to the vocational building will be cleared and used for a playground. They cover an area of about three acres and will give more recreational facilities than at present.

DOLLAR MAKERS—One Method Of Advancing Is to Retreat

By GEORGE T. EAGER

TONS of rock and dirt must be excavated before a diamond is found. It is just as unusual to find among thousands of salesmen that rarity among those who sell—the man who believes in the selling power of understatement.

A coffee salesman started the retail grocers of a large city by beginning his sales talk with the statement, "This is the second best brand of coffee on the market."

Admittedly, the second best brand evidently placed him in a position where he was without competition and his sales results proved it.

A large baking company has successfully marketed a brand of bread in markets long held by established competitors. The new bread was well advertised in local newspapers. But under instructions from a president who knew the power of understatement, salesmen sold each grocer one or two loaves less than the store's normal demand. Grocers were soon telling late afternoon customers, "I'm sorry we are all sold out of that bread." It was not very long before storekeepers as well as customers unconsciously thought of it as the fastest selling brand and therefore the best bread. Grocers unconsciously recommended it to customers and customers soon began demanding it of grocers and its success was assured.

UP-TO-DATE 'REVOLUTION'

THERE could be no more convincing way for the historian of the future to point out the high standards of living prevailing in this country than to contrast today's demands of those who want to overthrow our institutions with the demands of the revolutionists of other eras in the world's history. The French masses cried for bread and failed to get it brought on the French revolution. But when a present day advocate of revolution in this country recently made a speech he said: "Why should the citizens—at least 80 per cent of them—be imprisoned behind the cruel bars of want when within their grasp there are plenty of shoes, of clothes, of motor cars, of refrigerators to which they are entitled?"

From this point of view it is the salesman who sells modern conveniences who are our most important national asset for the prevention of revolutions. We have 7 per cent of the world's population and starting with a wilderness have created and can today more than half of the world's wealth. Intelligent salesmanship and mass production have distributed this wealth so widely that stringent immigration laws are required. The new industries created and developed in this country in the past 50 years now give employment to 10,000,000 men and women. Each new industry, whether it be automobiles, radio or rayon represents a new idea that has had to be first sold to the American people. It is significant that in this same period foreign countries, that have not developed their newspapers and publications as advertising vehicles for the dissemination of new ideas about things to buy, have not developed a single great new industry. If the United States has reached the point when revolutionists must cry for motor cars and refrigerators to get attention, it would seem that we are well on our way to prosperity.

Chemist Devises Method For Hunting Submarines

VINEYARD HAVEN, MASS.—A chemical process by which the course and position of submarines could be checked is being considered by the war department, according to Dr. Max Trumper, Philadelphia bio-chemist. He said that certain gases discharged by a submarine when it rises to the surface to obtain fresh supplies of oxygen and recharge its batteries mingle with the water. A surface ship, by dropping certain chemicals which cause the water to change color on mixing with the gases could check the submarine's position.
