Strike Situation and Japanese Crisis Prove Nation's Toughest Problems; Winter Closes In on Eastern Front As Russia Reports Taking Offensive

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—The following news analyses are prepared by Edward C. Wayne, who is also the author of the "Weekly News Analysis" column.)

STRIKES:

As Showdown

Congressional passage of the Neutrality act changes was a victory for the administration in that President Roosevelt stood his ground on his labor position, declining to meet a growing demand for legislation outlawing strikes, and laws setting a ceiling on wages.

Yet the narrow margin in the house (38 votes) also was considered a severe rebuke to the President for his attitude, and there were signs in the press and in congress that legislators and editors were getting ready to kick over the traces.

Crucial situations had faced the President both over the strikes and the Japanese crisis. In the latter case, the Japanese had been taking a series of moves which seemed to indicate that they were preparing to take the offensive.

There had been little evidence that the White House was getting anywhere in either struggle, though the President had made manifold efforts to dissuade John L. Lewis and his U.M.W. from going overboard.

It was this situation more than any other which had caused the defection of many administration supporters.

KURUSU:

Last Try?

Most observers of the situation in the Pacific believed that with the arrival of Saburo Kurusu in Washington the last stage of the difficult affair of Japan and the United States to avoid war had been reached.

During his plane trip to this country there had been little of encouraging press comment, and the state department had again and again repeated its policy of non-interference.

Officials of the cabinet, particularly Secretary Knox of the Navy, had been making it clear that they were not prepared to take any more steps.

There had been little evidence that the White House was getting anywhere in either struggle, though the President had made manifold efforts to dissuade John L. Lewis and his U.M.W. from going overboard.

It was this situation more than any other which had caused the defection of many administration supporters.

SABURO KURUSU

A gloomy outlook had expressed this same view of the depression over any chance of a peaceful settlement.

Still Kurusu had arrived, had been greeted with smiles by American diplomats, and the conversation was on.

Basic difficulty of solving an action where Japan was at war with China and both Britain and America had declared this was an act of aggression and had been giving and promising aid to China was openly apparent.

Japan was urging the United States to "leave us alone in China!"

The United States was demanding of Japan: "You let China alone!"

These points were poles apart.

ARK ROYAL: Finally Sunk

Most famous of the British aircraft carriers, Ark Royal, sank several times according to Berlin dispatches, finally has been sent to the bottom, and it was London, not Berlin, which announced it.

It sank 20 miles off Gibraltar, while in tow of other warships after a U-boat had torn a terrible hole in her side. Pumps were unavailing to repair the damage, and practically all of the 1,600 aboard her had been removed save just enough men to handle the towed life.

Finally, when she was nearing shallow water at last, she suddenly turned over on her side like a "tired swimmer," and sank. Only one man of her crew was reported lost.

It was regarded as probable that many of her planes had been able to fly ashore and make port. Thus she sank to the bottom of the Mediterranean the third aircraft carrier Britain had lost, the largest and newest, launched in 1939, of 25,000 tons.

TURKEY: An Offer

Air sources were reported to have made Turkey an offer of Thrace as a last inducement to get the Turk to join the triple alliance.

The sudden interest in Turkey on the part of Germany, as borne out in reports from both Berlin and Rome, was rather a puzzle to some, while others saw in it the possibility that Germany might, now that she was somewhat bogged down in Russia, be seeking a Turkish route to Russian oil wells.

There possibilities were seen that Turkey had already decided to throw in with the Axis—that it was being what it was, had come the report that Vichy was planning to bear on Turkey (the line with Berlin's view of the situation) and that, Germany might be satisfied to have Turkey neutral and aloof but fearing that American and British pressure from the south might turn her from her neutral course to a pro-British stand.

LIFE: A picture of what life was like in Serbia following the collapse of resistance against the southern advance of the Nazi war machine was painted by the refugee Yugoslav government.

Reports reaching it were that about 8,100 hostages, including intellectuals, priests and students, had been executed in three stages. The executions had been maintained, said Premier General Simovic, had been carried out at the rate of 100 to 1, in retaliation.

Price Control Problems Enliven Inflation Threat

Three Distinct Groups Hold Up Definite Action; U. S. Farm 'Bloc' Is Often Confused With Farmer's Organizations.

By BAUKHAGE
National Farm and Home Hour Commentator.

WU Service, 1343 M Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

There are three distinct groups in directions at price control legislation. There is a group which believes with Bernard Baruch that a ceiling must be put on all prices and which maintains its position in Washington. The Grange, the Farm Bureau Federation and the Farmers Union. Like the United States Chamber of Commerce, the Congress of American Federation of Labor, the agricultural organizations are pressure groups—lobbies, if you will.

"Blocs" and Politics
There is a reason why the bloc can, and sometimes is, more likely to be an evil force than the organization. The bloc composed of politicians who must have votes at the next election try to out-pace their political opponents. When representatives they will promise to vote for special legislation and even vote for it as it is brought up. But sometimes their real purpose is not to get a certain law passed but rather to promote it and make it until they themselves are elected.

The need for the farm organizations did not appear at the beginning of the nation. When representation in congress was established on a geographical basis this was an agricultural nation. The farm was a unit which to a large extent represented a cross-section of the nation's economic activity and interest.

Then conditions changed, cities and industrial centers grew up whose problems were entirely different from the economic interests of the farmer. At first the result was rebellion—small revolts but significant ones; the Whiskey rebellion, Shays' rebellion, attempts by force to obtain recognition of the rights of special groups. Finally, the farm organizations came into being. At first they were to give the farmer a voice in public and agricultural education.

The movement was the beginning of the department of agriculture, the land grant colleges, the state agricultural institutions. Gradually, these organizations began to give more and more time to promoting the farmer's interests by obtaining public and agricultural education.

Of course, some of the methods of these groups can be anti-democratic. We frequently hear more about them than about the honest effort. It is not until much later that we learn that "each group must operate intelligently, and above all quietly and frankly, not through stealth and concealment."

LAW AND ORDER OR GANGSTER RULE

When union heads refuse to abide by the decision of mediation boards, they are digging free labor's grave. If, due to the ruthless tactics of a few labor leaders, the mediation principal must be abandoned, all that will be left for Congress to do will be to pass uncompromising laws which will assure the continuance of defense production, and make strikes against the nation's safety impossible.

Labor would do well to read and ponder a statement made by Dean Wayne L. Morse of the University of Oregon. Dean Morse headed the President's emergency board which was created to pass on railway labor's demand for impossible wage increases. Here is what he said: "The call for the railway strike is absolutely unjustifiable."

"The officials of the union and their lawyers admitted on the record of the case that they had a fair and judicial hearing. If they go through with their threat of strike, they will sacrifice the judicial processes guaranteed to them by the Railway Labor Act—which will be much more costly to the future interest of railway labor than the temporary financial benefits which they seek to gain through a strike. It is my judgment that a strike of railroad labor at this time will jeopardize the very high place it has up to now enjoyed in public esteem."

Courts and mediation boards and laws are useless if powerful labor groups can defy judicial decisions and menace the safety and welfare of a whole nation by the gangster threat of "pay up or else!"

If we are to retain law and order in this nation, instead of descending to a state of anarchy, both sides to labor controversies must accept the conclusions of courts and mediation boards. Otherwise we will have rule by brute force.

If mediation boards are not backed up 100 per cent by the government in such cases as the railway wage controversy, it is futile to hope for fair and legal settlement of difficulties which may arise in the future. Labor must learn that this nation cannot be blackmailed into capitulation to any and all demands. Basically, the problem is this: "Are labor pressure groups or the government going to run this country?" And no one need doubt what the answer of the American people will be to that.

SAN FRANCISCO SPEAKS

The citizens of San Francisco are to be congratulated. At an election on the 4th of November, they dealt, with the ballot, a heavy blow at a type of Federal and state officialism which is attempting to dominate and control the affairs of local government.

The election was to determine whether or not San Francisco should have municipal power—a question which San Francisco had voted on seven times in the past fourteen years, in each case voting No. But this last election involved an issue of far greater importance than whether or not San Francisco was to sanction socialized power. That issue was injected into the campaign by the Secretary of the Interior of the United States.

For many years San Francisco has sold power generated as a by-product of its municipal water system to a private utility for distribution to the city, receiving in return some $2,000,000 a year. To the vast majority of people, what San Francisco did with its power was its own business, to be decided by San Francisco people. But the Secretary of the Interior thought otherwise. He had at hand a court decision which held that an old Federal statute made it illegal for the city to sell its power to be distributed by a private agency. He opposed any and all efforts to revise this statute. Instead, he forced the principal officials of the city to agree to stipulations governing the election of November 4th, which made an absolute mockery of the free election system.

These officials were forced to do everything in their power to persuade the voters to adopt municipal ownership. They issued a pamphlet to all voters urging adoption of the proposal, without allowing in it a single word in opposition. They bought newspaper advertisements and radio time with public funds to advocate the proposal—again without a single word in opposition. The Secretary of the Interior came to San Francisco in the closing days of the campaign to promote passage of the proposal at a meeting in which no opposition speaker was present. The Governor of the state did likewise. In short, all the power officialism was ruthlessly used to rig the election to the greatest possible extent.

Then the people of San Francisco went to the polls. And by a vote of almost two to one, they voted power socialism down for the eighth time.

The citizens of a great city have said, at the polls, that local business is within the province of local citizens. They have said that they will run their own affairs without dictation from Federal or state officials. They have administered a ringing, far-reaching rebuke to those who would centralize more and more governmental power in Federal hands—a centralization of power whose logical and inevitable end is a Washington dictatorship. The citizens of San Francisco have shown the American people that those traditional American characteristics of independence and freedom are still alive. Industrial News Review

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

I don't go out of my way to use the words "Honorable," "Esquire," or even "Mister," for that matter. But I'm gonna go harve and apply all of 'em to the guy who is scheduled to hold down the heavy speaking spot on the State Chamber of Commerce meeting in Panama City next week, on account of him bein' plenty important.

I'm referring to the Honorable Mister Charles B. Henderson, Esquire, Chairman of the Board of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, who, they tell me, has lent over 14 billion dollars to American firms and business men. Now that kind of money staggers my imagination. I might be able to tell you how much a quarter or a half is, but the only answer I could give to the question "How much is 14 billion dollars?" would be "It ain't HAY!"

Anyhow it seems to me that a bird who can play around with an amount like that ought to be important enough to rate all the dignified titles anybody could wish on him.

"Moneybags" Henderson is going to speak next Monday at Panama City before delegates attending the 25th membership and business conference of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce and will probably have a lot to say about that 14 billion, so if I can rake together enough of the kind of money I've had experience with to buy gasoline I'm gonna try and get up there to hear what he has to say.

Florida banks, insurance companies, railroads, drainage districts, municipalities, agriculture agencies, trust companies, waterworks, housing, docks and terminals and a score of other enterprises, since 1932 to date have borrowed upwards of 40 million from brother Henderson, and I imagine Henderson will include in his remarks some pointed reference to Florida borrowings.

I don't know what kind of chap this Henderson is, but I got a hunch I'll find him as plain as an old shoe and a regular fellow. Most of the really important folks are like that. But if I should happen to meet him and get to thinkin' about 14 billion I'll probably stand there gaspin' at him like a cock-eyed water-turkey.

How Harold Cole was able to get such a big shot way down here in the heart of "The Nation's Number One Economic Problem" is more than I can figure out, for after all Harold is just an ordinary guy like you and me. But it seems that this business of bein' Executive Vice-President of a state chamber of commerce carries more weight than I realized.

Anyhow, Harold has done a swell job and he deserves a lot of credit, and all indications point to the coming conference being the best in the history of the organization.

I understand that just about everybody and his brother and sister plan to attend and since all hotel rooms in Panama City have been reserved for a month or more there'll probably be a lot of folks sleeping in the park. But don't let that keep you away for they've got a darn good park at Panama City and if you have to you can stop off at Marianna or Tallahassee and come to the meeting.

Then my experience is that nobody wants to sleep at a convention and the folks stay open all night in that pack of the woods.

In addition to Brother Henderson there will be during the 2-day session, with outstanding speakers on a variety of subjects from the FBI to control of Hog Cholera. The theme of the conference, Harold tells me, is "Florida—A United State." It's a good theme and a good slogan. The state chamber is playing an important part in bringing all sections and all interests under one banner for the well-being of our worthwhile features on the program and advancement of the state as a whole.

But gettin' back to Henderson—Cole probably has been sending him a mass of the fanciful statistics that this guy, L. J. Penny, releases from time to time, and it served to hypnotize the big RPOC man, but won't be in or an awful billion dollar loan, that Fols is just a four billion dollar state, jack, stock and barrel?

General Weaver Has Had Long

Varied And Distinguished

Career In U. S. Army

served as much until May, 1927.

After completing a special course of instruction in Air Corps Observation at Kelly Field, Texas, he took over the command of Maxwell

Field, Montgomery, Ala. From January 1931 to May, 1931, he also served as Air Officer of the Fourth Corps

Area.

Transferred to duty in the Office of the Chief of the Air Corps,

Washington, D. C., General Weaver was assigned as Chief of the Plans Division, January 15, 1932. From August, 1932, to June, 1933, he attended the Army Industrial College, Washington, and upon his graduation, September 1, he was assigned to duty as Chief of the Information Division, Office of the Chief of the Air Corps.

In September, 1934, he was assigned to duty in New York City as Air Corps Procurement Planning Representative and in April, 1935, he was transferred to duty with Headquarters, HQ Air Force

Langley Field, Virginia, as Chief Inspector.

While stationed at Maxwell Field

General Weaver, during the time of the great 1918 influenza epidemic

March 1929, personally supervised food relief activities for Southern Alabama, where the towns of Elba, Geneva, Brewton, Poland, Keesey, River Falls, Gantt, Fomonte, Sparks and Castleberry had been inundated. Food and medical supplies to the extent of 27 1/2 tons were delivered by airplanes of the 22nd Observation Squadron, Air Corps. The 108th Observation Squadron of the Alabama National Guard, and a flight of airplanes from Langley Field, Virginia, without a casualty.

At Maxwell Field, General Weaver planned and installed the most efficient type of enlisted men in the U. S. Army, and it proved an instantaneous success. Several other Air Corps stations have adopted the mess system for enlisted men.

His principal interest in flying is in the field of the Frontier Defense. In Observation Aviation, his specific interest is in radio-controlled flights, he having personally directed the maneuvers of the different elements. He directed and planned a system of plane to ground contact work between the 22nd Observation Squadron planes and American Legion Posts in every section of the State of Alabama, this to be used in case of emergency, the pickup and drop message panel system being employed.

Away from the cares and worries of official duty, General Weaver has a number of hobbies to take up his spare time, his principal one being radio, in which he has performed a considerable amount of experimental work. He is the inventor of a game called Chesscomb, combining the elements of flying with the conventional game of Chess. With golf, his dogs, and his motor boat, "he has nothing to do until tomorrow."

On April 1, 1933, General Weaver was again transferred to Maxwell Field, as Commandant of the Air Corps Tactical School and Commanding Officer of the Post. On July 13, 1934, he assumed command of the newly created Southeast Air Corps Training Center, with headquarters at Maxwell Field.

Unlike most of his buddies, New-wirth knew how to sew and when he found his uniform an ill-fitting like a "Mother Hubbard" he got out his sewing kit and set to work.
In 3 1/2 times he had a snappy well-fitting uniform and became the envy of the camp.

Behind her mask of reserve, every girl's Christmas hopes culminate in a Cavalier dower chest—gorgeous, useful, and just the thing to keep safe the treasures and the treasures which will go into "their" new home.

No damp cold sheets in rainy weather.
The best aid to beauty is a perfect night's rest.
Wake up fresh—less body energy wasted on heat.

Heretofore, you have slept under blankets which cannot produce heat. The only service that even the finest wool

Sherman Challenges Claim That Nothing Is Worse Than War

By Dr. John H. Sherman
President of Winter College, Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 26—Every Christian longs for peace. In all normal times we are in the habit of saying that nothing is so bad as war. But is this true?

In chapter two of Mein Kampf Adolph Hitler writes: "It was the free trade union above all which turned democracy into a ridiculous and repellent phrase, which professed liberty and freedom but — And by official Reich decree in May 1933 he ordered: 'The trustees of labor are to regulate the conditions of labor, instead of labor unions. Workers may not be employed unless they possess a work book to be made out by the labor office.'"

Starting thus with Germany, Hitler has extended this compulsion over almost all of Europe. The Nazis government sets the hours of work, the wages and work conditions, and determines who must work on what job. The worker is allowed no choice.

That is slavery. Slavery of freeborn men who have committed no crime. Christians of every land have long agreed that slavery is worse than war.

"The German idea must conquer the world, including the United States, because the Germans are the chosen people selected by destiny and history to rule the earth." Thus Joseph Goebbels, speaking officially as Reichsmin-ister of Propaganda and Public Education.

This doctrine of the superior race which denies to the fellowman his right to self-respect and the possible dignity of men made in the image of God is a course which Germany has adopted upon a hundred million Europeans and promises to Americans. It is a thing worse than war.

Under Hitler's Nazism, millions of young people are deliberately being taught that treachery and cruelty are virtues, that the shooting of innocent hostages is justice, that no pledge need be kept nor faith respected, that robbery of neighboring peoples is commendable, and that the bearing of children out of wedlock is a vir-tuous patriotic duty.

Financed from Berlin, organizers have formed Nazi bands here in America to promote these ideas among American youth. This is the far worse than war.

In Hitler dominated France last week a kiddy baker gave a crust of state bread to a starving beggar.
He was fined 300 francs and his bakery closed for a month, as punishment for dispensing bread without collecting any bread ticket.
That is worse than war.

International law in all ages has required that blockading ships give warning and extend opportunity for passengers and crew to take to the boats before sinking a contraband-bearing ship. Fair play in every relationship of life demands a warning before a blow. Even the rattlesnake warns before he strikes. Only the German submarine strikes without warning.
Submission to that would be worse than war.

"There has arisen a new authority as what Christ and Christianity really are. That is Adolf Hitler.
Adolf Hitler is the true Holy Ghost." This official pronouncement of Hans Kerrl, Reichminister for Church affairs in Nazi Germany, reveals clearly the degradation to which a once Christian people has fallen. The statement is typical of the perversion of faith by Lendinorff, by Goebbels and by Hitler.

Never in modern times has any other people sunk to such blasphemy. Even at her blackest, the murderous Russia never claimed divinity for her leader. But bloody-handed Hitler is offered to the world at the point of the bayonet as "the true Holy Ghost."

To accept such blasphemy is worse than war. It is time to fight.

Ringing Circus

In Winter Quarters

Sarasota, Nov. 26 (FNS)—Saddened by the loss of eleven elephants, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus rolled into winter quarters here last week-end.
Circus officials reported the most successful season in the show's history and stated that over six million persons attended performances during the time the show was on the road.

The Royal American Show, which returned to winter quarters in Tampa, reports a similar successful season, and it is freely predicted that Florida fairs, festivals and carnivals will show no record breaking crowd this season due to there being more money in circulation and a greater demand on the part of the public for high class entertainment.

Commenting on the Florida outlook, General Manager P. T. Strie-der of the Florida State Fair, of his return from a tour of state fairs throughout the country, said:
"It has been the greatest fair year in the nation's history. Capacity crowds flooded every fair ground and all outdoor attractions and events report banner seasons."

Will Lead Christmas Parade of Bands

Orlando, Fla.—Gloria van Tassel, member of the Orlando High school majorette corps, will appear in the gigantic Christmas Parade of Bands to be staged Thursday afternoon, Dec. 4, in the Orange County capital. Thousands of Central Floridians will witness the spectacle in which bands from Avon Park, Unalaska, Klamath Falls, Sanford, DeLand, Winter Park, Cocoa, Titusville and Daytona Beach will participate. In a grand finale, these bands will merge with three Orlando organizations into the largest musical unit ever to perform in this section of the country and march down Orlando's main thoroughfare, Orange Avenue.

Playing "God Bless America," Orlando merchants and city officials are planning a festive program for out-of-town visitors who will help the City Beautiful usher in the holiday trade season.

Governor Holland

And Son Had Good Time on Hunting Trip

Kissimmee, Nov. 26 (FNS)— The Governor and his son, Billy, went hunting Thursday and Friday on the 35,000-acre ranch of N. Ray Correll, state representative from Ocala county, as the guest of the Kissimmee Hunting Club on their annual hunt which began on Wednesday and will continue until next Tuesday. The Governor left Friday evening for Gainesville to attend the annual "Homecoming" at the U. of Florida.

Thursday, the first day that the Governor and his son went hunting, the chief executive got himself a nice large turkey hen, while Billy with his brand new shotgun failed to score a hit. Even at that, Billy had a moral victory, as he came home with dry clothes while Holland fell into a pothole on the way back to the club house and had to take a full treatment in dry cleaning.

Friday was the other way around with Billy bringing back to the ranch house two fine turkeys and four squirrels while the Governor got exactly nothing at the end of the day's hunting, but seemed to have enjoyed himself greatly on his brief vacation on the Carrollton ranch which is in the midst of the prairies of eastern Ocala county.

Other guests invited to the hunt were: Colin English, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; Loomis C. Leedy, Orange County representative; Representatives Marshall C. Winhart of Dade and John and Bruce McCarthy, of the Department of the Interior; Director Jesse Gilliam of the Department of Public Safety; Chairman Boyes A. Williams of the Industrial Commission; Lou Morris of the Florida Fish and Game Commission; Dr. Ralph Balch of Melbourne and John and Bruce McCarthy, brothers of Dan McCarthy, Speeker of the Florida House of Representatives.

Florida continues to receive publicity in the press of the nation as a direct result of the visit to this state of the National Editorial Association last spring. Several hundred lines of copy appear each week — a check of clippings reveals.

Capital Concensus

By Wm. Griffin

YOU WILL PAY AND PAY AND PAY

When the tax collector gets through with you this year, you'll learn that in addition to paying a federal social security tax of 2 percent on the earnings of each employee, you must pay $2 per annum to the state for each employee in excess of one, as an extra occupational tax. Where there are three or more employed, you must insure them against accident and injury.
If eight or more are employed you pay an unemployment compensation tax. Practically every kind of business using the mails comes under the federal wage and hour act. If it's a corporation there is a state corporation and federal corporation tax to be paid, even if your business operates at a loss. If it operates at a profit, then there is income tax. When you are through with that, if you have paid your ad valorem taxes, special district taxes, and license taxes, you may pay an excess profits tax. If you have anything left you will pay the state $12.25 for license plate and driver's license on a light car, but a total of $16 per gallon for State and Federal gas taxes. If you have any money left you buy gasoline, not at $6 per gallon tax, but a total of $16 per gallon for
State and Federal gas taxes. If you've still got a dollar left you can give it to the Red Cross and advance the Community Chest to provide you with food, fuel, clothing and shelter, as you are disgusted to work on W. P. A., or perhaps you can join the CIO and get strike benefits on which there are no taxes. Possibly the Railroad Brotherhood will take you in at $8 per day and let you strike for 30 percent more, and retire you later on a Railroad Retirement Pension at half pay. Living expenses have increased 26 percent; costs of living is too high, and only John L. Lewis successfully defies the Government and enjoys immunity.

IN DEATH CELL 15 YEARS

The story of J. J. Buchanan, as written by S. W. Matthews of the Miami News Nov. 18 is a masterpiece. Buchanan killed his son, then later two preb officers in Taylor County. Six times ex-Gov.
Dwight Carlton signed his death warrant, but he remains in the death cell. Practically every attorney who represented Buchanan has been elevated to high office.
Claude Pepper, who defended Buchanan, is now U. S. Senator.
Curtis Waller, former federal district judge, W. D. Hodges, former supreme court justice, and while Roy Chapman and Elwyn Thomas requested the pardon board to commute his sentence, and they became supreme court justices.
The Miami Herald editorially plead for Buchanan's life, and became one of Florida's most profitable newspapers. Buchanan, now nearing 72, remains alive, aging and rheumatic. Shells refused to sign Buchanan's death warrant, because Exalted Ruler of Elkhon and then saw his arch enemy, Moe Annenberg, sent to the federal penitentiary. Sam Barco of Miami sought clemency for Buchanan, and rose high as a political power. Joe Sears sought clemency for him and became congressman-at-large. While Matthews was in Tallahassee preparing Buchanan's story he received a telegram offering him a position paying more than twice his present annual salary. If the Pardon Commission should recommend to the Pardon Board commutation of Buchanan's sentence what good fortune will await the Commission? What will Holland do?

Christmas Seal Campaign Now On

The thirty-fifth annual sale of Christmas seals opened November 24th. Through the sale of these seals, funds are provided to carry on the fight for tuberculosis prevention and control all over the nation. The largest musical unit ever to Welfare Checks Are Mailed To Nearly 50,000 Recipients

Jacksonville, Nov. 26 (Special) —Florida, through the State Welfare Board, mailed October checks to nearly 50,000 recipients of public assistance—45,700 to be exact—according to announcement today of Leland W. Hatt, state welfare commissioner.

The total includes 38,277 recipients of Old Age Assistance, the largest on record; 8,796 children who were receiving—Aid to Dependent Children, also a new peak figure; and 2,827 recipients of Aid to the Blind.

Cash grants for the month aggregated $643,982, or at the rate of an annual expenditure of $7, 727,784, more than twice the former appropriation of state funds for welfare purposes, including the cost of administration, the distribution of surplus commodities, enrolling for the CCC, certifying for the WPA and the NYA, investigation of dependency claims of registrants for the selective service and maintenance of the Child Welfare Department.

The increase in grants, Commissioner Hatt explained, was due to increased revenues derived from new tax sources, found by the 1941 session of the Legislature, and anticipated income from horse race trails allocated to the payment of Old Age Assistance.

In Highlands County 174 persons received $2,330.00 in Old Age Assistance grants; 14 persons received $297.00 in Aid to the Blind grants; and 45 children received $538.00 in Aid to Dependent Children grants, the announcement said.
