WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK

By LEMUEL F. PARTON
(Consolidated Features-WHU Service.)

NEW YORK—People who send questions to radio quiz programs have been missing a chance to collect on "Who is the president of China?" The usual answer, as of ancient wisdom, we try out the question, is Chiang Kai-shek—the generalissimo and not the president. Lin Sen, serene and venerable patriarch, has been president of China for 10 years. He could be called doctor, and he has many honorary titles, but he is not to be called Mr. Lin Sen. Just now, he is casually and obscurely in the news, with word of powerful generals making pilgrimages to his peaceful retreat, not to talk to him, but to visit him as they might a priest or physician.

He is a bonny old gentleman, bespectacled, with a mane-white beard, a scholar and an artist, wise and humorous and, above all, serene. He is one of the most famous characters of China and, so that he may quietly practice his art, he made a studio in a ruined garb, with walls 10 feet thick. There, on bamboo paper, faced with gold, he painted the classics in swift, beautiful brush strokes, sketching himself in their wisdom. Dr. Fa, president of the executive yuan, takes care of the merely temporal and practical details of the presidency. Mr. Lin Sen is free to practice wisdom and virtue and impart it to his people in beautiful characters.

Mr. Lin Sen was a missionary student in San Francisco's Chinatown, studied western civilization diligently, and, returning to China, preached a careful distinction between civilization and a culture. He said China must be modernized, and joined Dr. Sun Yat Sen, but he insisted that China would lose its soul if it took only guns and machines from the west—that force alone always failed, even when it seemed to be triumphant. He maintained that true morality could be the end and prevail over bombs and bullets. But the latter, he believed, were all right in their place and in 1911 he became president, as the advocate of vigorous resistance against the Japanese aggression. His gods have generously answered for him an ancient Chinese prayer: "May your writing write be as firm as a willow-rod."

JOSEPH B. EASTMAN used to be a social settlement worker in his young days. It has been apparent that in this he experienced a certain kind of satisfaction. Joe B. Eastman as "Natural" as New to the grand Transport Boss in his later years he has been a pragmatic liberal and it is as such that he tackles one of the most important jobs of the war, as chairman of the new office of defense transportation. All he will have to do will be to gear all transport into a working unit, to keep things moving on railroads, air lines, truck lines, inland waterways, coastwise and inter-coastwise shipping lines and pipelines.

It was a much simpler job when William G. McKelton took it over in the first World War, with plane and motor transport negligible. Mr. Eastman, through his long service as chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission and as former co-ordinator of the railroads, has grown into it.

Socially minded from his Amherst and Yale Beta Kappa days, he became a hard-working "good neighbor" at his 1000 Fifth End home in Boston, then counsel for the Boston Street Railway company and later a member of the Massachusetts Public Service commission. When Woodrow Wilson named him to the ICC, he wrote a regretful letter saying he would like to serve, but there was a bar sinister in his career—he was a Republican. Mr. Wilson laughed that off and Mr. Eastman has served under five Presidents. Supreme Court Justice Brandeis had recommended his original appointment. Railroad magnate the him personally and denounce his ideas.

He threw a switch on the first Van Sweringen merger proposal in 1927, later on L. F. Lorain's proposed merger of the Katy and the Cotton Belt with his own Kansas City Southern, and in valuation, rate cases, reorganization, recapitalizations, mergers and the like he has been sharply at odds with the rail barons and definitely aligned with the drive toward former governmental control. Senate Progressives got themselves into a great lather in 1929, fighting to fight and die for their demand that he be reappointed. But President Hoover fooled them by doing just that.

A Couple of Good Cracks at Herr Hitler

Singapore, Gibraltar of East, Is Rich Prize

The defenses of Singapore, the Gibraltar of the East, are, naturally, military secrets, but this map of the British island fortress gives some idea of the city's size, its resources and harbor facilities. Raided twice in the first days of the Pacific war, Singapore was attacked repeatedly by Jap bombers but valiantly defended. Martial law was declared in the Singapore area shortly after the first attack by Japanese invaders.

Putting Extra Stretch in Rubber

We will all have to do without new automobiles free for the present. Next best thing is a reworking job on your old ones. If they are too smooth for safety. At left you see a re-dressing operation in progress. A "canned back," or new rubber top, is vulcanized to the old casing to give a new gripping tread. At the right is shown how a worn-out tire compares with one that has just been given a face lift, or a new tread. The recapped tire is at left; the old "smoothie" beside it.

As Gas Goes on Ration in Hawaii

This camera-approved photo which was received from Honolulu shows Honolulu automobile owners lined up over two blocks on the first day, waiting at the city hall to get their gasoline ration tickets. Note the hand bag barbed on each side of the entrance. This is for the protection of the armed guards.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS By Edward C. Wayne

U. S. Forces Will Go to British Isles; Unified High Command in Pacific, Headed by British Veteran, Wavell, Plans Strategy of War Against Axis

(EDITOR'S NOTE:—These analyses are prepared by three editors, who are members of the news staff and are not necessarily of this newspaper.)

(This is the first of a series of analyses.)

Here is a group of Japanese boats which the United States in December after the capture of the Philippines. These boats were used for the purpose of the war and were used for the purpose of the war.

BATTLE STATIONS:

In Britain

As the new session of congress opened President Roosevelt in delivering his message to the state of the nation outlined extensive plans for the prosecution of the war and declared that U. S. "land, air and sea" forces would take up battle stations in the British Isles.

In addition, said the President, "powerful and offensive actions must and will be taken at many points in the Far East . . . on all the oceans."

In the coming fiscal year the war against Hitlerism would cost the United States $500,000,000, according to the President.

UNIFIED:

High Command

Of primary importance, far outshadowing the loss of Manila or the Philippines was the fact (1) that Churchill and Roosevelt had pledged a five-front war in the southwest Pacific area, and (2) the selection of a group of 36 nations to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion and (3) the selection of a high command comprising British, American, Dutch and Chinese to carry on the southwest Pacific war against the Japs.

Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell was put in supreme command of the army, navy and air forces. Admiral Thomas C. Hart was subordinate commander of the navy; Gen. George H. Brett of the air forces, and Gen. Sir Henry Pownall of the land army.

This was the high command. Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's ability was recognized and part of the strategy revealed when he was asked to command an army that might at some time be placed in the field at the rear of the Japanese in Burma, Siam or Indo-China.

A glance at the map of the area showed one "Hick" trail open to the Allied forces, and this included a line from Britain in North Australia, along the coast of Sumatra and Java to the Straits of Malacca and thence to Singapore.

This left a vast section the wide South Pacific on one flank, and not the island-dotted and treacherous waters of the China sea to navigate.

PHILIPPINES:

Battle

General MacArthur's army of close to 100,000, mostly Philippine and American troops, had been struck back, finally had been struck back along prearranged lines to make their last stand in the hills and to fall back slowly on the last defensive fortresses to the north of Manila Bay.

Few believed that it would produce anything but a delaying action, but many hoped that the final and apparently inevitable surrender might be delayed until the completion of the war in the Far East might take a more favorable turn for the Allies.

It was conceded by most authorities, including the British, the Dutch, and observers in Washington, "army" generals for the most part, that there was scarcely a hope of the American-Philippine army triumphing.

But if the Japanese should find a heavy naval engagement on their hands, or if the battle in Malaya should turn against them, or if they found their supply-line cut by an attack on their rear in Thailand or Indo-China, it was at least conceivable that the Philippine battle would turn the other way.

Sen. Connally of Texas had said, when Manila fell, "this is what military men have been telling us for 15 years would happen if we went to war with Japan. We don't like it, but it was bound to happen."

If there was any expedition for the relief or reinforcement of the Philippines, it was a closely guarded secret.

That there was activity was certain. That the navy was busy and hard at work also was certain.

But by the rules of wartime necessity the nature of that activity had not been revealed.

Washington Post '42 Will Be Record Year For American Farm Crops

Food Goals Are Raised to Boost Production As Agriculture's Part in Winning The War for U. S. and Allies.

By BAUKHAJE

National Farm and Home News Columnist.

WNO Service, 1345 H Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The farmer came across.

He produced more this year than any year in history. Never has America blossomed and borne fruit

as she did. Next year the production will be even higher for the department of agriculture found that the farmer was willing to meet the challenge set up last August, and to exceed them.

But that doesn't mean that the Department of Agriculture has been settled. Now the department of agriculture finds a part of the problem back in its own lap, for we are in the war ourselves and our allies depend on us for supplies. The farmer must be assured labor, supplies and machinery to carry out his part of the job. And the processor must have the equipment to take care of perishable products when the farmer lays them down at the door.

Experts here tell me that the farm-labor problem is not insolvable. The combined demands of war and industry mean that the farmer will have to put up with older hands, with less skilled farm hands. It means that schools will have to be dismissed at harvest time and when harvest time comes cultivation time comes together. It may mean a land army of women. But the farmer will get the help he needs, even if it isn't exactly the kind of help he would prefer.

Can Get Repairs

The farmer can also get the parts

he needs to repair his farm machinery.

He will get some new machinery, enough to get by with.

He may have to skip a little on the nitrates and the phosphates although at present there are reserve supplies.

But the big problem is to provide the processor with the essentials he needs to prepare the food and to wrap it up in packages for the consumers. Take for instance milk:

some 24 million evaporating plants will have to be put up.

And flour. This year was a record crop. Next year will be bigger.

Will the packers be able to take care of the porters which may be woulding up at the rate of a possible thousand a day to equal their last squeals for freedom? That is one thing which the secretary of agriculture is battling over now. It takes oil and steel and steel and a lot of oil which will be used for fuel and before you can change a pig into a portable meal. And the army is tighter than a Sunday shoe when it comes to yielding up any of those essential metals. It is interested chiefly in destroying, not preserving.

Food Goals Raised

The department of agriculture has raised the food goals—already it has called for a 35 per cent boost in the tomatoes wanted; 35 per cent in man-and-horse corn and per cent in potatoes. Russia is very likely going to ask for food that we had not figured on supplying. China may need more.

And then, who knows there may be an American Expeditionary Force, probably will be before we are through with the war of Donat.

The "Caribbean Brothers," with

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. playing the lead, has been given the green showing at Washington, D. C., with practically everybody of importance on the invitation list.

TWO FRONTS

The United States must fight on two, fronts.

First, there is the military front. American soldiers, sailors and airmen are fighting and dying in the Pacific. They are living up to the highest traditions of this nation's military history. They must be given the finest battle equipment in the world, and they must be given it in lavish quantity. All the resources of this nation, human and material alike, must be used to that end.

Second, there is the home front. We have said, time and again, that we are fighting to defend and perpetuate freedom. That is true. But the defense of freedom at home, as on the war front, demands more than lip service. It demands straight thinking from all. It demands a people who look squarely at the facts, no matter how unpleasant they may be. It demands the kind of national toughness that knows precisely what we are fighting for, and that will permit nothing to stand in the way of victory on the home front no less than the military front.

We will, of necessity, demand and accept a large measure of economic dictatorship during the war. Whether that dictatorship ends when the war ends, will depend upon the resolution and the understanding of the American people. The future of this country and this kind of government is in the balance. The people will decide which way the scales are tipped.

The free enterprise system is at stake in this war. Upon the maintenance of free enterprise all the other freedoms—freedom of press, freedom of speech, freedom of religion—hangs and depends. Anything which weakens and weakens and emasculates free enterprise is the enemy of the nation. We cannot have an ever-expanding bureaucracy and have efficiency. We cannot allow non-defense spending to go on unchecked and expect to avoid economic collapse. We cannot punish industry and expect it to be able to do its utmost.

There is nothing dramatic about these statements. They are simply homely truths. The winning of this war—and the winning of the peace that follows—will depend on how well the American people understand them.

There has never been such unity as this country has at present. Every American stands solidly behind the President in the pledge to wage war until international gangsterism is destroyed. The spirit of the nation is one of grim, uncompromising determination. But let us remember that the home front is as vital to war as the battlefront. There will be subversive influences on both fronts. Only an awakened, aware people can prove their depositions.

We fight for freedom, then. And we must fight for it all the way—fight for it here in America, no less than in the broad reaches of the oceans and the lands beyond.

"SERVE IN SILENCE"

H. D. Collier, President of the Standard Oil Company of California, made a statement to that company's employees which is worthy of the widest possible attention.

Mr. Collier said: "One of the most important ways of contributing to success, is to protect the Army and Navy by refraining from discussing their activities."

He pointed out that where the company employees (this applies with equal force to the employees of any company) are in contact with our armed forces, they should keep all information acquired, to themselves. "Don't tell your friends. A casual comment about the movement of ships, naval or merchant, or about the movement of troops, might be of great value to the enemy and lead to a disaster. Military authorities are pleading that the public refrain from gossip and the spreading of rumors."

"We have a most serious duty. 'Serve in silence. Don't reveal military information."

Each and every citizen can perform a valuable service for our armed forces as well as the people at home, by following this sound advice.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

By RUSSELL KAY

Out of Chicago comes evidence of that indomitable American courage and spirit which has always typified our nation—"The Grin and Win Club."

Its origin is credited to a live wire salesman and a manufacturer's representative who, like thousands of other men in the country today, suddenly found himself out of luck and a job when the products he had been selling so successfully were all taken for defense purposes.

Joseph A. Kaplan, representative of the B. F. Goodrich rubber company, didn't sell tires but he did a flourishing business promoting a rubber coating material known by the trade name of "Koroseal" employed to waterproof shower curtains and for other household furnishings.

Attending a household industries trade show in Chicago, where he anticipated sales that meant sizeable commissions, he was informed that the product was off the market as the full production of "Koroseal" had been requisitioned by the Navy for use in cable insulation and for other military uses.

Did Joseph break down and cry or attempt to drown his sorrow?—He did not. Looking about him, on every hand he found other fellows in the same boat. Manufacturers, dealers, distributors and salesmen who, due to priorities, found themselves without a business or without a job.

It seemed that just about everyone attending that convention was having troubles of some sort and deep gloom settled down on the entire gathering. It looked like the convention which originally was intended to pep them up and encourage them to go ahead would turn out to be a perfect "flop."

Forgetting his own trouble, Joseph got busy and decided that since he couldn't sell any more "Koroseal" there wasn't anything to prevent his selling cheer, encouragement and pep.

Circulating among his downhearted fellows, he began to laugh off their fears and worries and met each tale of grief with a gay gloom-dispelling wise crack: "I may be in the RED," he shouted, "but I'm not Blue."

He had arranged for a large display room to show his products but instead of closing it, he gave the boys a party and when they arrived they found the empty shelves and tables bearing such rib-tickling signs and announcements as "Cheer Up!" "Victory today—Sales tomorrow!" "We're going somewhere with no wars!" "The country needs NO-Dough Boys as much as Doughboys!" "Remember Pearl Harbor!" "Yanks Don't Yammer!"—and others.

Kaplan himself wore a large button reading "Grin and Win"

Like a ray of sunshine in a dungeon, Kaplan with his punch, pep and personality soon had his fellows all wearing broad grins. It was "chins-up" and "thumbs-up" from then on, and gloom was chased out like an Italian regiment.

Someone suggested that they form a "Grin and Win" club to give cheer and courage to other guys like themselves who found they were temporarily taking it on the lam, but were determined that it wouldn't get them down. Club No. 1 was organized then and there, and the idea mushroomed until similar clubs sprung up in a dozen cities.

Here in Florida today, as everywhere else, business men, manufacturers, salesmen, dealers and distributors are facing handicaps and problems that have hit them like a Joe Louis left. Some have been virtually put out of business overnight. One of the best ways to face your troubles is to realize that the other fellow has them too, and instead of crying, join with him and others to find a way out and beat the rap.

Every American is called upon to make sacrifices, to give up comforts and conveniences, to work and fight harder. Making these adjustments is not easy, but we CAN make them and we WILL make them. By sticking together, pulling together and working together courageously, sympathetically and unselfishly, we'll come through to win out stronger and better for the experience.

When you find yourself getting low in spirits, think of those courageous Marines at Wake Island who stood their ground under a hail of bombs and machine gun bullets and when asked if they needed anything called back "Sure, send us some more Japs."

You can't beat people like that and real Americans—soldiers, sailors, marines, business men, industrialists, workers, are all that kind of people. So don't "Howl and Scream!"—but "GRIN and WIN."

Babson Calls Meet

To Discuss Rubber

Babson Park, Jan. 15 (FNS)—

Roger W. Babson has called a meeting of government officials and representatives of the nation's rubber industry as well as leading scientists and others to make a study and survey of the possibilities of producing rubber in Florida.

The late Thomas A. Edison,

Harvey Firestone and others conducted years of research and while their experiments with goldenrod proved unsuccessful they uncovered much valuable information on the subject.

Research experiments with another plant in southern California have proved successful and the International Company feels confident that the commercial production of the shrub known as grayleaf will prove the solution to the rubber shortage problem.

The same company is now experimenting with the growing of this plant in Mexico and a report of their progress will be heard at the conference called by Babson, which is scheduled for Feb. 18 at Webster College at Babson Park.

Garden Club Well Attended

A large crowd of visitors and members attended the regular meeting of the Garden Club Friday morning of last week held in the Jacaranda Hotel at 10 o'clock with Mrs. C. E. Crabtree acting as the hostess. For the program, Louis Almyer of Sebring showed colored slides of garden pictures, some of them were taken in and about Avon Park. He also gave an interesting talk in which he stated that the people of Florida should plant flower gardens instead of vegetable gardens as advised for the defense program, due to the fact that the soil is poor for growing vegetables in the most part of the state, and the beauty of the flowers would help keep up the morale of the citizens.

Mrs. J. A. Johnson, president of the Garden Club presided at the business discussion following the program. Aviation Cadets Help To Buy Bombers

A means of buying bombers, for their personal use later on, has been inaugurated by the Aviation Cadets at the local training detachment.

The "star system" which is well known throughout the Army flying schools is used. Whenever a Cadet makes an error, such as landing car traffic, incorrect entries in the flight reports, drag a wing tip, etc., he is penalized from one to five stars. When pay day rolls around he is required to buy defense stamps, one for each star.

This plan is applicable to business firms as well as the local detachment, so let's go folks and "Keep 'em Stamping."

Supreme Court Rule In Hathaway Case

Tallahassee, Jan. 8 (FNS)—The Supreme Court last week refused to reconsider its recent decision in the Hathaway case requested by the State Industrial Commission.

The court ruled that Governor Holland removed Hathaway without proper cause from the post of director of the State Employment Service.

Hathaway's status is uncertain since the court did not order his reinstatement and merely said that the record did not support the charges of inefficient operation against Hathaway, the basis upon which the governor removed him, which was the question before the court.

The decision of the court in this case is far reaching as it establishes the fact that the "merit system" is more than a name and employees operating under it are assured protection from political interference providing their work is satisfactory and efficient.

We say "there is no new thing under the sun," yet, radical changes have come since our grandmothers sweat over their cooking stoves.

War, man's favorite sport, is no longer confined to soldiers. In the new world conflict more women and children are bombed than soldiers shot in some engagements. And the American woman is also cast for a new role in what was once a man's world in arms camp, munitions plant and in home defense the already does a man's job.

Our workers boast that they have provided the American woman with labor-saving appliances to raise the highest standard of living known to mankind. Certainly the American woman has more to lose than any one else, should our way of life go Nazi, Fascist or Communist. Our employees are proud and happy that electrical services give you the time to help keep democracy at work.

Postal News From Local Post Office

According to Postmaster D. G. Perry the rate of airmail postage to any man in the army, navy or marines who are stationed outside the United States will be 6 cents for every half ounce. This is a decided reduction and only applies to men in the military services. Mail addressed to them should clearly show their rank and organization in which they are serving.

The postmaster also announced that the volume of airmail handled by the Avon Park postoffice last December was five times as great as during December 1940.

The gross business for the last quarter of 1941 at the local postoffice showed a 25 percent increase over the last quarter of 1940 and the number of pieces of mail handled during December greatly exceeded any December during the boomtime era. Perry said.

To Stage Sale Drive On Bonds and Stamps

Jacksonville, Jan. 8 (FNB)—While Florida, from the first, has stood among the leaders in the sale of defense bonds and stamps, State Administrator John L. Faha announced this week that a drive is being opened soon to triple the sale of bonds and stamps.

An "Every American" canvass will be launched Jan. 10 and every Floridian will be asked to sign a pledge specifying the amount that can be invested regularly in bonds and stamps.

Quotas will be established for individual concerns and localities three times as great as the amount they produced from May through November.

The trebled effort will be nationwide in scope and plans for it were outlined at a meeting in Chicago which was attended by John L. Faha, State Administrator, Lehmann, Deputy Administrator, Linton F. Allen, chairman of the state group, and John G. Jemison, staff member.

Faha expressed every confidence that Florida would continue to hold her place as leading the southeast and among the top ranking states of the nation in standpoint of sales.

Marine Studios Expects Good Season

Maitland, Jan. 8 (FNB)—Expressing confidence that Florida will enjoy a good season spite of the war, directors of Marine Studios at their annual meeting here unanimously voted not to cut any budgets for the coming year and carry out all plans called for. They further voted to increase their advertising budget on the grounds that such action will prove profitable and insure increased patronage.

It was announced that the ban on movie cameras at Marine Studios has been lifted and visitors now are permitted to take pictures of underwater scenes with 8 mm. or 16 mm. cameras. The only type camera not permissible is 35 mm.
