To insure change of advertisement in our paper copy must be in our hands by 6 o'clock a. m., Wednesday.

Another June is gone—and still more brides.

Ninety-seven for our street bonds isn't so bad.

Save a mill, Mr. Councilman, and feed the goats.

Coal miners take their stand; and the operators take theirs—on the public.

Russia actually expects credit. Yet she has no references and won't pay her bills.

If congress is only as sure as it is slow—signs the war veteran who needs his bonus.

A dozen Florida towns are boasting again about their building records for another month.

A pleased tourist is a great asset. Good roads and sustained good fishing will please millions.

Umbrellas aren't so popular at the beaches since the automobile with curtains has arrived.

Mr. Lasker must be thinking the wild waves are crying something about "giving us a drink."

"Mondell defends congress" record," says a headline. We always thought a record was a list of accomplishments.

Another winter home planned for Avon Park this summer. Now let's give 'em a road to come down to enjoy it.

Only four college men among 22,000 inmates of prison, says the Miami Metropolis. Sure, college is supposed to make men smart.

As we are talking good roads, of course, no one doubts our good intentions. But let us pave No. 8 with something more lasting.

A paragraph says lending money "is a fine way to improve the memory" and he might have added, a sure way to lose it.

Independent buyers offering up to $2.25 per box for oranges now, presage a couple of million dollars for Highlands county this winter.

We've heard a lot about "hands across the sea," but we're satisfied if those Irish guys would just shake across the Ulster boundary line.

"Administration plans to settle coal strike," says a headline. That's all Harding does. We ought to make a good draftsman—under a good architect.

If it only takes one dollar to buy 2,750,000 Kisses, you'd best like to know where they buy their paper so cheap. Cuts costs us five and a half cents up.

The Tribune is bragging on Governor Hardie's "rule of reason." But where is any reason for movies on Sunday and a locked up ball park the same day?

Former Governor Gilchrist, twice beaten by Park Trammell, is going to enter the patent medicine business—so he says. We wonder if his new discovery is a salve.

The main objection that Gompers has to the supreme court seems to be that it is a "union" body and appointive instead of elective—so the A. F. of L. can't reach it.

The Tribune talks of George Harvey putting the "rust" in the money. The American people are going to put the "door" in it also and show it to both he and Harding.

American girls are refusing to ape the royalty and Queen Mary's floor length dresses are having no effect in this country. If that be flapperism, thank God for the flapper.

Senator McCormack says the G. O. P. practices economy. Yes, but the poor consumer is going to have to "play" it twenty-four hours per day when that tariff goes through.

A fair dandel in olden times bobbed a mere man's hair to make him weak. Now how do they figure on robbing their own just at the time they are picking up the political jawbone?

Discussing the fad of "rolling your own," the Deland News declares that "many of us can remember when no one knew whether a woman wore short hose or long ones." But why worry now?

Governor Hardie slices an eighth of a mill off of state tax rate. Meanwhile a state health department has nothing to function with. And the average taxpayer saves a nickel—or does he save it?

Mr. Harding has a perfect right to demand that congressmen stay on the job, but our experience has been that a fellow who has to be ordered to work, isn't much good when you get him on the job.

Latokpa is a veritable gold mine for this county—and Miami can't say they spilled the yellow paint either—but it is high time this county took some steps to keep the "gold" prospecting, and keep the "hot" out.

You don't have to hire a lawyer to sue for a girl's hand, expostulate the Polk County Record with thanks. No, Brother Gelsenbach, but you should hire a pair of them to get rid of the hand, so you make up for it—if the contract doesn't "take."

MUST THE NATION BE BORN?

As we celebrated another birthday of our country, located a pertinent question throughout its breadth. Must the nation be reborn?

It seems our national spirit—our views toward government—needs to be purged. We must be cleansed. We must be reborn again.

For 140 years a free land has produced a nation of the physical growth. We have no great that the mental growth has been attained. Be the cause what it may, efforts are evident throughout the land.

Men laugh at the law.

Men usurp the power of the law.

Men seek readily to purchase the law.

Men hide the law from them with a cloak and mask.

We are above to pull down upon us the temple of justice which is the castle of all the world—the outpost of civilization and alike the fortress of mankind.

Men are blatant like the ass; men speak with impunity; men desecrate the sanctity of another's threshold; men lure away confidence in our fellowmen.

Political or economical, the causes are disastrously effective.

We wonder how can we solve the problem. If the woman will relentlessly wage war on a man-made double standard that she is living under, yet we believe she may. Woman has protested freely for years against the double standard of morals, but that is a minor ailment in the present crisis.

The American man for years has been setting up a much more treacherous double standard, and in so doing, determining the supreme structure—the commonwealth. It is the double standard of business and industry for private business and another for public business.

We are above to advocate a man for major posts in the great business of running a nation, while we would not have the suggestion of a woman as chairman of the board of our bank, or even blackball him should he seek entrance to our country club or our Rotary Club.

It is this double standard that we live under, and it is a vital question. Woman's legal rights will come in very good time. Her legal status, and her position in the world, but if she ignores or delays on the question, there will be no problem of hers.

Woman must subvert personal interests for the time being to the needs of the nation. They are in the kindergarten of voters. We believe Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, used that very phrase once.

This double standard must be destroyed. If it did not prevail and rule our reason today—

The perpetrators of the Herrin massacre would be hanged.

Men who wield the tar brush and feathers would dare not take a man from within the walls of his home.

The moonshiner and bootlegger would have so many little days in jail that his business would be a waste of attention, as any business would.

The briber's gold would not openly stalk a nation to lure public servants from their trust, with its appeal to their greed and self-interest.

Justice would prevail, and eliminate the alleged need for the cloak and the mask and the tar brush.

The nation would be free from the lurking assassin, who stalks not one lone leader, but whose unhealthful influence is reaching for the heart of the nation.

If this double standard were torn down today to suggest the question that we ask at the head of this article, "Must the nation be reborn?"

The nation was born of free men springing from those who enfranchised the man who found the Magna Charta from an unwilling system of government.

May it not be reborn of free women, springing from those who enfranchised woman by forcing the Susan B. Anthony amendment from another system of government?

If the woman will push her way out of the position of a slave of her political ignorance, she can cleanse the nation's politics, who can purge the national spirit of its leprosy; and as a strong band of free women will stand up, so might the nation be reborn and win the eternal life promised by the Scripture. Let the woman amend the nation.

The woman's amendment is not that immortal declaration—and it does not amend, it merely strengthens the promise to the nation.

The woman's amendment is the Baltimore meeting of the League of Women Voters, at which Pan-Americanism was organized.

Believing in government by the people, for the people and in other words, reaffirming the document that gave birth to the nation—"I will do my best."

First, to inform myself about public questions, the principles and policies of political parties and the qualifications of candidates for public office.

Second, to vote according to my conscience in every election, primary, or final, at which I am entitled to vote.

Third, to obey the law even when I am in sympathy with all its provisions.

Fourth, to support by all fair means, the policies that I approve of.

Fifth, to respect the right of others to uphold convictions that may differ from my own.

Sixth, to regard my citizenship as a public trust.

And you don't have to give up your home life, grid on a steel armor to run the gauntlet of the public gaze, or run for office to do any good.

America expects every woman to do her duty, if we may be permitted to paraphrase Lord Nelson's famous appeal to Britain's men at Trafalgar.

With this victory won, all other would come easy. Without it, all woman's successes will come empty.

Speaking of cows roaming over Harding's acres, the Tampa Tribune suggests "baked Irish potatoes with cold sweet-milk makes a mighty good breakfast." We don't know. We might be baked easily in these days, but we remind Brother McWhorter that those cows ain't cold storage affairs.

A WORTHY EXAMPLE

It is estimated that the permanent improvements under way in Florida, public buildings, school houses, hotels, and bridges, cost about $100,000,000. You can no more stop the progress of Florida by crying out against expenditure for permanent and useful structural building than you can sweep back the tides of ocean with a broom.

South Florida, especially, is building itself "more stately mansions," and is leaving its shabby past.

Hardly a county south of the thirty-ninth parallel of north latitude in this state but is spending big money for still bigger permanent things.

We have just seen Hillsborough county vote a $1,000,000 roads bond.

We have just seen Duval county completing the first unit of its port terminals.

Now turn attention to Orange county and see how it is doing.

South Florida counties making great strides toward greatness. The Sentinel.

"Orlando and Orange county are now spending over $4,000,000 voted for new school buildings, a new municipal water and light plant and additional highways. Any state that is going to beat Florida and the counties of Duval and Hillsborough, Orange and Polk, Pinellas and Pasco, Seminole and Duval, Osceola and Brevard, Volusia and Palm Beach, will not only have to get up early in the morning, but forced to remain awake all night! Exchanges, please copy, especially those in the west, north and east."

What a fine example, Orlando, Polk, Duval and Seminole, and Pinellas and Hillsborough, and all the rest named by the Sentinel, and those not named by it, are setting the rest of the state! Not state-aid, not federal-aid, but home accomplishment, in the keynote of South Florida counties in their great advance program.

We waited for our neighbors to come out and we waited for our relations to come out our grain; we waited for the passer-by to cut our grain, but all in vain was the wait. Then we grasped our scythes and our own grain and our neighbors, went into the ripening fields, and the row on row of golden sheaves of accomplishment stand as the testimony of our own work.

The exchanges, especially those in the west, north and east, this state would indeed do well "to copy" all the Sentinel says about that record.—Tampa Tribune.

LET US GO!

Avon Park is waking up to some of the good things that those about here in the walls of his home.

Has been suggested in recent weeks that of Connellman J. S. Francis.

The tax millage of two, or three or four or even five mills, and make it pay cash, matter it not how big or how small, would pay 100 per cent the first year.

There is one inalienable truth in public government—the public's kick is not against the tax rate, but against tax levies that do not produce a dollar's worth for the dollar taken.

Our council would do well to remember that.

We're willing to go just as strong on a publicity levy as Mr. Francis suggests. We like his ideas and we've been in the line, name the levy, but—or rather—

Avon Park needs first get desirable publicity with her own money.

We might call it offsetting negative publicity.

Negative publicity—that's what lack of garbage disposal system is to any town. We can hardly write a truthful advertisement of Avon Park until we get garbage disposal.

The present point of any advertisement would have to be a "sanitary health community."

We can not afford to write an untruthful advertisement.

Therefore, it becomes essential to even a publicity campaign that we have municipal collection and disposal of garbage and the such.

Admitted that is an essential health measure; proven it is a necessary publicity measure; can we fail to concede that a one-mill levy for garbage disposal is an economical demand that must be heeded?

We would like to see three big steps taken by the present council when it makes 'up the budget—we deem these steps one economically necessary—and we are sure each one will bring health, wealth and happiness, dollar for dollar.

First—a one-mill levy for garbage removal and sanitation. It is an essential necessity.

Second—a one-mill levy for a community house. It is an essential need.

Third—a two-mill levy for publicity. It is an essential economy.

DECENCY DEMANDS STATEMENT

Masquerading beneath the white hood, the policy at times unmasked, some men in Florida are now bent on degrading that "decent respect to the opinions of mankind" which is required that even such stalwart and upright figures as those who signed the Declaration of Independence "should declare the causes which impel them," in their acts.

Be it the Ku Klux Klan, be it the reputed best men in any community, or be it the lowest blackguard that breathes the same demands for statement of causes, for a declaration, or for an explanation to mankind is binding.

Unless there is no court to which the grievance may be carried, and unless the declaration shows consideration that some sort of united action is necessary by the community, as was by the thirteen colonies in 1776—to safeguard the rights of mankind, then the law should be proclaimed.

We countenance war only because there is no international court whose ruling is binding. We can not countenance private wars or mob rule, except under the same conditions.

Just, or not, it is deplorable that a citizen of a community should be taken from his home and punished without warrant, a declaration or assurance of justice. The latest example is all the more deplorable because the whispered allegations could have been reached through an open court, and if just, Editor J. B. Wendler would have received his punishment in "strikes" far more effective and lasting than those left by the dagger.

We have known something of Mr. Wendler's operations. We do not consider him the highest type of citizen—not yet the lowest, since the fogging and tarring party. He does not stand high in his community, in his party nor among his associates and acquaintances. His much-vaunted tactics were foretold by the writer when the Winter Park Post was organized. But this is neither here nor there.

If he libeled Mayor Eugene Duckworth, criminal libel action would have resulted effectively. And no body but a court has the right to sustain the accusation.

There have been several instances of this kind. It is high time that our state was taken out of the hands of the rights of a citizen—he be good or bad. Nothing has been done in the past and it is high time that official Tallahassee will continue an idle onlooker.

The reputation of this state, Mr. Governor, is worth more to the sheriffs you would suspend for inactivity, than their jobs. And they are the least to be considered.

The brand of shame we will have to bear if this campaign will be a blot on our faith in mankind, and our belief in justice.

The world surely progresses all at once—the good and the bad. Better health conditions and scientific life lengtheners are offset by more efficient means of destruction and more of them. You can't beat Old Man Time, for he's holding both reins.

"Why is it that detours from the straight and narrow path are more pleasant than the detours from the auto road?" asks the Tribune.

FEMININE ADORNMENT

Do women dress for men, or for themselves? There may be no final answer to this old question, but new light is thrown on it by the complaints of the male superintendent of the girls' reformatory at Bedford, N. Y. "The girls," he says, "are the same, nuns in dressing and beautifying themselves here as they would for an Easter parade on Fifth avenue. They love to doll themselves up."

He thinks it odd, evidently, and even wicked, although there are no masculine eyes to witness the beautification and no masculine morals to be warped by it. He thinks it is bad for the girls themselves; and so he has forbidden various kinds of beauty accessories, restricting the girls to the plainest costumes and simplest practices.

Something must be conceded to simplicity and uniformity in any such institution, but is the superintendent entirely right? Is it really immoral for these girls to make themselves as attractive as they can, even within the reformatory walls? Or is it even a waste of time? Are not such efforts, at bottom, mainly intended to preserve the girls' self-respect?

When any human beings, especially women, no longer care how they look, they are on the downward path for sure. It means a fundamental slumping of standards. The English gentleman, realizing that, insists on "dressing for dinner," though he may be camped in a tropical jungle with none to see him but savages.

"Dolling up" may be half virtue, but it is also half virtue. The better way is not to try to stamp it out, but to direct it and use it as a wholesome means of improvement.—Pensacola News.

THE SCIENCE OF PUBLICITY

Wide comment is being given the action of the Miami Chamber of Commerce in setting aside through its publicity committee, a budget of $91,000 for the coming season.

It is doubtful if any city in the south even dreams of using that much money to tell the outside world why all the rest of the people outside of Miami ought to visit the Magic City. Certainly no Florida town or city has a publicity budget anywhere near that contemplated by Miami. Consequently no other town or city in Florida can expect to reap any benefit at Avon Park, as Miami expects to reap from the bringing in of new residents, some for the winter only, others to be permanent. Miami is strong for good band music, knowing that to keep people pleased and amused is to make them contented. Thousands of people who frequent Miami and other Florida cities every winter, are attracted there by the love of the very best band music. Miami is figuring on spending not less than $25,000 for a band. The next item is that of booklets. To meet this need $20,000 is to be set aside and a like amount is to be spent in newspapers throughout the north and west. Another means of telling the Miami message to the traveling public is through the agency of the billboards. About $4,000 will be spent for this purpose in the north and about $2,000 in the territory surrounding Jacksonville. Waycross and Savannah. It is also proposed to put up direction signs over a wide territory east of the Mississippi river and north of the Ohio and more than $5,000 will be spent in this way. It will take another $3,000 to carry on the publicity work in the Miami headquarters, so here we have an ambitious and extensive program that would make most communities gasp for breath. Those who have never visited the Magic City and are wondering just what sort of place it is, will be glad to hear that it is a strip of inspection. All that is necessary is to realize that Miami is about to spend $91,000 for publicity. That tells the story of a progressive people who know full well the value of telling the other fellow. It is this same spirit of determination to excel that will give Miami a population of more than one hundred thousand people within the next half dozen years. While it may not be possible for any other city to follow Miami's example as regards amount, the lesson is there just the same for all who care to read. Without publicity, without a determined effort to tell the outside world what a city has to offer, the way of assets and attractions, there can be no advance, no gain in population, no great forward step.

TOBOGGANING POPULAR SPORT

Summer tobogganing is a novel feature recently inaugurated at Sulphur Springs, a suburb of Tampa. The slide is claimed to be a real thriller. The chute is 45 feet high and 125 feet long and ends in a graceful curve. The ride is claimed to be a real thriller. Bathing using the slide sit on wooden toboggans, large enough for two persons, which are released by an attendant at the top of the slide. The toboggans slide on tracks, the time they reach the bottom of the slide is about 80 miles an hour by the time they reach the bottom of the slide. After leaving the chute, the toboggans often glide a distance of 200 feet over the surface of the pool and may be guided as one would a sled on the snow. The toboggans are returned to the top of the slide by an elevator and stairway is provided for the riders to reach the top of the slide.

Tobogganing seems to be a new sport here in Florida, or else an old sport revived, though it has been a rather popular sport long indulged in at most of the bathing resorts of the north.

Uncle Joe Cannon, who has been forty-five years a member of the house, has given some sound advice to Vincent Brennan, who is the young member. The senator asked Cannon's advice about running again or going back to private law practice. Cannon told him to make his pile first and get a sure income before he came back into congress, and Brennan decided to do so.—National Tribune.

A whole world of good story material had to be junked when people quit believing in ghosts. Sir Conan Doyle will have a hard time in getting believers that the departed find so little to do in a better world, or are so lonely guarded in the worse world that they want to come back to some dismal earthwarding in this world.—National Tribune.

The breed is not so important as the pigs and cows. Persuade your neighbors to decide on a breed and make the community famous for the breed. Make the product good and the market will take care of it.

UNITED STATES STAMPS

ENCIRCLE THE GLOBE

The recent addition of Haiti and Bermuda to places where cents will carry a letter calls attention to the vast extension in the last few years of the cruising of the United States two-cent stamps. The tiny red square may now dispatch a letter northward to a post office in the Andes or canoe trip to a white settlement among the Tierra del Fuego natives. Theoretically you could send a letter with a two-cent stamp as far north as Cape Cod, the point of Grant Land which is supposed to be Canada's farthest north, were there either postoffice or friend there to receive it, and to the far south of Patagonia or across the Strait of Magellan to the Argentine portion of Tierra del Fuego. The northern limit of our two-cent correspondence does not quite reach Cape Horn, which belongs to Chile, with which a two-cent rate has not been arranged.

East and west our two-cent stamp will reach New Zealand and Samoa; to the United States postal agency at Shanghai, China, and the United States naval hospital at Yokohama, Japan. Other points in China and Japan require the usual foreign rate of five cents. There are some sixty foreign places where you can send a letter for two cents. Briefly, you can send a letter anywhere in North America and Central America and to all important points in the West Indies for that sum. The two-cent rate applies to all South American countries except Venezuela, Chile, Paraguay and Uruguay, and Dutch and French Guiana. In Europe only England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales are included in the present list. The Pacific places within two-cent reach are New Zealand (including the Cook Islands as well as the New Zealand portion of Samoa), Bermuda, and Haiti. The two-cent rate also applies to our own possessions—Alaska, Canal Zone, Guam, and Puerto Rico, Samoa and Virgin Islands.

Agreement by which more countries gradually are being added to the two-cent list are reached through the Universal Postal Union, which first met at Bern in 1874. The oft-repeated statement that the postoffice is a civilizing agent is realized more fully when it is noted that postal representatives of the central powers, the allied countries and the United States, met in friendly conference at Madrid in 1920.—The Pathfinder.

SUNDAYS

Sundays are lovely on the farm in the spring and summer. We don't get up till after seven and I get a leisurely kind of breakfast while Bill goes out to milk and feed.

And after breakfast I get the baby and hold her in my arms and we go to the fence to watch and Bill lets the horses out to go to the big pasture for the day. Such a time—they come trooping out of the big barn—nine of them, including old Tom, and they careen around the barn yard—heels in air, and manes flying—and then they are away down the lane, racing like wild horses, neck and neck, with Fanny, the five-year-old buckskin always in the lead and Whitefoot thundering beside her, while at the end of the cavalcade, come old Kate, lumbering along. Three of the wild things ahead are Kate's colts, but they've no respect for the old lady.

I guess the horses love Sundays, too.—Margaret W. Jackson in Farm Life.

The far-flung line of Sealdsweet distribution

The cooperating citrus growers of Florida this season successfully sold considerable quantities of Sealdsweet grapefruit in England.

Five or more years ago the growers' organization began to investigate foreign markets for grapefruit and by the time increased production indicated the wisdom of opening up these, it was ready to function efficiently.

The connections and standing of the Florida Citrus Exchange are such that it secured the cooperation of the largest stores and best merchandising ability in England, for the introductory campaign in that country.

Plans for further extension of foreign markets for Sealdsweet grapefruit have been tentatively worked out, and these will be completed and carried into effect whenever conditions are found to be such as to justify them.

By no means, however, are the Florida growers who cooperate neglecting the domestic field. New channels of distribution for Florida grapefruit and oranges, new uses and new users are their constant aim. They are now quietly developing avenues of consumption that will absorb immense quantities, and at the same time investigating others.

The growers' cooperative organization is ever on the alert. Its members do not await the arrival of a crisis before planning to meet it. They will solve the problems of the state's citrus industry because first, last and all the time their work is for the growers of Florida, all accomplishments benefiting each of the members of the Florida Citrus Exchange in proportion to his production.

There are no stockholders, no dividends or individual profits, no initiation fees or dues in the Florida Citrus Exchange. You can become a member if you will but cooperate. Consult the manager of the nearest association or sub-Exchange or write the business manager at Tampa, Florida.

MIXING CEMENT WITH SOIL NEW IDEA IN ROAD BUILDING

Mixing cement with certain types of soil to alter the characteristics of the soils and make them more suitable for road surfacing and subgrades is an experiment recently conducted by the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture, which is now proving its value in actual use. The treatment was first suggested and tried out at the Arlington experimental station of the bureau. Results warranted a field test, and it was arranged with the California state highway department to try it on the adobe soil there.

A part of a federal aid project in Colano county was selected for the test. The dry soil was well broken up and harrowed to a depth varying from six to 12 inches and mixed with cement in the proportions of one part cement to ten parts soil and one part cement to 20 parts soil. It was intended to water and roll the surface, but rain prevented. One section was allowed to remain untreated for purposes of comparison.

A recent inspection showed that the untreated section was badly broken up due to the usual shrinkage cracks characteristic of adobe soils. The treated sections were in good condition and showed no shrinkage cracks. The treatment is not intended to make a hard surface like concrete, but to alter the properties of the soil so that it will be stable and lessen the effects of moisture.

California plans to conduct additional experiments, which will be observed in detail by the bureau and cost data obtained.

TWENTY-NINE CO-OPERATE

Twenty-nine states are now co-operating with the United States department of agriculture in estimating crops and live stock.

EASY WAY OF RIDDING ROSES OF SAWFLY LARVAE

The foliage of roses is very frequently attacked by sawfly larvae, which feed upon the leaves and cause the bushes to become unsightly and weakened, or at least much less beautiful and ornamental, says the United States department of agriculture.

Three common species of sawfly larvae eat the leaves of roses, and are found in many parts of the United States east of the Rocky Mountains. They are easy to control. Knocking them some distance from the bush with a stream of water is a simple remedy. Since they eat the leaf tissue, thoroughly spraying the leaves with a stomach poison, such as three rounded teaspoonsful of powdered arsenate of lead to one gallon of water whenever the larvae begin to appear will kill them and thus prevent the injury.

If only one generation of the insect occurs, as in the European rose slug, one or two sprayings should effect control; but if there is more than one generation, as with the curled rose worm and the bristly rose slug, a closer watch will have to be kept upon the bushes and spraying done more often.

KEEPING THE BEST CALVES FOR REPLACING OLD STOCK

While calves from low producing cows are saved to maintain the herds on some farms, on other farms and in other sections, where higher producing cattle are kept, calves from 300-pound cows by pure-bred bulls are often vealed because no market is found for these dairy calves. This is an economic waste which, according to reports received by the United States department of agriculture, the extension organization of Coos county, Oregon, is striving to eliminate.

About 30 calves from the best stock in Coos county were saved last year by arrangements made with farm bureaus of other counties to take them when two weeks old at $12 a head, crated and delivered at the express office. Arrangements also were made recently for a representative of the Klamath county extension organization to spend 30 days locating new-born calves of good stock and finding a dairyman to feed them for two weeks before shipment to farmers in his own county.

The reports also say that calves two weeks old are shipped safely as far as 500 miles, or for 35 hours' travel; day-old calves can rarely be shipped.

ILLINOIS BOYS AND GIRLS BEGIN STRAWBERRY GROWING

Boys and girls' club members in 84 of the 102 Illinois counties have engaged in strawberry growing, according to reports received by the United States department of agriculture. This work has appealed mostly to the older members, from 15 to 25 years of age, the reason being that it is placed on a sound profitable basis. Thus far 740 boys and girls are raising strawberries, each having obtained from 100 to 1,000 plants last year. About 235,000 plants were of the Dunlap variety.

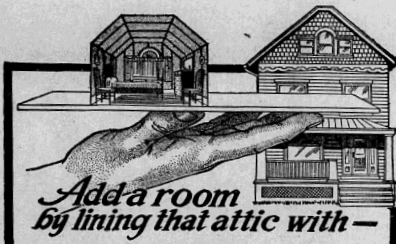

SHOULD CONSULT AUTHORITIES

While the careful housewife usually labels her jellies, jams, canned fruits, and vegetables for her own kitchen information, the United States department of agriculture suggests that if she intends to sell any of her products she should consult the state food authorities as to the regulations concerning weight or measure and ingredients and the proper labels to be used.

PLENTY OF TWINE

Each harvest season approximately 200,000,000 pounds of binder twine is used in binding the small grain crops of the United States.

Earned Capital Is Best

"FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN THE HANDS OF A MAN STARTING IN BUSINESS IS NOT NEARLY SO MUCH OF AN ASSET IF IT WAS INHERITED, AS IF IT WAS THE RESULT OF FRUGALITY AND SAVING ON THE PART OF THE MERCHANT HIMSELF.
