

BOND ISSUE IN CITY MAY REACH TOTAL $200,000

FIFTY-FOOT STREET MAY REPLACE WESTWARD MALL EXTENSION

Discussion of a bond issue for various city improvements at a meeting around a total of close to $200,000 for various necessary items including mall extension, golf links, community

The widening of West Main street to fifty feet and the installation of a sidewalk would mean an assessment of approximately $6.00 per front foot against the property, Justice said. He said that with curb and gutter the assessment would be about $4 per front foot.

New housing will require $40,000, an estimated and accurate total for 225 units, says the city engineer. The city's new house will cost $15,000, a gold link (ends for which will be taken care of by the city) from place to place. The cost $35,000, and the extension of the main $30,000. The Park investment company has a lot in the lot in front of the old West side to $1,000; the Standard Oil Co. has a lot in front of the old West side, half, $6,000; E. M. Brick asks $12,000 for his 200 feet this side of the old West side. The city engineer says the National Company wants $27,000 for the "old corner." It is planned to hold half the Brick lot for sale and the other half extension. The values at that end and it is figured that the half can be sold for as much as the cost of the extension.

Further discussion is planned this coming week.

due to the lack of space for a complete gathering of pupils. The members of each grade will be placed in the room of the corresponding grade, and each child is requested to report to the room which his report card entitles him to enter. In the case of doubtful placings, the superintendent will bring the matter. Mr. Wilkins is requested to report to the superintendent his report card, to facilitate proper placing.

It is urged upon the parents to insist upon punctuality and regularity in attending school, and to endeavor to demoralize the work of the pupil. Mr. Wilkins is delighted to see the city, and hopes to accomplish

AUNT JINNY LEE'S PLANTATION RECIPES

It's about time appetites and digestions were given a little rest after all the holiday fixin's. Lowly, but they did cram down the goodies! Our boys can't even look anything fancy or rich. They're willing enough to eat plain foods now. Here's a nice little recipe for a simple milk sponge cake which they seem to enjoy: You beat the yolks of two eggs until thick, then add half a cup of sugar slowly, beating continually. Next add 6 tablespoons of hot milk (sweet) and another half cup of sugar and the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Add flavoring and 1 cup of sifted self-rising flour. Bake in an ungreased pan for about 25 minutes. Have oven moderately hot.

A Good One-Egg Cake
And Madge says she knows another good recipe for a simple cake that folk'll like. It only takes one egg and she makes it this way: Cream a fourth cup of butter, add one-half cup of sugar gradually and an egg well beaten. Next add one and a half cups of sifted self-rising flour and a half cup of sweet milk alternately. Bake the mixture for 25 minutes in buttered tin. This makes nice little individual cakes too when baked in gem pans.

PHILLIPS MAKES PLEA FOR STATE GAME-FISH LAW

PROTECTION FOR WILD LIFE BY STATE IS ESSENTIAL

State laws for protection of game and fish are essential, according to Cecil L. Phillips, state field agent Florida Game and Fish Protective Association, who was here and in Sebring, last week.

"The representative Witherington, of Orange County, in the 'Apoka' Chief' wrote me: 'I was gratified during the last Legislature to find almost a universal sentiment among the members from various counties favoring game, fish and wild life preservation,'" says Mr. Phillips.

"Since the last session of the Legislature this sentiment has been steadily growing stronger and stronger throughout the state of Florida.

"In my travels over the State in the interest of the Florida Game and Fish Protective Association, I find considerable anxiety shown by thoughtful people over the danger of the extermination of wild life that is such a valuable asset to our fair State, as well as one of the greatest attractions to the pleasure-seeker and red-blooded sportsman.

"There is one element in the fight for the conservation, protection and perpetuation of Florida's fresh water fish and wild game life that must be overcome in a sane and tolerant manner, and that is the idea that local laws are of more benefit than a State-wide bureau of protection.

"This change of local opinion to State-wide authority will be slow in coming about unless the State press takes this most important matter in hand and gradually but surely educates the masses into the full light and advantage of State-wide protection.

"It is impossible to accomplish anything in the way of conservation, protection and perpetuation of fresh water fish or wild game life by a few individuals scattered here and there, and lasting benefits can only come from an organization formed in every county throughout Florida.

"To make the fight for the conservation of our wild life a permanent success, each organized county unit must affiliate with the State Association.

"Article III, Section 2 of the Constitution and By-Laws of the Florida Game and Fish Protective Association reads: 'Each County Association affiliating with this Association (State Association) shall pay to this Association (State Association) an annual per capita tax of fifty cents for each active dues-paying member of such County Association, said per capita tax to be accepted by each County Association.' This entitles every county unit for each twenty-five up members a delegate to the State Convention to be held in St. Petersburg, Florida, October 7, 1924. By this time it is expected that every county in the State of Florida will have perfected a County Association. And that each county will send to this annual convention at least three delegates. Then with delegates from each county and every section of Florida it will be an easy task to formulate constructive legislation in the interest of wild game life satisfactory to the entire State.

"Let us remember the larger the membership of every County Association, the more influence it will exert in molding public sentiment in favor of strict adherence to all game laws.

"Politics is the dominant force of all popular legislation. This potent power has to be considered. It cannot be reckoned with by a few individuals. It will turn a listening ear to the voice of one or two and then forget. But when demands come from numbers and a big organization, legislators begin to sit up and take notice; they realize that it is high time for them to awake to the demands of the hour, and that it is to their interest to listen to the voice of the people.

"At the last session of the Legislature hundreds of telegrams were wired to Senators and Representatives. A State-wide game bill passed the Senate but died on the House Calendar. This game bill died in the House because it is more emphatic than the pleasure-seeker and red-blooded sportsman.

"One writer has correctly said, 'Contrary to the opinion of some people all office holders are not personally against game legislation, but they have followed the line of least resistance because it is more emphatic. Many actually believe while making their campaign trips that the majority are against game laws and conservation because they hear more from that side and decide to cater to the majority.'"

"After having traveled thousands of miles throughout Florida, speaking here and there and interviewing hundreds of voters and citizens, we have learned from personal observation and experience that the Florida Game and Fish Protective Association is steadily progressing in fish and wild game protection. I find that more hunting licenses have been sold than in previous years, and that a wholesome regard for a legal limit is being resented.

"I am more and more convinced that the Florida Game and Fish Protective Association affiliating with the State Association is the surest and quickest way to change public opinion that encourages game violations.

"I am of the opinion that a one hundred per cent American, a patriotic man, a law-abider, a red-blooded sportsman will never destroy all of our game and fish.

"The main factor in the wanton destruction of our fresh water fish and wild game is the market hunter, the dynamiter and seiner. Along with these destructive elements is the night hunter who takes up the law and forgets to uphold the game laws but forget and kill more than is entitled to, or more than the legal limit.

"Woe to the influence of any Game Association whose members violate their sacred pledge in the woods after game.

"It is simply astonishing to find the amount of wild game life in Florida as I have recently seen. But if the reports are true, that hunting parties are killing eight and ten deer and twenty wild turkeys within a three day hunt, then there is gross violation of law; a disregard for the rights and privileges of others, as well as a wanton destruction of wild life. Nothing less than a state game deputies backed up by live wire county and state associations will ever systematically and efficiently regulate the taking of fresh water fish and wild game.

"The sanest way, in my opinion, to conserve, protect and perpetuate our wild game life is by state and not mere words. To always remember that our brother sportsman is entitled to a just share of all game and fish is the slogan of the Florida Game and Fish Protective Association.

"If every true and loyal sportsman will obey the laws and kill his allowance, and not exceed the legal limit, if the dynamiter, seiner and market hunter will stop their wanton destruction, our wild game and fresh water fish will forever be with us.

"We must all remember: That in a great Democracy of free people, the protection of wild game and the preservation of all other natural resources which underlie national prosperity and happiness must depend finally as does the stability of the government itself upon the support, and willing service of their citizenry."

Sallie's Temptations

Mr. Wright becomes acquainted. Although he had meant to be perfectly good about delivering the message, Father and Mr. Wright both heard Johnson's words. There must be a complex in every woman for occupying the center of the stage, for even though I knew the message was bad form it thrilled me to have someone clamoring for my presence.

I apologized and left the table. It was Ted. "Come on, Sallie, the gang's outside," he said enthusiastically. "We're going on a party out at Yates and give Alma's dance the air. Make it snappy, we've got thornos bottles and gin-seven-a-victrola. It's moonlight and we'll have a swim later on."

"Sorry, Ted, but I can't make it this time," I began, "I'm having dinner with Dad and one of his friends."

"Never mind that home-body stuff, ditch 'em, Sallie. You're the life of the party. We couldn't think of leaving you behind." He dragged me by the hand.

I shook my head, remembering Marjorie's date.

"Now, come on Sallie, I'll call up your date and fix it with Paul. You aren't going to break up a party, are you?" He begged me.

"You always are."

Ted was on the right track now. I adored being called a good sport. Why not go? I argued. Dad would probably get on business or politics and then I wouldn't have a chance to see Mr. Wright alone. I could hear the rest of the crowd laughing and calling me to come on down.

I made up my mind.

Running back to the dining-room. I exclaimed, "I hate to be rude, but they've come for me to go to the house and I'll have to leave."

"But Sallie, what about the dance?" asked Father, pushing back his chair.

"I'll be back in a minute and I'll see you certainly in business and he will certainly expect you to be there."

"There's no use talking like that, Father, and what do I care, if the Davises do not want to go to the dance? I'll be back in a minute and I'll see you certainly in business and he will certainly expect you to be there."

"Oh, very well then, Father, let's not have a scene," I concluded and hurried to my room. If I could change in a flash I would have been in the car.

"I'll be back in a minute and I'll see you certainly in business and he will certainly expect you to be there."

PROGRESS

We rode and tossed o'er sandy roads With ruts to snow the way, And now and then were rough abodes All weather beaten, gray.

We rode along the farthest edge For sand and mud were deep, And brushed against palmetto hedge With Amunition, fast asleep!

The rushing of a buzzard fowl Would often whirl the air; Sometimes a dog would sound his howl, Because we passed his lair.

A sandy road—forgive the name! Our wheels spun deep and fast And whispered words were far from same. E'er progress came, at last.

Today, we rode the same old way, And o'er asmoother paved road; Where ruts and sand had held their sway Were cars, with lead on load.

And now, along this paved highway, New Homes came into sight, And each rough and old abode, Was decked in cleanest white!

And by the way, were many trees, Of fruits, and flowers bright, Broad lawns, and folks in ease, With shade, and palm, and light; And long that crooked sandy way— That road of yesterday.

We rode with joy and peace, today, For PROGRESS, now is here— F. P. B.

Thrifty Tips FOR THE HOME

by J. C.

Straw Matting—Sponge straw matting with strong salt water. Coconut matting should be well beaten, scrubbed with warm water and salt, rinsed, and then hung in the open air to dry.

Windows—When windows are hard to open, rub the cords with soap, and the sashes will run smoothly.

Onions—When cooking onions a little vinegar placed on the stove in an earthen jar will prevent the smell getting through the house.

Adhesive Tape—To remove adhesive tape from the skin, saturate a sponge with benzine, wash the tape with it, and it can be pulled off without any trouble.

Meringue—If a teaspoonful of water is added after the sugar is beaten in, your meringue will be very light. A pinch of baking powder added while beating is also very good.

Starch—If a few shavings of candle are added to starch, the clothes will shine and be very easily ironed.

Mahogany—If washed with vinegar or cold tea, all spots will disappear and mahogany will look like new.

Sink—If a lump of kitchen salt is kept in the sink, it will keep the pipes and sink clean.

Enamel Utensils—When enamel kitchen utensils appear hopelessly ruined after food has been burned in them, place a mixture of strong soda powder in them and allow to stand three or four days without changing the water. Then pour the water off and rub with a soft cloth. All the blackness will disappear. Do not scrape before soaking as the enamel will crack.

Yarns—Yarns can be thoroughly shrunk when in the skeins, and then will not shrink when the article made from it is washed. Place the skein in a vegetable steamer on a plate. When dry, it will be soft and fluffy, and it will be unshrinkable.

REMOVAL FROM GRASS FROM LAKEFRONT URGED ON SEBRING COUNCIL

Grass removal from the lake front was the main issue at the noonday luncheon meeting of the Sebring Board of Trade Friday. The committee was appointed by the chair at the previous meeting held last week, and consisting of T. V. Conway, John E. Graham and W. N. Hires, reported to the members what they had said to the board of governors at their Wednesday evening meeting, regarding the costs and methods of removal.

Mr. Conway, the chairman, said that three feasible ways were offered, first cutting by sickle close to the roots, and removing the cut grass, second, by plowing it, an uncertain way at best, owing to the sandy bottom; third by spading and burning it.

He was heartily in favor of the latter, as this would be a permanent job, while the burning would not be an annual necessity. The cost of cutting had been estimated at $200, while that of spading was approximately $1,400, the acreage between ten and twelve acres.

John E. Graham, a member of the committee, advocated the cutting of the grass. He signed that one cutting a year would suffice to keep it down, and would, he believed, eventually kill it. The $1,400 would be low for several years' cutting, and the payment would be extended over a number of years.

If it should be found unsatisfactory, he said, the spading could be undertaken at a later date, and in the meantime the city would not have expended much money, and would have been free from the menace of the grass.

W. J. Amy, speaking with authority from the council, said that because the grass had become a menace to health, because of the stagnant water that stood back of it, and the fertile breeding places for mosquitoes, the council would pay a fair price for immediate removal, the only condition being that it was closely cut and entirely removed from the beach and the water.

Some consideration was given to the suggestion offered by P. D. Moore that it might be possible to cut it by attaching a special shaped blade to a power boat. He had seen this done successfully in Orange County, he said. The trades body then passed a resolution recommending to the council that it might be possible to cut it by the method of the power boat.

The matter of changing the meeting from noon to a time that might prove more convenient to the majority of the members was brought up by various of the members present. The final decision reached placed these meetings on the second and fourth Tuesday evenings in each month. The nature of the meetings was left over for further discussion, and they will probably be varied, some being smokers, others dinners at the hotels in the city.

BOWDEN TELLS SEBRING ROTARIANS HOW FORDS SELL

Basil Bowden, local automobile dealer, was the main speaker at the noonday luncheon meeting of the Sebring Rotary Club, held at the length on the morning of the sale of Ford cars, as an example of what might be accomplished by the Sebring Rotary Club.

The talk was full of pertinent suggestions which might be employed in any line of business. Musical program was rendered by Mrs. Willis Bryson, who sang several songs, and accompanied herself. She also accompanied the Rotarians during their musical numbers.

STREET INTERSECTIONS TO BE ASSESSED AGAINST PROPERTY IN BLOCKS ADJOINING

Costs of street intersections are to be assessed against the property in the various blocks adjacent, the city council has decided and the engineer is including these costs in the estimates.

The council re-affirmed its stand and valley gutters for storm drainage and instructed the engineer to have these placed wherever he found it necessary.

The revised assessments were considered and the Florida Public Service Corporation was reduced from $25,000 to $10,000, which is double last year's assessment and A. P. Henry's west half of 14, block 3, was reduced from $5,000 to $2,500. J. L. Cloud, A. E. Connelley and J. V. Chapman were named a committee to have the flagpole painted at a cost of not to exceed $25.

WINIFRED BRYSON'S COURAGE HELPED HER IN "BROKEN BARRIERS"

Winifred Bryson, the statuesque English beauty who plays the radical lecturer on marriage in Reginald Barker's "Broken Barriers," the Metro picture which comes to the theatre on Sept. 11, exhibits such perfect poise both on the screen and off that she creates surprise when she tells of her first stage experience.

Her beauty had won her a role in Cyril Maude's company in London, but she had such violent stage fright that she could not utter a word in disgrace, but vowed that she would build up her nerve to a state where she would not be afraid of anything. For two years thereafter, she lived out of doors and fore-sware tea and coffee, and anything that might overstimulate her. When she returned to the stage she found her fight won, and her self-possession has never left her.

MUTUAL MILL TRAVE BOARD
BUYS 40,000 M WOULD LET
FEET TIMBER PEOPLE DECIDE

Extending the life of the big Mutual Crate Company's mill here for another seven years, purchase of approximately 100 acres of pine land here has been concluded by the directors of that concern and the DeCade Pine Lumber Company. The pine timber was sold by the Pittsburgh-Florida Fruit Growers Association, which is a company that owns 100-acre tract that lies just southeast of the city.

The tract is only about one mile from the Florida Western and Northern's new line which runs by the big mill here. The tract is well suited for transportation facilities for the handling of the tract.

The tract is one of the best timber

Commission-manager form of government was the principal topic of discussion at yesterday's meeting of the city council. The proposition, as heard upon for the first time, has been given to the public in a petition in circulation asking the council to take an election on that question may be decided by the people themselves.

The council came up following a brief discussion of publicity incident to the activities of the town council. The council then took up the speeding charges, and the talk of city limits extension based on the town council's decision.

Norton Smith, who lives just across the line said that he would bodies left in thicket and adjoined on the northeast, the 4,900-acre tract was a "wilderness" of "timber-choked" land. The timber was being chased for colonization purposes. The fruit growers association retains the land and probably will open it for farming as rapidly as the timber is cut. However, the timber has been 20 years off, as the Mutual has timber left in the tract it is operating in at present for three or four more years and is not contemplated to work the land itself.

The purchase of this tract assures the future of the Avon grade mill here for ten to fifteen years longer, as the Avon already has holdings to timber on 100,000 acres.

The two mills have a pay-roll of 100,000,000,000,000,000,000 annually, so that timber tracts inuring ten years of operation mean in the end 100,000,000,000,000,000,000 pay-roll for Avon Park.

Both the big mills have been under the management of the first grade payroll of the new season will be distributed.

The petitions are being circulated by the Avon grade mill, and the number of signatures are secured will be presented to the council. The name of the charter board, this board

A party of prospective buyers, consisting of A. A. Johns, A. Maxey and G. A. Ruhl, motored to Sebring yesterday afternoon to look over the local light and water plant. They were met by a representative of the press, and conducted to the light and water office where W. J. Amy, a member of the city council who has been one of the prime movers in the purchase and rehabilitation of the plant, took them in charge. G. A. Nash, secretary of the chamber of commerce, motored the party to the plant, where a thorough inspection was made. The 200 h. p. crude oil engine was in operation during the visit, and a good demonstration of its ability was given. The earnings, disbursements, the proposed new features, in fact, every phase of the manufacture of electricity and the distribution of water was explained by Mr. Amy. The visitors were surprised to learn that the light plant earned $14,000 over and above its running expenses last year, which was its first year of municipal ownership. Every cent of this, Mr. Amy added, had been put back into the plant.

The fall term of the University of Florida will open with Highland County better represented than ever before. Four of Avon Park's young men will take up work there next week and with four enrolling from Sebring also makes a total of eight, the largest representation ever sent from the county to the University.

The prospective students from the Park are Ellis Wray, C. R. Ginn, Frances Shockley and Ridegley Todd, those from Sebring are Gerald Bee, John Warren, Alfred Varena and Harold Hammar.

the people and showed them how to use it. In other words, a reward service will never be collected by the man who renders a service unless he puts forth efforts which entitle him to that reward.

A man who builds a small fire in a corner of a room can warm only himself, said the speaker, but the man who builds a large fire in the center of the room can warm everybody there. The reward follows the service, and is in proportion to it.

He gave his own interpretation the Rotary motto, "He profits most who serves" the most people. He mentioned incidentally the development of interior Florida, and the contrast between the actual state of affairs and what the average Northerner thinks of Florida. Never, he asserted, had he seen such beautiful towns, or such intelligent cultivation of the soil. Florida, in this respect, is like the mouse trap, and Floridians like the maker of mouse traps.

Development is going forward here more rapidly and more efficiently than anywhere else. But if Indians are willing to sit complacently by and contemplate the greatness of their achievements, they will reap the reward they might by going out to tell the world about them. Only by showing to the world what can be done here can the ultimate reward be gained.

In closing he said, the thing he would urge upon Rotarians was to forget what Rotary has done in the past, and to concentrate on the services to be rendered in the future. After the conclusion of this address which was thoroughly enjoyed, some routine business was transacted. Entertainment committeemen, one each were appointed for the next eleven meetings.

The report of the committee which met with the Sebring committee was

GAMES AND GOODIES

Some evening when you are all sitting cozy around the living room have someone start the story of "The Long Gray Beard." Whoever is the best story teller in the crowd can say "Today I met an old man with a long gray beard" and from there on proceed to weave a story about the old man with the long gray beard, repeating the "long gray beard" as much as possible. Then breaking off suddenly he must call the name of some other person in the room and tell him to take up the story where it was left off. Each person in turn must add his part to the story still making it about the old man with the long gray beard. Some funny stories will result.

Fudge Squares to Nibble
You must have some goodie to nibble while you're telling the tale of "The long gray beard" so try-fudge squares, they're so delicious and "nibbly." They are made like this:

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons melted butter
1-3 cup sweet milk
2 squares melted chocolate
1 cup self-rising flour
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/2 tablespoon vanilla

Beat the egg until thick, add sugar slowly. Then add melted butter, milk, melted chocolate, sifted flour, walnuts and vanilla. Spread thin in shallow pan and bake about 20 minutes.

GETTING HISTORICAL MAP

The work of preparing information for the Florida historical map to be published by the American Automobile Association is well under way and much interesting data has been collected for that purpose, but there are additional historical events of interest which have not been reported. Every person is urged to promptly send location of historical events of date of same to the Florida Development Board, so the published map can be used as a standard of history in schools and libraries.
