

MINISTER RETURNS TO COLLEGE
Rev. W. E. Smith, who has filled the pastorate of the Sebring Presbyterian Church during the summer, left Monday evening for Columbia

S. C., where he will enter Columbia Seminary for his last year. General regret was expressed at his departure, and the good wishes of the entire congregation will follow him. Rev. H.

A. Brown formerly of Virginia, now of this city, will fill the pulpit until the return of the regular pastor, Rev. William Schmitt, who has spent the summer at Bushkill, Pa.

SEBRING

Dr. Frank Cammock returned to this city last week after an extended visit with his family in Iowa. His son, Seymour Cammock returned with him, and the rest of the family will follow as soon as Mrs. Cammock recovers from her recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Bates, formerly of this city, and Mrs. Elton Meason, and child, with others in the party, have left Falconer, N. Y., and are motoring to Sebring where they expect to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Fish have returned from an extensive trip through the north, and have opened up their home on Magnolia avenue for the winter.

Dr. L. H. Shumate of Oldsmar, who returned to this city Friday for a visit, left Monday with H. O. Sebring for the South Shore Farms at Ritta

BUSY TWELVE FINISH SUMMER SEASON IN "WHIRL OF ORATORY"

The "Busy Twelve" completed their summer social calendar with a luncheon Thursday noon at the Nances-oree. The tables were beautifully laid, and vases of fall flowers added to their attractiveness.

After the delicious meal, and the place cards which were cleverly illustrated, each one bearing a jingle descriptive of the one named, the work of the co-hostesses, Miss Nina Brunk and Miss Emilie Auslund, after the delicious meal, had been served, two burlesque addresses were made, which were greeted with a continuous ripple of laughter.

Miss Mary Cornelia Saunders who is returning this week to resume her studies at the State College for Women spoke on "Why I Have Been a Success in Business." In all mock seriousness, closely imitating the mannerisms of the typical "success speaker," she advised her sister workers if they would emulate her rapid advance, to never let business interfere with pleasure, or to work on Thursday afternoon.

SCHAEFER CLOTHES SAVE

"Golden Rule" Nash, famous the world over as the man who made the Golden Rule his highway to millions has bought a large interest in the Schaefer-Weedon Tailoring Company and the firm is now known as the Schaefer Tailoring Company.

He is taking to this concern the same ideals that made him the most talked of—and the most prosperous—clothing manufacturer in the world.

Initiating new policies of business, he proposes to sell to the retailer for CASH ONLY and that the retailer shall sell for CASH ONLY and that

You Shall Pocket the Difference

There will be no traveling salesmen and order takers. We will measure you right here and into the suit you buy, "Golden Rule" Nash and Mr. Schaefer will put the money it would have cost to send a measure-taker here.

Those who have learned to "bank" on Schaefer quality even in the days of credits and traveling measure-takers, will prove our best advertisements under this new plan, for they will find the same quality suits that cost them $52, the last time "Smitty" was here, will cost only $39 this time and the only difference will be the absence of "Smitty's" engrossing smile and the credit feature.

Have you registered?

Haines City puts $5,000 into the municipal budget for its park.

A little dressing up doesn't make a city any more than it makes a man. But, Oh, how it helps.

Sixteen inches from the floor is the Federal citrus code. And that is only four inches above the foot.

What's the use of attempting to make better citizens out of the people and look if they're to serve life imprisonment?

It doesn't take much to put your fingers on the fastest growing cities in Florida. Just count the eighteen hole golf courses.

If cigarette smoking among women doesn't do anything but eliminate the wall flower hazard of the ballroom the fad will not have been in vain.

About the biggest joke of the season is the Federal citrus code. Their "finger" of 22,000,000 boxes isn't more than 6,000,000 boxes over the facts.

Haines City, La. Wales, Frost-proof and Sebring have voted bonds for parks, golf links, playgrounds and other public improvements. Only Avon Park is absent.

We met a millionaire cotton king in Savannah at the Rotary meeting. He's coming to Sebring this year. And we wonder if his remark means anything to some folks in Avon Park.

When some of these guys slip up quietly and whisper a lot of bunk about something, just ask them why they don't get out and tell it in the light of day. Anything that's the truth will stand full daylight.

There hasn't been much hullabaloo to the board of trade's efforts to get a home building campaign started, but it is progressing probably a bit faster than some of those mass meetings we read about.

Warden at Joliet says he won't put Leeb and Leopold in the same section with the hardened criminals. Now that's fine, and gives us some hope for rebuilding the character of the hardened criminals.

If the girls thought they would get ahead of men by raising the skirt to sixteen inches from the floor this fall, they have only to watch the male elite to discover that he is rapidly beating them to it.

Passed through Waldo the other day where the Seaboard has round house, turntable and shops. All this hasn't made a city, and won't make one here either. It takes live wires to do that trick, so let's all get busy.

Those folks who say woman is about to change her mind again and put the kibosh on bobbed hair styles have forgotten that it takes an exception to prove all rules even that which discards woman's mind.

It requires three pages in the Sarasota Times to advertise the list of assessments increased by the county commissioners of that county. And we don't see everybody turning away in horror—some folks here lead us to believe.

MORALLY BOUND TO AID! "You have us bound legally," General Manager Jones of the Florida Public Service Company is quoted as saying regarding the paying for fire hydrants, as he admitted the city doesn't have to pay for them. But he added "there is a moral obligation that you pay something for them" or words to that effect.

Admitted, Mr. Jones. And further we admit that we believe a moral obligation more binding than legal obligation.

But how about the Florida Public Service Company's moral obligations to Avon Park.

For six or seven months you have been collecting for water that local consumers couldn't drink. Hundreds of local consumers have been using the lake water only for bathing and similar purposes, trudging blocks with heavy pails and pans of water for drinking purposes.

Legally, you have us. We have to pay that minimum rate. But to paraphrase your own remarks—"you owe us a moral obligation."

And certainly you will not call available any water that you wish to supply laborers, black and white, bath at the end of a day's hard work; water in which a negro minister baptizes his flock while the drinkers look on; water in which cows and other animals bathe; water polluted by sewage from open toilets along the lake's shore.

These laboratory tests claim that water is 100 per cent pure. But so water from a septic tank after it has passed through 75 feet of tile.

We don't believe you would drink water just because a chemist says it is 100 per cent pure.

And again, we admit that we believe a moral obligation is more respected by honorable men than the legal obligation. It's up to you.

A NATION-WIDE CONFIDENTIAL POLL. A public interest survey will center in this vote now being taken throughout the country by approximately 1,700 weekly newspaper publishers with a view to giving to their readers the political thought now prevailing in the great cities will make this result closely, for they have come to know that elections are decided not by the cave dwellers of the metropolis but in the homes and farms on the country where the great majority of the American people live and have their being, receiving American thought, American character, American influence, and influenced by dramatic and serious patriotic appeal.

This test vote will be published by all kinds and conditions of newspapers. Readers of these 1,700 newspapers will cast the ballots and the results will be read by Republicans, Democrats and Progressives alike.

Unless all precedent is meaningless the results are likely to cause considerable astonishment in several sections of the country where the three candidates for the presidency are supposed to have a one hundred per cent strangle hold on public favor.

Not in years, if ever, has there been a political situation so complicated as that which exists this year. The most acute of political students are perplexed to a point where even the strong partisans amongst them freely admit they do not know what will happen in November. Partisan newspapers naturally publish news agreeable to their cause, and there is a sufficient amount of this kind of news which is quite truthful to satisfy the needs of any newspaper.

Whether it be the La Follette or the La Follette. The secret test ballot of the millions living in the small towns, villages and hamlets is more of an indication of the way the mind is blowing.

WE CAN DO IT! Haines City will run its city government next year on sixteen mills and provide $5,000 for public purposes. The budget system used there is the matter in plain black and white.

Take the list of requirements that came up with the Haines City budget and the ought to be done list and you have same here. There should be no great variation.

If we will pay Haines City to advertise $5,000 worth, it will pay Avon Park. The assessed valuations are approximately the same.

We must do it. MAYBE WE'RE AN OPTIMIST! We are carrying a story this week telling of Haines City putting $5,000 for publicity into the municipal budget.

Perhaps some of these poor fish who have been trying to charge us with "advertising Sebring" will now believe from the houseposts about our advertising Haines City.

It is just going against the grain of the human soul to print bad news. We just like to boost. Boosting is second nature with us, and if we can't boost the same town, then we'll boost a neighboring town. Maybe, we are an optimist. We hope so.

It isn't our fault, we have to boost Haines City for the foresightfulness of her council. We'd much rather put a six column streamer across the first page of The Pilot saying it was Avon Park councilmen budgeting $5,000 for publicity.

We just have to boost something, so if the council will give us something like this to boost, we'll show you how to spread Avon Park like you'd love to see it spread.

Just give us a chance! WORTHWHILE EXPANSION. For twenty months The Pilot has been trying to impress merchants that Highlands county people will buy high grade merchandise at home if it is sold at home—and by high grade we mean the many fancy extras and so-called luxuries which they have been going to Tampa to buy.

Certainly it is gratifying to us to find Ott and Son carrying out our idea—and we believe to successful fruit.

This store today invites the people of the Sebring Highlands to a fall opening showing of merchandise in the building which has never been shown in this section before.

There are all the new fancy textiles, in all the favorite weaves of silk and woolens. And had an opportunity to compare them we want to admit that even a staid scribe who spent twenty odd years of his life in Tampa, found the showing delightful and prices equal or lower than in Tampa.

For the first time, we believe on the Ridge, a store is offering a display of ready-to-wear that compares with anything in Tampa—and only one dress of a kind in the entire lot. This eliminates the embarrassment—and the women claim it is embarrassing—of finding the same kind of dress on her next door neighbor's cousin a couple of days after buying the dress.

It is expansion of this kind that contributes most to city building and to the comfort and thrift of our people, enabling them as it does, to save gasoline bill and tire wear required by a trip to Tampa.

ROUGH ROAD AHEAD OF GREEN FRUIT SHIPPED NORTH A warning to Florida growers and shippers that shipments of immature grapefruit and oranges will not command the usual high prices and will cause lower citrus market values for the balance of the year, is contained in a telegram received by the Florida Citrus Exchange from Errol M. Zorn, the district sales manager at New York.

Mr. Zorn's wire reads: "The marketing of immature fruit from Florida at the beginning of last season was largely responsible for the disastrous prices the growers received up until the middle of the shipping year."

The growers and shippers of Florida should remember that any prejudice is difficult to overcome, and a prejudice is magnified by excessive shipments of green fruit, the sales resistance is increased proportionately. When a consumer buys a hard, sour orange or grapefruit, a customer is lost for a considerable time. If five boxes are sold instead of one, five times as many customers are out of the market.

This year the California Valencia orange crop is large, and late Porto Rico grapefruit is of exceptionally good quality. Competitive fruits are also plentiful.

HIGHLANDS COMMENT

Building the Metropolis—Laurel Star-Telegram: Avon Park is feeling out public sentiment in that community on the proposal to adopt the commission-manager form of city government. The Park would be a leader on The Ridge if it should decide to make the change. It is noteworthy that many of the leading citizens, some of them members of the present council, are advocates of the new method of government. Avon Park is also considering an extension of its city limits, all preparatory to a big program of further development.

Watch Frostproof's Smoke—Laurel Star-Telegram: Congratulations are due Frostproof because of the validation by Judge John S. Edwards of its bond issue of $340,000, passed several months ago in connection with a municipal program which includes paved streets, sidewalks, sewers and parks and other frills that go along with a real town.

From now on Frostproof says, "Watch our smoke." Beautifying Our Roads—Florida Times-Union: At least three miles of the state road between Avon Park and Frostproof will be beautified this fall, announces the Avon Park Pilot. Australian oaks are to be planted at intervals of seventy-five feet, with hibiscus between and crimson bougainvillea planted on the fences. This work is in the hands of various committees, and the Woman's club of Avon Park, and when it is completed will be one of the most attractive stretches of road in the entire state.

Ridge Leads Way—Florida Times-Union: Down in The Ridge section of the state they are holding public meetings for discussion of reorganization, something that the voters are going to insist, stronger than ever, it appears.

No Summer Worries—Florida Times-Union: Avon Park is experiencing no dull season, according to the Avon Park Pilot, which says: "Heralded dull times through the summer following the poor citrus season seems to have been sidetracked somewhere north of Avon Park, the scenic Highlands valley city, where various operations this summer are turning loose approximately $75,000 every two weeks for labor and bulk supplies, and as a result Main street and the Mall section show no signs by day or night of a slack season. The Pilot gives a list of the various industries whose payrolls are bringing in added trade to the city, and the list is a long one. With money and trade coming into a town at this rate given by the Pilot, Avon Park need have no summer business worries."

A la Avon Park—Florida Times-Union: A number of Florida cities are widening their streets and otherwise beautifying them, some of them members of the present council, are advocates of the street making it a two-way drive and picturesque at the same time.

MARTIN MAY SPEAK HERE John W. Martin, governor-elect, will be the guest of the Avon Park Rotary Club at its regular weekly luncheon here Oct. 8, if he can find time to make his proposed trip to the beautification meeting in Tampa. Oct. 10, he writes President Gilbert Freeman of the local club. He is trying to arrange his business so as to be able to make the trip.

VAN METER MAKES BOND P. V. Van Meter, now of Mulberry, made bond in circuit court in Sebring Wednesday following return of an indictment charging him with desertion.

Play Fair With the Dealer and He'll Keep Pushing Florida Fruit

Money talks—and just as sweetly to the dealer handling your fruit as to you.

You CAN get a higher price for the first few shipments, even though the fruit is green. And the dealer who sells it may make a fine profit.

But the consumer, who pays that high price and finds poor fruit, is far from satisfied. He can't eat his fruit. And he tells the dealer about it in no uncertain terms.

Yes, money talks very sweetly to the dealer. He won't risk losing any more such valuable customers. He'll stop handling Florida fruit, first.

And all the advertising and sales effort of Florida won't convince such dealers that they can make money on the rest of the Florida crop.

The result? We lose dealers by the hundred. Are in danger of a poor season. And ALL growers have to foot the bill.

Don't ship green fruit. Let the dealer satisfy his customers. It pays.

Your fruit will be properly marketed if shipped as Seal of the Florida Citrus Exchange under that brand are Federal inspected. They are guaranteed by the Florida Citrus Exchange to conform to the spirit of the law.

Sallie's Temptations

Down by the Sea—and "Yates" I noticed Mr. Wright was not drinking.

After my second cocktail I inquired, "Did you see Yates?" "Yes," he said, "just take the curfew off of him. I wanted to know if he was up but he was not, and he did that because it was the greatest thing to do under the circumstances. With all the rest of the crowd looking to have earned me down would have been humiliating."

"Yates has an orchestra that makes him run all over me," I said to my good-looking escort. "It's wonderful. That saxophone would make anyone commit murder—or even worse."

"Come on," said and pulling at his arm started toward the room where they were dancing. They were playing a heavenly waltz. He danced, like I was afraid he would, in good time and perfect style, but without any of the latest variations.

I felt a warm glow of exhilaration. I glanced up at my partner, and he was the most distinguished dancer on the floor and I longed to have him hold me close.

The violins played the minor chords in "The Song of India," and I wanted to dance, dance as I had never danced before.

Ted broke on us. When Ted and I had danced half way across the floor the orchestra changed from the waltz it had been playing into an Argentine tango. The other dancers left the floor and we knew it meant an exhibition.

"Ted and Sallie, bravo!" shouted the others.

I glanced up at my partner many times at charity entertainments and they knew us so well at "Yates" that at least once during the evening they played the tango for us that they had called "Sallie's."

Ted's arm about my waist tightened and became an embrace. He was more like a lover of the fandangos, red-blooded, fiery and impassioned.

On we danced. We passed the darkened doorway and I saw Curtiss Wright standing in the shadows. Through the smoke of his cigarette I could see that his gaze was fastened on our movements, and yet his eyes held none of the admiration for which I had hoped. Rather, I saw there a look of indifferent amusement.

I stopped dancing. I don't know what it was, but a devil sat on my shoulder, spurring me on to live up to the things that Mr. Wright had heard about us.

"Come on, everybody," I called. "Let's all go swimming!"

"There," Ted signified his approval, "didn't I tell you Sallie was the life of the party and that when SHE got here things would start hummin'?"

I went over to where Mr. Wright was standing.

"I brought one of dad's suits along for you," I told him nonchalantly, "but maybe you disapprove of my taste. I assure you I'll be properly clothed. We are in the movies."

"On the contrary, you were very thoughtful to take such good care of a poor, friendless stranger, and there's nothing I'd like more than to swim with you in the ocean."

The crowd scattered.

"You see, I am at least within the law," I told him. "I have on three garments, two of which are stockings."

"I looked down at my chiffon hose which I had rolled half way down below my knees, but he touched by gray bandage."

"Wrong count," he smiled. "You've forgot the most becoming part of your attire."

We started toward the ocean. We could see the rest of the party, like dark moths on a bench which had been made into ivory satin by the moonlight. When half way down I caught my breath at the picture. The sand-dunes, bathed in white moon-dust, lay silent, warm and voluptuous. They stretched their undulating hills unendingly before us. Palm trees, silhouetted against the sky, made magic music and crooned seductively. I felt the time stopped quickly.

"Wait a minute," I caught the arm of my companion. "Let's not be in the water. Let's go up yonder." I suggested, pointing to the exquisite setting behind us.

ORANGES IN DIET OF THE UNDERWEIGHT

Milk and eggs are popularly supposed to be the chief hope of the underweight and undernourished child. But a recent investigation of various foods administered as a mid-morning snack to several groups of underweight children through two test periods of eight weeks each, one during the autumn months and one during the spring, demonstrated conclusively that milk is not the sole salvation of the underweight child. The experiment was conducted under Margaret S. Cheney, M. A., in Berkeley, Cal.

The results of this experiment in feeding are published in a recent bulletin by the American Medical Association, reprinted from the October, 1923, number of the American Journal of Diseases of Children.

Of the groups of children compared, one group was given milk and we Graham crackers as a mid-morning snack; another group was given lunch; another group was given either an orange or the freshly expressed juice of one orange; a third group was given one glass of bottled orangeade. The surprising result was that the orange group showed the greatest gain in weight, the orange-ade group the second best gain, while the milk group came in third.

One point considered is that the undernourished child frequently has an indifferent appetite and the milk produces a satiating effect, so that he does not care for his regular noon meal when it comes. The orange, on the other hand, while it has some food value is tonic and appetizing in its effect, so that the indifferent appetite is stimulated rather than satiated, and the child eats more heartily at regular meal times.—New York Sun.

AS SAFE AS A GOVERNMENT BOND is a remark we often hear, and this remark can well be applied to Avonol Park real estate, and will prove more profitable than government bonds, because of the rapid increase in value.

A nice lake front home, consisting of 2 acres in bearing grove and with a good 4-room house and near hard road for $4,000.00, terms.

6-room house and lot, close in, and house equipped with modern conveniences and fronting on paved street for $5,000.00, and on liberal terms.

A story and half bungalow and lot, fronting on paved street, house all modern and well located, for quick sale, $3,500.00, half cash, balance good terms.

One acre and cheap house, lot set to trees and just out of corporate limits, $1,000.00.

A 2 1/2 acre lot, fronting on clay street, an ideal home site, right near county road, and overlooking Lake Lotula for $2,000, half cash, balance terms. This can be sub-divided and made into 3 large lots, 100 by 300 feet.

I have some good prices on groves and vacant lots, also unimproved citrus lands, and will be glad to furnish information about same.

A Position of Trust

Both the banker and the druggist hold positions of trust in every community. The prescription in the hands of a druggist should be as inviolable as a check or other valuable papers in the hands of a banker. When you bring your prescriptions to this store you always get what the doctor ordered.

In these modern times the drug store has developed into a kind of a department store. We are still old-fashioned enough to consider our prescription department the most important feature of our business.

Come here and let us stock your medicine cabinet with simple home remedies. It may save you hundreds of times the expense. This you know—is the age of "Prevention" of sickness.
