They Learn from Southern Women

Touring Reporters, now conducting a Query among women of the South and West, report remarkable agreement as to the benefits secured by users of CARDUI.

Of the 1297 users who were asked: "Were you helped by CARDUI?" 1206—or 93 out of every 100—answered "Yes."

The word of users everywhere is given to show how CARDUI helps to improve appetite and digestion, and thus build up physical resistance. In this way it also works to relieve the headaches, nervousness, depression, that attend functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition. Have you tried CARDUI?

G. A. NEWS

The meeting was called to order by the president, Dot Lawhon.

We then sang a hymn. We were led in prayer by Dot Lawhon. For part of our program we had a puzzle on North and South America. We had nine members present. We then said the Great Commission. The devotional on obedience was given by Sarah English. We then sang one verse of "Jesus Calls Us." Our program on North and South America followed. The offering was 30 cents. We then sang another song, followed by prayer which closed the meeting.

CHURCHES

METHODIST CHURCH
C. R. Mingledorff, Pastor

9:45 a. m. Sunday school, Guy F. Smith, superintendent. A valuable institution of learning. Come study with us and be prepared for the final examination.

11 a. m. Morning worship, sermon by the pastor. Subject, "The Palm Tree Christian." Special music by the choir.

6:30 p. m. Senior, Intermediate and Junior Leagues. An hour spent with these fine young people will inspire you to a greater interest in youth and its possibilities.

7:30 p. m. Evening worship, sermon by the pastor. Subject, "The Triumphal Entry."

Holy week April 2 to 9 will be observed by this church with preaching services each evening at 7:45 o'clock. General theme, His Last Week.

Monday—The Day of Authority.
Tuesday—The Day of Controversy.
Wednesday—The Day of Retirement.
Thursday—The Day of Fellowship.
Friday—The Day of Suffering.
Saturday—The Day of Silence and Sorrow.
Sunday—The Day of Resurrection.

The Holy Sacrament will be observed at the service on Thursday evening.

It was on Thursday of his last week of ministry that Jesus, in the gathering twilight, assembled with his Disciples in the upper room to eat the Passover with them for his last time.

It is fitting that we observe the Holy Sacrament on this day and hour in memory of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, the supreme sacrifice for a lost world.

We invite you to worship with us and enjoy the blessings our Christ is waiting to bestow upon those who honor Him.

Dry Weather Causes Salt Sick Cattle

During the past ten days County Agent Louis H. Ahmeyer has traveled over the ranges of Highlands county and has found a considerable evidence of salt sick, he said in a statement to the press Thursday. The condition among cattle may be caused by dry weather forcing cattle to use the ranges where salt sick or mineral deficiency is more prevalent. He found that much of the mineral mixture being used in this county does not have the cobalt as recommended by the University. He has given out a number of samples of cobalt treatment to a number of cattlemen and found that a large area of our ranges is affected by the cobalt deficiency.

The County Agent has discussed the mineral deficiency conditions on the ranges with Dr. W. M. Neal of the Experiment Station. Especially a condition which was observed as being prevalent in the Kissimmee Valley and Istokpoga areas, as well as along the western side of the Ridge, and known by some cattlemen as "leather hided" and animals show a fading out of color in the hair and coat and in some cases the hair becomes thin. Dr. Neal states that this condition can be remedied by doubling the amount of powdered copper sulphate used in the mineral mixture.

With these things in mind, the County Agent would recommend that the mineral mixture used in Highlands County on practically all of our ranges be made up as follows: 1600 pounds salt, 400 pounds red oxide of iron, 40 pounds powdered copper sulphate, or bluestone, and 1 pound cobalt chloride, or cobalt sulphate. A smaller mixture could be made up with 100 pounds salt,25 pounds red oxide of iron, 2 pounds powdered copper sulphate and 2-4 ounce of cobalt chloride, or cobalt sulphate.

The supplying of the proper minerals to cattle in Highlands County is as important as good pastures and good blood lines. The County Agent suggests that if you are purchasing the commercial salt sick remedy, that you insist that this have the proper amount of cobalt and copper.

Rooney, Beery Star in Picture At Park Sunday

All emotional phases are covered with heavy drama and light comedy well divided. For the sportminded, a real horserace is presented in a climax that leaves one limp. With pictures such as this, the fans will certainly be yelling for more Beery-Rooney films.

The story could best be described as "The Champ" at the race track, with Beery and Rooney traveling around the country with an injured racehorse. Beery, a former vet, operates and the animal is ready for the track again.

Beery is an escaped convict, and Rooney learns of the fact although he doesn't allow his pal to know it. He tries to keep Beery away from the big race so he won't be captured, but fails. There Beery meets the man who framed him into prison and who actually was the murderer. The man turns out to be the former owner of the racehorse and he takes it because Rooney can't show ownership papers. The horse wins the big race, but not with Rooney's colors. Then things take a change for the better in a thrilling finish.

HOW to make your
Highway Dollars
Work Forever
Florida needs more and better highways. Yet taxpayers demand lower taxes while the expenses of government mount steadily. How can Florida go ahead with a progressive program of building long-lasting roads and satisfy the taxpayer, too?
Limerock supplies the answer! . . . Florida's own superb road-base material makes highway dollars work forever.
As a road-base material Limerock is everlasting. Limerock-base roads are less expensive to construct than any other so-called permanent pavement. They cost less to widen and modernize for future traffic. For long-range economy, they are far less expensive than temporary hard-surfacing that must be replaced every few years.
Florida's long experience with Limerock-base roads proves that no properly constructed Limerock-base highway has ever failed in service . . . that Limerock is the most economical permanent road-base material. Today's Limerock-base roads are unsurpassed for riding comfort and non-skid safety. Low-cost maintenance, necessary for any type of pavement, is all that Limerock-base roads require.
Make road tax dollars work forever. Keep down your own future taxes by insisting on roads built with everlasting Limerock as the base. Limerock is the life of a good highway . . . everlasting, resilient, indestructible.

Have You An Idea That Will Help the Band?

VOLUME XV—NUMBER 22 AVON PARK, FLORIDA, SATURDAY, APRIL 8, 1939 SINGLE COPY: FIVE CENTS

Band Is Short on "Umpah" But Has Plenty of "Umph"

Bass Section Weak; New Horns Needed To Improve Band

The high school band lacked "umph" at the state contest in West Palm Beach last week, and fell to third division rating in the C competition. Forty-two members played their best—and Director E. L. Roberts said his charges played well—but there were too many poor instruments, and the bass section was weak, according to criticism of the official judges, and because of these faults the band missed second division rating. They made second last year, but the judging was not so strict, Roberts said.

Roberts was frankly disappointed that the band did not get into second division. Admitting the truth of the judges' criticism, he said the kids played exceptionally well, and he thought they did good enough to get into second place.

Led by the three attractive drum majors—Martha McCord, Peary Reynolds and Betty Moffett—there was no lack of "umph", however, and the band placed in second division in drilling. Here the band was graded more for appearances than on technicalities of concert playing, and stood out well alongside other units in its class.

Avon Park led the street parade Friday noon and the mass concert parade Friday night to Anderson field, where all the competing bands were massed for concert. There were 1639 pieces in this huge assembly of musicians, which filled the field and presented an inspiring spectacle.

Judges consisted of such outstanding authorities as K. L. King, past president of the National Bandmasters' Association, Fort Dodge, Iowa; Clate Chennette, Ames, Iowa; Henry Fillmore, of the Fillmore Publishing House, Cincinnati; and Glenn Cliffe Bainum, music director of Northwestern University.

NEED NEW INSTRUMENTS

Something will have to be done to remedy the bass deficiency, and some other new instruments are needed. Director Roberts and Principal Stanley N. Reeves went over the situation upon the band's return, to figure out the problem. As a result, it was determined that seven new bass instruments costing $814.00 are needed to bring the band up to proper instrumentation. At the present time, the band has only one bass horn and one baritone horn, both of which are unfit for concert work. The needed bass instruments should be bought and owned by the school, both Roberts and Reeves agreed, because they are not only expensive, but are such instruments that no one would care to own individually.

Four of these instruments, of first importance, which the school should own, are: One Baritone, $50.00; one BB flat Sousaphone, $124.00; one E flat Baritone Saxophone, $80.00; one Oboe, $146.00. Total cost of these horns, $406.00.

Second in importance, and also badly needed, are: One E flat Sousaphone, $112.00; one Bass Clarinet, $152.00; one Bassoon, $144.00. Total cost, $408.00.

In addition, instruments needed to be bought by students, are: One flute, $52.00; one Alto Clarinet, $136.00; one B flat Tenor Saxophone, $90.00; one Fluegel Horn, $44.00. Total cost, to be furnished by students, $292.00.

So there, according to the band director and the principal, is the bill of goods necessary if the band is to be brought up to a competitive basis with other bands of its class. Neither Reeves or Roberts could say how the money is to be raised, as there is no set-up in county funds for such purposes. The band has about $50 in the treasury which could be used as a start. Roberts plans to put on an operetta sometime in May, and other means may be worked out for raising the money.

Seaboard Extends Time on Their Winter Trains

Because of increased business and demand for longer stay in Florida, the Orange Blossom Special will remain in service until April 29. However, the Boston cars which have been an added feature to the Orange Blossom this year will come off with last train North, April 15. This is two weeks longer for the Orange Blossom this year over last.

The Florida Seaboard will make its last trip North on April 22, this being one week longer than last season.

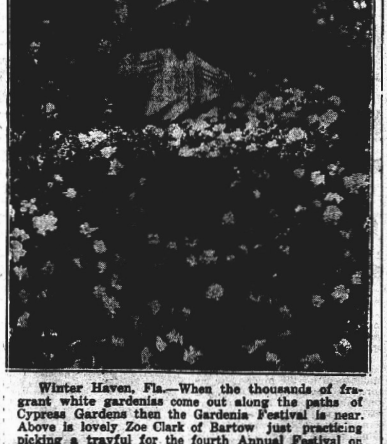

These two fine trains of the Seaboard Railway have been great favorites for handling visitors to Florida this season and it is due to their great popularity that they are being held in service longer this season.

The newest and greatest of all trains to Florida, the Seaboard's Meteor" will be made a year 'round train.

Palmer To Enlarge Packing House

The purchase of 50 feet of frontage, adjoining his packing house on the north, was announced today by L. G. Palmer, who will build an addition and enlarge his facilities. The lot was bought through John Hood. He will start work within 60 days on the new building, he said. Palmer bought his present building from the city last summer. He repaired it, installed machinery and has been conducting a general packing business the past season. The addition will give him 120 feet frontage on the street and the A. C. L. railroad.

Toronto Meets Montreal In Game Here Sunday

When the Toronto Maple Leafs make their final appearances of the season at Head field Sunday afternoon against Montreal, fans will have an added attraction, when the players stage a field day. There will be an exhibition of long distance throwing and hitting, accuracy in throwing from home plate to second base, sprints and base running, and other specialties. The chamber of commerce is responsible for the field day events, the high school band will play, and all children accompanied by parents or an adult will be admitted free. It ought to be a big day.

The Leafs won three, tied one and lost five games during the past week. The team rounded into shape for the opening of the season, April 20 in Syracuse. The Leafs wind up training here the first of the week, and leave for the north Wednesday.

Two newcomers to the team have made a good showing this spring. Tony Sabol, rookie center fielder, is the leading hitter of the team, batting over .500 in spring games. Babe Marchildon, playing his first year in professional baseball, has pitched 10 innings and allowed only 5 hits. Among the regulars, Bill Shuster is fielding and hitting with a wallop, while Manager Jack Burns is hitting with regularity.

Catcher Walter Klincsak caught a tip off Hank Greenberg's bat with his bare right hand in Lakeland Monday. He has a badly split hand and may be out of the game for a month. Catcher Frank Reiber is not yet in top shape, and it is likely that John Heving will see some action in early games.

TORONTO 9; NEWARK 5

Toronto went on a hitting spree in Sebring last Friday and collected 17 hits off Newark hurlers to win the game 9 to 5. Mickey Dejonghe led with four hits, while Sabol and Clifton got three each. Lan Franconi featured the game, pitching three innings and allowing only two hits, one of these an infield hit.

KANSAS CITY 5; TORONTO 5

Toronto and Kansas City played a 5 to 5 tie in Haines City last Saturday, the game being called at the end of the ninth because of approaching darkness and threatening rain. Sabol and Dejonghe were the only Leafs to get as many as two hits each. Frank Colman, a first year professional, pitched 4 innings and allowed only 3 hits.

LOUISVILLE 11; TORONTO 4

The Louisville Colonels slugged their way to a 11 to 4 win over the Leafs Sunday. The game was featured by extra base hits. Louisville collected 17 hits, including a triple and five doubles. The Colonels completed four double plays and played without error.

DETROIT 5; TORONTO 1

Floyd Giebell and Freddie Hutchinson held Toronto to four hits, and Detroit won Monday's game in Lakeland 5 to 1. Hutchinson is the expensive youngster Detroit bought from Seattle. He showed up well, pitching four innings and allowing only 1 hit. The only extra base hit in the game was by Charlie Gehringer, who tripled. Weir and Marchildon held York hitless and limited Greenberg to an infield single.

TORONTO 11; BUFFAO 8

Pounding out 19 hits for 11 runs, the Leafs won over Buffalo in Plant City Wednesday, 11 to 8. Shuster, Leaf short, was the hitting star of the day, with a perfect record at the plate, three for three, including a home run. Everybody hit at least once. Porter and Burns got three each.

KANSAS CITY 7; TORONTO 4

Nicholson of Kansas City hit the first home run over the fence this season, to provide a ninth-inning thriller that beat Toronto 7 to 6. His hit went 426 feet to clear the left field fence. His homer came after Doyle had tripled, the two runs turning defeat into victory.

Legion-Auxiliary Hear Inspiring Talk On Americanism

Wm. Hauptmann, prominent and fluent speaker, made an informative and inspiring address on "Americanism" before an assemblage of American Legion and Auxiliary members, at a special joint supper meeting of both organizations at the Legion home on Wednesday evening. Mr. Hauptmann emphasized facts on the subject, and stressed the vital points on Americanism, as it pertains to America and its citizens, in an entertaining manner.

At a short business meeting of the Legion, Harry Price and Ben T. Stewart were elected delegates to the state convention to be held April 13 to 15, inclusive, at Fort Lauderdale.

Prior to the meeting, a supper was held on the grounds of the Legion home. The menu consisted of barbecued spare ribs and baked sweet potatoes, done to a delicious turn by Demos Mandis and J. C. Ragsdale, and prepared over the barbecue pit, vegetable salad, sandwiches, gingerbread and coffee.

Included among those enjoying the supper and meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Bette, Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Hartt, Dr. and Mrs. D. G. Ferry, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jarrett, Mr. and Mrs. Ben T. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sherman, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Demos Mandis, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Prevatt, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Francis, Mr. and Mrs. Norton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Maddox, Wm. Hauptmann, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Martin and son, Walter, Mr. and Mrs. David Stuckey, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ragsdale and son, Pete, Mrs. Ruth Clowe, Mrs. W. M. Hetherington, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Lewiston, Chas. Smith, C. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McCarthy, Mr. Meeks, A. McKee Elowell, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hayden, Harry Price.

Nichols Speaks To Rotarians on Winter Guest Club

L. R. Nichols, president of the Winter Guest Club of Avon Park was guest speaker at Wednesday's luncheon, and in opening his talk, told of the various activities of several service clubs around his home in the north.

In speaking of the activities of the local club for winter visitors here, Mr. Nichols praised the chamber of commerce committee, that had worked on the project here, and had it included in the WPA program. He mentioned the benefit the club is to the city, and said that the membership is now double that of last year and brings a good income to the merchants and others in the city.

Mr. Nichols stated that the club dues are used for improvements, and mentioned the purchase of 100 chairs, installing of the putting green and the building of a fireplace, something over $300 having been spent for these various items. The kitchen has also been furnished, he said and this has been paid for by the ladies, who raised the fund separately.

The speaker stated that the club members had enjoyed their stay in Avon Park, and many of them, not only expected to return next year, but would probably come earlier in the season. He suggested that the club grounds be kept in good condition throughout the summer, as many people travel through on vacation trips.

In closing, Mr. Nichols praised Avon Park for its friendliness, and ability to make people feel at home here, and urged that members of the Rotary club visit the Winter Guest club and become acquainted with the visitors.

E. W. Eaton of Chicago spoke briefly, and said that he had spent the past ten weeks here, and was sorry to have to go north. He intends to return next year, he said.

M. V. Pilcher, program chairman for the day introduced the speakers.

E. F. Armstrong of Hickville, Ohio, was the only other visitor present.

Episcopal Church Celebrates 41st Birthday Sunday

The Episcopal Church of the Redeemer celebrated its 41st anniversary last Sunday. Special services were held at the church at 11 o'clock, at which time a Lectern Bible was dedicated to the memory of Mrs. Mary A. King, and Mrs. Norton Smith on Lake Isis, where an abundant lunch was served by the ladies of St. Margaret's Guild. The younger folks enjoyed swimming and games.

Martha Marsh Conducts Festival

Several hundred visitors gathered on the banks of the Suwannee River in White Springs Sunday afternoon to enjoy the first Music Festival given on the site of the Florida Stephen Foster Memorial.

Against a background of natural shrubbery and trees and with the accompaniment of singing birds, more than a hundred and fifty children from the schools of Hamilton County sang under the direction of Miss Martha Marsh, County Supervisor of Music. Beautiful selections were given by the High School Glee Clubs, the Grade Choruses, and the High School orchestra.

Miss Marsh, who is also the newly appointed State Choral Chairman of the Florida Federation of Music Clubs, with Mrs. E. F. Montgomery, the state President, hope that this is the beginning of many such festivals to be held and will serve to create a greater interest in music in communities throughout the state.

AUXILIARY MEETS MONDAY

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a business meeting at the customers' room of the Florida Public Service Company on Monday evening, at 8 o'clock. All members are especially urged to be present.

Would Set Up City Election To September; And Give City Authority to Assess Independently of County Valuations.

The city council will ask the legislature for two amendments to the city charter and a local bill creating a city board of health, following action at an adjourned session of the council Tuesday nighs.

The amendments sought provide:

1. To amend Section 60, changing city elections from December to the first Tuesday in September, biennially, officers elected to take office on October 1, instead of January 1, as now provided.

2. To amend Section 86, giving the city tax assessor authority to make assessments independently of values fixed by state and county assessments.

The special bill creating a city board of health will provide that the board consist of the mayor, city health officer and the chief of police, and will give them authority to condemn and take such other measures as necessary for preservation of health.

Legal notice of the proposed local legislation appears elsewhere in this issue.

In all probability, more interest will center around the amendment providing for a change in date of election than in either of the other two proposals. Various phases of this matter were discussed at Tuesday night's session. From a political standpoint, the change was said to be desirable, inasmuch as it would set up the city election three months, and get it further away from the general state and county election. In voting the change upon themselves, the present councilmen shortened their terms three months, as under the provisions, their terms will expire October 1, 1939, instead of January 1, 1940. The idea is to get city politics settled and out of the way well in advance of the general election.

Another reason for the change, and from a practical standpoint, the most important, is that the change would allow the terms of office to run concurrently with the fiscal year, very desirable for the business of budget making.

Authority to assess city property independently of state and county values requires a special act of the legislature, otherwise under the law city property cannot be assessed for tax purposes for more than the state and county valuation. This authority has been granted numerous other cities, it was said.

Need for a city board of health was brought to the attention of city authorities recently, when several cases of typhoid fever were reported in the negro quarrtrs, said to have been due principally to unsanitary toilet conditions. The board will have authority, under the act, to condemn premises and cope with any conditions that may arise.

Avon Florida Corp. Offers $8,500 To Settle City Taxes

The city was offered $8500 in a lump sum settlement of all its city taxes by the Avon Florida Citrus Corporation Monday night. The company also offered to withdraw its quo warranto suit, which has been in court for nine years. The citrus corporation, joined by other outside property owners, denied the right of the city to tax their property, claiming no benefits, and have refused to pay taxes during the long litigation. The offer was taken under advisement.

G. A. Warren, county sanitarian, asked the council for cooperation in enforcing installation of sanitary privies where outside toilets are used. A committee composed of Councilmen Elwell, McGibboney, Hartt and Chief of Police McCarthy was named to investigate. Mayor Covington worked with them, and as a result of their activities, 13 arrests were made, and installations arranged for in each case.

The council voted to extend the time for 30 days to pay 1938 taxes without interest penalty.

KINSEYS BUY HOME

Work was begun this week on interior improvements at the former W. A. Marshall home on Lotela road, which has recently been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Kinsey. They plan to move to their new home about the first of May. The sale of the property was made through the office of W. S. Betts and R. I. Harris.

COMMITTEE IN TALLAHASSEE

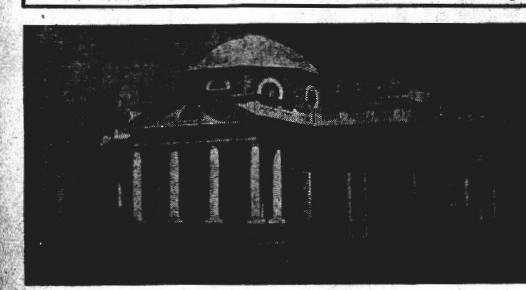

Walter S. Betts, R. R. Brown, C. E. Lanier and S. J. Pendleton, members of the hospital committee, went to Tallahassee on Friday to attend the Legislature, and to present the proposd site for the hospital, which Avon Park is endeavoring to have located here.

Burton Schoepf to Aid Townsend In National Organization Effort

Restoration of the Garden at Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's Home, Will Begin This Spring

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON
© Western Newspaper Union.

THERE'S a new "restoration" program on in Virginia. This time it is not an entire town, as was done at Williamsburg, historic Colonial capital, nor a building, as was the case of the law office of James Monroe at Fredericksburg, but it is none the less interesting for it is to be done at one of the great patriotic shrines of America — Monticello, near Charlottesville, the home of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence and third President of the United States.

The restoration at Monticello is that of Jefferson's garden which long since disappeared and it will be made possible through the recurrence of Garden week in Virginia, when more than a hundred famous estates, most of which are privately owned, are opened to the public by their owners.

The week of April 24 has been set aside for this event, which is held under the auspices of the Garden Club of Virginia, the organization that is sponsoring the restoration of the Monticello garden. Each year thousands of garden lovers from every part of America flock to Virginia for the garden week event, when the Colonial gardens not open to the public at any other time are

The plan to restore Jefferson's garden at Monticello came about in this way: Fiske Kimball, authority on early American architecture, unearthed the original Jefferson drawings, now preserved in the Coolidge collection at the Massachusetts Historical society, while serving on the restoration committee of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation, owners of Monticello. Over a long period of years the committee, consisting of Dr. Edwin M. Betts, professor of botany at the University of Virginia, and confederate authority on Thomas Jefferson as a botanist; Milton L. Grigg, Charlottesville architect; R. T. Halsey of the Metropolitan museum, New York, and Dr. Charles Moore of the Fine Arts commission of Washington have been aiding Mr. Kimball put together the information essential for the restoration.

Due to the meticulous notes and drawings of every detail of Jefferson's full life and its work, unearthed by various researchers and fitted into the restoration pattern, the committee announced recently that it is now prepared to embark on "the most faithfully accurate restoration possible in America."

Drawings for the garden restoration and the research still essential is being carried on by Grigg & Johnson, Charlottesville architects. Execution of the work is to be under the direction of Mrs. Allen Perkins of Charlottesville, former president of the Garden Club of Virginia, and Mrs. Delos Kidder.

The restored Jefferson garden will include some three acres known to the committee as the east garden and will include replacement of all the trees known during Jefferson's lifetime.

Plans call for long elliptical paths, bordered with plantings of native wild flowers and evergreens, because Jefferson was interested in determining the decorative possibilities of using wild materials which he considered more beautiful than formal arrangements usually found in the pretentious gardens of Virginia.

One of the most interesting features of the restoration will be the replacement of the two fish ponds, small oval pools, the size of which Jefferson carefully computed on the basis of the average annual rainfall and the amount of water which this would yield to keep his fish in fresh water.

In carrying out the research it was found that Jefferson wrote in praise of the splendid ideas for garden development in a now rare volume published by Thomas Whatly in London in 1777. A copy of this volume was secured and it was found that the garden as executed at Monticello was described in almost minute detail, the description apparently influencing Jefferson so favorably that he adopted most of Whatly's recommendations for what was considered the ideal garden.

Among all the homes of great Americans which have been preserved as historic shrines, Monticello is unique. It not only reflects the personality of the man who lived in it and loved it so much but it is a monument which Thomas Jefferson literally erected to himself. He himself selected its site—a wooded peak at which he, as a young man, gazed long and often across the Rivanna river from his boyhood home at Shadwell. He determined to establish his home on the "Little Mountain" some day.

Upon the death of his father he inherited the landed estate which lay along both sides of the Rivanna river and in 1770 he began clearing the summit and preparing for building. But there was much to do before actual construction could be begun. The whole apex of the mountain had to be removed. When this was done there was left an elliptical plane upon which the buildings were to be located. The place was named Monticello, meaning in Italian, "Little Mountain."

In the fall of 1770, the dwelling at Shadwell burned, so that building began in earnest at Monticello, beginning the establishment of an entirely new homestead upon this wild and almost inaccessible site. But true to his vision, the owner ignored the much easier and cheaper process of replacing the old dwelling where was still the other numerous buildings that were then essential to a plantation—barns, mills, slave quarters and storage houses of many kinds.

Self Made Architect

At that time there were virtually no architects in the country and few skilled workers in the building crafts. So Jefferson took up the study of architecture and architectural drawing. Guided by his inherent appreciation of the essential elements of fine construction, he taught himself so well that he became his country's outstanding architect of the period. He made vast numbers of drawings for his home and worked out the last details for every part of the structure.

More than that, he selected the stone and timber used in the structure, looked after the construction of the brick and the nails made by his own servants, devised advanced and ingenious contrivances for comfort and convenience, designed the decoration of the interior and personally selected the furnishings and ornaments. He not only planned but gave personal supervision to the laying out of the various buildings on the estate, the gardens, the walks and the roadways.

Though architecture was only a hobby with Jefferson, today he is acclaimed a great architect.

The exterior of Monticello is in the Doric order of architecture. The interior is in the Ionic style. A portico, the full height of the house, with stone pillars and steps projects 25 feet. It is a brick mansion 100 by 100 feet, with white pillars, cornices and balustrades surmounted by a dome, standing in the midst of a lawn overlooking river, woodlands and fertile valley, with a view of mountains to the west and of long extending coastal plains to the east.

Hidden Staircases.

The appearance is of one story and entering the hall one is still deceived, for Jefferson disliked staircases to such an extent that he shut them all up in closets. The hall shows only a gallery on which the bedrooms open. In the dome itself Jefferson planned a billiard room, but a law was passed by the state before it was completed, forbidding the game and so it was left in an unfinished state. The wings of the house end in octagonal projections; the northern one containing the dining room, tea room and parlor rooms, the southern forming Jefferson's private suite, sitting room, library and bedroom. Under the dome on the west is the great drawing room, famous for its parquette flooring of native woods and its pillared portico.

Most notable of the architectural features of the house is the hiding away of all signs of kitchen, laundry, stable and the many workshops necessary on a plantation of that period when almost every article in daily use was manufactured on the estate by servants and slaves. The sharp declivity of the mountain made it possible to have these offices all at a lower level than the house.

A tunnel from the basement leads right and left to one-story pavilions, used by the slaves. By this contrivance dishwashers, cooks, butlers, maids, troops of slaves with wood for fires, cans of ashes, pails of hot or cold water did their work without disturbing the tranquility of the family and their guests. An oddity contrived by Jefferson is a dumbwaiter for hoisting wine from the cellar, with a capacity of but one bottle.

Monticello, undoubtedly the finest mansion in that section of Virginia, cost its owner, according to his account books, about $7,200. The ornamental stone was brought from Philadelphia to Richmond by water and hauled from Richmond in carts.

A Herd of Pigs 'Saw America First' When They 'Toured' With De Soto 400 Years Ago

Four hundred years ago this year a herd of pigs went on a "See America First" tour. Unlike later tourists who go because they want to, these early "tourists" went because they had to. They were driven and they probably went none too willingly. Be that as it may, the record of their cross-country journey from the Everglades in Florida to the Ozarks in Arkansas, through a thousand wild and hostile miles of forest, prairie, mountain, flood, swamp, snow and summer heat, is one of the most amazing in American history.

In 1539 Hernando De Soto, who had been made governor of Cuba so that he might use that island as a base of operations in conquering and colonizing Florida, arrived in Tampa bay with nine vessels. On board were 600-odd soldiers, 350 horses and 13 hogs, the latter being for the use of the colonists he planned to establish on the Florida peninsula or beyond.

Heading northward from the bay, De Soto's expedition marched slowly onward in an amazing arc of zigzags which resulted in its touching at least seven and perhaps 11 of our present southern states, traversing mountains and the great Mississippi river, before the weary survivors, riding in boats of their own wilderness manufacture, and clad principally in the skins of wild animals, were finally to reach safety in Mexico four years later.

An Amazing Sight.

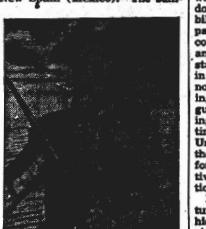

At the start of the expedition in Florida and Georgia, apparently on into both the Carolinas, and seemingly over the mountains to somewhere near Chattanooga, the moving column must have been an amazing sight. First came the armored cavalry in its glittering splendor; behind limped the infantry, sore alike from battles and blisters; while somewhere between or around the two scampered a squealing, reluctant treasure of pork—the rapidly multiplying herd of hogs —and its herders. And from the hilltops and forests along the way peered savage eyes that had never before beheld horses, or pigs, or firearms, or white skins, and that sometimes visioned the rider and his horse together as a single shining animal.

Sometimes the party was well fed by friendly or frightened Indians; sometimes it was half-starved — one such occasion, seemingly somewhere in Georgia, finally compelling apparently the first dressing and serving of pork in the present continental area of the United States (1540). Even then, however, each man was allowed only half a pound of meat per day, to sustain him until more grain, nuts, or roots were found; for in general the rapidly growing reserve of pork was still being saved, "with infinite labor," for the colony that De Soto hoped eventually to found.

From the Chattanooga region the expedition apparently marched southwest into central Alabama; then northwestward across the state of Mississippi. In each of these sections a desperate battle was fought with the red men, whose burning straw village the Spaniards set afire in each case (winter of 1540-41); but in the end the invaders lost in the flames not only a collection of pearls, the only riches so far obtainable, but also most of their ammunition, saddles, and clothing, and many horses, and all but 100 of the hogs (the herd had recently numbered 600).

After a 30-day delay for building boats to cross the Mississippi, the expedition began a year of wandering in Arkansas (perhaps entering Missouri and Oklahoma, too), finally returning to the banks of the Mississippi with the plan of building ships to return to Cuba for reinforcements. Here De Soto died, however (May, 1542; three years after the landing at Tampa); and the hog herd, now increased to 700, was auctioned off among his men, who thus ate pork much more often, but started observing religious holidays!

De Soto's successor, Moscoso, at first abandoned the plan of a voyage by sea in favor of the supposedly easier land march to New Spain (Mexico). The summer was, therefore, spent in a westward trek which apparently reached halfway across northern Texas. But the approach of autumn on the seemingly limitless Texas plains sent them trudging back to the Mississippi to begin building ships. They used the shawls of the Indian women for sails, and turned into spikes and anchors their firearms, their captives' chains, and such bits and stirrups as remained. The remaining hogs and most of the surviving horses were turned into meat for the voyage.

HERNANDO DE SOTO

After a desperate 16-day battle with hostile river Indians in their much swifter canoes, and after six weeks of feeling their way around the Texas coast, 311 hairy beings clothed and shod in deerskin and claiming once to have been Spaniards reached the shelter and welcome of a Spanish settlement on the Panuco river near the site of modern Tampico.

★ Charlie Is Taken Down
★ Politics Promotes Ann
★ Orchestra Leaders All

By Virginia Vale

PEOPLE in New York are still talking about Charlie McCarthy's first week there. In fact, a new aristocracy sprung into being; its members were the people who had actually gone to the first broadcast (tickets were scarcer than hen's teeth), and they are still high-hatting their friends who couldn't get in, and running perfectly good luncheons and dinner parties by insisting on telling about how cute Charlie is.

"You simply have to see him to appreciate him," they declare, which is rather hard on the people who have never seen Charlie and probably won't get a chance, as Edgar Bergen is too busy for personal appearances.

Charlie's kidnaping, one evening, by the amusement editor of one of the newspapers, very nearly stirred up a lot of trouble. The famous little man is insured for $5,000, Bergen was so worried that after Charlie's reappearance he took to taking Charlie apart and hiding him in sections.

Ann Sheridan has sort of crept into stardom by the back door, although she deserves the promotion. It's "Naughty but Nice" that's stirred her, and studio politics are involved. For this is Dick Powell's last for

ANN SHERIDAN

Warner Brothers, and it's an old studio custom to play down the departing star, since advertising him just means that you're promoting property that will soon belong to somebody else.

So the charming and hard-working Ann gets big billing in this one, after five years of doing her best with whatever roles came her way.

Katherine Hepburn is doing very well indeed in her new theatrical venture, "The Philadelphia Story," although it has not, at this writing, been given the acid test of premiere in New York. Apparently Miss Hepburn still cherishes some affection for the screen; she has bought the film rights to the play and will do it herself before the cameras eventually.

Nowadays it seems that everybody who can't get a job feels that the answer to the unemployment problem is becoming an orchestra leader. Prize fighters, millionaires, tap-dancers, movie stars—all are more than willing to step in front of a band and wave a baton. But it's a rare thing for a man who works with his hands to become an orchestra leader—Russ Morgan is about the only exception to the rule. He's an ex-coal miner, you know. He worked in the Nanticoke Mine, near Scranton, Pa., until the foreman fired him for playing a trombone in his spare time. The foreman happened to be his father.

Today he is one of the top bracket orchestra leaders. Before he was twenty-one he had written arrangements for such famous musical men as John Philip Sousa and Victor Herbert.

If you're considering writing for radio here's something to remember. Due to the threat of federal censorship, radio stations are leaning over backward in their efforts not to offend. The Federal Communications commission, which is in charge of renewing broadcasting licenses every six months, has hinted they will frown on the following forms of radio fare: Horse selling, astrology or similar sciences, solicitation of funds, except for recognized worthwhile charities, misleading statements, defamatory statements, obscenity, programs offending religious or racial groups, over-melodramatic children's programs, liquor advertising, too much advertising and too many phonograph records.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Practical Help in Planning Meals That Avoid Hidden Hunger; Illustrates Right and Wrong Methods of Menu Building

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

A GENERATION ago, homemakers approached the problem of feeding their families with but two objectives: to put weight on their children and to send adults away from the table with their appetites appeased. If the child failed to gain satisfactorily, or if his teeth were crowded and subject to decay, he was said to "take after his Uncle Abner" or perhaps to have inherited the poor teeth of his maternal grandmother. And if adults were chronically tired or suffered from "nerves," that, too, was blamed on circumstances that had nothing to do with the diet.

No one had ever heard of hidden hunger! For nutritionists had not yet startled the world by demonstrating that food may satisfy the appetite and yet fail to feed . . . that the absence of minute amounts of minerals and vitamins may be responsible for a long train of deficiency diseases which cause untold misery and are responsible for mental and physical inefficiency.

Planning Meals Scientifically

Today we know that a definite relationship exists between food consumption and bodily activity, and that normal individuals can usually control body weight by regulating the amount of fuel foods in the diet. We know that minerals and vitamins play a powerful part in building and maintaining sound teeth as well as healthy nerves; and that we can build resistance to disease, defer old age, and even lengthen the span of life by choosing our food, not merely for its appetite appeal, but for the qualities that contribute toward what nutritionists term a balanced diet.

The Balanced Diet

Every modern homemaker therefore owes it to her family not to plan meals at random, but to take into consideration the seven factors that science has determined to be essential for top health. These include: proteins, for building and repairing body tissue; carbohydrates to produce quick heat and energy; fats, a more compact form of fuel; minerals, which serve both as building materials and as regulators of body processes; vitamins A, B, C, D, E and G, which act as regulators, and help to prevent the various deficiency diseases; water, which serves as a vehicle by which food is carried to the tissues, and cellulose or bulk, required for the normal functioning of the intestinal tract.

A Day's Food Plan

The various food essentials will be supplied if the three daily meals include a quart of milk for every child, a pint for each adult, which may be served as a beverage, with cereals, in soups, sauces or made into desserts; an egg daily, or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, usually at the main meal of the day; a second protein food, such as cheese, baked beans or nuts, usually served at lunch or supper; two vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the raw, leafy variety; two servings of fruit, and at least one serving of a whole grain cereal.

By adhering to this plan, you will help to supply your family with the necessary proteins, minerals, vitamins and cellulose. Fat foods may be added by way of breadstuffs, macaroni, rice and other cereals; butter or margarine and the fats used in cooking.

Common Errors in Menu Planning

Common mistakes in menu planning are a concentration of too many proteins or carbohydrates in one meal; the failure to include adequate bulk by way of fruits, vegetables and whole grain cereals; and the massing in one meal of too many foods that are high in fat.

The following menu, for example, contains more protein than necessary, and too little bulk, yet it is typical of the dinners served in many homes: Hamburger Steak, Baked Beans, Potatoes, Stewed Corn, Custard Pie.

Since both meat and baked beans are rich in protein, they may well be served at separate meals, as indicated by either of the following combinations: Hamburger Steak, Creamed Potatoes, String Beans, Lettuce Salad, Fresh or Cooked Fruit. Or, Baked Beans, Stewed Tomatoes, Cabbage Salad, Custard Pie.

In the first menu, the beans, potatoes, corn and pastry are all high carbohydrate foods. To provide additional bulk, as well as to reduce the amount of carbohydrate, it would be advisable to serve a green vegetable such as string beans, and choose fruit instead of pie for dessert. It is assumed, of course, that eggs would be given in some other form during the day.

Since baked beans contain both protein and carbohydrate, we omit potatoes in the third menu, and serve a food rich in vitamin C—the tomatoes, and add a bulky raw vegetable by way of the salad.

It's Balance That Counts

It requires no more time or effort to prepare nutritionally correct meals than those which lack balance, nor is it more expensive. For elaborate meals can lack balance, if they are deficient in minerals, vitamins and bulk, while those composed of such simple foods as bread and milk, and stewed fruits may provide an abundance of the protective substances which satisfy the hidden hunger of the body.

My plea to homemakers is to give less thought to the preparation of elaborate recipes, and more thought to supplying the food values that will create abundant health and vitality. In that way, I believe we shall take a real step forward in human progress.
