Luther Henderson Accident Victim; Jackson Arrested

A coroner's jury returned a verdict here Monday that Ralph Jackson was guilty of negligence in driving a car in which Luther Henderson was killed early Sunday morning. His arrest on a manslaughter charge by Constable W. A. Roberts followed. Jackson was placed in the county jail in lieu of a $2500 bond set by Justice J. C. Ragsdale who conducted the inquest Monday.

The fatal wreck occurred in the early morning hours Sunday on the Pine Crest curve south of town, as the result of a head-on collision between the car driven by Jackson and a car owned and driven by Lee Weeks. Henderson was injured internally and died shortly after being taken to a Sebring hospital. Jackson was cut about the head. Weeks and other occupants of his car, Clyde Eiland, Rufus Butler and Viola Hay, escaped with cuts and bruises.

Witnesses at the inquest testified that Henderson and Jackson visited several road houses during the night, and Mrs. Betty Hardee testified that they left her place at about 4:30 Sunday morning. The accident took place shortly afterwards about a mile down the road from the Tavern.

The coroner's jury recommended that the death and accident be investigated by the state's attorney's office. J. C. Rogers, assistant states attorney, in Avon Park Monday, stated he would return for further investigation.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

Funeral services for Henderson were held Tuesday afternoon in the Assembly of God church by Rev. B. M. Newell, of Punta Gorda, former pastor here. Interment was in Bougainvillea cemetery.

Pall bearers were Raymond Osteen, Wiley Sauls, Ellis Green, E. I. Williams, Jimmie Partin and Dewey Delaney.

Luther Henderson, 34, was born in Alabama. He came to Avon Park from South Georgia in 1930 and has since made his home here. He married Miss Vassie Lee Hartley and is survived by his widow and three small children, Opal, Joyce and Eddie.

Before coming here he served an enlistment in the United States army, and was stationed for a time at Fort Screven, Ga. Since his residence here, Henderson has worked in fruit, and at the time of his death was an employee of the Lake Byrd Citrus Packing Company. He was also employed at the Cox Billiard hall.

Other surivors are: His parents, Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Henderson, Winter Haven; three sisters, Mrs. Annie Mae Strickland, Doerun, Ga.; Mrs. Ruby Lee Jordan, Columbus, Ga.; Mrs. Maddie Fern Smith, Columbus, Ga.; and six brothers, Webster, Obie, Randolph and Ernest of Winter Haven; A. J. of Columbus, Ga.; and Gregg of Doerun, Ga.

Local Boys Are Missed From Here Since Thursday

Two Avon Park boys, reported missing from their homes since late Thursday afternoon, had not been located as this is written Friday afternoon, despite efforts of police and radio to find them.

The boys, William (Bill) Jones, age 13, son of Mrs. Lucille Tombaugh, and Grady Holton, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Holton, left their homes on Thursday, and are believed to be on their way to to Georgia ,where both have relatives. They were last seen at the West End Garage trying to hitch hike to Frostproof. Bill Tombaugh is five feet tall, has brown hair, gray eyes, and weighs ninety pounds. When last seen, he was wearing a white shirt and blue trousers. It was believed that when the boys left their homes they had planned to go swimming, but when they did not return home Thursday evening, police were notified.

Chief of Police W. H. McCarthy has notified police of surrounding towns, and a description of the boys was broadcast today from Radio Station WDBO, Orlando. Anyone knowing of their whereabouts is asked to notify the parents, or Chief McCarthy of Avon Park.

Fr. R. I. Brown led the devotional and made a short talk.

Promotion certificates were awarded to the following graduates:

In expressing appreciation to those who have helped the schools the past term, Dr. Reeves said:

"In closing, what I deem the most successful year in the history of the public chools of Avon Park, I am taking this opportunity of thanking those individuals who have so willingly given of their time in service to the schools.

"Frst: To Col. F. N. K. Bailey, our beloved County Superintendent, who has worked so conscientiously in providing leadership for the entire county school system, I am very grateful.

"Second: The County Board of Public Instruction, Mr. Conway, Mr. Garber and Mr. Cannon have wisely administered the financial affairs of the school and made it possible for a full nine months' term. To them the entire student body and faculty are greatly indebted.

"Third: The Board of Trustees, Mr. R. H. Lawhon, Mr. Earl Hartt, and Mr. Will Bennett have served the school without compensation, and I am deeply grateful to them for selecting and furnishing me one of the best faculties in the State of Florida. Also for their many courtesies and much appreciated advice concerning all matters of the school.

"Fourth: The splendid faculty of men and women deserve much credit for a successful school, and without them it would have been impossible to have accomplished any work whatsoever. The entire faculty seemed to work with one thought only in mind, that is, the best possible instruction for each individual child. They have also developed character in the students through their personal leadership and sponsorship of clubs, homerooms and all class activities. The school is no better than the faculty. Ours is one of the best in the state.

"Five: Special mention is due Mr. Yates, the assistant principal, who has sponsored all activities of the senior class and has so ably served when called upon.

"Six: Mr. C. E. Lanier has provided the best bus service I have ever known. Mr. Bigbie, Mr. Witt and other drivers furnished by him, have driven the past three years without a single accident. They are always on time and any parent can feel that their children are well cared for when these men are in charge of the buses.

"Seven: The sanitary condition of the building is due to the splendid service of Mr. C. D. Noland and his assistant, Addica Daniels. They deserve much credit for the success we have had this school term.

"Eighth: Our Office Secretary, Mis Dorothy DeShong, who has had entire charge of all detail work in the office, which means much to both teachers and pupils, has labored willingly and to her is due much credit for the success of the school.

"Nine: The students have done much to make this a very successful school year. They have always willingly cooperated with the teachers and with each other in making the school the very best possible. I would like to especially thank James Bailey, who has so ably lead the Student Council.

"Ten: The ladies of the P. T. A. also are very much appreciated. Their work is beyond reproof and good deeds are too numerous to mentin here. I would like, however, to praise the splendid work of the organization in preparing meals, furnishing clothing and medical service to the under-privileged children. This organization, with the splendid leader, Mrs. J. Paul Garber, is to be congratulated.

"Eleven: I wish to thank Mr. Parke Anderson, Mr. Lester Armstrong, Mr. J. Paul Garber, and Mr. Nelson Smith for their untiring efforts and assistance in the construction of the new athletic field which will always be a monument to their work. Without the assistance of these men, we would never have been able to construct this field which will be used by all physical education classes, band, and all athletic sports.

"Twelve: I also would like to express my appreciation of Mr. John Francis who has furnished many of the classes and athletic teams with drinks on various occasions. Many of these drinks have been donated personally by Mr. Francis. He is indeed a friend of the boys and girls and is always interested in their activities.

"Thirteen: Last, but not least, the two local newspapers deserve more credit for a successful school year than many people realize. They have given freely of space in their papers for publicity and praise of the schools. I don't believe any town has ever had such willing cooperators as we have with our local papers. For the past few weeks it seems that the papers have been school papers, giving complete details as well as pictures of all the graduation activities. I am deeply indebted to the management of these papers and cannot praise them too highly.

Harper Appeals To Working Man

TO THE WORKING.. FAMILIES OF FLORIDA:

A few rich Americans invest in foreign cheap labor, who are no part of the U. S., and pay no part of our heavy tax burdens; snatching from YOUR families billions of dollars in the supar and vegetable trade.

Who are these investors? How much do they invest in it? How much annual profit do they make each? How much money do they deprive your families of? Does their foreign investments dodge U. S. taxes?

Your congressmen and senators are paid by you to get up this information for you and have the sole authority. You and everybody demand of them the answers to these questions? Then you will have the fundamental roots to this iniquity, this scandalous disgrace to America of which you are the victim, and which means the difference between your independence and supffering.

As you well know this bill pops up every year in congress and it pops down the same way, dead. But of you will have the above questions correctly answered before it pops up this time, you can FIX ITS CLOCK forever. It will open up a bad sore, corruption will fly; it will be a clock fixing day in America if there ever was one. The Florida press is helping yau, but they need your help badly. The Tampa chamber of commerce is working for your own family on this bill, but they need your support urgently, and I do mean YOU! HELP?

Youth, Democracy Graduates' Theme In Novel Program

"Youth and Democracy" was the inspirational theme through which the senior class gave expression to its outlook on life in a series of cleverly staged tableaux presented on the commencement program last Friday night.

Miss Odean Bishop, honor student of the graduating class, held the spotlight throughout the program as she read in faultless style the prepared papers written by members of the class, setting forth their idea of their place in the world into which they are emerging.

Dressed in white against a background of purple, she told the story through the seven parts as members of the class depicted in tableau the theme being presented.

Not only did this talented young lady handle the exacting role to her credit, but she wrote both the prologue and epilogue of the piece.

The program was produced under the direction of Chester Yates, and the large audience—probably the largest ever to attend graduating exercises here— were generous in applause and approval of the unusual and distinctive presentation.

"Youth and Democracy" consisted of the following parts:

Democracy by Odean Bishop.
1 Prologue, written by Odean Bishop.
2. The Hone, written by Ruth Wild.
3. Creative Arts, written by Charles Moffett.
4. War, written by Fred Kipp.
5. Education, written by Hilda Reddick.
6. Religion, written by Miriam English.
7. Epilogue, written by Odean Bishop.

Musical interludes by Betty Touchton.

County Superintendent F. N. K. Bailey made a brief address outlining progress made in the financial side of education, and what may be expected in the future.

The band furnished music in its usual creditable manner.

Dr. Stanley N. Reeves presented awards and J. P. Garber, member of the school board, presented the diplomas to graduates.

Awards were as follows:

Bailey Medal for Girls, Gaile Coen.
Bailey Medal for Boys, Francis Skipper.
Senior Scholarship Medal, Odean Bishop.
Senior Honor Medal, Francis Skipper.
Senior Athletic Medal, James Bailey.
Science Medal, Ray Garrett.
Senior Activity Letters: Francis Skipper, James Bailey, Odean Bishop, Tommy Lou Greene, and Marion Foster.
Junior Activity Letter, Nancy Betts.
11th Grade Honor Medal, Nancy Betts.
10th Grade Honor Medal, Felton Causey.
9th Grade Honor Medal, Betty Touchton.
8th Grade Honor Medal, Mildred Barnard.
7th Grade Honor Medal, Madge Pilcher.

In presenting diplomas, Mr. Garber said:

"On behalf of the County Board of Public Instruction, I congratulate you who are receiving diplomas tonight, which give evidence that you have successfully completed 12 years of education in our public schools. The community is proud of the fact that you have reached another very important step of the ladder of life. I like to picture life as a ladder, each round the logical sequence of the other, lifting the individual to higher things in life. I know that during the past 12 years you have worked hard as you ascended the ladder and reached the round on which you are standing tonight. Thomas A. Edison once said "I never did anything worth doing by accident, nor did any of my inventions come by accident—they came by work." And I know that the diplomas you receive tonight did not come by accident but by hard work, and no doubt you graduates feel that it took plenty of work. Again I congratulate you and wish you success and happiness for the future. Now on behalf of the County School Board, it gives me pleasure to present you your diplomas."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

Probe Into Moseley Activities Reveals Race Consciousness; Rome-Berlin Pact Discredited

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

RACES:
Semitism

Last October top film executives met Movie Czar Will Hays to discuss how anti-Semitism might be checked insofar as it affects movie revenues. Last November Father Charles Coughlin made a radio speech tempering criticism of Germany's Jewish pogroms by commenting that Communist persecution of Christians was worse. Nazi sources, he said, had told him 56 of the 59 top men in Russia's Communist party were Jews.

This spring came "Equality," a magazine boasting prominent "Aryans" on its editorial board and dedicated to combating anti-Semitism. At the same time Collier's magazine found there was at least enough talk about the subject to justify a popularized treatise by Harvard Anthropologist Earnest Hooton on the Jew's "highly evolved and specialized characteristics of mind, temperament and personality."

Readers of the Hooton article found themselves realizing that Germany's horrible pogroms have at least made America conscious that there is such a problem. This realization became the more acute when Texas' Rep. Martin Dies brought his un-Americanism investigation committee back into session with the following unsavory allegations:

GENERAL MOSELEY
"How strange . . ."

Maj. Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, who retired from the army last autumn after throwing sharp shafts at the New Deal, is active in a nation-wide anti-Jewish organization. Moseley joined a drive financed by New York's Dudley Gilbert, who sent "confidential reports" he received from a night club "waiter" to James Erwin Campbell, reserve army captain of Owensboro, Ky. Campbell, in turn, issued reports to "key people" throughout the U. S. Dies said Gilbert had no intention of stirring up race hatred but thought he was doing a "patriotic service in anticipation of a revolution."

Sample Moseley statements reported by the Dies committee:

(1) "The fact is that the most serious problem confronting America today is just this problem of the Jew and how to get rid of his influence definitely—locally, nationally and internationally."

(2) "If the Jews bump me off be sure to see they get the credit for it from coast to coast. It will help our cause."

Notified of the charges, General Moseley abruptly closed his own private "un-Americanism" investigation in California's Imperial valley and flew to Washington in answer to a Dies subpoena. His comment: "How strange . . . that a patriot can discuss openly and frankly the problems involving Irishmen, Italians and Germans . . . but let him mention any international 'isms' or Zionism and their increasing control of America, then he is attacked on all sides . . . even his life may be threatened."

ITALY:
Axis Breakup?

In 1914 the homeland of Julius Caesar broke its triple alliance with Germany and Austria-Hungary because Trentino and Trieste were not forthcoming. Next year Italy went to war on the side of the Allies. European history has a way of repeating itself; Benito Mussolini, who last year saw everything to gain in an alliance with Adolf Hitler, and who has just signed a 10-year "invincible" military pact with Germany, may well be floating helpless against a current he cannot buck. Plainly top-heavy, the Rome-Berlin axis nowadays gets most of its oratorical support from Nazidom; though Mussolini chimes in, almost every speech indicates he would like peace with democracies. Left unspoken are the reasons he fears the man he calls friend. Reasons:

(1) If Balkan Yugoslavia breaks up, the area inhabited by Slovenes is almost certain to be grabbed by Germany from its Austrian outpost, providing the Reich with an outlet to the Adriatic sea and thence to the Mediterranean. Much though Germany's friendship might be valued, Italy cannot afford to let Hitler become a Mediterranean power.

(2) Italians dislike Russians, but both in heritage and ambition Adolf Hitler's nation is like Soviet Russia. An allied Berlin and Moscow would control Europe, a possibility which grows less remote as German-hating Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov retires from office and both Hitler and Stalin cease shouting at one another. Such a pact would leave Italy in the cold.

(3) Strong though her Mediterranean position may be, Italy is still weaker than the combined fleets of France and Britain. Mussolini is also alarmed at recent Anglo-French gains in the Mediterranean, especially their pacts with Greece and Turkey. And though he counted on Spain as an ally against democracies, Mussolini finds Generalissimo Francisco Franco hobnobbing too affectionately with Germany to his own exclusion. Franco hobnobs also with French, Swiss and Dutch bankers, seeking a reconstruction loan neither Italy nor Germany can give. So far as Mussolini is concerned, the Iberian peninsula is a bigger question mark today than one year ago.

(4) Several times the past year Italy has risked war to help Hitler, first in Austria, next in Sudetenland, next in Czecho-Slovakia, then in Memel. Each time the home folks wondered what Italy would get in return, and after one solid year of such risks they have received nothing but barren Albania. If Hitler marches into Danzig and drags Italy into a futile war, Il Duce will risk internal blowup.

Such are possible reasons why French Ambassador Andre Francois-Poncet met Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano in Rome recently for amicable discussion on French-Italian trouble points. Since modern treaties apparently mean nothing, there is a good chance Italy might junk her new German pact for a settlement with France and Britain. Britain's reluctance to sign a treaty with Russia might be founded on the hope that Germany and the Soviet would get together, thereby alienating Italy.

BUSINESS:
Competition Wanted

Under NRA the government forced industry into collusion, strict price levels being enforced to a point where competing bidders usually found their individually arrived-at quotations identical. But since NRA was invalidated identical quotations have often continued, providing Trust Buster Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, with what he terms prima facie evidence of collusion.

THURMAN ARNOLD
". . . just getting started . . ."

That a government which five years ago fostered collusion now fights it may seem inconsistent, yet a return to orthodox business philosophy has again made men believe that competition is the life of trade. Up before the house appropriations sub-committee, Trust Buster Arnold explained the justice department will need $520,000 more next fiscal year simply to carry on an anti-trust campaign which—after 40 years—"is just getting started."

No violent campaign is planned, Mr. Arnold explained, but five regional offices will be opened (New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Oklahoma City, San Francisco) and such nation-wide investigations as that of the oil industry will be co-ordinated. With individual actions at Madison, Wis., New York and on the Pacific coast, Mr. Arnold's oil inquiry will center on whether producers must not divest themselves of control of the retail filling stations, a practice he charges is collusive in that it holds up prices, stifling competition. Mr. Arnold on oil: "My point is that either we are going to have competition in the oil industry or if that is impossible it has got to go to congress for regulation—one of the two."

Reich Enlists Young Girls To Help in German Homes

Rural Areas Suffer as Youths Leave to Find Future in Cities.

BERLIN.—In line with the Nazi precept that every German must do his bit for the Third Reich's economic welfare, an army of 200,000 to 300,000 young girls is being mobilized to share the burdens of the overworked German hausfrau on the land and in the cities.

Just as all German youths must serve six months in the labor corps as a preliminary to their two years' military service, so the German girl is bound to serve at least six months as a "mother's helper" in some home. This service, voluntary for the first few years of the Nazi regime, became compulsory at the beginning of 1939 and goes into full swing with the end of the German school year. It is known as the "duty year for girls." Last year the volunteers earned from $2 to $10 a month, plus board.

Women Not Homebodies.

A great change has taken place in the Nazi attitude toward Germany's female population. When Adolf Hitler came to power, there was widespread unemployment and "the woman's place was in the home." Now the government has had to adapt its credo to its economic needs and every effort is made to get the woman out of the home and into industry.

More women are being put to work constantly, and an increasing number are taking the places of men sent to labor on the Reich's fortifications, road building and reconstruction projects.

Farm Areas Suffer.

The German railways, for instance, recently announced that they would have to begin to "employ female help, preferably juveniles more than 16 years old," even for such work as freight dispatching.

With industry unable to get enough manpower, girls and young women are deserting their homes in the country by the thousands for more profitable and livelier jobs in the cities. The result is that the older women have been left to take care of more work than they alone can handle, with a detrimental effect on farming. It was mainly to check this labor shortage on the land that a decree was issued that all girls under 25 must enter the ranks of the girls' labor corps.

A large number of employables have just been let out of school, and the press is loud in reminding both prospective "duty year" girls and their employers to advertise or register for jobs. "Because of the labor scarcity, the help of the female youth is urgently needed by housewives in the country and the city," writes the "Wirtschaft und Recht." "The duty year will provide housewives with the necessary help and will at the same time introduce our girls to the tasks of a German hausfrau."

IN THE BAG

Sir John Simen, England's chancellor of the exchequer, seems to have Britain's budget in the bag. It was no laughing matter, however, to the house of commons when he set before that body a staggering budget swollen by the cost of war preparations.

Farmer Brown's Boy Finds Hiding Place of Mite Mouse

By THORNTON BURGESS

BLACKY the Crow and his equally black relatives were having a perfectly glorious time in Farmer Brown's cornfield. You know there is nothing that Blacky likes more than he does newly sprouted corn. He always has a glad feeling when in the early spring he sees Farmer Brown ploughing up the brown earth of the cornfield, because he knows that in a few weeks he is going to have a feast. Farmer Brown knows it, too, and so does Farmer Brown's Boy. They have sat up nights trying to think of some way to prevent Blacky from having that feast. They have tried all sorts of plans for frightening Blacky away from the cornfield, but he is so smart that he soon sees through their plans and just laughs at them. He never yet has failed to have at least one good feast when Farmer Brown's corn was young and tender.

That was what he was doing now and all the time he was eating he was making fun of the scarecrow that Farmer Brown's Boy had taken such pains to make look like a man with a gun. Blacky had been quite sure from the beginning that it was perfectly harmless, but it is not Blacky's way to take any chances and so he had waited to be positive about it. It was Little Mite, the lost baby of Danny Meadow Mouse, who had made Blacky positive that that scarecrow was harmless. Mite had made a bed for himself in a pocket of the old coat which the scarecrow wore and Blacky had seen him running in and out of it. He had known right away then that this was only a make-believe man and at once he had called all his relatives to the feast.

Little Mite never had heard such a noisy crew and as he timidly peeped out at the big black birds having such a good time he had a queer feeling that something was going to happen. All of a sudden Blacky, who was sitting on a fence post taking his turn at keeping watch, shouted "Caw, caw, c-a-w!" There was a great flapping of wings and all talking at once and laughing, and having a great time Blacky and all his relatives flew away. Mite didn't know just what to make of it. He crept out of his hiding place and watched them settle down over on the Green Meadows still talking and laughing as if they thought it all a great joke. He wondered why they had left when they were having such a feast and good time. He was so busy watching them that he didn't notice anything else. Without any warning a great voice cried, "Ha!"

Little Mite looked up to see a great giant on two legs close beside the scarecrow. Without waiting for a second look he scrambled into the pocket of the old coat and burrowed down under the grass and cotton padding of which he had made his bed, his little heart thumping with fright so that it almost hurt. He hoped with all his might that he hadn't been seen and he held his breath as he waited for what would happen next. He didn't have long to wait. The pocket was opened and a great hand slipped in and lifted him out, bed and all.

Mite was too frightened to move. He just sat perfectly still except that he trembled all over. He couldn't help that, you know. What possible chance had a wee, frightened Meadow Mouse with such a huge creature as now held him? He was perfectly helpless, and he knew it. He just shut his eyes and waited for something terrible to happen. But nothing terrible did happen. Instead he felt something stroking him, very gently. By and by he ventured to open his eyes. A freckled face was bending over him and somehow it didn't look fierce or cruel at all.

"You little rascal!" exclaimed a great voice. That is, it seemed a great voice to Little Mite. "You little rascal! You knew a good thing when you saw it, didn't you? I don't believe any of your enemies would ever think of looking for you in a scarecrow's pocket. I believe I'll take you home with me."

What possible chance had a wee, frightened Meadow Mouse with such a huge creature as now held him.

Then Mite and his bed were put into another pocket just like the one he had been taken from, only this one was the pocket of Farmer Brown's Boy. He didn't know where he was going or what was going to happen, but somehow he didn't feel so much afraid. It was his greatest adventure, but somehow he felt that it was going to come out all right.

Old Homes Can Be Remade by Exact Planning

By BETTY WELLS

Dick and Dorothy K. picked their house up for a song because it was so bedraggled looking. Actually, it didn't need much besides paper and paint, and architecturally it's a simple Dutch colonial of a very pleasing type.

The downstairs rooms all open together, so of course the idea of doing them all alike seemed wisest for creating a spacious feeling. The entrance hall, living-room and dining-room were therefore done all in white, while the sun parlor adjoining the dining-room was wallpapered in a design with green leaves on a white ground. For variation, the living-room, at the opposite end of the house from the sun parlor, got a pale green ceiling.

The rugs in all three rooms were light beige and the furniture coverings included a sofa in a strip of greens, white, gray and beige, a pair of chairs in dull green, and a wing chair in a warm coppery-red. A pair of side chairs got seat covers in a flowered chintz on a white ground, the same material as that used for window shades in living-room and dining-room. (In the sun room the shades were plain white because of the figured wall paper.) Curtains in all the rooms were full ruffled organdy tied back in wide loops. Accessories of copper were used with lamp-shades made of the flowered chintz.

They found an old house for sale at a song.

Dick and Dorothy are making their old furniture "do" for the present—wisely we think—since it's not too bad, and fresh curtains and coverings will make things look very gay and pleasant. Gradually they hope to add to it until they have a collection of very nice honey maple in exact reproductions of old pieces.

Michigan City Claims 'Picniciness' Record

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—An outstanding system of county parks here has turned Grand Rapids people into the picniciest folks in the country. Ten parks in various sections of the county provide beauty spots with picnic tables and outdoor stoves and playground equipment for the children.

From the time the first few warm days of Spring begin to bring promise of summer in the out of doors the parks begin to be used by the picnickers and few people from this city miss at least one meal in the out of doors each week. As a result Grand Rapids has developed some exceptional outdoor cooks for city dwellers.

Inclement weather does not halt the picnics either for most of these parks have excellent comfortable shelter houses or community houses.

French Babies Protected From Gas Attack

In the event of war and threat of gas attacks, French babies under two years of age will be protected by means of a respiratory device which is connected with the gas mask of the mother. Not strong enough to open the air vents in a regulation gas mask, they are protected by this means. The baby's covering is made of fireproof silk. Professor Le Mee, left, invented the device.

SCIENCE FORECASTS POWER FROM ATOM EXPLOSIONS

WASHINGTON. — An "atomic age," in which power will be generated by unlocking the energy of the atom and scientists will create explosions which they may be unable to control, may not be far distant, according to Dr. R. J. Dunning of Columbia university.

Recent experiments "have revolutionized the thinking of physicists" who formerly scoffed at talk of unlocking atomic energy, Dr. Dunning explains, and "perhaps the age of atomic power is not as far distant as many physicists have believed."

It may be possible in the future to harness such power by disintegrating uranium inside a "flash boiler" and capturing the heat released from individual atoms, he points out. The process would be one of placing an almost infinitesimal amount of uranium in a tiny metal bomb, which would be surrounded by a thick shield of water or paraffin.

The hydrogen atoms in the water or paraffin would act as brakes to slow down fast neutrons shot into them, thus generating slow neutrons, which are the only ones effective in creating atomic disintegrations. When the slow neutrons, moving with energies of from 600,000 to 1,000,000 volts, hit the uranium atoms and explode them, the energy released would heat the water to 1,000 degrees or more instantaneously. The remainder of the problem would be to utilize the heat generated for driving machinery or electrical dynamos.

At the present time most slow neutrons are captured, or absorbed, by the uranium atoms and result only in the production of gamma rays, identical with those emanating from radium.

Just 160 Years Ago the Doors of the Jail In Historic Williamsburg, Va., Clanged Shut Behind One of "Most Hated Men in America"

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

IT IS a June morning in the year 1779. Citizens of Williamsburg, Va., out for a stroll along its elm-shaded sidewalks, glance curiously at a procession that is plodding up historic Duke of Gloucester street. In the center of the group of armed men ride two horsemen. They are clad in the uniform of British army officers but its scarlet brilliance is now dusty and travel-stained. They ride with bowed heads, leaning dejectedly over their saddle horns on which rest their hands, held closely together by bracelets of iron.

Who are these two captives at whom the passers-by in old Williamsburg are staring? That one in the lead, who lifts his head long enough to give back at them a coldly contemptuous glance is one of the most hated men in America. For he is Henry Hamilton, until a few months ago British governor-general of the Western outpost of Detroit. The Kentucky frontiersmen call him the "Hair Buyer General" because they believe he has been offering his Indian allies a higher price for scalps than for prisoners.

His companion is Capt. Guillaume La Mothe, a famous French-Canadian partisan leader, who is held responsible for some of the scalping raids against the Kentucky settlements. But his raiding days are over now, for when George Rogers Clark and his heroic band of Kentuckians besieged Fort Sackville in the old French town of Vincennes and forced Hamilton and his garrison to surrender, La Mothe, recently returned from one of his forays, was among those who were taken prisoners.

The story of George Rogers Clark's epic march across the "Drowned Lands" from Kaskaskia to Vincennes and his capture of that post is a familiar one to every American. But the school histories, always more concerned with the victor than with the vanquished, while paying a well-deserved tribute to Clark's prowess, have little to say about the subsequent fate of his adversary. This article proposes to tell the "aftermath of Vincennes" because it is a chapter in the history of Williamsburg, whose recent restoration to its former glories as the colonial capital of Virginia causes thousands of Americans to make patriotic pilgrimages there every year.

Hamilton's Story

That "aftermath" can best be told, perhaps, in the words of the man who experienced it—Hamilton himself. In July, 1781, the ex-governor of Detroit sat himself down in his lodgings in Jermyn street, London, and wrote a long report to his superior officer, Gen. Sir Frederick Haldimand, governor-general of Canada. That report, which is still preserved in England, tells in detail how he was besieged by Clark and his Kentuckians at Vincennes, how he surrendered, how he and his men were sent as prisoners of war first to the Falls of the Ohio (Louisville, Ky.) and then to Virginia. He then continues:

"On the 26th. (May, 1779) A Rebel Captain, with a Guard marched us from Beaver dam to Richmond, from thence to Chesterfield, where we remain'd till the 15th. June, on which day an Officer having a written order under the hand of the Governor of the Province Thomas Jefferson for taking me in Irons to Williamsburgh. I was accordingly handcuff'd, put upon a horse, and my servant not being suffered to go with me, my Valise was fasten'd behind me—Captn Lamothe was order'd to accompany me, being in like manner handcuff'd—The fatigues of the march having heated my blood to a violent degree I had several large boils on my legs, my handcuffs were too tight but were eased at a Smiths shop on the road thus sometimes riding and sometimes walking we arrived the 2d evening at Williamsburgh having come 60 Miles—We were conducted to the Palace where we remain'd about half an hour in the Street at the Governors door, in wet cloaths, weary, hungry, and thirst, but had not even a cup of water offered to us—During this time a considerable Mob gather'd about us, which accompanied us to jail—On our arrival there we were put into a cell, not ten feet square where we found five criminals and Mr. Dejean who was also handcuff'd.

"This poor man could not refrain from tears on seeing our equipment. We had the floor for a bed, the 5 felons were as happy as rum could make them and so we were left to our repose for that night.

Old jail at Williamsburg, Va., in which Gen. Henry Hamilton was held prisoner. (Picture taken before the restoration)

"The next day we three were taken out about 11 oClock, and before a number of people our handcuffs taken off and fetters put on in exchange—I was honored with the largest which weighed eighteen pounds eight ounce—As I thought oppertunities might not offer frequently, and seeing some of the delagates present, I took occasion while my irons were rivetting to speak a few words.

"I told them that the ignominious manner in which we were treated without any proof of criminality, or any hearing, without even a crime being laid to our charge, was a reproach to those only who could act in that manner by prisoners of War, under the sanction of a Capitulation—That after a proceeding so unjust I was prepared for any extremity, but desired the persons present to observe that punishment was exercised on us before any enquiery had taken place or any person who might have accused us being confronted with us—some by their gestures appeared to feel for us, but no one utter'd a word, and when our fetters were properly fixed we were remanded to our Dungeon from which the five felons were removed—The light we received was from a grate, which faced the Court of 20 feet square with walls 30 feet high—The prison having been built 60 Years it may be conceived we were subject to one very offensive convenience, in the heat of summer almost suffocating, our door was only open'd to give us water, we were not allowed any candle, and from the first to the last of our confinement we never could find that the Governor or Council had order'd provision of any kind to be made for us except Water with which we were really very well supplied.

GEN. HENRY HAMILTON

"Having been by order of the Governor (with the advice of his Council) prohibited the use of pen Ink and paper, or the converse of any one but our Jailor we had no employment but in our reflections . . .

"August 31st.—Major Hay with other Prisoners from Chesterfield arrived at Williamsburgh, the Soldiers were confined in the debtors room, the officers 5 in Number were put into the Dungeon with us which made the heat intolerable.

"At eleven at night we were obliged to alarm the prisoners in the next cell who pass'd the word to the Guard for the Jailor, our Surgeon being on the point of suffocating an asthma to which he was Subject having seized him at this time with that violence that he lost his pulse for ten minutes, we had tried by wafting a Blanket to draw some air thro' the grate but this was insufficient and if he had not had presence enough of mind to open a vein, he would probably have expired, for the state of the air was such that a Candle with which we had lately been indulged, would barely live if held at the top of the Cell.

"The door of our Cell continuing shut for several days, the poor prisoners Young and old, Men and Women, offered to be lock'd up and debarr'd the use of the court, if we might be allow'd that liberty, which at length we had.

"October 1st. — A Parole was tendered us which having read and duly considered we all rejected, as some people thought a spirit of obstinacy rather than prudence dictated on this occasion . . .

"As we had suffer'd already from the simple assertions of obscure persons, one of whom was John Dodge was well known by several Virginias to be an unprincipled and perjured renegado and as we had experienced the unhumanity of the executive power, It plainly appeared that this parole was offer'd from no other motive than to lay us open to the malice of the first informer, when we should probably have been imprisoned as before, with the additional Stigma of having broken a parole, which it was next to impossible to observe in all its parts.

"October the 9th. The Soldiers were sent from the Jail to the Barrack, where being allowed to cut wood a part was sent to the Jail for us, and even the American soldiers on guard, tho' miserably bare of clothing themselves, used to spare a part of their own fuel for the dressing our victuals.

"On Christmas Day the Soldiers were march'd away to King William County—The weather at this time became so intensely cold, that we could not rise from the floor but continued day and night in our blankets, The scurvy began to make it's appearance, and our legs to swell—The Jailor then concluding we could not survive the severity of the cold in our present situation, took us to an upper room in the Jail, where prisoners had formerly been kept, this tho it had no window but an open grate was more tolerable than the Dungeon, we could light a fire in the Chimney and by sacrificing part of our blankets to stop the grated window and stuff the cracks in the cieling we made a shift to endure in the daytime, at night we were remanded to our Dungeon.

His Captivity Ends

"August 1st. (1780) We were march'd from Williamsburgh—Major Hay and I sent to the Jail at Chesterfield—Captn La Mothe and Mr. Dejean some time in last October accepted the parole formerly recejected, the former went to Hanover, the latter wen to Coll Clarke but what is become of him, I have not since learn'd."

Thus the captivity of the "Hair Buyer General" in old Williamsburg ended. The severity of his treatment was due in large part to John Dodge, whom Hamilton calls an "unprincipled and perjured renegado" (a characterization, incidentally, which American historians indorse). Dodge had been a trader in Detroit whom Hamilton had imprisoned for suspected disloyalty but who managed to escape and return to the East. Then, according to Milo M. Quaife, in the book "The Capture of Old Vincennes" (published in 1927 by the Bobbs-Merrill company):

"Gifted with a fluent tongue and a pliable conscience, Dodge sought to revenge himself upon his former adversary by representing to the Virginia authorities that Hamilton at Detroit had been guilty of repeated violations of the recognized laws of warfare and of humanity. Relying upon this highly untrustworthy testimony, Governor Jefferson declined to accord Hamilton the treatment due an honorable prisoner of war; instead, he was made the scapegoat of the now odious system of warfare it had been his duty to administer, and was long treated as a common felon; at length General Washington interposed his powerful influence in opposition to this procedure and Hamilton obtained his exchange and was allowed to return to England"

Is History Unfair In Recalling Him as "Hair Buyer General"?

Not only does this distinguished historian (Dr. Milo M. Quaife, secretary of the Burton Historical Collection in the Detroit Public library) show that Hamilton was very unjustly treated while a prisoner at Williamsburg, but he also doubts if history has dealt fairly with the Britisher in perpetuating his "Hair Buyer General" title. Four years ago the Burton Historical Collection was presented with the ledgers and account books of Alexander and William Macomb, fiscal agents for the British government at Detroit during the Revolution. Nowhere in these records, according to Dr. Quaife, is there any reference to the purchase of scalps.

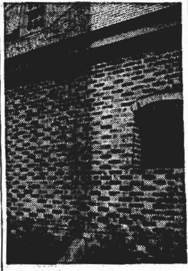
In an interview with Dr. Quaife which Ralph L. Peters of the Detroit News staff obtained at that time, the historian said:

"I am convinced that Hamilton hasn't been given a fair deal—in more modern parlance, he hasn't been given much of a break.

"Now I have no desire to make a hero of Hamilton. It is entirely true that Hamilton, as lieutenant-governor of Detroit, sent out Indian parties to attack the frontier settlements. It is true that these war parties committed innumerable outrages. Those are facts—and they are terrible facts.

"But it seems only fair to point out that, in sending out such parties, Hamilton was doing no differently than Montcalm, Sir William Johnson and many others before him—and as others did after him without receiving the censure that accrued to him.

"There is De Peyster, for example, the man who took command at Detroit after Hamilton had marched to Vincennes and been captured by Clark. De Peyster continued to send out war parties against the Kentucky settlements just as Hamilton had done. The Indians committed outrages—but De Peyster has come down to the present day as pretty much of a popular figure.



Window of Hamilton's cell in the restored Williamsburg jail.

"Hamilton and De Peyster were not responsible for the raiding parties. They were acting under orders. The responsibility rests squarely on the king and the ministry at home. Hamilton and De Peyster were agents of the government, discharging the duties imposed on them.

"Indian warfare was a terrible thing. I certainly have no desire to condone it. Here was the situation, however. England and the Colonies were at war. As far as England was concerned, it was a civil war, a rebellion. The English wanted to hold the territory north of the Ohio. There were but a few white soldiers available—so they turned to the Indians.

"In taking that action, no matter how much we may deplore it today, the fact remains they were doing what every civilized nation has done through the ages—employing savage allies when they were needed. As recently as the World war, you will recall, the major powers used native forces to aid them in battle.

"Jefferson included in the Declaration of Independence an indictment of the king for using 'merciless Indian savages' against the colonists—yet the Continental congress was not slow in making overtures for like employment of the savages.

"However the Indian warfare may have seemed to the settlers against whom it was directed, it is wholly unfair for posterity to single out Hamilton for peculiar responsibility or infamy. Yet, upon him George Rogers Clark fixed the dreadful name 'the Hair Buyer' and by this he remains even to the present time.

"I have been able to find no evidence, when properly examined to show that Hamilton ever bought a scalp. On the other hand, there is evidence to show that he made repeated efforts to control the savage instincts of the Indians. He denied, in private reports to his superiors, and to Jefferson and others as well, that he ever bought a scalp.

"Those are some of the reasons why I feel that Hamilton was not as bad as he has been pictured—that he hasn't been given a fair hearing."

Who'll Get the Call for 1940? It May Be One of These Men

TODAY a host of Presidential aspirants crowd the political scene, but their numbers will be sifted down to one Democrat and one Republican before another year is out, leading to the 1940 election. President Roosevelt has yet to decline a third term offer. Provided he does not run, astute observers say they're positive one of the following men will occupy the White House seat. Picture Parade "thumbnails" their careers:

● G. O. P.—Arthur Hedrick Vandenberg, 55, senator from his native Michigan since 1928, former newspaper man at Grand Rapids. Not highly popular because he's refused to advance his candidacy, therefore might loom as a compromise choice because of unquestioned ability he has shown in the senate.

● G. O. P.—Thomas Edmund Dewey, 37, native of Michigan and racket-busting New York district attorney since 1937. Ranks first among Republicans now but must win support of doubting Thomases who question his lack of administrative experience. Barely missed New York governorship last year.

● G. O. P.—Robert Alphonso Taft, 50, career Cincinnati lawyer, son of late President William Howard Taft, ranks second to Dewey, gaining tremendous support in short period since he was elected U. S. senator last autumn. Ambitious, he has lost no opportunity to gain public attention.

● DEMOCRAT — John Nance Garner, 71, U. S vice president since 1933, U. S. representative from his native Texas from 1903 to 1933. Won't talk, but tolerates congress-sponsored boom which has skyrocketed him to the post of No. 1 Democratic possibility. Advanced age is biggest handicap.

● DEMOCRAT — James Aloysius Farley, 51, career New York business man and politician. Postmaster general since 1933. Democratic national chairman since 1932. Might be vice presidential candidate with Garner or Cordell Hull (see right). Is nation's most astute and most popular politician.

● DEMOCRAT—Cordell Hull, 68, quiet, cultured U. S. secretary of state since 1933. Former (1907-21 and 1923-31) representative from Tennessee; senator from Tennessee 1931-33. Author of federal income tax system, father of new U. S. trade policy. Like Garner, he suffers from the age handicap.

● G. O. P.—William Edgar Borah, 74, senator from Idaho since 1907 and former chairman of powerful senate foreign relations committee since 1924. Perennial candidate, unquestionably able, but would probably refuse candidacy and throw his weighty support in favor of a younger man.

● G. O. P.—Herbert Clark Hoover, 65, President of U. S. from 1929 to 1933; secretary of commerce, 1921-29; famed as U. S. food administrator, 1917-19. Now regaining much popularity he lost in early '30s, but liberal Republicans fear he would be an "old line" candidate.

● G. O. P.—Alfred Mossman Landon, 52, governor of Kansas from 1933 to 1937. Republican presidential candidate in 1936. Has grown in political stature since his defeat that year, but many Republicans fear placing their money on a horse which lost its first important race.

● DEMOCRAT — Harry L. Hopkins, 49, native of Iowa, career welfare worker. New York state relief administrator, 1931-33; federal relief chief, 1933-38; U. S. secretary of commerce since then. Would be President Roosevelt's choice as successor. Has surprised critics by doing good job in commerce.

● DEMOCRAT — Paul Vories McNutt, 48, career politician and "activity" man. Indiana university law dean, 1925-33; American Legion commander, 1928-29; Indiana governor, 1933-37; Philippine commissioner since 1937. Might pull heavy vote from war veterans, but unknown nationally.

● DEMOCRAT—Joseph Patrick Kennedy, 51, career financier. Extremely versatile. Headed securities and exchange commission, 1934-35; headed maritime commission 1937; ambassador to Britain since then. Best qualification: Is New Dealer yet has confidence of big business men because he is one of them.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Dr. Alfred C. Elliott, Pastor

Sunday, June 4—In the famous picture "The Man With the Muck-Rake," a man is shown raking in the mire for bits of earthly tinsel, while above him bends abeautiful angel holding out to him a crown o flight and glory. But the man is so engrossed in his sordid search for the trivialities of earth that he never looks up, and so fals to see the angel hovering above him and offering to him the greatest treasure of all, the crown of everlasting life and joy. The picture portrays a great truth. Millions of men and women are so eager for material gains, their eyes are so fastened on earthly baubles, that they become blind to the reality and value of spiritual things. They think only of the temporal and forget the eternal. Thee Apostle Paul tells us that "the things that are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal." The upward look is very essential if we are to see the things that are of supreme value and abiding. Religion directs our thought to spiritual values and helps us in our quest for them. That is why we urge people, young and old, and middle-aged, to go to church. Union church invites you to come and bring your children to the Sunday school which meets every Sunday at 9:45 a. m., under the direction of Superintendent J. P. Garber, assisted by a staff of well-trained and experienced teachers. We have classes for all ages, and in our adult classes we have discussions of practical value which you will enjoy.

The morning service of worship will be held at 11 o'clock when Dr. Elliott will speak on "The Upward Look." Duet by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Garber. This hour of spiritual worship will lift your thought to higher things and will help and strengthen you for the duties and responsibilities of the week. The Young People's Pilgrim Fellowship will meet at 7:00 p. m. Lillian Bennett will lead the meeting and Mildred Wray will introduce the topic, "Our Attitude Toward Law."

The Ladies' Aid will hold an all-day sewing meeting and covered dish luncheon on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. L. E. Bass. The "Quiet Hour" service will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. Brief address bl the pastor. Forty-five minutes of fellowship and inspirthis brief service of prayer and ation. Turn aside from the cares of life for awhile and join us in meditation. The services of this friendly church are open to you and you are assured of a hearty welcome.

"You'll see lots more with me," Clint promised. "This is a bum one, really." And he urged: "Let's start home. We can drive slowly and—be together without so many people round. Unless you want to see the rest of this?"

June—a little reluctantly—professed a complete lack of interest in the film; yet she looked back wistfully as they went up the aisle. Upon their arrival, she had not removed her coat till they reached their seats; but now in the lobby she expected some word from him about her new gown. When he said nothing, merely offered to help her into her coat, she protested:

"You haven't noticed my dress. Don't you think it's nice?"

Clint stood back to survey her, chuckling. "Sure, grand!" he declared. He came close to her again. "But what you wear doesn't make any difference to me, June."

"Asa gave it to me!"

"Asa?" Clint echoed, frowning faintly. "Why?"

She slipped her arms into the sleeves of the coat he held. "He told me to wear it to catch a young man!" she confessed, laughing up at him over her shoulder. "He knows about you and me."

Clint chuckled with pleasure. "It will be my turn to buy pretty things for you soon," he said happily; and her hand tightened on his arm as they went out to the car.

They drove slowly, Clint clinging to this hour; and when they came in front of the great sprawling house at last, he stopped and turned off the lights, and said urgently:

"Let's sit here a few minutes. You don't have to go right in."

"I must, soon," she urged, yet made no move to leave.

They found no great need of words. They were snug in the car, the windows raised against the rain. There was a light in the rear part of the Taine house; and June said, with a ripple of mirth in her tones:

"Uncle Justus is still asleep in his chair. If no one wakes him up, he may sleep there all night."

"Is that his room?" Clint asked, surprised.

"No, he's in the kitchen." Her tone was mirthful. "He likes to warm his feet in the oven door."

"Who's sitting up over there?" he asked, nodding in the other direction.

"Aunt Evie and Asa are staying with Grandma Bowdon," she explained. "Rab had to go to Providence."

They felt, rather than heard, a low rumble of sound; and Clint said: "Hullo, that was thunder. I didn't see a flash."

"I did, out of the corner of my eye," she told him. "Off through the woods that way." She pointed past the houses; and she said, and he heard her voice shake: "We had a thunder-shower the night Mother died. A terrible one. And she added:

"Uncle Justus has turned out his light. The thunder must have wakened him." Clint saw that the Taine house was indeed dark now; and then June cried, a sudden tension in her tones: "Clint, look!"

"What?" he asked, surprised; and he stared past her.

There was a faint brightness, in the shape of a rectangle, against the front of the Hurder house. The brightness assumed color; and Clint reached across the girl to lower the window so that he might see more clearly. That rectangle identified itself as the open front door of the house, outlined in red.

And suddenly this dull red became bright; they saw the flicker of a flame.

They scrambled out together; they started to race across the lawn. As they did so, a car passed along the road behind them, and Clint turned back and shouted:

"Hey, fire! Ring in an alarm!"

He saw the driver dimly, saw the man's head nod. Then he ran after June toward the house, toward that front door through which billows of smoke began to pour. He caught her on the steps, caught her fast; for she would have gone headlong in. And she was crying:

"Grandpa! Grandma!"

When Clint held her, she swung to him in terror, beseeching him. "They're in there, Clint. Oh, quick, dear!"

CHAPTER X

Miss Moss had never seen June Leaford, and as she watched Clint's increasing devotion to the girl, during the fortnight after Mrs. Leaford died, this fact sometimes disturbed her.

She said to Tope one evening: "I've been—asking about her, here and there. You know Lissa Thayer. I've spoken to you about her."

"I know her, yes," Tope assented.

"Lissa and I have become almost friends," Miss Moss explained. "She knows about Clint and June. He often leaves his car there when he goes in to the cabin. And Asa and Rab buy gas there for their car. She says Rab is—unpleasantly familiar sometimes, too friendly, offensive. She doesn't say much about Asa, but I think she knows him rather well."

Tope reminded her: "Asa went to see her, the morning after Mrs. Leaford died. Remember? We met him in the woods, and you saw him down there."

"I remember," Miss Moss agreed. "It didn't seem to me she was glad to see him, that day . . . You know—I've been trying to guess who will inherit the Bowdon fortune, now that Mr. Bowdon is dead. And Mr. Hurder's money, when he dies. Mrs. Leaford would have been Mr. Hurder's heir, you know."

Inspector Tope stared at her.

"You could outjump a kangaroo, Mrs. Tope," he said, in a deep admiration. "You're three jumps ahead of me." He rose. "You've given me enough to think about to keep me awake," he said. "And I had as much as I could stand already. Let's go to bed."

Hours later, however, something disturbed Miss Moss. Her eyes opened and she lay listening. Inspector Tope here in the bed beside her was sleeping. Then she heard again the sound which had roused her a moment ago.

And then Asa came—

It was the doorbell, ringing in a long peal, shrill and imperious.

In a swift haste she snapped on the shaded light beside her bed and found dressing-gown and slippers. Then the doorbell rang again, and Inspector Tope woke and asked:

"What's the matter?"

"Someone at the door," she said softly. She went out along the hall to the living-room, and heard the Inspector bestir himself behind her, but she did not wait for him. She came to the front door and opened it; and she uttered a low ejaculation of surprise and of dismay.

For Clint stood there, with a girl in the circle of his arm; and they were both smoke-begrimed, their faces sooted and dirty and streaked with water. Also, Clint's forehead was red and inflamed in a streak across above his eyes, and his eyebrows were singed, and she saw in that first glance an angry blister on the back of his right hand.

He said grimly: "Miss Moss, here's my June. I've brought her home!"

"You're hurt!" Miss Moss cried. She remembered to welcome the girl too. "Come in, both of you. Miss Leaford—"

June whispered: "His hands are burned! I wanted him to stop and get them fixed, but he wouldn't. Oh, take care of him."

Tope uttered a low ejaculation; he stood blinking in the light. There was a moment's silence; and then Clint, his arm still encircling June, added slowly:

"Mr. and Mrs. Hurder—we got them out; but—"

Miss Moss saw June shudder and tremble, and she spoke commandingly.

"Come in," she directed; and as they obeyed, she shut the door behind them. "Miss Leaford, are you hurt too?" she asked.

"No, no," June told her. "You must fix Clint. I'm all right."

Miss Moss nodded. "Don't try to talk," she insisted. "Clint, sit down. Miss Leaford, come help me. Soda, I think, is as good as anything. He needs to be cleaned up, too. And you'll want to wash your face, I expect."

"I don't matter," June said. "But Clint's burned terribly."

Clint protested with a wry smile: "Now, sweet, it's just this blister on my hand. That's nothing at all."

They found in the end that he had in fact suffered no more than minor burns on his hands and wrists, and that flame-stroke on his brow.

"I wrapped a wet handkerchief across my mouth," he explained. "To keep the smoke out. Had my hat on, and that helped too."

Miss Moss said cheerfully: "You've no more eyebrows now than a baby, Clint; and not much in the way of eyelashes." She was busy tending him.

Clint whispered, through set teeth: "That's a lot more comfortable." Miss Moss ached for him. He grinned at June, said then to the older woman: "This sweet kid has come to live with you for a while, Miss Moss. It won't be long. Just till she comes to live with me."

Miss Moss looked at June, and saw in the girl's eyes something like a plea for forgiveness; and June said softly: "He's talked so much about you. I know you must be hating me."

Miss Moss smiled fondly. "No, dear," she said gently. "No, I'm glad for both of you."

Inspector Tope chuckled. "Well, now that's all settled, to the satisfaction of the womenfolks," he suggested. "How about me? Miss Leaford, do you mind if I ask what happened? You mind telling me?"

June shook her head. "No," she said in a dull tone. "No. I'd rather talk, I think, than not." She made an uncertain gesture. "I'm—I feel as though I were walking in my sleep," she confessed. "It doesn't seem real to me."

Miss Moss said briskly: "We'll have a cup of chocolate; all feel better. June, come help me, will you?" She led the girl toward the kitchen, called over her shoulder: "Inspector Tope, let Clint rest till we come back. I want to hear."

But Clint said: "I don't want to rest." His tone suddenly was grim. "Let's go with them, Inspector," he suggested; and Miss Moss saw them come on her heels. In the little kitchen, while she was busy about the electric stove, Clint sat on the sink and drew June close beside him; and these two told what there was to tell.

"I'd taken June to see a picture," Clint explained. "But the picture didn't seem to mean much to us, so we left early, drove back to her house. And—parked outside for a little while.

"We sat there talking awhile, and then she saw that the house was on fire."

Tope nodded; and June explained: "I must have left the front door open when I came out, or else I didn't latch it and it blew open; because we saw the flames in the front hall." And Clint continued:

"So we started to run toward the house. A car passed, and I shouted to the driver to ring in an alarm. By that time June was on the front steps. I caught her just in time. She was going in. The smoke was pouring out of the door, and there were flames inside; but she told me Mr. and Mrs. Hurder were in there."

He held June closer, and she watched him with wide eyes.

"It was raining," he explained. "I wet my handkerchief in the rain, and wrapped it over my mouth and started to crawl in the hall. But the smoke drove me back, and then June said they slept in the wing, on the ground floor; so we ran around the house to the windows of their room."

He hesitated, then went on: "The windows were shut, and the curtains were drawn, but some of the curtains were on fire. The windows were all shut tight. I managed to climb up and break the glass, with my pocket-knife for a hammer. I reached in and sprung the catch and pushed the window open. I guess that's when I burned this hand; because when I opened the window a gush of flame came out in my face, and I let go all holds and fell."

He looked at June.

"I fell on her," he said. "She was right under me. I fell on top of her."

"I didn't hurt," June insisted.

"So we tried to get in through the bathroom," Clint explained. "There wasn't any fire in there, so I got that window up and climbed in; but when I opened the door into their room, it was all on fire inside. Fire was spouting out of the wall right beside the bathroom door."

"The laundry-chute is there," June interrupted.

"And it was roaring in the cellar," Clint confessed. "I could feel it hot under my feet. The smoke was pretty bad. Then a piece of the floor in front of me burned through; and then the flames licked up at me, and I had to back out and shut the bathroom door."

"But you said you got them out," Tope reminded him. "Mr. and Mrs. Hurder."

"I'm coming to that," Clint explained. "We tried another window, right beside their beds. I smashed it open, and smoke poured out, but no flames. So I straddled the sill and my foot hit their bed inside." He spoke rapidly, his eyes fixed straight ahead. "I felt someone, and I dragged Mrs. Hurder up and lowered her out of the window to June, and then him. The bed was all afire, little flames."

And he said, looking at the girl beside him: "They weren't burned much, I don't think. We were just in time. The fire spread awfully fast."

Inspector Tope suggested: "Fire department must have been there by then!"

Clint shook his head. "No, they weren't! They didn't get there till after Mrs. Taine did. Not till after Asa did, as a matter of fact. June and I had been pretty busy, but it must have been quite a while."

Miss Moss echoed: "Mrs. Taine?"

"You see," Clint explained, "Mrs. Taine and Asa were staying with Mrs. Bowdon last night. Mrs. Taine said they didn't hear anything till their lights went out, and she went to look at the fuses, and saw the fire through the pantry window. She came running over, just about the time we got the old people out; and then Asa came. He and I carried them into the Bowdon house, out of the rain. And Mrs. Taine and June started taking care of them. But June came out again when I did."

"Were they dressed?" Tope asked. "Mrs. Taine and Asa?"

"Oh, yes," Clint said casually; and he went on: "By the time the fire engines came, one wing was all afire, and the other was well started; and they couldn't get the plug off the hydrant right away. There's only one hydrant and that was three or four hundred yards down the hill. The whole thing went, before they got it checked at all."

"Burn to the ground?"

"The floors fell in," Clint assented. "And part of the roof. I don't know; maybe the walls wouldn't go."

June's eyes were closed, and Miss Moss tried to sign to Inspector Tope to be still; but he asked insistently: "What about the others? Mr. Taine, and Rab? Where were they?"

It was June who answered: "Rab had gone to Providence right after supper," she said. "He had a case in court there tomorrow morning. And Uncle Justus is deaf. He wouldn't hear anything." She remembered: "We saw him turn out his light to go to bed, just before we saw the fire."

"Saw him?" Tope echoed.

"Saw his light go out," June amended. "In the kitchen. He liked to go to sleep in his chair after supper, and sometimes he didn't wake up at all. But we saw his light go out."

Finds Death Trees, Feared by Indians, Tribesmen Also Claim Aid in Gambling

"Trees of death," gnarled shrubs which are held in superstitious awe by Indians, have been discovered in a lonely canyon.

John W. Hilton, authority on desert lore, has disclosed that he found the trees after a long fight to overcome superstitious fears of Indians.

The sap of the "tree of death," or elephant tree, is believed by the Cahuilla Indians to be a deadly poison for doing away with enemies quietly, Mr. Hilton said.

They also believe, he said, that in the hands of medicine men it can drive away evil spirits and that, if prepared and used properly, it gives extra keen perception in playing pion and other gambling games.

The recently discovered trees are believed to be the farthest north on record.

"Knowing better than to ask direct questions about the fabled trees, I had to wait until some Indian told me about the whole affair," Mr. Hilton said. "Finally the son-in-law of a very old and powerful medicine man claimed to know where the tree was and agreed to lead me to the spot for $5.

"High up in the canyon we stopped, but the Indian, saying that the wind was blowing toward us from the tree, took a zig-zag course up a mountain so as to approach the tree from behind. But our search was fruitless. The guide decided that the tree did not wish to be found, and we went home.

"Later, however, a young educated Indian took me directly to the tree.

"The Indian guide stabbed the trunk of the tree and a blood-like substance oozed out."

Mr. Hilton then carefully plucked sample sprouts from the bush and took them to the government date gardens at India, where experts identified them as Bursera microphylla, or elephant tree.

Trees Used as Landmarks

Primitive man, traveling largely by foot, often found need of signs or markers. Tribes inhabiting forested regions knew that trees could be used as reliable landmarks; hence a system was developed whereby young trees were bent and secured in position so that the direction of the bend indicated the direction o' the route.

Our Education

GOD educates men by casting them upon their own resources. Man learns to swim by being tossed into life's maelstrom and left to make his way ashore. No youth can learn to sail his life-craft in a lake sequestered and sheltered from all storms, where other vessels never come.

Skill comes through sailing one's craft amidst rocks and bars and opposing fleets, amidst storms and whirls and counter-currents. Responsibility alone drives man to toil and brings out his best gifts.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

CARTER FIELD

It is generally accepted in Washington that James A. Farley is out for the Democratic nomination for himself . . . Factors that lead to the popular underestimation of the importance of his candidacy . . . Drive for the investigation of the assassination of Senator Huey Long brings out a mass of contradictory and a few circumstantial stories that are being circulated in Louisiana and in Washington.

WASHINGTON.—Anyone who discounts Mr. James A. Farley in picking the next Democratic nominee for the presidency is leaving out a very important factor indeed.

J. A. Farley

Big Jim is out for the nomination himself. It is entirely within the realm of possibility that he may get it, the experience of the party in nominating Alfred E. Smith to the contrary notwithstanding. But an element of this situation which has not received the attention it deserves is that of all the men who have been mentioned for the nomination, including President Roosevelt himself, there is no one who will have more influence in controlling where his delegates go, if and when they leave him, than Jim Farley.

Politicians of course are human. They are pretty much like everybody else. They look out for No. 1 first, and the double cross is no more a rarity in politics than it is in business, on the stage, or wherever else human interests run into conflict.

But there is one feature of politics which is just a little different. In the nature of things there cannot be binding written contracts in politics. There is no means of making a livelihood where so much reliance has to be placed on promises—and on verbal promises, for the shrewd politician does not put into writing the sort of promises that are important here.

Farley Has Reputation For Keeping His Promises

It so happens that besides a genius for organization, as he proved when he lined up the delegates for Roosevelt in 1932, Jim Farley has an enviable reputation for keeping his promises. Sometimes he has been prevented from delivering—by White House intervention—but there have been no reports of any important political leader thinking that Jim double-crossed him.

When Farley could not deliver it was always a glaring case of the White House refusing to come across. It was never another friend of Farley who got the job.

Meanwhile, in the seven years that have passed, Farley has kept up his contacts. He has not forgotten any politician's first name, nor his problems, nor his friends, and, perhaps more important than all, his enemies. No one catches Farley handing out pie to some chap who happens to be the bitter opponent of anyone who has been going down the line for Farley.

It may be remembered that Farley did not sympathize with the purge, except perhaps in the one case of Sen. Millard E. Tydings, and that he took no part in it whatever. It was the Brain Trusters, the Corcorans and Cohens and Hopkinses, who stumped their toes in Iowa, in Virginia, in Georgia and South Carolina.

There may be something that Farley has done to irritate the regular organization leaders in some state, but reports about it have not reached Washington. And never forget that in virtually every one of the states it will be the regular organization leaders, primary or no primary, who will pick the delegates, and who will be the leaders of their state delegations at the convention.

Importance of Farley's Candidacy Underestimated

Popular underestimation of the importance of James A. Farley's candidacy is due to two factors:

1. Belief that the defeat of Alfred E. Smith in 1928 proved that no Catholic can be elected President of the United States.

2. Lack of appreciation of Farley's political shrewdness and demonstrated loyalty to his friends, and the dividends these two assets might pay.

As to the first, argument is futile. Nobody knows. It might be pointed out in passing, however, that Al Smith was weighed down by other elements than the prejudice which existed against his church in gaining a foothold in the White House.

For one thing 1928 marked the high tide of prohibition. Up to that time the argument that prohibition was largely responsible for the extraordinary prosperity which existed in this country under Coolidge had not been dissipated by its collapse under Hoover. At that time also most people in this country assumed that prohibition was here to stay, that all agitation about it was futile, and that the thing to do was to try to get along under it.

Al Smith was also tarred with the Tammany brush, and few New Yorkers will ever realize just how wicked and corrupt most of the folks out in the country thought the "Tiger" was.

Herbert Hoover

Hoover had a perfect army of almost fanatical admirers, scattered in every state in the Union. Business men thought he could expand the Coolidge prosperity, for which they already gave him some credit because he had been secretary of commerce during it. Engineers thrilled at the idea of one of their number occupying the White House, and thought he would produce such efficiency in government as had never been seen before.

For these and other reasons the cards were stacked against Smith. Perhaps he would have been beaten anyhow, just because of the religious issue.

Southern Hoovercrats Forgotten Men of Politics

But those who led the Hoovercrats in the South are the forgotten men of politics. There is not one of them in important political place today save Frank R. McNinch, and he flourishes not because he bolted Smith, but because he agrees with Roosevelt and most of the liberals on the public power issue.

This is important now, in view of Farley's candidacy, because everyone in the South knows all about it. No one is going to take the place played by Bishop Cannon in 1928, even if Northern suckers hoping for cabinet jobs and diplomatic posts could be found again to finance such a movement. No Horace Mann is going to play the "man of mystery" in another presidential campaign. Not until an entirely new crop of Southern politicians is reared, a generation which does not remember what happened to the men who "won the war and lost the peace treaty" under Hoover.

If Farley should be nominated for President he will have to be beaten, if he is beaten at all, in the North and West.

The significance of this is that the Southern leaders will not be as much disturbed as they were in 1932 by fear of a repetition of 1928. Fear of Al Smith drove them to Roosevelt in 1932, at the convention. They may prefer various other candidates to Farley, but there will be no stampede to any candidate based on fear of the consequences of Farley's nomination.

Start Drive for Inquiry Into Murder of Huey Long

Apparently a drive has been started for an investigation of the assassination of Sen. Huey P. Long. It may not materialize, but if it does it certainly will spoil a lot of stories which are now being told in Louisiana—and Washington.

The writer spent two days in New Orleans recently, and listened to quite a few circumstantial stories of the killing of the Kingfish.

Some of the curious conflicts in stories told with the utmost positiveness are:

That the bullet fired by Dr. Weiss never struck Huey at all, the gun being knocked up by Huey himself just before Weiss could pull the trigger. That Huey was actually killed by a bullet fired by one of his body guards.

Against this the writer was told just as positively that Dr. Weiss held his gun within a few inches of Huey's chest, and that Huey knocked it downward. And that there was no other wound save that caused by Weiss' bullet.

That the bullet which killed Huey was extracted by the surgeon who operated, and that it was a .44.

That the bullet which resulted in death passed through the senator and was never found.

That the bullet in question was a .32—the caliber of the pistol Dr. Weiss used.

Conflicting Stories About Dr. Weiss, Alleged Assassin

That Dr. Weiss was almost decapitated by the rain of bullets poured into him, and died instantly.

That Dr. Weiss lived for five minutes after the shooting stopped, most of the wounds being in his arms and legs.

That the pistol of Dr. Weiss was a cheap make.

That the pistol of Dr. Weiss was a modern, an expensive Browning.

That Dr. Weiss obtained the gun because he decided to kill Huey.

That Dr. Weiss always carried a gun, usually leaving it in his automobile.

That if Huey had been operated on right away he would not have died.

That he was suffering chiefly from shock, and hence the operation should not have been performed right away.

That he was suffering from loss of blood, and the delay was responsible for his death.

That it was by the Kingfish's impatient command that the doctor operated, instead of waiting for his own surgeons, supposed to be en-route.

Just what good an investigation would do is questionable.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Offers Practical Advice Regarding First Meal of the Day; Some Breakfast-Time Wisdom for Homemakers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

IF THERE is one meal that can be regarded as more important than any other, that meal is breakfast. It comes after the longest fast and precedes a major portion of the day's work. Thirteen hours elapse between a 6:30 supper and a 7:30 breakfast, and the body engine requires a new supply of fuel before the daily activities are begun. Yet all too frequently this first meal is inadequate in food values, and is gobbled in haste . . . with consequences that may have a far-reaching effect upon health.

Men who set forth after a meager breakfast are licked before the day's work is started. They never seem to get into high gear and they lack the energy to perform their tasks efficiently. Homemakers who find themselves fatigued and irritable before the morning's work is completed may be surprised to learn that their lassitude is due to a skimpy breakfast. And children who go to school after an insufficient morning meal cannot hope to make good grades in their studies. They fatigue quickly, find it difficult to concentrate and easily become cross. Moreover they are apt to experience hunger pangs during the middle of the morning; and when it is time for the noon meal they will either eat too much or will have lost their appetite, thus disrupting the entire food program.

Starting the Day Right

It is therefore essential that every homemaker recognize the necessity for providing a substantial and satisfying breakfast. This is not difficult to do; nor is it necessary to spend a great deal of time in its preparation.

When I hear such complaints as "My family won't eat breakfast" or "They're simply not interested in food in the morning," I suspect that the menus are dull and monotonous; and perhaps members of the household have the bad habit of sleeping so late that there is no time to eat properly.

Both situations are easily remedied, and they are closely linked. For if the breakfast menus are made sufficiently attractive, it won't be difficult to persuade every member of the family to rise a little earlier in order to enjoy a substantial, unhurried meal.

A Model Breakfast

A well balanced breakfast includes fruit or fruit juice; cereal; an egg or bacon; bread or toast; and milk, cocoa or cereal beverage for the children, with coffee for the grown-ups. The egg or bacon may be omitted occasionally, for an egg may be included in some other meal during the day. But cereal in some form is usually the mainstay of the breakfast menu, and there are many kinds from which to choose—both hot cereals and cold cereals.

Hot or Cold Cereal

Some people have the notion that cereals must be hot in order to be nourishing. This is a fallacy. For the nutritive value of a cereal is determined by the grain from which it is made and by the manufacturing process—not by whether it is hot or cold. It is desirable to give whole grain cereals a prominent place in the diet. This rule can be followed even when cold cereals are used. For there are many nourishing ready-to-eat cereals made from substantially the whole grain. These appeal to the palate because they are so crisp and appetizing. And they supply important minerals, a good amount of vitamin B and some vitamin G, in addition to energy values.

A Cold Cereal Analyzed

It's interesting to analyze a popular ready-to-eat cereal, made from wheat and malted barley. We find a wide assortment of nutrients, including protein, energy values, phosphorus for the teeth and bones; iron for building rich red blood; and vitamin B which promotes appetite and aids digestion. It has been estimated that a serving of this cereal—three-fourths of a cup—with one-fourth cup of whole milk, will provide an adult with 7 per cent of his total daily requirement of protein; 11.5 per cent of his calcium, 11.2 per cent of his phosphorus; 9.75 per cent of his iron, and a total of 125 calories.

Vary the Method of Serving

To help make breakfast interesting, vary the cereal from day to day. Or offer a choice of several kinds of packaged ready-to-eat cereals and allow each member of the family to select the one he prefers. Vary the fruit also. And occasionally you may combine fresh, canned or stewed fruit with cereals to make a "cereal sundae." Further variation may be introduced by using brown sugar or honey in place of white sugar. And on occasion the cereals may be baked into muffins, waffles or pancakes.

It is also possible to serve the eggs in many different forms—poached, baked, scrambled or in a plain or puffy omelet.

If these suggestions are followed, it should be a simple matter for homemakers to serve tempting wholesome breakfasts that will send their families away from the table well fitted for the day's activities.
