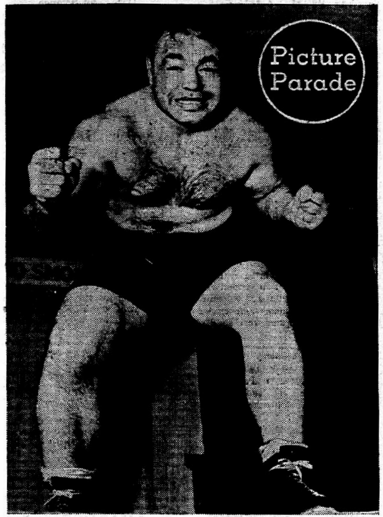
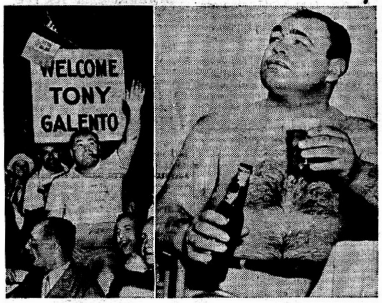
Tony Galento Gets His Chance At Louis' Heavyweight Crown



"Two Ton Tony" Galento of Orange, N. J., is the most unorthodox boxer in modern ring history. His big day is June 28 when an ambition of long standing is realized in his fight with Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis in Yankee stadium. Tony, who would rather make grimaces than get down to serious training, likes to pose for the cameraman and boast about his prowess, but he surprises scoffers by being a better fisticuffer than they think.



Barrel-chested Tony, who smokes big black cigars and drinks beer during training season (after biting off the bottle caps with his teeth) is shown at the left in Philadelphia last summer as he arrived to go into training for a fight. Tony spends his winters in Miami, close to the publicity cameras where last winter he squelched the ambitions of Abe Feldman and started a boasting campaign that resulted in his fight this month with Joe Louis. Tony calls Louis a "bum"; Joe calls Tony a "third rater" and everybody's happy.

They laughed last summer when Tony stepped into the ring at Detroit with Nate Brown, who, at the right, scoffingly watches his opponent "train" on a bicycle in a Detroit gymnasium. Note that Tony sports a cigar for the benefit of news cameramen. But the stocky Italian proved his mettle by knocking out Brown in the fourth round, the knockout punch being so forceful that it carried Galento clear off the canvas. There's pretty good evidence that—when nobody's looking—Tony does a lot of shadow boxing, roadwork and rope skipping. But is this boastful little tough guy big enough to floor Joe Louis? The world's about to find out!

Hunt Goes On, But Joe Louis Needn't Worry

By ROBERT McSHANE

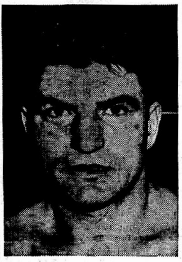
WHEN Lou Nova, the not-so-terrific California heavyweight, put an end to the comback hopes of Maxie Baer, former toast of the nation's night clubs, he did little toward clearing up an extremely foggy situation.

It may be that Nova—who elected to beat Baer the hard way, slugging it out with him—has Joe Louis' number. But that is highly debatable. Nova didn't look like a world's champion, even in beating Maxie to a bloody pulp. When he whipped Baer it was merely the case of a mediocre youngster who had more lasting power than the rapidly slipping vet who faced him.

There's no denying that Baer really trained for the fight. He knew it was his last chance in big time competition, and if he muffed it he was through. But a few weeks' training couldn't undo the many years he spent in becoming the greatest glamour boy in boxing history. He just didn't have it any more. He had to win in a hurry or Nova's youth would settle the issue. It did.

Lou, judged by the Louis standard, is far from being a great fighter. He is hard-working, conscientious and ambitious. But he hasn't a punch. Had he been equipped with even a touch of dynamite in either hand, he wouldn't have won his last fight by the technical knockout route. He would have stretched Maxie for the full count.

Fortunately, Baer wasn't injured badly enough to interrupt a successful career in the movies. As a matter of fact, and unlike most prize fighters, Baer wasn't a top-notch fighter padding his income with a few hammy performances for the movies. Instead, he was a second-rate song and dance artist, doing very well in the fight game. Merely a reversal of the usual procedure.



LOU NOVA

It is not at all unlikely that Nova will get his wish and meet the champion this fall. Which means that he will probably be rushing his big opportunity. In two years Nova will be a better fighter. He will be more experienced—more ring-wise. And if Louis should be inactive for several months, softened by luxurious living and a trifle ring-rusty, Nova's chances will be multiplied many times.

Not that Tony Galento should be ignored. This roly-poly swat maestro of the saloons is perhaps as close as any living fighter to Author Jack London's portrayal of the abysmal brute. At least for publicity purposes. However, it would be safe to assume that Galento has no place in championship ranks, at least judged by half-high standards.

No Revenge for Joe

Fans are said to be clamoring for a bout between Nova and Bob Pastor, the lad who so successfully ran away from Louis and managed to go the entire route. A clamor, by the way, is a sport promoter's definition of a casual street corner conversation between any two citizens. The idea of the fight, nevertheless, is deserving of consideration.

Undoubtedly Joe Louis would like to step into the ring once more with Pastor, who shouldn't even be classed with the champ. The big drawback to such an encounter would be the difficulty in promoting it. Boxing fans would wait months for an opportunity to take a short vacation from the town wherein the fight would be held. Pastor's drawing power is equal to Galento's lissome grace in the ring.

In all probability the search for new championship timber will extend beyond the dead wood which is still cluttering up the fight ring. One of several possibilities is Patrick Edward Comiskey, 18-year-old lad with the brogue of an Irish comedian. Some of boxing's best dreamers can slip into a rapid trance and envision him as Joe Louis' opponent in a 1941 championship bout. And that's looking a long way ahead. At the present time this glum young Irishman isn' at all dangerous. But the smart lads have picked him as a real comer.

There are several other future possibilities who may loom large on the fistic horizon by the time Louis is a couple of years older. When that time comes, the white hopes will have a better chance to unseat the champ.

Nocturnal Holdouts

A POLICY of resigned acceptance is slowly thinning the ranks of the big league magnates, 16 strong, who a few years ago declared that night baseball was a thing of evil, to be shunned as a plague.

Though there are a few staunch holdouts, a majority of the officials have not only seen the light, but they're asking for it as a steady diet. Lighting plants have already been installed in three major parks, and may be in a fourth before the current season draws to a close.

The first to break with precedent and inaugurate the novel idea was Larry McPhail, then business manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Baseball was becoming more or less of a dead issue in Cincinnati, and McPhail knew night baseball was the answer. Despite the protest of his fellow National league bosses, a lighting plant was brought into use, and a schedule of seven night games—one with each club—arranged.

Larry McPhail

The venture brought results. The field was again packed with howling fans. And though other club owners weren't enthusiastic about playing night baseball, they were willing to take a cut of the gates attracted by the nocturnal meetings.

When Larry moved to Brooklyn one of his first moves was to install lighting equipment. Results were the same as in Cincinnati. American league clubs began to evince interest, and soon permission was given St. Louis to erect a system. However, lights were never installed because no agreement could be reached with the St. Louis Nationals, who used the same park.

Mack Follows Suit

Last winter Connie Mack, Athletic chief, upset the dope by requesting that he be allowed to install a lighting unit. The Cleveland club followed suit.

It won't be long before other clubs fall in line. Connie Mack's first night game added one or two new converts, including Clark Griffith of Washington. And night baseball will be a decided attraction as long as clubs don't overdo it. Too many night games would spell disaster by ruining the novelty. Should officials be content with two night games per year with each club, then they can be assured of record-breaking crowds.

Comiskey's Chicago White Sox are expected to be playing under the lights before long. Since playing in Philadelphia, [illegible] like the idea, and the owner approves of it because of the additional revenue night games will mean. Many a loyal fan can't break away during the daytime, but would rush to find a place in line after working hours.

Throughout these United States are fans by the hundred thousands who are unable to attend week-day games. They would welcome the chance to do a little nocturnal rambling toward the ball park, and their gate offerings would do a great deal in restoring financial security to undernourished club treasuries.

Night baseball will always have a few enemies. Some players will object to it on technical grounds, and undoubtedly they are correct in asserting that electric lighting for baseball leaves something to be desired. Improved equipment has been a deciding factor in making night baseball more popular, and further improvements will do much to allay present antagonism.

Sport Shorts

BILLY ROSE'S Aquacade at the New York World's fair has the longest swimming pool in the world . . . Night baseball games can't run on indefinitely in the American league. That circuit has a rule prohibiting the start of an inning after 11:50 p. m. . . . Gunnar Barlund, who has been doing pretty well for himself in heavyweight fighting circles, doubles as a newspaper reporter for a Finnish newspaper . . . Jack Dempsey has gone into the clothing business, and plans on entering the radio field when television really gets underway . . . William J. Clarke has coached Princeton's baseball teams for a quarter of a century . . . Navy expects to have the heaviest backfield in its history next fall . . . The average light bill for a major league night game is $500 . . . Largest number of entrants in the history of the National Open golf championship was 1,402 in 1937. Smallest field was 11 in 1895 . . . Eddie Arcaro, Newport, Ky., jockey, who won $346,000 last year, was fired by his first boss after a year's trial and told he would never be a top-notch jockey . . . Gene Tunney is Tony Galento's favorite fighter . . . President Alva Bradley of the Cleveland Indians said the problem of the one-sided pennant race might be solved through rules governing control of minor league affiliates. That's one way to stop the Yanks. Pass a law! . . . Radio executives and program sponsors are beginning to worry about night baseball and program conflicts.

Frederick the Great Knew How To Rebuke a Grumbling Officer

It is a story they tell of Frederick the Great, how at one of his levees toward the end of his reign an old field officer came up and prayed a word with his majesty.

"Why not?" says Frederick, who loved his soldiers. "Step over to the window with me, good Herr Oberst. You were saying—"

"Majesty," says the Oberst, "I have spent my life in your service. My hair has grown gray, following your standard. My health is broken, my old body is covered with wounds, from your campaigns and your battles. And Majesty, all these hard years, all this toil, all these battles and marches count as nothing when I see younkers promoted over my head—children who were cadets when I led a company in your grenadiers. Look at so and so, look at that one—lieutenant generals, and I am still a major. Majesty, I grow to the end of my mortal term. For all my years of service, if for nothing else, grant me promotion."

The Prussian king took his arm and pointed to the window, where a picket line of artillery mules munched their straw.

"Major, you see those mules? You see the old flea-bitten mule at this end? They have made many campaigns; the old one, this way, has made 20 campaigns. But, my good Herr Oberst, they are still mules!"—John W. Thomason Jr. in American Mercury.

The Art of Conversation On the Road

DRIVING is often monotonous, and to break the tedium drivers indulge in conversation. Sometimes this pastime leads to serious accidents. Following is a guide for motorists:

Don't discuss anything debatable or join in any arguments.

Converse on innocuous subjects such as the weather, clothes, sports, hobbies, art, entertainment and books.

Don't tell or allow your passengers to tell jokes. A person often closes his eyes while laughing heartily. — Joan Edwards in Kansas City Star.

Repairing Sea Cables

The captain of a cable ship recently reported that he had repaired a break in a submarine cable off the coast of South Africa with little or no difficulty. However, even if all goes well, the job of locating and repairing an ocean cable seems intricate and arduous to a landlubber.

Electricians on shore first determine by means of special instruments where the cable is broken. Then the cable ship steams to the spot. The ship lowers a grappling hook and steams slowly back and forth at right angles to the path of the cable.

When the cable, which is often buried in the mud, is hooked, it is immediately pulled to the surface and repaired.

COMMERCIAL or PASSENGER CARS
...Which Have the Best Safety Record?

From 1927 to 1937 the fatal accident rate of passenger cars in the United States, per 10,000 registered vehicles, rose 47 per cent. During this same ten-year period, the truck rate declined 15 per cent, and the rate for buses 36 per cent.

"Commercial driver have proved that instruction and supervision produce reduction in accidents," says the American Automobile Association.

Florida Public Service Company takes a keen interest in the progress made in traffic safety during the last few years.

Our organization operates some 81 service cars and trucks throughout the area we serve. We, therefore, have a definite responsibility to do our part in this safety program in the state where we do business.

We are continually working toward this objective by consistent training of drivers, good vehicle maintenance through periodical inspection and proper recognition of individual performance. We believe this effort shows in our record for the first nine months of 1938—only .70 accidents per 100,000 miles traveled. This compares with about 2.7 accidents per 100,000 miles for the public utility industry as a whole.

Wedding of Interest Saturday Evening

Beauty and simplicity marked the marriage of Miss Amanda Evelyn McArthur of Slocomb, Alabama, to Seth W. Roberts of Pahokee, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Pendleton, 217 N. Verona avenue, Saturday evening, June 17 at seven o'clock, in the presence of a small gathering of friends and relatives. The Rev. Charles R. Mingledorff, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the services, using the single ring ceremony.

The vows were exchanged before an improvised altar, formed of a massed arrangemena of potted palms and greenery before the fireplace, making an effective setting for the wedding party. A seven branched candlelabra was placed in the center of the mantle and lighted tapers in five branched candlelabra were on either side of the altar, softening the effect and casting a twilight glow. Pink gladioli intermingled with fern in a pedestal basket was placed beneath the mantle, flanked on either side by tall blue lusterware vases of Madonna lilies. Red and pink radiance roses in tastefully arranged baskets were placed at vantage points through the rooms.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was given by Mrs. J. B. Coen, Jr., pianist, and Miss Mary Coen, vocalist. Miss Coen sang "At Dawning" (Cadman), "Oh Promise Me" (Reginald de Koven) and Lohengrin's wedding march was used as the processional.

The bride who entered with her cousin, J. L. Collins, by whom she was given in marriage, was charming in a handsome advanced fall model ensemble of navy blue corded crepe Romaine, made along fitted lines with deep yoke of imported French chantilly lace and flared skirt. The jacket was of waist length and with elbow length sleeves. Her hat and other accessories were also of navy blue, and she wore a corsage of sweetheart roses.

Following the wedding a reception was held. A pink and white color motif was carried out in the dining room appointments. The bride's table was overlaid with a white lace cloth and centered with a reflector, adorned with pink and white roses. Tall white tapers in crystal holders, flanked the center table arrangement on either side and blossoms of pink gladioli and fern surrounded the base of each holder. Bowls of gladioli and radiance roses, combined with sprays of asparagus fern were used throughout the room. Miss Tommie Lou Greene and Miss Gail Coen presided at the punch bowl and Miss Mabel Collins served the bride's cake.

The couple left during the evening for their wedding trip and after June 18 will be home to their friends at their home in Pahokee.

The bride, a native of Alabama, is the daughter of Mrs. Mary McArthur of Slocomb, Alabama, and the late Walter E. McArthur, and is the sister of Henry G. McArthur of Avon Park. Mrs. Roberts received her education in the schools of Slocomb, Ala., and South Carolina Woman's College at Rock Hill, S. C.

The groom, a native of Florida is the son of Mrs. J. G. Roberts and the late J. G. Roberts of Lake Butler and is connected with the State Road Department. For the past five years he has made his home in Pahokee, where he has made a host of friends.

Tope handed June the pad on which he had been writing, and Clint stood at her shoulder so that they read it together.

> Miss Leaford began getting supper before dark. Everyone came to supper except Mrs. Bowdon. They came in relays.
>
> About 7:50 Mrs. Taine came to put Mr. and Mrs. Hurder to bed.
>
> About eight, Asa Taine came for a cup of tea, used milk out of the bottle.
>
> After he left, Mrs. Taine heated milk for Mr. and Mrs. Hurder. Rab Taine came in to say good night. The milk was on the stove. He stood near the stove. Then he left for Providence.
>
> About 8:25 Mrs. Taine left, Mr. and Mrs. Hurder in bed.
>
> About 8:30 Miss Leaford turned out downstairs lights and went to her room. About 8:45 she met Clint outside.
>
> About 11:05 Clint and Miss Leaford returned and stopped in front of the house.
>
> About 11:10 they saw the fire.
>
> At 11:19 exactly, the alarm was rung in. The apparatus arrived at exactly 11:23. Mrs. Taine and Asa arrived at the fire about 11:21.
>
> At exactly 11:51 Mrs. Taine put in a call for Providence to her son.

While June and Clint studied this schedule in silence, Tope explained: "You know when you went upstairs, and when you went out to meet Clint; and I've guessed at the times before that. I know when the alarm was rung in, and when the apparatus arrived; and by allowing for all you and Clint did after you saw the fire and before the apparatus arrived, I can figure out about the time you saw the fire."

"Yes," June said. "This seems about right."

"I've a record of the call to Providence," Tope added. "How bad was the fire then—when your aunt went to phone?"

"The whole house was burning," June decided.

Tope nodded. "There's one other question I've got to ask you," he said gravely. "Do you think any one of—your relatives might have given your mother poison? Or set the house on fire?"

"No, no," June whispered. "They were hard and stubborn; but— No. No."

"Did any of them except your mother ever take a sleeping-powder?" he insisted.

She hesitated. "Why, yes," she said doubtfully. "Uncle Justus did." And she explained in a faint amusement: "He really had insomnia, sometimes. It seems odd, because he could always sleep in a chair; but sometimes he couldn't sleep in bed. Doctor Cabler gave him some tablets once; but Aunt Evie took them away from him, wouldn't let him use them. So poor Uncle Justus used to ask me to give him a tablet out of Mother's bottle, now and then; and I know Rab took some for him once."

"When was that?" Tope asked gravely.

"About a month ago," June reflected. "I found Rab in the bathroom; he told me."

Tope wagged his head; but he did not push this matter further. "Did you know Miss Thayer?" he asked. "Her name's Lissa."

"Yes," June assented. "That is, I saw her sometimes, when I was walking in the woods."

"Did you ever see your cousin Asa with her?" Tope asked. The girl shook her head; and Tope explained:

"I saw them kiss each other tonight, at the fire. They were back in the shadows, but I saw."

"Asa?" June cried incredulously.

"You never knew anything about that?"

"Oh, no," she declared. "But if Asa loved her, he wouldn't have dared tell anyone. They'd have been furious. Aunt Evie, and Grandma Bowdon, I mean."

"You think so?" Tope prompted her.

"Yes! Mother used to tell me—" She hesitated, went bravely on: "Mother used to tell me that if I married without their consent, they would crush me. They did crush her, you know."

Inspector Tope nodded; and he picked his words with care. "You remember Mr. Glovere, who lived in the cabin in the woods—the man you called Uncle Jim. You liked him, didn't you?"

"Yes," she said. "So much. He went away, after Mother died."

"He's come back," the Inspector said.

"Where is he?" she cried eagerly.

Tope hesitated, he confessed at last: "Inspector Heale is holding him."

"You mean—arrested him?" Her cheek was pale.

"Heale thought he might have had something to do—"

"Oh," she protested in loyal pride. "Uncle Jim wouldn't. No, no."

"He came back at noon today," Tope explained. "Came back asking for you . . . Miss Leaford, I used to be a policeman. I'm trying to find out what happened out there. You understand that we are sure your mother, somehow, was poisoned. Someone put some extra tablets in that glass of milk she drank. It might have been done while the milk was still in the bottle, in Mrs. Bowdon's refrigerator. Or afterward in your grandmother's kitchen, or on the way upstairs, or after it was taken upstairs. And anyone might have done it. Anyone at all."

The girl was trembling, but her eyes were steady.

And when he did not speak, she cried: "Why should they do a thing like that?"

He said slowly: "They might have been afraid—afraid of something we don't know about. Or wanting something." And he spoke to Miss Moss. "Justus Taine has all the wills, Bowdon's and Hurder's. He wouldn't tell me what's in them. They'll be public by and by, but—there may not be time." His tone was deeply troubled. He spoke to June. "You and your cousins would inherit all the money, I expect," he said. "All the money in the family."

"Clint, whoever did this is a monster, not human."

"I don't know," she confessed. "Was there much?" But before he could answer, she cried: "That doesn't matter now, though." Rising anger steadied her. "I want to know who killed my mother," she said.

Tope looked at her appraisingly. "Mean that, do you?"

"Of course."

"Because," he said, "you can help find out! This is ugly business to talk about, hard to believe. But Miss Leaford, your grandpa, Mr. Hurder, is out there, in that house, near dying. It wouldn't take much to make him die. Whoever set fire to the house last night wants him dead." And after a moment Tope added soberly: "They refuse to have a nurse for him."

He shook his head; he said in a grim and stricken tone:

"I think there's an insane murderer loose out there—insane, and clever as a cat. He's managed to get by so far without leaving a trace. It's the first time in forty years that I've seen a case without one single lead."

Clint cried: "What are you getting at, Inspector?"

Tope hesitated for a moment. He ignored Clint, said slowly then: "There's one more thing you ought to know, Miss Leaford: Inspector Heale has arrested this man you call Uncle Jim. Heale thinks he did it."

"But why should he?" she protested. "What reason had he?"

And Tope said briefly, kindly: "He's your father, June."

For a long moment then, silence held them all. June sat still, and the color drained out of her cheeks till she was white as snow. Clint caught her, and she clung to him; yet she did not hide her face from them. She stared at Inspector Tope, and her eyes were streaming, and her lips worked as though she would speak, but no words came. She watched him, and tears streamed down her cheeks, and she began to hiccough with smothered sobs.

Tope spoke slowly, in explicit terms. "Your mother ran away with him when she was a girl," he said. "By and by they came home to live; and after two years there, the old folks broke it up. Mrs. Bowdon and Mrs. Taine, he told me, turned your mother against him. He said Mr. and Mrs. Hurder were on his side, but the others broke them down. Finally he left. He wanted your mother to go with him, but she was afraid, so he went away alone."

And he explained: "He didn't know about you till afterward, years afterward. When you were about ten years old, he came back and met you in the woods, and you told him who you were. So he stayed, to be near you, lived in the cabin there. They wanted to put him off the land; but there wasn't any divorce, and he threatened to make trouble unless they let him stay. He didn't ask anything of them except to be near you, to see you sometimes."

He looked at Miss Moss, sure she would understand. "I guess he still loved Kitty Leaford," he said. "When she died, it hit him hard. He went away; but he came back yesterday, says he was asleep in his cabin all last night. So Heale has locked him up."

"It would seem simple enough to Heale," she pointed out. "Heale will say that Mr. Leaford killed Mrs. Leaford and then the Hurders, so that June would inherit their money. Then he could claim June as his daughter, and get her and the money too."

June moved, about to speak; and Clint held her close, protectingly. She said faintly:

"I can remember once, when I was a little girl, Aunt Evie tried to make me stay away from him, and I told him, and he came to the house to see her, and after that she never bothered me . . .

"But he didn't do this!" She rubbed her eyes with her hands like one just waking; she stood up, supporting herself by Clint's arm. "Oh, I want to do something!" she cried. "What can I do?"

The Inspector said soberly: "This, if you want to," he said. "I know it's not safe for you—"

"Safe!" she exclaimed almost scornfully. "I don't want to be safe, with my mother dead, and my father—"

"Mr. Hurder's in the Bowdon house," Tope explained. "They aim to keep him there. They won't have a nurse in to take care of him. But Miss Leaford, they'd have you. They want you home, and if you went, and insisted on nursing him—"

Clint made a swift indignant protest; but June hushed him.

"Yes, I understand," she told the man steadily. "I'll go. But why? What am I to do?"

"To watch," he said. "To be ready."

"Ready for what?" she insisted.

So, reluctantly, he put the thing in words. "Whoever did this wants Mr. Hurder dead," he pointed out. "I think there'll be another try at killing him."

And he said gravely: "There might be more than that. There might be a try at killing you."

Clint had listened to Inspector Tope's suggestion that June return to Kenesaw Hill with an incredulous and angry horror. Now he cried in a bitter wrath:

"No! I won't stand for that. June's been through enough—"

"We'll be there to take care of her," Tope urged. "You and I, Clint. We'll be on the job. It's only for tonight. I've a notion tonight will tell the tale."

"No," Clint insisted. "She's through with them out there, all those people. I'm going to be all her family from now on. If you think I'm going to let her go out there for bait, to bait a trap—" And he cried: "Why do you have to mix in, Inspector? Let them wash their own dirty linen."

Tope urged gravely: "It's any citizen's duty to do what he can, Clint." His tone was grim. "And son, there's a murderer loose out there. Maybe a maniac. I think he is. There's a terrible, mad persistence in him. Or her."

"Her?" Clint echoed, startled by that pronoun.

Tope hesitated. "Him or her, whoever it is," he repeated. "Clint, whoever did this is a monster, not human. No telling what will come next."

"And you want to risk June's life?"

"I don't aim to," Tope argued. "She'll have her eyes open. I'll tell her what to watch for. She'll have a pistol, to use if she has to. We'll be right outside." He spoke to June herself. "You won't go into it blindly," he said. "Nor at all, unless you want."

"Let Heale work it out," Clint cried. "It's his job."

June was a long time in taking any part in this discussion between them: But when she spoke at last, it was decisively.

"I don't trust Inspector Heale, Clint," she said. "If he thinks Uncle Jim—my father—did this, he must be a dull, witless man."

They watched her; she seemed to think aloud. "It was money, the money always," she cried, half to herself. "I can see that now. Everything had to be done to keep the money in the family. That was why they were so furious when Mother married Uncle Jim—for fear some of the money would get away from them. Oh, I've heard them talk, and plan!"

Clint said warmly: "Sweet, hush! You're never going back there again."

But June smiled at him, and she said: "Yes, I am, Clint. I can go back and watch and see things now that I couldn't see before. I can understand."

Inspector Tope said slowly: "Heale is afraid of your people. He won't go after them hard, the way he would after other folk. And I never saw an uglier business. This senseless, pitiless butchering! There's a maniac loose out there; and Heale won't act. I've got to find some way."

"I'll do whatever you say," June insisted; and Clint knew at last that he could not dissuade the girl. He said slowly:

"I wish you wouldn't, June. But—I can see, can feel the same way. Inspector, what do you mean to do?"

Tope considered, his eyes on the floor, his head wagging. "I think the thing will ripen tonight," he confessed. "If it seems sure that Mr. Hurder will live, the murderer will try to end him tonight."

He watched June intently. "And maybe you too! I'm guessing at this; but I'm a good guesser. Someone out there is money-crazy. Mr. Hurder is a rich man; and someone out there wants that money. Maybe wants it quick. Maybe has to have it quick.

"I'm guessing," he repeated. "Justus Taine wouldn't tell me what was in the wills. But my guess is that the Hurder money is in a trust agreement for Mrs. Leaford—but she's dead—and then for you, Miss Leaford. With trustees. Maybe Taine himself. Maybe his sons. It doesn't matter—wouldn't help us any if we knew, because they're all in the same pot together. But it comes down to it that you're the only one left in the way, Miss Leaford. With you dead, the Hurder money's bound to stay in the Taine family."

June nodded. "Yes," she said. "Yes, they could make Grandpa Hurder write his will the way they wanted it. They'd leave him no peace till he did."

"So there it is," Tope agreed, with a grim simplicity. "The money waiting, ready to run into their pockets as soon as Mr. Hurder dies. You're the last dam in the way, the last thing that holds it back. They'll be after you."

"I'm not afraid!" said June.

Cleaners Working in Westminster Abbey Unearth Dwelling Place of Anchorite

Cleaners working in Westminster abbey recently discovered the site of the cell where the abbey's anchorite, or holy man, kept lonely vigil centuries ago. It was in this cell, tradition says, that wild young Henry V spent a repentant night when his father, the fourth King Henry, died in the Jerusalem chamber of the abbey.

The discovery was disclosed by Lawrence Tanner, keeper of the muniments of the abbey. He said the find was made during cleaning operations on a monument in St. Benedict's chapel to Dr. Gabriel Goodman, a former dean of Westminster, who died in 1601. The monument shows the dean kneeling at a praying desk.

"Behind the praying desk was found in the stonework a little window so placed that anyone looking through would see the altar of the chapel," Tanner said.

Just to the side of monument is a door, now blocked, which had, as it had seemed to us for years, no obvious purpose.

"Taking this door in conjunction with the newly discovered window and bearing in mind other features, we concluded that the door led to a little room outside abutting on the abbey and therein must have dwelt the abbey hermit or recluse.

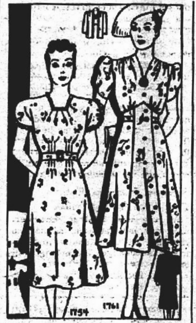
"Through that door must have passed Henry V on the night of his father's death, when the young king spent the night with the abbey recluse and vowed to lead a new life."

Tanner explained that the hermit usually was an elderly monk regarded as no longer fit for active work and given the job of anchorite as a sort of retirement.

Greatest Man Hunt

The most extensive man hunt in history was for the three De Autremont brothers who held up a mail train in Oregon on October 11, 1923, says Collier's. Not only were circulars in a hundred languages sent throughout the world, but special descriptions of their teeth went to dentists, of their watches to jewelers, of their eye-glasses to oculists and of their literary tastes to librarians. They were captured in 1927 after a search that cost $500,000.

Patterns
SEWING CIRCLE



AS YOU see from the diagram, the pretty daytime dress (1754) consists of just two pieces to sew together. Then make the easy darts at the neckline and waistline, so that your dress will be slim and softly full over the bosom, edge the sleeves and neckline with lace or ruching—and there you are! Anybody can do it, and it's so attractive and comfortable. Linen, gingham, batiste and lawn are nice materials for this.

Cool, Comely Jacket Frock.

If you're looking for an extremely smart and pleasantly youthful jacket ensemble in women's sizes, 1761 is the pattern for you. Gathers make the bodice just full enough, and the paneled skirt, cut to a high waistline, is beautifully slenderizing. The smart jacket is the most flattering length—certain to make your hips look slim. Chiffon, georgette, linen or pure dye silk print are pliant fabrics in which this design looks particularly well.

The Patterns.

No. 1754 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46. Size 34 requires 3 yards of 35-inch fabric and 2⅜ yards of lace or ruching.

No. 1761 is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 requires 6½ yards of 39-inch fabric with nap for the ensemble and short-sleeved dress. With long-sleeved dress 7⅛ yards.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient.

These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "Torpid Liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the nauseless calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure.

Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure.

Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package twenty-five cents, at your dealer's (Adv.)

No longer any doubt that Garner is a real candidate for the Democratic nomination for President . . . Democratic leaders are doing their utmost to prevent further opening up of the general tax situation . . . I. C. C. hearings disclose that Canadians have grabbed the shipment of the bulk of American-grown wheat.

WASHINGTON.—It is now obvious that John Nance Garner is a real candidate for the Democratic nomination for President next year whether President Roosevelt chooses to run for a third term or not. Incidentally, there is one mystery about Garner which ought to be cleared up right now. He is far from being a sphinx, just as Calvin Coolidge was far from being a sphinx. But Garner is and Coolidge was protected from quotation by a simple rule governing his relations with newspaper men. Coolidge would talk to them, and let his views be stated, but under no circumstances could quotation marks be used.

It was to get around this difficulty that the newspaper men, while Coolidge was President, invented the mythical "White House Spokesman." Lots of people throughout the country assumed that there really was a "Spokesman" They were right. It was Calvin Coolidge.

Just so, in the present instance, when newspaper men hear that Garner is advocating something, or doing something, and ask him about it, they cannot put quotation marks around what Garner says in reply. But they can print the answers, and they can say that Garner said them. In fact sometimes they stretch it a bit, for Garner very obviously has another political rule in addition to avoiding direct quotations, which is that he denies nothing.

There was a slip-up on this, incidentally, a few days ago in connection with the Hatch bill to outlaw participation in the election of government workers in the elections of federal officers (the original bill would have made possible participation in primaries and the election of delegates to national conventions as well). A young reporter assumed because Garner did not say he could not be quoted as saying this bill would be "law before we quit" that it was all right to quote him. So he did.

Never Any Difficulty in Finding How Garner Stands

But while the old New York World attacked Coolidge bitterly for putting out propaganda under quotation marks assigned to the "White House Spokesman" present critics of Garner, in magazine articles and elsewhere, are attacking the vice president on the other flank. They are assuming that he really never says anything. Naturally Garner's other rule, about no denials, protects them in this inaccuracy. A denial would sound sort of silly anyhow.

But the truth is that any reputable newspaper man in Washington has very little difficulty in finding out where Garner stands on anything, though he will come home without the bacon if his editor insists on quotation marks.

Another type of comment from New Deal sources which Garner has had to take, or break his rule by denying, is that he is really in full sympathy with the New Deal, and that all the newspaper stories about his being the brains behind some of the anti-New Deal strategy on Capitol Hill are the bunk.

This has about ended, however, for the simple reason that it has been so obvious what Garner did in the court fight, his attitude about "letting the cattle get a little fat on them," referring to business, (this was said to the President face to face by Garner more than a year ago and was quoted to newspaper men by others present) and his known views and activities in other controversies, that to write any more about his being a 100 per cent New Dealer would merely make the writer absurd.

Try to Prevent Opening Up Of General Tax Situation

Democratic leaders in congress are doing their utmost to prevent any further opening up of the general tax situation. For instance, Chairman Robert Doughton of the house ways and means committee has been flooded with requests for a brief hearing from various industries which are being subjected to special taxation, just as radios (5 per cent), Doughton has crisply told one and all that there is no desire to hear testimony on this, and has refused requests even for as brief a period as 10 minutes. (This happens to be the time the radio industry requested.)

The average person who buys a radio, of course, does not realize that he or she is paying any tax at all. The radio people would like to have a partial exemption. They claim that they find a certain competition in other house furnishings and appliances. Thus, they contend, they would like to have the cabinet containing the radio exempted, because as an article of furniture it is, in a sort of a way, competing in the housewife's mind with a fancy table to occupy a particular corner.

They also complain of another type of competition. The family budget may be such that it is a question of whether to buy a radio or a washing machine. Of course, the latter is not taxed, while the radio is taxed 5 per cent.

"Now what's the use of taking up the committee's time with an argument like that?" an old member said to a young radio man. "You know perfectly well you could not get anywhere. All we could do would be to decide that as between the purchase of an article to save the good wife's back and a radio the government had no choice but to encourage the washing machine."

Business Interests Hold Their Fire for the Senate

As a matter of fact, however, most business interests having an idea that they might get somewhere in the tax changes are not figuring on the house at all. They are holding their fire for the senate. There are two reasons for this. One is that the house is determined to rush some sort of tax bill through. Until that is done the business interests won't know exactly what they have to fight against, and what to fight for.

For example, if their proposition is contained in the house bill as it is passed, then all they have to do is to watch to see that the senate does not strike it out. Anyway, they would have a chance in conference when the drafts of the bills as passed by the house and senate are adjusted by the conferees.

If their proposition is not contained in the house draft, then they will have more time, and more opportunity, to work for a change by the senators. Almost any industry can count on active support from a few senators—if from no one else than from the senators from the states in which their industries are active. Besides, one senator can often force changes in any bill. For one thing he can discuss the matter on the floor, taking up the senate's time, until the cows come home, a privilege which the individual member of the house does not have. The representative's time is doled out to him in very small doses and with even the subject matter restricted.

Important Facts Gleaned At I. C. C. Freight Hearing

Nobody paid much attention to hearings conducted by the interstate commerce commission in which the operators on the old Erie canal—the New York Barge canal to be exact—protested against the cut in freight rates on grain by the railroads from New York to Buffalo.

Actually the hearings brought out some facts which are not only highly important to everybody in this country who pays taxes, but have a very definite bearing on several major proposals in the offing, including the St. Lawrence seaway, TVA, river development all over the country, public power, etc.

What the railroads did was to reduce the rate per bushel on grain from Buffalo to New York from 6.7 cents to 5 cents flat. The canal operators claimed that this would ruin them—that they had to have a differential under the railroad rates because of the longer time required, higher insurance, etc.

The funny part of the whole business is that the railroads didn't make that cut in grain rates this summer in order to take business from the Barge canal. They did it to get some of the business back which the Canadians have been taking from them, and taking, incidentally, without the aid of a St. Lawrence seaway, for which Uncle Sam would pay half the cost.

Canadians Grab Shipment Of American-Grown Wheat

Last year, it was testified, 77,000,000 bushels of American wheat were shipped abroad through Canadian ports, as against only 30,000,000 bushels shipped via United States ports. The percentage of wheat which moved through the United States ports to export in 1932 was 76. In 1938 this had shrunk to 28 per cent. Bear in mind that in all instances these quantities and percentages of wheat refer exclusively to wheat grown in the United States. Canadian wheat moved, of course, almost exclusively through Canadian ports.

The American city most interested in all this, of course, is Buffalo. The big idea of the Barge canal was to make commerce through Buffalo. New York state has spent untold millions with this objective, first to build the original Erie canal, before it was realized that the railroads were to become the big freight movers of the country, and before trucks were conceived, and then later to make the waterway a big modern development, when it was rechristened the Barge canal.

Like so many other waterways, however, the results have never justified the expectations. It is not fair to criticize the original concept, because that was before anyone realized what the railroads would become. It seemed then that wheat and other goods from the Great Lakes region and westward, moving by water to Buffalo, and then trans-shipped to barges for New York, would provide a growing tide of commerce ample to justify the expenditure.

Union Pacific At Park Sunday

Union Pacific, starring Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck comes to the Park theatre Sunday and Monday.

Synopsis of the story:

When Oakes Ames starts construction of the Union Pacific railroad, Asa M. Barrows, wily financier, decides to sabotage the job, sell U. P. securities short, and make a killing.

He hires Sid Campeau, a gambler, to delay the road in every way possible. Campeau and his partner, Dick Allen, establish a gambling house under canvas, to beguile the "Paddy" laborers with liquor, cards and women.

Two years later, after bitter hardships and slaughterous encounters with the Indians, the railroad is still 500 miles from its objective. Dick is in love with Mollie Monahan, daughter of a locomotive engineer, and postmistress for the men building the railroad. Dick and Campeau have constantly been brewing trouble and delay. Now comes Jeff Butler, Dick's old buddy in the army, to combat these delays. Fiesta and Leach Overmile are assigned to help him.

They are moderately successful until the day that Barrows, under pressure from the White House, is forced to loan the road a million dollars to pay salaries. But he decides to get his money back by having Campeau's gang rob the train on which it is being delivered to end o'track—and Dick takes over the job.

Jeff is tipped off, but too late to prevent the holdup. He's hot on the trail of the robbers, however—and Dick, seeing the danger, tosses the sackful of money through the window of the boxcar which is Mollie's rolling home.

Jeff, suspicious, confronts Dick there — but other members of Dick's gang are standing by with hands on their guns. Mollie, realizing Jeff's danger, swears to him that she and Dick have been romancing together all the time, and there is no stolen money in the car. When Jeff leaves, she forces Dick to return the loot—on her promise that she'll marry him. But because the whole town of Cheyenne is being packed on flatcars to be moved to end o'track, they are forced to go through with the ceremony that night.

Jeff, with an army of Irish track-layers armed with axes at his heels, moves in on Mampeau's "big tent." Campeau, terrified, confesses, that Dick pulled the holdup—but vows he'll get Jeff some day. Jeff's paddies smash the tent and drive the gamblers out of town—while Jeff himself rushes to the church where Dick and Mollie's wedding ceremony is just finishing. But Mollie again tricks Jeff, and Dick escapes.

As the construction train chugs through the night to Laramie, Mollie is startled to discover Dick in her car. When he takes her in her arms, she reluctantly confesses it's Jeff she really loves.

At this moment, there's a spatter of gunfire and the train smashes against a wrecked water-tank. The Indians have attacked! Mollie and Dick, in their wrecked car, are joined by Jeff, who has worked his way up from the caboose. Together they beat off the attack as best they can while Mollie flashes a plea for help over the broken telegraph wires that have fallen beside the car. Just as the end seems near, a rescue train roars bravely over a trestle to which the Indians have set fire—and they are saved.

For Mollie's sake, Jeff helps Dick escape—even though he promises that when the U. P. and Central Pacific meet, he'll be there to claim his wife.

The track goes through—in face of dozens of obstacles, natural and man-made. And on the historic May 10, 1869, when the Golden Spike is driven at Promontory Point, Dick is on hand. But when he learns that Campeau is also on hand, to "get" Jeff, he sets out to warn his old buddy. The crazed Campeau mistakes him for Jeff, kills him. Leach Overmile kills Campeau.

Mollie and Jeff, reunited, face the future together.

UNION CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Dr. Alfred C. Elliott, Pastor

Sunday, June 25—Sunday school in charge of Superintendent J. P. Garber, at 9:45 a. m., with classes to suit all ages and well-trained teachers for each class. The lesson on Sunday is "Paul Reviews His Life." Paul, during his early manhood, was a bitter opponent of the Christian faith and persecuted the Christians. After his conversion he became the great defender of the Christian faith and gave his life in unstinted service in the progogation of the Gospel. He suffered many hardships and counted no sacrifice too great in his endeavors to win men to Christ. His was a wonderful life and his influence has been felt through all the Christian centuries. Come, and study with us the life-work of this marvelous man, and find out what he thinks of it all as he looks back over the years.

Morning worship service at 11:00 o'clock, with sermon by Dr. Elliott who will speak on "The Noontide Destruction." Worship of Almighty God is the duty of a Christian people. Many of our people are evading this duty and are thus contributing to a marked spiritual declension in the life of the nation. If America is to undertake the moral leadership of the world, it is imperative that her spiritual life be maintained at a high level. Public worship of God will definitely contribute to this great end. "Oh come, let us worship and bow down let us kneel before the Lord our Maker."

The Young People's Pilgrim Fellowship group will meet at 7:00 p. m. Lillian Bennett will lead the meeting, and John Lamb will introduce the topic, "The Church in the Community." Young people are especially invited to attend.

The Ladies' Aid will hold an all-day sewing meeting and covered dish luncheon on Wenesday at the home of Mrs. W. H. Yates. The "Quiet Hour" service for praise and prayer will be held on Wednesday at 7:30 p. m. A service of great inspirational value, with a brief address by the pastor. If you appreciate an opportunity for Christian fellowship and meditation, join us in this service.

To all who are weary and seek rest, who sorrow and would find consolation; To all seekers after light and life, who love God and their neighbors; To all who would help lighten heavy burdens and help make this a better world; To all for whom Christ died; this Church extends a cordial welcome in His name.
