Approval of Air School Is Said To Be Assured

Negotiations Well Under Way and OK Expected

In answer to a request for confirmation of the report that the army had approved the air school for Avon Park, Congressman Peterson wired the Sun today that he was in no position to make any announcement at the present time, but anticipated an early announcement.

Later, calling by telephone, the Congressman said the contract had not been signed yet, but "those in close touch with the matter felt it to be in good shape." Formal announcement, in matters of this kind, must come from the War Department, he said.

The report reached Avon Park Wednesday that the primary training school, which the army and army approval could be expected any day. This report came through Sebring via a contact man in Washington. Negotiations have been in progress for several weeks, and it was understood that those negotiations were nearing completion.

Information reaching here is that the school will start with 250 students, and the possibilities are that this number will be enlarged as the army's big air training program gets further under way. Such a school would have 50 instructors, six army officers and a corps of mechanics and other assistants, reaching a total personnel of well over a hundred, it is said. The students receive $75 a month salary while in training, and are allowed $52.50 per month allowance. The estimated total payroll for such a school will run $50,000 monthly.

A New York party is negotiating for the purchase of the Highlands Lakes Hotel, which is to be used to house the school, and it is reported here that the deal has been closed. The party could be reached for confirmation of the report.

To complete the set-up, it will be necessary for the city to build two hangars, costing about $65,000 and to provide three auxiliary landing fields. No plan for financing the city's participation in the program has yet been developed, according to President Earl Ware of the council, but will be fully considered as soon as the contract has been formally approved.

Reports were made on two welfare cases under investigation and the club voted to take care of both.

Seining in County Banned by New Law

Seining in waters in Highlands county will be prohibited in future through a special act which passed the Legislature this week. The bill, which was sponsored by Representative Lanier, passed the house several days ago, and passed the senate Tuesday. The bill also establishes a hunting season in the county from Nov. 20 to Jan. 31.

Previous Council Also Spent Bond Funds, Ware Says

Survey Crew Works On Tract South of General of Town

The present city council has handled a total of $27,623.24 in bond debt service money, according to Earl Ware, president of the council, and is responsible only for that amount. Out of a total of $105,000.00 reported collected since July, 1937, some $18,000 was spent by a previous administration, Ware said.

According to audit figures, the present council took over a balance on Oct. 1, 1937, of $27,623.24 in bond money, and has collected $105,000.00 since then.

The council spent $39,424.42 of the old fund on the airport, and $28,787.87 of current funds, or a total of $68,212.29 has been expended on the airport by this council, Ware said. The city had a balance of $21,847.14 in the bond fund on March 31, 1941, Ware reported.

Contract for distributing overburden over the airport cost the city $21,847.14, and the contract for two contracts were let for $7500 each, and an additional amount of $6,184.78 was paid the contractor for further work on the two contracts were completed.

Fire Destroys Seven Buildings In Negro Section

An oil cook stove exploded in the rear of Dan Gibbs grocery store in the colored quarters Tuesday afternoon and started a fire which destroyed two other stores and four dwelling houses. All were frame structures and a high wind spread the flames quickly.

The buildings destroyed were J. R. Hunt barber shop, Dan Gibbs grocery store, Jim Jones grocery and filling station, Clara Jones dwelling, Dan Gibbs dwelling and two houses belonging to Mrs. Ruth Hyton.

The stocks and fixtures of the stores were a total loss. Some furniture was saved from the houses. The loss was estimated at about $3,000, with no insurance, according to Fire Chief Robert Massey.

The Sebring fire department assisted the Avon Park fire department in extinguishing the flames. The firemen did a good job in stopping the fire as the houses were built close together and a high wind made the job difficult.

After the fire, Chief Carey McCall arrested Rosa Lee Brown, colored woman, for being responsible for the fire. McCall charged the woman with being drunk, and said she was ironing on the stove when the accident occurred.

Mr. Mrs. Bishop Painfully Injured As Car Overturns

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bishop were painfully injured Sunday morning, when the car in which they were riding overturned on a curve near Highlands county. They were taken to a Sebring hospital, where examination revealed Mrs. Bishop to have a broken right arm, and Mr. Bishop a back injury and severe leg lacerations. Both were released from the hospital Tuesday.

Their daughter, Miss Odean Bishop, had purchased the car Saturday, and on Sunday started to Tarpon Springs with her parents. The car overturned on a curve near Highlands county. Mrs. Bishop was driving, and the car hit soft sand on the curve and went out of control, turning over several times. Mrs. Bishop received a head injury and the little boy had face lacerations. The new car, a Mercury sedan, was badly wrecked.

Basic Training School May Go To Sebring Site

Survey Crew Works On Tract South of General of Town

(HIGHLANDS COUNTY NEWS) The designation of a location south-east of Sebring for one of the largest basic training schools for army aviators was practically a settled fact until political pressure was brought into the picture early this week following the approval of the site by U. S. Army officials whose duty it is to pick the location for the proposed school.

A contingent of army engineers with a crew of assistants started last week to survey the proposed site for the purpose of preparing a contour map and it is said they will complete their survey this week.

Previous to this various technical men from the army have investigated the site and approved it from the point of location, health and general physical aspects. All have approved the location and it is believed by citizens here, who have been cooperating with the army in supplying information and data, that the camp will actually be located here unless political influence thwarts the desired result.

President of the City Council W. Higgins, is in Washington this week to supply any information that may be required by the War Department or render any assistance possible. No attempt has been made on the part of city officials or local citizens to bring political pressure to influence the location of the camp here, but both the county and city have assured the army of local cooperation in every way.

The city has secured options on the land needed except for two tracts which are being condemned and will be purchased by the city for the use of the army.

The camp, according to reliable information, will be the largest air training base in the southeast and will be permanent, continuing operation after the present emergency.

The cost of all construction will be borne by the government and if approved by the Secretary of War, which approval is expected any day, construction will probably start within a few weeks or even days.

According to reliable information, approximately 500 cadets will be in training at the proposed field at all times, when and if it is located, and construction is completed.

According to reports emanating from Washington the camp will involve the expenditure of $10,000,000 and only await the approval of Secretary of War Stimson.

The Washington report states that the first year's operation will require about 2500 officers, flying cadets and enlisted men will be stationed there. Each class of flying cadets will undergo a course of 10 weeks instruction, and then will be graduated to advanced schools or specialized schools.

According to the air corps set-up, a basic training school is the second phase of training to qualify young men for commission as pilots. The first phase is the flight school, and the second phase is the flight school, and the third phase is the flight school.

The training at the Sebring school will instruct the cadets with the use of the heavier more powerful and faster army training aircraft. The course will include instruction in formation or squadron flying, aerial navigation, instrument flying and blind flying and other secondary courses of instruction.

"On completion of the course at Sebring, the cadets will be sent to advanced schools where instruction in handling the bomber and transport planes will begin. The cadets are not commissioned as air cadets until the course is completed. As flying cadets they are paid $75 a month plus $1 per day for subsistence and other equipment without charge. High mental and physical qualifications are required.

WARE CHARGES PARDEE WITH EMBEZZLING

City Attorney S. C. Pardee was arrested last Saturday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by Earl Ware, president of the city council, who charged that Pardee was withholding money collected for delinquent taxes. Pardee posted bond, signed by W. W. Sherrett and D. F. Canfield.

Ware charged Pardee with embezzling $100 which had been paid to him by W. I. Hand in settlement of taxes last October. The warrant was issued, following a council meeting last Friday, in which Ware made certain charges, and asked the council to back him up in the action. This the council refused to do. Ware then swore out a warrant on his own responsibility.

Ware Charges Pardee With Embezzling

Council President In Sensational Move In City Fight

City Attorney S. C. Pardee was arrested last Saturday afternoon on a warrant sworn out by Earl Ware, president of the city council, who charged that Pardee was withholding money collected for delinquent taxes. Pardee posted bond, signed by W. W. Sherrett and D. F. Canfield.

Ware charged Pardee with embezzling $100 which had been paid to him by W. I. Hand in settlement of taxes last October. The warrant was issued, following a council meeting last Friday, in which Ware made certain charges, and asked the council to back him up in the action. This the council refused to do. Ware then swore out a warrant on his own responsibility.

A preliminary hearing will be held before County Judge T. A. McNichols. The date has not as yet been set.

In explaining his side of the case Pardee told the Sun that he had received the money, as stated, but that he wrote the council at the time and made an offer of the money to settle a delinquent tax case. Insofar as he knew, the offer was not accepted at the time, he said, and he had not later been advised of its acceptance.

When told that the charge was made that he was withholding city funds, Pardee said he attempted to find out from Ware what transaction he had referred to, but Ware refused to divulge the amount or the specific instance of the alleged shortage, and only after a search of the minutes did he find that the item had been approved by the council. Pardee said he then offered his check in settlement of the claim. The check was accepted, but the charges were not withdrawn.

Roebbling Estate Given Archbold For Scientific Use

Red Hill, the 100-acre Lake Placid property of John A. Roebbling, New Jersey wire manufacturer, will be conveyed as a gift by Roebbling to Archbold Expedition for scientific purposes, it was announced Tuesday by Alexander Hill, Roebbling's representative.

Richard Archbold, an associate of the American Museum of Natural History, and his staff of scientists are already established at Red Hill, Altamonte, to make the estate to make the property more suitable for research are under way.

Dr. Archbold is Dr. A. L. Rand, leader and ornithologist, and a member of the staff of the American Museum of Natural History; also Dr. Per Holm, internationally known biologist and a former member of the Norwegian Biological Survey.

The Archbolds have already made three exploration trips to New Guinea. Life history of birds and mammals will be studied at Red Hill until a return to New Guinea is possible. The Roebbling property will serve as a base for conducting further research of New Guinea animals not actually possible in the field.

Archbold and Red Hill one of the show places of Highlands county, was begun 10 years ago. Several hundred thousand dollars was spent on buildings and other improvements.

John A. Roebbling is the father of Donald Roebbling, Clearwater contractor and investor, who is building 200 amphibian tanks for the navy and the marine corps.

It Used to Be 'Sissy'

Speaking of SPORTS

By ROBERT McSHANE

Published by Western Newspaper Union

ONE of the surest ways to start a bitter locker-room argument is to remark that the golfers of a past era did not play a game that measures up to the modern product. The old-timers will squawk, loudly and earnestly. They will tell you about improved golf courses, "tailored" clubs and balls. They will quote statistics, and above all, they will reach back in memory's grab bag and tell you about Bobby Jones and his famous Grand Slam of 1930. "Who," they ask, "can match that performance today?"

The correct answer is "no one." But that doesn't prove a thing. If anything, it indicates that golfers in general are better players—that no one man is good enough to dominate the field as Jones did more than a decade ago.

Just a few weeks ago the first four members of golf's hall of fame were chosen. They are to have their names inscribed upon a bronze plaque to be presented for the first public view at the U. S. Open championship. The first four members of the hall of fame are Francis Ouimet of Boston, Bobby Jones of Atlanta, Walter Hagen of Rochester and Gene Sarazen of New York and Connecticut.

The Moderns Have It
Sarazen, the 39-year-old Connecticut squire, is all for the modern golfer over the old-timers. And he speaks with authority, having stuck with the parade for 20 years. Last year he tied for the U. S. Open in Cleveland, 18 years after he had won it in Chicago.

It is Sarazen's contention that he is playing better golf today than he did 20 years ago—that he has to play better golf to keep pace with the modern field. He believes, for instance, that Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen were the greatest golfers of their time, but that the scores which made them great from 10 to 20 years ago would never put them at the top in 1941.

Sarazen says he is hitting the ball 20 or 25 yards farther today than he did when he was a mere lad of 21. How does he do it? First of all, he was forced to improve. It was essential that he lengthen his drives and perfect his game. "I've improved my swing," he says, "and I've studied my timing. My foot and body action is better." Sarazen always played winning golf, but in order to keep going with players like Sammy Snead, Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Lawson Little and a score of others, it was necessary for him to improve an already good game. That he did.

Historical Battles
One of goldfom's all-time greats, Sarazen has taken part in golf battles that will live forever in the annals of the game. There was the time when he needed three birdies on the last five holes to tie Craig Wood, perennial hard luck star who crashed through this year to win the Masters. Sarazen accounted for all his birdies in one hole by sinking a spoon shot on the 500-yard fifteenth of the August National for a double eagle 2.

The good players were after pars 20 years ago. Now pars are common as sunshines. The best players are after eagles on holes of 500 or 620 yards.

After all, why shouldn't present-day golfers be better than the old-timers? Just about every other sport has seen improvements in existing records. Not many track records of 10 years ago are still standing.

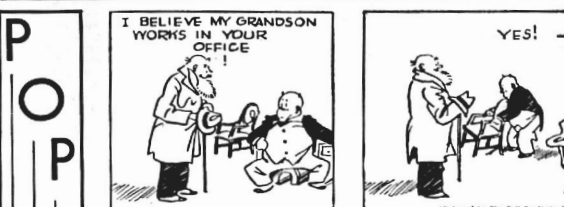

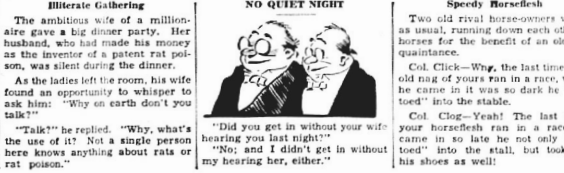

Fifteen years from now Snead, Hogan, and the rest will be arguing the same point around the locker room—with some whippersnapper who started high school in 1941.

'Land of Big Feet'

Patagonia is a little-known region with a familiar name. The so-called Patagonian area constitutes the tail of the South American continent. Long contested between Chile and Argentina, this area was finally divided between those countries in 1881, and its permanent boundaries were set in 1902. The Argentine section lies roughly east of the Andes and south of the great central plains. It includes the three continental territories of Rio Negro, Chubut, and Santa Cruz, and is some 259,000 square miles in area.

According to some authorities, the name Patagonia, which means "Land of the Big Feet," was given the area by early explorers who were amazed at the size of footprints (of aboriginal Indians) found there.

Lovely Party on Thursday Afternoon

A pretty party and shower of Thursday afternoon was given by Mrs. Ed Seabrook and Mrs. J. C. DeBouche, at the home of the former, when they entertained members of the Trump It club, and additional friends, in honor of Mrs. Paul A. McFarland and Mrs. J. R. Francis.

In keeping with the chosen color of dainty pink and blue, the floral arrangements in the party room were composed of pink hydrangea roses and blue cornflowers intermingled with Queen Anne's lace. Scores were kept on tallies in a pink and blue juvenile design.

Following the delightful bridge games, high score prize, a jar of Vita Ray facial cream, was presented to Mrs. W. W. McFarland; second high, Avon talcum, was won by Mrs. Francis Shockley, and Mrs. Earl H. Ware, who was fortunate in the bling game, was given a box of fragrant toilet soap.

At the refreshment hour, each table was overlaid with fluted panels of pink and blue, the same colors being reflected in the napkins. Delicious refreshments of vanilla ice cream topped with a maraschino cherry, individual cake squares frosted in blue, and iced tea, chilled with ice cubes in which a sprig of fresh mint was frozen, were served. A miniature cornucopia of blue cornflowers and Queen Anne's lace, tied with a pink ribbon, graced each table. Pink and blue mints were served during the games.

The dainty array of shower gifts was presented to the honorees in pink and blue decorated baskets, these colors also being accentuated.

Methodist Society Holds Fine Program

Mrs. T. H. Maxwell, president of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church presided at the business and program meeting at the church on Tuesday afternoon. Nine o'clock each morning has been set aside throughout the entire conference as prayer time. All Methodists are urged to observe this worship period with a prayer for the leaders of the nations and for world peace.

The business session sounded a note of new interest and encouragement in all phases of the work, with the splendid information that was brought from the recent state conference held in Lakeland.

Card tables for the luncheon were dotted about the main room with one large table for officers at one end. Each table had an artistic arrangement of cut glass vases upon a water-lily leaf. The centerpiece of the officers' table was a most attractive arrangement.

A host from a coons plumed palm was fashioned into a boat in which each and every blossom floated in water. The outstanding accomplishments were the beautifying of the clubhouse grounds, by the planting of palms and perennials, shrubbery as well as annuals last fall, under the

Expect Increase in Air Accidents

Personnel Expansion Cited As Army Officers Are Told to Give Facts.

WASHINGTON.—The lowering of the average experience of the pilots now training for the army air corps will result in an increase in the rate of flying accidents, because of the greater number of men involved and the risks in training for modern aerial combat, the war department announced in an explanation of recent accidents to army pilots.

The proficiency of the air corps pilots and the condition of the army planes and ground equipment are not measured by the number of such accidents, but rather by the accident rate, officials stated.

In 1934, army airplanes were flown more than 900,000 hours as compared with about 77,000 hours in 1921, but the percentage of accidents in 1934 was far below that of two decades ago, the war department said.

Give Public Facts.
The announcement came as Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, met with 150 army public relations officers whom Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson Jr., head of the war department public relations section, had called in from all parts of the country to discuss publicity policy.

The secretary told the officers that the success of the army's program depended upon its morale, which in turn depended upon the morale of the people at home.

"Nothing can undermine this morale, both of the army and of the people behind it, so rapidly and so thoroughly as the feeling that they are being deceived," he said, "that they are being given the real facts about their progress and the progress of the cause which they are preparing to defend."

The war department report on accidents did not reveal any precise figures as to the number of accidents, but merely gave percentages covering the various reasons causing them.

"The detailed data on accidents maintained by the air corps indicate that personnel errors still account for 80 out of every 100 mishaps of all kinds, fatal as well as those which result in no injury to persons and only slight damage to property," the report stated. "Mechanical failure or defects in airplanes and equipment."

Captures German Spy; Credit Goes to Films
LONDON.—Hollywood can now boast of having helped in capturing an escaped German prisoner of war.

Wearing gray flannel trousers, sports jacket and a check cap, the escaped prisoner boarded a bus traveling between Galtsborough and Sheffield, and asked the conductor for a return ticket to Sheffield.

But on receiving the ticket he forgot himself and climbed his heels and bowed, as so many Hollywood films have portrayed the typical German in uniform.

Conductor Collis Spittle, an ardent film fan, having already been warned that there was an escaped German prisoner at large in the district, informed his driver.

Apparently taking no further interest in his passengers, and continuing with his job, Spittle took no action until his driver pulled up alongside a policeman.

The postage stamp check was made by reducing a photostatic copy of the regular size check. The loser, Richard B. Allenman of Hanover, Pa., then signed the reduced copy.

When to Take Bath
For social freshness the bath should be taken in the morning, to cleanse away the perspiration salts and decomposed surface fats of the night. For a good night's sleep, however, a five minute soaking in a tub of warm or hot water just before retiring is usually helpful. A cold shower at bedtime is likely to produce wakefulness rather than sleep.

NEW PROCESS ELIMINATES USE OF RIVETS IN AIRPLANES
DETROIT.—Development of a new high-speed process for aluminum sheet welding which may prevent a bottleneck forming in plane production has been announced by a welding company.

Tests on duralumin, a strip similar to aircraft aluminum, disclosed that the new method produced a spot weld twice as strong as required under government specifications for rivets in only 1-3000 of a second, a spokesman said.

It was asserted that the new weld, embodying principles long sought by aircraft companies as a short-cut to the tedious process of defining, placing and clinching rivets, could replace with welds virtually all the 400,000 rivets in a four-engine bomber. Adaptation made it usable in virtually every part of an airplane assembly.

Other concerns have announced development of duralumin welding processes which could be adapted to some sections of a bomber, but none of these would replace rivets entirely.

If plane manufacturers find the welder acceptable, engineers said it was possible that the time needed for bomber production would be cut in half.

The weld is accomplished by a "pulling" direct electric current

Household Hints
To keep the inside of a gas range in good condition, remove rust that may have accumulated with coarse sandpaper, then rub over entire surface with olive oil.

Shrinkage in woollens is usually due to over-washing. In ordinary circumstances, three minutes is long enough for them.

When rooms are to be painted, coat windows with a cleaning powder. If paint splatters on the glass it comes off easily when the powder is wiped away.

If sugar is added to water when making flavored ice cubes, the cubes will not freeze clear or solidly.

Many kitchens have a bare, unused wall space that could be usefully and attractively transformed into a useful shelf.

Before baking potatoes, let them stand in hot water for 15 minutes. Then rub with butter or lard and put in oven. They will bake in half the time and will not shrink.
