Nazi Armies Fall Back in France; Hitler's Hold on Balkans Shaken; Lend-Lease Totals 28 Billion

Carried on six-acts, wounded Allied soldiers arrive at Mytilene air-strip, Burns, for transfer to hospital planes.

EUROPE:

Nazi Pull Back

As fast-moving Allied forces pushed the Nazis back through the cities of France, German spokesmen hinted that Hitler's high command planned a withdrawal to the Reth front as to as to concentrate the greatest number of men on a short line.

But even as the Nazis fell back, swift armored thrusts by the U. S., British and French continued to slash at the harassed enemy's flanks and threaten his encirclement from the rear, and Allied planes roared over the battle-lines to dip low and gun the retreating German columns.

With the bulk of their forces crowded in the area immediately north and south of Paris, the Germans put up their stiffest rearward resistance in this region. In southern France, Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army lashed out quickly in all directions, with only scattered bands of enemy troops standing up bravely to slow the Allied drive.

After capture of the great French Mediterranean port of Marseilles, American engineers went to work quickly to restore facilities damaged by the Germans and enable the Allies to funnel supplies quickly to their armies in the south. Use of Marseilles' installations would relieve the troublesome practice of landing supplies on the sandy beaches in shallow-draft craft. Arrangements for the German evacuation of Paris having fallen through, Free French armored columns were compelled to fight through a screen of Nazi defenders to liberate the city, with heavy U. S. howitzers backing up Gen. De Gaulle's troops, and helping to break enemy resistance. Occupation of Paris with its 3,000,000 people, need of food and fuel for utilities, posed a supply problem for the Allies.

Turbulent Balkans

With formation of a peace government in Rumania, Adolf Hitler's steady grip on the turbulent Balkans grew unsteady, with Rumanian defiance threatening to topple Germany's whole southeastern front.

As young King Michael announced his country's willingness to accept Allied peace terms, Russia called for German troops from her homeland, and a war against Hungary to clear the latter from Transylvania, as the price of armistice terms.

Even as Rumania acted to quit Germany, Bulgarian peace proposals reportedly were forwarded to the Allies, who were said to have insisted upon the Bulgars' withdrawal from all occupied Greek and Yugoslav territory as one of the armistice terms.

To prevent any peace factions from obtaining a grip in Hungary, the Nazi-inspired regime dissolved all political parties, including the conservative elements.

Russo Pressure

Fighting in the Balkan countries' swing toward the Allied camp was the Russians' power-house drive bearing down from northern Rumania.

As the Reds hurled their might at the enemy lines, they bored down on the Galati Gap between the Transylvanian Alps and Black sea, barring the way to the heart of Rumania and the Ploesti oil fields. From this region, there was short going before the Reds would reach the Bulgarian frontier.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

USE OF AUTOS: A recent survey discloses that 74 per cent of car owners are driving their autos less than half the peacetime mileage. This reduction has come about through shorter and fewer trips rather than the laying up of cars for the duration. Gasoline and tire rationing have combined with patriotic motives to lessen car use, the survey continued.

TRAP HOODING: Capt. Joseph Hiestand of Hillsboro, Ohio, has once again won the North American target championship in the 5th Grand American Trapshooting tournament held at Vandell, Ohio. This is the fourth time he has captured the award, the previous occasions being in 1935, '36, and '38. He broke 200 straight targets to lead the field of entrants.

AGRICULTURE:

Seek to Avoid Glut

Looking forward into the postwar world with all of its economic problems, the War Food administration has sought to develop a procedure designed to avoid the accumulation of vast stores of surplus foods which might constitute a market threat when hostilities cease.

Under WFA plans, the agency now buys food only for foreseeable demands, and declares that any commodities required for relief to liberated countries will first be withdrawn from surplus army and lend-lease stocks before purchases are made in the domestic market.

In establishing a surplus sales division, which is to sell current food stocks when demand is high to make room for fresh supplies, the WFA has set up machinery for future disposal.

World Plans

Drawn up with the avowed ambition of improving the efficiency of farm production and distribution, and bettering the economic conditions of rural populations, plans for a permanent international agricultural organization have been submitted for approval to the 44 United Nations by their food conference committee.

To set in an advisory capacity only, the proposed organization would consist of a governing body to which each nation would be represented, with officers and committees to ward promoting research, spreading information and offering recommendations.

Other objectives of the plan include the elevation of nutritional standards throughout the world, the development of agriculture as a contribution to an overall economic program.

PACIFIC:

Bombers Active

With thousands of Japanese troops stranded on the enemy's string of outer defense islands from the Solomon down to New Guinea, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air command concentrated on the bombardment of shipping lanes through which supplies might seek to bolster the garrison.

At the same time, Adm. Chester Nimitz revealed that his planes continued their attack upon the strategic Bonin Islands, which lie approximately 600 miles from the Japanese mainland and just above the U. S. occupied Marianas, in an effort to soften up these stepping stones to Tokyo.

In pressing their bombardments, General MacArthur's air command ranged over the islands, important base point for enemy shipping in the southern Philippines.

Fatherly Marines

Having been removed from hillside dugout on Imiton Island in the Pacific, the Japanese were scrubbed clean by battle-hardened but fatherly U. S. Marines, then outfitted with new clothes and sent to rear areas.

WAGES: AFL Wants Boost

Declaring that the President possessed the power to raise wages, and that the stabilization act calling for a balance in the nation's economy afforded him the grounds for such a move, the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor asked for abandonment of the "Little Steel" formula, limiting pay increases to 15 per cent of January, 1941, level.

At the same time, the council charged the International Office Workers' union, which would embrace a vast number of white-collar employees, who, as a class, have felt the squeeze of rising living costs more than any other group, since most wage increases have been enjoyed by the blue-collar workers.

In appealing for higher wages, the AFL said that the war had created: "The working men and women of this nation have been the victims of the economic mismanagement that exists between wages and cost of living. This mismanagement has resulted in a depression of the peacetime standards of living."

U. S. LAND

More than 34 million acres have been acquired by the federal government for war purposes, exclusive of land taken over by the Defense plant corporation, according to Senator Charles McNary, Republican of Oregon. The war and navy departments have stated that 6,700,000 acres of public lands are surplus for postwar purposes. Of this, 1,500,000 acres are tentatively classified as good agricultural land, 2,000,000 acres as grazing land, and 2,100,000 as forest tracts.

English Regiment's Colors in a J. S. Army Post Chapel Recalls Day When Briton and American Fought Side by Side to Win Historic Victory

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

RECENT press dispatches from the Italian front recorded the arrival of the King's Royal Rifle Corps as one of the units of the Seventh Armored Division, which had served so brilliantly under General Montgomery in his victory over Rommel in the North African campaign and which was now a part of the British Eighth Army. To most American readers this reference to the Royal Rifles had no special significance, although they might have been interested in its progress in the campaign against Kesselring's Germans as in the fortunes of any regiment in the Mark Clark's American Fifth Army.

For the fact that the Royal Rifle Corps is intimately associated with the history of this country. It is the oldest American regiment which helped gain one of the most brilliant victories ever won on the North American continent, arriving to American colonial history one of its greatest military heroes, General Braddock, the regiment was recently been inactivated from the West Indies.

With this "army" Bouquet reached Fort Bedford, the first leg of his 80-mile journey, on July 25. There a force of experienced rangers joined him and they proved invaluable as an advance guard against ambush. By August 5 he was nearing his goal. About noon of that day, after a forced march of 17 miles through the hot forests, he reached a place called Edge Hill, 25 miles from Fort Pitt. Suddenly there were rifle shots and screaming war-whoops. The Indians had attacked his advance guard.

It was probably as desperate a situation as any military commander had ever faced. In the day of savages three or four times the size of his, Bouquet's men were ordered to capture the British posts and remembering how they had overthrown Braddock, who had more than three times as many soldiers as did Bouquet, the Indians were confident of another great victory. Outside the little circle of picked-up supplies, which formed the British "fort," lay the bodies of 25 soldiers, killed in the fighting that preceded. Inside there were suffering and wounded men, and a few of some of the rangers who risked their lives to creep down to a spring for a renewal of the Indian attack. They cut down their plunging fire and cut down the number of defenders on the hill. At last, Bouquet's men were ordered to attack. The command was inevitable if this unequal kind of fighting continued, resolved to attempt one risky maneuver and wager everything on desperate chance. If he could get the enemy out into the open long enough to give his Highlanders an opportunity for a bayonet charge, one decisive stroke might end the affair.

Explaining clearly to his men what he wanted them to do, so that they would not make a mistake when the crisis came, Bouquet ordered the two companies of Highlanders to advance. The first to the hill, retreat rapidly across the hill until they reached a little ravine which ran along one of the flanks. There they were to advance down this ravine and be ready to attack from it when necessary. Meanwhile the Royal Americans were to extend their line across the hill, a savage cut in the forests of western Pennsylvania on Aug. 3, 1763. Today those colors are a faded and worn relic of the battle of the Clouds, the tradition of the British and Americans fighting and dying side by side in Tunisia, in Italy and in France.

ASTYMAL IGNORANCE

Taxpayers in general have little knowledge of their government — its functions, its operations, its costs and the sources thereof. An outstanding example of astymal ignorance, displayed either to the credit of the public or otherwise, is disclosed by the following two sentences from a letter to the editor of the Daytona Beach Journal:

"If (any community) wants any prosperity after the war or any municipal improvements they must come from the state. The only solvent unit Florida has is the state. It collects all the gas and tax laws which taxpayers in the cities mostly pay but benefits from which they do not receive."

Seldom have we seen two sentences more loaded with misinformation. First the state is not the only solvent unit today. Florida's 67 counties are in the best financial condition in history as are the schools and many cities.

Then and then — but just two major points. Every time of the tag money goes to school teachers salaries — mostly in the cities. Nearly all the gasoline tax goes to (a) building roads from the country into the cities so that the cities can get all the trade of the people; (b) building roads between cities so that citizens of the cities can travel wherever they desire and not jostle their cars to places; (c) paying bonds issued to build the roads and thus reduce taxes for roads, a huge portion of which are spent by city taxpayers. Principally — almost none of these tax monies go to the state in spite of the implication of the Daytona letter writer.

Here's a sound reason taxpayers should "wile up" to what's going on. Let's straighten things out, alright, but start with ourselves. We ought to have some "town meetings" and attend them.

She is now convalescing from a recent emergency appendectomy, which she was forced to undergo while vacationing in Weaverville.

"treasure" (Presents $2.50, 20, 21). The Lesson-Sermon also selected the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The elucidation of Christian Science lies in its spiritual sense, and is not to be sought in the material in order to grasp the meaning of this science. In Christian Science, substance is understood as a spiritual, while the elements of Christian Science believe substance to be matter" (P. 249: 18-21, 281-2).

CHURCHES OF CHRIST
"SUBSTANCE" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, beginning throughout the world on Sunday, September 10.
The Golden Text is: "A good name is rather to be desired than great riches, and loving favour rather than silver and gold" (Proverbs 22:1).
Among the Stations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Hear, ye who speak of ease and the opening of my lips shall be right things. I lead in the way of righteousness, in the midst of the paths of judgment: That I may cause those that love me to inherit substance; and I will fill them with gold." (Psalms 112:1-9).

must send them out to a weary mind of doubtful ringing; to often fail to render the service which the boys want above all others. Won't you lend us your services by Mary Baker Eddy? You have or expect to have a vacancy? The boys look to us for help — and we must look to you to serve them. Only by your united efforts can we hope to serve them. Would you be willing to take a course in a school, while the boys wait? Often we find service parents who would appreciate an evening to spend at the school, or on the night dance. Give us a call and leave your name and phone number. We'll guarantee that you'll have a charming Friday or Saturday to brighten your day and you'll have the added satisfaction of giving an "evening out" to some young couple. Help us run a "Park Your Kiddie Service."

Lt Col R. M. Dippy Well Known to CCTS Men

(From High Score)

When Lt Col Robert Newton Dippy, now Commanding Officer of CCTS, stepped into his new position, he was like a return with old friends. For back in 1942, as Commanding Officer at Wendover Field, Utah, he became familiar with the impressive record of the 88th Bombardment Group, now known as the CCTS, and became a personal friend of many of the 88th staff officers.

A veteran of the last war, Lt Col Dippy saw extensive service as a flyer in Italy, France, Belgium, Holland, Central Europe and Germany. As a member of the United States Army he was attached to the Italian Royal Air Force and participated in several bombing missions, flying the huge Caproni, a plane as large as the present day Flying Fortress.

In 1910 he attended the Peace Conference on a special assignment, his duties keeping him in Paris from January to May. After being discharged from the army in June, 1913, the late Lt Dippy returned to his civilian occupation as an Industrial Engineer. On July 17, 1942, he received the second star to his rank. On Oct. 2, 1942, he assumed command of the Wendover Army Air Field in Utah, remaining there until transferred to Gelfert, Miss., on April 4, 1944. As Commanding Officer at Gelfert, Lt Col Dippy helped set the first Tri-Directorate System, under which all CCTS units were operated.

An ardent sportsman, Lt Col Dippy lists among his interests football, swimming, horse-back riding and golf. At Gelfert, from 1915 to 1918, he was Middle Atlantic Association champion in all swimming events from 25 yards to 5 miles. His home is in Philadelphia, Penn.

Art Club Exhibit
At Avon USO Today
Interest in Avon USO's Art Club has grown by leaps and bounds — no so much so that an exhibit on display for one week beginning today in the Club lobby and music room, it was announced by W. L. Schmidt, director.

At first, interested would-be artists took in on the Art club through the door of the group study. Many seem to sense an atmosphere of seriousness and talent as they note the sketches are seated around the model.

They enter and shortly find themselves at work with the helpful encouragement of Mrs. Herring and Mrs. Kanny.

If any APAAF GIs would like to see what they look like on display for one week beginning today, or if the GI is particularly handy, he can bring the wife and have her pose.

Annual Inspection
Of Base by IG Dept.
Officers and enlisted men from the Inspector General Department of Third Air Force headquarters are conducting an annual inspection of APAAF this week. Headed by Lt Col F. G. Lee, the inspecting team consists of Majors J. H. Juras, R. B. Lutz, C. F. Myers, Captain D. A. Ang, W. E. H. Howley, M. St. George Allen and S. Sgt. Melvin Graetz.

Chamber Assists In Re-employment

At a mass meeting Tuesday night called by the Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of assisting the employee as well as the employer, papers were passed out listing positions that are now open in Avon Park. Dr. R. H. Jordan, Chairman of the Post War Planning Committee, again reviewed with those present the positions open and business and professional opportunities. President Lander pledged the support of the Chamber of Commerce in future assistance to the employee and employer as well as to anyone entering in the field of business or professional opportunities here in Avon Park. It is the purpose of the Chamber of Commerce to continue this employment service and cordially invites any employer or employee to contact it concerning their needs.

LEGION ATTENTION
Legionnaires are asked to meet at the Ridge Fuel Company office Sunday at 2 o'clock to prepare to assist the Memorial Service at the First Baptist Church for Lt. James Harold Rowe, Highlands Post will assist in the ceremonies.
